It is important to keep in mind that most proverbs are generalizations, not promises or predictions of the future. They report what we observe to be true most often, or what we can reasonably expect God to do. All of them rely on the assumption that final outcomes include eternity—which is to say, things may not turn out the way we hoped in this life. In keeping with this, the verbs in most proverbs use a tense that depicts actions repeated regularly, indicating that proverbs should be treated as guidelines.

6:6–11 This passage warns against the trap of laziness. The sluggard or lazy person is held captive to leisure. He can learn all he needs to know by studying the ant , a humble creature that busies itself with storing food during the summer against the winter that lies ahead. Like the ant, a wise person works hard. By contrast, the lazy person is addicted to sleep and has lost all interest in work (see 26:13–16).

6:12–15 A wicked man is a troublemaker. Unlike the sluggard, whose only desire is another place to nap, the troublemaker cannot wait to cause more problems or to get into more mischief. Unlike the sluggard (see v. 6), he is too busy, though he is doing the wrong things. He delights in bringing dissension. But like the sluggard, he does not realize that calamity awaits him.

6:16–19 This passage is a numerical proverb (see 30:15–31) that describes seven things that the LORD hates. The use of numerical progression—six, even seven—in these proverbs is a rhetorical device that embellishes the poetry, provides a memory aid, and builds to a climax. The progression involves not just the numbers but also the words that describe God’s response; the word hates progresses to abomination. The word abomination is the Bible’s strongest expression of hatred for wickedness (compare Lev. 18:22). In a list of this type, the last item is the most prominent. Thus the reader knows that causing discord among brethren (see v. 14) causes God’s greatest disapproval. Contrast the blessing of God on brothers who live together in peace (Ps. 133:1).

6:20–24 This passage links the teaching of the father with that of the mother (see 1:8). The mother’s instruction should be bound about one’s heart and neck, a constant companion and a trusted guide—just like God’s law (compare Deut. 6:4–9; 11:18–21). lamp . . . light: Compare Ps. 119:105.

6:30–35 steals to satisfy: This passage does not condone theft. It merely contrasts theft, which can be an understandable course of action, with adultery, which never makes sense. Throwing away one’s commitment to one’s lifelong companion is pure folly. For the ancient Israelites, marital fidelity was a mark of one’s fidelity to God.

7:1–5 The problem of immorality (see 2:16–19; 5:1–23; 6:20–35) does have a solution: Keep my commands . . . as the apple of your eye. People should guard wise words as instinctively as they protect the pupil of the eye. God cares for His people with the same diligence (Deut. 32:10).

7:6–10 The young man who gives in to the immoral woman is described as simple, a term that pegs him as naive, inexperienced, and devoid of understanding (see 1:4; 9:3). He has no idea how foolish he is. He thinks he makes his way to the woman, but she in fact seduces him.

7:14–20 All the adulteress does is perverse. She audaciously begins her proposition by talking about her supposedly righteous actions that day. Since the offerings she presented to the Lord were fellowship or peace offerings, she could bring part of them home for a feast before the Lord. But here she presents the offering as a feast for the young man she plans to entrap. Her preparations and her words of invitation might pass between a wife and husband and be honored by God. But in her mouth these words become evil. She overcomes her target’s fear by assuring him that her husband will not come home and discover them together.

7:22, 23 The passage here uses several unflattering metaphors to describe how a young fool falls into immorality. The phrase as a fool to the correction of the stocks could be translated “as a stag prances into captivity.” The idea is that the young man is oblivious to his fate. Such a fool has no idea how foolish he is.

8:1–11 Chapter 8 is a hymn of praise about how wonderful wisdom is. Does not wisdom cry out: Wisdom wants to reach everyone and therefore broadcasts her message publicly, unlike the immoral woman, who uses privacy and deception to achieve her goals. Wisdom’s words can be trusted, and her offers of grace are beneficial. Her words of truth contrast with the lies of wickedness 7:21–23; wisdom will deliver on her promises; she is not a tawdry tease. What wisdom offers is of inestimable worth, far more valuable than silver and gold; no gems or other desirable things may be compared with it (see 3:14, 15 for a similar expression).

Wisdom Cries Out

Wisdom is personified in the Proverbs and acts as God's dynamic Word. In the New Testament, Jesus becomes the Wisdom and Word of God.

Origin of Wisdom

- In God (v. 22)

instruction

(Heb. musar) (1:2; 4:1; 8:10; Deut. 11:2; Is. 26:16; 53:5) Strong's #4148

The Hebrew word translated instruction means “discipline” that is instructive and corrective in nature. The word emphasizes the “nourishing” and “chastising” elements of bringing up a child. Instruction has to do with both the reception of knowledge through hearing and the application of that knowledge in daily life. In Proverbs, discipline comes primarily through one’s father but also through one’s mother (see 1:8; 3:11, 12, 13:1; 31:1). Usually the word refers to verbal instruction, but it can also refer to the rod of correction (see 13:24; 22:15; 23:13). The content of the instruction is frequently linked to wisdom, knowledge, and the fear of the Lord (1:2, 3; 12:1; 15:33; 23:12, 13). Outside of Proverbs, discipline and instruction is frequently connected to God. The Exile was identified by the prophets as God’s corrective punishment on the Israelites (Jer. 2:30; 5:3; 30:14).

8:12, 13 The words I, wisdom, dwell with prudence introduce the second section of this passage about the excellence of wisdom (vv. 12–21). Again in this context we see wisdom tied directly to the fear of the LORD. The offer of wisdom is held out only to those who fear God. Coming to wisdom requires coming to God, and coming to God means turning away from all that God hates—evil, pride, arrogance, misbehavior, and perverse speech. Jesus said that the truth is found in Him (see John 8:32).

8:14–18 princes . . . nobles . . . judges: Power and authority require the use of wisdom; this is one of its loftiest appeals. What’s more, wisdom leads those who follow her to riches and honor (see 9:1–6). These contrast directly with the shameful fate of the fool (6:33, 35).

8:22–31 This section of ch. 8 describes wisdom’s role in creation. The LORD possessed me at the beginning of His way: The Hebrew verb for possessed can mean “brought forth” or “created.” Melchizedek used the same word to identify God as creator of the universe (see Gen. 14:19). God, who is ever wise, produced wisdom; God, who possesses all knowledge, brought forth knowledge. Wisdom had a beginning only in the sense that God singled it out for special display at that time; insofar as it is one of God’s perfections, it has always existed (v. 23). These verses provide part of the background for the NT portrayal of Christ as the divine Word (John 1:1–3) and as the wisdom of God (1 Cor. 1:24, 30; Col. 2:3).

8:30, 31 The term master craftsman speaks of an artisan or of a darling child. Wisdom is both. With wisdom’s skill, God created the universe. A proper study of the universe is a progressive discovery of God’s wisdom (see Rom. 1:20). delight: In her playful, childlike exuberance, Wisdom is a darling child. And her greatest joy comes in the finest of the work of God—the sons of men—that is, humankind.

8:32–36 Now therefore, listen to me, my children: This section is the epilogue of the ch. 8 hymn of praise. It calls everyone to listen. Wisdom offers blessing and life to those who heed her, but cursing and death to those who hate her. Wisdom’s gracious invitation is more desirable than anything and an invitation to a blessed life.

- 9:1 Here is the final contrast between wisdom and folly. Each holds a banquet, one for life (vv. 1–6) and one for death (vv. 13–18). Between the two banquet descriptions is a section (vv. 7–12) that speaks of consequences of the life of wisdom and of the plight of folly. Wisdom has built her house: Here as in 1:20, the term for wisdom is in the intensive plural rather than the singular. It calls attention to itself. Seven pillars: The number seven represents completeness, as it often does in Semitic poetry. That is, it is not that there were precisely seven pillars so much as that the house of wisdom was solidly built and substantial in character.
- 9:2, 3 The meal at wisdom’s banquet includes meat and wine and a lovely table (see 7:14). Freshly butchered meat was a mark of a feast in biblical times. mixed her wine: Wine was a staple in ancient Israel; but when a feast was special, a homemaker would add aromatic spices to the wine, enlivening the bouquet and improving the taste (see Song 8:2). This all sets up a contrast with the foolish woman. While wisdom is busy, attending to every detail like a gracious hostess, the foolish woman sits at the entrance of her house with very little to do (v. 14). Wisdom sends her trusted maidens throughout the city, inviting people to come and dine.
- 9:4–6 Wisdom makes a point of inviting the simple, meaning those who have not yet made up their minds about their course in life (see 1:4; 7:6). bread . . . wine: Wisdom promises life. Forsake foolishness: The person who comes to wisdom has nothing to lose but naiveté. See Heb. 5:14, which speaks of a mature person as one who is able to eat and to enjoy solid food, in contrast to the naive who is able only to drink milk (Heb. 5:13).
- 9:7–9 A scoffer or mocker is thoroughly set against wisdom (see 1:22) and scoffs at the things of God (Ps. 1:1). How should a person respond to a mocker? It is best not to respond at all. By contrast, a wise man accepts correction and responds with gratitude to the one who points out his error. A wise person always welcomes constructive criticism; by implication, he or she is also humble (v. 10; 3:7; 11:2).
- 9:10–12 fear of the LORD: This is the central theme of the Book of Proverbs (see 1:7). The only appropriate way to approach the holy God is with fear, that is, reverence. The term Holy One is an intensive plural of the Hebrew word for holy: “the most Holy One” or “the quintessence of holiness.” for yourself . . . alone: You will feel the effects of your wisdom or foolishness directly; you cannot escape them.
- 9:13–18 This section is a parody of vv. 1–6. Like personified wisdom, the foolish woman calls out an invitation. But she is brash, loud, undisciplined, and knows nothing (see 7:10–12). She cries out in the same words that wisdom has used (compare v. 16 with v. 4), but with a twist: she has no marvelous banquet for her guests, only shabby food, stolen and meager. Though she gets lots of attention, her appeal makes sense only to him who lacks understanding.
- 10:1 The proverbs of Solomon focus on the wise son, as in chs. 1–9, and contrast him with the foolish son. The term son is generic—the central issue is not that he is a son rather than a daughter, but that he is wise or foolish. The child’s behavior affects both parents. Both parents find their joy or sadness in their child who demonstrates skill in life. The tense of the verbs suggests that time after time a wise child gladdens parents, and time after time a foolish child brings distress to parents.

(Heb. mashal) (10:1; 1 Sam. 10:12; 24:13; Ezek. 14:8) Strong's #4912

This Hebrew word means an “insightful saying.” The word is commonly associated with Solomon, who spoke some three thousand proverbs (1 Kin. 4:32; Eccl. 12:9). In Proverbs, the section headings indicate that both the two-line witty adage and the longer instructions of wisdom can be called by this name (see 1:1; 10:1; 25:1). In Job, even an extended philosophical discourse can be called a proverb (Job 27:1; 29:1). In Ezekiel, the insightful saying can take on the form of a parable (see Ezek. 17:2; 24:3). The Book of Proverbs makes it clear that all of these sayings are exclusively the domain of the wise (1:6; 26:7, 9). They are intended to instruct us in the realities of life, the truth, and most importantly the fear of God (1:6, 7).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 10:3 This verse speaks of God’s gracious provision of food for the righteous and His retributive justice on the wicked. Proverbs such as this emphasize (1) circumstances as they ought to be and (2) the end of the wicked (see Ps. 73:17). They do not necessarily indicate circumstances as they always are, nor what the wicked are experiencing right now.
- 10:4 slack hand . . . poor: Proverbs often link laziness with poverty, and hard work with riches, but not always (see v. 2). This proverb states the norm.
- 10:5 Gathers in summer contrasts a skillful person with a shameful person, based on whether he works hard during the harvest season. The description of the second person is particularly critical: “he who snores away during the harvest.”
- 10:7 In biblical times, a person’s name was significant and important. When a person’s name was remembered by future generations for good, that person’s life was believed to have been of great value. But when the memory of a name rotted away, it was as though that person had never lived.
- 10:8 The Hebrew verb for will fall means “is ruined” and comes from the same root as the verb will rot in v. 7. This type of poetic parallelism would have delighted the ancient Israelites.
- 10:9 Many of the proverbs contrast two paths of life. Walks with integrity means conforming to God’s law as a course of life. Choosing crooked paths is willfully to disdain the Law God so graciously provided.
- 10:10 winks with the eye: Although many proverbs contrast two behaviors, both units of this proverb speak of evil actions. Moreover, the second unit of this verse is identical with the second unit of v. 8; this is a connective link that ties the passage together.
- 10:12 Hatred . . . love: This verse describes interpersonal relationships, not salvation. When people respond in love to each other, they cover over the sins, or offenses, that would otherwise come between them.
- 10:13 This proverb tells of the positive role that speech can have—that of speaking wisdom. The rod refers to punishment, in this case deserved. The term devoid of understanding comes from the Hebrew idiom “lack heart.” The one who “lacks heart” is contrasted with the one who is “wise in heart” (see v. 8).

- 10:14, 15 To store up knowledge is a strong theme in the instruction section of chs. 1–9 (see 1:1–3; 3:1). This set of verses contrasts the wise person’s pursuit of knowledge with the empty talk of a fool. Wealth is like a strong city. In biblical times only walled cities had any defense against enemy armies; likewise, a wealthy person is able to withstand the assaults of others.
- 10:16, 17 These verses present the doctrine of the two ways: the righteous is on the way of life, but the wicked wander from it. The phrase wages of the wicked is similar to Paul’s expression in Rom. 6:23: “the wages of sin is death.”
- 10:18–21 These verses tell of the dangers of speech, particularly lying and slander. The way to avoid these sins is to exercise restraint.
- 10:23, 24 The word translated sport usually means “joyous laughter” (see Job 8:21; Ps. 126:2). At times it means “hollow laughter” (14:13; Eccl. 7:3, 6). Here the proverb uses the word in a completely negative sense. For the fool, wickedness is only a game. He makes up the rules as he goes along; for him losing is only in getting caught. But a person who has understanding takes a longer-term perspective. In the end he gets his way while justice comes upon the wicked.
- 10:25 The short-lived nature of the wicked is contrasted with the stability of the righteous. As in Ps. 1:3, 4, where the righteous are compared to a tree and the wicked to chaff, so in this proverb the storm blows away the wicked but cannot dislodge the righteous. The everlasting foundation of the righteous is faith in God, much like the waters that nourish the tree of Ps. 1:3.
- 10:27 This verse contains the first instance of the phrase the fear of the LORD in chs. 10–22 (see 1:7, 29; 2:5; 8:13; 9:10). The tie of piety to long life and of wickedness to an early death is another common theme in Proverbs (see 3:1, 2).
- 10:28 hope . . . expectation: The righteous have something to look forward to; the wicked do not (v. 24).
- 10:29 Different people see the way of the LORD differently. Those who are innocent see it as a shelter from the storm and the heat of the day. Those who practice iniquity see it only as a source of terror. The viewer’s perspective makes all the difference; the way of the Lord itself remains constant and true.
- 10:30 This proverb presents a confident hope in the ultimate survival of the righteous and the final judgment of the wicked. In our limited experience, we might see the wicked succeeding and the righteous only struggling to live. But the final judgment (see Ps. 73) will reverse their fortunes.
- 10:31, 32 These verses form another pair of sentences about true and false speech. They may be compared to vv. 11, 13, 20, 21 and James 3. This repetition with variation indicates the significance of truth and falsehood in both ancient Israel and in the modern world as well.
- 11:1 Dealing fairly with one another is an outgrowth of the command to love one’s neighbor as oneself (see Lev. 19:18), which in turn is an outgrowth of the central command given to Israel, to love God alone (see Deut. 6:4–9). That is why false balances are an abomination to God, a term that refers to stomach-wrenching hatred.
- 11:2 Many proverbs contrast the arrogant with the humble, as this one does. The Hebrew word for pride comes from a root that means “to boil up”; it refers to a raging arrogance or insolence. The image pictures the presumptuous or arrogant behavior of the godless person. Such behavior always leads to shame.
- 11:3–6 These verses form a series of proverbs that contrast the results of righteousness and perversity in people’s lives. As pride and humility are contrasted in v. 2, so integrity and perversity are contrasted in v. 3.
- 11:4 From time to time the proverbs speak of death as a time of reward and punishment. Riches cannot help with this. Only righteousness has meaning and power beyond the grave.
- 11:10, 11 Truly righteous people bring justice to all the inhabitants of a city, and the city experiences true peace—that is, shalom, meaning “things as they ought to be.” Many psalm writers cried for vindication of the righteous and for a cessation of evil (see Ps. 69:22–28). For the fate of a city without any righteous persons in it, see the story of Sodom and Gomorrah in Gen. 18:22–33.

- 11:12 Patience and control are part of wisdom. A person who is devoid of wisdom, who “lacks heart” (see 10:13), despises his neighbor. But the understanding person knows enough to control his passion and to keep silence (see 17:28).
- 11:13 A faithful friend conceals delicate matters that an unfaithful person reveals. “Love covers a multitude of sins” (see 10:12; James 5:20; 1 Pet. 4:8).
- 11:14 In modern times as much as formerly, leaders of nations need adequate counsel. So do all individuals. We all need to seek advice from wise and trustworthy people.
- 11:15, 16 These two proverbs balance each other. The first warns against rashly giving surety or a pledge for a stranger. The second praises generosity; generosity begets honor. One of the greatest virtues is to be freed of possessiveness. The members of the early church gave freely to those in need (Acts 2:44, 45; 4:32–35).
- 11:19 Proverbs such as this remind us that the pursuit of righteousness is a matter of life and death.
- 11:21 The term join forces is literally “hand for hand.” Collective opposition to God’s purposes makes no sense at all (Ps. 2:1–4).
- 11:22 A golden ring would be ludicrous on a pig’s snout. To the ancient Israelites, pigs were unclean and repellent. The immoral person is compared to such an animal, no matter what the outward appearance might be.
- 11:23 The term desire is used in some of the proverbs in a negative sense (see 13:12, 19; 18:1; 19:22), but here it has a positive meaning. The righteous desire good.
- 11:24–26 These proverbs should shape our attitudes toward wealth: it should be shared. Stinginess may lead to poverty. Generosity has the opposite effect. Selfishness is foolish because it only creates enemies and dishonors God.
- 11:28 This proverb addresses the folly of trusting in riches. The second line can easily be misinterpreted to mean that righteousness always leads to success. The proverb actually addresses a person’s attitude toward wealth. It is foolish to trust in riches instead of God.
- 11:30 As in 3:18, the image of the tree of life denotes the tree in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 2; 3). Righteousness and wisdom are ways of recovering the lost tree of life.
- 11:31 Here is a how much more proverb, one that argues from a premise to conclusion. Since the righteous will finally find their reward (see 2 Cor. 5:10), it follows that the wicked, who are defiant toward God and in conflict with His works, will certainly receive judgment.
- 12:1 The wise person knows that discipline and instruction will bring its own reward. Yet the person who hates a reprimand is stupid, literally “stupid as a cow.”
- 12:2 He will condemn: John’s Gospel speaks of one being condemned already because of evil deeds, and deliberately clinging to the darkness even though the light has come (see John 3:16–21).
- 12:3 Contrasts such as the one in this proverb speak of a person’s ultimate end; otherwise they would be proven false by countless examples of wicked persons who flourish while the righteous suffer. In the end, the righteous will stand sure, as in the image of the tree in Ps. 1:3.
- 12:4 Excellent wife, or “noble woman,” are the same Hebrew words used in the famous acrostic in 31:10–31. A husband whose wife is like the woman described in ch. 31 should rejoice in her, because her noble character brings him honor.
- 12:5, 6 Our thoughts do matter. At the very least, they must not be deceitful. A person’s thoughts determine what he or she says and does. The words of wicked persons are like a deadly ambush.
- 12:9 A better . . . than proverb, this verse contrasts a person who is a “nobody” but has a servant with a person who makes a great display but does not even have food on the table. Pretension and arrogance destroy those who indulge in them.
- 12:11 tills his land: Many proverbs contrast hard work with laziness. Wise people work hard while fools waste time.
- 12:12, 13 yields fruit . . . is ensnared: Wickedness hurts the wicked; righteousness helps the righteous (see v. 14). This is another way of saying “whatever a man sows, that he will also reap” (Gal. 6:7). The expression the root of the righteous also appears in v. 3.

- 12:16 at once: Careless words can make a fool out of us, so we are wise to think before we speak. King David showed such restraint (see 2 Sam. 16:5–12).
- 12:18, 19 Many proverbs praise people who speak carefully and truthfully. Speech reflects a person's character. The words of a righteous person are faithful and true (v. 17), and soothe the listener.
- 12:22, 23 An abomination is something that “nauseates” God (see 11:20). The term conveys extreme hatred. Thus it is better to remain silent than to have lying lips.
- 12:24 Anyone who wants to have a position of authority cannot dare to be lazy (see vv. 11, 14).
- 12:25 Anxiety loses some of its force in the face of a positive, encouraging word. Barnabas's encouragement of Paul is a great example of this (see Acts 4:36; 9:27; 11:2–30; Gal. 2:1).
- 12:26 Our friends help to determine who we will become (see 1 Cor. 15:33).
- 12:27 Lazy people do work, they just don't finish what they start. The cure for their laziness is diligence—to follow through to the end.
- 13:1 A wise son listens to instruction (see 10:1, 17) and is better off than the scoffer—the worst kind of fool (see Ps. 1:1). Some fools are naive and inexperienced, but open to suggestions; sometimes even those established in folly may rethink their position. But scoffers laugh at righteousness. Such people are impervious to rebuke.
- 13:5 The person who hates lying does not merely feel bad about it; he avoids it like the plague.
- 13:6 In the proverbs, righteousness is portrayed as a friend and wickedness as an enemy (see 11:27). Wickedness hurts us but righteousness helps.
- 13:7 rich . . . nothing: The paradox of greed causing poverty, and of generosity causing wealth, is a recurring theme in Scripture (see 11:24; Matt. 6:19–21). The point is not how much money you have, but what you do with it.
- 13:9 For an ancient Israelite, an oil lamp would be the only source of light at night. Without it, a person had no way of seeing the path in front of him (see 20:20; 24:20).
- 13:10 The word pride (see 11:2) does not refer to self-esteem or to a positive mental attitude, but to arrogance and a refusal to glorify God. Such pride is self-serving and leads to conflict.
- 13:11 This proverb describes the natural long-term consequences of cheating. People who compromise their honesty to get rich merely postpone the inevitable need to earn their keep. The day comes when their cheating catches up with them, but by then their honest colleagues have become far better at obtaining wealth. Cheating doesn't work anymore, and the wealth of the dishonest is diminished.
- 13:12 The tree of life (see 11:30) symbolizes the achievement of a deeply felt desire. It is like coming back to the Garden of Eden.
- 13:13 will be rewarded: A person can either despise instruction or respond in reverence, understanding that the ultimate Giver of instruction is God. Correction is only for one's good.
- 13:14 fountain of life (see 10:11): In an arid land such as ancient Judah, a fountain provided water for oneself and for one's flocks. It was a necessity—a source of life. That is a very strong endorsement for the law of the wise. A fountain was also a picture for salvation (Is. 12:1–3).
- 13:15 Favor with God and other people—a good reputation—is highly desirable because it ensures that you won't be alone in life. It comes from good understanding. A good reputation was the first qualification listed by the apostles for deacons in the early church (Acts 6:3).
- 13:16 Many proverbs pit the fool against the prudent person.
- 13:17 A . . . messenger who acts wickedly will be discovered and his sentence will be harsh indeed. But a messenger who acts in faithfulness brings healing as he goes. In ancient times it was not unusual for a monarch to lash out against the bearer of bad news. This proverb is a lashing out against a wicked messenger.
- 13:19 Few things are as sweet as accomplishment. But the folly of the fool is so deeply entrenched that he becomes ill if he leaves his self-destructive path. The term used of his revulsion, abomination, is the same word used of God in other passages (see 11:1).
- 13:20 walks with: The selection of friends (see 12:26) is extremely important. Pressure from peers is much stronger than many people realize.

13:21 Evil is a sinner's enemy (see v. 6), not a friend; a pursuer, and not a companion.

13:22 In the Book of Proverbs, wealth is a topic with many themes. Wealth may come as a benefit of righteous living (v. 11; 10:22); but there is no guarantee of this (28:6). Wealth cannot make a person good (11:4), and in the end it matters less than God's favor anyway (11:28). A good man knows this and trusts in God to meet his needs; the sinner tries to acquire and keep wealth and in the end fails.

13:24 hates . . . loves: This is the first of several proverbs on parental discipline. A parent's loving discipline is modeled after God's loving correction (see 3:11, 12).

14:1 A wise woman builds her house; that is, she develops a peaceful setting for family nurture.

(Heb. 'ivvelet) (14:1; 16:22; 17:12; 26:4, 5) Strong's #200

This Hebrew word signifies an absence of wisdom. Except for two occurrences in the Psalms, this term occurs only in Proverbs, where the foolishness of fools is frequently contrasted with the wisdom of the wise and prudent (13:16; 14:8, 18, 24). Foolishness characterizes the speech of fools and the reactions of the impulsive person (12:23; 14:17, 29; 15:2, 14; 18:13). Foolishness affects the lifestyle of a person, causing his or her heart to fret against God (15:21; 19:3). Indeed, foolishness is often identified with iniquity and sin (5:22, 23; 24:9; Ps. 38:4, 5). Although Proverbs does not hold out much hope for separating an adult fool from his foolishness, the rod of correction is identified as a remedy for children (22:15; 26:11; 27:22).

- 14:2 Fears the LORD contrasts starkly with despises Him. Love for uprightness will naturally coincide with love and respect for the most upright One of all, God Himself. Love for perversity will likewise result in hatred for Him. Fear of the Lord as the beginning of wisdom is the central theme of Proverbs (see 1:7).
- 14:3 rod of pride: This proverb addresses the dangers of foolish speech and the rewards of sensible speech. The words of the fool shape themselves into a rod that is ready for his enemies to use on him. This proverb calls to mind that many people are their own worst enemy; given enough rope, they prepare a noose for their own hanging.
- 14:4 clean: A farmer has to put up with some disorder in the barn if he wants the help of an ox. This is not an excuse to be slovenly, but an encouragement to work hard.
- 14:5 This proverb is a restatement of God's law: "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor" (Ex. 20:16; Deut 5:20).
- 14:8 This proverb contrasts prudent and foolish people. Wise people know what they are doing and why they are doing it. They have wise reasons for what they do, based on a knowledge of their choices. Fools, on the other hand, deceive so often that they deceive themselves. They do not know where they are headed.
- 14:12 Only when it is too late does the deluded person discover that he is on the crowded highway to death. The implication is not that he was tricked, but that he relied too heavily on his own "wisdom" rather than turning in humility to God. a way . . . the way: Many proverbs put their message in terms of two ways—one that leads to life and another that leads to death (see 16:25).
- 14:15 A characteristic of the naive person is gullibility. A prudent person is careful.
- 14:16 The phrase fears and departs from evil suggests fear of God (see v. 2).
- 14:19 In an ancient walled city, the gate area would normally be the weakest section of the wall. The city engineers of ancient Canaan developed complex structures to fortify this point. Controlling the gate of a city meant controlling the city; submitting at the gate meant an inability to overcome its defenses. In the end, the wicked will submit at the gates of the righteous.
- 14:21 despises . . . sins: See Lev. 19:13, 17. Jesus identified the command to love others, and not hate them, as second only to loving God (see Matt. 22:39).

14:22 One of the most significant pairings of words of piety in the Bible is the phrase translated mercy and truth. Together the words mean “constant faithfulness” or “true loyalty.” In the NT, the Greek equivalent of this phrase is translated “grace and truth” (John 1:14) and is used of the Savior Jesus. Those who plot evil know nothing of this characteristic.

14:26, 27 These proverbs interject the central idea of the Book of Proverbs—the fear of the LORD (see 14:2). The fear of God provides both protection and a fountain of life (see 13:14; 18:10), an image that recalls the Garden of Eden.

14:31 oppresses . . . honors: The theme of “as you treat people, so you treat God” is central to Scripture (Ex. 22:22–24; Matt. 25:31–46; 1 John 4:20).

14:32 Some of the proverbs describe deliverance from death itself (see 11:4). The teaching of life after death is not a major teaching in the OT, but neither is it altogether neglected.

14:34 Righteousness exalts a nation: Although each individual is responsible for his or her actions, the effects extend to the whole community.

15:1 Often it is not so much what we say but the way we say it that prompts such varied responses as acceptance and wrath. For Abigail’s gentle words to David when he was angry, see 1 Sam. 25:12–34.

15:3 That the eyes of the LORD are in every place watching everything chills those who do evil and comforts those who submit to Him (see Eccl. 12:14).

15:4 The soft answer of v. 1 is now a soothing tongue, and the hurtful word of v. 1 is now crooked dealing. The former is like a tree of life, taking us back to Eden (see 3:18; 11:30; 13:12); the other breaks the spirit, recalling the expulsion from the Garden (Gen. 3:23, 24).

15:5 The truly wise person profits from instruction. The term for the prudent in the second part of this proverb means “to be shrewd.” Shrewdness can be evil, but here it has the positive sense of “street smarts” (see 1:4).

15:6 One house is a blessing and the other is ruinous; the reason for this lies in how the house was acquired and how it is being used. The house of the righteous contains great treasure because it is founded on wisdom and a proper response to God. On the other hand, the wicked never gain enough to suit them, and lose what they have because of their deceptive ways.

15:7 People reveal who they are by what they say. The fool cannot help but speak foolishness.

15:8, 9 From time to time the proverbs touch on the subject of worship (see 16:6). Worship from those who are not contrite or humble is an abomination to God (see 11:20). From Gen. 4 to John 4 Scripture contrasts good and bad worship (see Is. 1:11–15). Verse 9 speaks of yet another abomination to the LORD—the course of life taken by the wicked.

15:10 This proverb promises harsh discipline for any person who forsakes the way of God. That is, discipline comes as a means of correction, not punishment. Only the person who hates correction—the one who stubbornly refuses to listen, time and time again—will die.

15:11 This is a “how much more” proverb (see 11:31), which impresses on the reader the clarity with which the Lord sees people’s hearts. The Hebrew word sheol, translated Hell, in this proverb connotes the fear of the unknown (see 9:18). When used with the word for Destruction, sheol means “the mysterious realm of death,” a dark and scary condition. Yet death is no mystery to the Lord. And if the mysterious realm of the dead is known to Him, then surely a person’s heart is transparent to Him. Such arguments from the greater to the lesser appear in both Testaments.

15:12 The scoffer (see 14:6) is used as a foil or comparison in Proverbs to expose more sharply the character of the wise. Whereas the sluggard is a comic figure in Proverbs, the scoffer is a villain. He delights in scorning the things of God (1:22) and is incapable of responding to discipline (9:7), reproof (9:8), or rebuke (13:1). He cannot find wisdom (14:6) and should be avoided (see Ps. 1:1). His basic problem is displayed in his response to correction. He does not learn from it nor does he seek it. The scoffer is adamant in his folly.

15:14 The person with an understanding heart, another description of the wise, is never satisfied with what he or she knows. The pursuit of wisdom and knowledge are lifelong occupations—never fully realized in this lifetime. But fools, not knowing the extent of their ignorance, continue to pursue folly.

(Heb. mishteh) (15:15; Gen. 21:8; Esth. 1:3) Strong's #4960

Notable OT banquets include that of Ahasuerus (Xerxes I), at which Vashti refused to allow herself to be displayed (Esth. 1) and that of Belshazzar, at which the gold and silver vessels stolen from the temple by Nebuchadnezzar were used and at which the handwriting appeared on the wall (Dan. 5). The NT speaks of the messianic banquet—a banquet at the end of this age—at which the patriarchs and all the righteous will be guests, but from which the wicked will be excluded (Matt. 8:11; Luke 13:29). The Book of Revelation concludes with all people invited to one or the other of the two banquets. At “the supper of the great God” (Rev. 19:17), the scavenger birds are invited to devour the defeated kings of the earth and their armies; at “the marriage supper of the Lamb” (Rev. 19:9), Christ will have fellowship with the faithful.

- 15:18 A wrathful person can stir up strife where there is none; but a person who has a slow fuse—who is slow to anger—soothes contention (see v. 1).
- 15:20 despises his mother: This proverb is like the fifth commandment: “Honor your father and your mother” (see Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). Honoring and listening to parents is a favorite theme of Solomon’s proverbs; this collection begins with the same exhortation (see 10:1).
- 15:22 The greater the decision, the greater the need for advice. Even wise, capable decision-makers—whether common people or rulers—need counselors (see 13:10).
- 15:23 Words are powerful: they can either build up or destroy. Solomon devoted many of his proverbs to the consequences of speech (see v. 4; 14:23). Just as foolish words can bring about a person’s own destruction (see 14:3), a wise word can bring joy to all who hear it. The apostle James wrote of the destructive power of words (in James 3:5, 6); the author of Hebrews also exhorted us to encourage one another (Heb. 10:24, 25).
- 15:25 God will bring about justice in the end. To the haughty, God will give a dose of humility. But for the widow, a completely defenseless person in ancient times, God will provide protection. Scripture in many places describes God as a Protector of the defenseless (see Deut. 10:18; Ps. 68:5; 146:9; Jer. 49:11).
- 15:26 Many proverbs focus on what God hates (see vv. 8, 9). Evil thoughts, for one, disgust Him. There is no such thing as “private thoughts.” We should pray with David that our words and the meditation of our hearts would be acceptable in God’s sight (see Ps. 19:14).
- 15:31, 32 He who disdains instruction despises his own soul: The natural instinct for self-preservation is dangerous when it is time to listen to a necessary rebuke. For the relationship between discipline and wisdom, see 1:7.
- 15:33 Knowledge alone does not make a person wiser; the fear of the LORD must accompany it. The same is true of honor.
- 16:1, 2 These verses contrast human limitations with the sovereignty of God. Man can plan, dream, and hope, but the final outcome is from the LORD. Rather than “resign ourselves to fate,” we should trust in God. Our loving Lord is in control of our seemingly chaotic situations. Verse 2 elaborates on this theme. In addition to being sovereign, God is the final Judge. All the injustices of this world will be corrected some glorious day.

16:3 The verb commit . . . to is from a word meaning “to roll.” The idea is to “roll your cares onto the Lord.” Trusting the Lord with our decisions frees us from preoccupation with our problems (see 3:5, 6).

16:5 proud in heart: Pride has everything backwards. It takes credit away from the Giver who gives graciously and awards it to the receiver who takes without thanking. That is why God sees it as an abomination, a word that throughout Proverbs refers to God’s revulsion (see 15:26).

16:6 In mercy and truth can also be translated “by genuine piety.” Atonement probably alludes to a sacrificial offering, but not apart from a contrite heart (as in Ps. 40:6–8). fear: Respect for God turns a person away from evil (see 3:7).

16:8 The Book of Proverbs often speaks of wealth as the reward of wisdom and virtue (see 14:11), but not always. Righteousness is the real treasure.

16:10 This verse begins a section that relates to kings (vv. 10–15). The word divination refers to judicial decisions. Because the nation rested in the king’s hands, his first responsibility was to obey God (see King Josiah’s reform of Israel, 2 Kin. 22; 23). Even the king had to submit to the dictates of justice.

16:11 Honest weights and scales matter to God because God is perfectly true. Falsehood and dishonesty do not merely cheat people, they also offend God.

16:15 life . . . his favor: Successfully courting a powerful person’s favor is like seeing rain clouds in a dry land. The phrase about the light of the face in this proverb helps us understand Aaron’s benediction in Num. 6:24–26.

16:17 A highway is a thoroughfare, a metaphor for the way a person lives habitually. An upright person’s “highway,” or habit, is to depart from evil. He does not compromise; he consistently strives to do good.

16:19 the proud: Destructive pride brings down many winners and is contagious.

16:21 This verse begins a small section of proverbs on the superiority of wisdom (vv. 21–24). Wisdom is never easily gained or quickly achieved; that is why a wise person increases learning.

16:22, 23 Those who possess understanding have access to a fountain of life that constantly renews itself and is available to everyone. The phrase wellspring of life is an image of salvation; water was essential for life in the arid regions of ancient Israel (see Ps. 36:8–10; Jer. 2:13). The wise know they are ignorant, so they keep on learning.

16:24 The Hebrew word for honeycomb is also used in Ps. 19:10, 11 with regard to the Word of God. The Israelites saw honey as a healthy food as well as a sweetener. Any comparison to it would connote positive, healthful effects.

16:25 Contrasts of God’s way with the way of the wicked figure in the teaching of Jesus as well as the proverbs (Matt. 7:13, 14). This proverb likens the wicked to being on the wrong road. They think they are going the right way, but in the end it leads to death (see 14:12). Death refers to physical death (as in 1 Cor. 11:29, 30; see also Rom. 6:23; 8:13; James 1:15; 5:20).

16:27–29 These verses all begin in a similar way, describing three different types of wicked people. The word ungodly, or “scoundrel,” means “a man of Belial”; this person is a muckraker who uses bad information for evil purposes; he destroys people on purpose. The perverse person starts fights between friends. The violent man uses his power of persuasion to recruit others to join in his attacks.

16:31 Old age becomes a crown of glory to those who walk the way of righteousness—one of the rewards of pursuing wisdom.

16:32 One of the most favored persons in the ancient Middle East was the military hero. Yet this proverb suggests that one who is slow to anger and who rules his spirit is a greater hero than a returning warrior. Controlling one’s rage is more impressive than completing a daring exploit (see

16:33 The use of lots in ancient Israel (see v. 10) could easily be confused with luck. But when a lot was cast as a means of determining God's will, the people knew it did not fall indiscriminately. God exercises sovereignty over human affairs (see 16:4).

17:1 The expression a dry morsel means "very little," especially in comparison to feasting. But the feasting in this verse is tainted by contention. Feasting could also be part of a sacrifice to God, but even such a feast could be ruined by angry disputes between believers.

17:2 Reversals of fortune could happen if the wise servant was sufficiently skillful and the son and his brothers were undeserving. Much of the Book of Genesis describes the rise of an unexpected younger son over his older brother (see Gen. 25:23–34).

17:3 The refining of silver and gold is an exacting process, involving skill and considerable heat and stress. The refining work of God on His people often requires stress too.

17:4 This proverb presents the evildoer and the liar as a parody of the wise. As the righteous person listens with care to the instruction of a teacher, so the wicked person listens with care to the ruinous speech of the unrighteous.

17:6 Only a grandmother or grandfather can appreciate this verse fully. Yet all of us can see its central point: Grandparents adore their grandchildren, and children adore their parents. It is this strong bond of family ties that keeps generations together.

17:7 It is a contradiction in terms for a fool to speak well or for a prince to be a liar. It is not becoming for such inappropriateness to exist.

17:12 Nothing in the woods matches the rage of a mother bear who has been separated from her cubs; yet there is nothing in life more dangerous than the fool in the midst of his folly.

17:15 abomination to the LORD (see 16:5): Since God is a God of justice, He detests those who pervert justice—both those who declare the innocent guilty and those who declare the guilty innocent.

17:17 This proverb lauds faithfulness. Unlike fickle friends (see 14:20), a true friend is constant, and a real brother helps in times of stress.

17:18 Making a pledge for another person is not wrong, but this proverb does call for caution in such transactions (see 11:15). The one making the loan may lose his own independence.

17:21 The foolish child is one of the hardest realities to face (see 10:1). There is no heartache so grievous as the pain of realizing that one's child is a fool, obdurate to God, and useless in life.

17:23 Like false weights (see 16:11), skewed justice destroys a culture. A bribe is literally a "gift." In v. 8, the same Hebrew word is translated positively as present, but in this verse the meaning is negative because the purpose of the gift is to pervert justice.

17:24 Wisdom produces a satisfied life. The fool continues searching without finding any satisfaction.

17:26 Only a perverse population would punish the righteous. Like several other proverbs, this one describes what is to be recognized as an outrage.

18:1 This proverb condemns any person who isolates himself from the community for selfish reasons. Such a recluse is so intolerant of anyone who disagrees with him that he finds fault with all wise judgment.

18:2 A compulsive talker never listens, only pausing to plan what he will say next. Every speech confirms what a fool he is.

18:4 wellspring of wisdom: This image is similar to the phrase "a fountain of life" (see 10:11; 13:14; 14:27; 16:22).

18:5 show partiality: Distortion of justice is all too common; many proverbs condemn it (see 17:23).

18:8 The words of a talebearer (see 16:28) are like delicious sweets. Although they are fun to eat, they ruin the person's health. Gossip is fun to listen to, but the stories damage the listener's inmost body, or soul.

18:9 The word slothful means a person who is "known to be slack." It refers to a lazy person (see 15:19). Destroyer means "lord of destruction."

- 18:10, 11 The phrase name of the LORD (v. 10) is a way of speaking of God's person. The righteous turn to God for security. Rich people, by contrast, tend to trust in their wealth (v. 11; Luke 12:13–21). safe: God's protection is a prominent theme in Scripture (see Ps. 91:1–4).
- 18:12 The Hebrew word for haughty, ordinarily negative, can also be used positively to mean courage and daring (see 2 Chr. 17:6). The path to honor, which the proud so covet, is humility.
- 18:14 This proverb affirms the value of coping skills. Sickness can be overcome, but there is no medicine for a broken spirit (see 15:13; 17:22; Is. 66:2).
- 18:18 Whenever both sides agree on the method of settling a dispute, that method is a means to peace. The casting of lots was a biblical pattern for assistance in decision-making (16:33). Behind the lots was the sovereign power of God.
- 18:20, 21 stomach . . . mouth: Inner satisfaction comes from true and good speech. Death and life: The words people say wield great power (see James 3:2).
- 18:22 favor: Problems in marriage arise from breakdowns in communication or mutual respect, not from some flaw in marriage itself (see 12:4).
- 18:24 This is a difficult verse to translate because of confusion over an ambiguous Hebrew word translated here as be friendly. This translation takes it to mean "to make oneself pleasing" as in 1 Sam. 29:4. To have friends one must be friendly. But the word could also mean "to beat each other up" as in Is. 24:19. Then the verse could be translated, "Sometimes even friends destroy each other, but there is a Friend who loves more faithfully than a brother."

Word Studies

friends

(Heb. rea') (18:24; Judg. 7:13; 1 Sam. 15:28; Job 2:11) Strong's #7453

This noun designates an associate, a person who is nearby or in contact with someone else. Most frequently, it signifies simply the second person in a dialogue (Gen. 11:3; Jon. 1:7). It can even refer to someone who becomes one's adversary in a fight (Ex. 2:13; 21:14). Quite often this word is used in connection with various words for lovers and loved ones, including the people commonly associated with the term brethren (see Ps. 35:14; 122:8; Song 5:1, 16; Jer. 3:1; Hos. 3:1). The use of this word in the commandment to love one's neighbor (Lev. 19:18) prompted a certain lawyer to ask Jesus who his neighbor was. Jesus responded with the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:29–37).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 19:1 This proverb, one of the “better than” proverbs (see 17:1, 10), presents a poor person in a more favorable light than a rich person (see 28:6). In this case, the poor person's life is marked by integrity, whereas the successful person has gained his wealth through cheating and deception. The Book of Proverbs does not place a premium on health and wealth. It gives that honor to integrity (see 3:1–12).
- 19:4 This proverb speaks of the effects of wealth and poverty on friendship. It does not describe how friends ought to behave, but how many friends actually do. Like a faithful spouse, a faithful friend is priceless (see 14:20).
- 19:7 The behavior of brothers and friends who abandon a friend because of poverty should be contrasted with the true friend in such texts as 17:17; 18:24.
- 19:8 Ultimately, to find good means to find the Lord in His Word (see 16:20).
- 19:10 The phrase is not fitting might also be rendered “is not a pretty sight” (see 17:7). For the wrong people to rule is an outrage.
- 19:11 discretion: Patience and restraint are virtues of wisdom (see 16:32); rashness and violent outbursts of rage are not.
- 19:12 The descriptions of a lion's roar and dew on the grass are especially fitting when a monarch has all power. His rage may be violent and unpredictable, his pleasure gracious and restorative. A good king will display rage and spread favor for the right reasons.
- 19:13, 14 Continual dripping speaks of constant dissension within a family. A prudent wife is a woman who demonstrates wisdom or skill. Finding the right spouse is a blessing from God (see 18:22).
- 19:15 The proverbs have no kind words for laziness, the habit of the sluggard (see 6:6, 9). The proverbs call for mercy and compassion on the poor and the weak, but only contempt for the lazy (see v. 17; 10:4, 5).
- 19:18 on his destruction: Refusal to discipline dooms a child's future (see 13:24).
- 19:21 A wise person commits his or her plans to the Lord (see 16:3). A person whose plans oppose the Lord (as in Ps. 2:1–3) may actually become God's enemy. But the person whose ways are from God will certainly succeed (see also 16:1, 9).

19:22 The poor person who has integrity has more honor than the successful person who has achieved his station or rank by deception (see v. 1). Kindness may also mean “beauty.” Faithfulness is beautiful, whereas deception is a disfigurement of character (see 3:14; 31:18).

19:23 This proverb emphasizes the lifelong nature of genuine piety and the abundant rewards that it gives. The fear of the LORD is contrasted with all other pleasures (see 15:16, 33), because it alone keeps the believer innocent and provides lifelong satisfaction.

Word Studies

fear

(Heb. yir'ah) (9:10; 16:6; 19:23) Strong's #3374

This Hebrew word signifies awe in regarding what is unknown or potentially dangerous. Sometimes it refers to fear or terror inspired by danger or one's enemies (Ps. 56:4). More often, it means "reverence," particularly for God (19:23). The use of this word does not imply that one needs to be afraid of God, but it does demand the appropriate recognition and respect for God's fearsome qualities, such as His righteous wrath (see Ps 5:4–7). The fear of God—that is, the proper respect of God—compels us to abandon our evil ways (16:6) and teaches us wisdom (9:10). Perhaps somewhat ironically, fear of God leads to confidence in this life, for if we have submitted to the Almighty we do not have to fear any other power in this world. No one can harm us because the Almighty is our Protector (see 14:26, 27; Heb. 13:6).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 19:25 The simple person, the one who has yet to set his or her course in life, can learn by watching the scoffer suffer. The scoffer himself may not learn from his punishment, but anyone who is ready to learn surely can.
- 19:26, 27 The desire for a good son—or daughter—is the subject of several proverbs (see 10:1). A child who is abusive to his parents shames them and violates God's command (see 20:20; Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). The juxtaposing of this proverb addressed to my son for the first time since chs. 1–9 with that of the abusive son in v. 26 is deliberate. As an abusive son is shameful, so an obedient son is faithful and successful.
- 20:1 This chapter begins with a warning against the abuse of wine, or excessive drinking (see this theme more extensively in 23:29–35). A wise person takes the danger seriously. There is no wisdom in drunkenness, only brawling and confusion.
- 20:4 Because the lazy man (see 19:24) does not plow his field on time, he has nothing to harvest (see 10:5).
- 20:5 draw it out: The wise of ancient Israel knew something that modern counselors rediscover in their training and experience, that motivation for behavior is complex. A gifted counselor is able to draw out from a person genuine feelings and motivations, just as someone draws water from a deep well.
- 20:9 Who can say: This proverb is a rhetorical question. Everyone sins, a theme that Paul addresses at length in Rom. 3:10–23. Anyone who claims never to sin is a liar (see 1 John 1:8, 9). But those who confess their sin obtain forgiveness (see Rom. 4:7).
- 20:10 The repeated emphasis on crooked weights and diverse measures (see 11:1) reminds us that cheating is a chronic problem.
- 20:11 by his deeds: A pattern established early in life may continue to mark a person for his or her lifetime. Even at a very early age, a person's moral character may be revealed.
- 20:12 This proverb speaks of what the LORD has made. We can use both our ears and our eyes to learn about God's law (see Ps. 40:6; 119:18). They are physical means to getting the guidance we need. Contrast this verse with Moses' complaint of a stammering tongue and God's response (Ex. 4:10, 11).

20:13 Sleep is a gift from God that restores a person's energy and vitality. Yet sleep can also be a matter of excess and laziness. Hard work is necessary to make a living; laziness leads only to poverty (see 6:6, 9).

20:15 This verse is not a comment on the morality of wealth, but a statement about the comparative value of wisdom and money. Wisdom is simply worth more. Thus being poor and wise is more precious than being rich and foolish (see 19:1).

20:16 It is foolish to lend to a stranger without securing a pledge, or promise, of repayment (see 11:15). The Israelites were not allowed to exact such pledges from other Israelites (see Ex. 22:25–27).

20:17 afterward: The Scriptures do not say that there is no pleasure in sinning, only that the reward doesn't last (9:17, 18).

20:18 This proverb is a maxim that moves from the lesser to the greater (see 15:11). We should always think before we act, and serious matters like war require a maximum of forethought.

20:20 This proverb is about breaking the fifth commandment, "honor your father and your mother" (Ex. 20:12; Deut. 5:16). The term whoever curses is based on a word that means "to treat lightly, to regard as insignificant." The statement His lamp will be put out in deep darkness is a symbol of eternal damnation.

20:21 at the beginning: Sometimes what seems to be sudden luck turns out to be a dismal turn of fortune. What seems too good to be true often is.

20:22 Because of our limited understanding and imperfection, we are not qualified to recompense evil. Instead we must commit our cause to God, whose vengeance is certain and perfectly just. God says "Vengeance is mine; I will repay" (see Matt. 5:38, 39; Rom. 12:17, 19; 1 Thess. 5:15; 1 Pet. 3:9).

20:24 Even a man with great strength does not fully control his steps, his life; his very breath is a gift from God. Since life itself is God's gift, only a fool assumes he knows its full meaning.

20:25 Several proverbs warn against making rash promises about holy things, then withdrawing the promises later (see Eccl. 5:1–7). It is better never to vow than to vow and then change one's mind.

20:26 This royal proverb (see v. 8) presents discipline as a merciful act. To punish wickedness is entirely appropriate. When the wicked are sifted out and punished with the severity that their crimes demand, all of society benefits. Verse 28 provides the balance to this principle. Ideally, the king in Israel mirrored God's character.

20:29 Each stage of life has its own advantages. The young have their youth and vigor; the aged have their wisdom (see 16:31).

20:30 Suffering cleanses. No one wants to be hurt, but God can bring good out of any evil and make us better through hardship.

21:1 A person can look at a river and think that it is following a random pattern, but the water is following the direction of God's hand. So is the king. This world's apparent chaos is God's work.

21:2 in his own eyes: A person's own defense of his life, manner, or way may convince himself, but the final evaluation belongs to God (see 17:3).

21:3 The proverbs occasionally touch on the subject of worship (see 15:8; 16:6). This proverb affirms, as do Ps. 40:6–8; Mic. 6:8, and numerous other passages in the Bible, that righteous living is more important than sacrifice (see 1 Sam. 15:22).

21:4 haughty . . . proud: See 16:18. The second unit of the verse is difficult to translate. Some versions render the problematic Hebrew word for plowing as lamp.

21:5 Planning typically leads to plenty, and haste to poverty (see 20:21). It is not wrong to plan, but it is wrong to plan what the Lord has expressly forbidden (see also 16:1).

21:6 Some prosperity is good and some is bad. The difference lies in how one gets it. A lying tongue has a total return of zero.

- 21:8 The way: This antithetical proverb takes us back to the very beginning of the study of wisdom, the contrast between the righteous and the wicked (see chs. 1–9; Ps. 1).
- 21:9 Ancient Israelite roofs were flat and could be used as a deck or terrace. On occasion people would build a temporary shelter on a part of the roof. Here, the harried husband finds he prefers to live on the housetop rather than below with the nagging words of his wife.
- 21:10 Here is a person whose passion is evil; hence, he has no compassion for anyone. Wicked persons typically refuse to think of anyone but themselves.
- 21:11 The fool in this text is the worst sort, the scoffer (see 19:25); a person who is simple has enough sense to learn from seeing the scoffer punished. The wise always learn, the simple sometimes learn, but the scoffer is a lost cause.
- 21:13 cry himself: A person who is indifferent to people in need will find no one helping him when he calls out for help.
- 21:15 Justice is not a heavy obligation that weighs a person down. For the righteous, promoting justice is a joy. For the wicked there is no joy in justice, nor will there be joy in their final end (see 10:29).
- 21:16 The assembly of the dead: The term dead is a frightful one, meaning “shades” (see 9:18). Death in these verses may speak of physical death rather than spiritual death (as is the case in James 1).
- 21:20 This proverb contrasts the prosperity of the wise with the poverty of the fool (see 20:15). The key lies in the way they treat their possessions. Fools abuse or neglect their own property.
- 21:21 life, righteousness and honor: It is possible that these three ideas go together to mean “a more abundant life.” The pursuit of righteousness is its own reward. But added rewards are found in fullness of life, achieving righteousness, and receiving honor. All these things are gifts from the Lord (see 15:9).
- 21:23 This proverb has a pun on the word “to keep.” If a person guards or “keeps” his mouth, he will keep or preserve his soul. The converse of this is seen in the many troubles a person brings on himself by careless speech.
- 21:24 This proverb applies four different Hebrew words for arrogance to the scoffer (see v. 11). The first two words, proud and haughty, mean “profoundly arrogant” (see v. 4). The second two, arrogant and pride, mean “boundless arrogance.”
- 21:25 The longing of the lazy man kills him; he is devoured by his own passions because he will not expend the energy to fulfill them. Verse 26 describes further the insatiable greed of the lazy person by contrasting it with the generosity of the righteous.
- 21:28 A large number of proverbs focus on the false witness (see 19:28). The problem with a false witness is that his lies pervert justice for others. Even if he lies only once, the lie may be circulated by others.
- 21:30 Usually the proverbs use the word wisdom positively. But in this verse the word is paired with conjurers’ tricks. These tricks have no power over God, as Balaam the pagan prophet discovered in his encounter with the Lord on the plains of Moab (see Num. 22–24). True wisdom can be found only in God.
- 21:31 A soldier can do all within his ability to prepare for battle (see 20:18), but in the end no preparation can override God’s power. Victory is in God’s hands.
- 22:1 This proverb points out that a reputation has more value than possessions or wealth. A name cannot be replaced easily, not even with lots of money.
- 22:2 This sentence eloquently repeats the theme of riches (v. 1): God makes both the rich and the poor. This means that those who favor the rich over the poor (see James 2) have not only missed the point of creation, they have insulted the Creator (see 14:31).
- 22:3 The term prudent means “shrewd” (see 1:4 for a related word). There is no wisdom in being reckless.
- 22:4 The route to the good life—riches and honor and life (see 21:21 for a similar triad)—is humility (see Mic. 6:8) and the fear of God.

Religious Education

The religious education of children was the parents' responsibility (Deut. 11:19; 32:46). No exceptions were made for parents who felt they were too busy to teach. Even when children came of age and married, the parents' responsibility did not end; they also had an important part in educating the grandchildren (Deut. 4:9). In fact, they often lived in the same house. The Israelite father was ultimately responsible for the education of the children, but mothers also played a crucial role, especially until a child reached the age of five. During those formative years she was expected to shape the future of her sons and daughters. Clearly, parents wanted to see the proverb come true: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it" (22:6). When a boy became old enough to work with his father, the father became his principal teacher, even though the mother continued to share in the teaching responsibility (1:8, 9; 6:20). If someone other than the father had to assume the responsibility of teaching a boy, then that person was considered his "father."

22:8 The idea of just retribution is significant (see 21:7). Jesus' teaching on justice reflects the idea in this verse. A person who lives by violence is likely to die violently; a person who lives wickedly should not be surprised if he falls victim to crime (see Matt. 26:52).

22:9 The words expressing the idea of generosity in this verse are "a good eye." A good eye observes the needs of others first. A bad eye sees only its own self-interest.

22:10 The scoffer (see 21:24) should be expelled from the community because his influence is harmful to everyone. The wise know that the scoffer is not a laughing matter, because he is laughing at holy things, at God Himself.

22:11 A person who is marked by purity of speech and heart becomes the confidant of a good king. Compare this proverb with Ps. 15, which describes a person who wants to become a friend of the Lord.

22:12 The eyes of the LORD (see 15:3; 21:2) are the final arbiters of knowledge and justice. The eyes of human beings are simply not trustworthy. When the king takes his position seriously, he also makes decisions that are proper and upright (see 20:8).

22:13 The proverbs about lazy people (see 19:15) provide comic relief by poking fun at how the lazy invent all sorts of excuses for avoiding work and risk. They will do anything to avoid doing anything.

22:14 This proverb takes us back to the immoral woman, or the “strange woman” (see 2:16). Her mouth is an open pit, destruction to anyone who falls there (see 9:18).

22:16 The last of the proverbs of Solomon in this collection deals with social justice. Ultimately, all human affairs are in God’s hands, even though at times the wicked prosper. God made both the poor and the rich (v. 2) and He will justly determine their destinies (24:12).

22:17–24:22 The phrase the words of the wise marks a new section of the Book of Proverbs. The content changes at v. 17. Three elements distinguish this section: (1) the change from one-verse units to multiple-verse units, (2) section headings that are embedded in the text, and (3) the affinity of this section with ancient Egyptian wisdom texts, particularly the Instruction of Amen-em-opet.

22:17–21 Incline your ear: These introductory words call the reader to pay attention and to prepare to learn about and worship God. The advice emphasizes strongly that a person’s trust must be in the LORD.

22:22, 23 Most violations of justice target poor and afflicted people because they are weak and defenseless. But anyone who does this makes an enemy of God, who will plead their cause.

22:24, 25 friendship with an angry man: Whereas the words of vv. 22, 23 are based on Hebrew faith, these ideas are derived from observation of human behavior and interaction. The Book of Proverbs includes both types of insight: revelation of truth about God, and observation of human experience (see 1 Cor. 15:33).

22:28 The ancient Israelites regarded respect for the posted landmark as more than a question of private property. They saw it as a basic part of civil life. People must feel a certain sense of public trust and fairness for society to function.

23:1–3 A big part of the training of the courtier would be in proper manners at state dinners and formal occasions. The comment on a knife to your throat is prompted by two concerns: (1) rude behavior was to be avoided at all costs, and (2) too many royal dainties would likely make one ill.

23:4, 5 These verses call for moderation in work. do not overwork to be rich: Although the proverbs discourage laziness (see 22:13), they also discourage any overworking whose purpose is greater wealth.

23:10, 11 their Redeemer is mighty: The tendency of evil people in all ages is to take advantage of the helpless. But the destroyer of persons needs to know that the widow and the orphan have a Redeemer, a protector of family rights—His name is the living God.

23:12 The Hebrew word for instruction can also be translated “discipline.”

23:13, 14 he will not die . . . beat him: This language was designed to motivate overly permissive parents, who were afraid of damaging young children with any kind of discipline, or of making rules and enforcing them. There is no call here for abuse. Loving discipline does not destroy rebellious children; it does them a big favor.

23:17, 18 The first proverb here sharply contrasts the vain envy of sinners with the fear of the LORD, the expression of piety that the proverbs repeatedly encourage (see 1:7). The second gives the perspective that everyone needs: Present success—or lack of it—is not the final outcome. There will be a future state fundamentally different from this world. The word hereafter can also be rendered “glorious future” (see Num. 23:10).

23:19–21 The drunkard and the glutton have no self-control, and this fact plagues them. Hebrew culture gave a prominent place to eating and drinking, but it had little tolerance for drunkenness and gluttony.

23:24, 25 the father of the righteous: Joy comes to parents who see their children succeed. But when those parents have faith in the Lord, the greatest joy comes from seeing their children be faithful to Him.

23:29–35 Who has woe: Along with Isaiah’s celebrated description of debauchery (Is. 19:11–15), this section is one of the sharpest attacks on drunkenness in the Bible (see vv. 19–21; 20:1). The satire is razor sharp and the imagery vivid.

24:1, 2 Do not be envious of evil men: Whereas 23:17, 18 tells about the future to discourage envy of the wicked, this set of verses simply points out how unworthy the wicked are of any admiration at all.

24:11 These verses speak with a certain confidence and understanding of life beyond the grave (23:17, 18). This verse is a prayer to God as death approaches.

24:12 according to his deeds: Jesus’ words about eternal rewards open and close the NT (compare Matt. 5:11, 12 with Rev. 22:12). Yet Jesus’ action on the cross will deliver those who believe in Him from any condemnation (see Rom. 5:18; Gal. 3:18; Rev. 22:17).

24:13, 14 Here is one of the associations in the Proverbs of honey and the honeycomb with wisdom (see 16:24). Wisdom and its pursuit, while rigorous, is good for the soul and can be pleasant.

24:15, 16 Ultimately the wicked will fall. The righteous can be assured of this not because they are strong, but because they have a Redeemer (see 23:10, 11).

24:21, 22 fear the LORD and the king: The Hebrew text breaks the phrasing: “Fear God, my son, and the king” (see also Rom. 13:1–7; 1 Pet. 2:17). This proverb relates most fully to the Davidic kings, who were God’s regents on earth; one way the ancient Israelites could show respect for God would be to respect the king. But the duty to honor civil authorities still applies to all people of all times (Rom. 13:1).

24:23–34 These things also belong to the wise is a sectional heading that corresponds to the one in 22:17. Verses 23–34 serve as an appendix to the preceding section (22:17–24:22).

24:23, 24 Israel’s basic concern with equity in judgment was not unique; but in Israel a concern for equity was tied to God’s character. Since God does not show partiality, neither should we.

24:28, 29 Verse 29 states the “Golden Rule” (Matt. 7:12) in terms of what we should not do. Jesus said this is our most important duty.

24:30–34 The lazy person is judged on the basis of the shambles of his field. From this sorry state of affairs the wise take a lesson. The only concern the lazy have is for a little sleep.

25:1 After the first collection of proverbs from Solomon (10:1–22:16) and proverbs from foreign sources (22:17–24:22; 24:23–34) comes a collection of proverbs attributed to Solomon, but which were not compiled until the time of King Hezekiah. The following observations can be made: (1) The wisdom tradition concerning Solomon was prodigious; (2) Israel’s interest in wisdom was particularly centered in times of relative peace and a vital royal court life in Jerusalem; (3) Hezekiah’s involvement in this activity was a mark of the strength of his rule and the sense he had of restoring Solomon’s glory.

25:4, 5 Silver is valuable only after the impurities have been removed. Similarly, wickedness needs to be removed from a king for his throne to be established rightly.

25:6, 7 Do not exalt yourself: Knowing your place is a recurring theme in the Bible. It is humiliating to be told to remove yourself from a seat of honor. Jesus spoke of the same need for deference (Luke 14:11). Whom your eyes have seen: This phrase reflects the custom in the ancient world of never looking directly in the eyes of a superior until told to do so (see Is. 6:5).

25:8–10 hastily to court: In our own litigious age, this group of verses has unusual relevance. Seek to deal with complaints outside the court on a private level or even with an arbiter.

25:16 found honey: Too much of even a good thing can cause illness and distress.

25:17 neighbor's house: The issue is moderation. Too much “neighborliness” becomes an imposition.

25:19 An unfaithful man—annoying and undependable—cannot be trusted at all.

25:21, 22 The words of Jesus in Matt. 5:43–48 have direct ties to these verses. Coals of fire speaks of God's judgment (see Ps. 120:4; 140:10); the idea is that an act of kindness to your enemy may cause him or her to feel ashamed. This is just one way to overcome evil with good (see Rom. 12:20).

25:27 much honey: Moderation in good things (see v. 16) goes with humility.

25:28 rule: Self-control is a key part of obedience to God (see Gal. 5:22, 23).

26:1 snow in summer: A most unlikely happening in Israel. Rain in harvest is not only unusual, but disastrous, because rain at that time would cause the crops to rot.

26:3 rod for the fool's back: The fool has no internal motivation to do anything. He is no better than a brute beast whom someone else has to motivate.

26:4, 5 Some people have called the two proverbs here contradictory, but that is not necessary. The phrase according to his folly appears twice as a play on words with two shades of meaning. On the one hand, it means “avoid the temptation to stoop to his level”; that is, don't use his methods, lest you also be like him. On the other hand, it means “avoid the temptation to ignore him altogether”; that is, respond in some way, or else he will become wise in his own eyes and his folly will get worse.

26:11 dog . . . vomit: A fool does not learn from his mistakes. The apostle Peter cited this verse and applied it to false teachers (2 Pet. 2:22).

26:12 Being haughty is even worse than being a fool. Egotism is the epitome of folly (see 28:11).

26:13–15 These proverbs about the lazy man have a “can you top this” quality that provides comic relief; the lazy man is the object of many jokes in Scripture. This set of verses includes several (see 19:15). Each one belittles laziness and the many outrageous excuses people often use to justify it.

26:17 The problem with taking a dog by the ears is that the dog will not like it and probably bite. The same is true of getting involved in another's quarrel. It's an invasion of privacy.

26:20, 21 Fires do not burn without fuel; strife, or fighting, works the same way.

26:22 The slanderer looks upon his nasty words as tasty tidbits, delicious morsels of raw gossip. Many people have an insatiable hunger for malicious gossip.

26:23 The meaning of this proverb is not far from Jesus' remarks to His enemies that they were like whitewashed tombs (Matt. 23:27). No amount of painting on the outside changes the value of the rotten interior.

26:24–26 A person who hates says one thing but stores up anger within. He may find that his hatred hurts him, when in his life there is so much falsehood that no one believes him no matter how gracious and truthful he might be at times. revealed before the assembly: When we lament the unfairness of the prosperity of the wicked and contrast our own situation to theirs, we need to keep Ps. 73:17 in mind. Their end will more than compensate them for the evil they have done (see Rom. 6:23).

27:1 As Jesus did in His teaching (Matt. 6:25–34), the wise of ancient Israel warned about a concern for tomorrow that overshadows the needs of today.

27:6 Correction given in love by a friend is better than insincere acts of affection (see Ps. 141:5).

27:7 Those who are full do not appreciate what they have, while to those who are hungry anything tastes good.

27:8 from its nest: Straying from home can mean losing security and becoming open to new and powerful temptations (see the parable of the prodigal son, Luke 15).

27:11 This is the first my son proverb in this collection; it is very similar to those in the earlier parts of Proverbs (see chs. 1–9). A child who grows up wise confirms that the parents who taught him or her were themselves wise (see 10:1).

27:13 Normally a garment given in pledge was only a symbolic collateral and was returned immediately, but not if the one making the pledge was unreliable or a stranger (see 20:16).

27:17 iron sharpens iron: A famous proverb, this verse may also be translated as applying to the will: “Let iron sharpen iron, and so let a person sharpen his friend.” The idea is that people grow from interaction with one another.

27:18 keeps the fig tree: This proverb speaks of faithfulness and reward. The word master may refer to God.

27:19 a man’s heart: Thoughts reflect a person’s true character.

27:20 Hell and Destruction are used often in the Bible to describe the fearful aspect of death. They are like ravenous monsters. Compare this proverb with the image of Satan as a roaring lion (see 1 Pet. 5:8).

27:23–27 These verses affirm diligence and describe its practical rewards. The model is that of the farmer who cares for his flocks and herds; if he diligently cares for them, in time they will care for him.

28:1 The wicked flee when there is no cause (see Ps. 53:5) because of guilt and the fear of getting caught that goes with it.

28:4, 5 When a person abandons God’s law, he or she loses all sense of right and praises the wicked (see Rom. 1:28–32). And since true justice is from God, the ungodly have trouble understanding it. This is why the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (see 1:7).

28:6 The proverbs balance their words on poor and rich people; they do not assume that godliness leads to wealth or that wealthy people are necessarily godly. As this proverb points out, sometimes we must choose between doing good and getting rich.

28:7 To be a companion of gluttons (see 23:20, 21) is to break God’s law. This is why Jesus’ enemies charged Him with associating with gluttons: such accusations were attacks on His faithfulness to God (see Matt. 11:19).

28:8 Profit taken by usury is unjust. God will help the poor eventually, at their exploiters’ expense.

28:10 causes the upright to go astray: These words resemble Jesus’ warning against leading His disciples astray (Matt. 18:6). Paul vividly captures this kind of evil: “If anyone defiles the temple of God, God will destroy him” (see 1 Cor. 3:17).

28:14 Happy is the man is a beatitude (see Ps. 1:1) about the person who is in awe of God. The person who never thinks of God faces calamity.

28:19 Tills his land is a call to hard work, a promise of reward, and a warning against frivolity or overindulgence in fun.

28:20 A faithful man succeeds. That is, faithfulness to God, not greed, determines success in life.

28:21 To exercise partiality (literally “to recognize faces”) means to judge on the basis of favors or bribes instead of what is right.

28:23 rebukes a man: Constructive criticism has more value than flattery, which aims only to win people’s affection.

28:24 robs his father: This proverb condemns breaking the fifth commandment, “Honor your father and your mother” (Ex. 20:12). Respect for parents as a duty is a common theme in the Book of Proverbs.

28:25, 26 One of the main causes of strife is pride; trust in God leads to blessing. walks wisely: Security can only come by trusting God, not by relying on oneself.

29:1 The Hebrew phrase for often rebuked is “a man of rebukes.” The judgment on a person who stubbornly rejects God’s correction is swift and final.

29:2–4 The words righteous are in authority can also be translated “righteous are great.” People will always respond to good government and justice. Justice is not served by bribes, nor is good government established that way.

29:5, 6 Spreads a net: Lies entrap liars (see 10:8). Moreover, the evil one is trapped by his own actions. Both the liar and the wicked are contrasted with the righteous, who run happily because they are innocent of any wrongdoing.

29:7 Righteous people are concerned for the poor and help them (see 22:22); the wicked do not even consider the needy.

29:13 God is responsible for giving life to both the poor man and the oppressor. Jesus attested that God causes rain to fall on the just and the unjust (Matt. 5:45).

29:15–17 The words rod and rebuke both speak of correction or discipline. An undisciplined child shames everyone, especially his or her parents (see v. 17). Verse 17 places the burden of correction on the parents. The word translated delight speaks of rich, delicious food (see Gen. 49:20).

Vocational Training

Since Israel was an agricultural society, much of the practical wisdom handed down from father to son was about farming. This included lessons on preparing the soil for planting and cultivating the various crops, as well as harvesting and storing the bounty. Sons learned these skills by working alongside their fathers throughout their youth. They carefully observed their fathers planting, pruning, and harvesting. It was also the father's responsibility to teach his sons a trade or craft. For example, if the father was a potter, he taught that skill to his sons. While the boys were learning these skills, the girls learned baking, spinning, and weaving under the watchful eyes of their mothers (Ex. 35:25, 26; 2 Sam. 13:8). If there were no sons in the family, daughters might be required to learn the father's work (Gen. 29:6; Ex. 2:16). Such training was important, for "a child left to himself brings shame to his mother" (29:15).

Woman kneading bread on top of a square slab, Greek, from Aulis, c. 500–475 B.C./Ashmolean Museum, University of Oxford, UK/The Bridgeman Art Library

- 29:18 where there is no revelation: The Hebrew word for revelation speaks of revelatory vision, a word from God. Without God's revelation of the Law, the people flounder. True happiness is discovered within the constraints of revelation, in the counsel of the Savior.
- 29:20 hasty in his words: Even a wise person may become foolish by speaking too quickly. It is better to be silent or to choose words carefully than to speak whatever first comes to mind.
- 29:23 See Ps. 147:6; God raises the humble and puts down the arrogant. Mary praised God for doing this marvelous thing (see Luke 1:46–55).
- 29:26 God controls human affairs. Therefore it makes more sense to seek the Lord first before stooping to seek the favor of human rulers.
- 30:1 An entirely new section of the Book of Proverbs begins with the words of Agur. Like Lemuel (31:1–9), Agur was a non-Hebrew contributor to the Book of Proverbs. He came to faith in the God of Israel in a foreign land. We know nothing about his father Jakeh, but the word translated his utterance may be a place name. Ithiel and Ucal were probably Agur's pupils. Since the back-to-back repetition of the name Ithiel is unusual, some construe the Hebrew letters differently and translate the text "I have wearied myself, O God; I have wearied myself, O God, and am consumed." This would fit the context of the following verses.
- 30:2, 3 more stupid than any man: Agur means he was at a loss. Similarly, his denial of knowledge of the Holy One is a rhetorical flourish as well (as is seen by comparison with his words of vv. 5, 6). Agur was stating with dramatic irony that he could not explain the puzzle before him.
- 30:4 This verse gives the riddle that perplexed Agur. The questions are enigmatic. They culminate in What is His name, and What is His Son's name, If you know? At this point, the riddle has no answer. The OT would answer that "His name" is the Lord God, but did not have a name for His Son. This riddle was to remain unsolved until Jesus answered it for Nicodemus (see John 3:13). These verses form one of the most straightforward messianic texts in the Bible.
- 30:7–9 two things: This was all Agur needed.
- 30:10 This proverb is unusual in warning against slandering a servant. Slaves in ancient times were often regarded as less than a full person.
- 30:11–14 Agur wrote about a generation plagued by social ills such as lack of respect for parents, self-righteousness, greed, and selfishness. Ironically, such evils have plagued every generation, not just Agur's.
- 30:17 mocks his father: The lack of parental respect spoken of in v. 11 leads to this curse. The language is strong and violent, as is the punishment of the one who abuses his or her parents.
- 30:19 The term translated virgin could also read "young woman" in this context.
- 30:20 This verse contrasts with the way of v. 19; this way is awful whereas the former is wonderful. The adulterous woman regards her illicit sexual relations without remorse, as if she were finishing a plate of food.
- 30:21–23 Contrasting with the four wonderful things of vv. 18, 19 are four things that are grievous, an upsetting of order. Three are clear: the servant, the fool, and the maidservant are all in unexpected positions of power. The hateful woman describes the sorry lot of a woman whose husband hates her.
- 30:24–28 This numerical proverb speaks of four creatures that are small in size but amazing in behavior. Each of these small creatures has a behavioral trait from which wise people can learn.
- 30:32, 33 The proverbs of Agur conclude with warnings against boasting and troublemaking. The phrase put your hand on your mouth means "stop it." The idea is if you are in the middle of making trouble and suddenly realize your foolishness, stop right then before things get worse.

31:1 This verse begins a new section of material from a non-Israelite source. Some have thought that the name Lemuel, meaning “Belonging to God,” is a pseudonym for Solomon, but this is only a guess.

31:2–5 Lemuel’s mother advised him not to give his strength to women. Often in the ancient world a king would amass a large harem or involve himself sexually with many women. The wisdom of Lemuel’s mother was that such behavior destroys rulers. She likewise advised him to avoid intoxicating drink altogether, so that he could always have a clear enough head to rule justly.

31:8, 9 for the speechless: The duty of a king in the ancient world was to defend the weak, to uphold the helpless. These ideals were rarely realized in that age or even in our own. But one day a King who is the Defender of the helpless will establish His righteous reign (see 23:10, 11).

31:10 Proverbs 31:10–31 is an acrostic poem; each verse begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Some have thought that it continues the teaching of King Lemuel’s mother (vv. 1–9), but it may also be an independent, concluding unit. As the Book of Proverbs begins with the Prologue (1:1–7), which gives the goals of wisdom in general terms, so now it concludes with this Epilogue (vv. 10–31), which presents them in a case study. The opening words who can find position this woman as an ideal. The phrase a virtuous wife speaks of excellence, moral worth, ability, and nobility, not just marital fidelity (see also 12:4). Such a woman is the ideal of wisdom in action.

31:13–15 These verses emphasize both hard work and skill. The woman they describe does things she enjoys, finding her fulfillment in varied tasks. The words she . . . rises while it is yet night describe her concern for others; she gives of herself to care for her family and servants.

31:16, 17 She considers a field; that is, she buys and sells and builds her own resources. These words are remarkable in light of the many restrictions placed on women in the ancient world.

31:18, 19 her merchandise is good: One of the avenues the woman exploits is a “cottage industry” in which she acts independently.

31:20–22 The virtuous woman works not to get rich, but to give to the poor. She can be concerned for others because she has provided for her family.

31:23 The virtuous woman’s husband has a position in the gates as an elder of the city; some of his status comes from his wife’s reputation, not just his own.

31:24 Linen garments probably indicates clothing for women.

31:25 The virtuous woman’s own clothing is far richer than linen or silk; she is dressed in strength and honor.

31:26 Any woman who opens her mouth with wisdom deserves praise, given all the information on the use and misuse of speech in the Book of Proverbs. A virtuous woman takes care to speak well (James 3:2).

31:28, 29 The virtuous woman is blessed by her family—by her children as well as her husband. The words of v. 29 are the blessing of her husband.

31:30, 31 Charm may be used for good or for evil; it is not necessarily bad. But its good use requires the fear of the Lord—the main theme of the Book of Proverbs.

Introduction

The Book of Ecclesiastes is one of the most misunderstood books in the Bible. Christians have tended either to ignore the message of the book, or to regard it as the testimony of a man living apart from God. This is unfortunate, for the book asks relevant, searching questions about the meaning of life, and it declares the utter futility of an existence without God. Like all Scripture, the Book of Ecclesiastes benefits and edifies God's people.

Negative descriptions such as “cynical,” “fatalistic,” or “existential” do not do the Book of Ecclesiastes justice. There is too much evidence of robust cheerfulness throughout its pages. “So I commended enjoyment” (8:15) is a recurrent theme that pervades the book; in fact, the Hebrew words for “gladness” and “being glad” appear seventeen times in Ecclesiastes. The underlying mood of the book is joy: finding pleasure in life despite the troubles that often plague it. Those who fear and worship God should experience this joy; they should rejoice in the gifts God has given them.

Author The writer says that he was “the son of David, king in Jerusalem” (1:1, 12, 16), words that have led many to assume that the writer was Solomon. Evidence in the book itself points to Solomon: (1) the author had “more wisdom than all who were before” him (1:16; see 1 Kin. 3:12); (2) he gathered for himself “silver and gold and the special treasures of kings” (2:8; see 1 Kin. 10:11–23); (3) he “acquired male and female servants” in great numbers (2:7; see 1 Kin. 9:20–23); (4) he engaged in extensive building projects (2:4–6; see 1 Kin. 9:1–19); (5) he developed a great understanding of plants, birds, and natural phenomena (2:4–7; see 1 Kin. 4:33); (6) he declared, “there is not a just man on earth who does good and does not sin” (7:20; see 1 Kin. 8:46); and (7) “he pondered and sought out and set in order many proverbs” (12:9; see 1 Kin. 4:32).

Nevertheless, some scholars argue that Solomon is not the author. They point to two passages to make their case: 1:12 and 1:16. The past tense of the verb in 1:12: “I . . . was king over Israel in Jerusalem” may lead the reader to think that the author was no longer king when he wrote this work. But the verb can denote a state of action that began in the past and continues into the present. Hence 1:12 could be translated, “I have been [and am] king.” Also, the phrase in 1:16 suggests there were many kings before Solomon in Jerusalem. Since David was the first Hebrew king in Jerusalem, the argument goes, the writer must have lived many generations after the time of David. Yet we should recall that the history of Jerusalem can be traced to early Canaanite settlements. The kings of Jerusalem may well have included Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18), Adoni-Zedek (Josh. 10:1), and Abdi-Khepa (mentioned in the Amarna Letters) to name just a few. Therefore it can reasonably be asserted that Solomon is the author of this wonderful but unusual book.

Purpose Solomon probably wrote this book toward the end of his life, after he had repented of idolatry and his pursuit of foreign wives. Thus the Book of Ecclesiastes is both a monument to Solomon’s recommitment to the living God and a guide for others through the pitfalls and perils of life.

In fact, Solomon might have written this wisdom book as a tract for other nations. That would explain why he did not write about the Law, and why he used the divine title Elohim, meaning “Exalted God,” instead of the covenantal name Yahweh in the book (Ex. 3:14, 15). Solomon had entertained many dignitaries from other nations, including the queen of Sheba. The queen’s questions concerning the basic meaning of life might have prompted him to write Ecclesiastes to teach the Gentiles about the living God and their need to worship only Him. Centuries before, Moses had called for this type of treatise to the pagan nations (Deut. 4:6–8). The nations that had heard of Israel’s success needed to know about the living and exalted God who had blessed Israel with wealth and wisdom.

Themes Sometimes it is better to read the end of a book to understand better the direction in which the book is headed. This is certainly true of Ecclesiastes. The book should be interpreted in light of its conclusion: “Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is man’s all” (12:13). To fear God means to revere, worship, and serve God—to turn from evil and turn in awe to the living God. This was the attitude of Abraham (Gen. 22:12), Job (Job

1:1, 8, 9; 2:3), and the Egyptian midwives (Ex. 1:17, 21). It does not involve dread, but instead a proper respect for and obedience to our Creator. Why should we respect and obey God? The Book of Ecclesiastes answers this question in its concluding verse (12:14): God will judge everyone—both the righteous and the wicked. Life cannot be lived with abandon, as if God will not see or remember the deeds of the past. For on the final day, he will call forth all men and women to account for their actions. The admonition to fear God and the expectation of divine judgment are the two great themes that conclude the book and provide an interpretative framework for the rest of it (see 12:13, 14).

The journey of Solomon to his conclusion “to fear God” is founded on the human search for meaning in life. In 3:11, Solomon eloquently expresses humankind’s dilemma: God has placed eternity in our hearts. A search for true meaning in this life—in money or fame, for instance—will only leave us empty-handed, because our souls yearn for something that will last. Our frustration arises from a hunger to fellowship with our eternal Creator—the only One who can give meaning to our lives. In Ecclesiastes, Solomon takes us on a tour of all of life and concludes that all of it is vanity. Pleasures and riches lead merely to boredom and despair. Only a relationship with the One who created us and continues to care for us will truly satisfy. Troubles and uncertainty will continue to plague us, but even during these times we can find joy in a secure trust in our Father.

Christ in the Scriptures

Ecclesiastes is a candid commentary on the emptiness and inner perplexity that marks the life of one who is disconnected from his Creator. It's a journal of honest doubts, hopes, and fears. Because all people have "eternity in their hearts" (3:11), there is a purpose for Jesus to disrobe Himself of His divine dignity and descend to our sinful planet. In that we bear God's image, He desires to enter our world to provide the necessary remedy in order to maximize our eternal potential. As we peer into the looking glass and see the sad state of life lived apart from the Lord, we recognize that only in Jesus can ultimate satisfaction, wisdom, and joy be found.

Ecclesiastes 1

The Vanity of Life

¹The words of the Preacher, the son of David, ^aking in Jerusalem.

²“Vanity^{b1} of vanities,” says the Preacher;
“Vanity² of vanities, ^call is vanity.”

^{3d}What profit has a man from all his labor
In which he ³toils under the sun?

⁴One generation passes away, and another generation comes;
^eBut the earth abides forever.

^{5f}The sun also rises, and the sun goes down,
And ⁴hastens to the place where it arose.

^{6g}The wind goes toward the south,
And turns around to the north;
The wind whirls about continually,
And comes again on its circuit.

^{7h}All the rivers run into the sea,
Yet the sea is not full;
To the place from which the rivers come,
There they return again.

⁸All things are ⁵full of labor;
Man cannot express it.

ⁱThe eye is not satisfied with seeing,
Nor the ear filled with hearing.

^{9j}That which has been is what will be,
That which is done is what will be done,
And there is nothing new under the sun.

¹⁰Is there anything of which it may be said,
“See, this is new”?

It has already been in ancient times before us.

¹¹*There is* ^kno remembrance of former things,
Nor will there be any remembrance of things that are to come
By those who will come after.

The Grief of Wisdom

¹²I, the Preacher, was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

¹³And I set my heart to seek and ¹search out by wisdom concerning all that is done under heaven; ^mthis burdensome task God has given to the sons of man, by which they may be ⁶exercised.

¹⁴I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and indeed, all is vanity and grasping for the wind. Word Studies: vanity

¹⁵ⁿ*What is* crooked cannot be made straight,
And what is lacking cannot be numbered.

¹⁶I communed with my heart, saying, “Look, I have attained greatness, and have gained ^omore wisdom than all who were before me in Jerusalem. My heart has ⁷understood great wisdom and knowledge.”

^{17p}And I set my heart to know wisdom and to know madness and folly. I perceived that this also is grasping for the wind.

¹⁸For ^qin much wisdom is much grief,
And he who increases knowledge increases sorrow. Charts and Diagrams: Solomon's Search for Satisfaction

Ecclesiastes 2

The Vanity of Pleasure

(cf. 1 Kin. 4:20–28)

¹I said ^ain my heart, “Come now, I will test you with ^bmirth; ¹therefore enjoy pleasure”; but surely, ^cthis also was vanity.

²I said of laughter—“Madness!”; and of mirth, “What does it accomplish?”

^{3d}I searched in my heart how ²to gratify my flesh with wine, while guiding my heart with wisdom, and how to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was ^egood for the sons of men to do under heaven all the days of their lives.

⁴I made my works great, I built myself ^fhouses, and planted myself vineyards.

⁵I made myself gardens and orchards, and I planted all kinds of fruit trees in them.

⁶I made myself water pools from which to ³water the growing trees of the grove.

⁷I acquired male and female servants, and had ⁴servants born in my house. Yes, I had greater possessions of herds and flocks than all who were in Jerusalem before me.

^{8g}I also gathered for myself silver and gold and the special treasures of kings and of the provinces. I acquired male and female singers, the delights of the sons of men, and ⁵musical instruments of all kinds.

^{9h}So I became great and ⁶excelled ⁱmore than all who were before me in Jerusalem. Also my wisdom remained with me.

¹⁰Whatever my eyes desired I did not keep from them.

I did not withhold my heart from any pleasure,

For my heart rejoiced in all my labor;

And ^jthis was my ⁷reward from all my labor.

¹¹Then I looked on all the works that my hands had done

And on the labor in which I had toiled;

And indeed all was ^kvanity and grasping for the wind.

There was no profit under the sun.

The End of the Wise and the Fool

¹²Then I turned myself to consider wisdom ^land madness and folly;

For what can the man do who succeeds the king?—

Only what he has already ^mdone.

¹³Then I saw that wisdom ⁿexcels folly
As light excels darkness.

^{14o}The wise man's eyes are in his head,
But the fool walks in darkness.

Yet I myself perceived
That ^pthe same event happens to them all.

¹⁵So I said in my heart,
“As it happens to the fool,
It also happens to me,
And why was I then more wise?”
Then I said in my heart,
“This also is vanity.”

¹⁶For there is ^qno more remembrance of the wise than of the fool forever,
Since all that now is will be forgotten in the days to come.
And how does a wise man die?
As the fool!

¹⁷Therefore I hated life because the work that was done under the sun was distressing to me, for all is vanity and grasping for the wind.

¹⁸Then I hated all my labor in which I had toiled under the sun, because ^rI must leave it to the man who will come after me.

¹⁹And who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will rule over all my labor in which I toiled and in which I have shown myself wise under the sun. This also is vanity.

²⁰Therefore I turned my heart and despaired of all the labor in which I had toiled under the sun.

²¹For there is a man whose labor is with wisdom, knowledge, and skill; yet he must leave his ⁸heritage to a man who has not labored for it. This also is vanity and a great evil.

^{22s}For what has man for all his labor, and for the striving of his heart with which he has toiled under the sun?

²³For all his days are ^tsorrowful, and his work burdensome; even in the night his heart takes no rest. This also is vanity.

^{24u}Nothing is better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and that his soul should enjoy good in his labor. This also, I saw, was from the hand of God.

²⁵For who can eat, or who can have enjoyment, ⁹more than I?

²⁶For God gives ^vwisdom and knowledge and joy to a man who is good in His sight; but to the sinner He gives the work of gathering and collecting, that ^whe may give to him who is good before God. This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

Ecclesiastes 3

Everything Has Its Time

¹To everything there is a season,
A ^atime for every purpose under heaven:

²A time ¹to be born,
And ^ba time to die;
A time to plant,
And a time to pluck what is planted;

³A time to kill,
And a time to heal;
A time to break down,
And a time to build up;

⁴A time to ^cweep,
And a time to laugh;
A time to mourn,
And a time to dance;

⁵A time to cast away stones,
And a time to gather stones;
^dA time to embrace,
And a time to refrain from embracing;

⁶A time to gain,
And a time to lose;
A time to keep,
And a time to throw away;

⁷A time to tear,
And a time to sew;
^eA time to keep silence,
And a time to ^fspeak;

⁸A time to love,
And a time to ^ghate;
A time of war,
And a time of peace.

The God-Given Task

⁹^hWhat profit has the worker from that in which he labors?

¹⁰ⁱI have seen the God-given task with which the sons of men are to be occupied.

¹¹He has made everything beautiful in its time. Also He has put eternity in their hearts, except that ^jno one can find out the work that God does from beginning to end.

¹²I know that nothing is ^kbetter for them than to rejoice, and to do good in their lives, ¹³and also that ^levery man should eat and drink and enjoy the good of all his labor—it is the gift of God.

¹⁴I know that whatever God does,
It shall be forever.

^mNothing can be added to it,
And nothing taken from it.
God does it, that men should fear before Him.

¹⁵ⁿThat which is has already been,
And what is to be has already been;
And God ²requires an account of ³what is past.

Injustice Seems to Prevail

¹⁶Moreover ^oI saw under the sun:

*In the place of ⁴judgment,
Wickedness was there;
And in the place of righteousness,
⁵Iniquity was there.*

¹⁷I said in my heart,

^p“God shall judge the righteous and the wicked,
For there is a time there for every ⁶purpose and for every work.”

¹⁸I said in my heart, “Concerning the condition of the sons of men, God tests them, that they may see that they themselves are like animals.”

^{19q}For what happens to the sons of men also happens to animals; one thing befalls them: as one dies, so dies the other. Surely, they all have one breath; man has no advantage over animals, for all is vanity.

²⁰All go to one place: ^rall are from the dust, and all return to dust.

^{21s}Who⁷ knows the spirit of the sons of men, which goes upward, and the spirit of the animal, which goes down to the earth?

^{22t}So I perceived that nothing is better than that a man should rejoice in his own works, for ^uthat is his ⁸heritage. ^vFor who can bring him to see what will happen after him?

Ecclesiastes 4

¹Then I returned and considered all the ^aoppression that is done under the sun:

And look! The tears of the oppressed,
But they have no comforter—

¹On the side of their oppressors there is power,
But they have no comforter.

^{2b}Therefore I praised the dead who were already dead,
More than the living who are still alive.

^{3c}Yet, better than both is he who has never existed,
Who has not seen the evil work that is done under the sun.

The Vanity of Selfish Toil

⁴Again, I saw that for all toil and every skillful work a man is envied by his neighbor. This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

^{5d}The fool folds his hands
And consumes his own flesh.

^{6e}Better a handful with quietness
Than both hands full, together with toil and grasping for the wind.

⁷Then I returned, and I saw vanity under the sun:

⁸There is one alone, without ²companion:
He has neither son nor brother.
Yet there is no end to all his labors,
Nor is his ^feye satisfied with riches.
But ^g*he never asks*,
“For whom do I toil and deprive myself of ^hgood?”
This also is vanity and a ³grave misfortune.

The Value of a Friend

⁹Two are better than one,
Because they have a good reward for their labor.

¹⁰For if they fall, one will lift up his companion.
But woe to him who is alone when he falls,
For he has no one to help him up.

¹¹Again, if two lie down together, they will keep warm;
But how can one be warm alone?

¹²Though one may be overpowered by another, two can withstand him.

And a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

Popularity Passes Away

¹³Better a poor and wise youth
Than an old and foolish king who will be admonished no more.

¹⁴For he comes out of prison to be king,
Although ⁴he was born poor in his kingdom.

¹⁵I saw all the living who walk under the sun;
They were with the second youth who stands in his place.

¹⁶*There* was no end of all the people ⁵over whom he was made king;

Yet those who come afterward will not rejoice in him.
Surely this also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

Ecclesiastes 5

Fear God, Keep Your Vows

¹Walk ^aprudently when you go to the house of God; and draw near to hear rather ^bthan to give the sacrifice of fools, for they do not know that they do evil.

²Do not be ^crash with your mouth,
And let not your heart utter anything hastily before God.
For God is in heaven, and you on earth;
Therefore let your words ^dbe few.

³For a dream comes through much activity,
And ^ea fool's voice is known by his many words.

^{4f}When you make a vow to God, do not delay to ^gpay it;
For He has no pleasure in fools.
Pay what you have vowed—

^{5h}Better not to vow than to vow and not pay.

⁶Do not let your ⁱmouth cause your flesh to sin, ^jnor say before the messenger of God that it was an error. Why should God be angry at your ¹excuse and destroy the work of your hands?

⁷For in the multitude of dreams and many words there is also vanity. But ^kfear God.

The Vanity of Gain and Honor

⁸If you ¹see the oppression of the poor, and the violent ²perversion of justice and righteousness in a province, do not marvel at the matter; for ^mhigh official watches over high official, and higher officials are over them.

⁹Moreover the profit of the land is for all; even the king is served from the field.

¹⁰He who loves silver will not be satisfied with silver;
Nor he who loves abundance, with increase.
This also is vanity.

¹¹When goods increase,
They increase who eat them;
So what profit have the owners
Except to see them with their eyes?

¹²The sleep of a laboring man is sweet,
Whether he eats little or much;
But the abundance of the rich will not permit him to sleep.

¹³ⁿThere is a severe evil which I have seen under the sun:
Riches kept for their owner to his hurt.

¹⁴But those riches perish through ³misfortune;
When he begets a son, there is nothing in his hand.

¹⁵^oAs he came from his mother's womb, naked shall he return,
To go as he came;
And he shall take nothing from his labor
Which he may carry away in his hand.

¹⁶And this also is a severe evil—
Just exactly as he came, so shall he go.
And ^pwhat profit has he ^qwho has labored for the wind?

¹⁷All his days ^rhe also eats in darkness,
And he has much sorrow and sickness and anger.

¹⁸Here is what I have seen: ^s*It is* good and fitting for one to eat and drink, and to enjoy the good of all his labor in which he toils under the sun all the days of his life which God gives him; ^tfor it is his ⁴heritage. Word Studies: labor

¹⁹As for ^uevery man to whom God has given riches and wealth, and given him power to eat of it, to receive his ⁵heritage and rejoice in his labor—this is the ^vgift of God.

²⁰For he will not dwell unduly on the days of his life, because God keeps him busy with the joy of his heart.

Ecclesiastes 6

¹There^a is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men:

²A man to whom God has given riches and wealth and honor, ^bso that he lacks nothing for himself of all he desires; ^cyet God does not give him power to eat of it, but a foreigner consumes it. This is vanity, and it is an evil ¹affliction.

³If a man begets a hundred children and lives many years, so that the days of his years are many, but his soul is not satisfied with goodness, or ^dindeed he has no burial, I say that ^ea ²stillborn child is better than he—

⁴for it comes in vanity and departs in darkness, and its name is covered with darkness.

⁵Though it has not seen the sun or known anything, this has more rest than that man, ⁶even if he lives a thousand years twice—but has not seen goodness. Do not all go to one ^fplace?

^{7g}All the labor of man is for his mouth,
And yet the soul is not satisfied.

⁸For what more has the wise man than the fool?
What does the poor man have,
Who knows how to walk before the living?

⁹Better is ³the ^hsight of the eyes than the wandering of ⁴desire.
This also is vanity and grasping for the wind.

¹⁰Whatever one is, he has been named ⁱalready,
For it is known that he is man;

^jAnd he cannot contend with Him who is mightier than he.

¹¹Since there are many things that increase vanity,
How is man the better?

¹²For who knows what is good for man in life, ⁵all the days of his ⁶vain life which he passes like ^ka shadow? ¹Who can tell a man what will happen after him under the sun?

Ecclesiastes 7

The Value of Practical Wisdom

¹A ^agood name is better than precious ointment,
And the day of death than the day of one's ^bbirth; Article: Wisdom

Literature

²Better to go to the house of mourning
Than to go to the house of feasting,
For that is the end of all men;
And the living will take it to ^cheart.

³¹Sorrow is better than laughter,
^dFor by a sad countenance the heart is made ²better.
⁴The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning,
But the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.

⁵^e*It is* better to ³hear the rebuke of the wise
Than for a man to hear the song of fools.

⁶^fFor like the ⁴crackling of thorns under a pot,
So is the laughter of the fool.
This also is vanity.

⁷Surely oppression destroys a wise man's reason,
^gAnd a bribe ⁵debases the heart.

⁸The end of a thing is better than its beginning;
^hThe patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.

⁹ⁱDo not hasten in your spirit to be angry,
For anger rests in the bosom of fools.

¹⁰Do not say,
“Why were the former days better than these?”
For you do not inquire wisely concerning this.

¹¹Wisdom is good with an inheritance,
And profitable ^jto those who see the sun.

¹²For wisdom is ⁶a ^kdefense as money is a defense,
But the ⁷excellence of knowledge is that wisdom gives ^llife to those who have it.

¹³Consider the work of God;
For ^mwho can make straight what He has made crooked?

¹⁴ⁿIn the day of prosperity be joyful,
But in the day of adversity consider:
Surely God has appointed the one ⁸as well as the other,
So that man can find out nothing that will come after him.

¹⁵I have seen everything in my days of vanity:

^oThere is a just man who perishes in his righteousness,
And there is a wicked man who prolongs life in his wickedness.

^{16p}Do not be overly righteous,
^qNor be overly wise:
Why should you destroy yourself?
¹⁷Do not be overly wicked,
Nor be foolish:
^rWhy should you die before your time?

¹⁸*It is good that you grasp this,*
And also not remove your hand from the other;
For he who ^sfears God will ⁹escape them all.

^{19t}Wisdom strengthens the wise
More than ten rulers of the city.

^{20u}For there is not a just man on earth who does good
And does not sin.

²¹Also do not take to heart everything people say,
Lest you hear your servant cursing you.

²²For many times, also, your own heart has known
That even you have cursed others.

²³All this I have ¹⁰proved by wisdom.

^vI said, "I will be wise";
But it was far from me.

^{24w}As for that which is far off and ^xexceedingly deep,
Who can find it out?

^{25y}I applied my heart to know,

To search and seek out wisdom and the reason of things,
To know the wickedness of folly,
Even of foolishness and madness.

^{26z}And I find more bitter than death
The woman whose heart is snares and nets,
Whose hands are fetters.

¹¹He who pleases God shall escape from her,
But the sinner shall be trapped by her.

²⁷“Here is what I have found,” says ^athe Preacher, “Adding one thing to the other to find out the reason,

²⁸Which my soul still seeks but I cannot find:

^bOne man among a thousand I have found,
But a woman among all these I have not found.

²⁹Truly, this only I have found:

^cThat God made man upright,
But ^dthey have sought out many schemes.”

Ecclesiastes 8

¹Who is like a wise man?
And who knows the interpretation of a thing?
^aA man's wisdom makes his face shine,
And ^bthe ¹sternness of his face is changed.

Obey Authorities for God's Sake

²I say, "Keep the king's commandment ^cfor the sake of your oath to God.
^{3d}"Do not be hasty to go from his presence. Do not take your stand for an evil thing, for he does whatever pleases him."

⁴Where the word of a king is, there is power;
And ^ewho may say to him, "What are you doing?"
⁵He who keeps his command will experience nothing harmful;
And a wise man's heart ²discerns both time and judgment,
⁶Because ^ffor every matter there is a time and judgment,
Though the misery of man ³increases greatly.
^{7g}For he does not know what will happen;
So who can tell him when it will occur?
^{8h}No one has power over the spirit to retain the spirit,
And no one has power in the day of death.
There is ⁱno release from that war,
And wickedness will not deliver those who are given to it.

⁹All this I have seen, and applied my heart to every work that is done under the sun: There is a time in which one man rules over another to his own hurt.

Death Comes to All

¹⁰Then I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of holiness, and they were ^jforgotten⁴ in the city where they had so done. This also is vanity.

^{11k}Because the sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.

¹²ⁱThough a sinner does evil a hundred times, and his days are prolonged, yet I surely know that ^mit will be well with those who fear God, who fear before Him.

¹³But it will not be well with the wicked; nor will he prolong his days, which are as a shadow, because he does not fear before God.

¹⁴There is a vanity which occurs on earth, that there are just men to whom it ⁿhappens according to the work of the wicked; again, there are wicked men to whom it happens according to the work of the ^orighteous. I said that this also is vanity.

^{15p}So I commended enjoyment, because a man has nothing better under the sun than to eat, drink, and be merry; for this will remain with him in his labor all the days of his life which God gives him under the sun.

¹⁶When I applied my heart to know wisdom and to see the business that is done on earth, even though one sees no sleep day or night, ¹⁷then I saw all the work of God, that ^qa man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun. For though a man labors to discover it, yet he will not find it; moreover, though a wise man attempts to know it, he will not be able to find it.

Ecclesiastes 9

¹For I ¹considered all this in my heart, so that I could declare it all: ^athat the righteous and the wise and their works are in the hand of God. People know neither love nor hatred by anything they see before them.

^{2b}All things come alike to all:

One event happens to the righteous and the wicked;
To the ²good, the clean, and the unclean;
To him who sacrifices and him who does not sacrifice.
As is the good, so is the sinner;
He who takes an oath as he who fears an oath.

³This is an evil in all that is done under the sun: that one thing happens to all. Truly the hearts of the sons of men are full of evil; madness is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead.

⁴But for him who is joined to all the living there is hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion.

⁵For the living know that they will die;
But ^cthe dead know nothing,
And they have no more reward,
For ^dthe memory of them is forgotten.

⁶Also their love, their hatred, and their envy have now perished;
Nevermore will they have a share
In anything done under the sun.

⁷Go, ^eeat your bread with joy,
And drink your wine with a merry heart;
For God has already accepted your works.

⁸Let your garments always be white,
And let your head lack no oil.

^{9b}Live joyfully with the wife whom you love all the days of your vain life which He has given you under the sun, all your days of vanity; ^ffor that is your portion in life, and in the labor which you perform under the sun.

^{10g}Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with your ^hmight; for there is no work or device or knowledge or wisdom in the grave where you are going.

¹¹I returned ⁱand saw under the sun that—

The race is not to the swift,
Nor the battle to the strong,
Nor bread to the wise,
Nor riches to men of understanding,
Nor favor to men of skill;
But time and ^jchance happen to them all.
¹²For ^kman also does not know his time:
Like fish taken in a cruel net,
Like birds caught in a snare,
So the sons of men are ^lsnared in an evil time,
When it falls suddenly upon them.

Wisdom Superior to Folly

¹³This wisdom I have also seen under the sun, and it seemed great to me:

^{14m}There was a little city with few men in it; and a great king came against it, besieged it, and built great ⁴snares around it.

¹⁵Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city. Yet no one remembered that same poor man.

¹⁶Then I said:

“Wisdom is better than ⁿstrength.

Nevertheless ^othe poor man’s wisdom is despised,
And his words are not heard.

¹⁷Words of the wise, spoken quietly, should be heard
Rather than the shout of a ruler of fools.

¹⁸Wisdom is better than weapons of war;
But ^pone sinner destroys much good.”

Ecclesiastes 10

¹Dead¹ flies ²putrefy the perfumer's ointment,
And cause it to give off a foul odor;
So does a little folly to one respected for wisdom and honor.

²A wise man's heart is at his right hand,
But a fool's heart at his left.

³Even when a fool walks along the way,
He lacks wisdom,

^aAnd he shows everyone that he is a fool.

⁴If the spirit of the ruler rises against you,

^bDo not leave your post;
For ^cconciliation³ pacifies great offenses.

⁵There is an evil I have seen under the sun,
As an error proceeding from the ruler:

^{6d}Folly is set in ⁴great dignity,
While the rich sit in a lowly place.

⁷I have seen servants ^eon horses,
While princes walk on the ground like servants.

^{8f}He who digs a pit will fall into it,
And whoever breaks through a wall will be bitten by a serpent.

⁹He who quarries stones may be hurt by them,
And he who splits wood may be endangered by it.

¹⁰If the ax is dull,
And one does not sharpen the edge,
Then he must use more strength;
But wisdom ⁵brings success.

¹¹A serpent may bite ^gwhen it is not charmed;
The ⁶babbler is no different.

^{12h}The words of a wise man's mouth are gracious,
But ⁱthe lips of a fool shall swallow him up;

¹³The words of his mouth begin with foolishness,
And the end of his talk is raving madness.

^{14j}A fool also multiplies words.

No man knows what is to be;
Who can tell him ^kwhat will be after him?

¹⁵The labor of fools wearies them,
For they do not even know how to go to the city!

^{16l}Woe to you, O land, when your king is a child,
And your princes feast in the morning!

¹⁷Blessed are you, O land, when your king is the son of nobles,

And your ^mprinces feast at the proper time—
For strength and not for drunkenness!

¹⁸Because of laziness the ⁷building decays,
And ⁿthrough idleness of hands the house leaks.

¹⁹A feast is made for laughter,
And ^owine makes merry;
But money answers everything.

^{20p}Do not curse the king, even in your thought;
Do not curse the rich, even in your bedroom;
For a bird of the air may carry your voice,
And a bird in flight may tell the matter.

Ecclesiastes 11

The Value of Diligence

¹Cast your bread ^aupon the waters,
^bFor you will find it after many days.
^{2c}Give a serving ^dto seven, and also to eight,
^eFor you do not know what evil will be on the earth.

³If the clouds are full of rain,
They empty themselves upon the earth;
And if a tree falls to the south or the north,
In the place where the tree falls, there it shall lie.
⁴He who observes the wind will not sow,
And he who regards the clouds will not reap.

⁵As ^fyou do not know what is the way of the ¹wind, ^gOr how the bones grow in the womb of her who is with child,
So you do not know the works of God who makes everything.

⁶In the morning sow your seed,
And in the evening do not withhold your hand;
For you do not know which will prosper,
Either this or that,
Or whether both alike will be good.

⁷Truly the light is sweet,
And it is pleasant for the eyes ^hto behold the sun;
⁸But if a man lives many years
And ⁱrejoices in them all,
Yet let him ^jremember the days of darkness,
For they will be many.
All that is coming is vanity.

Seek God in Early Life

⁹Rejoice, O young man, in your youth,
And let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth;
^kWalk in the ²ways of your heart,
And ³in the sight of your eyes;
But know that for all these ^lGod will bring you into judgment.
¹⁰Therefore remove ⁴sorrow from your heart,
And ^mput away evil from your flesh,
ⁿFor childhood and ⁵youth are vanity.

Ecclesiastes 12

¹Remember^a now your Creator in the days of your youth,
Before the ¹difficult days come,
And the years draw near ^bwhen you say,
“I have no pleasure in them”:

²While the sun and the light,
The moon and the stars,
Are not darkened,
And the clouds do not return after the rain;
³In the day when the keepers of the house tremble,
And the strong men bow down;
When the grinders cease because they are few,
And those that look through the windows grow dim;

⁴When the doors are shut in the streets,
And the sound of grinding is low;
When one rises up at the sound of a bird,
And all ^cthe daughters of music are brought low.

⁵Also they are afraid of height,
And of terrors in the way;
When the almond tree blossoms,
The grasshopper is a burden,
And desire fails.
For man goes to ^dhis eternal home,
And ^ethe mourners go about the streets.

⁶*Remember your Creator* before the silver cord is ²loosed,
Or the golden bowl is broken,
Or the pitcher shattered at the fountain,
Or the wheel broken at the well.

^{7f}Then the dust will return to the earth as it was,
^gAnd the spirit will return to God ^hwho gave it.

⁸“Vanityⁱ of vanities,” says the Preacher,
“All is vanity.”

The Whole Duty of Man

⁹And moreover, because the Preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yes, he pondered and sought out and ^jset³ in order many proverbs.

¹⁰The Preacher sought to find ⁴acceptable words; and what was written was upright—words of truth.

¹¹The words of the wise are like goads, and the words of ⁵scholars are like well-driven nails, given by one Shepherd.

¹²And further, my son, be admonished by these. Of making many books there is no end, and ^kmuch study is wearisome to the flesh.

¹³Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter:

^lFear God and keep His commandments,
For this is man's all.

¹⁴For ^mGod will bring every work into judgment,
Including every secret thing,
Whether good or evil.

Annotations for Ecclesiastes

- 1:1 The title Preacher denotes a function or a profession. It literally means “one who assembles” or “one who gathers people together.” Thus the word refers to Solomon as a person who convened an assembly of the wise in order to explore in a formal manner the meaning of life. It might be better to transliterate the Hebrew word Qohelet rather than to translate it, for it seems to be Solomon’s pen name.
- 1:2 Vanity of vanities: This phrase translates the Hebrew superlative, familiar from such phrases as “song of songs” and “holy of holies.” Here it might express “the ultimate absurdity” or “utter emptiness.” This has led many to conclude that the Book of Ecclesiastes is a negative, cynical book that denies any meaning in life. Others have suggested that this book explains that life apart from God is “utter emptiness.” However, the book itself does not say this, for there is no qualifying phrase such as “except when one is related to God.” Instead, the book clearly says that life itself is “vanity of vanities.” The word vanity means “breath” or “vapor” and thus speaks of life as “quickly passing.” Wherever we read the word vanity in Ecclesiastes, we should think not of what is “meaningless,” but of what is “quickly passing” (v. 14; 6:12). This is one of the key terms in the Book of Ecclesiastes, for it is found 38 times there. The teaching of the Preacher is to realize that life is a fleeting thing that needs to be savored and enjoyed as a gift from God.
- 1:3 The senses of the term profit are: (1) “advantage” and (2) “adequate gain.” Here it refers to compensation or gains, usually in the commercial realm. The question is: What is left after all expenses are taken into account? labor: Both the noun and the verb carry negative connotations, referring to activities requiring exertion. under the sun: This phrase (also translated as “under heaven” in v. 13; 2:3; 3:1) describes life lived here on this earth, as God has been pleased to place us. In these two verses (vv. 2, 3), the Preacher has established one of his principal ideas: Life may seem pointless because it is quickly passing. It is the burden of the rest of his book to help the assembly of the wise understand how to truly value life because it does indeed pass so very quickly.
- 1:4 The term generation suggests both the human actors and the natural phenomena as well. With the verb passes away we have the first of a series of antitheses in Ecclesiastes. the earth abides forever: Only God is eternal and everlasting in the fullest sense. But compared to the lives of humankind, the earth abides with little change.
- 1:5–7 The sun . . . The wind . . . the rivers: These three elements of God’s creation are seen to be going about in their expected courses, with little change and little effect.
- 1:8 All things are full of labor: What is true of the sun, wind, and rivers (vv. 5–7) is also true of all other temporal things. The whole world is made up of what could be called “the restless ones.” The eye is not satisfied: Here a proverb is quoted describing insatiable appetite (4:8; 5:10; compare Prov. 27:20) in depicting the seeming pointlessness of the courses of natural phenomena.
- 1:10, 11 If it appears that something new does happen from time to time, it is only because people’s memories are short.
- 1:12 I, the Preacher, was king: There is a shift from the third person of vv. 1, 2 to the first person here. The writer, or perhaps a later editor, returns to the third person in the epilogue, 12:9–14. This is most likely a reference to Solomon as the author of the book.
- 1:13 under heaven: This is a synonymous expression for “under the sun” (vv. 3, 9); it refers to life as it is lived by people on earth. God: Ecclesiastes does not use the divine title Yahweh, God’s covenantal name (Ex. 3:14, 15). Instead, the book uses the word Elohim for God 28 times, a word that stresses His sovereignty over all creation. The wisdom writers often use Elohim when they wish to speak of universal truth instead of truths that are peculiar to God’s covenantal relationship to Israel. sons of man: This is a way of speaking of human beings in a very general sense. may be exercised: This verb is used only in Ecclesiastes and means “to be occupied with” or “to be busy with”; it is associated with the noun task (see 3:10).

1:14 grasping for the wind: This phrase does not occur in the Hebrew Bible outside of Ecclesiastes. Seven of its nine occurrences (v. 14; 2:11, 17, 26; 4:4, 6; 6:9) follow “vanity” statements. The phrase explains the nature of life according to the Preacher. Life is real, but quickly passing; any attempt to seize it is as futile as grasping the wind.

(Heb. hebel) (1:14; 2:1, 11; 6:12; 7:15; Ps. 78:33; Is. 49:4) Strong's #1892

This word basically means “vapor” or “breath,” such as the rapidly vanishing vapor of one’s warm breath in cool, crisp air. With this word, the Preacher described worldly pursuits—such as wealth, honor, fame, and various pleasures—as similar to desperately grasping at air (2:17). It is absurd and useless. Jeremiah used the same word to denounce idolatry as “worthless” (Jer. 18:15); and Job used it to bemoan the brevity of human life (Job 7:16). But the Preacher of Ecclesiastes used the word more than any other OT author. According to him, all of life is vanity unless one recognizes that everything is from the hand of God (2:24–26).

1:15 Solomon is not claiming that there is no use trying to straighten out or change anything. Rather, he explains that no amount of investigating or using the resources of earth will ever straighten out all that is crooked, twisted, perverted, or turned upside down (7:13).

1:16 all who were before me in Jerusalem: This phrase does not rule out Solomon as the author of the book just because he was preceded in Jerusalem only by his father David. There were other kings including Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18) and Adoni-Zedek (Josh. 10:1). The city of Jerusalem had existed for hundreds of years before Solomon became its king.

1:17 It was not wisdom that Solomon judges absurd, but rather becoming “more wise” (2:15) and “overly wise” (7:16).

1:18 much wisdom is much grief: For all of wisdom’s other advantages, Solomon confesses that much wisdom and learning are the source of pain, chagrin, and sorrow. It is well known that the very process of learning is an expansion of the awareness of our ignorance. For mortals, an increase of wisdom may only increase pain (12:12).

Solomon’s Search for Satisfaction

Solomon drifted away from God during his lifetime, pursuing different ways to achieve satisfaction. Only after many years of futile searching did he finally remember the true source of peace: a proper relationship with God. Solomon wrote Ecclesiastes to pass on this truth. Satisfaction can be found only by fearing God and keeping His commandments (12:13).

Solomon sought fulfillment in:

The result was:

Wisdom (1:12–18)

- Acquiring more knowledge

Pleasure (2:1–3)

- Laughter and mirth

Accomplishments (2:4–6)

- Building projects
- Agricultural endeavors
- Engineering experiments

Possessions (2:7–17)

- Large numbers of servants
- Herds of cattle
- Wealth in silver and gold (1 Kin. 10)
- Choirs and orchestras
- Seven hundred wives (1 Kin. 11:3) much grief and increased sorrow (1:18)

vanity (2:1)

vanity (2:11)

no profit under the sun (2:11)

hatred of life (2:17)

2:1 The Preacher uses a literary device of conversing with himself as a way of describing his thought processes. mirth: A new test is proposed, following the test of wisdom. It is the test of “joy,” or “pleasure.”

2:2 Solomon labels the lighter side of pleasure and joy as sheer madness, but even the weightier aspects of laughter cause Solomon to ask if anything substantial is really achieved. As Solomon writes in Prov. 14:13, “Even in laughter the heart may sorrow, and the end of mirth may be grief.”

2:3 flesh with wine . . . heart with wisdom: Here the test is an attempt to balance excess on the one side with learning on the other.

2:4–6 I built myself houses: Solomon worked for 13 years building “the king’s house” (1 Kin. 9:10), then he built “the House of the Forest of Lebanon” (1 Kin. 10:17), and another house for his wife, Pharaoh’s daughter (1 Kin. 9:24). He also fortified the cities of Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer, Beth Horon, Baalath, and Tadmor (1 Kin. 9:15, 17, 18). vineyards . . . gardens and orchards: Solomon’s interest in the natural world (God’s creation) was prodigious (1 Kin. 4:33).

2:7, 8 Maintaining the various buildings and gardens of the king must have demanded an extensive staff of servants. silver and gold: Solomon’s riches were unsurpassed by the kings of the ancient world (1 Kin. 10:14–29). musical instruments: The meaning of the Hebrew term so translated has long been debated. An Egyptian letter found at Amarna contains this word in Akkadian as an explanation of an Egyptian word meaning “concubine.”

2:10 my eyes desired: Solomon had limitless ability to fulfill any and all of his desires. labor: One of the Preacher’s favorite words occurs here for the third time. It appears in the book about 31 times.

2:11 At the end of his grand quest for possessions and experiences, Solomon concluded that it was vanity or “vapor,” a grasping for the wind. That is, even with all he had done and experienced, there was still a sense that nothing lasting or enduring had been achieved.

2:12 madness and folly: This topic was introduced briefly in 1:17. The two words together express a single concept, “senseless folly.”

2:13 There is a relative value of wisdom over folly, but both have their limitations (vv. 19, 21).

2:14 the same event: Some versions incorrectly render this Hebrew term which means “happening,”

- or “event” as the word fate. This is one of the Preacher’s favorite words (vv. 14, 15; 3:19; 9:2, 3, 11). Here, the inevitable event is death. Both the wise and the foolish must die.
- 2:17 Such hatred of life is astonishing since the one who finds wisdom also finds life, according to Prov. 3:16; 8:35. But the Preacher’s dissatisfaction was related to the quickly passing nature of everything (1:2), including even the good things; they were a grasping for the wind (1:14).
- 2:20 labor in which I had toiled: This could refer either to all the toil he had undertaken or, more probably, to the “earnings” he had gained.
- 2:21 The noun skill is found only in Ecclesiastes (v. 21; 4:4). It depicts one who is expert at a craft.
- great evil: The term evil often has a sense of moral evil; here, however, it may mean “calamity” or “ruin.” There is a sense of sadness that runs through this section. Nothing that we gain in this life can be carried on into the life to come.
- 2:24 This translation, with most interpreters, assumes that the comparative form—better—is to be supplied here, though it is missing in the Hebrew text; it is in agreement with later passages, see 3:12; 5:18; 8:15. The Preacher concludes that all good is located only in God. eat and drink . . . good in his labor: This repeated refrain marks one of the central affirmations of Ecclesiastes (vv. 24–26; 3:12, 13; 3:22; 5:18–20; 8:15; 9:7); in the midst of a world of trouble, a believer is able to seize the moment in joy from God. Only God supplies the key to the meaning of life. Without Him, genuine meaning, satisfaction, and enjoyment in life are ultimately elusive. from the hand of God: This figure of speech announces that even such mundane acts as eating, drinking, and earning a paycheck are gifts from God.
- 2:25 more than I: An alternative meaning of this phrase, “apart from God,” may be more appropriate in this context. Believers pray before their meals in order to affirm that God is the great Giver of all good gifts. They can enjoy the food on their plates only when they recognize that fact.
- 2:26 God gives: One of the words used most frequently in Ecclesiastes to describe God’s relationship to individuals is the verb “to give.” It appears 11 times with God as subject.
- 3:1–15 This poem speaks with eloquence of the role of time in the life of the believer. Some regard the Book of Ecclesiastes as describing life apart from God, but clearly this text describes life that is lived in relationship with God. Through these words, the Preacher is not teaching that everything has an opportune time according to which one should choose one action or the other. Rather, he teaches that all events are in the hand of God, who makes everything happen in the time He judges appropriate. Illustrating this comforting assertion, the Preacher turns to 14 pairs of opposites in vv. 2–8.
- 3:1 a season . . . A time: Both words are usually regarded as being specific points in time rather than a continuity of time. under heaven: That is, life “under the sun,” the sphere in which human life is lived.
- 3:2 born . . . die: The pairs of words in these verses are natural events in human life, and all are under the hand of the living God.
- 3:3 A time to kill: In the plan of God, there is a time for executing murderers (Gen. 9:6) and for going to war against enemies designated by God. A time to break down: There is a time for dismantling walls, stone buildings, or even nations (Is. 5:5; Jer. 18:7, 9).
- 3:4 weep . . . laugh: God’s plan includes both sorrows and joys. Believers do not mourn in the same way as unbelievers (1 Thess. 4:13), but we do mourn (Matt. 5:4). Dancing and leaping are natural ways of expressing laughter, pleasure, and joy in the presence of the Lord (Ex. 15:20; Ps. 149:2, 3; 150:4) and in times of personal happiness (Luke 15:25).
- 3:5 In times of peace, stones were cleared from the fields, allowing for cultivation. In wartime, the rocks were thrown on the fields to make them unusable (2 Kin. 3:19, 25). to embrace: In this context the words describe the sexual embrace.
- 3:6 to keep . . . to throw away: There is a period of life in which one wishes to accumulate things for enjoyment and memories; later in life, one needs to work out ways to dispose of what has been accumulated.

- 3:7 When bad news came, it was customary to rip one's garments to show grief (2 Sam. 13:31). When the problem passed, it was just as well to sew the garment back together. silence . . . speak: See the two contrary ways of responding to a fool (Prov. 26:4, 5).
- 3:8 In this verse the first part names the positive love first, then the negative hate. The second part uses the reverse order, negative then positive, to end with peace.
- 3:9 What profit: This is the same question posed in 1:3. The answer here is that all of life unfolds the appointment of God. All the toiling of man cannot change the times, circumstances, and control of events that God has reserved to Himself.
- 3:10 One of the words that is unique to the Book of Ecclesiastes, task may have a neutral connotation as here (see 5:3; 8:16) or a negative connotation (something burdensome, as in 1:13; 2:23, 26; 4:8; 5:14).
- 3:11 All of God's creation is beautiful. The point is that God makes everything that way in its time. From the divine perspective, there is no ugliness in the events of our lives (3:1–8). Eternity in their hearts refers to a deep-seated, compulsive drive to transcend our mortality by knowing the meaning and destiny of the world. Because we are made in the image of God, we have an inborn inquisitiveness about eternal realities. We can find peace only when we come to know our eternal Creator. Even then, we know God only in part (1 Cor. 13:12). from beginning to end: All we see is the micro-moment of our own existence in the grand span of eternity. Thus the Scriptures call people to live in robust faith during times of trial and pain; in the grand scheme of things, God will make everything beautiful.
- 3:12, 13 nothing is better: As in 2:24, the advice of the Preacher is to seize the day in the joy of God. rejoice . . . enjoy: Biblical faith is a call for joy, even when we live in a wicked world and under terrible stress; this is because we find true joy in the living God.
- 3:14 God's works have a durable quality to them. As Deut. 4:2; 12:32; Prov. 30:6 advise, nothing may be added and nothing taken away. should fear: The "fear" of God in wisdom literature refers to true piety, not terror (5:7; 12:13).
- 3:16, 17 The term judgment may also be translated "justice," giving an even more striking contrast to these words. It was outrageous that in the very establishments where people should expect justice, they could find only wickedness. The Preacher warns the wicked judges that God, the final judge, will come, rectify all wrongdoing, and bring true justice. This theme is so prominent in the book that Solomon repeats it in the conclusion (12:14), and he raises it often in the course of his argument (9:1; 11:9).
- 3:18 tests them: The basic meaning of the verb is "to choose, select, purify, test." Death is the great leveler of all persons. In that regard, humans are no different than animals.
- 3:19 one breath: The Hebrew expression might be translated "one spirit" or "one wind." The phrase in this case describes breath as the sign and symbol of life (see 8:8; see also Gen. 6:17; 7:15, 22). In this, humanity and animals are alike (but see v. 21). advantage: This word appears only here in Ecclesiastes. It is also found in Prov. 14:23: "In all labor there is profit," and in Prov. 21:5: "The plans of the diligent lead surely to plenty."
- 3:20, 21 All go to one place: Both humans and beasts die and go to the grave. But this is not the end for human beings—they will face eternal life or death. The rhetorical question who knows occurs six times in the Hebrew Bible outside of Ecclesiastes (2 Sam. 12:22; Esth. 4:14; Ps. 90:11; Prov. 24:22; Joel 2:14; John. 3:9) and four times in Ecclesiastes (2:19; 3:21; 6:12; 8:1). People and animals differ; their bodies go back to the dust from which they came, but the human spirit is immortal.
- 3:22 better: As in v. 12 and 2:24, there is a blessing given to humankind in terms of ordinary pleasures. his heritage: The allotment that God has designated may include material possessions (2:21; 11:2) or the pleasures that come from them (2:10; 3:22; 5:17, 18; 9:9).
- 4:1 Here is another complaint that threatens the plan of God. So much pain can come to the downtrodden that they may even despair of life (1 Kin. 19:4; Job 3:3–10). Only when the oppressed

- go into the house of God will they gain perspective for possible recovery (5:1–6; Ps. 73:17). they have no comforter: The absence of anyone to offer comfort only increases the pain and frustration.
- 4:2 I praised the dead: Being without a comforter is often worse than death itself.
- 4:3 he who has never existed: So powerfully wrong and so lonely is the suffering of the oppressed, that Solomon, with a good deal of poetic license similar to Job 3:3–10, argues that nonexistence could be preferred over existence.
- 4:4 a man is envied by his neighbor: To the previous obstacles to accepting that God’s plan encompasses everything is now added a fourth: the envy and cruel competition found in the world.
- 4:5, 6 Two proverbs follow. The fool: There are numerous statements in the Book of Proverbs about the self-destructive nature of laziness. a handful: Moderation is preferred to overexertion. In place of the sometimes cruel competition of the marketplace, Solomon recommended: “Better is a little with righteousness, than vast revenues without justice” (Prov. 16:8).
- 4:7, 8 The problem of sadness and loneliness is another obstacle to accepting the fact that God has a plan that embraces everything. Consider the person who has no family, not even an heir to whom he can leave all for which he has worked so hard. In 4:1 there is “no comforter.” In 4:4–6 there is no rest. In 4:8 there is no companion. grave misfortune: This literally refers to an evil or burdensome task (3:10).
- 4:9–12 Throughout this section there is an emphasis on the obvious benefits of companions. The intimacy and sharing of life brings relief for the problem of isolation and loneliness. A companion can offer assistance, comfort, and defense. threefold cord: The Preacher uses this proverbial saying to clinch his case about the value of friends.
- 4:13, 14 Before the Preacher lists the final obstacle (vv. 14–16) to believing in God’s good plan, he first places the answer in proverbial form. Popularity, even in the form of royal power, is elusive. In one case, an old king had been born to the throne but becomes so foolish and senile that he cannot discern that his days for ruling are over. In another case, a young man, like Joseph, may rise from prison to take the throne (Gen. 41:14, 37–41).
- 4:16 those who come afterward: Even the young man who replaces his predecessor will share the old king’s fate. Today’s hero may become tomorrow’s beggar.
- 5:1 Walk prudently: Literally, this phrase is “guard your feet” when you go to worship God. It means to behave yourself. The idea of righteous behavior is rephrased at the end of the section in the words: “But fear God” (5:7). to hear: As is common in the prophets, there is a warning to be circumspect about sacrifice. God has no pleasure in those who do all the right things for all the wrong reasons (Is. 1:10–15). the sacrifice of fools: As the prophet Samuel warned Saul, “Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to heed than the fat of rams” (1 Sam. 15:22).
- 5:2 God is in heaven . . . you on earth: The essential contrast between God’s righteous might and our sinful mortality should cause us to revere the Almighty (see v. 7).
- 5:4, 5 One should not attempt to bribe God with a hasty vow. The first part of this verse is almost identical to Deut. 23:21. See the later example of the lie of Ananias and Sapphira (Acts 5:1–11).
- 5:6 A priest or prophet or one of God’s angels is the messenger of God who would hear such excuses for unfulfilled vows (Hag. 1:13; Mal. 2:7).
- 5:7 To fear God, a central theme of the Book of Ecclesiastes, does not mean to be afraid of God (Ex. 20:2). It means to have reverence, awe, and wonder in response to His glory. For the wisdom writers (Job 1:1; Ps. 111:10; Prov. 1:7), “to fear God” means to respond to Him correctly, in true piety.
- 5:9 for all . . . king: All people live by God’s grace in His provision for the earth.
- 5:10 not be satisfied: The topic of an insatiable appetite is addressed for the third time (1:8; 4:8). Desire always outruns possessions, no matter how vast acquisitions may grow.
- 5:12 There are few things so satisfying in life as sleep following a hard day’s work; but the greedy rarely enjoy decent rest.
- 5:14 Misfortune literally refers to a “worthless task” (compare 3:10).

5:15 naked shall he return: The maxim that “you can’t take it with you” is affirmed here (2:21).

5:16 labored for the wind: The wording is similar to “grasping for the wind” (1:14).

5:17 darkness . . . anger: The frugal lifestyle of the covetous prevents them from enjoying what they do have (contrast 2:24–26; 3:12, 13).

Word Studies

labor

(Heb. ‘amal) (2:11; 5:18; Ps. 105:44; Jer. 20:18) Strong’s #5999

This noun means “toil,” or work for material gain (Ps. 127:1; Prov. 16:26), but it can also mean “trouble” or “sorrow” (see Job 3:10). The effort required for work and human achievement produces “sorrow” and “troubles” in the sense that it can never satisfy the deeper needs of the human soul (6:7). However, when believers recognize that their work is a gift from God, work can become a joy (5:18–20). Our work is part of God’s plan to establish His eternal kingdom. In this sense, we can be assured that our faithful commitment to our work will have eternal consequences and reap eternal rewards (see 1 Cor. 3:8, 14; 15:58).

- 5:19 God has separated the gift of enjoying something from the gift of the object itself so that we might be driven back to the Giver.
- 5:20 keeps him busy: The literal meaning of the verb is debated, but it appears to be a form of the verb meaning “to answer.” God keeps a person occupied and delighted primarily with Himself and then with the gifts He gives. joy of his heart: The Preacher uses the word joy in two ways: (1) “enjoyment,” an internal sense of pleasure (2:10, 26; 4:16; 9:7; 10:19) and (2) “pleasure,” pleasurable actions (2:1, 2, 10; 7:4; 11:9).
- 6:2 God does not give him power: Prosperity without the divine gift of enjoyment amounts to nothing (5:19).
- 6:3 Sometimes the achievement of the greatest of goals becomes hollow when there is no decent end to life. stillborn child: Ordinarily a great sadness, the child who does not live is considered to be better off than the person who has lived poorly. If life is nothing more than a meaningless journey to death, then a stillborn is better off, for that child reaches the end of the worthless journey with less pain (vv. 4–6).
- 6:6 That one place is, as 3:20 argues, the grave. If a long life terminates in death with no prospect of anything else, will that life have been worthwhile? Long life without knowing God and without the power to enjoy it is indeed frustrating and useless.
- 6:7 The Hebrew word for soul can also be translated appetite. If it is meant to parallel the word mouth in the first line, then appetite may be appropriate in this context. Yet the translation soul fits well in the argument of the gift being kept separate from the power to enjoy the gift (5:10).
- 6:9 The meaning of this proverb is that it is better making do with what we can look on and enjoy than fantasizing about desirable things that are beyond our grasp.
- 6:10 Whatever happens has been already known, because to name something is to know it (1:9–11). All things are foreknown and foreordained by God.
- 6:12 like a shadow: This phrase is a confirmation of the meaning of the Hebrew word translated vanity. Life passes away quickly, like a vapor. what will happen after him: The implied answer is that only God knows what will happen to us after death. Rather than imply that nothing exists beyond the grave, this book teaches that each person’s life will be reviewed by God after death.

7:1 A person's death may be better than the day of birth if the name of that person has merited a lasting reputation and influence.

Wisdom Literature

The Book of Ecclesiastes is an example of what is called wisdom literature. Common in the ancient Middle East, wisdom literature provided instructions for upright living. Such writing falls into two categories: proverbial wisdom, short, instructive sayings of the kind found in the Book of Proverbs, and speculation wisdom, consisting of dialogues or monologues that subtly disclose wisdom to readers. The Book of Job is an example of speculation wisdom in the form of dialogue; the Book of Ecclesiastes is an example of monologue.

The wisdom taught in these books is thoroughly practical. The wisdom literature of the Bible is more than pithy advice for day-to-day living; it provides a foundation and a way to know God Himself. The Book of Job explores the meaning of existence and a person's relationship with God; Proverbs gives advice on topics ranging from parenting to money management; the Book of Ecclesiastes comes out of the hard lessons of Solomon's life. Despite all his wisdom and possessions, Solomon made foolish choices. As an old man looking back on his life, he could not hide his regrets. So much of what Solomon had thought would bring him happiness—money, learning, and fame—crumbled before his eyes. Despite its apparent cynicism, the Book of Ecclesiastes is both a warning and an encouragement from a man who wanted others to avoid his mistakes. It shows that our efforts to live without God are meaningless. This realization is the beginning of true wisdom.

7:2–4 These verses expand upon the idea of v. 1. We may learn more about the meaning of life in the house of mourning than in the house of feasting.

7:5, 6 Burning thorns will provide quick flames, little heat, and a lot of noise, just like the sudden outbursts of laughter among fools; there is more noise than substance.

7:7 bribe: Another form of this maxim is found in Ex. 23:8; Deut. 16:19. See also Matt. 28:11–15; Luke 22:4–6.

7:10 The temptation to glorify the past at the expense of the present must be resisted. The pleasures or advantages of those days may be more imaginary than real.

7:11 Those who find wisdom find life, argues Solomon (Prov. 8:35). Wisdom is as good as an inheritance; in fact, wisdom is even more advantageous or profitable. who see the sun: This seems to be a variation on the more familiar phrase “under the sun.”

7:12 The word translated defense literally means “shade” or “shelter,” a kind of protection. The Hebrew word translated here as excellence is often rendered profit in Ecclesiastes.

7:13 The crooked that needs straightening (1:15) is the presence of afflictions and adversities in life. Both prosperity and adversity come from the hand of God. For prosperity give thanks, but in adversity reflect on the goodness and comprehensiveness of the plan of God.

7:14 find out nothing: If mortals do not come to know God and His plan, they will not be able to discern anything about life (3:11) or about what will happen after they are gone.

- 7:15 just man: There are inequities in life that will always be a mystery (3:16–4:3; see also 8:14).
- 7:16 Do not be overly righteous: Few verses in Ecclesiastes are more susceptible to incorrect interpretation than these (vv. 16–18). This is not the so-called golden mean that advises: “Don’t be too holy and don’t be too wicked; sin to a moderate degree.” The Preacher was warning instead about pseudo-religiosity and showy forms of worship. The Hebrew verb for “be wise” may be rendered “think yourself wise,” and to “be overly righteous” would mean “righteous in your own eyes” (see Prov. 3:7).
- 7:18 The this that Solomon refers to is the true wisdom that comes from the fear of God. The other is the folly of fools. fears God: True piety in reverence and awe is the best protection against either absurdity.
- 7:20 not a just man on earth: This language recalls Solomon’s prayer when he dedicated the temple (1 Kin. 8:46; see also Ps. 14:2–4; 143:2).
- 7:21, 22 take to heart: At times you may find another doing to you the same harmful thing that you have done to someone else.
- 7:23 proved by wisdom: The verb means “to put to the test.”
- 7:24 The theme of wisdom’s inaccessibility also appears in Job 28. The answer to this search for wisdom is that God can find wisdom (see Job 28:23–28).
- 7:26 Wisdom literature is filled with warnings about the loose woman (see Prov. 7). However, this is balanced by the Preacher’s praise for a spouse as a gift from God (9:9).
- 7:28 The truth that all persons are sinners is put in a deliberate exaggeration. Man and woman mean “a good man” and “a good woman.” In the Book of Proverbs, Solomon asked the same question: “Who can find a faithful man?” (Prov 20:6).
- 7:29 Even though God made everything beautiful (3:11) and made human beings upright (see Gen. 1:31), Solomon’s search for the “sum” had failed. Yet humankind’s search for wicked devices and intrigues had succeeded wonderfully.
- 8:1 The idiom “to cause one’s face to shine” (see also the Levitical blessing of Num. 6:25) is an image of a person who is stable. Out of the depths of experience and understanding, that person is able to enjoy life and build up others.
- 8:2, 3 Subjects are obligated by an oath of allegiance to render their obedience to “the powers that be” (Rom. 13:1–5). not . . . stand for an evil thing: Even before a king, evil is to be resisted (Acts 5:29).
- 8:4, 5 What are you doing: This same question is asked of those who pretend to be able to rebuke God (Job 9:12; Dan. 4:32). The rhetorical question amounts to a firm denial of the king’s power.
- 8:6 time and judgment: The phrase means an “appropriate time of judgment.” God will judge everyone; every matter, including judgment, has its set time (12:14).
- 8:8 Since the word spirit is paralleled by the “day of death,” the term spirit in this context means “life force” (3:19).
- 8:10 It was difficult to see the wicked receiving a funeral procession from the city to the cemetery while the righteous were forgotten.
- 8:11 sentence . . . is not executed: There are cases when God postpones punishment, letting the guilty person live longer.
- 8:12, 13 The sharp contrast of the righteous and the wicked in these verses is a hallmark of Hebrew wisdom literature (Ps. 1).
- 8:14 according . . . righteous: Although there seem to be some glaring inequities in this present life, we know that God is working out His good purposes (3:16–4:3; 7:15).
- 8:15 In contrast to the mad search for the meaning of all things is the contentment that a wise, loving God gives to those who will receive His gifts of enjoyment. Here is one of the central themes of Ecclesiastes. eat, drink, and be merry: The Preacher marks the end of the third major section of his book with this refrain. The wicked person (the fool) decides that the best thing to do is to “eat, drink, and be merry” with no thought given to the living God. But the righteous person (the wise) can enjoy life while thinking of God and His good gifts.

8:17 Solomon equates God's work with the activity that takes place on earth. Therefore it should not be surprising that humans cannot fathom God's activity (3:11; 7:25–29; 11:5–8). The Hebrew word translated attempts can also be translated claims or thinks in this context (see 2 Chr. 13:8 where the word is translated think).

9:1 In the hand of God means “in God's control and possession.” love nor hatred: Sometimes in Hebrew two opposites together are a way of saying “everything.” Love and hate are best viewed as words for God's favor and disfavor.

9:2 Some versions translate the word event as “fate” (see 2:14). However, there is no hint here of the power of fate as some people in antiquity believed. The word simply refers to an outcome determined by God.

9:4 In this verse, Solomon uses a proverb that says a living lowly creature is preferable to a dead exalted creature. The point is not that death is the absolute end of all things; instead, the point is that while there is life, there is hope of doing something to the glory of God.

9:5 This, again, is not a flat denial of any hope beyond the grave. The point of view is limited to what can be known strictly from a human point of view, “under the sun.” they have no more reward: The Preacher's point appears to be the same as that in the Gospel of John: One must work while it is still day (that is, while one is still alive), for the night will come when no one can work (John 9:4).

9:7 God meant for all His gifts to be enjoyed. The image of bread and wine is frequently used in Scripture as a symbol of the fact that God gives comfort and cheer to people (Gen. 14:18; 1 Sam. 16:20; 25:18; Neh. 5:15; Lam. 2:12).

9:8 It was difficult in ancient times to keep white garments clean (see the analogy in Is. 1:18). White garments and ointments—oil—were symbols of joy and purity.

9:9 Marriage is the gift of God. “Marriage is honorable” and the marriage bed “undefiled,” instructed the writer of Hebrews (13:4). Marriage is to be cherished (Prov. 5:15–20) and unfaithfulness avoided (Prov. 5:1–14). vain life: That is, life that passes so quickly.

9:10 It is possible that the apostle Paul had this verse in mind when he wrote, “And whatever you do, do it heartily, as to the Lord and not to men” (Col. 3:23). no work . . . in the grave: This affirmation is not a denial of a personal future state after death. Yet in relation to this world, the possibilities of working and learning have ceased. If we plan to do anything to the glory of God in this world, we had better do it while we still have time (John 9:4).

9:11 We would like to think that the best always win, that the deserving are always rewarded. But our experience shows that these expectations are not always realized. not to the swift . . . strong . . . wise . . . men of understanding . . . men of skill: These five assets were enjoyed by individuals. But while some planned and counted on their assets, God in the end determined their lot. Who was speedier than Asahel (2 Sam. 2:22, 23), stronger than Samson (Judg. 16:19), wiser than Solomon (1 Kin. 11:1–25), more discerning than Ahithophel (2 Sam. 16:23; 17:5–14), or more learned than Moses (Ex. 2:11–15; Acts 7:22)? Yet each met his limit and was countered by God.

9:14–18 Here is a parable about how an unstoppable military operation against a small city was prevented by the wisdom of one poor, but wise man. The conclusion is that wisdom is preferable to strength, and should be heeded.

10:1 Just as one fly can ruin a whole batch of ointment, so an ounce of folly will spoil a pound of wisdom.

10:2 In ancient thought, the right hand was the place of honor and favor, while the left hand was the reverse.

10:3 There are times when even a fool acts appropriately; yet he remains a fool.

10:4 conciliation pacifies: This proverb is similar to many ancient sayings that were used to train courtiers and diplomats.

10:6 folly . . . dignity: Things are simply not always what we think they ought to be (9:11); but God is still in control, and He works His good purposes through events we do not understand.

- 10:7 servants on horses: In the ancient Middle East, such a reversal of the normal roles of servant and master was felt to be an outrage against society.
- 10:10 The wise person will sharpen the ax. A person of limited training will have to work harder, as though with a dull ax, than someone wiser whose tools are in order.
- 10:11 a serpent may bite: Along with the preceding verses, the point made here is that an unused skill is wasted.
- 10:12, 13 It is the inability of the fool to choose his words carefully that will bring about his own destruction.
- 10:14 Who . . . after him: This rhetorical question about the fool's lack of knowledge about the future is one of the repeated themes of Ecclesiastes. The same question is asked in 3:22; 6:12; 8:7; in part in 9:12; and especially in the grand conclusion of 12:14.
- 10:15 go to the city: If fools are so untrustworthy in ordinary affairs, how can they be trusted when they express their opinion about the hereafter?
- 10:16 Pity those with leaders so young or inexperienced that they lose control over their areas of responsibility, or who spend their nights banqueting into the early morning.
- 10:17 Useful nobility expresses itself in a sense of responsibility and deference to social order. This verse is an argument for propriety. proper time: Here is Solomon's case for moderation and orderliness.
- 10:18 All forms of laziness bring houses and lives into disrepair.
- 10:19 money answers everything: Rather than being cynical or critical about wealth or the rich, this comment is to be taken in the context of the dissolute nobles (v. 16) and banqueters (v. 17). Wealth for them is only pleasure and a means of having fun.
- 10:20 a bird of the air: We should watch what we say, for we never know who is listening.
- 11:1 Cast your bread upon the waters: Verses 1–6 emphasize the element of risk and uncertainty in commercial and agricultural enterprises. Thus if the preceding proverbs in ch. 10 deal with royalty and leaders, these in vv. 1–6 deal with common people. Men and women must venture forth judiciously if they are ever to realize a gain, even though there is always a certain amount of risk.
- 11:2 seven, and also to eight: This urges us to be generous to as many as possible—and then some.
- 11:3 Regardless of which way a tree falls, someone is going to get the use of its wood, so stop worrying that it did not fall on your side (or even hoping that it will).
- 11:4 will not sow: The person who is so cautious that he must wait for the ideal time before he makes a move is doomed to fail.
- 11:5 Some works of God defy explanation. who makes everything: The concept of God as Creator in Ecclesiastes is not limited to 12:1. The inability of humans to know God's works apart from knowing Him is one of the themes of this book (3:11; 8:17; 9:12).
- 11:6 which will prosper: Do not hold back from getting involved. Let the success or failure of a task rest in the hand of God—but get to the task.
- 11:7 light is sweet: An affirmation of the joy of life, despite all the troubles that the book has presented.
- 11:8 remember the days of darkness: In appreciating the opportunities of life, we must think more seriously about death. This is contrasted with the joy of working while it is still light.
- 11:9 If Solomon was the author of this book and wrote it late in his life, then the point becomes even more clear. He was speaking to young people (see Prov. 1:8; 2:1; 3:1), encouraging them to learn the lessons that he had learned over the course of his extraordinary life. Walk in the ways of your heart: This verse is not an invitation to live sinfully in sensual pleasure (as Num. 15:39 describes). Instead, it urges young people to enjoy themselves completely while not forgetting that God will review the quality of their life (3:17; 12:14).
- 11:10 Tragically, youth does not last; it too passes like a vapor. We all seem to discover that “we get old too soon and smart too late.”
- 12:1–8 Most interpreters have argued that this poem is an allegory of old age. This is the view advocated here. Other views include: (1) a description of a winter's day as a metaphor of old age; (2) a description of people's reaction to a fearful thunderstorm; (3) the figure of a ruined house representing the failure of human efforts; and (4) the decay of a house representing death and human frailty.

12:2 The person is losing his sight.

12:3 Verses 3–6 list the bodily infirmities that increasingly hinder an older person from serving God. If the house stands for the aging body, then the keepers are the arms and hands. strong men bow down: The legs are bent in feebleness and the knees cannot be depended on for support. grinders cease: The teeth, now fewer than before, cannot chew the food as well as they once did. those that look through the windows grow dim: The eyes begin to lose their sight.

12:4 doors are shut in the streets: Just as the jaws of Leviathan are called the “doors of his face” (Job 41:14), so the lips and jaws are possibly intended here. sound of grinding is low: A depiction of toothless old age when eating only soft foods makes little or no noise. daughters of music are brought low: The ability to hear—and thus the ability to make and enjoy music—waned.

12:5 afraid of height: Things that used to be a regular part of life now become threatening. almond tree blossoms: Hair turns white. grasshopper is a burden: This may refer to the halting step of the elderly as they hobble along on their canes. desire fails: This is generally understood as a reference to a vanishing sexual desire. Then comes death: eternal home.

12:6 Some suggest that silver cord refers to the spinal cord. golden bowl is broken: This may refer to the brain. pitcher shattered at the fountain: One suggestion is that this is a failing heart. wheel broken at the well: The system of veins and arteries radiating out from the heart might have appeared to the ancients like the spokes on a wheel. An alternative explanation of this verse is that each of the four images represents death. That is, there is no physical representation intended in these images as in those of vv. 3–5. Instead, this verse describes the destruction of four significant objects—a demonstration of the finality of this life.

12:7 dust will return: These words refer clearly to the universal fate of the descendants of Adam and Eve. spirit will return: This is a clear allusion to Gen. 2:7. The term spirit is the same used in earlier passages (3:19, 21; 8:8).

12:8 The refrain of vanity—the brevity of life—is here repeated. It is possible that the book originally ended with these words.

12:9 Early on in his book, the Preacher speaks of his pursuit of wisdom (1:12–2:26). It is possible that he speaks of himself here in the third person (as in 1:1, 2). Probably it was an editor under the guiding hand of God who wrote these evaluations of Solomon, much as Joshua or some other editor wrote an evaluation of Moses under the influence of God's Spirit (Deut. 34). pondered . . . sought out . . . set in order: The three verbs that describe Solomon's activity may also be translated “weighed . . . examined . . . and arranged.”

12:10 The Preacher devotes special care to write acceptable words—pleasant words, words of grace—and words of truth. The truth referred to here is the truth from God.

12:11 Just as an ox goad prods an animal in the right direction, so will the words of this book when they are properly understood. well-driven nails: The nails, or “pegs,” referred to here are the same as in 2 Chr. 3:9; Jer. 10:4. These are hooks in tents where families hung the clothes and pots needed for everyday life. Here they refer to mental hooks giving stability and perspective to life. by one Shepherd: Kings were typically compared to shepherds, and Solomon is claiming that the source of his ideas is God, the Shepherd of Israel (Ps. 80:1).

12:12 Many other books may weary their readers. Careful study of Ecclesiastes will have the opposite effect as it instructs, warns, and admonishes its readers.

12:13 To fear God is one of the major themes of this book and of wisdom literature in the OT. To fear God is to respond to Him in awe, reverence, and wonder, to serve Him in purity of action, and to shun evil and any worship of anything else in His universe. keep His commandments: The commandments of the Law are in view here. Jesus summed them up as to “love the LORD your God” and “your neighbor as yourself” (Matt. 22:34–40). man’s all: We are whole or complete only when we fear God and obey His commandments. What profit is there in living? If we follow what this book has said, we will have a relationship with God and find life in Him.

12:14 judgment: This same teaching is echoed by the apostle Paul in 2 Cor. 5:10. Death is not the end. All of life will be reviewed by our righteous Lord (see at 3:17). Life must be lived through faith with the values of the eternal God in view.

Introduction

The Song of Solomon is a moving love story between a young country girl and King Solomon. In delicate poetry, the lovers express intense passion and deep longing for each other. The young girl compares her love for her husband to the anticipation of a frantic search, while Solomon likens his bride's beauty to picturesque gardens and delicious fruit. Yet even in this eloquent expression of the passion between a bride and bridegroom, there is an exhortation to remain sexually pure before marriage (2:7). In this way, the book celebrates human sexuality within the context of marriage.

The book has not always been understood in this way. Jewish scholars around the time of the birth of Christ interpreted the book allegorically, stating that it describes the love of God for Israel. Similarly, some Christians have taught that the book speaks of the mystical relationship of the Lord Jesus Christ and His bride, the church.

However, one does not need to get into allegorical meanings to understand this book. The Song of Solomon celebrates the beauty and intimacy of married love in a narrative poem. It teaches that a lasting marriage requires dedication, commitment, and strong loyalty between husband and wife. The Song also presents an idealized picture of how human love can be expressed under God's blessing. This is a very important issue. Some critics have claimed that Christianity's standards for marriage ignore or undervalue sexual relationships. But the Song of Solomon refutes this. It reiterates the biblical admonition against sex outside of marriage, but it also affirms that God not only approves of, but also encourages, sexual pleasure within marriage.

Author The author of the Song of Solomon is Solomon, the son of David and the third king of Israel. He is named as the author and his name appears seven times in the book (1:1, 5; 3:7, 9, 11; 8:11, 12). Even so, some have argued that the references to Solomon may be only a stylistic device and the author may have been from a later period. The arguments for this are inconclusive. But the fact that Solomon was known for his wisdom and poetry (see 1 Kin. 4:29–34) partially substantiates his authorship of this book.

Literary Form Perhaps nowhere in the Bible is the literary culture of the Middle East more apparent than in this book. The genre or literary form of the Song of Solomon is unique in the Bible. It is a lyric idyll, a type of love song. As in the case of the Book of Job, the Song of Solomon reveals its treasures to the patient reader who approaches the book on its own terms, searching for and meditating on its meaning. The form of the lyric idyll displays two features. The first is that speeches and events do not necessarily follow in chronological order. At times the story line remains suspended while the audience views scenes from earlier or yet untold incidents.

A second feature of the lyric idyll is the use of the chorus. In addition to the two characters that carry the story line—the Shulamite and King Solomon, a group of women interrupt certain scenes with brief musical speeches or warnings. Solomon uses the chorus to make transitions from one scene to another, as well as to add emphasis to important themes.

Historical Background The Song of Solomon retells the romance between King Solomon, the richest king ever to rule Israel, and his beloved bride, who came from a small village in the region of Galilee. Solomon owned vineyards all over the nation. One was close to Baal Hamon in the northernmost part of Galilee near the foothills of the mountains of Lebanon. On one of his visits to this vineyard, Solomon met a young woman. Strangely we never learn her name. She is called simply the Shulamite. For some time he pursued her and made periodic visits to her country home to see her. Finally, he proposed. The Shulamite gave much thought to whether she really loved Solomon and could be happy in the palace of a king. Finally she accepted.

Theology If the Bible is the book about God, then one may well ask what a narrative about human sexuality has to do with theology. This is an even more potent question when one observes that God is never mentioned in the entire text (except possibly in 8:6) nor are there any references to prayer, worship, or piety. In this respect it bears similarities to the Book of Esther, which also does not mention God. Nevertheless, Esther is a story of the redemption of God's people and includes episodes of prayer, fasting, and thanksgiving. Such themes are notably absent from Solomon's poetic story, making it unique among the books of the Bible.

To resolve this difficulty, it is important to remember that the Bible not only describes who God is and what God does, it also tells us what God desires for His people. The Song of Solomon provides an example of how God created male and female to live in happiness and fulfillment. People are created as sexual beings. It would be wrong to suggest that the full experience of our humanity is impossible apart from sexual union in marriage, since this would disqualify the widowed, divorced, and the celibate—including our Savior who was celibate. At the same time, God ordained marriage from the beginning of creation: Man and woman were to become one flesh (Gen. 2:25).

Because of its emphasis on human love, this book presents an extraordinary variety of expressions for love, perhaps the richest selection in all Hebrew Scripture. But within this celebration of love, the book condemns unchaste relations outside of marriage—and in particular, sexual experimentation before marriage. Indeed, this book may contain the Bible's strongest argument for chastity before marriage. Ironically because of its explicit language, ancient and modern Jewish sages forbade men to read the book before they were 30 (and presumably kept women from reading it at all). We cannot ignore the sexual content of the book, but we can appreciate the context in which it is placed—a godly marriage. The Song of Solomon is necessary reading not only for the married, but for young people who want to understand God's design for marriage.

Christ in the Scriptures

Just as some of the psalms have a contemporary application as well as a future-oriented one, so the entire Song of Solomon has three levels of fulfillment. The encounters and affectionate exchanges between Solomon and his bride are passionate poetry documenting human love. But the king also illustrates God's love for the people of God over whom he rules. And Solomon's ornamental language also prefigures the delight and joy Jesus has for His Bride and His unconditional commitment to His church. In the NT, the followers of Jesus are seen as the personified object of His love (2 Cor. 11:2; Eph. 5:23–25; Rev. 19:7–9; 21:9).

The Shulamite

Rightly do they love you.

⁵I am dark, but lovely, O daughters of Jerusalem,
Like the tents of Kedar,
Like the curtains of Solomon.

⁶Do not look upon me, because I am dark, Because the sun has ⁴tanned me.

My mother's sons were angry with me;
They made me the keeper of the vineyards,
But my own ^fvineyard I have not kept.

(To Her Beloved)

⁷Tell me, O you whom I love, Where you feed your flock,
Where you make it rest at noon.
For why should I be as one who ⁵veils herself By the flocks of your companions?

The Beloved

⁸If you do not know, ^gO fairest among women, ⁶Follow in the footsteps of the flock, And feed your little goats
Beside the shepherds' tents.

⁹I have compared you, ^hmy love, ⁱTo my filly among Pharaoh's chariots.

¹⁰Your cheeks are lovely with ornaments, Your neck with chains of gold.

The Daughters of Jerusalem

¹¹We will make ⁷you ornaments of gold With studs of silver.

The Shulamite

¹²While the king is at his table, My ⁸spikenard sends forth its fragrance.

¹³A bundle of myrrh is my beloved to me, That lies all night between my breasts.

¹⁴My beloved is to me a cluster of henna blooms
In the vineyards of En Gedi.

The Beloved

^{15k}Behold, you are fair, ⁹my love!

Behold, you are fair!

You have dove's eyes.

The Shulamite

¹⁶Behold, you are ¹handsome, my beloved!

Yes, pleasant!

Also our ¹⁰bed is green.

¹⁷The beams of our houses are cedar, And our rafters of fir.

Song of Solomon 2

¹I am the rose of Sharon, And the lily of the valleys.

The Beloved

²Like a lily among thorns, So is my love among the daughters.

The Shulamite

³Like an apple tree among the trees of the woods, So is my beloved among the sons.
I sat down in his shade with great delight,
And ^ahis fruit was sweet to my taste.

The Shulamite to the Daughters of Jerusalem

⁴He brought me to the ¹banqueting house, And his banner over me was love.
⁵Sustain me with cakes of raisins, Refresh me with apples,
For I am lovesick.
^{6b}His left hand is under my head, And his right hand embraces me.
^{7c}²I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, By the gazelles or by the does of the field,
Do not stir up nor awaken love
Until it pleases.

The Beloved's Request

The Shulamite

⁸The voice of my beloved!

Behold, he comes

Leaping upon the mountains,

Skiping upon the hills.

^{9d}My beloved is like a gazelle or a young stag.

Behold, he stands behind our wall;

He is looking through the windows,

Gazing through the lattice.

¹⁰My beloved spoke, and said to me: "Rise up, my love, my fair one,

And come away.

¹¹For lo, the winter is past, The rain is over and gone.

¹²The flowers appear on the earth; The time of singing has come,

And the voice of the turtledove

Is heard in our land.

¹³The fig tree puts forth her green figs, And the vines with the tender grapes

Give a good smell.

Rise up, my love, my fair one,

And come away!

¹⁴"O my ^edove, in the clefts of the rock, In the secret places of the cliff,

Let me see your ³face, ^fLet me hear your voice; For your voice is sweet,

And your face is lovely."

Her Brothers

¹⁵Catch us ^gthe foxes, The little foxes that spoil the vines,
For our vines have tender grapes.

The Shulamite

^{16h}My beloved is mine, and I am his.
He feeds his flock among the lilies.

(To Her Beloved)

¹⁷ⁱUntil the day breaks And the shadows flee away,
Turn, my beloved,
And be ^jlike a gazelle Or a young stag
Upon the mountains of ⁴Bether.

Song of Solomon 3

A Troubled Night

The Shulamite

¹By ^anight on my bed I sought the one I love; I sought him, but I did not find him.

²“I will rise now,” I said,
“And go about the city;
In the streets and in the squares
I will seek the one I love.”
I sought him, but I did not find him.

^{3b}The watchmen who go about the city found me; I said,
“Have you seen the one I love?”

⁴Scarcely had I passed by them, When I found the one I love.
I held him and would not let him go,
Until I had brought him to the ^chouse of my mother, And into the ¹chamber of her who conceived me.

^{5d}I ²charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, By the gazelles or by the does of the field,
Do not stir up nor awaken love
Until it pleases.

The Coming of Solomon

The Shulamite

^{6e}Who is this coming out of the wilderness Like pillars of smoke,

Perfumed with myrrh and frankincense,
With all the merchant's fragrant powders?

⁷Behold, it is Solomon's couch, With sixty valiant men around it,

Of the valiant of Israel.

⁸They all hold swords,
Being expert in war.

Every man has his sword on his thigh
Because of fear in the night.

⁹Of the wood of Lebanon Solomon the King

Made himself a ³palanquin: ¹⁰He made its pillars of silver, Its support of gold,

Its seat of purple,

Its interior paved with love

By the daughters of Jerusalem.

¹¹Go forth, O daughters of Zion, And see King Solomon with the crown

With which his mother crowned him

On the day of his wedding,

The day of the gladness of his heart.

Song of Solomon 4

The Beloved

¹Behold, ^ayou are fair, my love!
Behold, you are fair!
You have dove's eyes behind your veil.
Your hair is like a ^bflock of goats, Going down from Mount Gilead.

^{2c}Your teeth are like a flock of shorn sheep
Which have come up from the washing,
Every one of which bears twins,
And none is ¹barren among them.

³Your lips are like a strand of scarlet, And your mouth is lovely.

^dYour temples behind your veil Are like a piece of pomegranate.

^{4e}Your neck is like the tower of David, Built ^ffor an armory,
On which hang a thousand ²bucklers, All shields of mighty men.

^{5g}Your two breasts are like two fawns, Twins of a gazelle,
Which feed among the lilies.

^{6h}Until the day breaks And the shadows flee away,
I will go my way to the mountain of myrrh
And to the hill of frankincense.

⁷ⁱYou are all fair, my love, And there is no spot in you.

⁸Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse, With me from Lebanon.

Look from the top of Amana,
From the top of Senir ^jand Hermon, From the lions' dens,
From the mountains of the leopards.

⁹You have ravished my heart, My sister, my spouse;

You have ravished my heart
With one look of your eyes,
With one link of your necklace.

¹⁰How fair is your love, My sister, my spouse!

^kHow much better than wine is your love, And the ³scent of your perfumes Than all spices!

¹¹Your lips, O my spouse, Drip as the honeycomb;

^lHoney and milk are under your tongue; And the fragrance of your garments

Is ^mlike the fragrance of Lebanon.

¹²A garden ⁴enclosed Is my sister, my spouse,

A spring shut up,

A fountain sealed.

¹³Your plants are an orchard of pomegranates With pleasant fruits,

Fragrant henna with spikenard,

¹⁴Spikenard and saffron,

Calamus and cinnamon,

With all trees of frankincense,

Myrrh and aloes,

With all the chief spices—

¹⁵A fountain of gardens,

A well of ⁿliving waters, And streams from Lebanon.

The Shulamite

¹⁶Awake, O north wind,

And come, O south!

Blow upon my garden,

That its spices may flow out.

^oLet my beloved come to his garden And eat its pleasant
^pfruits. Word Studies: beloved

Song of Solomon 5

The Beloved

¹I ^ahave come to my garden, my ^bsister, my spouse; I have gathered my myrrh with my spice;
^cI have eaten my honeycomb with my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk.

(To His Friends)

Eat, O ^dfriends!
Drink, yes, drink deeply,
O beloved ones!

The Shulamite's Troubled Evening

The Shulamite

²I sleep, but my heart is awake; It is the voice of my beloved!

^eHe knocks, saying,

“Open for me, my sister, ¹my love, My dove, my perfect one;

For my head is covered with dew,

My ²locks with the drops of the night.”

³I have taken off my robe;

How can I put it on again?

I have washed my feet;

How can I ³defile them?

⁴My beloved put his hand

By the ⁴latch of the door,

And my heart yearned for him.

⁵I arose to open for my beloved,

And my hands dripped with myrrh,

My fingers with liquid myrrh,

On the handles of the lock.

⁶I opened for my beloved, But my beloved had turned away and was gone.

My ⁵heart leaped up when he spoke.

^fI sought him, but I could not find him; I called him, but he gave me no answer.

^{7g}The watchmen who went about the city found me.

They struck me, they wounded me;

The keepers of the walls
Took my veil away from me.

⁸I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, If you find my beloved,

That you tell him I am lovesick!

The Daughters of Jerusalem

⁹What is your beloved More than another beloved,
^hO fairest among women?
What is your beloved
More than another beloved,
That you so ⁶charge us?

The Shulamite

¹⁰My beloved is white and ruddy, ⁷Chief among ten thousand.

¹¹His head is like the finest gold; His locks are wavy,
And black as a raven.

¹²His eyes are like doves By the rivers of waters,
Washed with milk,
And ⁸fitly set.

¹³His cheeks are like a bed of spices, Banks of scented herbs.
His lips are lilies,
Dripping liquid myrrh.

¹⁴His hands are rods of gold Set with beryl.
His body is carved ivory
Inlaid with sapphires.

¹⁵His legs are pillars of marble Set on bases of fine gold.
His countenance is like Lebanon,
Excellent as the cedars.

¹⁶His mouth is most sweet, Yes, he is altogether lovely.
This is my beloved,
And this is my friend,
O daughters of Jerusalem!

Song of Solomon 6

The Daughters of Jerusalem

¹Where has your beloved gone, ^aO fairest among women?
Where has your beloved turned aside,
That we may seek him with you?

The Shulamite

²My beloved has gone to his ^bgarden, To the beds of spices,
To feed his flock in the gardens,
And to gather lilies.

^{3c}I am my beloved's, And my beloved is mine.
He feeds his flock among the lilies.

Praise of the Shulamite's Beauty

The Beloved

⁴O my love, you are as beautiful as Tirzah, Lovely as Jerusalem,

Awesome as an army with banners!

⁵Turn your eyes away from me,

For they have ¹overcome me.

Your hair is ^dlike a flock of goats Going down from Gilead.

^{6e}Your teeth are like a flock of sheep Which have come up from the washing;

Every one bears twins,

And none is ²barren among them.

^{7f}Like a piece of pomegranate Are your temples behind your veil.

⁸There are sixty queens And eighty concubines,
And ^gvirgins without number.

⁹My dove, my ^hperfect one, Is the only one,

The only one of her mother,

The favorite of the one who bore her.

The daughters saw her
And called her blessed,
The queens and the concubines,
And they praised her.

¹⁰Who is she who looks forth as the morning, Fair as the moon,
Clear as the sun,
ⁱAwesome as an army with banners?

The Shulamite

¹¹I went down to the garden of nuts To see the verdure of the valley,
^jTo see whether the vine had budded And the pomegranates had bloomed.
¹²Before I was even aware,

My soul had made me
As the chariots of ³my noble people.

The Beloved and His Friends

¹³Return, return, O Shulamite; Return, return, that we may look upon you!

The Shulamite

What would you see in the Shulamite—
As it were, the dance of ⁴the two camps?

Song of Solomon 7

Expressions of Praise

The Beloved

- ¹How beautiful are your feet in sandals, ^aO prince's daughter!
The curves of your thighs are like jewels,
The work of the hands of a skillful workman.
- ²Your navel is a rounded goblet; It lacks no ¹blended beverage.
Your waist is a heap of wheat
Set about with lilies.
- ^{3b}Your two breasts are like two fawns, Twins of a gazelle.
- ^{4c}Your neck is like an ivory tower, Your eyes like the pools in Heshbon
By the gate of Bath Rabbim.
Your nose is like the tower of Lebanon
Which looks toward Damascus.
- ⁵Your head crowns you like Mount Carmel, And the hair of your head is like purple;
A king is held captive by your tresses.
- ⁶How fair and how pleasant you are, O love, with your delights!
- ⁷This stature of yours is like a palm tree, And your breasts like its clusters.
- ⁸I said, "I will go up to the palm tree, I will take hold of its branches."
Let now your breasts be like clusters of the vine,
The fragrance of your ²breath like apples, ⁹And the roof of your mouth like the best wine.

The Shulamite

The wine goes down smoothly for my beloved,

³Moving gently the ⁴lips of sleepers.

^{10d}I am my beloved's, And ^ehis desire is toward me.

¹¹Come, my beloved,

Let us go forth to the field;

Let us lodge in the villages.

¹²Let us get up early to the vineyards; Let us ^fsee if the vine has budded, Whether the grape blossoms are open,

And the pomegranates are in bloom.

There I will give you my love.

¹³The ^gmandrakes give off a fragrance, And at our gates ^hare pleasant fruits,

All manner, new and old,

Which I have laid up for you, my beloved.

Song of Solomon 8

¹Oh, that you were like my brother, Who nursed at my mother's breasts!

If I should find you outside,

I would kiss you;

I would not be despised.

²I would lead you and bring you Into the ^ahouse of my mother, She who used to instruct me.

I would cause you to drink of ^bspiced wine, Of the juice of my pomegranate.

(To the Daughters of Jerusalem)

^{3c}His left hand is under my head, And his right hand embraces me.

awaken love

Until it pleases.

Love Renewed in Lebanon

A Relative

^{5e}Who is this coming up from the wilderness, Leaning upon her beloved?

I awakened you under the apple tree.
There your mother brought you forth;
There she who bore you brought you forth.

The Shulamite to Her Beloved

⁶*f*Set me as a seal upon your heart, As a seal upon your arm;
For love is as strong as death,
^gJealousy as ¹cruel as ²the grave; Its flames are flames of fire,
³A most vehement flame.

⁷Many waters cannot quench love, Nor can the floods drown
it.

^hIf a man would give for love All the wealth of his house,
It would be utterly despised.

The Shulamite's Brothers

⁸*f*We have a little sister, And she has no breasts.
What shall we do for our sister
In the day when she is spoken for?

⁹If she is a wall, We will build upon her
A battlement of silver;
And if she is a door,

We will enclose her
With boards of cedar.

The Shulamite

¹⁰I am a wall, And my breasts like towers;
Then I became in his eyes
As one who found peace.

¹¹Solomon had a vineyard at Baal Hamon; ^jHe leased the vineyard to keepers; Everyone was to bring for its fruit
A thousand silver coins.

(To Solomon)

¹²My own vineyard is before me.
You, O Solomon, may have a thousand,
And those who tend its fruit two hundred.

The Beloved

¹³You who dwell in the gardens, The companions listen for your voice—^kLet me hear it!

The Shulamite

¹⁴Make⁴ haste, my beloved, And ^mbe like a gazelle Or a young stag
On the mountains of spices.

Annotations for Song of Solomon

- 1:1 Like the superlative expressions “holy of holies” or “king of kings,” song of songs means “the loveliest of songs.” which is Solomon’s: There are two principal speakers in this book, the woman (the Shulamite) and the man (Solomon). Even though Solomon wrote this book, interestingly enough the point of view presented is largely that of his bride.
- 1:2 This prologue to the book forms the emotional setting for all that follows. love: The Hebrew noun used here means sexual love, as it clearly does in Ezek. 16:8 (also Prov. 7:18; Ezek. 23:17). This is the Hebrew word that most approximates the Greek word eros. In the Song of Solomon, this plural word (a mark of intensity) speaks of divinely blessed lovemaking (used also in v. 4; 4:10; 7:12; compare 5:1).
- 1:3 ointments: It was customary in biblical times to rub the body with fragrant ointments (oils) after a bath in preparation for a festive occasion (Ruth 3:3). Your name: The Shulamite speaks of her beloved’s reputation as akin to a lovely aroma; he was an object of desire to young women everywhere. The term virgins is the same word used at Is. 7:14. The word means women of marriageable age (they are the same as the “daughters of Jerusalem” in v. 5). love: Here the common Hebrew verb meaning “to love” is used of romantic feelings (as in Gen. 24:67); in other passages this verb means to choose someone (an act of the will; see Deut. 6:5). Thus this Hebrew verb shares some, but not all, of the meanings of the Greek verb agapao.
- 1:4 The complexity of the interchanges in this book are illustrated in this verse. The headings help sort out the speakers. The king: This is Solomon; yet aside from the title (v. 1), he is not identified by name as a protagonist until 3:7, 9, 11 (his name in v. 5 is part of a descriptive phrase). chambers: This means the bridal chamber. The verse ends with the thoughts of the young woman as she gazes at her lover: Rightly do they love you employs the verb for love found in v. 3, indicating romantic feelings.
- 1:5 The Shulamite compares her dark coloring, acquired from long hours working in the vineyards (v. 6) with the lighter complexion of the city maidens. The point here is her class and station in life. Unlike the young women of the court in Jerusalem who had been raised in comfort and conditions of ease, this woman had worked as a field hand under the blazing sun. but lovely: She knows that her beauty is not diminished by her more rugged manner of living. Her groom assures her that this is truly the case (v. 8). The rare term lovely is used to describe physical beauty in this book (see v. 10; 2:14; 4:3; 6:4; compare the word in v. 8); in the Psalms this word speaks of the beauty of true worship to the living God (Ps. 33:1; 147:1). O daughters of Jerusalem: These are women who serve as the attendants of the bride. These woman also serve as the chorus in the book. They are the same as the “virgins” of v. 3.
- 1:6 Her own vineyard refers to her appearance. Unlike the beautiful women of the royal court, the Shulamite had not had the lifestyle or the resources to take much time for her appearance. Still, it was she who swept away the king’s heart. The Shulamite uses the word vineyard again with a different twist in 8:12.
- 1:7 you whom I love: A more literal rendering might be, “whom my soul (my inner being) loves.” Here the young woman mentally addresses Solomon, her husband. She pictures him as the shepherd of Israel. one who veils herself: Solomon, as king, was busy with affairs of state. The young bride does not want to veil herself as a prostitute would in order to get his attention, nor does she want to be left alone. She desires to be his true companion.
- 1:8 If you do not know . . . feed your little goats: It would be better if she returned to the borders of Lebanon and the life of the farm rather than live alone and anxious in Solomon’s palace. The point of this verse is that one should always count the cost of marriage to a particular person before the marriage. O fairest among women: The term fairest is the usual Hebrew word for “beautiful.”
- 1:9 Here is yet another term for love in the book, the rarer word meaning “dear companion” (compare at vv. 2, 3). my filly: In Solomon's time the horse was the companion of kings. Solomon loved horses, particularly those from Egypt. Eventually he had a stable of 12,000 horses with 1,400 chariots (1 Kin. 10:26).

1:11 ornaments: These are kind words from the women of the court (see 1:4). Their kindness is remarkable, since each of these women may have hoped to be chosen by the king (as v. 3 indicates).

1:12 his table: That is, the setting of the wedding banquet.

1:13, 14 This verse refers to an oriental custom for a woman to wear a small bag of myrrh, a perfumed ointment, around her neck at night. All the next day a lovely fragrance would linger about her. The young woman says that beginning that night, it would be her husband who would lie with her. my beloved: Here the noun beloved is related to the word translated "love" in v. 2, referring to sexual love. En Gedi: David, Solomon's father, had found refreshment and protection from the vindictive king Saul in this oasis on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea (1 Sam. 24).

1:15 Behold, you are fair: The word fair means "beautiful" (as in v. 8). my love: This term is used for the first time in the book; it means "dear friend." dove's eyes: The idea is purity, innocence and beauty (see 4:1; 5:12; compare 2:14; 5:2).

1:16 The word handsome used here is the masculine counterpart of the term translated "fair" in v. 15.

1:17 beams of our houses are cedar: Houses may mean "grand house" or "mansion." As the Shulamite lies on their wedding bed (v. 16), she observes the marvelous cedar beams above her head. The opulence of Solomon's personal and public buildings in Jerusalem is well documented (1 Kin. 7:1–12).

2:2 Solomon takes the young bride's words (v. 1) comparing herself to a simple flower and assures her that, beside her, the fancy women of the city are but thorns.

2:3 The apple tree and the raisin cakes (v. 5) are symbols for sexual passion in ancient love songs.

2:4 the banqueting house: The literal meaning of the phrase is "the house of wine," used because of the role that wine plays not only in feasting, but especially in weddings in biblical cultures (1:2). In the Bible, wine is a symbol of joy (see Ps. 104:15) and the drinking of wine is associated with joyful occasions. his banner: This may be the same term as used in Num. 1:52, meaning "standard" or "flag." Even today, Jewish weddings take place under a "banner" or covering. love: This is the first use in the book of the common noun for love related to the verb in v. 3. This noun corresponds somewhat to the well-known Greek noun agape, which refers to a self-sacrificial love for others (1 Cor. 13).

2:5, 6 These verses describe the joy of sexual expression between a husband and wife. raisins . . . apples: Ancient symbols of sexual passion (see v. 3). lovesick: These are the words of one overwhelmed with love.

2:7 Here the Shulamite speaks to her attendants in their virginity and entreats them (I charge you) to maintain their sexual purity until marriage (see 3:5; 8:4). By the gazelles . . . does: She beseeches the young women by all things that are beautiful. love: This is the noun used in v. 4, demonstrating that this word may also be used of sexual passion. The association of this charge with the description of sexual intimacy in v. 6 suggests that the warning is against awakening such desires before it pleases—that is, at the proper and appropriate time within the bounds of marriage. While the Book of Proverbs frequently exhorts young men to live in sexual purity (see Prov. 7), the Song of Solomon frequently addresses its warnings to young women.

2:8, 9 leaping . . . skipping: This is the young bride's imaginative way of recalling the joy she experienced at her husband's arrival. The same is true of her words for him: gazelle . . . stag, animals that symbolize virility. windows . . . lattice: That is, Solomon was looking at her through an opening in the wall.

2:10 my love: A term of endearment meaning "my dear friend" (see 1:15). my fair one: Solomon describes his bride as "beautiful" (see 1:8, 15).

2:11–13 the winter is past: By this Solomon means that the time of joy has come; it is the summer of their love. Solomon may have come at a time of great beauty in the fields and forests where the young woman lived; he uses the beauty of creation to describe the ripeness of time for their love.

2:14 Solomon's great find in this young woman is occasioned in part by her shy charm. in the clefts: Solomon speaks of the Shulamite using a figure of speech describing her isolated home in the mountains.

2:15 The Shulamite's brothers called on Solomon to catch them the foxes. Many times they had seen little foxes creep into the vineyards they tended and destroy the roots by gnawing on them. The vine of the budding love of the couple was tender and needed to be protected from these "little foxes," which symbolize the problems of life that may gnaw away at a relationship.

2:16 My beloved is mine, and I am his: The expression describes the mutual intimacy that a married couple experiences. Both belong to each other (see 6:3; compare 7:10).

2:17 Until the day breaks: Here the woman wishes the king to leave for the night. The book is pervaded with the sense of doing what is right at the appropriate time. Here, she wishes him to flee like a gazelle. Later, she will want him to rush to her like one (8:14).

3:1 on my bed: This is a dream that took place before they were married. The young woman was becoming concerned about what she would be getting into in this royal marriage.

3:2, 3 Her frantic search for her beloved is initially unsuccessful. Twice in these verses she describes him as the one I love. In each case, the wording is "the one whom my soul (or my inner being) loves."

3:4 At last she finds him, using the same phrasing (the one I love) of vv. 2, 3. In her dream she takes him to her mother's house. That is, the worry of his absence is intolerable to her; she wants him to move back with her to her familiar home and lifestyle.

3:5 Do not stir up: Again there is a strong warning against premarital sex. People should not allow sexual passion to stir before they have gotten to know each other in other ways (2:8–17), until they have worked out the problems of their relationship (the "little foxes," see 2:15–17), and until they have counted the costs of marriage (3:1–4).

3:6 Who is this coming: Contrast the bold, royal journey here with the earlier, playful approach in 2:8. pillars of smoke: This is language reminiscent of a divine visitation (see Ex. 19:18).

Perfumed: The precious ointments here are marks of luxury and royalty; later, on the woman, these elements would be symbols of love (4:6).

3:7, 8 The couch was a sedan chair with poles projecting from the front and back so that a person could be carried by several bearers (vv. 9, 10). The Shulamite was being carried to the wedding and to her groom on Solomon's own couch. valiant men: The term describes war heroes, as v. 8 explains. fear: That is, these warriors were prepared for any threat.

3:9, 10 Apparently Solomon had ordered this couch (vv. 7, 8) to be designed and built especially for the wedding. To the Shulamite, the couch's rich ornamentation of silver and gold is less significant than the fact that the couch represents Solomon's love and care for her (2:4).

3:11 O daughters of Zion: These are the Daughters of Jerusalem (see 1:5). And see: For a wedding to be recognized in ancient Israel, it had to be a public event. Such a day has always been regarded as a day of gladness (Ps. 19:5). the crown: Solomon's royal symbol was appropriately worn at this wedding.

4:1 Solomon lavishly praises his bride's great beauty. He uses verbal symbols of loveliness to paint a picture of the breathtaking charm of the Shulamite. Dove's eyes (2:14) are a picture of purity, innocence, and beauty (as in 1:15). The bride's veil would have covered the rest of her face, leaving only her beautiful eyes to be seen (see at 2:14; see also 5:7). The king compared the movement of her flowing hair to the graceful movement of a flock of goats in their descent down from Mount Gilead.

4:2–5 The king rhapsodizes on the perfection of his bride's teeth, her lips and facial features, her neck, and at last her breasts. Scarlet (v. 3) describes luxuriance and beauty; the pomegranate speaks of sweetness; the term lovely is the same rare word used first in 1:5. The tower of David (v. 4) pictures strength and grace; the fawns (v. 5) have exquisite loveliness.

- 4:6 Until the day breaks: The couple's first night together was a precious time (see 8:14). the mountain of myrrh . . . the hill of frankincense: These playful names again give us a glimpse into their passionate love for each other (see 1:13, 14; 2:6).
- 4:7 fair: The king has used this term for beauty before (v. 1). However, the difference here is in the word all. Now he rhapsodizes on how perfect his bride is; every part of her is attractive.
- 4:8 These words demonstrate Solomon's sensitivity to his new bride's emotions at this point. He calls her mind back from thoughts afar off. He says, "Come back with me." His use of the word spouse for the first time is appropriate here on their wedding bed. See also vv. 9, 10, 11, 12; 5:1.
- 4:9 My sister, my spouse: This strange pairing of words was based on the idea that in marriage a couple became "related." The woman was dignified as a member of the king's family.
- 4:10 your love . . . your love: That is, erotic love.
- 4:11 lips . . . Honey and milk: The sweetness of his bride's kisses are like food to him (see 5:1; compare 1:2).
- 4:12 spring . . . fountain: Solomon evokes thoughts of refreshment and delight. His use of the words enclosed . . . shut up . . . sealed indicate, in a poetic manner, his wife's virginity on their wedding night. This was the treasure she brought to him, and which she adjured the other young women in the court to maintain for their wedding nights as well (2:7).
- 4:13–15 pleasant fruits: These verses expand the images of the garden and the fountain for sexual love from v. 12.
- 4:16 The bride is now ready to accept her lover for the first time to her garden. She calls on the wind to blow through. That is, she is ready to make love to her husband for the first time.

Word Studies

beloved

(Heb. dod) (4:16; 1 Sam. 14:50; Prov. 7:18; Is. 5:1) Strong's #1730

In Hebrew love poetry, dod is a term of endearment used for a male loved one, usually translated beloved (Is. 5:1). The writer of the Song of Solomon uses this word 32 times. The name David is derived from dod and carries the same sense, meaning “Beloved One.” When dod is used in narrative, it means “uncle” or another close male relative (1 Sam. 14:50).

Go to the List of Word Studies

- 5:1 drunk my wine: This verse is a necessary part of the preceding chapter. At the conclusion of their lovemaking, the groom speaks of his complete satisfaction in his beautiful bride.
- 5:2–7 I sleep: These words begin a section (vv. 2–8) that most likely is another dream sequence (see 3:1–5). The bride dreams that her lover is coming to her, but she has already washed, removed her robe, and gotten into bed (v. 3). She finally goes to the door to let him in, but he is gone. Her sorrow at this drives her into the city to search for him. The watchmen find her and are hostile toward her.
- 5:8, 9 The bride asks the daughters of Jerusalem to help her in her search. But they question what is so special about the one for whom she seeks.
- 5:10–16 The bride responds to the question of v. 9 with a poem extolling the handsomeness of her husband, beginning with his ruddy complexion and ending with the sweetness of his mouth.
- 6:1 The chorus members now join in the search. In the dream sequence, we suspect that the chorus is well aware of his location. It is only the bride who needs to discover his whereabouts.
- 6:2 his garden . . . his flock: This is a change of language from 4:12–16. On their wedding night, the bride presented herself to Solomon as his garden. But he has another “garden” to tend as well, and it is one in which he also takes great pleasure. This is the “garden” of his work, his responsibility as the king of Israel. The flock is the people; the lilies represent the produce of the land. This realization leads to the strong affirmation in the next verse that the husband and wife belong to each other. Another use of the word garden occurs in 6:11.
- 6:3 I am my beloved’s, and my beloved is mine: These words are an inversion of the words of 2:16; compare also 7:10. He feeds his flock among the lilies: With these words the bride comes to terms with the reality that, as much as she and the king are in love, he still has other responsibilities and so does she. His work as king makes him the shepherd of his people, yet his love for her does not necessarily diminish because of his devotion to his work.
- 6:4 beautiful . . . Lovely: The first is the word usually translated “fair” (1:8, 15; 4:1); the second is the rarer word for beauty used first in 1:5. Tirzah . . . Jerusalem: Solomon idealizes the beauty of these cities, even as people speak of beautiful cities in our own day. army with banners: From a distance, there is a kind of beauty in the sight of an army, especially for a king.
- 6:8, 9 sixty . . . eighty: This use of numbers is a rhetorical device to emphasize that the bride alone is Solomon’s love. praised: Here is a use of this verb in a context other than the worship of God.
- 6:10 morning . . . moon . . . sun: The king’s rapture at the very thought of his wife lifts his soul to the heavens.

6:11 Here the term garden refers to the Shulamite's homeland.

6:13 The chorus calls the bride back from her daydreams and reminds her that she is Solomon's queen. Shulamite: The term is not a name but a title. It may mean "a woman from the village of Shulam." However, the hometown of the woman is usually thought to be Shunem. Her title sounds very much like the Hebrew pronunciation for the name Solomon. Both words are related to the Hebrew word for peace (shalom). the dance of the two camps: In Hebrew, the word is Mahanaim, the town where David fled as a fugitive from Absalom (2 Sam. 17:24). The woman offers to dance before her beloved so that he might enjoy her beauty in lovely motion.

7:1 Solomon rhapsodizes on the beauty of his bride. In the eyes of love, one's lover has a beauty that transcends what others might see. prince's daughter: Although of common birth (1:2), the Shulamite has regal beauty. The curves of your thighs: The Hebrew wording suggests not only her form but the fluid motion of her dance (6:13).

7:6 This verse summarizes the king's joy in her beauty. fair: This term (here a verb) for beauty is used often in the book (see 1:8, 15). love: Here he uses the common noun for love as in 2:4.

7:7, 8 palm tree: This is a sexual image that has its basis in the pollination of palm trees. To fertilize a female palm tree, the gardener climbs the male tree and takes some of its flowers. Then he climbs the female tree and ties the pollen-bearing flowers among its branches.

7:10 desire: This word is used only three times in the Bible. Here it clearly means "sexual longing."

7:12 She was familiar with all the environs, but especially the vineyards (see 1:6; compare 8:12). my love: This refers to a sexual embrace; see 1:2 where the same word is used.

7:13 From early times, mandrakes were associated with fertility (Gen. 30:14).

8:1, 2 like my brother: The love of the bride for her beloved was so intense that she wished that she had known him dearly his entire life.

8:2 spiced wine: The wines of the ancient world were often flavored with aromatic spices on special occasions (Prov. 9:2).

8:3, 4 left . . . right: The repetition of 2:6, 7 punctuates both the joy of sexual intimacy within marriage and the warnings against sexual activity before marriage.

8:5 The king takes his bride back to her home country for a visit. The apple tree symbolizes the place where the Shulamite had been awakened sexually and where her mother had given birth to her.

8:6 A seal is a symbol of possession or ownership. The Shulamite wants the king to feel a total ownership of her in his heart. She is committed only to him; and she wants him to be completely committed to her. As long as she resides in his heart, she feels secure. She knows that love deeply rooted in a heart commitment is intense—strong as death—and passionate—like flames of fire.

8:7 quench . . . despised: The point of this powerful verse is that true love cannot be destroyed, and neither can it be purchased.

8:8 The Shulamite came from a fatherless home where she had been raised by her mother and brothers (1:6). They alternated between protective concern for her and anger with her. But in her growing up, her brothers had protected her.

8:9 If . . . a wall: By this the brothers meant that they would praise her for virtue and strength during puberty. if . . . a door: However, if she were loose, like a swinging door, they would have to protect her from herself and from untoward advances by young men.

8:10 The woman explains that she has been virtuous in her youth—a wall—and she will remain faithful in her adulthood—towers. In this way she discovers peace. How unexpected to find this rich Hebrew word used here of sexual completion.

8:11, 12 Solomon owned many vineyards, some in areas remote from Jerusalem. Baal Hamon ("Lord of Hamon") was a site near Shunem, the town near where the Shulamite may have been raised. Solomon's vineyard had been entrusted to the Shulamite's brothers, as had the Shulamite. After caring for this vineyard, the brothers earned one thousand shekels profit. But they also cared for and protected the king's other "vineyard," the Shulamite. Now, she requests that her brothers be rewarded with two hundred shekels profit. My own vineyard: This phrase takes us back to 1:6 where the Shulamite makes a play on words with vineyard. Here she sees that vineyard of old (see 7:12), but indicates that she now has another “vineyard” to tend—her dear husband.

8:13 The companions: This may be a reference to the woman’s friends living nearby.

8:14 Make haste: During the period of courtship, the young woman had asked her suitor to run away like a gazelle . . . stag, lest they become entangled with passion too soon. Now, in their married love, she wishes he would rush to her (see 4:6). the mountains of spices: That is, she wants him to return to her loving embrace (see 1:13; 4:6).

Introduction

Isaiah was a man with a mission. The Lord had shown him a glimpse of His glorious throne and placed a call on his life. As a prophet, he spoke God's words. For the most part, these were words of confrontation, exhortation, and warning—words that made him extremely unpopular. But even when he faced opposition Isaiah continued to stand up for the truth. The Lord had called him to warn the people of their headlong rush into disaster. The Book of Isaiah records these prophetic words of warning, but it also records Isaiah's words of promise and hope. One day, a Messiah would come who would save, comfort, and bless His people.

Author Isaiah the son of Amoz has traditionally been identified as the author of the entire book that bears his name (1:1). However, since the rise of historical criticism in the late nineteenth century, debate has surrounded the authorship of Isaiah. The Book of Isaiah addresses three different historical time periods, and some critical scholars have concluded that there were three different authors for the book. Because chapters 1–39 address Israel when it was confronting Assyrian invasions during the second half of the eighth century B.C., most scholars have agreed that these chapters were composed by Isaiah the son of Amoz, the so-called Proto-Isaiah (or “First Isaiah”). But chapters 40–55 speak to the discouraged exiles in Babylon in the first half of the sixth century B.C., two centuries after the prophet Isaiah lived. For this reason, some have assumed an anonymous author called Deutero-Isaiah (or “Second Isaiah”) for these chapters. The rest of the book, chapters 55–66, addresses the controversies that surrounded the postexilic community in the second half of the sixth century B.C. Thus this last section has been identified as the work of either Deutero-Isaiah or another anonymous author called Trito-Isaiah (or “Third Isaiah”). The basis for this elaborate analysis of the Book of Isaiah is the assumption that a Hebrew prophet could only address his contemporaries and not distant generations. According to these critics, a prediction of a future event, such as Isaiah’s prophetic naming of Cyrus two hundred years before that ruler came to power (44:28; 45:1), is simply impossible.

Contrary to the critics’ assumption, a prophet would commonly ask one generation to participate in the future events of another generation. Moses spoke this way when he addressed the new generation of Israelites at Moab as though they had participated in the events at Mt. Sinai (Deut. 5:3); yet none of Moses’ audience, with the exception of Joshua and Caleb, had actually been there (Deut. 1:35–38). Isaiah, who began his career in 740 B.C. and ended it around 681 B.C., also used this technique. He commanded the Israelites to “go forth from Babylon” (48:20) many generations before the Exile in 586 B.C. and the return in 538 B.C. This was a miraculous prophecy of the Israelites’ return from Babylon, a prophecy that would sustain the faith and hope of the exiles, such as Ezra and Nehemiah.

The internal evidence of the Book of Isaiah points to one author, the prophet Isaiah. Unlike books that have multiple authors, such as the books of Psalms and Proverbs, no editorial notices in the Book of Isaiah indicate a change of author (2:1; 13:1). Moreover there are numerous linguistic similarities throughout the book, such as the use of relatively rare titles for God, “the Holy One of Israel” and “the LORD of Hosts.” Variations in style between chapters 1–39 and chapters 40–66 may be due to differences in subject matter, changed perspectives, and perhaps even the prophet’s growing maturity. The New Testament confirms the view that Isaiah authored the entire book. The apostle John attributed prophecies from 53:1 as well as from 6:9, 10 to the prophet Isaiah (John 12:38–41). Thus there is no convincing reason to discount Isaiah’s authorship of the entire book.

Interpretation Understanding Hebrew prophetic literature involves recognizing and interpreting parallelism. The Hebrews used parallelism in poetry and prophecy as a literary technique to emphasize a particular thought. Here is an example: “The ox knows its owner and the donkey its master’s crib; but Israel does not know, / My people do not consider” (1:3). In the first part of this verse, both the ox and the donkey intuitively know the objects that they depend on, the owner (provider) as well as the “master’s crib” (provision). The second part of the verse contrasts the intuition of animals with the behavior of the Israelites. Israel does not know “its Owner,” and even though they are God’s “people,” they “do not consider” God’s provision. Thus the second half of the verse creates the analogy in parallel with the first half.

Prophetic poetry uses colorful images that point to further meanings. Unlike prose, which addresses historical realities more directly, poetry draws its readers and listeners into spiritual realities with the use of evocative language. Thus in 42:15, the images of “mountains and hills” represent all sorts of obstacles—both physical and spiritual—to the exiles’ return to Jerusalem. The promise that the Lord would “dry up” these obstacles means that He would eliminate all impediments to the exiles’ return, just as He had dried up the Red Sea for the Israelites long before. Similarly in 41:18, that the Lord would “open rivers” and make “the dry land springs of water” means that He would miraculously provide for the returning exiles in the same way He had provided water from a rock (Ex. 17:1–6).

Another major element in understanding prophetic literature is recognizing that the prophecies themselves and their arrangement often lack chronological perspective or have multiple fulfillments. For example, the same prophecy may speak of both Jesus’ First and Second Comings (63:1, 2).

Likewise, one prophecy may speak of both the virgin birth of Jesus as well as the birth of Isaiah's son during Pekah's invasion. Moreover, an oracle about the servant Cyrus, the Persian emperor of the sixth century B.C. (41:1–29), may stand next to a prophecy concerning the Servant Jesus (42:1–9). Ultimately, the interpretations of Jesus and the New Testament authors provide a guide for interpreting Old Testament prophecies.

Audience As a prophet, Isaiah spoke to three historical epochs. In chapters 1–39, he delivered his message of condemnation to the eighth-century Israelites, pronouncing judgment on their immoral and idolatrous lifestyles. This judgment came quickly, for during Isaiah's ministry, Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.) set out to extend Assyria's rule into the west, and in doing so put pressure on Israel and Judah. In 722 B.C. another Assyrian king, Sargon II, conquered the northern kingdom. Only the nation of Judah was left. But Isaiah predicted that even Judah would fall—as much later it did, in 586 B.C.

In chapters 40–55, Isaiah comforted the future generation of weary exiles—the Jews who thought that God had forgotten them (40:27). In a brilliant series of prophecies, Isaiah presented the case that Israel's captivity was not due to the superiority of Babylon's idols, but to the disciplining rod of Israel's Lord (42:23–25). He predicted the exiles' return and encouraged them to rouse themselves (52:1–10), to flee Babylon (48:20, 21), and to entrust their future to the Almighty (41:14–20).

Finally in the third section (chs. 56–66), Isaiah exhorted the Jews who had returned to the land. This was the period before the temple was rebuilt (58:12; 61:4; 64:10) or perhaps while it was being rebuilt (66:1). Isaiah encouraged these Jews to put away greed (56:9–11), self-indulgence (56:12), idolatry (57:3–10), cynicism (57:11–13), and hypocritical self-righteousness (58:1–5). But he also predicted that the community would be split between true and false worshipers (see chs. 65; 66). The complete restoration of Israel was still to come (49:8–26). The promised Messiah would appear in the future (61:1–3). Then Gentiles would join Israel's godly remnant to become the “servants” of the Lord (56:3; 65:1, 15, 16) in a new nation (65:1; 66:8). The ultimate triumph of good over evil would have to await the new heaven and the new earth (65:17–19).

Christ in the Scriptures

Following are some of Isaiah's Christological prophecies and their New Testament fulfillments: Isaiah 9:6 is fulfilled in Luke 2:11 and Ephesians 2:14–18; Isaiah 50:6 plays out with unbelievable precision in Matthew 26:67; 27:26, 30. Isaiah 61:1, 2 is nothing less than the personal mission Jesus verbalizes and embraces when He reads the scroll at the synagogue in Nazareth, as recorded in Luke 4:17–19.

Of particular importance is Isaiah's description of the five aspects of Jesus' saving work on our behalf. They appear in the five stanzas of Isaiah 52:13—53:12. There we read of Jesus' wholehearted sacrifice, His perfect character, His atonement that results in peace with God, His payment that results in our forgiveness, and His death that nullifies the effects of sin. Isaiah refers to Jesus' earthly ministry and His crucifixion as well as His eventual return to earth as the reigning King.

Isaiah 1

¹The ^avision of Isaiah the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the ^bdays of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. Bible Times & Culture Notes: History in Isaiah

The Wickedness of Judah

^{2c}Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth!

For the LORD has spoken:

“I have nourished and brought up children,

And they have rebelled against Me;

^{3d}The ox knows its owner And the donkey its master’s ¹crib;

But Israel ^edoes not know,

My people do not ²consider.”

⁴Alas, sinful nation,

A people ³laden with iniquity,

^fA ⁴brood of evildoers, Children who are corrupters!

They have forsaken the LORD,

They have provoked to anger
The Holy One of Israel,
They have turned away backward.

^{5g}Why should you be stricken again?
You will revolt more and more.
The whole head is sick,
And the whole heart faints.

⁶From the sole of the foot even to the head, There is no soundness in it,
But wounds and bruises and putrefying sores;
They have not been closed or bound up,
Or soothed with ointment.

^{7h}Your country is desolate, Your cities are burned with fire;
Strangers devour your land in your presence;
And it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers.

⁸So the daughter of Zion is left ⁱas a ^{5b}booth in a vineyard, As a hut in a garden of cucumbers,

^{9k}Unless the LORD of hosts Had left to us a very small remnant,
We would have become like ^lSodom, We would have been made like Gomorrah.

¹⁰Hear the word of the LORD, You rulers ^mof Sodom; Give ear to the law of our God,
You people of Gomorrah:

¹¹“To what purpose is the multitude of your ⁿsacrifices to Me?”

Says the LORD.

“I have had enough of burnt offerings of rams
And the fat of fed cattle.
I do not delight in the blood of bulls,
Or of lambs or goats.

¹²“When you come ^oto appear before Me, Who has required this from your hand,

To trample My courts?

¹³Bring no more ^pfutile⁶ sacrifices; Incense is an abomination to Me.

The New Moons, the Sabbaths, and ^qthe calling of assemblies — I cannot endure iniquity and the sacred meeting.

¹⁴Your ^rNew Moons and your ^sappointed feasts My soul hates;

They are a trouble to Me,
I am weary of bearing them.

¹⁵When you ⁷spread out your hands, I will hide My eyes from you;

^uEven though you make many prayers,
I will not hear.

Your hands are full of ⁸blood.

¹⁶“Wash^v yourselves, make yourselves clean; Put away the evil of your doings from before My eyes.

^wCease to do evil,

¹⁷Learn to do good;

Seek justice,

Rebuke ⁹the oppressor;

¹⁰Defend the fatherless,

Plead for the widow.

¹⁸“Come now, and let us ^xreason together,”

Says the LORD,

“Though your sins are like scarlet,

^yThey shall be as white as snow;

Though they are red like crimson,

They shall be as wool.

¹⁹If you are willing and obedient,

You shall eat the good of the land;

²⁰But if you refuse and rebel,

You shall be devoured by the sword”;

^zFor the mouth of the LORD has spoken.

The Degenerate City

^{21a}How the faithful city has become a ¹¹harlot!

It was full of justice;

Righteousness lodged in it,

But now ^bmurderers.

^{22c}Your silver has become dross, Your wine mixed with water.

^{23d}Your princes are rebellious, And ^ecompanions of thieves;

^fEveryone loves bribes,

And follows after rewards.

They ^gdo not defend the fatherless,

Nor does the cause of the widow come before them.

²⁴Therefore the Lord says,

The LORD of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel,

“Ah, ^hI will ¹²rid Myself of My adversaries, And ¹³take vengeance on My enemies.

²⁵I will turn My hand against you,

And ⁱthoroughly¹⁴ purge away your dross, And take away all your alloy.

²⁶I will restore your judges ^jas at the first, And your counselors as at the beginning.

Afterward ^kyou shall be called the city of righteousness, the faithful city.”

²⁷Zion shall be redeemed with justice, And her ¹⁵penitents with righteousness.

²⁸The ^ldestruction of transgressors and of sinners shall be together, And those who forsake the LORD shall be consumed.

²⁹For ¹⁶they shall be ashamed of the ¹⁷terebinth trees Which you have desired;

And you shall be embarrassed because of the gardens

Which you have chosen.

³⁰For you shall be as a terebinth whose leaf fades, And as a garden that has no water.

^{31m}The strong shall be as tinder, And the work of it as a spark;

Both will burn together,
And no one shall ⁿquench them.

Isaiah 2

The Future House of God

(Mic. 4:1–5)

¹The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

²Now ^ait shall come to pass ^bin the latter days ^cThat the mountain of the LORD's house Shall be established on the top of the mountains,
And shall be exalted above the hills;
And all nations shall flow to it.

³Many people shall come and say,
^d“Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, To the house of the God of Jacob;
He will teach us His ways,
And we shall walk in His paths.”

^eFor out of Zion shall go forth the law,
And the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

⁴He shall judge between the nations, And rebuke many people;
They shall beat their swords into plowshares,
And their spears into pruning ¹hooks;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war anymore.

The Day of the LORD

⁵O house of Jacob, come and let us ^fwalk In the light of the LORD. Word Studies: light

⁶For You have forsaken Your people, the house of Jacob, Because they are filled ^gwith eastern ways; They are ^hsoothsayers like the Philistines, ⁱAnd they ²are pleased with the children of foreigners.

^{7j}Their land is also full of silver and gold, And there is no end to their treasures;
Their land is also full of horses,
And there is no end to their chariots.

^{8k}Their land is also full of idols; They worship the work of their own hands,

That which their own fingers have made.

⁹People bow down,
And each man humbles himself;
Therefore do not forgive them.

¹⁰Enter into the rock, and hide in the dust, From the terror of the LORD

And the glory of His majesty.

¹¹The ³lofty looks of man shall be ^mhumbled, The haughtiness of men shall be bowed down,
And the LORD alone shall be exalted ⁿin that day.

¹²For the day of the LORD of hosts Shall come upon everything proud and lofty,

Upon everything lifted up—

And it shall be brought low—

¹³Upon all ^othe cedars of Lebanon that are high and lifted up,
And upon all the oaks of Bashan;

^{14p}Upon all the high mountains, And upon all the hills that are lifted up;

¹⁵Upon every high tower,

And upon every fortified wall;

^{16q}Upon all the ships of Tarshish, And upon all the beautiful sloops.

¹⁷The ⁴loftiness of man shall be bowed down, And the haughtiness of men shall be brought low;

The LORD alone will be exalted in that day,

¹⁸But the idols ⁵He shall utterly abolish.

¹⁹They shall go into the ^rholes of the rocks, And into the caves of the ⁶earth,

^sFrom the terror of the LORD

And the glory of His majesty,

When He arises ^tto shake the earth mightily.

²⁰In that day a man will cast away his idols of silver

And his idols of gold,

Which they made, each for himself to worship,

To the moles and bats,
²¹To go into the clefts of the rocks,
And into the crags of the rugged rocks,
From the terror of the LORD
And the glory of His majesty,
When He arises to shake the earth mightily.

^{22u}Sever⁷ yourselves from such a man, Whose ^vbreath is in his nostrils;
For ⁸of what account is he?

Isaiah 3

Judgment on Judah and Jerusalem

¹For behold, the Lord, the LORD of hosts, ^aTakes away from Jerusalem and from Judah

^bThe ¹stock and the store, The whole supply of bread and the whole supply of water;

^{2c}The mighty man and the man of war, The judge and the prophet,

And the diviner and the elder;

³The captain of fifty and the ²honorable man, The counselor and the skillful artisan,

And the expert enchanter.

⁴"I will give ^dchildren³ to be their princes, And ⁴babes shall rule over them.

⁵The people will be oppressed,

Every one by another and every one by his neighbor;

The child will be insolent toward the ⁵elder, And the ⁶base toward the honorable."

⁶When a man takes hold of his brother In the house of his father, saying,

"You have clothing;

You be our ruler,

And let these ruins be under your ⁷power,"

⁷In that day he will protest, saying,

"I cannot cure your ills,

For in my house is neither food nor clothing;

Do not make me a ruler of the people."

⁸For ^eJerusalem stumbled, And Judah is fallen,

Because their tongue and their doings

Are against the LORD,

To provoke the eyes of His glory.

⁹The look on their countenance witnesses against them, And they declare their sin as ^fSodom; They do not hide it.

Woe to their soul!

For they have brought evil upon themselves.

¹⁰“Say to the righteous ^gthat it shall be well with them,

^hFor they shall eat the fruit of their doings.

¹¹Woe to the wicked! ⁱ*It shall be ill with him*,

For the reward of his hands shall be ⁸given him.

¹²As for My people, children are their oppressors, And women rule over them.

O My people! ^jThose who lead you ⁹cause you to err, And destroy the way of your paths.”

Oppression and Luxury Condemned

¹³The LORD stands up ^kto ¹⁰plead, And stands to judge the people.

¹⁴The LORD will enter into judgment With the elders of His people

And His princes:

“For you have ¹¹eaten up ^lthe vineyard; The plunder of the poor is in your houses.

¹⁵What do you mean by ^mcrushing My people And grinding the faces of the poor?”

Says the Lord GOD of hosts.

¹⁶Moreover the LORD says:

“Because the daughters of Zion are haughty,

And walk with ¹²outstretched necks

And ¹³wanton eyes,

Walking and ¹⁴mincing as they go, Making a jingling with their feet, ¹⁷Therefore the Lord will strike with ⁿa scab The crown of the head of the daughters of Zion,

And the LORD will ^ouncover their secret parts.”

¹⁸In that day the Lord will take away the finery:

The jingling anklets, the ¹⁵scarves, and the ^pcrescents; ¹⁹The pendants, the bracelets, and the veils;

²⁰The headdresses, the leg ornaments, and the headbands;

The perfume boxes, the charms,

²¹and the rings;

The nose jewels,

²²the festal apparel, and the mantles;

The outer garments, the purses,

²³and the mirrors;

The fine linen, the turbans, and the robes.

²⁴And so it shall be:

Instead of a sweet smell there will be a stench;

Instead of a sash, a rope;
Instead of well-set hair, ^qbaldness;
Instead of a rich robe, a girding of sackcloth;
And ¹⁶branding instead of beauty.

²⁵Your men shall fall by the sword,
And your ¹⁷mighty in the war.

²⁶Her gates shall lament and mourn, And she being desolate ^sshall sit on the ground.

Isaiah 4

¹And ^ain that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, “We will ^beat our own food and wear our own apparel; Only let us be called by your name,
To take away ^cour reproach.”

The Renewal of Zion

²In that day ^dthe Branch of the LORD shall be beautiful and glorious; And the fruit of the earth shall be excellent and appealing
For those of Israel who have escaped.

³And it shall come to pass that he who is left in Zion and remains in Jerusalem ^ewill be called holy—everyone who is ^frecorded among the living in Jerusalem.

⁴When ^gthe Lord has washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and purged the ¹blood of Jerusalem from her midst, by the spirit of judgment and by the spirit of burning, ⁵then the LORD will create above every dwelling place of Mount Zion, and above her assemblies, ^ha cloud and smoke by day and ⁱthe shining of a flaming fire by night. For over all the glory there will be a ²covering.

⁶And there will be a tabernacle for shade in the daytime from the heat, ^jfor a place of refuge, and for a shelter from storm and rain.

Isaiah 5

God's Disappointing Vineyard

¹Now let me sing to my Well-beloved
A song of my Beloved ^aregarding His vineyard: My Well-beloved has a vineyard

¹On a very fruitful hill. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Grapes and Vineyards

²He dug it up and cleared out its stones, And planted it with the choicest vine.

He built a tower in its midst,
And also ²made a winepress in it;

^bSo He expected it to bring forth good grapes, But it brought forth wild grapes.

³“And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah, ^cJudge, please, between Me and My vineyard.

⁴What more could have been done to My vineyard That I have not done in ^dit?

Why then, when I expected it to bring forth good grapes,
Did it bring forth wild grapes?

⁵And now, please let Me tell you what I will do to My vineyard: ^eI will take away its hedge, and it shall be burned; And break down its wall, and it shall be trampled down.

⁶I will lay it ^fwaste; It shall not be pruned or ³dug,
But there shall come up briars and ^gthorns.
I will also command the clouds
That they rain no rain on it.”

⁷For the vineyard of the LORD of hosts is the house of Israel,
And the men of Judah are His pleasant plant.
He looked for justice, but behold, oppression;
For righteousness, but behold, ⁴a cry for help.

Impending Judgment on Excesses

⁸Woe to those who ⁵join ^hhouse to house; They add field to field,

Till there is no place

Where they may dwell alone in the midst of the land!

⁹ⁱIn my hearing the LORD of hosts said,

“Truly, many houses shall be desolate,

Great and beautiful ones, without inhabitant.

¹⁰For ten acres of vineyard shall yield one ^jbath,⁶

And a homer of seed shall yield one ⁷ephah.”

^{11k}Woe to those who rise early in the morning, That they may ⁸follow intoxicating drink; Who continue until night, till wine inflames them!

^{12l}The harp and the strings, The tambourine and flute,

And wine are in their feasts;

But ^mthey do not regard the work of the LORD, Nor consider the operation of His hands.

¹³ⁿTherefore my people have gone into captivity, Because they have no ^oknowledge;

Their honorable men are famished,

And their multitude dried up with thirst.

¹⁴Therefore Sheol has enlarged itself And opened its mouth beyond measure;

Their glory and their multitude and their pomp,

And he who is jubilant, shall descend into it.

¹⁵People shall be brought down,

^pEach man shall be humbled,

And the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled.

¹⁶But the LORD of hosts shall be ^qexalted in judgment, And God who is holy shall be hallowed in righteousness.

¹⁷Then the lambs shall feed in their pasture, And in the waste places of ^rthe ⁹fat ones strangers shall eat.

¹⁸Woe to those who ¹⁰draw iniquity with cords of ¹¹vanity,
And sin as if with a cart rope;

^{19s}That say, “Let Him make speed and hasten His work, That we may see it;
And let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel draw near and
come,
That we may know it.”

²⁰Woe to those who call evil good, and good evil; Who put darkness for light, and light for darkness;
Who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!

²¹Woe to those who are ^twise in their own eyes, And prudent in their own sight!

²²Woe to men mighty at drinking wine, Woe to men valiant for mixing intoxicating drink,

²³Who ^ujustify the wicked for a bribe, And take away justice from the righteous man!

²⁴Therefore, ^vas the ¹²fire devours the stubble, And the flame consumes the chaff,

So ^wtheir root will be as rottenness, And their blossom will ascend like dust;

Because they have rejected the law of the LORD of hosts,
And despised the word of the Holy One of Israel.

^{25x}Therefore the anger of the LORD is aroused against His people; He has stretched out His hand against them
And stricken them,
And ^ythe hills trembled.

Their carcasses were as refuse in the midst of the streets.

^zFor all this His anger is not turned away, But His hand is stretched out still.

^{26a}He will lift up a banner to the nations from afar, And will ^bwhistle to them from ^cthe end of the earth; Surely ^dthey shall come with speed, swiftly.

²⁷No one will be weary or stumble among them, No one will slumber or sleep;

Nor ^ewill the belt on their loins be loosed, Nor the strap of their sandals be broken;

^{28f}Whose arrows are sharp, And all their bows bent;
Their horses' hooves will ¹³seem like flint, And their wheels like a whirlwind.

²⁹Their roaring will be like a lion,
They will roar like young lions;
Yes, they will roar
And lay hold of the prey;
They will carry it away safely,
And no one will deliver.

³⁰In that day they will roar against them Like the roaring of the sea.

And if one ^glooks to the land,
Behold, darkness and ¹⁴sorrow;
And the light is darkened by the clouds.

Isaiah 6

Isaiah Called to Be a Prophet

(cf. Ezek. 1:4–28)

¹In the year that ^aKing Uzziah died, I ^bsaw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up, and the train of His robe filled the temple.

²Above it stood seraphim; each one had six wings: with two he covered his face, ^cwith two he covered his feet, and with two he flew. Word Studies: seraphim

³And one cried to another and said:

^d“Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts; ^eThe whole earth is full of His glory!”

⁴And the posts of the door were shaken by the voice of him who cried out, and the house was filled with smoke.

⁵So I said:

“Woe is me, for I am ¹undone!
Because I am a man of ^funclean lips, And I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips;
For my eyes have seen the King,
The LORD of hosts.”

⁶Then one of the seraphim flew to me, having in his hand a live coal which he had taken with the tongs from ^gthe altar.

⁷And he ^htouched my mouth with it, and said:

“Behold, this has touched your lips;
Your iniquity is taken away,
And your sin ²purged.”

⁸Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying:

“Whom shall I send,
And who will go for ⁱUs?”

Then I said, “Here am I! Send me.”

⁹And He said, “Go, and ^jtell this people:

‘Keep on hearing, but do not understand;
Keep on seeing, but do not perceive.’

¹⁰“Make ^kthe heart of this people dull, And their ears heavy,
And shut their eyes;
^lLest they see with their eyes,
And hear with their ears,
And understand with their heart,
And return and be healed.”

¹¹Then I said, “Lord, how long?” And He answered:

^m“Until the cities are laid waste and without inhabitant, The houses are without a man,
The land is utterly desolate,

¹²ⁿThe LORD has removed men far away, And the forsaken places are many in the midst of the land.

¹³But yet a tenth will be in it, And will return and be for consuming,
As a terebinth tree or as an oak,
Whose stump remains when it is cut down.
So ^othe holy seed shall be its stump.”

Isaiah 7

Isaiah Sent to King Ahaz

(2 Kin. 16:5; 2 Chr. 28:5–15) ¹Now it came to pass in the days of ^aAhaz the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, went up to Jerusalem to make war against ^bit, but could not ¹prevail against it.

²And it was told to the house of David, saying, “Syria’s forces are ²deployed in Ephraim.” So his heart and the heart of his people were moved as the trees of the woods are moved with the wind.

³Then the LORD said to Isaiah, “Go out now to meet Ahaz, you and ³Shear-Jashub your son, at the end of the aqueduct from the upper pool, on the highway to the Fuller’s Field, ⁴“and say to him: ⁴“Take heed, and ⁵be ^cquiet; do not fear or be fainthearted for these two stubs of smoking firebrands, for the fierce anger of Rezin and Syria, and the son of Remaliah.

⁵“Because Syria, Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah have plotted evil against you, saying, ⁶“Let us go up against Judah and ⁶trouble it, and let us make a gap in its wall for ourselves, and set a king over them, the son of Tabel”— ⁷“thus says the Lord GOD:

^d“It shall not stand,
Nor shall it come to pass.

^{8e}For the head of Syria is Damascus, And the head of Damascus is Rezin.

Within sixty-five years Ephraim will be ⁷broken, So that it will not be a people.

⁹The head of Ephraim is Samaria, And the head of Samaria is Remaliah’s son.

^fIf you will not believe,
Surely you shall not be established.” ’ ’ ”

The Immanuel Prophecy

¹⁰Moreover the LORD spoke again to Ahaz, saying, ^{11g}“Ask a sign for yourself from the LORD your God; ⁸ask it either in the depth or in the height above.”

¹²But Ahaz said, “I will not ask, nor will I test the LORD!”

¹³Then he said, “Hear now, O house of David! Is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will you weary my God also?

¹⁴“Therefore the Lord Himself will give you a sign: ^hBehold, the virgin shall conceive and bear ⁱa Son, and shall call His name ^jImmanuel.⁹ Article: Immanuel

¹⁵“Curds and honey He shall eat, that He may know to refuse the evil and choose the good.

^{16k}“For before the Child shall know to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land that you dread will be forsaken by ^lboth her kings.

^{17m}“The LORD will bring the king of Assyria upon you and your people and your father’s house—days that have not come since the day that ⁿEphraim departed from Judah.”

¹⁸And it shall come to pass in that day That the LORD ^owill whistle for the fly That is in the farthest part of the rivers of Egypt,

And for the bee that is in the land of Assyria.

¹⁹They will come, and all of them will rest

In the desolate valleys and in ^pthe clefts of the rocks, And on all thorns and in all pastures.

²⁰In the same day the Lord will shave with a ^qhired ^rrazor, With those from beyond ¹⁰the River, with the king of Assyria, The head and the hair of the legs, And will also remove the beard.

²¹It shall be in that day

That a man will keep alive a young cow and two sheep;

²²So it shall be, from the abundance of milk they give,

That he will eat curds;

For curds and honey everyone will eat who is left in the land.

²³It shall happen in that day, That wherever there could be a thousand vines

Worth a thousand shekels of silver,

⁵It will be for briers and thorns.

²⁴With arrows and bows men will come there,
Because all the land will become briers and thorns.

²⁵And to any hill which could be dug with the hoe,
You will not go there for fear of briers and thorns;
But it will become a range for oxen
And a place for sheep to roam.

Isaiah 8

Assyria Will Invade the Land

¹Moreover the LORD said to me, “Take a large scroll, and ^awrite on it with a man’s pen concerning ¹Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz.

²“And I will take for Myself faithful witnesses to record, ^bUriah the priest and Zechariah the son of Jeberechiah.”

³Then I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son. Then the LORD said to me, “Call his name Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz; ^{4c}“for before the child ²shall have knowledge to cry ‘My father’ and ‘My mother,’ ^dthe riches of Damascus and the ³spoil of Samaria will be taken away before the king of Assyria.”

⁵The LORD also spoke to me again, saying:

⁶“Inasmuch as these people refused
The waters of ^eShiloah that flow softly, And rejoice ^fin Rezin and in Remaliah’s son; ⁷Now therefore, behold, the Lord brings up over them The waters of ⁴the River, strong and mighty— The king of Assyria and all his glory;

He will ⁵go up over all his channels
And go over all his banks.

⁸He will pass through Judah,
He will overflow and pass over,

⁸He will reach up to the neck;
And the stretching out of his wings
Will ⁶fill the breadth of Your land, O ^hImmanuel.⁷

⁹“Be ⁱshattered, O you peoples, and be broken in pieces!

Give ear, all you from far countries.

Gird yourselves, but be broken in pieces;

Gird yourselves, but be broken in pieces.

^{10j}Take counsel together, but it will come to nothing; Speak the word, ^kbut it will not stand,

^lFor ⁸God is with us.”

Fear God, Heed His Word

¹¹For the LORD spoke thus to me with ⁹a strong hand, and instructed me that I should not walk in the way of this people, saying:

¹²“Do not say, ‘A conspiracy,’
Concerning all that this people call a conspiracy,
Nor be afraid of their ¹⁰threats, nor be ¹¹troubled.

¹³The LORD of hosts, Him you shall hallow; Let Him be your fear,
And let Him be your dread.

^{14m}He will be as a ¹²sanctuary, But ⁿa stone of stumbling and a rock of ¹³offense To both the houses of Israel,
As a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

¹⁵And many among them shall ^ostumble; They shall fall and be broken,
Be snared and ¹⁴taken.”

¹⁶Bind up the testimony, Seal the law among my disciples.

¹⁷And I will wait on the LORD, Who ^phides His face from the house of Jacob; And I ^qwill hope in Him.

^{18r}Here am I and the children whom the LORD has given me!
We ^sare for signs and wonders in Israel From the LORD of hosts,
Who dwells in Mount Zion.

¹⁹And when they say to you, ^t“Seek those who are mediums and wizards, ^uwho whisper and mutter,” should not a people seek their God? Should they ^vseek the dead on behalf of the living?

^{20w}To the law and to the testimony! If they do not speak according to this word, it is because ^xthere ¹⁵is no light in them.

²¹They will pass through it hard-pressed and hungry; and it shall happen, when they are hungry, that they will be enraged and ^ycurse ¹⁶their king and their God, and look upward.

²²Then they will look to the earth, and see trouble and darkness, gloom of anguish; and they will be driven into darkness.

Isaiah 9

The Government of the Promised Son

(Is. 11:1–9)

¹Nevertheless ^athe gloom will not be upon her who is distressed, As when at ^bfirst He lightly esteemed
The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali,
And ^cafterward more heavily oppressed her,
By the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan,
In Galilee of the Gentiles.

^{2d}The people who walked in darkness Have seen a great light;
Those who dwelt in the land of the shadow of death,
Upon them a light has shined.

³You have multiplied the nation
And ¹increased its joy;

They rejoice before You
According to the joy of harvest,
As men rejoice ^ewhen they divide the spoil.
⁴For You have broken the yoke of his burden And the staff of his shoulder,
The rod of his oppressor,
As in the day of ^fMidian.
⁵For every warrior's ²sandal from the noisy battle, And garments rolled in blood,
^gWill be used for burning and fuel ³of fire.

^{6h}For unto us a Child is born, Unto us a ⁱSon is given;
And ^jthe government will be upon His shoulder.
And His name will be called ^kWonderful, Counselor, ^lMighty God, Everlasting Father, ^mPrince of Peace.
⁷Of the increase of His government and peace ⁿ*There will be* no end,
Upon the throne of David and over His kingdom,
To order it and establish it with judgment and justice
From that time forward, even forever.
The ^ozeal of the LORD of hosts will perform this.

The Punishment of Samaria

⁸The Lord sent a word against ^pJacob, And it has fallen on Israel.

⁹All the people will know—
Ephraim and the inhabitant of Samaria—
Who say in pride and arrogance of heart:

¹⁰“The bricks have fallen down,
But we will rebuild with hewn stones;
The sycamores are cut down,
But we will replace them with cedars.”

¹¹Therefore the LORD shall set up The adversaries of Rezin against him,
And spur his enemies on,

¹²The Syrians before and the Philistines behind; And they shall devour Israel with an open mouth.

For all this His anger is not turned away,
But His hand is ⁴stretched out still.

¹³For the people do not turn to Him who strikes them, Nor do they seek the LORD of hosts.

¹⁴Therefore the LORD will cut off head and tail from Israel,
Palm branch and bulrush ^qin one day.

¹⁵The elder and honorable, he is the head;
The prophet who teaches lies, he is the tail.

¹⁶For ^rthe leaders of this people cause them to err, And those who are led by them are destroyed.

¹⁷Therefore the Lord ^swill have no joy in their young men,
Nor have mercy on their fatherless and widows;
For everyone is a hypocrite and an evildoer,
And every mouth speaks ⁵folly.

^tFor all this His anger is not turned away, But His hand is stretched out still.

¹⁸For wickedness ^uburns as the fire; It shall devour the briers and thorns,

And kindle in the thickets of the forest;
They shall mount up like rising smoke.

¹⁹Through the wrath of the LORD of hosts ^vThe land is burned up,

And the people shall be as fuel for the fire;

^wNo man shall spare his brother.

²⁰And he shall ⁶snatch on the right hand And be hungry;
He shall devour on the left hand

^xAnd not be satisfied;

^yEvery man shall eat the flesh of his own arm.

²¹Manasseh shall devour Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasseh;
Together they shall be ^zagainst Judah.

^aFor all this His anger is not turned away, But His hand is stretched out still.

¹“Woe to those who ^adecree unrighteous decrees, Who write misfortune,

Which they have prescribed

²To rob the needy of justice,

And to take what is right from the poor of My people,

That widows may be their prey,

And that they may rob the fatherless.

^{3b}What will you do in ^cthe day of punishment, And in the desolation which will come from ^dafar?

To whom will you flee for help?

And where will you leave your glory?

⁴Without Me they shall bow down among the ^eprisoners, And they shall fall ¹among the slain.”

^fFor all this His anger is not turned away, But His hand is stretched out still.

Arrogant Assyria Also Judged

⁵“Woe to Assyria, ^gthe rod of My anger And the staff in whose hand is My indignation.

⁶I will send him against ^han ungodly nation, And against the people of My wrath

I will ⁱgive him charge,

To seize the spoil, to take the prey,

And to tread them down like the mire of the streets.

^{7j}Yet he does not mean so, Nor does his heart think so;

But it is in his heart to destroy,

And cut off not a few nations.

^{8k}For he says, ‘Are not my princes altogether kings?

⁹Is not ^lCalno ^mlike Carchemish?

Is not Hamath like Arpad?

Is not Samaria ⁿlike Damascus?

¹⁰As my hand has found the kingdoms of the idols, Whose carved images excelled those of Jerusalem and Samaria,

¹¹As I have done to Samaria and her idols,

Shall I not do also to Jerusalem and her idols?’ ”

¹²Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Lord has ²performed all His work ^oon Mount Zion and on Jerusalem, that He will say, ^p“I will punish the fruit of the arrogant heart of the king of Assyria, and the glory of his haughty looks.”

^{13q}For he says:

“By the strength of my hand I have done it,

And by my wisdom, for I am prudent;

Also I have removed the boundaries of the people,

And have robbed their treasuries;

So I have put down the inhabitants like a ³valiant man.

^{14r}My hand has found like a nest the riches of the people, And as one gathers eggs that are left,

I have gathered all the earth;

And there was no one who moved his wing,

Nor opened his mouth with even a peep.”

¹⁵ Shall ^sthe ax boast itself against him who chops with it?

Or shall the saw exalt itself against him who saws with it?

As if a rod could wield itself against those who lift it up,

Or as if a staff could lift up, as if it were not wood!

¹⁶ Therefore the Lord, the ⁴Lord of hosts, Will send leanness among his fat ones;

And under his glory

He will kindle a burning
Like the burning of a fire. Word Studies: hosts

¹⁷So the Light of Israel will be for a fire, And his Holy One for a flame;

^tIt will burn and devour

His thorns and his briers in one day.

¹⁸And it will consume the glory of his forest and of ^uhis fruitful field,
Both soul and body;

And they will be as when a sick man wastes away.

¹⁹Then the rest of the trees of his forest

Will be so few in number

That a child may write them.

The Returning Remnant of Israel

²⁰And it shall come to pass in that day That the remnant of Israel,

And such as have escaped of the house of Jacob,

^vWill never again depend on him who ⁵defeated them, But will depend on the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth.

²¹The remnant will return, the remnant of Jacob, To the ^wMighty God.

^{22x}For though your people, O Israel, be as the sand of the sea, ^yA remnant of them will return;

The destruction decreed shall overflow with righteousness.

^{23z}For the Lord GOD of hosts Will make a determined end In the midst of all the land.

²⁴Therefore thus says the Lord GOD of hosts: “O My people, who dwell in Zion, ^ado not be afraid of the Assyrian. He shall strike you with a rod and lift up his staff against you, in the manner of ^bEgypt.

²⁵“For yet a very little while ^cand the indignation will cease, as will My anger in their destruction.”

²⁶And the LORD of hosts will ⁶stir up ^da scourge for him like the slaughter of ^eMidian at the rock of Oreb; ^fas His rod was on the sea, so will He lift it up in the manner of Egypt.

²⁷It shall come to pass in that day That his burden will be taken away from your shoulder,

And his yoke from your neck,

And the yoke will be destroyed because of ^gthe anointing oil.

²⁸He has come to Aiath, He has passed Migron; At Michmash he has attended to his equipment.

²⁹They have gone ⁷along ^hthe ridge, They have taken up lodging at Geba.

Ramah is afraid,

ⁱGibeah of Saul has fled.

³⁰⁸Lift up your voice, O daughter ^jof Gallim!

Cause it to be heard as far as ^kLaish— ⁹O poor Anathoth!

³¹Madmenah has fled, The inhabitants of Gebim seek refuge.

³²As yet he will remain ^mat Nob that day; He will ⁿshake his fist at the mount of ^othe daughter of Zion, The hill of Jerusalem.

³³Behold, the Lord, The LORD of hosts,
Will lop off the bough with terror;

^pThose of high stature will be hewn down, And the haughty will be humbled.

³⁴He will cut down the thickets of the forest with iron,
And Lebanon will fall by the Mighty One.

Isaiah 11

The Reign of Jesse's Offspring

(Is. 9:1–7)

¹There ^ashall come forth a ¹Rod from the ²stem of ^bJesse, And ^ca Branch shall ³grow out of his roots.

^{2d}The Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon Him, The Spirit of wisdom and understanding,
The Spirit of counsel and might,
The Spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD.

³His delight is in the fear of the LORD, And He shall not judge by the sight of His eyes,
Nor decide by the hearing of His ears;

⁴But ^ewith righteousness He shall judge the poor, And decide with equity for the meek of the earth;
He shall ^fstrike the earth with the rod of His mouth, And with the breath of His lips He shall slay the wicked.

⁵Righteousness shall be the belt of His loins,
And faithfulness the belt of His waist.

⁶“The^g wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, The leopard shall lie down with the young goat,
The calf and the young lion and the fatling together;
And a little child shall lead them.

⁷The cow and the bear shall graze;
Their young ones shall lie down together;
And the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

⁸The nursing child shall play by the cobra's hole,
And the weaned child shall put his hand in the viper's den.

^{9h}They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain, For ⁱthe earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD
As the waters cover the sea.

¹⁰“And^j in that day ^kthere shall be a Root of Jesse, Who shall stand as a ^lbanner to the people; For the ^mGentiles shall seek Him,

And His resting place shall be glorious.”

¹¹It shall come to pass in that day That the Lord shall set His hand again the second time
To recover the remnant of His people who are left, ⁿFrom Assyria and Egypt,
From Pathros and Cush,
From Elam and Shinar,
From Hamath and the ⁴islands of the sea.

¹²He will set up a banner for the nations, And will ⁵assemble the outcasts of Israel, And gather together ^othe dispersed of Judah From the four ⁶corners of the earth.

¹³Also ^pthe envy of Ephraim shall depart, And the adversaries of Judah shall be cut off;
Ephraim shall not envy Judah,
And Judah shall not harass Ephraim.

¹⁴But they shall fly down upon the shoulder of the Philistines toward the west; Together they shall plunder the ⁷people of the East; ^qThey shall lay their hand on Edom and Moab; And the people of Ammon shall obey them.

¹⁵The LORD ^rwill utterly ⁸destroy the tongue of the Sea of Egypt; With His mighty wind He will shake His fist over ⁹the River, And strike it in the seven streams,
And make men cross over ¹⁰dry-shod.

^{16s}There will be a highway for the remnant of His people
Who will be left from Assyria,

^tAs it was for Israel
In the day that he came up from the land of Egypt.

Isaiah 12

A Hymn of Praise

¹And ^ain that day you will say:

“O LORD, I will praise You;
Though You were angry with me,
Your anger is turned away, and You comfort me.

²Behold, God is my salvation, I will trust and not be afraid;

^b‘For ^cYAH, the LORD, is my strength and song; He also has become my salvation.’ ”

³Therefore with joy you will draw ^dwater From the wells of salvation.

⁴And in that day you will say:

^e“Praise the LORD, call upon His name; ^fDeclare His deeds among the peoples,

Make mention that His ^gname is exalted.

^{5h}Sing to the LORD, For He has done excellent things;
This is known in all the earth.

⁶ⁱCry out and shout, O inhabitant of Zion, For great is ^jthe Holy One of Israel in your midst!”

Isaiah 13

Proclamation Against Babylon

¹The ^aburden¹ against Babylon which Isaiah the son of Amoz saw. Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Festivals of Babylon

²“Lift^b up a banner ^con the high mountain, Raise your voice to them;

^dWave your hand, that they may enter the gates of the nobles.

³I have commanded My ²sanctified ones; I have also called ^eMy mighty ones for My anger— Those who ^frejoice in My exaltation.”

⁴The ^gnoise of a multitude in the mountains, Like that of many people!

A tumultuous noise of the kingdoms of nations gathered together!

The LORD of hosts musters

The army for battle.

⁵They come from a far country,

From the end of heaven—

The ^hLORD and His ³weapons of indignation, To destroy the whole ⁱland.

⁶Wail, ^jfor the day of the LORD is at hand!

^kIt will come as destruction from the Almighty.

⁷Therefore all hands will be limp,

Every man’s heart will melt,

⁸And they will be afraid.

^lPangs⁴ and sorrows will take hold of them;

They will be in pain as a woman in childbirth;

They will be amazed at one another;

Their faces will be like flames.

⁹Behold, ^mthe day of the LORD comes, Cruel, with both wrath and fierce anger,

To lay the land desolate;

And He will destroy ⁿits sinners from it.

¹⁰For the stars of heaven and their constellations

Will not give their light;
The sun will be ^odarkened in its going forth, And the moon will not cause its light to shine.

¹¹“I will ^ppunish the world for its evil, And the wicked for their iniquity;

^qI will halt the arrogance of the proud,
And will lay low the haughtiness of the ⁵terrible.

¹²I will make a mortal more rare than fine gold, A man more than the golden wedge of Ophir.

^{13r}Therefore I will shake the heavens, And the earth will move out of her place,

In the wrath of the LORD of hosts
And in ^sthe day of His fierce anger.

¹⁴It shall be as the hunted gazelle,
And as a sheep that no man ⁶takes up;

^tEvery man will turn to his own people,
And everyone will flee to his own land.

¹⁵Everyone who is found will be thrust through, And everyone who is captured will fall by the sword.

¹⁶Their children also will be ^udashed to pieces before their eyes; Their houses will be plundered
And their wives ^vravished.

¹⁷“Behold, ^w I will stir up the Medes against them, Who will not ⁷regard silver;

And as for gold, they will not delight in it.

¹⁸Also their bows will dash the young men to pieces,
And they will have no pity on the fruit of the womb;
Their eye will not spare children.

^{19x}And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, The beauty of the Chaldeans’ pride,

Will be as when God overthrew ^ySodom and Gomorrah.

^{20z}It will never be inhabited, Nor will it be settled from generation to generation;

Nor will the Arabian pitch tents there,

Nor will the shepherds make their sheepfolds there.

^{21a}But wild beasts of the desert will lie there, And their houses will be full of ⁸owls;

Ostriches will dwell there,
And wild goats will caper there.

²²The hyenas will howl in their citadels,
And jackals in their pleasant palaces.

^bHer time is near to come,
And her days will not be prolonged.”

Isaiah 14

Mercy on Jacob

¹For the LORD ^awill have mercy on Jacob, and ^bwill still choose Israel, and settle them in their own land. ^cThe strangers will be joined with them, and they will cling to the house of Jacob.

²Then people will take them ^dand bring them to their place, and the house of Israel will possess them for servants and maids in the land of the LORD; they will take them captive whose captives they were, ^eand rule over their oppressors.

Fall of the King of Babylon

³It shall come to pass in the day the LORD gives you rest from your sorrow, and from your fear and the hard bondage in which you were made to serve, ⁴that you ^fwill take up this proverb against the king of Babylon, and say:

“How the oppressor has ceased,
The ^ggolden¹ city ceased!

⁵The LORD has broken ^hthe staff of the wicked, The scepter of the rulers;

⁶He who struck the people in wrath with a continual stroke,
He who ruled the nations in anger,
Is persecuted and no one hinders.

⁷The whole earth is at rest and quiet; They break forth into singing.

⁸ⁱIndeed the cypress trees rejoice over you, And the cedars of Lebanon, Saying, ‘Since you ²were cut down, No woodsman has come up against us.’

⁹“Hell^{j3} from beneath is excited about you, To meet you at your coming;

It stirs up the dead for you,
All the chief ones of the earth;
It has raised up from their thrones
All the kings of the nations.

¹⁰They all shall ^kspeak and say to you: ‘Have you also become as weak as we?

Have you become like us?

¹¹Your pomp is brought down to Sheol,
And the sound of your stringed instruments;
The maggot is spread under you,
And worms cover you.'

The Fall of Lucifer

¹²“How¹ you are fallen from heaven, O ⁴Lucifer, son of the morning!

How you are cut down to the ground,

You who weakened the nations! Article: Son of the Morning

¹³For you have said in your heart:

^m‘I will ascend into heaven, ⁿI will exalt my throne above the stars of God; I will also sit on the ^omount of the congregation ^pOn the farthest sides of the north;

¹⁴I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, ^qI will be like the Most High.’

¹⁵Yet you ^rshall be brought down to Sheol, To the ⁵lowest depths of the Pit.

¹⁶“Those who see you will gaze at you, And consider you, saying:

‘Is this the man who made the earth tremble,
Who shook kingdoms,

¹⁷Who made the world as a wilderness And destroyed its cities,

Who ⁶did not open the house of his prisoners?’

¹⁸“All the kings of the nations,

All of them, sleep in glory,

Everyone in his own house;

¹⁹But you are cast out of your grave Like an ⁷abominable branch,

Like the garment of those who are slain,

⁸Thrust through with a sword,

Who go down to the stones of the pit,

Like a corpse trodden underfoot.

²⁰You will not be joined with them in burial, Because you have destroyed your land

And slain your people.

^sThe brood of evildoers shall never be named.

²¹Prepare slaughter for his children

^tBecause of the iniquity of their fathers,
Lest they rise up and possess the land,
And fill the face of the world with cities.”

Babylon Destroyed

- ²²“For I will rise up against them,” says the LORD of hosts,
“And cut off from Babylon ^uthe name and ^vremnant, ^wAnd offspring and posterity,” says the LORD.
- ²³“I will also make it a possession for the ^xporcupine, And marshes of muddy water;
I will sweep it with the broom of destruction,” says the LORD of hosts.

Assyria Destroyed

²⁴The LORD of hosts has sworn, saying,
“Surely, as I have thought, so it shall come to pass,
And as I have purposed, so it shall ^ystand: ²⁵That I will break the ^zAssyrian in My land, And on My mountains tread him underfoot.
Then ^ahis yoke shall be removed from them,
And his burden removed from their shoulders.
²⁶This is the ^bpurpose that is purposed against the whole earth, And this is the hand that is stretched out over all the nations.
²⁷For the LORD of hosts has ^cpurposed, And who will annul
it?
His hand is stretched out,
And who will turn it back?”

Philistia Destroyed

²⁸This is the ⁹burden which came in the year that ^dKing Ahaz died.

²⁹“Do not rejoice, all you of Philistia, ^eBecause the rod that struck you is broken; For out of the serpent’s roots will come forth a viper, ^fAnd its offspring will be a fiery flying serpent.

³⁰The firstborn of the poor will feed, And the needy will lie down in safety;

I will kill your roots with famine,
And it will slay your remnant.

³¹Wail, O gate! Cry, O city!

All you of Philistia are dissolved;

For smoke will come from the north,

And no one will be alone in his ¹⁰appointed times.”

³²What will they answer the messengers of the nation?

That ^gthe LORD has founded Zion, And ^hthe poor of His people shall take refuge in it.

Isaiah 15

Proclamation Against Moab

¹The ^aburden¹ against Moab.

Because in the night ^bAr of ^cMoab is laid waste And destroyed,

Because in the night Kir of Moab is laid waste

And destroyed, Bible Times & Culture Notes: Moab

²He has gone up to the ²temple and Dibon, To the high places to weep.

Moab will wail over Nebo and over Medeba;

^dOn all their heads will be baldness, And every beard cut off.

³In their streets they will clothe themselves with sackcloth;
On the tops of their houses

And in their streets
Everyone will wail, ^eweeping bitterly.

⁴Heshbon and Elealeh will cry out, Their voice shall be heard as far as ^fJahaz; Therefore the ³armed soldiers of Moab will cry out; His life will be burdensome to him.

⁵“My^g heart will cry out for Moab; His fugitives shall flee to Zoar,

Like ⁴a three-year-old heifer.

For ^hby the Ascent of Luhith They will go up with weeping;

For in the way of Horonaim

They will raise up a cry of destruction,

⁶For the waters ⁱof Nimrim will be desolate, For the green grass has withered away;

The grass fails, there is nothing green.

⁷Therefore the abundance they have gained,

And what they have laid up,

They will carry away to the Brook of the Willows.

⁸For the cry has gone all around the borders of Moab,

Its wailing to Eglaim

And its wailing to Beer Elim.

⁹For the waters of ⁵Dimon will be full of blood; Because I will bring more upon Dimon,

^jLions upon him who escapes from Moab, And on the remnant of the land.”

Isaiah 16

Moab Destroyed

¹Send ^athe lamb to the ruler of the land, ^bFrom ¹Sela to the wilderness, To the mount of the daughter of Zion.

²For it shall be as a ^cwandering bird thrown out of the nest; So shall be the daughters of Moab at the fords of the ^dArnon.

³“Take counsel, execute judgment;
Make your shadow like the night in the middle of the day;
Hide the outcasts,
Do not betray him who escapes.

⁴Let My outcasts dwell with you, O Moab; Be a shelter to them from the face of the ²spoiler.

For the extortioner is at an end,
Devastation ceases,
The oppressors are consumed out of the land.

⁵In mercy ^ethe throne will be established; And One will sit on it in truth, in the tabernacle of David,
^fJudging and seeking justice and hastening ^grighteousness.”

⁶We have heard of the ^hpride of Moab— He is very proud—
Of his haughtiness and his pride and his wrath;
ⁱ*But his ³lies shall not be so.*

⁷Therefore Moab shall ^jwail for Moab; Everyone shall wail.
For the foundations ^kof Kir Hareseth you shall mourn; Surely they are stricken.

⁸For ^lthe fields of Heshbon languish, And ^mthe vine of Sibmah; The lords of the nations have broken down its choice plants,

Which have reached to Jazer
And wandered through the wilderness.
Her branches are stretched out,
They are gone over the ⁿsea.

⁹Therefore I will bewail the vine of Sibmah, With the weeping of Jazer;
I will drench you with my tears,

^oO Heshbon and Elealeh; For ⁴battle cries have fallen
Over your summer fruits and your harvest.

^{10p}Gladness is taken away, And joy from the plentiful field;
In the vineyards there will be no singing,
Nor will there be shouting;
No treaders will tread out wine in the presses;
I have made their shouting cease.

¹¹Therefore ^qmy ⁵heart shall resound like a harp for Moab,
And my inner being for ⁶Kir Heres.

¹²And it shall come to pass,
When it is seen that Moab is weary on ^rthe high place, That he will come to his sanctuary to pray;
But he will not prevail.

¹³This is the word which the LORD has spoken concerning Moab since that time.

¹⁴But now the LORD has spoken, saying, “Within three years, ^sas the years of a hired man, the glory of Moab will be despised with all that great multitude, and the remnant will be very small and feeble.”

Isaiah 17

Proclamation Against Syria and Israel

¹The ^aburden¹ against Damascus.

“Behold, Damascus will cease from being a city,
And it will be a ruinous heap. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Damascus

²The cities of ^bAroer are forsaken; They will be for flocks
Which lie down, and ^cno one will make them afraid.

³The fortress also will cease from Ephraim, The kingdom from Damascus,
And the remnant of Syria;
They will be as the glory of the children of Israel,”
Says the LORD of hosts.

⁴“In that day it shall come to pass That the glory of Jacob will ³wane, And ^ethe fatness of his flesh grow lean.

⁵It shall be as when the harvester gathers the grain, And reaps the heads with his arm;
It shall be as he who gathers heads of grain
In the Valley of Rephaim.

⁶Yet gleaning grapes will be left in it, Like the shaking of an olive tree,
Two or three olives at the top of the uppermost bough,
Four or five in its most fruitful branches,”
Says the LORD God of Israel.

⁷In that day a man will ^hlook to his Maker, And his eyes will have respect for the Holy One of Israel.

⁸He will not look to the altars,
The work of his hands;
He will not respect what his ⁱfingers have made, Nor the ⁴wooden images nor the incense altars.

⁹In that day his strong cities will be as a forsaken ⁵bough And ⁶an uppermost branch,
Which they left because of the children of Israel;
And there will be desolation.

¹⁰Because you have forgotten ^jthe God of your salvation, And have not been mindful of the Rock of your ⁷stronghold, Therefore you will plant pleasant plants
And set out foreign seedlings;

¹¹In the day you will make your plant to grow, And in the morning you will make your seed to flourish;
But the harvest will be a heap of ruins
In the day of grief and desperate sorrow.

¹²Woe to the multitude of many people Who make a noise
^klike the roar of the seas, And to the rushing of nations
That make a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters!

¹³The nations will rush like the rushing of many waters; But God will ^lrebuke them and they will flee far away,
And ^mbe chased like the chaff of the mountains before the wind, Like a rolling thing before the whirlwind.

¹⁴Then behold, at eventide, trouble!
And before the morning, he is no more.
This is the portion of those who plunder us,
And the lot of those who rob us.

Isaiah 18

Proclamation Against Ethiopia

¹Woe ^ato the land shadowed with buzzing wings, Which is beyond the rivers of ¹Ethiopia, ²Which sends ambassadors by sea,
Even in vessels of reed on the waters, saying,
“Go, swift messengers, to a nation tall and smooth of skin,
To a people terrible from their beginning onward,
A nation powerful and treading down,
Whose land the rivers divide.”

³All inhabitants of the world and dwellers on the earth:
^bWhen he lifts up a banner on the mountains, you see
it;

And when he blows a trumpet, you hear it.

⁴For so the LORD said to me, “I will take My rest,
And I will ²look from My dwelling place
Like clear heat in sunshine,
Like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest.”

⁵For before the harvest, when the bud is perfect
And the sour grape is ripening in the flower,
He will both cut off the sprigs with pruning hooks
And take away and cut down the branches.

⁶They will be left together for the mountain birds of prey And for the beasts of the earth;
The birds of prey will summer on them,
And all the beasts of the earth will winter on them.

⁷In that time ^ca present will be brought to the LORD of hosts
³From a people tall and smooth of skin,
And from a people terrible from their beginning onward,
A nation powerful and treading down,
Whose land the rivers divide—
To the place of the name of the LORD of hosts,
To Mount Zion.

Isaiah 19

Proclamation Against Egypt

¹The ^aburden¹ against Egypt.

Behold, the LORD ^brides on a swift cloud, And will come into Egypt;

^cThe idols of Egypt will ²totter at His presence, And the heart of Egypt will melt in its midst.

²“I will ^dset Egyptians against Egyptians; Everyone will fight against his brother,

And everyone against his neighbor,
City against city, kingdom against kingdom.

³The spirit of Egypt will fail in its midst; I will destroy their counsel,

And they will ^econsult the idols and the charmers, The mediums and the sorcerers.

⁴And the Egyptians I will give

^fInto the hand of a cruel master,
And a fierce king will rule over them,”
Says the Lord, the LORD of hosts.

^{5g}The waters will fail from the sea, And the river will be wasted and dried up.

⁶The rivers will turn foul;

The brooks ^hof defense will be emptied and dried up; The reeds and rushes will wither.

⁷The papyrus reeds by ³the River, by the mouth of the River,
And everything sown by the River,
Will wither, be driven away, and be no more.

⁸The fishermen also will mourn;

All those will lament who cast hooks into the River,
And they will languish who spread nets on the waters.

⁹Moreover those who work in ⁱfine flax And those who weave fine fabric will be ashamed;

¹⁰And its foundations will be broken.

All who make wages will be troubled of soul.

¹¹Surely the princes of ^jZoan are fools; Pharaoh's wise counselors give foolish counsel.

^kHow do you say to Pharaoh, "I am the son of the wise, The son of ancient kings?"

¹²ⁱWhere are they?

Where are your wise men?

Let them tell you now,

And let them know what the LORD of hosts has ^mpurposed against Egypt.

¹³The princes of Zoan have become fools; ⁿThe princes of ⁴Noph are deceived; They have also ⁵deluded Egypt, Those who are the ⁶mainstay of its tribes.

¹⁴The LORD has mingled ^oa perverse spirit in her midst; And they have caused Egypt to err in all her work, As a drunken man staggers in his vomit.

¹⁵Neither will there be any work for Egypt,

Which ^pthe head or tail,

Palm branch or bulrush, may do.

¹⁶In that day Egypt will ^qbe like women, and will be afraid and fear because of the waving of the hand of the LORD of hosts, ^rwhich He waves over it.

¹⁷And the land of Judah will be a terror to Egypt; everyone who makes mention of it will be afraid in himself, because of the counsel of the LORD of hosts which He has ^sdetermined against it.

Egypt, Assyria, and Israel Blessed

¹⁸In that day five cities in the land of Egypt will ^tspeak the language of Canaan and ^uswear by the LORD of hosts; one will be called the City of ⁷Destruction.

¹⁹In that day ^vthere will be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar to the ^wLORD at its border.

²⁰And ^xit will be for a sign and for a witness to the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt; for they will cry to the LORD because of the oppressors, and He will send them a ^ySavior and a Mighty One, and He will deliver them.

²¹Then the LORD will be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians will ^zknow the LORD in that day, and ^awill make sacrifice and offering; yes, they will make a vow to the LORD and perform it.

²²And the LORD will strike Egypt, He will strike and ^bheal it; they will return to the LORD, and He will be entreated by them and heal them.

²³In that day ^cthere will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian will come into Egypt and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians will ^dserve with the Assyrians.

²⁴In that day Israel will be one of three with Egypt and Assyria—a blessing in the midst of the land, Word Studies: blessing

²⁵whom the LORD of hosts shall bless, saying, “Blessed is Egypt My people, and Assyria ^ethe work of My hands, and Israel My inheritance.” Charts and Diagrams: Isaiah: A Bible in Miniature?

Isaiah 20

The Sign Against Egypt and Ethiopia

¹In the year that ^aTartan¹ came to Ashdod, when Sargon the king of Assyria sent him, and he fought against Ashdod and took it, ²at the same time the LORD spoke by Isaiah the son of Amoz, saying, “Go, and remove ^bthe sackcloth from your ²body, and take your sandals off your feet.” And he did so, ^cwalking naked and barefoot.

³Then the LORD said, “Just as My servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot three years ^dfor a sign and a wonder against Egypt and Ethiopia, ⁴“so shall the ^eking of Assyria lead away the Egyptians as prisoners and the Ethiopians as captives, young and old, naked and barefoot, ^fwith their buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt.

^{5g}“Then they shall be afraid and ashamed of Ethiopia their expectation and Egypt their glory.

⁶“And the inhabitant of this territory will say in that day, ‘Surely such is our expectation, wherever we flee for ^hhelp to be delivered from the king of Assyria; and how shall we escape?’ ”

Isaiah 21

The Fall of Babylon Proclaimed

¹The ¹burden against the Wilderness of the Sea.

As ^awhirlwinds in the South pass through,
So it comes from the desert, from a terrible land.

²A distressing vision is declared to me; ^bThe treacherous dealer deals treacherously, And the plunderer plunders.

^cGo up, O Elam!
Besiege, O Media!
All its sighing I have made to cease.

³Therefore ^dmy loins are filled with pain; ^ePangs have taken hold of me, like the pangs of a woman in labor.

I was ²distressed when I heard it;
I was dismayed when I saw it.

⁴My heart wavered, fearfulness frightened me; ^fThe night for which I longed He turned into fear for me.

^{5g}Prepare the table, Set a watchman in the tower,
Eat and drink.
Arise, you princes,
Anoint the shield!

⁶For thus has the Lord said to me: “Go, set a watchman, Let him declare what he sees.”

⁷And he saw a chariot with a pair of horsemen, A chariot of donkeys, and a chariot of camels,
And he listened earnestly with great care.

⁸³Then he cried, “A lion, my Lord!
I stand continually on the ^hwatchtower in the daytime; I have sat at my post every night.

⁹And look, here comes a chariot of men with a pair of horsemen!”

Then he answered and said,
ⁱ“Babylon is fallen, is fallen!
And ^jall the carved images of her gods
He has broken to the ground.”

^{10k}Oh, my threshing and the grain of my floor!
That which I have heard from the LORD of hosts,
The God of Israel,
I have declared to you.

Proclamation Against Edom

¹¹The ⁴burden against Dumah.

He calls to me out of ^mSeir, “Watchman, what of the night?
Watchman, what of the night?”

¹²The watchman said,
“The morning comes, and also the night.
If you will inquire, inquire;
Return! Come back!”

Proclamation Against Arabia

¹³ⁿThe ⁵burden against Arabia.

In the forest in Arabia you will lodge,
O you traveling companies ^oof Dedanites.

¹⁴O inhabitants of the land of Tema, Bring water to him who is thirsty;

With their bread they met him who fled.

¹⁵For they fled from the swords, from the drawn sword, From the bent bow, and from the distress of war.

¹⁶For thus the LORD has said to me: “Within a year, ^paccording to the year of a hired man, all the glory of ^qKedar will fail; ¹⁷“and the remainder of the number of archers, the mighty men of the people of Kedar, will be diminished; for the LORD God of Israel has spoken it.”

Isaiah 22

Proclamation Against Jerusalem

¹The ¹burden against the Valley of Vision.

What ails you now, that you have all gone up to the housetops,

²You who are full of noise,
A ²tumultuous city, ^aa joyous city?
Your slain men are not slain with the sword,
Nor dead in battle.

³All your rulers have fled together;
They are captured by the archers.
All who are found in you are bound together;
They have fled from afar.

⁴Therefore I said, “Look away from me, ^bI will weep bitterly;
Do not labor to comfort me
Because of the plundering of the daughter of my people.”

^{5c}For it is a day of trouble and treading down and perplexity
^dBy the Lord GOD of hosts In the Valley of Vision—
Breaking down the walls
And of crying to the mountain.

^{6e}Elam bore the quiver With chariots of men and horsemen,
And ^fKir uncovered the shield.

⁷It shall come to pass that your choicest valleys
Shall be full of chariots,
And the horsemen shall set themselves in array at the gate.

^{8g}He removed the ³protection of Judah.

You looked in that day to the armor ^hof the House of the Forest; ⁹ⁱYou also saw the ⁴damage to the city of David, That it was great;

And you gathered together the waters of the lower pool.

¹⁰You numbered the houses of Jerusalem,
And the houses you broke down
To fortify the wall.

^{11j}You also made a reservoir between the two walls For the water of the old ^kpool.

But you did not look to its Maker,
Nor did you have respect for Him who fashioned it long ago.

¹²And in that day the Lord GOD of hosts ¹Called for weeping and for mourning,

^mFor baldness and for girding with sackcloth.

¹³But instead, joy and gladness,

Slaying oxen and killing sheep,

Eating meat and ⁿdrinking wine:

^o“Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die!”

^{14p}Then it was revealed in my hearing by the LORD of hosts, “Surely for this iniquity there ^qwill be no atonement for you, Even to your death,” says the Lord GOD of hosts.

The Judgment on Shebna

¹⁵Thus says the Lord GOD of hosts:

“Go, proceed to this steward,
To ^rShebna, who is over the house, and say:

¹⁶‘What have you here, and whom have you here, That you have hewn a sepulcher here,
As he ^swho hews himself a sepulcher on high, Who carves a tomb for himself in a rock?

¹⁷Indeed, the LORD will throw you away violently, O mighty man, ^tAnd will surely seize you.

¹⁸He will surely turn violently and toss you like a ball Into a large country;
There you shall die, and there ^uyour glorious chariots Shall be the shame of your master’s house.

¹⁹So I will drive you out of your office,
And from your position ⁵he will pull you down.

²⁰‘Then it shall be in that day, That I will call My servant ^vEliakim the son of Hilkiah; ²¹I will clothe him with your robe
And strengthen him with your belt;
I will commit your responsibility into his hand.
He shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem
And to the house of Judah.

²²The key of the house of David
I will lay on his ^wshoulder;
So he shall ^xopen, and no one shall shut;
And he shall shut, and no one shall open.

²³I will fasten him as ^ya peg in a secure place, And he will become a glorious throne to his father’s house.

²⁴‘They will hang on him all the glory of his father’s house, the offspring and the posterity, all vessels of small quantity, from the cups to all the pitchers.

²⁵‘In that day,’ says the LORD of hosts, ‘the peg that is fastened in the secure place will be removed and be cut down and fall, and the burden that was on it will be cut off; for the LORD has spoken.’ ”

Isaiah 23

Proclamation Against Tyre

¹The ^aburden¹ against Tyre.

Wail, you ships of Tarshish!
For it is laid waste,
So that there is no house, no harbor;
From the land of ²Cyprus it is revealed to them.

²Be still, you inhabitants of the coastland,
You merchants of Sidon,
³Whom those who cross the sea have filled.
³And on great waters the grain of Shihor, The harvest of ⁴the River, is her revenue; And ^bshe is a marketplace for the nations.

⁴Be ashamed, O Sidon;
For the sea has spoken,
The strength of the sea, saying,
“I do not labor, nor bring forth children;
Neither do I rear young men,
Nor bring up virgins.”
⁵^cWhen the report reaches Egypt, They also will be in agony at the report of Tyre.

⁶Cross over to Tarshish; Wail, you inhabitants of the coastland!

⁷Is this your ^djoyous city,
Whose antiquity is from ancient days,
Whose feet carried her far off to dwell?
⁸Who has taken this counsel against Tyre, ^ethe crowning city,
Whose merchants are princes,
Whose traders are the honorable of the earth?
⁹The LORD of hosts has ^fpurposed it, To ⁵bring to dishonor the ^gpride of all glory, To bring into contempt all the honorable of the earth.

¹⁰Overflow through your land like ⁶the River, O daughter of

Tarshish;
There is no more ⁷*strength.*
¹¹He stretched out His hand over the sea,
He shook the kingdoms;
The LORD has given a commandment ^hagainst Canaan To destroy its strongholds.
¹²And He said, “You will rejoice no more, O you oppressed virgin daughter of Sidon.
Arise, ⁱcross over to Cyprus;
There also you will have no rest.”

¹³Behold, the land of the ^jChaldeans, This people which was not;
Assyria founded it for ^kwild beasts of the desert.
They set up its towers,
They raised up its palaces,
And brought it to ruin.

¹⁴Wail, you ships of Tarshish!
For your strength is laid waste.

¹⁵Now it shall come to pass in that day that Tyre will be forgotten seventy years, according to the days of one king. At the end of seventy years it will happen to Tyre as in the song of the harlot:

¹⁶“Take a harp, go about the city,
You forgotten harlot;
Make sweet melody, sing many songs,
That you may be remembered.”

¹⁷And it shall be, at the end of seventy years, that the LORD will deal with Tyre. She will return to her hire, and ^mcommit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world on the face of the earth.

¹⁸Her gain and her pay ⁿwill be set apart for the LORD; it will not be treasured nor laid up, for her gain will be for those who dwell before the LORD, to eat sufficiently, and for ⁸fine clothing.

Isaiah 24

Impending Judgment on the Earth

¹Behold, the LORD makes the earth empty and makes it waste, Distorts its surface
And scatters abroad its inhabitants.

²And it shall be:

As with the people, so with the ^apriest;
As with the servant, so with his master;
As with the maid, so with her mistress;
^bAs with the buyer, so with the seller;
As with the lender, so with the borrower;
As with the creditor, so with the debtor.

³The land shall be entirely emptied and utterly plundered,
For the LORD has spoken this word.

⁴The earth mourns and fades away, The world languishes and fades away;
The ^chaughty¹ people of the earth languish.

^{5d}The earth is also defiled under its inhabitants, Because they have ^etransgressed the laws,
Changed the ordinance,
Broken the ^feverlasting covenant.

⁶Therefore ^gthe curse has devoured the earth, And those who dwell in it are ²desolate.
Therefore the inhabitants of the earth are ^hburned, And few men are left.

⁷ⁱThe new wine fails, the vine languishes, All the merry-hearted sigh.

⁸The mirth ^jof the tambourine ceases, The noise of the jubilant ends,
The joy of the harp ceases.

⁹They shall not drink wine with a song;
Strong drink is bitter to those who drink it.

¹⁰The city of confusion is broken down; Every house is shut up, so that none may go in.

¹¹*There is* a cry for wine in the streets, All joy is darkened,
The mirth of the land is gone.

¹²In the city desolation is left,
And the gate is stricken with destruction.

¹³When it shall be thus in the midst of the land among the people, ^k*It shall be* like the shaking of an olive tree,
Like the gleaning of grapes when the vintage is done.

¹⁴They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing; For the majesty of the LORD
They shall cry aloud from the sea.

¹⁵Therefore ^lglorify the LORD in the dawning light, ^mThe name of the LORD God of Israel in the coastlands of the sea.

¹⁶From the ends of the earth we have heard songs: “Glory to the righteous!”

But I said, ³“I am ruined, ruined!
Woe to me!

ⁿThe treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously, Indeed, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.”

^{17o}Fear and the pit and the snare Are upon you, O inhabitant of the earth.

¹⁸And it shall be
That he who flees from the noise of the fear
Shall fall into the pit,
And he who comes up from the midst of the pit
Shall be ⁴caught in the snare;
For ^pthe windows from on high are open,
And ^qthe foundations of the earth are shaken.

^{19r}The earth is violently broken, The earth is split open,
The earth is shaken exceedingly.

²⁰The earth shall ^sreel⁵ to and fro like a drunkard, And shall totter like a hut;
Its transgression shall be heavy upon it,
And it will fall, and not rise again.

²¹It shall come to pass in that day That the LORD will punish on high the host of exalted ones,

And on the earth ^tthe kings of the earth.

²²They will be gathered together,

As prisoners are gathered in the ⁶pit, And will be shut up in the prison;

After many days they will be punished.

²³Then the ^umoon will be disgraced And the sun ashamed;

For the LORD of hosts will ^vreign On ^wMount Zion and in Jerusalem

And before His elders, gloriously.

Isaiah 25

Praise to God

¹O LORD, You are my God.

^aI will exalt You,

I will praise Your name,

^bFor You have done wonderful things;

^cYour counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.

²For You have made ^da city a ruin, A fortified city a ruin,

A palace of foreigners to be a city no more;

It will never be rebuilt.

³Therefore the strong people will ^eglorify You; The city of the ¹terrible nations will fear You.

⁴For You have been a strength to the poor, A strength to the needy in his distress,

^fA refuge from the storm,

A shade from the heat;

For the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.

⁵You will reduce the noise of aliens, As heat in a dry place;

As heat in the shadow of a cloud,

The song of the terrible ones will be ²diminished.

⁶And in ^gthis mountain ^hThe LORD of hosts will make for ⁱall people A feast of ³choice pieces,

A feast of ⁴wines on the lees,

Of fat things full of marrow,

Of well-refined wines on the lees.

⁷And He will destroy on this mountain The surface of the covering cast over all people,

And ^jthe veil that is spread over all nations.

⁸He will ^kswallow up death forever, And the Lord GOD will ^lwipe away tears from all faces; The rebuke of His people

He will take away from all the earth;

For the LORD has spoken.

⁹And it will be said in that day: “Behold, this is our God;

^mWe have waited for Him, and He will save us.

This is the LORD;

We have waited for Him;

ⁿWe will be glad and rejoice in His salvation.”

¹⁰For on this mountain the hand of the LORD will rest, And ^oMoab shall be trampled down under Him, As straw is trampled down for the refuse heap.

¹¹And He will spread out His hands in their midst
As a swimmer reaches out to swim,
And He will bring down their ^ppride
Together with the trickery of their hands.

¹²The ^qfortress of the high fort of your walls He will bring down, lay low,
And bring to the ground, down to the dust.

Isaiah 26

A Song of Salvation

¹In ^athat day this song will be sung in the land of Judah:

“We have a strong city;

^bGod will appoint salvation for walls and bulwarks.

^{2c}Open the gates, That the righteous nation which ¹keeps the truth may enter in.

³You will keep him in perfect ^dpeace, Whose mind is stayed on You, Because he trusts in You.

⁴Trust in the LORD forever, ^eFor in YAH, the LORD, is ²everlasting strength.

⁵For He brings ³down those who dwell on high, ^fThe lofty city;
He lays it low,
He lays it low to the ground,
He brings it down to the dust.

⁶The foot shall ⁴tread it down— The feet of the poor
And the steps of the needy.”

⁷The way of the just is uprightness; ⁸O Most Upright,
You ⁵weigh the path of the just.

⁸Yes, ^hin the way of Your judgments, O LORD, we have ⁱwaited for You; The desire of our soul is for Your name
And for the remembrance of You.

^{9j}With my soul I have desired You in the night, Yes, by my spirit within me I will seek You early;
For when Your judgments are in the earth,
The inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.

^{10k}Let grace be shown to the wicked, Yet he will not learn righteousness;

In ^lthe land of uprightness he will deal unjustly, And will not behold the majesty of the LORD.

¹¹LORD, when Your hand is lifted up, ^mthey will not see.

But they will see and be ashamed

For ⁶*their* envy of people;

Yes, the fire of Your enemies shall devour them.

¹²LORD, You will establish peace for us, For You have also done all our works ⁷in us.

¹³O LORD our God, ⁿmasters besides You Have had dominion over us; But by You only we make mention of Your name.

¹⁴*They are* dead, they will not live; They are deceased, they will not rise.

Therefore You have punished and destroyed them,
And made all their memory to ^operish.

¹⁵You have increased the nation, O LORD, You have ^pincreased the nation;

You are glorified;

You have expanded all the ⁸borders of the land.

¹⁶LORD, ^qin trouble they have visited You, They poured out a prayer when Your chastening was upon them.

¹⁷As ^ra woman with child Is in pain and cries out in her ⁹pangs,
When she draws near the time of her delivery,
So have we been in Your sight, O LORD.

¹⁸We have been with child, we have been in pain;
We have, as it were, ¹⁰brought forth wind; We have not accomplished any deliverance in the earth,
Nor have ^sthe inhabitants of the world fallen.

¹⁹Your dead shall live; Together with ¹¹my dead body they shall arise.

^uAwake and sing, you who dwell in dust;
For your dew is like the dew of herbs,
And the earth shall cast out the dead.

Take Refuge from the Coming Judgment

²⁰Come, my people, ^venter your chambers, And shut your doors behind you;

Hide yourself, as it were, ^wfor a little moment, Until the indignation is past.

²¹For behold, the LORD ^xcomes out of His place To punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity;
The earth will also disclose her ¹²blood, And will no more cover her slain.

Isaiah 27

¹In that day the LORD with His severe sword, great and strong, Will punish Leviathan the fleeing serpent, ^aLeviathan that twisted serpent; And He will slay ^bthe reptile that is in the sea.

The Restoration of Israel

²In that day ^csing to her, ^d“A vineyard of ¹red wine!

^{3e}I, the LORD, keep it, I water it every moment;

Lest any hurt it,

I keep it night and day.

⁴Fury is not in Me.

Who would set ^fbriers and thorns

Against Me in battle?

I would go through them,

I would burn them together.

⁵Or let him take hold ^gof My strength, That he may ^hmake peace with Me;

And he shall make peace with Me.”

⁶Those who come He shall cause ⁱto take root in Jacob; Israel shall blossom and bud,

And fill the face of the world with fruit.

^{7j}Has He struck ²Israel as He struck those who struck him?
Or has He been slain according to the slaughter of those who were slain by Him?

^{8k}In measure, by sending it away, You contended with it.

^lHe removes it by His rough wind

In the day of the east wind.

⁹Therefore by this the iniquity of Jacob will be covered; And this is all the fruit of taking away his sin:

When he makes all the stones of the altar

Like chalkstones that are beaten to dust,

³Wooden images and incense altars shall not stand.

¹⁰Yet the fortified city will be ^mdesolate, The habitation forsaken and left like a wilderness;

There the calf will feed, and there it will lie down

And consume its branches.

¹¹When its boughs are withered, they will be broken off;

The women come and set them on fire.

For ⁿit is a people of no understanding; Therefore He who made them will ^onot have mercy on them, And ^pHe who formed them will show them no favor.

¹²And it shall come to pass in that day That the LORD will thresh,
From the channel of ⁴the River to the Brook of Egypt; And you will be ^qgathered one by one,
O you children of Israel.

¹³So it shall be in that day: ^sThe great trumpet will be blown;
They will come, who are about to perish in the land of Assyria,
And they who are outcasts in the land of ^tEgypt, And shall ^uworship the LORD in the holy mount at Jerusalem.

Isaiah 28

Woe to Ephraim and Jerusalem

¹Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim,
Whose glorious beauty is a fading flower
Which is at the head of the ¹verdant valleys, To those who are overcome with wine!

²Behold, the Lord has a mighty and strong one, ^aLike a tempest of hail and a destroying storm, Like a flood of mighty waters overflowing,
Who will bring them down to the earth with His hand.

³The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim, Will be trampled underfoot;

⁴And the glorious beauty is a fading flower
Which is at the head of the ²verdant valley, Like the first fruit before the summer,
Which an observer sees;
He eats it up while it is still in his hand.

⁵In that day the LORD of hosts will be For a crown of glory and a diadem of beauty
To the remnant of His people,

⁶For a spirit of justice to him who sits in judgment, And for strength to those who turn back the battle at the gate.

⁷But they also ^bhave erred through wine, And through intoxicating drink are out of the way;

^cThe priest and the prophet have erred through intoxicating drink, They are swallowed up by wine,
They are out of the way through intoxicating drink;
They err in vision, they stumble in judgment.

⁸For all tables are full of vomit and filth;
No place is clean.

⁹“Whom^d will he teach knowledge?
And whom will he make to understand the message?
Those just weaned from milk?
Those just drawn from the breasts?

^{10e}For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept,

Line upon line, line upon line,
Here a little, there a little.”

¹¹For with ^fstammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people,

¹²To whom He said, “This is the ^grest with which You may cause the weary to rest,”
And, “This is the refreshing”;
Yet they would not hear.

¹³But the word of the LORD was to them, “Precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
Line upon line, line upon line,
Here a little, there a little,”
That they might go and fall backward, and be broken
And snared and caught.

¹⁴Therefore hear the word of the LORD, you scornful men,
Who rule this people who are in Jerusalem,

¹⁵Because you have said, “We have made a covenant with death, And with Sheol we are in agreement.
When the overflowing scourge passes through,
It will not come to us,

^hFor we have made lies our refuge,
And under falsehood we have hidden ourselves.”

A Cornerstone in Zion

16Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, I lay in Zion ⁱa stone for a foundation, A tried stone, a precious cornerstone, a sure foundation;
Whoever believes will not act hastily.

17Also I will make justice the measuring line,
And righteousness the plummet;
The hail will sweep away the refuge of lies,
And the waters will overflow the hiding place.

18Your covenant with death will be annulled,
And your agreement with Sheol will not stand;
When the overflowing scourge passes through,
Then you will be trampled down by it.

19As often as it goes out it will take you; For morning by morning it will pass over,
And by day and by night;
It will be a terror just to understand the report.”

20For the bed is too short to stretch out on,
And the covering so narrow that one cannot wrap himself in it.

21For the LORD will rise up as at Mount ^jPerazim, He will be angry as in the Valley of ^kGibeon— That He may do His work, ^lHis awesome work, And bring to pass His act, His ³unusual act.

22Now therefore, do not be mockers,
Lest your bonds be made strong;
For I have heard from the Lord GOD of hosts,
^mA ⁴destruction determined even upon the whole earth.

Listen to the Teaching of God

23Give ear and hear my voice,
Listen and hear my speech.

24Does the plowman keep plowing all day to sow?
Does he keep turning his soil and breaking the clods?

25When he has leveled its surface,
Does he not sow the black cummin

And scatter the cummin,
Plant the wheat in rows,
The barley in the appointed place,
And the ⁵spelt in its place?
²⁶For He instructs him in right judgment,
His God teaches him.

²⁷For the black cummin is not threshed with a threshing sledge, Nor is a cartwheel rolled over the cummin;
But the black cummin is beaten out with a stick,
And the cummin with a rod.

²⁸Bread flour must be ground;
Therefore he does not thresh it forever,
Break it with his cartwheel,
Or crush it with his horsemen.

²⁹This also comes from the LORD of hosts, ⁿWho is wonderful in counsel and excellent in ⁶guidance.

Isaiah 29

Woe to Jerusalem

¹“Woe ^ato ¹Ariel, to Ariel, the city ^bwhere David dwelt!

Add year to year;

Let feasts come around.

²Yet I will distress Ariel; There shall be heaviness and sorrow,

And it shall be to Me as Ariel.

³I will encamp against you all around, I will lay siege against you with a mound,

And I will raise siegeworks against you.

⁴You shall be brought down,

You shall speak out of the ground;

Your speech shall be low, out of the dust;

Your voice shall be like a medium's, ^cout of the ground; And your speech shall whisper out of the dust.

⁵“Moreover the multitude of your ^dfoes Shall be like fine dust,
And the multitude of the terrible ones

Like ^echaff that passes away;

Yes, it shall be ^fin an instant, suddenly.

^{6g}You will be punished by the LORD of hosts With thunder and ^hearthquake and great noise, With storm and tempest

And the flame of devouring fire.

⁷ⁱThe multitude of all the nations who fight against ²Ariel,
Even all who fight against her and her fortress,

And distress her,

Shall be ^jas a dream of a night vision.

^{8k}It shall even be as when a hungry man dreams, And look—he eats;

But he awakes, and his soul is still empty;

Or as when a thirsty man dreams,

And look—he drinks;

But he awakes, and indeed he is faint,

And his soul still craves:

So the multitude of all the nations shall be,

Who fight against Mount Zion.”

The Blindness of Disobedience

⁹Pause and wonder!

Blind yourselves and be blind!

^lThey are drunk, ^mbut not with wine; They stagger, but not with intoxicating drink.

¹⁰For ⁿthe LORD has poured out on you The spirit of deep sleep,

And has ^oclosed your eyes, namely, the prophets; And He has covered your heads, namely, ^pthe seers.

¹¹The whole vision has become to you like the words of a ³book ^qthat is sealed, which men deliver to one who is literate, saying, “Read this, please.”

^rAnd he says, “I cannot, for it is sealed.”

¹²Then the book is delivered to one who ⁴is illiterate, saying, “Read this, please.” And he says, “I am not literate.”

¹³Therefore the Lord said:

^s“Inasmuch as these people draw near with their mouths And honor Me ^twith their lips,

But have removed their hearts far from Me,

And their fear toward Me is taught by the commandment of men, ^{14u}Therefore, behold, I will again do a marvelous work Among this people,

A marvelous work and a wonder;

^vFor the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, And the understanding of their prudent men shall be hidden.”

^{15w}Woe to those who seek deep to hide their counsel far from the LORD, And their works are in the dark;

^xThey say, “Who sees us?” and, “Who knows us?”

¹⁶Surely you have things turned around!

Shall the potter be esteemed as the clay;

For shall the ^ything made say of him who made it, “He did not make me”?

Or shall the thing formed say of him who formed it,

“He has no understanding”?

Future Recovery of Wisdom

¹⁷Is it not yet a very little while Till ^zLebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, And the fruitful field be esteemed as a forest?

^{18a}In that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, And the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness.

^{19b}The humble also shall increase their joy in the LORD, And ^cthe poor among men shall rejoice
In the Holy One of Israel.

²⁰For the ⁵terrible one is brought to nothing, ^dThe scornful one is consumed,

And all who ^ewatch for iniquity are cut off— ²¹Who make a man an offender by a word, And ^flay a snare for him who reproves in the gate, And turn aside the just ^gby empty words.

²²Therefore thus says the LORD, ^hwho redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob:

“Jacob shall not now be ⁱashamed,
Nor shall his face now grow pale;

²³But when he sees his children, ^jThe work of My hands, in his midst,
They will hallow My name,
And hallow the Holy One of Jacob,
And fear the God of Israel.

²⁴These also ^kwho erred in spirit will come to understanding, And those who complained will learn doctrine.”

Isaiah 30

Futile Confidence in Egypt

¹“Woe to the rebellious children,” says the LORD, ^a“Who take counsel, but not of Me,
And who ¹devise plans, but not of My Spirit, ^bThat they may add sin to sin;

^{2c}Who walk to go down to Egypt, And ^dhave not asked My advice,

To strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh,
And to trust in the shadow of Egypt!

^{3e}Therefore the strength of Pharaoh Shall be your shame,
And trust in the shadow of Egypt
Shall be your humiliation.

⁴For his princes were at ^fZoan, And his ambassadors came to Hanes.

^{5g}They were all ashamed of a people who could not benefit them, Or be help or benefit,
But a shame and also a reproach.”

^{6h}The ²burden against the beasts of the South.

Through a land of trouble and anguish,
From which came the lioness and lion,

ⁱThe viper and fiery flying serpent,
They will carry their riches on the backs of young donkeys,
And their treasures on the humps of camels,
To a people who shall not profit;

^{7j}For the Egyptians shall help in vain and to no purpose.

Therefore I have called her ³Rahab-Hem-Shebeth.

A Rebellious People

⁸Now go, ^kwrite it before them on a tablet, And note it on a scroll,

That it may be for time to come,
Forever and ever:

⁹That ^lthis is a rebellious people, Lying children,
Children who will not hear the law of the LORD;

^{10m}Who say to the seers, “Do not see,”
And to the prophets, “Do not prophesy to us right things;
ⁿSpeak to us smooth things, prophesy deceits.

¹¹Get out of the way,
Turn aside from the path,
Cause the Holy One of Israel
To cease from before us.”

¹²Therefore thus says the Holy One of Israel:

“Because you ^odespise this word,
And trust in oppression and perversity,
And rely on them,

¹³Therefore this iniquity shall be to you ^pLike a breach ready to fall,
A bulge in a high wall,
Whose breaking ^qcomes suddenly, in an instant.

¹⁴And ^rHe shall break it like the breaking of the potter’s vessel, Which is broken in pieces;

He shall not spare.

So there shall not be found among its fragments

⁴A shard to take fire from the hearth, Or to take water from the cistern.”

¹⁵For thus says the Lord GOD, the Holy One of Israel:

^s“In returning and rest you shall be saved; In quietness and confidence shall be your strength.”

^tBut you would not,

¹⁶And you said, “No, for we will flee on horses”— Therefore you shall flee!

And, “We will ride on swift horses”—

Therefore those who pursue you shall be swift!

^{17u}One thousand shall flee at the threat of one, At the threat of five you shall flee,
Till you are left as a ⁵pole on top of a mountain And as a banner on a hill.

God Will Be Gracious

¹⁸Therefore the LORD will wait, that He may be ^vgracious to you; And therefore He will be exalted, that He may have mercy on you.

For the LORD is a God of justice;

^wBlessed are all those who ^xwait for Him.

¹⁹For the people ^yshall dwell in Zion at Jerusalem; You shall ^zweep no more.

He will be very gracious to you at the sound of your cry;

When He hears it, He will ^aanswer you.

²⁰And though the Lord gives you ^bThe bread of adversity and the water of ⁶affliction, Yet ^cyour teachers will not be moved into a corner anymore, But your eyes shall see your teachers.

²¹Your ears shall hear a word behind you, saying, “This is the way, walk in it,”

Whenever you ^dturn to the right hand

Or whenever you turn to the left.

^{22e}You will also defile the covering of your images of silver, And the ornament of your molded images of gold.

You will throw them away as an unclean thing;

^fYou will say to them, “Get away!”

^{23g}Then He will give the rain for your seed With which you sow the ground,

And bread of the increase of the earth;

It will be ⁷fat and plentiful.

In that day your cattle will feed

In large pastures.

²⁴Likewise the oxen and the young donkeys that work the ground

Will eat cured fodder,

Which has been winnowed with the shovel and fan.

²⁵There will be ^hon every high mountain And on every high hill

Rivers and streams of waters,

In the day of the ⁱgreat slaughter,
When the towers fall.

²⁶Moreover ^jthe ⁱlight of the moon will be as the light of the sun, And the light of the sun will be sevenfold,
As the light of seven days,
In the day that the LORD binds up the bruise of His people
And heals the stroke of their wound.

Judgment on Assyria

²⁷Behold, the name of the LORD comes from afar, Burning with His anger,

And His burden is heavy;
His lips are full of indignation,
And His tongue like a devouring fire.

^{28k}His breath is like an overflowing stream, ^lWhich reaches up to the neck,

To sift the nations with the sieve of futility;
And there shall be ^ma bridle in the jaws of the people,
Causing them to err.

²⁹You shall have a song
As in the night when a holy festival is kept,
And gladness of heart as when one goes with a flute,
To come into ⁿthe mountain of the LORD, To ⁸the Mighty
One of Israel.

^{30o}The LORD will cause His glorious voice to be heard, And show the descent of His arm,
With the indignation of His anger
And the flame of a devouring fire,
With scattering, tempest, ^pand hailstones.

³¹For ^qthrough the voice of the LORD
Assyria will be ⁹beaten down,
As He strikes with the ^rrod.

³²And in every place where the staff of punishment passes,
Which the LORD lays on him,
It will be with tambourines and harps;
And in battles of ^sbrandishing He will fight with it.

³³ⁱFor Tophet was established of old, Yes, for the king it is prepared.

He has made it deep and large;
Its pyre is fire with much wood;
The breath of the LORD, like a stream of brimstone,
Kindles it.

Isaiah 31

The Folly of Not Trusting God

¹Woe to those ^awho go down to Egypt for help, And ^brely on horses,

Who trust in chariots because they are many,
And in horsemen because they are very strong,
But who do not look to the Holy One of Israel,
^cNor seek the LORD!

²Yet He also is wise and will bring disaster, And ^dwill not ¹call back His words, But will arise against the house of evildoers,

And against the help of those who work iniquity.

³Now the Egyptians are men, and not God;
And their horses are flesh, and not spirit.
When the LORD stretches out His hand,
Both he who helps will fall,
And he who is helped will fall down;
They all will perish ^etogether.

God Will Deliver Jerusalem

⁴For thus the LORD has spoken to me:

^f“As a lion roars,
And a young lion over his prey
(When a multitude of shepherds is summoned against him,
He will not be afraid of their voice
Nor be disturbed by their noise),
So the LORD of hosts will come down
To fight for Mount Zion and for its hill.
^{5g}Like birds flying about, So will the LORD of hosts defend Jerusalem.
Defending, He will also deliver it;
Passing over, He will preserve it.”

⁶Return to Him against whom the children of Israel have ^hdeeply revolted.

⁷For in that day every man shall ⁱthrow away his idols of silver and his idols of gold—^jsin, which your own hands have made for yourselves.

⁸“Then Assyria shall ^kfall by a sword not of man, And a sword not of mankind shall ^ldevour him.
But he shall flee from the sword,
And his young men shall become forced labor.
^{9m}He shall cross over to his stronghold for fear, And his princes shall be afraid of the banner,”
Says the LORD,
Whose fire is in Zion
And whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

Isaiah 32

A Reign of Righteousness

¹Behold, ^aa king will reign in righteousness, And princes will rule with justice.

²A man will be as a hiding place from the wind, And ^ba ¹cover from the tempest, As rivers of water in a dry place, As the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.

^{3c}The eyes of those who see will not be dim, And the ears of those who hear will listen.

⁴Also the heart of the ²rash will ^dunderstand knowledge, And the tongue of the stammerers will be ready to speak plainly.

⁵The foolish person will no longer be called ³generous, Nor the miser said to be bountiful;

⁶For the foolish person will speak foolishness, And his heart will work ^einiquity:

To practice ungodliness,

To utter error against the LORD,

To keep the hungry unsatisfied,

And he will cause the drink of the thirsty to fail.

⁷Also the schemes of the schemer are evil;

He devises wicked plans
To destroy the poor with ^flying words, Even when the needy speaks justice.

⁸But a ⁴generous man devises generous things, And by generosity he shall stand.

Consequences of Complacency

⁹Rise up, you women ^gwho are at ease, Hear my voice;
You complacent daughters,
Give ear to my speech.

¹⁰In a year and some days
You will be troubled, you complacent women;
For the vintage will fail,
The gathering will not come.

¹¹Tremble, you women who are at ease; Be troubled, you complacent ones;
Strip yourselves, make yourselves bare,
And gird sackcloth on your waists.

¹²People shall mourn upon their breasts
For the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine.

^{13h}On the land of my people will come up thorns and briers,
Yes, on all the happy homes in ⁱthe joyous city;
^{14j}Because the palaces will be forsaken, The bustling city will be deserted.

The forts and towers will become lairs forever,
A joy of wild donkeys, a pasture of flocks—

¹⁵Until ^kthe Spirit is poured upon us from on high, And ^lthe wilderness becomes a fruitful field, And the fruitful field is counted as a forest.

The Peace of God's Reign

¹⁶Then justice will dwell in the wilderness, And righteousness remain in the fruitful field.

^{17m}The work of righteousness will be peace, And the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever.

¹⁸My people will dwell in a peaceful habitation,
In secure dwellings, and in quiet ⁿresting places, ^{19o}Though hail comes down ^pon the forest, And the city is brought low in humiliation.

²⁰Blessed are you who sow beside all waters,
Who send out freely the feet of ^qthe ox and the donkey.

Isaiah 33

A Prayer in Deep Distress

¹Woe to you ^awho plunder, though you have not been plundered; And you who deal treacherously, though they have not dealt treacherously with you!

^bWhen you cease plundering,
You will be ^cplundered;
When you make an end of dealing treacherously,
They will deal treacherously with you.

²O LORD, be gracious to us; ^dWe have waited for You.
Be ¹their arm every morning,
Our salvation also in the time of trouble.

³At the noise of the tumult the people ^eshall flee; When You lift Yourself up, the nations shall be scattered;

⁴And Your plunder shall be gathered Like the gathering of the caterpillar;
As the running to and fro of locusts,
He shall run upon them.

^{5f}The LORD is exalted, for He dwells on high; He has filled Zion with justice and righteousness.

⁶Wisdom and knowledge will be the stability of your times,
And the strength of salvation;
The fear of the LORD is His treasure.

⁷Surely their valiant ones shall cry outside, ^gThe ambassadors of peace shall weep bitterly.

^{8h}The highways lie waste, The traveling man ceases.

ⁱHe has broken the covenant,

²He has despised the ³cities, He regards no man.

^{9j}The earth mourns and languishes, Lebanon is shamed and shriveled;

Sharon is like a wilderness,
And Bashan and Carmel shake off their fruits.

Impending Judgment on Zion

¹⁰“Now^k I will rise,” says the LORD; “Now I will be exalted,
Now I will lift Myself up.

¹¹You shall conceive chaff, You shall bring forth stubble;
Your breath, as fire, shall devour you.

¹²And the people shall be like the burnings of lime; ^m*Like* thorns cut up they shall be burned in the fire.

¹³Hear, ⁿ*you who are* afar off, what I have done; And you who are near, acknowledge My might.”

¹⁴The sinners in Zion are afraid; Fearfulness has seized the hypocrites:

“Who among us shall dwell with the devouring ^ofire?
Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings?”

¹⁵He who ^pwalks righteously and speaks uprightly, He who despises the gain of oppressions,
Who gestures with his hands, refusing bribes,
Who stops his ears from hearing of bloodshed,
And ^qshuts his eyes from seeing evil:

¹⁶He will dwell on ⁴high; His place of defense will be the fortress of rocks;
Bread will be given him,
His water will be sure.

The Land of the Majestic King

¹⁷Your eyes will see the King in His ^rbeauty; They will see the land that is very far off.

¹⁸Your heart will meditate on terror: ^s“Where is the scribe?
Where is he who weighs?
Where is he who counts the towers?”

¹⁹You will not see a fierce people, ^uA people of obscure speech, beyond perception, Of a ⁵stammering tongue that you cannot understand.

^{20v}Look upon Zion, the city of our appointed feasts; Your eyes will see ^wJerusalem, a quiet home, A tabernacle that will not be taken down;

^xNot one of ^yits stakes will ever be removed, Nor will any of its cords be broken.

²¹But there the majestic LORD will be for us A place of broad rivers and streams,

In which no ⁶galley with oars will sail, Nor majestic ships pass by ²²(For the LORD is our ^zJudge, The LORD is our ^aLawgiver, ^bThe LORD is our King; He will save us);

²³Your tackle is loosed,
They could not strengthen their mast,
They could not spread the sail.

Then the prey of great plunder is divided;
The lame take the prey.

²⁴And the inhabitant will not say, “I am sick”; ^cThe people who dwell in it will be forgiven their iniquity.

Isaiah 34

Judgment on the Nations

- ¹Come ^anear, you nations, to hear; And heed, you people!
^bLet the earth hear, and all that is in it, The world and all things that come forth from it.
- ²For the indignation of the LORD is against all nations, And His fury against all their armies;
He has utterly destroyed them,
He has given them over to the ^cslaughter.
- ³Also their slain shall be thrown out; ^dTheir stench shall rise from their corpses, And the mountains shall be melted with their blood.
- ^{4e}All the host of heaven shall be dissolved, And the heavens shall be rolled up like a scroll;
^fAll their host shall fall down
As the leaf falls from the vine,
And as ^gfruit falling from a fig tree.
- ⁵“For ^hMy sword shall be bathed in heaven; Indeed it ⁱshall come down on Edom, And on the people of My curse, for judgment.
- ⁶The ^jsword of the LORD is filled with blood, It is made ¹overflowing with fatness, With the blood of lambs and goats,
With the fat of the kidneys of rams.
For ^kthe LORD has a sacrifice in Bozrah, And a great slaughter in the land of Edom.
- ⁷The wild oxen shall come down with them, And the young bulls with the mighty bulls;
Their land shall be soaked with blood,
And their dust ²saturated with fatness.”
- ⁸For it is the day of the LORD’s ^lvengeance, The year of recompense for the cause of Zion.
- ^{9m}Its streams shall be turned into pitch, And its dust into brimstone;
Its land shall become burning pitch.
- ¹⁰It shall not be quenched night or day;

ⁿIts smoke shall ascend forever.

^oFrom generation to generation it shall lie waste; No one shall pass through it forever and ever.

^{11p}But the ³pelican and the ⁴porcupine shall possess it, Also the owl and the raven shall dwell in it.

And ^qHe shall stretch out over it

The line of confusion and the stones of emptiness.

¹²They shall call its nobles to the kingdom, But none shall be there, and all its princes shall be nothing.

¹³And ^rthorns shall come up in its palaces, Nettles and brambles in its fortresses;

^sIt shall be a habitation of jackals,
A courtyard for ostriches.

¹⁴The wild beasts of the desert shall also meet with the ⁵jackals, And the wild goat shall bleat to its companion;

Also ⁶the night creature shall rest there, And find for herself a place of rest.

¹⁵There the arrow snake shall make her nest and lay eggs
And hatch, and gather them under her shadow;
There also shall the hawks be gathered,
Every one with her mate.

¹⁶“Search from ^tthe book of the LORD, and read: Not one of these shall fail;

Not one shall lack her mate.

For My mouth has commanded it, and His Spirit has gathered them.

¹⁷He has cast the lot for them, And His hand has divided it among them with a measuring line.

They shall possess it forever;

From generation to generation they shall dwell in it.”

Isaiah 35

The Future Glory of Zion

¹The ^awilderness and the ¹wasteland shall be glad for them,
And the ^bdesert² shall rejoice and blossom as the rose;
^{2c}It shall blossom abundantly and rejoice, Even with joy and singing.

The glory of Lebanon shall be given to it,
The excellence of Carmel and Sharon.
They shall see the ^dglory of the LORD, The excellency of our God.

^{3e}Strengthen the ³weak hands, And make firm the ⁴feeble knees.

⁴Say to those who are fearful-hearted, “Be strong, do not fear!
Behold, your God will come with ^fvengeance, With the recompense of God;
He will come and ^gsave you.”

⁵Then the ^heyes of the blind shall be opened, And ⁱthe ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

⁶Then the ^jlame shall leap like a deer, And the ^ktongue of the dumb sing.

For ^lwaters shall burst forth in the wilderness, And streams in the desert.

⁷The parched ground shall become a pool, And the thirsty land springs of water;

In ^mthe habitation of jackals, where each lay, There shall be grass with reeds and rushes.

⁸A ⁿhighway shall be there, and a road, And it shall be called the Highway of Holiness.

^oThe unclean shall not pass over it,
But it shall be for others.

Whoever walks the road, although a fool,
Shall not go astray.

^{9p}No lion shall be there, Nor shall any ravenous beast go up on it;

It shall not be found there.

But the redeemed shall walk there,
¹⁰And the ^qransomed of the LORD shall return, And come to Zion with singing,
With everlasting joy on their heads.
They shall obtain joy and gladness,
And ^rsorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Isaiah 36

Sennacherib Boasts Against the LORD

(2 Kin. 18:13–37; 2 Chr. 32:1–19) ¹Now ^ait came to pass in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them.

²Then the king of Assyria sent the ¹Rabshakeh with a great army from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. And he stood by the aqueduct from the upper pool, on the highway to the Fuller's Field.

³And ^bEliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, ^cShebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came out to him.

^{4d}Then the Rabshakeh said to them, "Say now to Hezekiah, 'Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: "What confidence is this in which you trust?"

⁵"I say you speak of having plans and power for war; but they are ²mere words. Now in whom do you trust, that you rebel against me?"

⁶"Look! You are trusting in the ^estaff of this broken reed, Egypt, on which if a man leans, it will go into his hand and pierce it. So is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who ^ftrust in him.

⁷"But if you say to me, 'We trust in the LORD our God,' is it not He whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah has taken away, and said to Judah and Jerusalem, 'You shall worship before this altar'?" "

⁸"Now therefore, I urge you, give a pledge to my master the king of Assyria, and I will give you two thousand horses—if you are able on your part to put riders on them!

⁹"How then will you repel one captain of the least of my master's servants, and put your trust in Egypt for chariots and horsemen?"

¹⁰"Have I now come up without the LORD against this land to destroy it? The LORD said to me, 'Go up against this land, and destroy it.' "

¹¹Then Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, "Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, for we understand it; and do not speak to us in ³Hebrew in the hearing of the people who are on the wall."

¹²But the Rabshakeh said, "Has my master sent me to your master and to you to speak these words, and not to the men who sit on the wall, who will eat and drink their own waste with you?"

¹³Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out with a loud voice in Hebrew, and said, "Hear the words of the great king, the king of Assyria!"

¹⁴“Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you; ¹⁵‘nor let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD, saying, “The LORD will surely deliver us; this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.” ’

¹⁶“Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘Make peace with me by a present and come out to me; ⁸and every one of you eat from his own vine and every one from his own fig tree, and every one of you drink the waters of his own cistern; ¹⁷‘until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and new wine, a land of bread and vineyards.

¹⁸*Beware* lest Hezekiah persuade you, saying, “The LORD will deliver us.” Has any one of the ^hgods of the nations delivered its land from the hand of the king of Assyria?

¹⁹‘Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Indeed, have they delivered ⁱSamaria from my hand?

²⁰‘Who among all the gods of these lands have delivered their countries from my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem from my hand?’ ”

²¹But they ⁴held their peace and answered him not a word; for the king’s commandment was, “Do not answer him.”

²²Then Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn, and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Isaiah 37

Isaiah Assures Deliverance

(2 Kin. 19:1–7)

¹And ^aso it was, when King Hezekiah heard it, that he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD.

²Then he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz.

³And they said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah: ‘This day is a day of ^btrouble and rebuke and ¹blasphemy; for the children have come to birth, but there is no strength to bring them forth.

⁴‘It may be that the LORD your God will hear the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to ^creproach the living God, and will rebuke the words which the LORD your God has heard. Therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left.’ ”

⁵So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

⁶And Isaiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to your master, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Do not be afraid of the words which you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed Me.

⁷“Surely I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.” ’ ”

Sennacherib’s Threat and Hezekiah’s Prayer

(2 Kin. 19:8–19)

⁸Then the Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah, for he heard that he had departed from Lachish.

⁹And the king heard concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, “He has come out to make war with you.” So when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, ¹⁰“Thus you shall speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying: ‘Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you, saying, “Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.”

¹¹‘Look! You have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by utterly destroying them; and shall you be delivered?

¹²‘Have the ^dgods of the nations delivered those whom my fathers have destroyed, Gozan and Haran and Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar?

¹³“Where is the king of ^eHamath, the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah?” ”

¹⁴And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD.

¹⁵Then Hezekiah prayed to the LORD, saying: ¹⁶“O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, the One who dwells between the cherubim, You are God, You ^falone, of all the kingdoms of the earth. You have made heaven and earth.

^{17g}“Incline Your ear, O LORD, and hear; open Your eyes, O LORD, and see; and ^hhear all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to reproach the living God.

¹⁸“Truly, LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their ⁱlands, ¹⁹“and have cast their gods into the fire; for they were ^jnot gods, but the work of men’s hands—wood and stone. Therefore they destroyed them.

²⁰“Now therefore, O LORD our God, ^ksave us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may ^lknow that You are the LORD, You alone.”

The Word of the LORD Concerning Sennacherib

(² Kin. 19:20–34)

²¹Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, “Thus says the LORD God of Israel, ‘Because you have prayed to Me against Sennacherib king of Assyria, ²²‘this is the word which the LORD has spoken concerning him:

“The virgin, the daughter of Zion,
Has despised you, laughed you to scorn;

The daughter of Jerusalem
Has shaken her head behind your back!

²³“Whom have you reproached and blasphemed?
Against whom have you raised your voice,
And lifted up your eyes on high?
Against the Holy One of Israel.

²⁴By your servants you have reproached the Lord, And said, ‘By the multitude of my chariots
I have come up to the height of the mountains,
To the limits of Lebanon;
I will cut down its tall cedars
And its choice cypress trees;
I will enter its farthest height,
To its fruitful forest.

²⁵I have dug and drunk water,
And with the soles of my feet I have dried up
All the brooks of ²defense.’

²⁶“Did you not hear ^mlong ago How I made it,
From ancient times that I formed it?
Now I have brought it to pass,

That you should be
For crushing fortified cities into heaps of ruins.

²⁷Therefore their inhabitants had little power;
They were dismayed and confounded;
They were as the grass of the field
And the green herb,
As the grass on the housetops
And grain blighted before it is grown.

²⁸“But I know your dwelling place, Your going out and your coming in,
And your rage against Me.

²⁹Because your rage against Me and your tumult
Have come up to My ears,
Therefore ⁿI will put My hook in your nose And My bridle in your lips,
And I will ^oturn you back
By the way which you came.” ’

³⁰“This shall be a sign to you:

You shall eat this year such as grows of itself,
And the second year what springs from the same;
Also in the third year sow and reap,
Plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them.

³¹And the remnant who have escaped of the house of Judah
Shall again take root downward,
And bear fruit upward.

³²For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnant,
And those who escape from Mount Zion.
The ^pzeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

³³“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria:

‘He shall not come into this city,
Nor shoot an arrow there,
Nor come before it with shield,
Nor build a siege mound against it.

³⁴By the way that he came,
By the same shall he return;

And he shall not come into this city,’
Says the LORD.

³⁵‘For I will ^qdefend this city, to save it For My own sake and for My servant ^rDavid’s sake.’ ”

Sennacherib’s Defeat and Death

(2 Kin. 19:35–37)

³⁶Then the ^sangel³ of the LORD went out, and ⁴killed in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when people arose early in the morning, there were the corpses—all dead.

³⁷So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went away, returned home, and remained at Nineveh.

³⁸Now it came to pass, as he was worshiping in the house of Nisroch his god, that his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer struck him down with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Ararat. Then ^tEsarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

Isaiah 38

Hezekiah's Life Extended

(2 Kin. 20:1–11; 2 Chr. 32:24–26) ¹In ^athose days Hezekiah was sick and near death. And Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, went to him and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: ^b‘Set your house in order, for you shall die and not live.’ ”

²Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed to the LORD, ³and said, ^c“Remember now, O LORD, I pray, how I have walked before You in truth and with a ¹loyal heart, and have done what is good in Your ^dsight.” And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

⁴And the word of the LORD came to Isaiah, saying, ⁵“Go and tell Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of David your father: “I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; surely I will add to your days fifteen years.

⁶“I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria, and ^eI will defend this city.” ’

⁷“And this is ^fthe sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing which He has spoken: ⁸“Behold, I will bring the shadow on the sundial, which has gone down with the sun on the sundial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward.” So the sun returned ten degrees on the dial by which it had gone down.

⁹This is the writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick and had recovered from his sickness:

¹⁰I said,

“In the prime of my life

I shall go to the gates of Sheol;

I am deprived of the remainder of my years.”

¹¹I said,

“I shall not see ²YAH, The LORD ⁸in the land of the living; I shall observe man no more ³among the inhabitants of ⁴the world.

^{12h}My life span is gone, Taken from me like a shepherd's tent;

I have cut off my life like a weaver.

He cuts me off from the loom;

From day until night You make an end of me.

¹³I have considered until morning—
Like a lion,
So He breaks all my bones;
From day until night You make an end of me.
¹⁴Like a crane or a swallow, so I chattered;
ⁱI mourned like a dove;
My eyes fail from looking upward.
O ⁵LORD, I am oppressed; ⁶Undertake for me!

¹⁵“What shall I say?
⁷He has both spoken to me,
And He Himself has done it.
I shall walk carefully all my years
^jIn the bitterness of my soul.
¹⁶O Lord, by these things men live;
And in all these things is the life of my spirit;
So You will restore me and make me live.
¹⁷Indeed it was for my own peace That I had great bitterness;
But You have lovingly delivered my soul from the pit of corruption,
For You have cast all my sins behind Your back.
¹⁸For ^kSheol cannot thank You, Death cannot praise You;
Those who go down to the pit cannot hope for Your truth.
¹⁹The living, the living man, he shall praise You, As I do this day;
^lThe father shall make known Your truth to the children.

²⁰“The LORD was ready to save me; Therefore we will sing my songs with stringed instruments
All the days of our life, in the house of the LORD.”

²¹Now ^mIsaiah had said, “Let them take a lump of figs, and apply it as a poultice on the boil, and he shall recover.”

²²And ⁿHezekiah had said, “What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the LORD?”

Isaiah 39

The Babylonian Envoys

(2 Kin. 20:12–19)

¹At ^athat time ¹Merodach-Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Merodach-Baladan

^{2b}And Hezekiah was pleased with them, and showed them the house of his treasures—the silver and gold, the spices and precious ointment, and all his armory—all that was found among his treasures. There was nothing in his house or in all his dominion that Hezekiah did not show them.

³Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?” So Hezekiah said, “They came to me from a ^cfar country, from Babylon.”

⁴And he said, “What have they seen in your house?” So Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shown them.”

⁵Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: ⁶‘Behold, the days are coming ^dwhen all that is in your house, and what your fathers have accumulated until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left,’ says the LORD.

⁷‘And they shall take away some of your ^esons who will descend from you, whom you will beget; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.’ ”

⁸So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, ^f“The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good!” For he said, “At least there will be peace and truth in my days.”

Isaiah 40

God's People Are Comforted

(cf. Luke 3:4–6)

¹“Comfort, yes, comfort My people!”

Says your God.

²“Speak ¹comfort to Jerusalem, and cry out to her, That her warfare is ended,

That her iniquity is pardoned;

^aFor she has received from the LORD’s hand Double for all her sins.”

^{3b}The voice of one crying in the wilderness: ^c“Prepare the way of the LORD; ^dMake straight ²in the desert A highway for our God.

⁴Every valley shall be exalted

And every mountain and hill brought low;

^eThe crooked places shall be made ³straight And the rough places smooth;

⁵The ^fglory of the LORD shall be revealed, And all flesh shall see it together;

For the mouth of the LORD has spoken.”

⁶The voice said, “Cry out!”

And ⁴he said, “What shall I cry?”

^g“All flesh is grass,

And all its loveliness is like the flower of the field.

⁷The grass withers, the flower fades, Because the breath of the LORD blows upon it;

Surely the people are grass.

⁸The grass withers, the flower fades,

But ^hthe word of our God stands forever.”

⁹O Zion,

You who bring good tidings,

Get up into the high mountain;
O Jerusalem,
You who bring good tidings,
Lift up your voice with strength,
Lift it up, be not afraid;
Say to the cities of Judah, “Behold your God!”

¹⁰Behold, the Lord GOD shall come ⁵with a strong hand,
And ⁱHis arm shall rule for Him;
Behold, ^jHis reward is with Him, And His ⁶work before Him.
¹¹He will ^kfeed His flock like a shepherd; He will gather the lambs with His arm,
And carry them in His bosom,
And gently lead those who are with young.

¹²Who has measured the ⁷waters in the hollow of His hand,
Measured heaven with a ⁸span
And calculated the dust of the earth in a measure?

Weighed the mountains in scales
And the hills in a balance?

^{13m}Who has directed the Spirit of the LORD, Or as His counselor has taught Him?

¹⁴With whom did He take counsel, and who instructed Him,
And ⁿtaught Him in the path of justice?
Who taught Him knowledge,
And showed Him the way of understanding?

¹⁵Behold, the nations are as a drop in a bucket, And are counted as the small dust on the scales;
Look, He lifts up the isles as a very little thing.

¹⁶And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn,
Nor its beasts sufficient for a burnt offering.

¹⁷All nations before Him are as ^onothing, And ^pthey are counted by Him less than nothing and worthless.

¹⁸To whom then will you ^qliken God?
Or what likeness will you compare to Him?

^{19r}The workman molds an image, The goldsmith overspreads it with gold,
And the silversmith casts silver chains.

²⁰Whoever is too impoverished for such ^{9a} a contribution
Chooses a tree that will not rot;

He seeks for himself a skillful workman

^sTo prepare a carved image that will not totter.

²¹ⁱHave you not known?

Have you not heard?

Has it not been told you from the beginning?

Have you not understood from the foundations of the earth?

²²*It is* He who sits above the circle of the earth,

And its inhabitants are like grasshoppers,

Who ^ustretches out the heavens like a curtain, And spreads them out like a ^vtent to dwell in.

²³He ¹⁰brings the ^wprinces to nothing; He makes the judges of the earth useless.

²⁴Scarcely shall they be planted,
Scarcely shall they be sown,
Scarcely shall their stock take root in the earth,
When He will also blow on them,
And they will wither,
And the whirlwind will take them away like stubble.

²⁵“To^x whom then will you liken Me, Or to whom shall I be equal?” says the Holy One.

²⁶Lift up your eyes on high,
And see who has created these things,
Who brings out their host by number;
^yHe calls them all by name,
By the greatness of His might
And the strength of His power;
Not one is missing.

^{27z}Why do you say, O Jacob, And speak, O Israel:
“My way is hidden from the LORD,
And my just claim is passed over by my God”?

²⁸Have you not known?
Have you not heard?
The everlasting God, the LORD,
The Creator of the ends of the earth,
Neither faints nor is weary.

^aHis understanding is unsearchable.

²⁹He gives power to the weak,
And to those who have no might He increases strength.

³⁰Even the youths shall faint and be weary, And the young men shall utterly fall,

³¹But those who ^bwait on the LORD

^cShall renew their strength;
They shall mount up with wings like eagles,
They shall run and not be weary,
They shall walk and not faint.

Isaiah 41

Israel Assured of God's Help

¹“Keep ^asilence before Me, O coastlands, And let the people renew their strength!

Let them come near, then let them speak;

Let us ^bcome near together for judgment.

²“Who raised up one ^cfrom the east?

Who in righteousness called him to His feet?

Who ^dgave the nations before him,

And made him rule over kings?

Who gave them as the dust to his sword,

As driven stubble to his bow?

³Who pursued them, and passed ¹safely By the way that he had not gone with his feet?

^{4e}Who has performed and done it,

Calling the generations from the beginning?

‘I, the LORD, am ^fthe first; And with the last I am ^gHe.’ ”

⁵The coastlands saw it and feared, The ends of the earth were afraid;

They drew near and came.

^{6h}Everyone helped his neighbor, And said to his brother,

²“Be of good courage!”

⁷ⁱSo the craftsman encouraged the ^jgoldsmith;³

He who smooths with the hammer inspired him who strikes the anvil,

Saying, ⁴“It is ready for the soldering”; Then he fastened it with pegs,

^k*That* it might not totter.

⁸“But you, Israel, are My servant, Jacob whom I have ¹chosen,

The descendants of Abraham My ^mfriend.

⁹You whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, And called from its farthest regions,

And said to you,
'You are My servant,
I have chosen you and have not cast you away:
¹⁰ⁿFear not, ^ofor I am with you; Be not dismayed, for I am your God.
I will strengthen you,
Yes, I will help you,
I will uphold you with My righteous right hand.'

¹¹"Behold, all those who were incensed against you Shall be ^pashamed and disgraced;
They shall be as nothing,
And those who strive with you shall perish.
¹²You shall seek them and not find them—
⁵Those who contended with you.

Those who war against you
Shall be as nothing,
As a nonexistent thing.

¹³For I, the LORD your God, will hold your right hand, Saying to you, ‘Fear not, I will help you.’

¹⁴“Fear not, you ^qworm Jacob, You men of Israel!
I will help you,” says the LORD
And your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁵“Behold, ^rI will make you into a new threshing sledge with sharp teeth; You shall thresh the mountains and beat them small,

And make the hills like chaff. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Threshing Sledge

¹⁶You shall ^swinnow them, the wind shall carry them away,
And the whirlwind shall scatter them;
You shall rejoice in the LORD,
And ^tglory in the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁷“The poor and needy seek water, but there is none, Their tongues fail for thirst.

I, the LORD, will hear them;
I, the God of Israel, will not ^uforsake them.

¹⁸I will open ^vrivers in desolate heights, And fountains in the midst of the valleys;

I will make the ^wwilderness a pool of water, And the dry land springs of water.

¹⁹I will plant in the wilderness the cedar and the acacia tree,
The myrtle and the oil tree;

I will set in the ^xdesert the cypress tree and the pine And the box tree together,

^{20y}That they may see and know, And consider and understand together,

That the hand of the LORD has done this,
And the Holy One of Israel has created it.

The Futility of Idols

²¹“Present your case,” says the LORD.

“Bring forth your strong reasons,” says the ^zKing of Jacob.

²²“Let^a them bring forth and show us what will happen; Let them show the ^bformer things, what they were,

That we may ⁶consider them,

And know the latter end of them;

Or declare to us things to come.

^{23c}Show the things that are to come hereafter, That we may know that you are gods;

Yes, ^ddo good or do evil,

That we may be dismayed and see it together.

²⁴Indeed ^eyou are nothing, And your work is nothing;

He who chooses you is an abomination.

²⁵“I have raised up one from the north, And he shall come;

From the ⁷rising of the sun ^fhe shall call on My name; ^gAnd he shall come against princes as though mortar, As the potter treads clay.

^{26h}Who has declared from the beginning, that we may know?

And former times, that we may say, ‘He is righteous’?

Surely there is no one who shows,

Surely there is no one who declares,

Surely there is no one who hears your words.

²⁷ⁱThe first time ^j*I said* to Zion, ‘Look, there they are!’

And I will give to Jerusalem one who brings good tidings.

^{28k}For I looked, and there was no man; I looked among them, but there was no counselor,

Who, when I asked of them, could answer a word.

^{29l}Indeed they are all ⁸worthless; Their works are nothing;

Their molded images are wind and confusion.

Isaiah 42

The Servant of the LORD

¹“Behold! ^aMy Servant whom I uphold, My ¹Elect One in whom My soul ^bdelights!

^cI have put My Spirit upon Him;
He will bring forth justice to the Gentiles. Word Studies: Servant

²He will not cry out, nor raise His voice,
Nor cause His voice to be heard in the street.

³A bruised reed He will not break, And ²smoking flax He will not ³quench; He will bring forth justice for truth.

⁴He will not fail nor be discouraged, Till He has established justice in the earth;

^dAnd the coastlands shall wait for His law.”

⁵Thus says God the LORD, ^eWho created the heavens and stretched them out, Who spread forth the earth and that which comes from it,

^fWho gives breath to the people on it, And spirit to those who walk on it: Article: The Holy Spirit in the Old Testament

⁶“I, ^g the LORD, have called You in righteousness, And will hold Your hand;

I will keep You ^hand give You as a covenant to the people, As ⁱa light to the Gentiles, ^{7j}To open blind eyes, To ^kbring out prisoners from the prison, Those who sit in ^ldarkness from the prison house.

⁸I am the LORD, that is My name; And My ^mglory I will not give to another, Nor My praise to carved images.

⁹Behold, the former things have come to pass, And new things I declare;

Before they spring forth I tell you of them.”

Praise to the LORD

¹⁰ⁿSing to the LORD a new song, And His praise from the ends of the earth,

^oYou who go down to the sea, and ⁴all that is in it, You coastlands and you inhabitants of them!

¹¹Let the wilderness and its cities lift up their voice,
The villages that Kedar inhabits.

Let the inhabitants of Sela sing,
Let them shout from the top of the mountains.

¹²Let them give glory to the LORD, And declare His praise in the coastlands.

¹³The LORD shall go forth like a mighty man; He shall stir up His zeal like a man of war.

He shall cry out, ^pyes, shout aloud;
He shall prevail against His enemies.

Promise of the LORD's Help

¹⁴"I have held My peace a long time, I have been still and restrained Myself.

Now I will cry like a woman in ⁵labor, I will pant and gasp at once.

¹⁵I will lay waste the mountains and hills, And dry up all their vegetation;

I will make the rivers coastlands,
And I will dry up the pools.

¹⁶I will bring the blind by a way they did not know; I will lead them in paths they have not known.

I will make darkness light before them,
And crooked places straight.

These things I will do for them,
And not forsake them.

¹⁷They shall be ^qturned back, They shall be greatly ashamed,
Who trust in carved images,
Who say to the molded images,
'You are our gods.'

¹⁸"Hear, you deaf; And look, you blind, that you may see.

^{19r}Who is blind but My servant, Or deaf as My messenger whom I send?

Who is blind as he who is perfect,
And blind as the LORD's servant?

²⁰Seeing many things, ^sbut you do not observe; Opening the ears, but he does not hear.”

Israel's Obstinate Disobedience

²¹The LORD is well pleased for His righteousness' sake; He will exalt the law and make it honorable.

²²But this is a people robbed and plundered; All of them are ⁶snared in holes,

And they are hidden in prison houses;

They are for prey, and no one delivers;

For plunder, and no one says, “Restore!”

²³Who among you will give ear to this?

Who will listen and hear for the time to come?

²⁴Who gave Jacob for plunder, and Israel to the robbers?

Was it not the LORD,

He against whom we have sinned?

^tFor they would not walk in His ways,

Nor were they obedient to His law.

²⁵Therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger

And the strength of battle;

^uIt has set him on fire all around,

^vYet he did not know;

And it burned him,

Yet he did not take it to ^wheart.

Isaiah 43

The Redeemer of Israel

¹But now, thus says the LORD, who created you, O Jacob,
And He who formed you, O Israel:

“Fear not, ^afor I have redeemed you;

^bI have called you by your name; You are Mine.

^{2c}When you pass through the waters, ^dI will be with you; And through the rivers, they shall not overflow you.

When you ^ewalk through the fire, you shall not be burned,
Nor shall the flame scorch you.

³For I am the LORD your God, The Holy One of Israel, your Savior;

^fI gave Egypt for your ransom,
Ethiopia and Seba in your place.

⁴Since you were precious in My sight, You have been honored,

And I have ^gloved you;

Therefore I will give men for you,

And people for your life.

^{5h}Fear not, for I am with you; I will bring your descendants from the east,

And ⁱgather you from the west;

⁶I will say to the ^jnorth, ‘Give them up!’

And to the south, ‘Do not keep them back!’

Bring My sons from afar,

And My daughters from the ends of the earth—

⁷Everyone who is ^kcalled by My name, Whom ^lI have created for My glory;

I have formed him, yes, I have made him.”

^{8m}Bring out the blind people who have eyes, And the ⁿdeaf who have ears.

⁹Let all the nations be gathered together,
And let the people be assembled.

^oWho among them can declare this,

And show us former things?

Let them bring out their witnesses, that they may be justified;

Or let them hear and say, “It is truth.”

¹⁰“You^p are My witnesses,” says the LORD, ^q“And My servant whom I have chosen,
That you may know and ^rbelieve Me,
And understand that I am He.
Before Me there was no God formed,
Nor shall there be after Me.
¹¹I, even I, ^s*am* the LORD, And besides Me there is no savior.
¹²I have declared and saved,
I have proclaimed,
And there was no ^tforeign god among you; ^uTherefore you are My witnesses,” Says the LORD, “that I am God.
^{13v}Indeed before the day was, I am He; And there is no one who can deliver out of My hand;
I work, and who will ^wreverse it?”

¹⁴Thus says the LORD, your Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel:
“For your sake I will send to Babylon,
And bring them all down as fugitives—
The Chaldeans, who rejoice in their ships.
¹⁵I am the LORD, your Holy One, The Creator of Israel, your ^xKing.”

¹⁶Thus says the LORD, who ^ymakes a way in the sea And a ^zpath through the mighty waters, ¹⁷Who ^abrings forth the chariot and horse, The army and the power
(They shall lie down together, they shall not rise;
They are extinguished, they are quenched like a wick):
¹⁸“Do^b not remember the former things, Nor consider the things of old.
¹⁹Behold, I will do a ^cnew thing, Now it shall spring forth;
Shall you not know it?
^dI will even make a road in the wilderness And rivers in the desert.
²⁰The beast of the field will honor Me,
The jackals and the ostriches,

Because ^eI give waters in the wilderness And rivers in the desert,

To give drink to My people, My chosen.

^{21f}This people I have formed for Myself; They shall declare
My ^gpraise.

Pleading with Unfaithful Israel

²²“But you have not called upon Me, O Jacob; And you ^hhave been weary of Me, O Israel.

²³You have not brought Me the sheep for your burnt offerings, Nor have you honored Me with your sacrifices.

I have not caused you to serve with grain offerings,
Nor wearied you with incense.

²⁴You have bought Me no sweet cane with money,
Nor have you satisfied Me with the fat of your sacrifices;
But you have burdened Me with your sins,
You have ^jwearied Me with your iniquities.

²⁵“I, even I, am He who ^kblots out your transgressions ^lfor My own sake; ^mAnd I will not remember your sins.

²⁶Put Me in remembrance;
Let us contend together;
State your case, that you may be ¹acquitted.

²⁷Your first father sinned,
And your ²mediators have transgressed against Me.

²⁸Therefore I will profane the princes of the sanctuary;

ⁿI will give Jacob to the curse,
And Israel to reproaches.

Isaiah 44

God's Blessing on Israel

¹“Yet hear now, O Jacob My servant, And Israel whom I have chosen.

²Thus says the LORD who made you And formed you from the womb, who will help you:

‘Fear not, O Jacob My servant;
And you, Jeshurun, whom I have chosen.

³For I will pour water on him who is thirsty, And floods on the dry ground;

I will pour My Spirit on your descendants,
And My blessing on your offspring;

⁴They will spring up among the grass
Like willows by the watercourses.’

⁵One will say, ‘I am the LORD’s’; Another will call himself by the name of Jacob;

Another will write with his hand, ‘The LORD’s,’
And name himself by the name of Israel.

There Is No Other God

⁶“Thus says the LORD, the King of Israel, And his Redeemer, the LORD of hosts:

^a‘I am the First and I am the Last; Besides Me there is no God.

⁷And ^bwho can proclaim as I do?

Then let him declare it and set it in order for Me,

Since I appointed the ancient people.

And the things that are coming and shall come,

Let them show these to them.

⁸Do not fear, nor be afraid;

^cHave I not told you from that time, and declared it?

^dYou are My witnesses.

Is there a God besides Me?

Indeed ^e*there is* no other Rock; I know not one.’ ”

Idolatry Is Foolishness

^{9f}Those who make an image, all of them are useless, And their precious things shall not profit;

They are their own witnesses;

⁸They neither see nor know, that they may be ashamed.

¹⁰Who would form a god or mold an image ^h*That* profits him nothing?

¹¹Surely all his companions would be ⁱashamed; And the workmen, they are mere men.

Let them all be gathered together,

Let them stand up;

Yet they shall fear,

They shall be ashamed together.

^{12j}The blacksmith with the tongs works one in the coals,
Fashions it with hammers,

And works it with the strength of his arms.

Even so, he is hungry, and his strength fails;

He drinks no water and is faint.

¹³The craftsman stretches out his rule, He marks one out with chalk;

He fashions it with a plane,

He marks it out with the compass,

And makes it like the figure of a man,

According to the beauty of a man, that it may remain in the house.

¹⁴He cuts down cedars for himself,

And takes the cypress and the oak;

He ¹secures it for himself among the trees of the forest.

He plants a pine, and the rain nourishes it.

¹⁵Then it shall be for a man to burn, For he will take some of it and warm himself;

Yes, he kindles it and bakes bread;

Indeed he makes a god and worships it;

He makes it a carved image, and falls down to it.

¹⁶He burns half of it in the fire;
With this half he eats meat;
He roasts a roast, and is satisfied.
He even warms himself and says,
“Ah! I am warm,
I have seen the fire.”

¹⁷And the rest of it he makes into a god, His carved image.
He falls down before it and worships it,
Prays to it and says,
“Deliver me, for you are my god!”

¹⁸^kThey do not know nor understand; For ¹He has ²shut their eyes, so that they cannot see, And their hearts, so that they cannot ^munderstand.

¹⁹And no one ⁿconsiders in his heart, Nor is there knowledge nor understanding to say,
“I have burned half of it in the fire,
Yes, I have also baked bread on its coals;
I have roasted meat and eaten it;
And shall I make the rest of it an abomination?
Shall I fall down before a block of wood?”

²⁰He feeds on ashes;
^oA deceived heart has turned him aside; And he cannot deliver his soul,
Nor say, “Is there not a ^plie in my right hand?”

Israel Is Not Forgotten

²¹“Remember these, O Jacob, And Israel, for you are My servant;

I have formed you, you are My servant;

O Israel, you will not be ^qforgotten by Me!

^{22r}I have blotted out, like a thick cloud, your transgressions,
And like a cloud, your sins.

Return to Me, for ^sI have redeemed you.”

²³Sing, O heavens, for the LORD has done it!

Shout, you lower parts of the earth;

Break forth into singing, you mountains,

O forest, and every tree in it!

For the LORD has redeemed Jacob,

And ^uglorified Himself in Israel.

Judah Will Be Restored

²⁴Thus says the LORD, ^vyour Redeemer, And ^wHe who formed you from the womb:
“I am the LORD, who makes all things, ^xWho stretches out the heavens ³all alone, Who spreads abroad the earth by Myself;
²⁵Who ^yfrustrates the signs ^zof the babblers, And drives diviners mad;
Who turns wise men backward,
^aAnd makes their knowledge foolishness; Word Studies: diviners ^{26b}Who confirms the word of His servant, And performs the counsel of His messengers;
Who says to Jerusalem, ‘You shall be inhabited,’
To the cities of Judah, ‘You shall be built,’
And I will raise up her waste places;
^{27c}Who says to the deep, ‘Be dry!
And I will dry up your rivers’;
²⁸Who says of ^dCyrus, ‘He is My shepherd, And he shall perform all My pleasure,
Saying to Jerusalem, ^e“You shall be built,”
And to the temple, “Your foundation shall be laid.” ’

Isaiah 45

Cyrus, God's Instrument

¹“Thus says the LORD to His anointed, To ^aCyrus, whose ^bright hand I have ¹held— ^cTo subdue nations before him

And ^dloose the armor of kings,
To open before him the double doors,
So that the gates will not be shut:

²‘I will go before you

^eAnd ²make the ³crooked places straight; ^fI will break in pieces the gates of bronze And cut the bars of iron.

³I will give you the treasures of darkness And hidden riches of secret places,

^gThat you may know that I, the LORD, Who ^hcall you by your name,

Am the God of Israel.

⁴For ⁱJacob My servant’s sake, And Israel My elect,
I have even called you by your name;
I have named you, though you have not known Me.

⁵I ^j*am* the LORD, and ^k*there is* no other; There is no God besides Me.

^lI will gird you, though you have not known Me, ^{6m}That they may ⁿknow from the rising of the sun to its setting
That there is none besides Me.

I am the LORD, and there is no other;

⁷I form the light and create darkness,
I make peace and ^ocreate calamity;
I, the LORD, do all these things.’

⁸“Rain^p down, you heavens, from above, And let the skies pour down righteousness;

Let the earth open, let them bring forth salvation,
And let righteousness spring up together.

I, the LORD, have created it.

⁹“Woe to him who strives with ^qhis Maker!
Let the potsherd strive with the potsherds of the earth!
^rShall the clay say to him who forms it, ‘What are you making?’
Or shall your handiwork say, ‘He has no hands’? Word Studies: woe
¹⁰Woe to him who says to his father, ‘What are you begetting?’
Or to the woman, ‘What have you brought forth?’ ”

¹¹Thus says the LORD, The Holy One of Israel, and his Maker:
^s“Ask Me of things to come concerning ^tMy sons; And concerning ^uthe work of My hands, you command Me.
^{12v}I have made the earth, And ^wcreated man on it.
I—My hands—stretched out the heavens,
And ^xall their host I have commanded.
^{13y}I have raised him up in righteousness, And I will ⁴direct all his ways;
He shall ^zbuild My city
And let My exiles go free,
^aNot for price nor reward,”
Says the LORD of hosts.

The LORD, the Only Savior

¹⁴Thus says the LORD:

^b“The labor of Egypt and merchandise of Cush And of the Sabeans, men of stature,
Shall come over to you, and they shall be yours;
They shall walk behind you,
They shall come over ^cin chains;
And they shall bow down to you.
They will make supplication to you, saying, ^d“Surely God is in you,
And there is no other;
^e*There is* no other God.’ ”

¹⁵Truly You are God, ^fwho hide Yourself, O God of Israel, the Savior!
¹⁶They shall be ^gashamed And also disgraced, all of them;

They shall go in confusion together,
Who are makers of idols.

^{17h}But Israel shall be saved by the LORD
With an ⁱeverlasting salvation;
You shall not be ashamed or ^jdisgraced Forever and ever.

¹⁸For thus says the LORD, ^kWho created the heavens,
Who is God,
Who formed the earth and made it,
Who has established it,
Who did not create it ⁵in vain,
Who formed it to be ^linhabited:

^m*I am* the LORD, and there is no other.

¹⁹I have not spoken in ⁿsecret, In a dark place of the earth;
I did not say to the seed of Jacob,
‘Seek Me ⁶in vain’;
^oI, the LORD, speak righteousness, I declare things that are right.

²⁰“Assemble yourselves and come; Draw near together,
You who have escaped from the nations.

^pThey have no knowledge,
Who carry the wood of their carved image,
And pray to a god that cannot save.

²¹Tell and bring forth your case;
Yes, let them take counsel together.

^qWho has declared this from ancient time?
Who has told it from that time?
Have not I, the LORD?

^rAnd there is no other God besides Me, A just God and a Savior;
There is none besides Me.

²²“Look to Me, and be saved,
^sAll you ends of the earth!
For I am God, and there is no other.

^{23t}I have sworn by Myself; The word has gone out of My mouth in righteousness,
And shall not return,
That to Me every ^uknee shall bow,

^vEvery tongue shall take an oath.

²⁴He shall say,

⁷‘Surely in the LORD I have ^wrighteousness and strength.

To Him men shall come,

And ^xall shall be ashamed

Who are incensed against Him.

^{25y}In the LORD all the descendants of Israel Shall be justified, and ^zshall glory.’ ”

Isaiah 46

Dead Idols and the Living God

¹Bel ^abows down, Nebo stoops; Their idols were on the beasts and on the cattle.

Your carriages were heavily loaded,

^bA burden to the weary beast.

²They stoop, they bow down together;

They could not deliver the burden,

^cBut have themselves gone into captivity.

³“Listen to Me, O house of Jacob, And all the remnant of the house of Israel,

^dWho have been upheld by Me from ¹birth, Who have been carried from the womb:

⁴Even to your old age, ^e*I am* He, And even to gray hairs ^fI will carry you!

I have made, and I will bear;

Even I will carry, and will deliver you.

⁵“To ^gwhom will you liken Me, and make Me equal And compare Me, that we should be alike?

^{6h}They lavish gold out of the bag, And weigh silver on the scales;

They hire a ⁱgoldsmith, and he makes it a god; They prostrate themselves, yes, they worship.

^{7j}They bear it on the shoulder, they carry it And set it in its place, and it stands;

From its place it shall not move.

Though ^k*one* cries out to it, yet it cannot answer Nor save him out of his trouble. Article: Modern-day Idols

⁸“Remember this, and ²show yourselves men; ¹Recall to mind,
O you transgressors.

^{9m}Remember the former things of old, For I am God, and ⁿ*there is* no other; I am God, and there is none like

Me,

^{10o}Declaring the end from the beginning, And from ancient times things that are not yet done,

Saying, ^p‘My counsel shall stand,

And I will do all My pleasure,’

¹¹Calling a bird of prey ^qfrom the east, The man ^rwho executes My counsel, from a far country.

Indeed ^sI have spoken it;

I will also bring it to pass.

I have purposed it;

I will also do it.

¹²“Listen to Me, you ^tstubborn-hearted, ^uWho are far from righteousness: ^{13v}I bring My righteousness near, it shall not be far off; My salvation ^wshall not ³linger.

And I will place ^xsalvation in Zion,

For Israel My glory.

Isaiah 47

The Humiliation of Babylon

¹“Come ^adown and ^bsit in the dust, O virgin daughter of ^cBabylon;

Sit on the ground without a throne,
O daughter of the Chaldeans!
For you shall no more be called
Tender and ¹delicate.

^{2d}Take the millstones and grind meal.
Remove your veil,
Take off the skirt,
Uncover the thigh,
Pass through the rivers.

^{3e}Your nakedness shall be uncovered, Yes, your shame will be seen;

^fI will take vengeance,
And I will not arbitrate with a man.”

⁴As for ^gour Redeemer, the LORD of hosts is His name, The Holy One of Israel.

⁵“Sit in ^hsilence, and go into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans;

ⁱFor you shall no longer be called
The Lady of Kingdoms.

^{6j}I was angry with My people; ^kI have profaned My inheritance,

And given them into your hand.

You showed them no mercy;

^lOn the elderly you laid your yoke very heavily.

⁷And you said, ‘I shall be ^ma lady forever,’

So that you did not ⁿtake these things to heart, ^oNor remember the latter end of them.

⁸“Therefore hear this now, you who are given to pleasures,
Who dwell securely,

Who say in your heart,

‘I am, and there is no one else besides me;

I shall not sit as a widow,
Nor shall I know the loss of children’;
⁹But these two things shall come to you
^pIn a moment, in one day:
The loss of children, and widowhood.
They shall come upon you in their fullness
Because of the multitude of your sorceries,
For the great abundance of your enchantments.

¹⁰“For you have trusted in your wickedness; You have said,
‘No one ^qsees me’;
Your wisdom and your knowledge have ²warped you; And you have said in your heart,
‘I am, and there is no one else besides me.’
¹¹Therefore evil shall come upon you; You shall not know from where it arises.
And trouble shall fall upon you;
You will not be able ³to put it off.
And ^rdesolation shall come upon you ^ssuddenly, Which you shall not know.

¹²“Stand now with your enchantments And the multitude of your sorceries,
In which you have labored from your youth—
Perhaps you will be able to profit,
Perhaps you will prevail.
¹³You are wearied in the multitude of your counsels; Let now ^uthe⁴ astrologers, the stargazers, And ⁵the monthly prognosticators Stand up and save you
From what shall come upon you.

¹⁴Behold, they shall be ^vas stubble, The fire shall ^wburn them;

They shall not deliver themselves
From the power of the flame;
It shall not be a coal to be warmed by,
Nor a fire to sit before!
¹⁵Thus shall they be to you
With whom you have labored,
^xYour merchants from your youth;
They shall wander each one to his ⁶quarter.
No one shall save you.

Isaiah 48

Israel Refined for God's Glory

¹“Hear this, O house of Jacob,
Who are called by the name of Israel,
And have come forth from the wellsprings of Judah;
Who swear by the name of the LORD,
And make mention of the God of Israel,
But ^anot in truth or in righteousness; ²For they call themselves
^bafter the holy city, And ^clean on the God of Israel;
The LORD of hosts is His name:

³“I have ^ddeclared the former things from the beginning; They went forth from My mouth, and I caused them to hear it.

Suddenly I did them, ^eand they came to pass.

⁴Because I knew that you were ¹obstinate, And ^fyour neck was an iron sinew, And your brow bronze,

⁵Even from the beginning I have declared it to you; Before it came to pass I proclaimed it to you,
Lest you should say, ‘My idol has done them,
And my carved image and my molded image
Have commanded them.’ Article: The Purpose of Prophecy

⁶“You have heard;

See all this.

And will you not declare it?

I have made you hear new things from this time,
Even hidden things, and you did not know them.

⁷They are created now and not from the beginning; And before this day you have not heard them,
Lest you should say, ‘Of course I knew them.’

⁸Surely you did not hear,

Surely you did not know;

Surely from long ago your ear was not opened.

For I knew that you would deal very treacherously,

And were called ^ga transgressor from the womb.

⁹“For^h My name’s sake ⁱI will ²defer My anger, And for My praise I will restrain it from you,
So that I do not cut you off.

¹⁰Behold, ^jI have refined you, but not as silver; I have tested you in the ^kfurnace of affliction.

¹¹For My own sake, for My own sake, I will do it;
For ^lhow should My name be profaned?
And ^mI will not give My glory to another.

God’s Ancient Plan to Redeem Israel

¹²“Listen to Me, O Jacob, And Israel, My called:
I am He, ⁿI am the ^oFirst, I am also the Last.

¹³Indeed ^pMy hand has laid the foundation of the earth, And My right hand has stretched out the heavens;
When ^qI call to them,
They stand up together.

¹⁴“All of you, assemble yourselves, and hear!
Who among them has declared these things?

^rThe LORD loves him; ^sHe shall do His pleasure on Babylon,
And His arm shall be against the Chaldeans.

¹⁵I, even I, have spoken; Yes, ^tI have called him,
I have brought him, and his way will prosper.

¹⁶“Come near to Me, hear this: ^uI have not spoken in secret from the beginning; From the time that it was, I was there.

And now ^vthe Lord GOD and His Spirit ³Have sent Me.”

¹⁷Thus says ^wthe LORD, your Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel:

“I am the LORD your God,
Who teaches you to profit,

^xWho leads you by the way you should go.

^{18y}Oh, that you had heeded My commandments!

^zThen your peace would have been like a river, And your righteousness like the waves of the sea.

^{19a}Your descendants also would have been like the sand, And the offspring of your body like the grains of sand;
His name would not have been cut off
Nor destroyed from before Me.”

^{20b}Go forth from Babylon!
Flee from the Chaldeans!
With a voice of singing,
Declare, proclaim this,
Utter it to the end of the earth;
Say, “The LORD has ^credeemed His servant Jacob!”
²¹And they ^ddid not thirst When He led them through the deserts;
He ^ecaused the waters to flow from the rock for them; He also split the rock, and the waters gushed out.

²²“There ^fis no peace,” says the LORD, “for the wicked.”

Isaiah 49

The Servant, the Light to the Gentiles

¹“Listen, ^aO coastlands, to Me, And take heed, you peoples from afar!

^bThe LORD has called Me from the womb; From the ¹matrix of My mother He has made mention of My name.

²And He has made ^cMy mouth like a sharp sword; ^dIn the shadow of His hand He has hidden Me, And made Me ^ea polished shaft;

In His quiver He has hidden Me.”

³“And He said to me,

^f‘You are My servant, O Israel, ^gIn whom I will be glorified.’

^{4h}Then I said, ‘I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nothing and in vain;

Yet surely my ²just reward is with the LORD, And my ³work with my God.’ ”

⁵“And now the LORD says, Who formed Me from the womb to be His Servant,

To bring Jacob back to Him,

So that Israel ⁱis ⁴gathered to Him (For I shall be glorious in the eyes of the LORD,

And My God shall be My strength),

⁶Indeed He says,

‘It is too small a thing that You should be My Servant

To raise up the tribes of Jacob,

And to restore the preserved ones of Israel;

I will also give You as a ^jlight to the Gentiles, That You should be My salvation to the ends of the earth.’ ” Word

Studies: salvation

⁷Thus says the LORD, The Redeemer of Israel, ⁵their Holy One, ^kTo Him ⁶whom man despises, To Him whom the nation abhors,

To the Servant of rulers:
¹“Kings shall see and arise,
Princes also shall worship,
Because of the LORD who is faithful,
The Holy One of Israel;
And He has chosen You.”

⁸Thus says the LORD:

“In an ^macceptable⁷ time I have heard You, And in the day of salvation I have helped You;
I will ⁸preserve You ⁿand give You As a covenant to the people,
To restore the earth,
To cause them to inherit the desolate ⁹heritages; ⁹That You may say ^oto
the prisoners, ‘Go forth,’
To those who are in darkness, ‘Show yourselves.’

“They shall feed along the roads,
And their pastures shall be on all desolate heights.

¹⁰They shall neither ^phunger nor thirst, ^qNeither heat nor sun shall strike them; For He who has mercy on them ^rwill lead them, Even by the springs of water He will guide them.

^{11s}I will make each of My mountains a road, And My highways shall be elevated.

¹²Surely ^tthese shall come from afar; Look! Those from the north and the west,
And these from the land of Sinim.”

^{13u}Sing, O heavens!
Be joyful, O earth!
And break out in singing, O mountains!
For the LORD has comforted His people,
And will have mercy on His afflicted.

God Will Remember Zion

^{14v}But Zion said, “The LORD has forsaken me, And my Lord has forgotten me.”

¹⁵“Can^w a woman forget her nursing child, ¹⁰And not have compassion on the son of her womb?

Surely they may forget,

^xYet I will not forget you.

¹⁶See, ^yI have inscribed you on the palms of My hands;
Your walls are continually before Me.

¹⁷Your ¹¹sons shall make haste; Your destroyers and those who laid you waste Shall go away from you.

^{18z}Lift up your eyes, look around and see; All these gather together and come to you.

As I live,” says the LORD,

“You shall surely clothe yourselves with them all ^aas an ornament, And bind them on you as a bride does.

¹⁹“For your waste and desolate places, And the land of your destruction, ^bWill even now be too small for the inhabitants; And those who swallowed you up will be far away.

^{20c}The children you will have, ^dAfter you have lost the others,
Will say again in your ears,
‘The place is too small for me;
Give me a place where I may dwell.’

²¹Then you will say in your heart,
‘Who has begotten these for me,
Since I have lost my children and am desolate,
A captive, and wandering to and fro?
And who has brought these up?
There I was, left alone;
But these, where were they?’ ”

^{22e}Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, I will lift My hand in an oath to the nations,
And set up My ¹²standard for the peoples; They shall bring your sons in their ¹³arms, And your daughters shall be carried on their shoulders;

^{23f}Kings shall be your foster fathers, And their queens your nursing mothers;

They shall bow down to you with their faces to the earth,
And ^glick up the dust of your feet.

Then you will know that I am the LORD,

^hFor they shall not be ashamed who wait for Me.”

²⁴ⁱShall the prey be taken from the mighty, Or the captives ¹⁴of the righteous be delivered?

²⁵But thus says the LORD:

“Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away,
And the prey of the terrible be delivered;
For I will contend with him who contends with you,
And I will save your children.

²⁶I will ^jfeed those who oppress you with their own flesh, And they shall be drunk with their own ^kblood as with sweet wine.

All flesh ^lshall know

That I, the LORD, am your Savior,

And your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.”

Isaiah 50

The Servant, Israel's Hope

¹Thus says the LORD:

“Where is ^athe certificate of your mother’s divorce, Whom I have put away?

Or which of My ^bcreditors is it to whom I have sold you?

For your iniquities ^cyou have sold yourselves, And for your transgressions your mother has been put away.

²Why, when I came, was there no man?

Why, when I called, was there none to answer?

Is My hand shortened at all that it cannot redeem?

Or have I no power to deliver?

Indeed with My ^drebuke I dry up the sea, I make the rivers a wilderness;

Their fish stink because there is no water,

And die of thirst.

^{3e}I clothe the heavens with blackness, ^fAnd I make sackcloth their covering.” Word Studies: sackcloth

⁴“The^g Lord GOD has given Me The tongue of the learned,

That I should know how to speak

A word in season to him who is ^hweary.

He awakens Me morning by morning,

He awakens My ear
To hear as the learned.

⁵The Lord GOD ⁱhas opened My ear; And I was not ^jrebellious,
Nor did I turn away.

^{6k}I gave My back to those who struck Me,
And ^lMy cheeks to those who plucked out the beard; I did not hide My face from shame and ^mspitting.

⁷“For the Lord GOD will help Me; Therefore I will not be disgraced; Therefore ⁿI have set My face like a flint, And I know that I will not be ashamed.

^{8o}He is near who justifies Me; Who will contend with Me?

Let us stand together.

Who is ¹My adversary?

Let him come near Me.

⁹Surely the Lord GOD will help Me; Who is he who will condemn Me?

^pIndeed they will all grow old like a garment; ^qThe moth will eat them up.

¹⁰“Who among you fears the LORD?

Who obeys the voice of His Servant?

Who ^rwalks in darkness

And has no light?

^sLet him trust in the name of the LORD

And rely upon his God.

¹¹Look, all you who kindle a fire, Who encircle yourselves with sparks:

Walk in the light of your fire and in the sparks you have kindled—

^tThis you shall have from My hand:

You shall lie down ^uin torment.

Isaiah 51

The LORD Comforts Zion

(cf. Gen. 12:1–3)

¹“Listen to Me, ^ayou who ¹follow after righteousness, You who seek the LORD:

Look to the rock from which you were hewn,
And to the hole of the pit from which you were dug.

^{2b}Look to Abraham your father, And to Sarah who bore you;

^cFor I called him alone,
And ^dblessed him and increased him.”

³For the LORD will ^ecomfort Zion, He will comfort all her waste places;

He will make her wilderness like Eden,
And her desert ^flike the garden of the LORD; Joy and gladness will be found in it,
Thanksgiving and the voice of melody.

⁴“Listen to Me, My people; And give ear to Me, O My nation:

^gFor law will proceed from Me,
And I will make My justice rest

^hAs a light of the peoples.

⁵ⁱMy righteousness is near, My salvation has gone forth,

^jAnd My arms will judge the peoples;

^kThe coastlands will wait upon Me,

And ^lon My arm they will trust.

^{6m}Lift up your eyes to the heavens, And look on the earth beneath.

For ⁿthe heavens will vanish away like smoke, ^oThe earth will grow old like a garment, And those who dwell in it will die in like manner;

But My salvation will be ^pforever,
And My righteousness will not be ²abolished.

⁷“Listen to Me, you who know righteousness, You people ^qin whose heart is My law: ^rDo not fear the reproach of men, Nor be afraid of their insults.

⁸For ^sthe moth will eat them up like a garment, And the worm will eat them like wool;
But My righteousness will be forever,
And My salvation from generation to generation.”

⁹Awake, awake, ^uput on strength, O arm of the LORD!
Awake ^vas in the ancient days,
In the generations of old.

^wAre You not the arm that cut ^xRahab apart, And wounded the ^yserpent?

¹⁰Are You not the One who ^zdried up the sea, The waters of the great deep;
That made the depths of the sea a road
For the redeemed to cross over?

¹¹So ^athe ransomed of the LORD shall return, And come to Zion with singing,
With everlasting joy on their heads.
They shall obtain joy and gladness;
Sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

¹²“I, even I, am He ^bwho comforts you.
Who are you that you should be afraid
^cOf a man who will die,
And of the son of a man who will be made ^dlike grass?

¹³And ^eyou forget the LORD your Maker, ^fWho stretched out the heavens
And laid the foundations of the earth;
You have feared continually every day
Because of the fury of the oppressor,
When he has prepared to destroy.

^gAnd where is the fury of the oppressor?

¹⁴The captive exile hastens, that he may be loosed, ^hThat he should not die in the pit,
And that his bread should not fail.

¹⁵But I am the LORD your God, Who ⁱdivided the sea whose waves roared— The LORD of hosts is His name.
¹⁶And ^jI have put My words in your mouth; ^kI have covered you with the shadow of My hand, ^lThat I may ³plant the heavens, Lay the foundations of the earth,
And say to Zion, ‘You are My people.’ ”

God’s Fury Removed

^{17m}Awake, awake!
Stand up, O Jerusalem,
You who ⁿhave drunk at the hand of the LORD
The cup of His fury;
You have drunk the dregs of the cup of trembling,
And drained it out.
¹⁸*There is* no one to guide her
Among all the sons she has brought forth;
Nor is there any who takes her by the hand
Among all the sons she has brought up.
^{19o}These two things have come to you; Who will be sorry for you?— Desolation and destruction, famine and sword
^pBy whom will I comfort you?
^{20q}Your sons have fainted, They lie at the head of all the streets,
Like an antelope in a net;
They are full of the fury of the LORD,
The rebuke of your God.

²¹Therefore please hear this, you afflicted, And drunk ^rbut not with wine.
²²Thus says your Lord,
The LORD and your God,
Who ^spleads the cause of His people: “See, I have taken out of your hand
The cup of trembling,
The dregs of the cup of My fury;
You shall no longer drink it.
^{23t}But I will put it into the hand of those who afflict you, Who have said to ⁴you,

'Lie down, that we may walk over you.'
And you have laid your body like the ground,
And as the street, for those who walk over."

Isaiah 52

God Redeems Jerusalem

¹Awake, awake!

Put on your strength, O Zion;

Put on your beautiful garments,

O Jerusalem, the holy city!

For the uncircumcised ^aand the unclean Shall no longer come to you.

^{2b}Shake yourself from the dust, arise; Sit down, O Jerusalem!

^cLoose yourself from the bonds of your neck, O captive daughter of Zion!

³For thus says the LORD:

^d“You have sold yourselves for nothing, And you shall be redeemed ^ewithout money.”

⁴For thus says the Lord GOD:

“My people went down at first

Into ^fEgypt to ¹dwell there; Then the Assyrian oppressed them without cause.

⁵Now therefore, what have I here,” says the LORD, “That My people are taken away for nothing?”

Those who rule over them

²Make them wail,” says the LORD, “And My name is ^gblasphemed continually every day.

⁶Therefore My people shall know My name; Therefore they shall know in that day

That I am He who speaks:

‘Behold, it is I.’ ”

^{7h}How beautiful upon the mountains Are the feet of him who brings good news,

Who proclaims peace,

Who brings glad tidings of good things,

Who proclaims salvation,

Who says to Zion,

ⁱ“Your God reigns!”

⁸Your watchmen shall lift up their voices,

With their voices they shall sing together;

For they shall see eye to eye

When the LORD brings back Zion.

⁹Break forth into joy, sing together,

You waste places of Jerusalem!

For the LORD has comforted His people,

He has redeemed Jerusalem.

^{10j}The LORD has ³made bare His holy arm In the eyes of ^kall the nations;

And all the ends of the earth shall see

The salvation of our God.

^{11l}Depart! Depart! Go out from there, Touch no unclean thing;

Go out from the midst of her,

^mBe clean,

You who bear the vessels of the LORD.

¹²For ⁿyou shall not go out with haste, Nor go by flight;

^oFor the LORD will go before you, ^pAnd the God of Israel will be your rear guard.

The Sin-Bearing Servant

¹³Behold, ^qMy Servant shall ⁴deal prudently; ^rHe shall be exalted and ⁵extolled and be very high. [Article: The Suffering

Servant](#)

¹⁴Just as many were astonished at you, So His ^svisage⁶ was marred more than any man, And His form more than the sons of men;

¹⁵So shall He ⁷sprinkle many nations.

Kings shall shut their mouths at Him;

For ^uwhat had not been told them they shall see, And what they had not heard they shall consider.

Isaiah 53

¹Who ^ahas believed our report?
And to whom has the arm of the LORD been revealed?
²For He shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, And as a root out of dry ground.
He has no ¹form or ²comeliness; And when we see Him,
There is no ³beauty that we should desire Him.
^{3b}He is despised and ⁴rejected by men, A Man of ⁵sorrows and ^cacquainted with ⁶grief.
And we hid, as it were, our faces from Him;
He was despised, and ^dwe did not esteem Him.

⁴Surely ^eHe has borne our ⁷griefs And carried our ⁸sorrows;
Yet we ⁹esteemed Him stricken, ¹⁰Smitten by God, and afflicted.

⁵But He was ^fwounded¹¹ for our transgressions, He was ¹²bruised for our iniquities; The chastisement for our peace was upon Him,
And by His ^gstripes¹³ we are healed.

⁶All we like sheep have gone astray; We have turned, every one, to his own way;
And the LORD ¹⁴has laid on Him the iniquity of us all.

⁷He was oppressed and He was afflicted, Yet ^hHe opened not
His mouth; ⁱHe was led as a lamb to the slaughter,
And as a sheep before its shearers is silent,
So He opened not His mouth.

⁸He was ^jtaken from ¹⁵prison and from judgment, And who will declare His generation?
For ^kHe was cut off from the land of the living; For the transgressions of My people He was stricken.

^{9l}And ¹⁶they made His grave with the wicked— But with the rich at His death,
Because He had done no violence,
Nor was any ^mdeceit in His mouth.

¹⁰Yet it pleased the LORD to ¹⁷bruise Him; He has put Him to grief.

When You make His soul ⁿan offering for sin, He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days,

And the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in His hand.

¹¹¹⁸He shall see the labor of His soul, and be satisfied.

By His knowledge ^oMy righteous ^pServant shall ^qjustify many,
For He shall bear their iniquities.

¹²^rTherefore I will divide Him a portion with the great, ^sAnd
He shall divide the ¹⁹spoil with the strong, Because He ^tpoured out His soul unto death, And He was ^unumbered with the transgressors, And He bore the sin of many,

And ^vmade intercession for the transgressors. Charts and Diagrams: The Suffering Servant

Isaiah 54

A Perpetual Covenant of Peace

- ¹“Sing, O ^abarren, You who have not borne!
Break forth into singing, and cry aloud,
You who have not labored with child!
For more are the children of the desolate
Than the children of the married woman,” says the LORD.
- ²“Enlarge^b the place of your tent, And let them stretch out the curtains of your dwellings;
Do not spare;
Lengthen your cords,
And strengthen your stakes.
- ³For you shall expand to the right and to the left, And your descendants will ^cinherit the nations, And make the desolate cities inhabited. Word Studies: inherit
- ⁴“Do^d not fear, for you will not be ashamed; Neither be disgraced, for you will not be put to shame;
For you will forget the shame of your youth,
And will not remember the reproach of your widowhood anymore.
- ^{5e}For your Maker is your husband, The LORD of hosts is His
name;
And your Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel;
He is called ^fthe God of the whole earth.
- ⁶For the LORD ^ghas called you Like a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit,
Like a youthful wife when you were refused,”
Says your God.
- ⁷“For^h a mere moment I have forsaken you, But with great mercies ⁱI will gather you.
- ⁸With a little wrath I hid My face from you for a moment; ^jBut with everlasting kindness I will have mercy on you,”
Says the LORD, your Redeemer.
- ⁹“For this is like the waters of ^kNoah to Me; For as I have sworn

That the waters of Noah would no longer cover the earth,

So have I sworn
That I would not be angry with ¹you, nor rebuke you.
¹⁰For ^mthe mountains shall depart And the hills be removed, ⁿBut My kindness shall not depart from you, Nor shall My covenant of peace be removed,”
Says the LORD, who has mercy on you.

¹¹“O you afflicted one, Tossed with tempest, and not comforted,
Behold, I will lay your stones with ^ocolorful gems, And lay your foundations with sapphires.

¹²I will make your pinnacles of rubies,
Your gates of crystal,
And all your walls of precious stones.

¹³All your children shall be ^ptaught by the LORD, And ^qgreat shall be the peace of your children.

¹⁴In righteousness you shall be established;
You shall be far from oppression, for you shall not fear;
And from terror, for it shall not come near you.

¹⁵Indeed they shall surely assemble, but not because of Me.
Whoever assembles against you shall ^rfall for your sake.

¹⁶“Behold, I have created the blacksmith
Who blows the coals in the fire,
Who brings forth an ¹instrument for his work; And I have created the ²spoiler to destroy.

¹⁷No weapon formed against you shall ^sprosper, And every tongue which rises against you in judgment
You shall condemn.
This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD, ^tAnd their righteousness is from Me,”
Says the LORD.

Isaiah 55

An Invitation to Abundant Life

¹“Ho! ^aEveryone who thirsts, Come to the waters;
And you who have no money,

^bCome, buy and eat.

Yes, come, buy wine and milk

Without money and without price.

²Why do you ¹spend money for what is not bread, And your wages for what does not satisfy?

Listen carefully to Me, and eat what is good,

And let your soul delight itself in abundance.

³Incline your ear, and ^ccome to Me.

Hear, and your soul shall live;

^dAnd I will make an everlasting covenant with you— The ^esure mercies of David.

⁴Indeed I have given him as ^fa witness to the people, ^gA leader and commander for the people.

^{5h}Surely you shall call a nation you do not know, ⁱAnd nations who do not know you shall run to you, Because of the LORD your God,

And the Holy One of Israel;

^jFor He has glorified you.”

^{6k}Seek the LORD while He may be ^lfound, Call upon Him while He is near.

^{7m}Let the ²wicked forsake his way, And the unrighteous man ⁿhis thoughts; Let him return to the LORD,

^oAnd He will have mercy on him; And to our God,

For He will abundantly pardon.

⁸“For^p My thoughts are not your thoughts, Nor are your ways
My ways,” says the LORD.

⁹“For^q as the heavens are higher than the earth, So are My ways higher than your ways,

And My thoughts than your thoughts.

¹⁰“For ^r*as* the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven,
And do not return there,

But water the earth,
And make it bring forth and bud,
That it may give seed to the sower
And bread to the eater,

¹¹^sSo shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; It shall not return to Me ³void, But it shall accomplish what I please,
And it shall ^tprosper in the thing for which I sent it.

¹²“For^u you shall go out with joy, And be led out with peace;

The mountains and the hills
Shall ^vbreak forth into singing before you, And ^wall the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

^{13x}Instead of ^ythe thorn shall come up the cypress tree, And instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree;
And it shall be to the LORD ^zfor a name, For an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.” Word Studies: sign

Isaiah 56

Salvation for the Gentiles

¹Thus says the LORD:

“Keep justice, and do righteousness,

^aFor My salvation is about to come, And My righteousness to be revealed.

²Blessed is the man who does this, And the son of man who lays hold on it;

^bWho keeps from defiling the Sabbath, And keeps his hand from doing any evil.”

³Do not let ^cthe son of the foreigner Who has joined himself to the LORD

Speak, saying,

“The LORD has utterly separated me from His people”;

Nor let the ^deunuch say,

“Here I am, a dry tree.”

⁴For thus says the LORD: “To the eunuchs who keep My Sabbaths, And choose what pleases Me, And hold fast My covenant,

⁵Even to them I will give in ^eMy house And within My walls a place ^fand a name Better than that of sons and daughters;

I will give ¹them an everlasting name That shall not be cut off.

⁶“Also the sons of the foreigner

Who join themselves to the LORD, to serve Him,

And to love the name of the LORD, to be His servants—

Everyone who keeps from defiling the Sabbath,

And holds fast My covenant—

⁷Even them I will ^gbring to My holy mountain, And make them joyful in My ^hhouse of prayer.

ⁱTheir burnt offerings and their sacrifices Will be ^jaccepted on My altar; For ^kMy house shall be called a house of prayer ^lfor all nations.”

⁸The Lord GOD, ^mwho gathers the outcasts of Israel, says, ⁿ“Yet I will gather to him Others besides those who are gathered to him.”

Israel's Irresponsible Leaders

⁹_o All you beasts of the field, come to devour, All you beasts in the forest.

¹⁰ His watchmen are ^pblind, They are all ignorant;

^q They are all dumb dogs, They cannot bark;

² Sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber.

¹¹ Yes, they are ^rgreedy³ dogs Which ^snever⁴ have enough.

And they are shepherds

Who cannot understand;

They all look to their own way,

Every one for his own gain,

From his own territory.

¹² “Come,” one says, “I will bring wine,

And we will fill ourselves with intoxicating ^tdrink;

^u Tomorrow will be ^vas today, And much more abundant.”

Isaiah 57

Israel's Futile Idolatry

- ¹The righteous perishes,
And no man takes it to heart;
^aMerciful men are taken away, ^bWhile no one considers
That the righteous is taken away from ¹evil.
²He shall enter into peace; They shall rest in ^ctheir beds, Each one walking in his uprightness.
- ³“But come here, ^dYou sons of the sorceress,
You offspring of the adulterer and the harlot!
⁴Whom do you ridicule?
Against whom do you make a wide mouth
And stick out the tongue?
Are you not children of transgression,
Offspring of falsehood,
⁵Inflaming yourselves with gods ^eunder every green tree, ^fSlaying the children in the valleys, Under the clefts of the rocks?
⁶Among the smooth ^gstones of the stream Is your portion;
They, they, are your lot!
Even to them you have poured a drink offering,
You have offered a grain offering.
Should I receive comfort in ^hthese?
- ⁷“On ⁱa lofty and high mountain You have set ^jyour bed;

Even there you went up
To offer sacrifice.

⁸Also behind the doors and their posts You have set up your remembrance;

For you have uncovered yourself to those other than Me,
And have gone up to them;

You have enlarged your bed
And ²made a covenant with them; ^kYou have loved their bed,
Where you saw their ³nudity.
⁹^lYou went to the king with ointment, And increased your perfumes;
You sent your ^mmessengers far off, And even descended to Sheol.
¹⁰You are wearied in the length of your way; ⁿYet you did not say, 'There is no hope.'
You have found the life of your hand;
Therefore you were not grieved.

¹¹“And ^oof whom have you been afraid, or feared, That you have lied
And not remembered Me,
Nor taken it to your heart?
Is it not because ^pI have ⁴held My peace from of old That you do not fear Me?

¹²I will declare your righteousness And your works,
For they will not profit you.

¹³When you cry out,
Let your collection of idols deliver you.
But the wind will carry them all away,
A breath will take them.
But he who puts his trust in Me shall possess the land,
And shall inherit My holy mountain.”

Healing for the Backslider ¹⁴And one shall say, ^q“Heap it up! Heap it up!

Prepare the way,
Take the stumbling block out of the way of My people.”

¹⁵For thus says the High and Lofty One Who inhabits eternity, ^rwhose name is Holy: ^s“I dwell in the high and holy place,

^tWith him who has a contrite and humble spirit, ^uTo revive the spirit of the humble, And to revive the heart of the contrite ones.

^{16v}For I will not contend forever, Nor will I always be angry;
For the spirit would fail before Me,
And the souls ^w*which* I have made.

¹⁷For the iniquity of ^xhis covetousness I was angry and struck him;

^yI hid and was angry,

^zAnd he went on ⁵backsliding in the way of his heart.

¹⁸I have seen his ways, and ^awill heal him; I will also lead him,

And restore comforts to him
And to ^bhis mourners.

¹⁹“I create ^cthe fruit of the lips: Peace, peace ^dto him who is far off and to him who is near,”

Says the LORD,

“And I will heal him.”

^{20e}But the wicked are like the troubled sea, When it cannot rest,

Whose waters cast up mire and dirt.

²¹“There ^fis no peace,”

Says my God, “for the wicked.”

Isaiah 58

Fasting that Pleases God

^aTell My people their transgression, And the house of Jacob their sins.

²Yet they seek Me daily, And delight to know My ways,
As a nation that did righteousness,
And did not forsake the ordinance of their God.
They ask of Me the ordinances of justice;
They take delight in approaching God.

³‘Why^b have we fasted,’ they say, ‘and You have not seen?
Why have we ^cafflicted our souls, and You take no notice?’

“In fact, in the day of your fast you find pleasure,
And ²exploit all your laborers.

^{4d}Indeed you fast for strife and debate, And to strike with the fist of wickedness.

You will not fast as you do this day,
To make your voice heard on high.

⁵Is ^eit a fast that I have chosen, ^fA day for a man to afflict his soul?

Is it to bow down his head like a bulrush,
And ⁸to spread out sackcloth and ashes?

Would you call this a fast,
And an acceptable day to the LORD?

⁶“Is this not the fast that I have chosen: To ^hloose the bonds of wickedness, ⁱTo undo the ³heavy burdens, ^jTo let the oppressed go free, And that you break every yoke?

⁷*Is it* not ^kto share your bread with the hungry, And that you bring to your house the poor who are ⁴cast out; ^lWhen you see the naked, that you cover him, And not hide yourself from ^myour own flesh?

⁸ⁿThen your light shall break forth like the morning, Your healing shall spring forth speedily,

And your righteousness shall go before you;

^oThe glory of the LORD shall be your rear guard.

⁹Then you shall call, and the LORD will answer; You shall cry, and He will say, 'Here I am.'

"If you take away the yoke from your midst,
The ⁵pointing of the finger, and ^pspeaking wickedness, ¹⁰If you extend your soul to the hungry And satisfy the afflicted soul,

Then your light shall dawn in the darkness,
And your ⁶darkness shall be as the noonday.

¹¹The LORD will guide you continually, And satisfy your soul in drought,

And strengthen your bones;
You shall be like a watered garden,
And like a spring of water, whose waters do not fail.

¹²Those from among you ^qShall build the old waste places;
You shall raise up the foundations of many generations;

And you shall be called the Repairer of the Breach,
The Restorer of ⁷Streets to Dwell In.

¹³"If ^ryou turn away your foot from the Sabbath, From doing your pleasure on My holy day,

And call the Sabbath a delight,
The holy day of the LORD honorable,
And shall honor Him, not doing your own ways,
Nor finding your own pleasure,
Nor speaking your own words,

^{14s}Then you shall delight yourself in the LORD; And I will cause you to ^tride on the high hills of the earth, And feed you with the heritage of Jacob your father.

^uThe mouth of the LORD has spoken."

Isaiah 59

Separated from God

¹Behold, the LORD's hand is not ^ashortened, That it cannot save;

Nor His ear heavy,
That it cannot hear.

²But your iniquities have separated you from your God;
And your sins have hidden His face from you,
So that He will ^bnot hear.

³For ^cyour hands are defiled with ¹blood, And your fingers with iniquity;
Your lips have spoken lies,
Your tongue has muttered perversity.

⁴No one calls for justice, Nor does any plead for truth.
They trust in ^dempty words and speak lies; ^eThey conceive ²evil and bring forth iniquity.

⁵They hatch vipers' eggs and weave the spider's web; He who eats of their eggs dies,
And from that which is crushed a viper breaks out.

⁶^fTheir webs will not become garments, Nor will they cover themselves with their works;
Their works are works of iniquity,
And the act of violence is in their hands.

⁷^gTheir feet run to evil, And they make haste to shed ^hinnocent blood; ⁱTheir thoughts are thoughts of iniquity; Wasting and ^jdestruction are in their paths.

⁸The way of ^kpeace they have not known, And there is no justice in their ways;

^lThey have made themselves crooked paths; Whoever takes that way shall not know peace.

Sin Confessed

⁹Therefore justice is far from us, Nor does righteousness overtake us;

^mWe look for light, but there is darkness!
For brightness, but we walk in blackness!

¹⁰ⁿWe grope for the wall like the blind, And we grope as if we had no eyes;

We stumble at noonday as at twilight;
We are as dead men in desolate places.

¹¹We all growl like bears, And ^omoan sadly like doves;
We look for justice, but there is none;
For salvation, but it is far from us.

¹²For our ^ptransgressions are multiplied before You, And our sins testify against us;

For our transgressions are with us,
And as for our iniquities, we know them:

¹³In transgressing and lying against the LORD,
And departing from our God,
Speaking oppression and revolt,
Conceiving and uttering ^qfrom the heart words of falsehood.

¹⁴Justice is turned back, And righteousness stands afar off;
For truth is fallen in the street,
And equity cannot enter.

¹⁵So truth fails,
And he who departs from evil makes himself a ^rprey.

The Redeemer of Zion

Then the LORD saw it, and ³it displeased Him That there was no justice.

^{16s}He saw that there was no man, And ^twondered that there was no intercessor; ^uTherefore His own arm brought salvation for Him; And His own righteousness, it sustained Him.

^{17v}For He put on righteousness as a breastplate, And a helmet of salvation on His head;

He put on the garments of vengeance for clothing,
And was clad with zeal as a cloak.

^{18w}According to their deeds, accordingly He will repay, Fury to His adversaries, Recompense to His enemies;

The coastlands He will fully repay.

^{19x}So shall they fear The name of the LORD from the west,
And His glory from the rising of the sun;
When the enemy comes in ^ylike a flood, The Spirit of the LORD will lift up a standard against him Bible Times &

²⁰“The^z Redeemer will come to Zion, And to those who turn from transgression in Jacob,”
Says the LORD.

²¹“As^a for Me,” says the LORD, “this is My covenant with them: My Spirit who is upon you, and My words which I have put in your mouth, shall not depart from your mouth, nor from the mouth of your descendants, nor from the mouth of your descendants’ descendants,” says the LORD, “from this time and forevermore.”

Isaiah 60

The Gentiles Bless Zion

¹Arise, ^ashine; For your light has come!
And ^bthe glory of the LORD is risen upon you.

²For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, And deep darkness the people;
But the LORD will arise over you,
And His glory will be seen upon you.

³The ^cGentiles shall come to your light, And kings to the brightness of your rising.

⁴“Lift^d up your eyes all around, and see: They all gather together, ^ethey come to you; Your sons shall come from afar,
And your daughters shall be nursed at your side.

⁵Then you shall see and become radiant, And your heart shall swell with joy;
Because ^fthe abundance of the sea shall be turned to you, The wealth of the Gentiles shall come to you.

⁶The multitude of camels shall cover your land,
The dromedaries of Midian and ^gEphah; All those from ^hSheba shall come; They shall bring ⁱgold and incense,
And they shall proclaim the praises of the LORD.

⁷All the flocks of ^jKedar shall be gathered together to you,
The rams of Nebaioth shall minister to you;
They shall ascend with ^kacceptance on My altar, And ^lI will glorify the house of My glory.

⁸“Who are these who fly like a cloud, And like doves to their roosts?

^{9m}Surely the coastlands shall wait for Me; And the ships of Tarshish will come first, ⁿTo bring your sons from afar, ^oTheir silver and their gold with them, To the name of the LORD your God,

And to the Holy One of Israel,

^pBecause He has glorified you.

¹⁰“The^q sons of foreigners shall build up your walls, ^rAnd their kings shall minister to you; For ^sin My wrath I struck you, ^tBut in My favor I have had mercy on you.

¹¹Therefore your gates ^ushall be open continually; They shall not be shut day or night,
That men may bring to you the wealth of the Gentiles,
And their kings in procession.
^{12v}For the nation and kingdom which will not serve you shall perish, And those nations shall be utterly ruined.

¹³“The^w glory of Lebanon shall come to you, The cypress, the pine, and the box tree together,
To beautify the place of My sanctuary;
And I will make ^xthe place of My feet glorious.
¹⁴Also the sons of those who afflicted you
Shall come ^ybowing to you,
And all those who despised you shall ^zfall prostrate at the soles of your feet; And they shall call you The City of the LORD, ^aZion of the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁵“Whereas you have been forsaken and hated, So that no one went through you,
I will make you an eternal excellence,
A joy of many generations.
¹⁶You shall drink the milk of the Gentiles, ^bAnd milk the breast of kings; You shall know that ^cI, the LORD, am your Savior And your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

¹⁷“Instead of bronze I will bring gold, Instead of iron I will bring silver,
Instead of wood, bronze,
And instead of stones, iron.
I will also make your officers peace,
And your magistrates righteousness.
¹⁸Violence shall no longer be heard in your land, Neither ¹wasting nor destruction within your borders; But you shall call ^dyour walls Salvation, And your gates Praise.

God the Glory of His People

¹⁹“The ^esun shall no longer be your light by day, Nor for brightness shall the moon give light to you;
But the LORD will be to you an everlasting light,
And ^fyour God your glory. Word Studies: everlasting

^{20g}Your sun shall no longer go down, Nor shall your moon withdraw itself;
For the LORD will be your everlasting light,
And the days of your mourning shall be ended.

^{21h}Also your people shall all be righteous; ⁱThey shall inherit the land forever, ^jThe branch of My planting,

^kThe work of My hands,
That I may be glorified.

^{22l}A little one shall become a thousand, And a small one a strong nation.

I, the LORD, will hasten it in its time.”

Isaiah 61

The Good News of Salvation

¹“The ^aSpirit of the Lord GOD is upon Me, Because the LORD ^bhas anointed Me To preach good tidings to the poor;

He has sent Me ^cto ¹heal the brokenhearted, To proclaim ^dliberty to the captives, And the opening of the prison to those who are bound;

^{2e}To proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, And ^fthe day of vengeance of our God; ^gTo comfort all who mourn,

³To ²console those who mourn in Zion, ^hTo give them beauty for ashes, The oil of joy for mourning,

The garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness;

That they may be called trees of righteousness,

ⁱThe planting of the LORD, ^jthat He may be glorified.”

⁴And they shall ^krebuild the old ruins, They shall raise up the former desolations,

And they shall repair the ruined cities,

The desolations of many generations.

^{5l}Strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, And the sons of the foreigner

Shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers.

^{6m}But you shall be named the priests of the LORD, They shall call you the servants of our God.

ⁿYou shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, And in their glory you shall boast.

^{7o}Instead of your shame you shall have double honor,

And instead of confusion they shall rejoice in their portion.

Therefore in their land they shall possess double;

Everlasting joy shall be theirs.

⁸“For ^pI, the LORD, love justice; ^qI hate robbery ³for burnt offering; I will direct their work in truth, ^rAnd will make with them an everlasting covenant.

⁹Their descendants shall be known among the Gentiles, And their offspring among the people.

All who see them shall acknowledge them,

^sThat they are the posterity whom the LORD has blessed.”

¹⁰I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, My soul shall be joyful in my God;

For ^uHe has clothed me with the garments of salvation, He has covered me with the robe of righteousness,

^vAs a bridegroom decks himself with ornaments, And as a bride adorns herself with her jewels.

¹¹For as the earth brings forth its bud, As the garden causes the things that are sown in it to spring forth,

So the Lord GOD will cause ^wrighteousness and ^xpraise to spring forth before all the nations.

Isaiah 62

Assurance of Zion's Salvation

¹For Zion's sake I will not ¹hold My peace, And for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest,
Until her righteousness goes forth as brightness,
And her salvation as a lamp that burns. Word Studies: righteousness

^{2a}The Gentiles shall see your righteousness, And all ^bkings your glory.

^cYou shall be called by a new name, Which the mouth of the LORD will name.

³You shall also be ^da crown of glory In the hand of the LORD,

And a royal diadem
In the hand of your God.

^{4e}You shall no longer be termed ^fForsaken,²
Nor shall your land any more be termed ^gDesolate;³
But you shall be called ⁴Hephzibah, and your land ⁵Beulah;
For the LORD delights in you,
And your land shall be married.
⁵For as a young man marries a virgin,
So shall your sons marry you;
And as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride,
^hSo shall your God rejoice over you.

⁶ⁱI have set watchmen on your walls, O Jerusalem; They shall ⁶never hold their peace day or night.
You who ⁷make mention of the LORD, do not keep silent, Bible
Times & Culture Notes: Watchmen
⁷And give Him no rest till He establishes
And till He makes Jerusalem ^ja praise in the earth.

⁸The LORD has sworn by His right hand And by the arm of His strength:
“Surely I will no longer ^kgive your grain As food for your enemies;
And the sons of the foreigner shall not drink your new wine,
For which you have labored.
⁹But those who have gathered it shall eat it, And praise the
LORD;
Those who have brought it together shall drink it ^lin My holy courts.”

¹⁰Go through, Go through the gates!
^mPrepare the way for the people; Build up,
Build up the highway!
Take out the stones,
ⁿLift up a banner for the peoples!

¹¹Indeed the LORD has proclaimed To the end of the world:
^o“Say to the daughter of Zion, ‘Surely your salvation is coming;

Behold, His ^preward is with Him, And His ⁸work before Him.' ”

¹²And they shall call them The Holy People, The Redeemed of the LORD;
And you shall be called Sought Out,
A City Not Forsaken.

Isaiah 63

The LORD in Judgment and Salvation

¹Who is this who comes from Edom, With dyed garments from Bozrah,

This One who is ¹glorious in His apparel, Traveling in the greatness of His strength?— “I who speak in righteousness, mighty to save.”

²Why ^ais Your apparel red, And Your garments like one who treads in the winepress?

³“I have ^btrodden the winepress alone, And from the peoples no one was with Me.

For I have trodden them in My anger,
And trampled them in My fury;
Their blood is sprinkled upon My garments,
And I have stained all My robes.

⁴For the ^cday of vengeance is in My heart, And the year of My redeemed has come.

^{5d}I looked, but ^e*there was* no one to help, And I wondered
That there was no one to uphold;
Therefore My own ^farm brought salvation for Me; And My own fury, it sustained Me.

⁶I have trodden down the peoples in My anger,
Made them drunk in My fury,
And brought down their strength to the earth.”

God’s Mercy Remembered

⁷I will mention the lovingkindnesses of the LORD
And the praises of the LORD,
According to all that the LORD has bestowed on us,
And the great goodness toward the house of Israel,
Which He has bestowed on them according to His mercies,
According to the multitude of His lovingkindnesses.

⁸For He said, “Surely they are My people, Children who will not lie.”

So He became their Savior.

^{9g}In all their affliction He was ²afflicted, ^hAnd the Angel of His Presence saved them; ⁱIn His love and in His pity He redeemed them; And ^jHe bore them and carried them All the days of old.

¹⁰But they ^krebelled and ^lgrieved His Holy Spirit; ^mSo He turned Himself against them as an enemy, And He fought against them.

¹¹Then he ⁿremembered the days of old, Moses and his people, saying:

“Where is He who ^obrought them up out of the sea With the ³shepherd of His flock?

^pWhere is He who put His Holy Spirit within them, ¹²Who led them by the right hand of Moses, ^qWith His glorious arm,

^rDividing the water before them To make for Himself an everlasting name,

^{13s}Who led them through the deep, As a horse in the wilderness,

That they might not stumble?”

¹⁴As a beast goes down into the valley,
And the Spirit of the LORD causes him to rest,
So You lead Your people,
^tTo make Yourself a glorious name.

A Prayer of Penitence

^{15u}Look down from heaven, And see ^vfrom Your habitation, holy and glorious.

Where are Your zeal and Your strength,
The yearning ^wof Your heart and Your mercies toward me?
Are they restrained?

^{16x}Doubtless You are our Father, Though Abraham ^ywas ignorant of us, And Israel does not acknowledge us.

You, O LORD, are our Father;
Our Redeemer from Everlasting is Your name.

¹⁷O LORD, why have You ^zmade us stray from Your ways,
And hardened our heart from Your fear?

Return for Your servants' sake,
The tribes of Your inheritance.

^{18a}Your holy people have possessed it but a little while; ^bOur adversaries have trodden down Your sanctuary.

¹⁹We have become like those of old, over whom You never ruled, Those who were never called by Your name.

Isaiah 64

¹Oh, that You would ¹rend the heavens!
That You would come down!
That the mountains might shake at Your ^apresence— ²As fire burns brushwood,
As fire causes water to boil—
To make Your name known to Your adversaries,
That the nations may tremble at Your presence!
³When ^bYou did awesome things for which we did not look,
You came down,
The mountains shook at Your presence.
⁴For since the beginning of the world ^c*Men* have not heard nor perceived by the ear, Nor has the eye seen any God besides You,
Who acts for the one who waits for Him.
⁵You meet him who rejoices and does righteousness, Who remembers You in Your ways.
You are indeed angry, for we have sinned—
^dIn these ways we continue;
And we need to be saved.

⁶But we are all like an unclean thing,
And all ^eour righteousnesses are like ²filthy rags; We all ^ffade as a leaf,
And our iniquities, like the wind,
Have taken us away.
⁷And there is no one who calls on Your name, Who stirs himself up to take hold of You;
For You have hidden Your face from us,
And have ³consumed us because of our iniquities.

⁸But now, O LORD, You are our Father;
We are the clay, and You our ^gpotter; And all we are the work of Your hand.
⁹Do not be furious, O LORD, Nor remember iniquity forever;

Indeed, please look—we all are Your people!

¹⁰Your holy cities are a wilderness, Zion is a wilderness,
Jerusalem a desolation.

¹¹Our holy and beautiful ⁴temple, Where our fathers praised
You,

Is burned up with fire;

And all ^hour pleasant things ⁵are laid waste.

¹²ⁱWill You restrain Yourself because of these things, O
LORD?

^jWill You ⁶hold Your peace, and afflict us very severely?

Isaiah 65

The Righteousness of God's Judgment

¹“I was ^asought by those who did not ask for Me;
I was found by those who did not seek Me.
I said, ‘Here I am, here I am,’
To a nation that ^bwas not called by My name.

^{2c}I have stretched out My hands all day long to a ^drebellious people, Who ^ewalk in a way that is not good,
According to their own thoughts;

³A people ^fwho provoke Me to anger continually to My face;
^gWho sacrifice in gardens,
And burn incense on altars of brick;

^{4h}Who sit among the graves, And spend the night in the tombs;

ⁱWho eat swine’s flesh,
And the broth of ¹abominable things is in their vessels; ^{5j}Who say, ‘Keep to yourself, Do not come near me,
For I am holier than you!’
These ²*are* smoke in My nostrils, A fire that burns all the day.

⁶“Behold, ^k*it is* written before Me: ^lI will not keep silence,
^mbut will repay— Even repay into their bosom—

⁷Your iniquities and ⁿthe iniquities of your fathers together,”
Says the LORD,

^o“Who have burned incense on the mountains ^pAnd blasphemed Me on the hills; Therefore I will measure their former work into their bosom.”

⁸Thus says the LORD:

“As the new wine is found in the cluster,
And one says, ‘Do not destroy it,
For ^qa blessing is in it,’
So will I do for My servants’ sake,
That I may not destroy them ^rall.

⁹I will bring forth descendants from Jacob, And from Judah an heir of My mountains;

My ^select shall inherit it,
And My servants shall dwell there.

¹⁰Sharon shall be a fold of flocks, And ^uthe Valley of Achor a place for herds to lie down, For My people who have ^vsought Me.

¹¹“But you are those who forsake the LORD, Who forget ^wMy holy mountain, Who prepare ^xa table for ³Gad, And who furnish a drink offering for ⁴Meni.

¹²Therefore I will number you for the sword, And you shall all bow down to the slaughter;

^yBecause, when I called, you did not answer; When I spoke, you did not hear,

But did evil before My eyes,
And chose that in which I do not delight.”

¹³Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, My servants shall eat,
But you shall be hungry;
Behold, My servants shall drink,
But you shall be thirsty;
Behold, My servants shall rejoice,
But you shall be ashamed;

¹⁴Behold, My servants shall sing for joy of heart, But you shall cry for sorrow of heart,

And ^zwail for ⁵grief of spirit.

¹⁵You shall leave your name ^aas a curse to ^bMy chosen; For the Lord
GOD will slay you,

And ^ccall His servants by another name; ^{16d}So that he who blesses himself in the earth Shall bless himself in the God of truth;

And ^ehe who swears in the earth Shall swear by the God of truth;

Because the former troubles are forgotten,
And because they are hidden from My eyes.

The Glorious New Creation

¹⁷“For behold, I create ^fnew heavens and a new earth; And the former shall not be remembered or ⁶come to mind.

¹⁸But be glad and rejoice forever in what I create;
For behold, I create Jerusalem as a rejoicing,
And her people a joy.

^{19g}I will rejoice in Jerusalem, And joy in My people;
The ^hvoice of weeping shall no longer be heard in her, Nor the voice of crying.

²⁰“No more shall an infant from there live but a few days, Nor an old man who has not fulfilled his days;

For the child shall die one hundred years old, ⁱBut the sinner being one hundred years old shall be accursed.

^{21j}They shall build houses and inhabit them;

They shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit.

²²They shall not build and another inhabit;

They shall not plant and ^kanother eat; For ^las the days of a tree, so shall be the days of My people, And ^mMy elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.

²³They shall not labor in vain, ⁿNor bring forth children for trouble; For ^othey shall be the descendants of the blessed of the LORD, And their offspring with them.

²⁴“It shall come to pass That ^pbefore they call, I will answer;
And while they are still speaking, I will ^qhear.

²⁵The ^rwolf and the lamb shall feed together, The lion shall eat straw like the ox, ^sAnd dust shall be the serpent’s food.

They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain,”
Says the LORD.

Isaiah 66

True Worship and False

¹Thus says the LORD:

^a“Heaven is My throne, And earth is My footstool.
Where is the house that you will build Me?
And where is the place of My rest?

²For all those things My hand has made, And all those things exist,”
Says the LORD.

^b“But on this one will I look: ^cOn him who is poor and of a contrite spirit, And who trembles at My word.

³“He^d who kills a bull is as if he slays a man; He who sacrifices a lamb, as if he ^ebreaks a dog’s neck; He who offers a grain offering, as if he offers swine’s blood;

He who burns incense, as if he blesses an idol.

Just as they have chosen their own ways,
And their soul delights in their abominations,

⁴So will I choose their delusions, And bring their fears on them;

^fBecause, when I called, no one answered, When I spoke they did not hear;

But they did evil before My eyes,
And chose that in which I do not delight.”

The LORD Vindicates Zion

⁵Hear the word of the LORD, You who tremble at His word:
“Your brethren who ^ghated you, Who cast you out for My name’s sake, said,

^h“Let the LORD be glorified, That ⁱwe may see your joy.’
But they shall be ashamed.”

⁶The sound of noise from the city!

A voice from the temple!

The voice of the LORD,

Who fully repays His enemies!

⁷“Before she was in labor, she gave birth; Before her pain came,

She delivered a male child.

⁸Who has heard such a thing?

Who has seen such things?

Shall the earth be made to give birth in one day?

Or shall a nation be born at once?

For as soon as Zion was in labor,

She gave birth to her children.

⁹Shall I bring to the time of birth, and not cause delivery?"
says the LORD.

"Shall I who cause delivery shut up the womb?" says your God.

¹⁰"Rejoice with Jerusalem,

And be glad with her, all you who love her;

Rejoice for joy with her, all you who mourn for her;

¹¹That you may feed and be satisfied With the consolation of her bosom,

That you may drink deeply and be delighted

With the abundance of her glory."

¹²For thus says the LORD:

"Behold, ^jI will extend peace to her like a river, And the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream.

Then you shall ^kfeed;

On her sides shall you be ^lcarried, And be dandled on her knees.

¹³As one whom his mother comforts, So I will ^mcomfort you;
And you shall be comforted in Jerusalem."

The Reign and Indignation of God

¹⁴When you see this, your heart shall rejoice, And ⁿyour bones shall flourish like grass; The hand of the LORD shall be known to His servants,

And His indignation to His enemies.

^{15o}For behold, the LORD will come with fire And with His chariots, like a whirlwind,

To render His anger with fury,

And His rebuke with flames of fire.

¹⁶For by fire and by ^pHis sword The LORD will judge all flesh;

And the slain of the LORD shall be ^qmany.

¹⁷“Those^r who sanctify themselves and purify themselves, To go to the gardens

¹After an idol in the midst, Eating swine’s flesh and the abomination and the mouse,
Shall ²be consumed together,” says the LORD.

¹⁸“For I know their works and their ^sthoughts. It shall be that I will ^tgather all nations and tongues; and they shall come and see My glory.

^{19u}“I will set a sign among them; and those among them who escape I will send to the nations: to Tarshish and ³Pul and Lud, who draw the bow, and Tubal and Javan, to the coastlands afar off who have not heard My fame nor seen My glory. ^vAnd they shall declare My glory among the Gentiles.

²⁰“Then they shall ^wbring all your brethren ^xfor an offering to the LORD out of all nations, on horses and in chariots and in litters, on mules and on camels, to My holy mountain Jerusalem,” says the LORD, “as the children of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel into the house of the LORD.

²¹“And I will also take some of them for ^ypriests and Levites,” says the LORD.

²²“For as ^zthe new heavens and the new earth Which I will make shall remain before Me,” says the LORD,
“So shall your descendants and your name remain.

²³And ^ait shall come to pass That from one New Moon to another,

And from one Sabbath to another,

^bAll flesh shall come to worship before Me,” says the LORD.

²⁴“And they shall go forth and look Upon the corpses of the men

Who have transgressed against Me.

For their ^cworm does not die, And their fire is not quenched.

They shall be an abhorrence to all flesh.”

Annotations for Isaiah

1:1 God mediated His message through the godly Isaiah to Judah, the people of the southern kingdom—specifically to their magistrates, priests, and prophets in Jerusalem. The nation of Israel had been divided into two parts: Judah (the southern kingdom) and Israel (the northern kingdom). While Isaiah's message was primarily for the southern kingdom, it was also for the northern kingdom—the entire nation was heading down a path of sin and idolatry that would end in destruction. Thus in this book, the word Israel sometimes refers to both the southern and the northern kingdoms. Isaiah lived to see the nation of Assyria take the northern kingdom into captivity in 722 B.C. Therefore this record of Isaiah's visions contains the revelations that God graciously gave during the reigns of Uzziah (792–740 B.C.), Jotham (752–736 B.C.), Ahaz (736–720 B.C.), and Hezekiah (729–699 B.C.). Because God never changes, this revelation is still relevant for His people today.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

History in Isaiah

Isaiah delivered God's message to the people of Judah and served as adviser during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah between approximately 740 and 700 B.C. His prophetic activity focused around three major crises in Judah's history. First, in 734 B.C., Rezin, king of Syria, and Pekah, king of Israel, joined forces against Assyria. They wanted King Ahaz of Judah to join them. Isaiah counseled Judah not to join the coalition (ch. 7). Second, between 714 and 711 B.C., the ruler of the Philistine city of Ashdod led the Philistines to revolt against Assyria. Isaiah bitterly opposed any participation on the part of Judah in this rebellion (20:1–6). Third, in 701 B.C., King Hezekiah of Judah revolted against Sennacherib (705–681 B.C.), king of Assyria, who came to Judah and besieged Jerusalem. As in every crisis, Isaiah counseled faith in the Lord.

Sennacherib on his throne during the seige of Lachish. While there, he threatened King Hezekiah, but the Lord saved Hezekiah and the people of Jerusalem from the hand of Sennacherib (2 Chr. 32:1–23).

- 1:2, 3 The indictment against Judah has two parts: (1) Isaiah summons heaven and earth as witnesses to the trial (v. 2); (2) the Lord, as Plaintiff, indicts Judah, here called Israel (vv. 2, 3).
- 1:2 God's relationship with His people is personal; He likens Judah to ungrateful children (63:8; Ex. 4:22; Hos. 11:1). The Hebrew term translated rebelled means "to refuse to submit to someone's authority and rule" (63:10; 66:24).
- 1:3 Even an ox and a donkey recognize the owner who feeds them, so they do not rebel against him. But Israel, God's own children whom He "nourished and brought up" (v. 2), had rebelled against Him. Judah's rebellion was incomprehensible and inexcusable.
- 1:4 sinful nation: Despite God's divine parenting, the people had turned to sin (5:1-7). The Holy One of Israel is Isaiah's favorite title for God. The Lord is holy because He is profoundly different from all of humanity (40:25). He alone is the Creator (45:11, 12) exalted in heaven (6:1-3) and without sin (6:4-7). He alone is the righteous Judge (v. 20) and the Protector of the faithful (10:20; 43:3). Yet the phrase of Israel describes the Holy One as sustaining a relationship with His people (Ps. 40:1).
- 1:5-8 Isaiah first compares the nation's affliction to a badly wounded soldier (vv. 5, 6) and then describes its land as ravaged by war (vv. 7, 8).
- 1:5 Isaiah answers his own indignant question, Why should you be stricken again? The people would only revolt more and more. More preaching would only make their hearts hard (6:9, 10). In 53:4-6 Isaiah reveals God's gracious response to their hard hearts: the Lord will strike His Servant instead of sinners (53:4-6). Such love can win over even the toughest rebel (Rom. 5:8).
- 1:6 From foot to head means everyone and everything. Judah's wounds were not closed, bound up (bandaged), or soothed, because the people had refused to repent.
- 1:8 Daughter of Zion is a beautiful personification of Jerusalem (37:22; 60:14). Actually, the of in this phrase is somewhat misleading. "Daughter of Zion" seems to indicate that Zion has a daughter. In fact, Zion is the daughter—the daughter of the Lord. Booth and hut refer to lean-to shelters used by farmers and watchmen during the harvest.
- 1:9-17 This invitation to repent falls into three parts: (1) Isaiah's appeal to the rebellious rulers and people of Jerusalem to hear the Lord's instruction (vv. 9, 10); (2) the Lord's scathing indictment and rejection of the people's external, formalistic worship (vv. 11-17); (3) the Lord's invitation to the people to repent and do justice in order to save themselves from death (vv. 18-20).
- 1:9 The title LORD of hosts describes God as ruler over all powers in heaven and earth through His command of His angelic armies. The title is a favorite of Isaiah, for it speaks of God's holiness and sovereignty. Judah's survival was not ultimately due to an enemy's weakness but to God's power. Though God punished His sinful people, He always preserved a remnant (6:13; 10:20; 11:16) because He was faithful to keep His promise to Abraham (Gen. 22:16-18; Ex. 34:6, 7; Mic. 7:19, 20; Rom. 9:29; 11:5). The word remnant basically means "survivor" (Num. 21:35; Josh. 8:22). Sodom and Gomorra were regarded as the epitome of sinfulness; to say that Jerusalem had become like those cities was a scathing condemnation (Rev. 11:8). Elsewhere these words are used as symbols of God's final judgment upon sinners (see Amos 4:11; Matt. 10:15; 2 Pet. 2:6).
- 1:10-15 God desired sacrifices, but not from people who disobeyed Him and mistreated others, even if the sacrifice presented was the best. "To obey is better than sacrifice," said the early prophet Samuel (1 Sam. 15:22, 23). Later prophets agreed (Hos. 6:6; Amos 4:4; Mic. 6:6-8), and so did the Lord Jesus (Matt. 23:23). God judges not only our outwardly pious acts, but more importantly the attitude of our hearts (1 Cor. 4:5).
- 1:13-15 Here is an itemized condemnation of the people's sacred seasons, New Moons (Num. 28:11-15), Sabbaths (Ex. 31:14-17), and appointed feasts (Ex. 23:14-17). These feasts are condemned as futile because the people did not celebrate them out of love for God.

1:14 God sarcastically refers to the feasts as your rather than “My” New Moons because the people had changed the spirit of God’s ceremonial laws from love of Him to manipulation of Him.

1:15 God did not look with favor on the fervent spread out . . . hands of those who oppressed others, and He would not hear their many accompanying prayers (James 4:1–6).

1:16–20 The invitation to repent has two parts: (1) The people must wash themselves by seeking justice, by rebuking the oppressor, and defending the fatherless (James 1:27). (2) God Himself would wash the people if they were willing and obedient to meet this condition. As the righteous Judge, God both reproves the wicked and defends the innocent (11:4).

1:18 Reason together means “to come to a legal decision.” There is no call for a compromise here; the people were to come to an agreement with God concerning the enormous gravity of their sin. God was not declaring His people innocent of wickedness, but He was prepared to pardon their sins if they would repent and turn to Him. God offers us that same forgiveness through Jesus. Says the LORD: The verb form suggests a repeated offering of grace. Scarlet recalls the picture of “hands . . . full of blood” (v. 15). God’s grace and power can make such bloodstains as white as snow (Rom. 3:21–26).

1:19, 20 There was another side to God’s offer. If the sinful people did not repent, instead of the promise that they shall eat the good of the land (3:10) stood the threat that they shall be devoured by the sword. The promise and threat were certain because the LORD had spoken them. Here the verb has spoken indicates finality (contrast the verb says in v. 18). While God had graciously extended His offer of mercy over a significant period of time, this was the only offer God made. They could not “cut another deal” with Him (40:5; 55:11).

1:21–31 In these verses, God announced His intent to purify Israel. This announcement falls into two parts: (1) a prophecy of judgment (vv. 21–26); (2) an elaboration of God’s sentence (vv. 27–31). God’s purpose for Judah was not final destruction, but purification from social injustice (vv. 25, 26) and redemption from idolatry (vv. 27–31). Idolatry and injustice are inseparable. When people turn from trusting the fair and loving God, they will start oppressing the poor and helpless (Jer. 23:13, 14; Hos. 4:1–14; Amos 2:6–8).

1:22, 23 The debased silver and wine refer to Jerusalem’s unjust rulers.

1:25 God’s hand had effectively delivered Israel from Egypt. Now that same hand was against the people in judgment.

1:26 God’s goal for Jerusalem was that it would become a city of righteousness, a city where the Lord would be faithfully worshiped.

1:27 The Hebrew word for redeemed means “ransomed” or “freed someone from another’s ownership through the payment of a price.” Zion’s penitents, those who turned their back on idolatry and injustice, would find freedom from sin and judgment.

1:29 Idolaters shall be ashamed because the terebinth, a sacred tree, and the gardens, sacred groves for fertility rites or the worship of spirits, would fail to save them in the time of judgment (65:3).

1:30, 31 Terebinth represents both the sacred trees (v. 29) and the strong, dominating rulers of Israel. The work of it is perhaps a reference to the injustice of Israel’s tyrants (v. 23), which was the opposite of the Lord’s righteous work (5:12). no one shall quench: God will rid His creation of the proud through His gracious, purifying judgment.

2:1–5 Isaiah’s prophecy about Zion’s exaltation falls into three parts: (1) an introduction locating the vision “in the latter days” (v. 2); (2) a vision of Zion established as the chief mountain (vv. 3, 4); (3) a conclusion exhorting Judah to obey the law until the vision is fulfilled (v. 5).

2:2 Some have interpreted the phrase in the latter days as pointing to the new epoch initiated by the saving work of Christ and the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (see Acts 2:17). According to this interpretation, this prophecy will be completely fulfilled in the Second Coming of the Messiah (1 Cor. 15:28). Others interpret this passage as referring to conditions in Christ’s future kingdom. See the fuller development of this theme in Mic. 4:1–4. Just as the LORD’s house (the temple) was a type of the heavenly sanctuary (Heb. 9:24), so presumably the mountain (Mt. Zion) was a copy of a heavenly reality (Heb. 9:23, 24; 12:22–24). In the coming kingdom, the city of Jerusalem and its glorious temple will again become prominent. The false gods of pagans had sacred mountains with temples; to raise the Lord's house to the top of the mountains, or “as the chief mountain,” is to establish Him among the nations as the only true God.

2:3 By quoting the people's words, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, Isaiah vividly depicts their regenerated hearts, since the unregenerate do not seek God (see Rom. 3:11).

2:4 Plowshares probably means “hoes.” One glorious day there will be an end to all weapons, an end to all warfare. This will be possible only because of the reign of the Prince of Peace (9:6), the Savior King whose name is Jesus.

2:5 Isaiah includes himself with the godly remnant and encourages them: let us walk. Even though they could not see the glorious future of Zion, they continued to place their faith in God's promises and obey His law. Light is a metaphor for God's law, which illuminates the path that leads to everlasting life (Ps. 119:105).

Word Studies

light

(Heb. 'or) (2:5; 9:2; 58:8; Eccl. 2:13; 11:7) Strong's #216

This word refers to literal or symbolic light. The Hebrew word often denotes daylight or daybreak (Judg. 16:2; Neh. 8:3), but it can also be symbolic of life and deliverance (Job 33:28, 30; Ps. 27:1; 36:9; 49:19; Mic. 7:8, 9). In the Bible, light is frequently associated with true knowledge and understanding (42:6; 49:6; 51:4; Job 12:25), and even gladness, good fortune, and goodness (Job 30:26; Ps. 97:11). The Bible describes light as the clothing of God—a vivid picture of His honor, majesty, splendor, and glory (Ps. 104:2; Hab. 3:3, 4). A proper lifestyle is characterized by walking in God's light (2:5; Ps. 119:105; Prov. 4:18; 6:20–23).

2:6–9 The condemnation of Judah for misplaced confidence is in three parts and in the form of a prayer: (1) a judicial sentence (v. 6); (2) a condemnation of Judah's misplaced confidence in witchcraft, pagan alliances, money, weapons, and idolatry (vv. 6–9); (3) a concluding prayer that God should not forgive the people for substituting faith in the works of their own hands for faith in Him (v. 9). The Law prohibited the king from accumulating money, weapons, and alliances, in order to keep him dependent on God (Deut. 17:16, 17).

2:6 The exhortation to the house of Jacob was necessary (v. 5), for God had handed it over to destruction. You have forsaken was a present, but not a permanent, condition for the Israelites. To renounce eastern ways and soothsayers, the customs of Mesopotamia, was a hallmark of genuine faith in the God of Israel (Deut. 18:10). They are pleased could be translated “they clasp hands,” suggesting political alliances with foreigners. See 2 Kin. 16:7 for Ahaz's dependence on the Lord for salvation.

2:8 The work of their own hands refers to man-made idols in particular.

2:9 Each man humbles himself before things that are themselves debased—idols. Wanting God to uphold moral order, yet intimately knowing God's gracious character, Isaiah implored Him not to forgive those who had turned to idols.

2:10–22 Isaiah predicted that in the day of the Lord, the Lord alone would be exalted. The oracle is in three parts: (1) an introductory command to the proud to hide themselves from the terror of the Lord (vv. 10, 11); (2) a prediction that in the day of the Lord every pretension would be humbled (vv. 12–18); (3) a concluding command to the righteous to separate themselves from the proud (v. 22).

2:10 Dust symbolizes the abject humility of the defeated (47:1; Gen. 3:14; Ps 44:25). The wicked among the Israelites would grovel in the dust before the righteous Lord.

2:11 Lofty looks are the outer manifestation of proud hearts. The refrain the LORD alone shall be exalted highlights the theme of this prophecy and describes the coming, glorious revelation of the risen and exalted Savior King. In that day the Savior will be exalted above all other proud contenders.

2:12 Lifted up is translated “exalted” in v. 2. Any rival to God's exaltation will be dwarfed. The day of the LORD is any time when the Lord of Hosts is victorious (1:9). The day of the Lord has two sides: (1) the night of God's judgment and (2) the daylight of His salvation after judgment. Isaiah used the term to describe either or both aspects.

2:13–15 The cedars of Lebanon and the high mountains—the exalted things of creation—as well as the high tower and the fortified wall—the exalted things made by humanity—will be humbled so that the arrogant can see the greatness of God.

2:16 The ships of Tarshish were large oceangoing vessels—prized objects which the arrogant made and considered to be more important than God.

2:18 The term idols means “worthless things.”

2:19 holes . . . caves: People will scurry like frightened animals with no place to hide (Matt. 24:16). Terror refers to the dread of the wicked at the sight of God (Ps. 14:5).

2:22 Sever yourselves: Since God will reject proud idolaters, it follows that the faithful should also reject them. How ludicrous to trust in transitory, impermanent man, whose breath is in his nostrils, instead of in the One who gives everyone breath.

3:1–9 This judgment against Jerusalem and Judah is in two parts: (1) a judicial sentence against anarchy (vv. 1–7); (2) an accusation of arrogance (vv. 8, 9).

3:1 For links this oracle with the previous exhortation to sever a relationship with an arrogant man (2:22). God takes away Judah's leaders through the sword and exile. No historical reference is given because the truth is universal (see 2 Kin. 25:18–21).

3:2, 3 Judah's administration was organized around warriors—mighty man, man of war, captain of fifty; sages—judge, elder, honorable man, counselor; religious mediums—prophet, diviner, enchanter; and craftsmen—artisan.

3:4 Because of the Lord's judgment on Judah, the shrewd, ungodly leaders would be replaced by children and babes, meaning inexperienced and incompetent leaders.

3:5 For every one to be oppressed by another describes a state of anarchy. In such an upside-down world, child is against elder, the base against the honorable. In His judgment, the Lord has given over the wicked to their own evil ways.

3:6, 7 During this period of deprivation, society would be so deprived of leadership and possessions that people would qualify for leadership merely by having clothing.

3:8 For links the accusation (vv. 8, 9) to the judicial sentence (vv. 1–7).

3:8, 9 The people's tongue and look betray their arrogance against God.

3:9 Considered a horribly sinful city (1:9), Sodom had been destroyed by God (Gen. 19). Yet Judeans were parading their defiance against God just like the Sodomites.

3:10–15 This oracle against Judah's leaders is in three parts: (1) an affirmation that God repays good and evil (vv. 10, 11); (2) an accusation that Israel's leaders were leading people astray (v. 12); (3) a divine lawsuit against the leaders for exploiting their subjects (vv. 13–15; see 1:23).

3:10 eat the fruit: Compare this idea with 1:19.

3:12 The lamenting words My people (see v. 15) are reminiscent of David's pain over his erring son Absalom (2 Sam. 18:33).

3:13 to plead: This is a judicial term meaning to plead a case (Mic. 6:1).

3:14 The vineyard represents the nation (5:1–7), used here as a term parallel to the poor. The leaders had taken advantage of the weak in order to plunder them (v. 15).

3:15 Lord GOD of hosts: See the similar usage in 1:9.

3:16–4:1 This oracle against the vain women of Judah has three parts: (1) an accusation that the women were “haughty” and would be humbled (vv. 16, 17); (2) a list of the pretentious trappings to be done away with (vv. 18–23); (3) a depiction of Jerusalem's desolation (3:24–4:1).

3:16 The plural daughters of Zion suggests the women of the city as well as a personification of Jerusalem (see 1:8). Mincing probably means “childlike steps.” The prophet shows his scorn for pretense and flagrant display.

3:17 The term secret parts and its parallel head may mean “forehead.”

3:24–26 Rope . . . baldness . . . sackcloth refer to the conditions of the people who are going into exile. Your men refers to the men of Jerusalem. The gates of Zion mourn because its inhabitants have gone into exile for their sins.

4:1 in that day: This phrase connects this verse with the preceding unit (3:16–26). The once-proud women of Jerusalem (3:16–23) would have to beg a man to father their children and take away their reproach—the fact that they have no children. Most of the men of Jerusalem would have died in the process of defending the city (3:25).

4:2–6 The prophecy of Zion’s restoration has three parts: (1) the Branch of the Lord will be glorious (v. 2); (2) the remnant will be sanctified (vv. 3, 4); (3) the Lord will provide a protective covering over Mt. Zion (vv. 5, 6).

4:2 In that day speaks of the future revelation of the glory of the Lord on the earth (2:2–4). The Branch of the LORD has the double sense of the earth yielding its fruit and of Christ yielding spiritual fruit (11:1–5; Jer. 23:5; Zech. 3:8; John 15:1–8). Because Christ humbled Himself, He will be crowned with glory (49:7; 52:13; 53:12; Phil. 2:9–11). beautiful and glorious: Together the words indicate “dazzling beauty.” The reign of Jesus the King of Creation will be marked by plenty. The earth will be released from its curse, producing all that God intended it to produce in the beginning (Ps. 65).

4:3 recorded: The record of births in Jerusalem (Ps. 87:5, 6) may be related to the heavenly “book” (Ex. 32:32; Ps. 69:28; Dan. 7:10; Rev. 20:12).

4:4 Spirit could mean wind (the hot searing wind of fire), the human spirit, or the Holy Spirit. All three may be intended (11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22). The spirit of judgment . . . burning means “a fiery judgment.” Through the processes of a purging fire, which outwardly consumes the faithless and inwardly purifies the faithful, God will produce a holy city.

4:5 Create is something only God can do; the word also suggests a divine “refashioning.” Cloud and smoke recalls God’s protective presence at the Red Sea (Ex. 13:20–22), on the tabernacle (Ex. 40:34–38), and in the wilderness (Num. 9:15–23). Here the phrase symbolizes His protective covering over the restored and sanctified Mt. Zion. The glory of Mt. Zion in the messianic age will be bestowed by God Himself (40:5; 60:2; John 17:10, 22, 24).

4:6 Over the cloud and smoke on each dwelling will be the overshadowing tabernacle, symbolizing God’s protection of and communion with His people (Ps. 91:1; Rev. 21:3).

5:1–7 Isaiah’s “Song of the Vineyard” is in three parts: (1) an introduction to the allegory (vv. 1, 2); (2) an accusation and sentence (vv. 3–6); (3) an interpretation of the allegory (v. 7; see Ps. 80:8–16).

5:1–3 Judah is likened to a vineyard that has every advantage. Its failure to produce justifies God’s judgment (1:2, 3). Well-beloved . . . my Beloved: Isaiah speaks of the Lord in endearing terms.

Grapes and Vineyards

Grapes grew plentifully in Palestine and the Hebrews devoted much time to their vineyards. The planting, pruning, and cropping of grapevines was hard work that many people considered to be menial (2 Kin. 25:12). Yet the hill country of Judah offered grapevines a perfect climate. Walled vineyards and watchtowers came to symbolize the land of Judah.

To prepare a hillside for planting a vineyard, a farmer had to clear rocks from the ground and build stone hedges to hold the soil. The vines were planted in rows eight to ten feet apart. By forbidding farmers to gather grapes for the first three years (Lev. 19:23), Mosaic Law guaranteed that the vines would be well-tended in their formative years. After clusters began to form again, pruners cut off twigs having no fruit. Wine was squeezed in September, and the Hebrews celebrated this occasion.

A view of a well-tended vineyard in the hill country of Judah. The farmer removed the stones from the soil (Is. 5:2) in order to build the retaining wall (Ps. 80:12, 13). Most of the vines in Palestine trail on the ground, because it is believed that the grapes ripen more slowly under the shadow of the leaves.

- 5:2 The Lord, the true Vinedresser, had done everything possible to make the soil ready to grow fine grapes. The term wild grapes means “stinking things” (v. 4). This result was as unexpected as were the rebellious children of 1:2–4.
- 5:3 My vineyard: The pronoun indicates God’s love and pride over His possession—the nation of Israel. All the more reason for God’s disappointment in its infertility.
- 5:4 What more could have been done: When there is a failure in human relationships, we usually expect that both parties bear part of the responsibility. When it comes to the failed relationship between God and His people, the blame falls solely on the people. The Lord did everything He could—from instructing His people to giving them the Promised Land.
- 5:5 Please let Me tell you may be translated more forcefully as “Now I will tell you.” God was not asking for permission; He was warning His people.
- 5:6 Briers and thorns symbolize the anarchy described in 3:4, 5, that will overtake the land after the Exile. clouds: As God had promised in His covenant with Israel on Mt. Sinai, sufficient rainfall would come to the people who were faithful to His commands, but the rain would be withheld if the people were rebellious (Deut. 28:12, 23, 24).
- 5:7 justice . . . oppression: These words have similar sounds in Hebrew, as do the words righteousness and cry for help. Choosing similar sounding words is a common technique of Hebrew poetry.
- 5:8–30 This prophecy consists of six accusations or “woes” that specify the sins of “the wild grapes” (vv. 2, 4) and the nature of their acts of oppression: greed (v. 8), debauchery (vv. 11, 12), cynical unbelief (vv. 18, 19), perversion (v. 20), arrogance (v. 21), and injustice (vv. 22, 23). To these sins are added prophecies of judgment: desolation (vv. 9, 10), captivity or death for the pompous leaders (vv. 13, 14), and humiliation for all (v. 15). The conquering army is depicted in vv. 26–30.

- 5:8 Till . . . land: The greedy land barons aimed to control all of the choice land of Israel. God gave the fields, which “shall not be sold permanently, for the land is Mine” (Lev. 25:23) as a patrimony to all His people (Num. 27:7–11). Deprived of these ancestral lands, Israel’s citizens had become day laborers or slaves on what had formerly been their family inheritance.
- 5:9, 10 While invaders could destroy the mansions, only God could bring the drought implied in this verse. Yet both were judgments from His hand.
- 5:9 without inhabitant: This phrase is also found in 6:11.
- 5:10 One bath is about six gallons. A homer is about six bushels. One ephah is one-tenth of a homer. The produce of the land would be extremely meager in the time of divine judgment.
- 5:11, 12 Greed (v. 8) is closely connected with indulgent, egocentric living.
- 5:11 This verse is a strong condemnation of the abuse of intoxicating drink (beer) and wine (v. 22). For a contrasting example of wine used in a positive context of the enjoyment of God’s salvation, see 55:1.
- 5:12 The harp and the strings: For a similar idea, see Ps. 33:2. Music was played in ancient Israel both in the worship of the Lord and in times of feasting. Wine was also a part of feasting in biblical times (Prov. 9:2; John 2:10). Here their feasts means “their drinking parties.” do not regard . . . consider: The people were oblivious to the reality of the work of God in their midst (Ps. 10:4). The work of the LORD includes justice, entailing punishing the tyrants and saving the oppressed (vv. 24, 25).
- 5:13 have gone into captivity: Although the verb is in the past tense, here it refers to something still in the future—the Judeans had not yet gone into captivity. Knowledge refers to a personal involvement with someone or something. thirst: The judgment matches the crime of indulging in alcoholic beverages (see vv. 11, 12).
- 5:14 Sheol is the poetic word for “grave,” which is here compared to a gaping jaw that devours the elite rich and the common masses alike. Sheol is portrayed as a monster in Proverbs (Prov. 1:12; 27:20).
- 5:15, 16 For the exaltation of the Lord alone, see 2:9, 11, 17. The judgment of the wicked is one demonstration of His exaltation.
- 5:15 the eyes of the lofty: Proud people get little respect from God (Ps. 147:6).
- 5:17 What were formerly mansions surrounded with lush vineyards would become waste places, where lambs and fat ones, those prepared for sacrifice, feed.
- 5:18, 19 Those who mocked Isaiah’s proclamation of the day of the Lord were not simply “falling” into sin; rather, they labored to draw iniquity along, as on a cart.
- 5:20 call evil good: Those who pervert God’s evaluation of what is good by calling evil good are heading down a dangerous path—one that leads to judgment.
- 5:21 At the root of the moral, social, and theological corruption denounced in this prophecy is being wise in one’s own eyes—an insensitive, arrogant egotism.
- 5:22 mighty at drinking wine: See v. 11 on the abuse of wine. The intoxicating drink was probably beer.
- 5:23 bribe: The perversion of justice by bribery is a serious evil that undermines society.
- 5:24 As the vineyard yielding only sour grapes is finally judged, so the wicked will finally be cut off without hope.
- 5:25 The hills—that seem most permanent—trembled, even as the sea “fled” before the anger of the Lord (see Ps. 114:3, 7). Their carcasses is a grisly image of the defeated foes of God (34:3; 66:24). The Lord’s anger is not turned away even after the horrible judgments of vv. 24, 25. His hand: Often in Scripture, “the hand of God” is a symbol of His grace and salvation (Ex. 15:6). How tragic that the same hand is stretched out to punish His people.
- 5:26 The Assyrian army, which included many mercenaries (Mic. 4:11–13), literally “trampled down” (v. 5) the pleasant land of Israel. whistle: The Lord would control this army of judgment, for He would give them their signal to invade (see 7:18).

5:27–29 The preparations of the Assyrian army were complete; the soldiers were thoroughly ready for war (see 40:30, 31).

5:30 The clouds symbolize judgment.

6:1–13 Isaiah's call to be a prophet of God consists of five sections: (1) the historical setting (v. 1); (2) Isaiah's stunning vision of God (vv. 2–4); (3) his new insight into himself (v. 5); (4) his call (vv. 6–8); (5) his commission (vv. 9–13).

6:1 King Uzziah died in 740 B.C., signaling the end of an age. This good king (2 Chr. 26:1–15) would be eventually replaced by wicked Ahaz (7:1); the relative prosperity of the first half of the eighth century would be replaced by the Syro-Ephraimite wars and the Assyrian campaigns into Israel. The throne where the Lord is seated, high and exalted, represents His eternal, sovereign, and universal rule. He is high above all other kings, but at the same time He is concerned about the welfare of His people. Temple means “palace”—the Lord's throne on earth with its counterpart in heaven.

6:2 The behavior of the seraphim contrasts strongly with the pride of Uzziah (2 Chr. 26:16). All human pride is mocked by the behavior of these angels. They know that in the presence of God there is no room for pomp, no reason for pride.

Word Studies

seraphim

(Heb. saraphim) (6:2, 6) Strong's #8314

This noun is probably related to the verb saraph, which means “to burn with fire.” These angelic creatures belong to the heavenly host and are only mentioned twice in Scripture—both times in ch. 6. Apparently these beings conduct the worship of God in heaven and are different from the cherubim, who are described in Rev. 4:6–8 as surrounding God’s throne instead of standing above it, as described here (6:2). The relation of their name to burning may be due to their flaming appearance (similar to the fiery serpents of Num. 21:6; Deut. 8:15). But their name probably relates to their role in purification. Fire is a symbol for purity; appropriately one of these fiery beings purified Isaiah’s lips with a live coal (6:6).

Go to the List of Word Studies

6:3 Holy, holy, holy: To say the word holy twice in Hebrew is to describe someone as “most holy.”

To say the word holy three times intensifies the idea to the highest level. In other words, the holiness of God is indescribable in human language. To be holy means to be different, distant, or transcendent. Thus the song of the seraphim is a constant refrain that the transcendence of God is indescribable. Although the Lord is totally different from us—He is perfect—in His mercy He still reaches down to take care of us. The whole earth is full of His glory: The Hebrew word order is, “The fullness of all the earth is His glory.” We know that the glory of God transcends the universe (Ps. 113:4–6); yet in order to balance the expression of the transcendence of God in the first half of this verse, the words of the second half emphasize God’s closeness to His creation—His involvement with the earth and its people.

6:4 If even the doorposts of the heavenly temple shook in response to God’s holiness, how much more will the whole earth (v. 3) shake when the Lord visits it (Matt. 24:29, 30).

6:5 Confronted with this vision of the Lord, Isaiah realized that he was under judgment—that he was undone. He must have thought that he had come to the end of his life. I am a man of unclean lips: Isaiah knew that he was a sinner. He realized that his lips were the only ones not giving God praise in that setting. a people: Isaiah’s plight is the plight of every person. No one, in his or her present state, is capable of standing before the Holy One (Ps. 24:3). the King, the LORD of hosts: After contemplating the death of Uzziah (v. 1), Isaiah had seen the King who will never die.

6:6 The live coal . . . from the altar symbolizes both the purification of blood and the fire of the Spirit that enabled the prophet to speak. From that point on, his words would be light to his hearers and power to those who would listen. The fact that a coal from the altar was used reminds us that ultimately all sin is forgiven because of a sacrifice. The sacrifices on the temple altar point to the ultimate sacrifice of the Savior Jesus. God sovereignly and graciously forgave Isaiah’s sin.

6:7 Isaiah had a personal Day of Atonement before the Lord (Lev. 23:26–32). taken away: This word alludes to the Israelite practice of symbolically placing the sins of the people on a scapegoat and driving that goat into the wilderness (see Lev. 16). The Hebrew word translated purged means “covered” and is the same word that is translated atonement. The word refers to the process of killing an animal and sprinkling the blood on the altar for atonement.

6:8 At times, the prophets would be invited to participate in the heavenly court (see 1 Kin. 22:19–22; Jer. 23:18, 22). Here the Lord uses the pronoun Us to mean Himself and His angels (see Gen. 3:22; 11:7). Send me: In ancient Middle Eastern religions only divine beings are sent as messengers of the gods. Yet the God of Scripture uses human beings as a matter of course. Only at certain times does He use angels in a direct way to reveal His will to humankind. Isaiah’s willingness proceeded from a grateful heart; he wanted to serve the God who had forgiven him (v. 7).

6:9, 10 Paradoxically, Isaiah’s preaching to the religious and arrogant people who keep on hearing was destined to make . . . their ears heavy (42:20). Only the humble would understand the Lord’s message. The more the prophet would proclaim the word of God, the less response he would get from the people. This was a call to a very discouraging ministry. In truth, the call of God is for faithfulness to Him, to His word, and to the call itself.

6:11 Understandably, Isaiah’s third expression to the Lord (compare vv. 5, 8) was one of incredulity. He wondered how long the people would continue to be unresponsive to his words of truth from God.

6:11, 12 The answer was grim. waste . . . desolate: These words describe the coming judgment of God on Judah that would lead to the nation’s captivity under the Babylonians. Removed men . . . forsaken places describe the desolation that would follow the conquest by Babylon.

6:13 But . . . consuming: After the coming Babylonian invasion, the part of the land and the people who remained would be scorched again (5:25). This describes the return from the Exile and the subsequent troubles of Judah in the land. A tenth is one of Isaiah’s expressions for the “remnant”; it is only a small percentage of the Israelites. From Israel’s blasted stump, God would produce a holy seed (11:1), for He cannot deny the nation He has chosen (2 Tim. 2:13). An immediate fulfillment of this prophecy occurred in Isaiah’s time: King Hezekiah repented and showed himself to be part of the holy seed (see ch. 38). Ultimately, the holy seed would issue in the Beautiful Branch (11:1). This is the promise of the Savior Jesus.

7:1–12:6 This major section of Isaiah contains a series of prophecies related specifically to the Syro-Ephraimite wars—the invasion of Judah by Rezin and Pekah. These prophecies aimed to call Judah back to faith in God.

7:1 This is an editorial heading to 7:2–12:6 (see 2 Kin. 16:5). The Book of Isaiah was written over the period of the prophet’s lifetime; but chs. 7–12 were set in the context of the Syro-Ephraimite wars. Syria is the later name for the ancient nation of Aram.

7:2–8:10 This section consists of five prophecies (7:2–9, 10–17, 18–25; 8:1–4, 5–10) predicting both Judah’s deliverance from the kings of Syria and Israel and its devastation (short of annihilation) at the hand of the Assyrian king.

7:2 The phrase house of David is a substitute term for the king of Judah, Ahaz. This phrase recalls the Lord’s eternal covenant with David in which He promised to give to His servant an eternal seed, throne, and kingdom (see 2 Sam. 7:16; Ps. 89:19–37). The word Ephraim represents the northern kingdom, Israel. The heart of the nation was moved because Syria had defeated Ahaz earlier (2 Chr. 28:5).

7:3 Shear-Jashub means “A Remnant Will Return.” The name of Isaiah’s son spoke of a coming Exile and then the salvation of the remaining faithful. All this would occur long after Isaiah’s lifetime. Ahaz was probably standing at the aqueduct at the time of this encounter, seeking to secure Jerusalem’s supply of water in case of the siege (2 Chr. 32:30).

7:4 God contemptuously dismissed the arrogant kings of Israel and Syria. What Ahaz greatly feared, God considered merely stubs of smoking firebrands drawn from a bonfire. The son of Remaliah is Pekah, king of Israel (see v. 1).

7:5, 6 The plotting of Syria and Ephraim was no secret to God, who made it known to His servant Isaiah. Tabel means “Good for Nothing.” Syria and Israel wanted to place an incompetent puppet king over Judah.

- 7:7, 8 It shall not stand: The plans of humankind are futile when they oppose the will of God. Within sixty-five years suggests that one must believe that God will fulfill His promises even beyond the time of one's own death.
- 7:9 You is plural. The prophet was speaking to the royal family and the nation. Believe and established are a play on the same Hebrew word from which we get our word amen. Believing entails having knowledge of God's Word, accepting that it is true, and placing our trust in the Lord to help us keep it. Believing the Lord is the key to receiving His promises (John 14:1).
- 7:10 While Isaiah's prophecy was principally addressed to King Ahaz, it was directed to others in v. 13.
- 7:11 The sign pertains to the prediction in vv. 7–9, the demise of the power of Samaria. In the depth or in the height indicates that Ahaz could ask for any sign he wished.
- 7:12 not ask . . . test: In the mouth of the wicked Ahaz, these arrogant words rang hollow.
- 7:13 The pronoun you is plural here (see also v. 14). Thus in this verse, Isaiah is speaking to the entire royal line of David. weary: God responded to Ahaz in indignation. This petty and arrogant king dared to refuse the Lord; he would not trust in God even when his enemies surrounded him (see v. 12).
- 7:14 Again you is plural here. Isaiah turns from the king whom he has dismissed in judgment and addresses all who are present. The sign is for many. The word Lord speaks of the sovereignty of God, of His great control over all His creation. The pronoun Himself adds an absolute certainty to the impending sign. The Hebrew word rendered virgin means "a young woman of marriageable age." But the word also connotes the idea of virginity, for the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible made in the second century B.C., translates the Hebrew word with a Greek word that specifically means "virgin."

Immanuel

"Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a Son, and shall call His name Immanuel." During the Christmas season, this verse becomes a part of our common vocabulary (7:14). Most Christmas pageants recite the verse, and pastors explain the meaning of Immanuel, "God with Us." How the prophecy was fulfilled in the birth of Christ is recorded in the Gospel of Matthew (Matt. 1:23). But there are still questions that surround this prophecy. For instance, how could the birth of Jesus be a sign to Ahaz?

Sometimes unraveling biblical prophecy can be difficult. This is one of those cases; Christians have interpreted this prophecy in several different ways. Some have thought the anonymous "virgin" may refer to a royal mother—more specifically Ahaz's wife. Thus the child would be Hezekiah, Ahaz's successor. Hezekiah would be a sign to Ahaz that God was in control: The Lord was with Ahaz; He would save Judah from the enemies that surrounded Ahaz, enabling his son to inherit the throne (Is. 7:1–3). Yet the reference to the child eating "curds and honey" was a prediction of Assyria's eventual domination of Judah.

Others have identified Isaiah's wife, "the prophetess" of 8:3, as the "virgin." She was a young woman of marriageable age, another meaning of the Hebrew word translated virgin. The child in this case would be Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz. According to this view, the child's two names, Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz meaning "Speed the Spoil, Hasten the Booty," and Immanuel meaning "God with Us," symbolize judgment and salvation. In fact, Isaiah himself described his children as "signs" to the nation (see 8:18), and he delivered a similar prophecy for this son (compare 7:16 with 8:4).

Some cite the parallel between the prophecy that a “virgin shall conceive” and Jesus’ miraculous birth as evidence that this prophecy was fulfilled only in Jesus. Mary was the virgin mother; and the birth of Jesus was the sign of God’s salvation. His name would be Immanuel, “God with Us,” because Jesus was the Son of God and He lived among us (Matt. 1:23). According to this view, Isaiah’s prophecy had no fulfillment prior to Jesus’ birth (Matt. 1:18–25).

It is not uncommon for biblical prophecies to have one level of fulfillment in the immediate future, and a final fulfillment many years later in the person and work of the Savior, Jesus. Thus the pregnancy of Isaiah’s new wife and the birth of her son (Is. 8:3) could have been a sign to King Ahaz. However, this would have been a fulfillment, not the fulfillment. The prophecy was completely fulfilled in the coming of God’s only Son to the earth. He is the only Child who can truly be called Wonderful, Counselor, and Prince of Peace (see 9:6).

Go to the List of Articles

- 7:15 Curds and honey contrast with “bread and wine” from cultivated lands and symbolically represent the Judean’s simple diet after the Assyrian invasion. Thus the Child, similar to Isaiah’s son Shear-Jashub (see v. 3), would be identified with the remnant.
- 7:16 For before: Similar prophecies were spoken of the Child’s birth and Isaiah’s other son Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz (8:3); Israel and Syria would be destroyed before this child and Isaiah’s son would reach maturity (see 8:4 where Syria is referred to as Damascus and Israel as Samaria).
- 7:18 The invading hordes are likened to swarming insects—the fly and the bee—blanketing Judah, a condition fulfilled in the Assyrian invasions.
- 7:20 shave . . . the hair: This was a symbol of humiliation. Hired refers to Ahaz’s foolish idea of paying Assyria to save him from the alliance of Syria and Israel.
- 7:21, 22 in that day: This phrase can indicate times of trouble as here, or periods of blessing (as in 2:2). A young cow and two sheep out of what used to be a large herd indicates impoverishment in the time of trouble. The land would be so depopulated and impoverished that the limited fare of curds and honey (v. 15) would look like an abundance.
- 7:23–25 vines . . . thorns: The productivity of the land would be greatly reduced in the period of God’s judgment. The repetition of briers and thorns in vv. 23–25 is emphatic; in other words, the land would no longer be cultivated.
- 8:1 large scroll: This message from the Lord was intended to be read and pondered by many people.
- 8:2 Just as the wicked Ahaz was forced to be a party to the sign regarding the birth of Immanuel (see 7:10–17), Uriah, an apostate priest (2 Kin. 16:10–16), and Zechariah, presumably a false prophet (not to be confused with the prophet who wrote the Book of Zechariah), were forced to witness to this prophecy.
- 8:3 Isaiah’s wife was a prophetess in her own right. It is possible that this was a new wife, following the death of the mother of Shear-Jashub (7:3).
- 8:4 spoil of Samaria . . . king of Assyria: This is a specific prediction of the fall of Samaria to the Assyrians in 722 B.C. This prophecy has to have been written shortly before that time, as the fulfillment would come before the new child would be able to speak.
- 8:5 The LORD also spoke to me again: This phrase introduces a new prophetic section and reminds the reader of the source of the prophetic images in the Book of Isaiah.
- 8:6 These people is “this people” in Hebrew, the same construction as in v. 11. The gentle waters of Shiloah picture the sustaining presence of the Lord; He had quietly supplied the Israelites their needs, such as pure water. Shiloah may have been a little stream that flowed through an aqueduct

(7:3) to carry the water from the spring Gihon on Jerusalem's east side (2 Chr. 32:30) to the Pool of Siloam (Neh. 3:15) in the lower or southern end of the city. rejoice: The Judeans rejoiced because they thought they were going to defeat the kings of Israel and Syria through Ahaz's strategy of hiring the armies of Assyria. They looked for the salvation that a mere king could offer instead of appealing to the King of kings for protection.

8:7, 8 The River refers to the Euphrates, but also conveys the image of pagan gods. neck: Assyria would devastate Judah, but not completely annihilate it (ch. 37). wings: In the middle of v. 8 the image of Assyria as mighty waters changes to the image of a bird of prey. Isaiah bestows the name of the promised Child, Immanuel (7:14), on Judah, because it would be preserved only because God was with that nation (see v. 10).

8:9 Far countries refers to the many nations that made up Assyria's international army (5:26; 7:18).

Gird yourselves . . . be broken: The nations would do the will of God, but in turn would be destroyed.

8:10 It will not stand: The Lord would defeat the purposes of Judah's enemies; all their counsels would come to nothing. This promise concludes the prophecies of 7:1–8:10. The Child whose name would mean God is with us (v. 8; 7:14), was a sign not only of the destruction of Syria and Israel (7:17), but of all of God's enemies, including Assyria.

8:11–9:1 After an introductory summary (v. 11), this prophecy consists of two cycles: (1) Judah is commanded to trust in the Lord or perish, a command reinforced by Isaiah and his children, who serve as signs to Judah (vv. 12–18). (2) Judah is commanded to walk in the light of Isaiah's prophecies or be thrown into utter darkness (8:19–9:1).

8:11 Strong hand signifies a powerful sense of the Lord's inspiration (Ezek. 1:3).

8:12 Do not say: The commands in vv. 12, 13, 15, 19 are in the plural. Perhaps Isaiah's adversaries were labeling his rejection of an alliance with Assyria a conspiracy.

8:13 Hallow means to treat as holy. Your fear indicates a sense of reverence, awe, and wonder. Your dread indicates fright and terror. If the people want to be frightened, they should be frightened of God. If they want to respond to God correctly, they should treat His name with awe and fear Him (Ex. 20:20).

8:14 God is a sanctuary for believers, but a stone of stumbling for unbelievers (Ps. 118:22; Luke 20:17, 18; Rom. 9:33; 1 Pet. 2:6–8). Both the houses designates both the northern and the southern kingdom, that is, both Israel and Judah.

8:15 stumble . . . broken: The wicked will not prevail for long (v. 10).

8:16 Testimony refers to a legal transaction. Law refers to God's instruction revealed through Isaiah. Isaiah's disciples put his prophecies in the form of a legal transaction probably to prove their authenticity when they were fulfilled (see vv. 1, 2; compare Jer. 28:9; 32:12–14).

8:17 wait . . . hope: These words indicate a confident expectation that God would meet the needs of His people and deliver them from disaster (40:31; Ps. 40:1). Ultimately, the hope of Isaiah would be fulfilled in the Savior Jesus (Heb. 2:12, 13).

8:18 children: Isaiah, whose name speaks of the salvation of God, and his two sons, whose names speak of the impending judgment of God, were signs and wonders in Israel—that is, they were symbols (20:3). Mount Zion: The place of the holy temple was a mirror of God's dwelling in the highest heaven.

8:19 In the fertility religions of Canaan mediums and wizards would deliver divine revelations. who whisper and mutter: But the best one could get from these perverted "prophets" was garbled muttering. Seek the dead indicates that the people were involved in necromancy, the practice of conjuring up the spirits of the dead in order to influence events (29:4; 65:4).

8:21 They refers to the wicked who refuse to revere God (v. 13). It refers perhaps to the implied darkness of v. 20. curse: For similar usage, see Ex. 22:28; Lev. 24:15, 16.

8:22 The prophets commonly used the imagery of darkness to indicate judgment (5:30). The synonyms for darkness in this verse describe not only moral and spiritual blight, but also the invasion of Assyria that took away liberty and brought foreign oppression.

- 9:1 Nevertheless the gloom: This line completes the thought of 8:22 and promises a dramatic change to come. That change would be the explosion of light found in the Good News: Jesus can free us from the darkness that comes from our sin (see Eph. 5:8). The ancient tribal allotments of Zebulun and Naphtali (Josh. 19:10–16, 32–39), which included Galilee, were the first to feel the brunt of the Assyrian invasions (2 Kin. 15:29). The three phrases at the end of the verse—the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles or “nations”—indicate administrative districts of the Assyrian conqueror Tiglath-Pileser III as a result of the three campaigns he waged in the west around 733 B.C.
- 9:2–7 This seventh prophecy in the context of the Syro-Ephraimite war is climactic: An ideal monarch will come who will bring an end to war and usher in universal peace. The light that will replace the darkness of Assyrian oppression will be a Child, God incarnate (7:14). His four compounded throne names (v. 6) depict His divine-human nature as well as His universal program of salvation.
- 9:2 Have seen: The future event is described by the prophet, under the impulse of the Spirit, as having already occurred. Light stands for God’s blessings, presence, and revelation (2:5), that is incarnate in Jesus (58:8; 59:9; 60:1, 2, 19, 20; John 8:12). Shadow of death means “deep darkness” (compare 60:2; Ps. 23:4). Here this Hebrew word complements the more commonly used word for darkness.
- 9:3 joy of harvest . . . divide the spoil: The agricultural society knows no greater joy than that of harvest. A soldier knows no greater joy than that of a finished battle when his side has won, he is still alive, and there is now booty to divide. Contrast the joy of harvest in this verse with the lack of joy at harvest in 16:10.
- 9:4 yoke . . . staff . . . rod: These three images of oppression emphasize the suffering of the people during the period of foreign domination. The pronoun his refers to Assyria, which boasted of the heavy yokes it imposed on its captive peoples (10:27). The day of Midian refers to the defeat of Midian (10:26; Judg. 6–8).
- 9:5 warrior’s sandal: Assyrian armies were marked by the noise of the marching of many feet. Garments rolled in blood from past battles was a deliberate scare tactic to frighten enemies in an impending battle. All of these emblems of warfare were to be burned in the coming day of the reign of the divine Child (v. 6).
- 9:6 Born speaks of the Child’s humanity and given of His deity. Wonderful, Counselor is one name, meaning “wonderful divine Counselor” (11:1–5). Mighty God indicates that the Lord is a powerful Warrior (10:21). Everlasting Father describes a King and Father who provides for and protects His people forever (40:9–11; Matt. 11:27–30). Thus the word Father is used here of the Savior’s role as an ideal king. Prince of Peace is the climactic title (2:4; 11:6–9; 53:5; Luke 2:14; Rom. 5:1). The Child is the true Prince—the one who has the right to reign and who will usher in peace. The four double names combine aspects of Jesus’ deity and His humanity. Together, these four double names assert the dual nature of the Savior: He is God become man.
- 9:7 Of the increase may be translated “to Him will increase.” Government and peace may be rephrased as “peaceful reign.” The risen Lord Jesus brings His rule of peace to the believer’s heart in the present age. Moreover, He will establish the kingdom of God which will be His reign of peace. The fact that this coming Child will occupy the throne of David forever fulfills God’s promise to David (2 Sam. 7:8–16; Ps. 89:19–37; Luke 1:32, 33).
- 9:8–10:4 This passage contains a judgment against the northern kingdom: the Lord will destroy it and its capital Samaria. The accusations and judicial sentences in this section indicate that the Lord is both Judge and Punisher (9:11, 14, 19; 10:4).
- 9:10 Bricks refers to the mud brick walls common in ancient Israel. The people were planning to make their buildings more grandiose, not taking into account the fact that the Lord was about to destroy the buildings completely because of His judgment on their sins.
- 9:11 The adversaries refers to the Assyrians who were used by the LORD to punish the northern kingdom.

- 9:12 The Syrians were to the east of Israel and the Philistines to the west.
- 9:13 Turn indicates repentance and a desire for restoration.
- 9:14 Head and tail is a figure of speech for all leaders.
- 9:16 cause them to err: For a similar usage, see 3:12.
- 9:17 Young men . . . widows denotes every person. Everyone had turned from the faithful worship of God. All of Israel had been contaminated with evil, hypocrisy, and foolishness (see 1 Cor. 5:6 for an exhortation not to let wickedness corrupt the church).
- 9:18, 19 The fire of wickedness is matched by the fire of the wrath of the LORD.
- 9:18 Wickedness refers both to the sin itself and to its destructive consequences.
- 9:19, 20 No man shall spare his brother refers to anarchy (3:4, 5). right hand . . . left hand: These figures of speech indicate an insatiable hunger and the consequent ruin that would occur in the day of judgment.
- 9:21 Manasseh fought Ephraim (see Judg. 12:4); then together they fought Judah (but see 11:13).
- 10:1 Woe is a chilling word when spoken by God (5:8–23; 10:5; 18:1); here the Lord condemns the leaders who write laws that perpetuate evil in the community.
- 10:2 The needy are regularly seen in Scripture as those to whom the righteous should show true piety. When godly people reach out to help those who cannot help themselves, they display pure, biblical religion (James 1:27). Conversely, the mark of the ungodly can be seen in their oppressive actions against people who cannot help themselves. They set themselves up for the sure judgment of God (v. 3).
- 10:3 From afar refers to Assyria. To whom: The wicked could not turn to God, for they had refused to do so before and had ignored God's warnings (see 8:6).
- 10:4 Prisoners refers to the Israelites being led away into exile.
- 10:5–34 This salvation oracle has two major sections: (1) Assyria's doom (vv. 5–19); (2) the remnant's salvation (vv. 20–34).
- 10:5 And . . . indignation may also be translated "even the staff in My indignant hand." rod of My anger: Though God sovereignly uses sinners as instruments of His will (7:17; 13:5), they will be held accountable for their own wickedness. Thus God shows that He is just in all His ways (Hab. 1–3).
- 10:6 The ungodly nation is Judah (vv. 11, 12).
- 10:7 in his heart: The purpose of the arrogant Assyrians was to continue their path of uninterrupted conquest. But God had different plans for them (see v. 12).
- 10:9 Calno . . . Damascus: This is a list of cities that had already fallen to the Assyrians.
- 10:10, 11 idols . . . images: The Assyrians had conquered the nations who had false gods; surely, they believed, they would also have an easy time against Jerusalem and her idols. Although only the living God was to be worshiped by the Israelites, they had repeatedly broken that command (Ex. 20:4–6; Judg. 2:19).
- 10:12 The fruit is the king's speech cited in vv. 13, 14. arrogant heart . . . haughty looks: For a similar idea, see 2:11; 3:9; 9:9.
- 10:13 By the strength of my hand: The wicked are quick to take credit for their successes. The righteous correctly give praise to God for their accomplishments.
- 10:15 An implement in the hand of its user has no reason for boasting; Assyria was merely a tool in the hand of God. It had no reason to boast.
- 10:16 leanness . . . burning: These words describe the coming judgment of the Assyrians, who had become fat because of their acts of conquest.

hosts

(Heb. tseba'ot) (10:16; Gen. 2:1; Ps. 103:21; 148:2) Strong's #6635

This word comes from a verb meaning “to fight” or “to serve.” Angels are said to be hosts because they serve God (1 Kin. 22:19; Ps. 103:20, 21; compare Luke 2:13). The heavens are under the command of God and render Him worship, thus they are also called host (45:12; Neh. 9:6; Ps. 33:6). The term also commonly refers to combat troops (2 Kin. 5:1; 1 Chr. 7:11, 40). “The armies of the LORD” is an expression used once for the children of Israel, and twice for God’s army of angels (Ex. 12:41; Josh. 5:14, 15). Of the nearly five hundred uses of this word, almost three hundred are in an expression such as “the LORD of hosts” (1 Sam. 17:45), a title describing God’s power. On two occasions, the NT writers transliterated this Hebrew title as “the Lord of Sabaoth” to describe the awesome might of God (see Rom. 9:29; James 5:4).

Go to the List of Word Studies

10:17, 18 The Light of Israel is a wonderful title for God (see 9:2; 58:8; 60:1, 19, 20). The Lord Jesus is described as a “Light” of Israel as well (see John 1:1–13). His thorns . . . his forest refers to all persons and possessions in the Assyrian Empire. What people count as honorable or despicable will mean little before God’s burning judgment.

10:20 The remnant is the portion of Abraham’s offspring that God preserved. The Hebrew word used here for remnant is different from the words used in 1:9; 6:13. depend: Finally there will be a people whose trust will be unchangeably in the Lord.

10:22 as the sand . . . A remnant: Most of the people of the northern kingdom were carried off into captivity. But some Israelites made their way to Judah and became part of the southern kingdom. These people and their descendants would act as a remnant by preserving the names of the northern tribes among the people of God.

10:24 Lord GOD of hosts: For a similar usage, see 1:9. O My people: The language here expresses the loving care of the Lord for His people. They need not fear the armies of the Assyrians.

10:25 a very little while: From the viewpoint of eternity, the period of trial is exceedingly brief.

10:26 On the sea refers to God’s great triumph over Pharaoh at the Exodus (Ex. 14; 15).

10:27 in that day: For a similar idea, see 2:12. The meaning of anointing oil here is uncertain. If it means “fat,” the image may be of a strong, fattened ox breaking its yoke.

10:28–32 These verses depict Isaiah’s vision of the king of Assyria’s relentless march south over difficult terrain from Aiath—that is, Ai. Ai was ten miles north of Jerusalem on a point overlooking the city.

10:28, 29 The cities as listed in these verses are closer and closer to the capital at Jerusalem. Each town conquered was another step toward the impending defeat of the holy city.

10:30, 31 Lift up your voice: The language turns to that of panic. The actions are those of a frightened people facing defeat and disaster.

10:32 daughter of Zion: The army was near Jerusalem itself. The pronoun he refers to Assyria, the enemy.

- 10:33, 34 The bough is the king of Assyria and the thickets are his army. The point is that God will bring judgment on the instruments He used to judge Israel.
- 11:1–9 This celebrated salvation oracle about the King of Peace (4:2; 7:14; 9:6) consists of three sections: (1) His endowment (vv. 1, 2); (2) His righteous rule (vv. 3–5); (3) His kingdom of peace (vv. 6–9).
- 11:1 A Rod from the stem of Jesse (see 1 Sam. 16:10–13) represents the new and greater David. As David inaugurated a kingdom of righteousness and peace, the new David, the “rod” or “root” from David’s line (53:2), will establish an incomparably greater kingdom. The words Rod and Branch are messianic terms. They are figurative words for the great descendant of the household of David, the Seed of the woman promised in Gen. 3:15, Jesus Christ Himself (see Matt. 1:17).
- 11:2 Spirit: As in the case of David (1 Sam. 16:13), the Messiah would be empowered by the Holy Spirit (4:4; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22), the Agent for establishing God’s kingdom (Gen. 1:1, 2; Judg. 3:10; 6:34; 1 Sam. 10:6). The first readers of the Hebrew Scriptures likely thought that the term Spirit was just another way of speaking of God with awe or wonder. In the NT, we learn that the term refers to the third Person of the Trinity (see Matt. 28:19). Solomon prayed for wisdom and understanding (1 Kin. 3:9), the administrative skill to govern the people according to the principles of righteousness and justice (Deut. 1:15–17). The Messiah will embody all this; He will be the ideal King (33:6). The Holy Spirit’s counsel is not advice, but authoritative plans and decisions. the fear of the LORD: The Messiah would demonstrate in all His life the correct response to God: He would honor and obey Him (Ex. 20:20). The people of God in all ages are under orders to respond to Him with reverential awe (Lev. 19:14; Prov. 19:23).
- 11:3 Delight refers to the sense of smell. There may be an allusion to the incense burned at a coronation ceremony. Whereas “fear of God” usually means a standard of moral conduct known and accepted by humankind in general, the fear of the LORD in this case may refer to the standard of moral conduct known through special revelation and accepted by the faithful.
- 11:4 In this context, judge does not mean to bring people to account, but to act on their behalf. As the judge of His people, God sentences the wicked and offers protection and defense for the innocent and oppressed. rod of His mouth: The Messiah will conquer by His speech (49:2; Heb. 4:12; Rev. 19:15).
- 11:6–9 This picture of cruel beasts miraculously regenerated with a new nature that makes them protect their natural prey portrays a reign of peace and security. This can only be realized in the return of the Messiah to establish the kingdom of God (65:17–25). In God’s peaceful kingdom, carnivores will become herbivores; natural enemies will become companions; and little children will play safely near the dwellings of formerly venomous snakes.
- 11:6 a little child shall lead them: In the coming kingdom, a youngster will be able to lead formerly wild animals. This is a way of emphasizing the end of terror, fright, and danger in the coming kingdom.
- 11:9 In ancient times, the knowledge of the LORD was limited and spotty; there is coming a glorious age in which there will be no limit to access to divine truth. As the waters cover the sea means “thoroughly.” God will make Himself known throughout the earth.
- 11:10 in that day: This verse forms a single prophetic vision. The exalted Root of Jesse will attract the Gentiles to His resting place (2:3). This is a prophecy of the coming of people of all nations to the knowledge of God. Thus in the OT, the Lord expresses His concern for the salvation of other nations (see Gen. 12:1–3). World mission was not a new idea with the Great Commission (Matt. 28:18–20). Banner is a rallying symbol. Jesus the Messiah is the banner for the gathering of peoples from all over the earth.
- 11:11–16 This prophecy concerning the second Exodus (51:9–11) consists of the regathering of the exiles (vv. 11, 12), their unity in opposition to God’s enemies (vv. 13, 14), and an allusion to the first Exodus to show how much greater is the second one (vv. 15, 16).
- 11:11 The second time may refer to the remnant coming back to the land in 538 B.C., in contrast to the first Exodus from Egypt. Beyond that, it could also refer to the remnant's coming to Christ in the present age (Rom. 11:5), or to its future return to Christ (Rom. 11:11–27). From Assyria . . . and the islands of the sea indicates the whole earth (v. 12).

11:12 the four corners of the earth: This figurative expression is similar to the words of Acts 1:8: “to the end of the earth.” The Messiah will gather disciples from all over the world.

11:13 Ephraim . . . Judah: Not only will God destroy the enemies of the Israelites and Judeans, but He will also remove their ancient enmities (9:20, 21).

11:14 upon the shoulder: The image is that of a bird of prey attacking another bird. The Philistines, Edom, Moab, and Ammon, Israel's traditional enemies, may represent the adversaries of the Messiah's kingdom (see Mic. 5:6 for a similar use of the word Assyria).

11:15 Mighty wind is an allusion to Ex. 14:21–27. The River refers to the Euphrates. dryshod: As God had provided a dry passage across the Red Sea in the first Exodus, so in the second Exodus He would remove any physical barrier that would hinder the return of His people.

11:16 A highway symbolizes the certainty of the return, for no obstacles would hinder the Lord's returning exiles (35:8–10; 40:3, 4; 57:14; 62:10). In the day: The reference here is to the first Exodus (v. 11).

12:1–6 This hymn of praise for God's salvation by the restored remnant after the second Exodus (11:12–16) resembles Moses and Miriam's hymn of praise after the first Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 15).

12:1 in that day: For a similar idea, see 2:12. The first you is singular, representing the remnant as an individual. angry: The anger of God had caused the people to be dispersed among the nations (5:25; 9:12); His grace would lead to their regathering.

12:2 God is my salvation: This psalm of redemption is based on the first psalm of redemption in Exodus (Ex. 15:2; Ps. 118:14). Yah, the LORD, by its repetition, emphasizes that Israel's covenant-keeping God—and not the nations—brings salvation (26:4). My strength and song may be rephrased as “my strong song” or “my song of strength” (Ex. 15:2).

12:3 You in vv. 3–5 is plural. The Hebrew poets often associate the concept of water with salvation (Ex. 17:1–7). In an arid land, the provision of wells and springs was regarded as a divine gift (55:1).

12:4 As in the Psalms, this hymn uses several terms for the praise of God. Praise means “to give public acknowledgment” or “to declare aloud in public.” Call upon His name may be rephrased as “proclaim in His name.” Declare means “to make known.” Make mention means “to cause to remember.” Each of these verbs designates public, vocal acknowledgment of the wonders and works of God. among the peoples: Like Ps. 117, this is a poem of international evangelism.

12:5 Sing to the LORD: The principal audience of sacred songs is God Himself (Ps. 33:1). excellent things: In Ex. 15:1, the root of this term is translated “triumphed gloriously.” all the earth: This emphasis fits the same line of thought found in Ps. 19:1.

12:6 Cry out and shout may be rephrased as “shout aloud in great joy.” Inhabitant of Zion refers to the people who returned from captivity in Babylon.

13:1–27:13 The Book of Isaiah takes a major turn at 13:1. The focus in this extended section is first on the Lord's judgments against the nations (chs. 13–23): Babylon and Assyria (13:1–14:27), Philistia (14:28–32), Moab (15:1–16:14), Damascus (17:1–14), Ethiopia (18:1–7), Egypt (19:1–20:6), Babylon (21:1–10), Edom (21:11, 12), Arabia (21:13–17), Jerusalem (22:1–25), and Tyre (23:1–18). This prophecy of judgment is followed by an end-time prophecy that is sometimes called “the little apocalypse of Isaiah” (chs. 24–27).

13:1–14:27 The oracle against Babylon consists of seven sections: (1) the assembly of the army of the Lord of Hosts (13:1–5); (2) the announcement of the day of the Lord (13:6–18); (3) the annihilation of Babylon (13:19–22); (4) the salvation of Israel (14:1, 2); (5) Israel's mocking dirge for the king of Babylon (14:3–21); (6) the destruction of Babylon (14:22, 23); (7) the destruction of Assyria (14:24–27).

13:1 The word burden comes from the root meaning “to lift up” or “to bear.” It is as though the prophet were heavily laden with a message from God that he must deliver due to its sheer weight (Nah. 1:1; Hab. 1:1). Babylon was the crown jewel of the Assyrian empire. This oracle may refer to its destruction around 689 B.C. when Sennacherib quelled a rebellion there. Yet the Lord's overthrow of Babylon, "the glory of kingdoms" (v. 19), symbolizes His triumph over the world (v. 11). Babylon is the epitome of religion and culture in the ancient Middle East. Thus the oracle is indirectly against all nations, especially Assyria (14:24–27). Peter uses the term Babylon symbolically in the NT (1 Pet. 5:13) as does John (Rev. 14:8; 18:2, 10–21) to refer to any enemy of God's kingdom.

The Festivals of Babylon

The Babylonians observed moon festivals on fixed days of the month: the first, seventh, fifteenth, and twenty-eighth. In addition, they had special "seventh" days—the seventh, fourteenth, twenty-first, and twenty-eighth of each month. They did not work at all on the fifteenth day of the month because they believed there was no chance for good fortune on that day.

The greatest festival in Babylon was the akitu (the New Year Feast). The Babylonians celebrated akitu in March and April. They spent the first four days making prayers to Marduk, the chief god of Babylon. In the evening of the fourth day they recited the creation story (the Enuma Elish). On the fifth day, the king appeared before Marduk's statue and declared his innocence from faults and his fulfillment of his obligations. On the ninth and tenth days they held a banquet. On the eleventh day soothsayers divined the destinies of the coming year.

13:3, 4 Sanctified ones refers to the victorious armies of the earth who rejoice, wittingly or unwittingly, in the Lord's exaltation (45:1–7; Joel 2:11). Many people represent all nations, who will be instruments in God's hands for judging sinful nations, though they themselves are sinners.

13:5 Far country . . . end of heaven refers to the whole earth (11:11, 12). His weapons of indignation: The nations are the tools God will use to vent His wrath against Babylon.

13:6 The day of the LORD refers to a time of unusual activity of God in the lives of people, for judgment or for mercy. At hand is also translated near. The basic idea of the term is not that of approaching a fixed date, but that the day of the Lord is about to burst into one's world. The day of the Lord is imminent—able to happen at any time—not because people have almost reached it as a destination, but because it may burst in upon people without further warning. The title the Almighty is the Hebrew name Shaddai (Ex. 6:3; Ps. 91:1).

13:7, 8 limp . . . melt . . . afraid: These images describe the depth of the people's fear. a woman in childbirth: This is a familiar image of stress in the poetry of the Bible.

13:11 iniquity . . . arrogance . . . proud . . . haughtiness . . . terrible: The common element is pride, which brings the nations down (2:6–22).

13:12 mortal: The Hebrew word speaks of the inherent weakness of humanity (Ps. 8:4).

13:13 heavens . . . earth: The shaking of the cosmos, including the sun, moon, and stars—which were worshiped by the pagans—symbolizes the overthrow of all that unbelieving humans exalt as rivals to God (2:12–18).

13:15, 16 Everyone . . . children . . . houses . . . wives: In the ancient Middle East, the brutality of war extended to everyone, regardless of age, gender, or station.

13:17 The Medes, who lived in what is today northwest Iran, were fierce enemies of the Israelites. Significant for dating this prophecy is the fact that Persia, which conquered the Medes in 550 B.C. and in conjunction with the Medes conquered Babylon in 539 B.C., is not mentioned. silver . . . gold: The point is that the Medes will not be bought off with bribes.

13:19 In 4:2, the same Hebrew word translated glory here is translated “beautiful” to describe the Branch of the Lord. The ascriptions of beauty to Babylon are not exaggerations; the city of Babylon at its zenith must have been spellbinding.

13:20 It will never be inhabited: The fulfillment of this prophecy should not be sought in a specific event, but in the general principle that the kingdoms of this world would not endure. Places that once were famed for their great structures will become so desolate that even desert peoples would not pitch tents there.

13:21, 22 The language of these verses is that of the ancient Middle Eastern curse. The animals named in these verses ominously represent that which is unclean, unholy, uncivilized, and unsettled (34:14, 15; Rev. 18:2). The godly people of ancient Israel would have no associations with such animals.

14:1 Still may also be translated “again,” in which case it refers to the second Exodus, the return of the remnant from Babylonian captivity (see 11:15, 16). choose: The Lord will make His choice in Israel. Strangers will join the returning Israelites as they did in the first Exodus (Ex. 12:38). But in this case, the strangers will be loyal adherents of the Lord.

14:2 people will take them: For the development of this idea, see Ezra 1:1–8. captive: For the development of this theme, see Eph. 4:8.

14:3 Hard bondage is an allusion to the first Exodus (ch. 12). Rest recalls the freedom from Egyptian servitude (Deut. 5:12–15).

14:4 the king of Babylon: No particular king of Babylon is indicated (13:1). Proverb refers to a highly figurative poem. oppressor: This is the same term used in 9:4 of an unnamed Assyrian tyrant.

14:5, 6 The staff and the scepter were symbols of authority and power in the ancient Middle East (9:4). struck: The Babylonian kings had paraded their tyranny in order to intimidate any who dared to oppose them. But now the Lord in judgment was breaking their instruments of oppression.

14:7, 8 At rest and quiet may be rephrased as “utterly quiet.” This is the security that comes after the tyrant is dead. cypress trees rejoice: The trees are personified, describing the joy of the formerly oppressed people (35:1; 44:23; 55:12). No woodsman: The trees would no longer be cut down to construct machines of war.

14:9–11 excited: The commotion in hell when the king of Babylon arrives contrasts sharply with the rest on earth when he is gone. The Hebrew word for the dead is similar in connotation to our word ghost: it speaks of the dead in a frightening manner (see Prov. 9:18). The defeated subjects of the Babylonian tyrants are pictured as sitting on thrones, while the king is given a blanket of worms.

14:12 Fallen from heaven is a figure of speech meaning cast down from an exalted political position. Jesus said, “And you, Capernaum, who are exalted to heaven, will be brought down to Hades” (Luke 10:15), and apparently with the same meaning, “I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven” (Luke 10:18). The name for Lucifer in Hebrew literally means “Day Star,” or the planet Venus. The poetic language of this verse describes the aspiration of this brightest star to climb to the zenith of the heavens and its extinction before the rising sun. This is an apt summary of the failed goal of the king of Babylon (v. 4) who wanted to grasp universal and eternal domination. Tertullian, Milton, and others have linked this passage to the career of Satan on the basis of Luke 10:18, but the text does not specifically make this connection.

Son of the Morning

The reference to “Lucifer, son of the morning” is most certainly to Satan himself. The real issue of interpretation in this passage is whether Satan is to be viewed literally as the referent of the prophecy in these verses, or whether he is to be viewed as the power behind the throne of the Babylonian king. In either case, we are given a clear picture of the certain destruction that always follows pride.

It seems most likely that Isaiah is using the fall of Satan, which is an assumed fact, to illustrate the fall of the Babylonian king (who is simply a prototype and not necessarily a specific such as Belshazzar). Tertullian seems to have been the first to interpret this passage as referring to the fall of Satan (cf. Luke 10:18). Since the fall of Satan is actually yet future (see Rev. 9:1), it would seem that the prophet is again speaking in the present tense with the sure assurance of the future fulfillment of his prediction. He sees the rise of Babylon to a point of prominence that it had not yet achieved in his own day; yet beyond that he sees the demise of this same nation. He views her kings as attempting to ascend into heaven by the divine claims that they would make for themselves and their kingdom; then he pictures them as falling from heaven just as certainly as Lucifer himself shall one day fall under the judgment of God. Therefore, it is not inappropriate to understand the words of verses 13 and 14 as the attitude of Satan himself. Five times the personal pronoun “I” is used to emphasize the selfish determination of both Satan and Satan-empowered men to replace God Himself as the rightful ruler of this world.

The name Lucifer is actually the Roman designation for the morning star. The Hebrew (helēl) means “the bright one.” This reference illustrates the fact that the morning star speedily disappears before the far greater splendor of the rising sun. Hence, though Satan may appear as an “angel of light” (2 Cor. 11:14), he shall be banished to outer darkness by the coming of the Son of God. Certainly, such claims were parallel to and inspired by the ultimate claim of Satan himself! He, too, will be brought down to hell in the final judgment of God (see Rev. 20:10).

In the meantime, the king of Babylon will no longer be a threat to the nations of the earth. Instead of fearing him, they shall cast him out like an abominable branch. The tragedy of national judgment is that it falls upon every generation, including the children. For those who rise up in defiance against God, there is nothing ahead for them but disaster, because “I will rise up against them” is the promise of the Lord (Is. 14:22). He will cut off Babylon. Thus it is that this once mighty nation which caused the kings of the earth to tremble is now but a dusty reminder of a bygone kingdom of another era.

- 14:13 above the stars of God: The description is of a star that wanted to be grander than other stars. In this highly poetic language, Isaiah describes a king whose longing for glory was unlimited. Mount of the congregation is an allusion to a mythological mountain where the heavenly deities were thought to assemble. Farthest sides of the north probably refers to Mt. Casius in northern Syria, the mountain believed by the Canaanites to be the realm of the gods (Ps. 48:1, 2).
- 14:14 I will be like the Most High is the most outrageous of the arrogant desires of this Assyrian or Babylonian king. He wanted to surpass the Most High, a term for the Lord that is often used in connection with the nations of the world (see Ps. 87:5; 91:1, 9; 92:1).
- 14:15 Sheol: See the reference to hell in v. 9. The word lowest depths renders the same Hebrew word translated “farthest sides” (in v. 13). This is an example of comic justice for this king who wished to ascend to the heights of the gods and even the Most High Himself. The Pit is a synonym for Sheol often used together with it (see Jon. 2:2, 6).
- 14:16 man . . . tremble: Isaiah compares this king to the One who can truly shake the earth (see 13:13).
- 14:17 The house of his prisoners refers to exile. Unlike Cyrus, who sent the exiles home, the king of Babylon kept them captive.
- 14:19 out of your grave: The ancients believed that a proper burial was exceedingly important. The king’s memory would be trampled by the people whom he abused in life. abominable branch: Contrast this with the Beautiful Branch, the Messiah (11:1). This is an “anti-Messiah” figure.
- 14:20 The brood . . . shall never be named: This evil king’s posterity will not be remembered.
- 14:22 I will rise: The Lord Himself is behind the destruction of this arrogant king (v. 5).
- 14:23 porcupine . . . marshes: The former beautiful city of Babylon (13:19) would become a wild, inhospitable place.
- 14:25 My land . . . My mountains: The Lord asserts His sovereignty. yoke . . . his burden: In 9:4, these same terms are used of the Assyrian menace.
- 14:28–32 After an introduction (v. 28), the oracle against Philistia falls roughly into two cycles: (1) the annihilation of the Philistines and the preservation of God’s poor and needy (vv. 29, 30); (2) the destruction of Philistine cities and the founding of Zion (vv. 31, 32).
- 14:28 King Ahaz died in 720 B.C.
- 14:29 Rod is probably a metaphor for the Assyrian king (10:5). its offspring will be . . . serpent: More trouble would come upon Philistia; it would have nothing for which to rejoice.
- 14:30 Like Babylon (v. 22)—but unlike Israel—Philistia would have no future, because it would have no remnant.
- 14:31 The gate of a walled city was its weakest point. When the gate fell, the city could be taken. The Assyrian army would come from the north. No one will be alone speaks of the close ranks of the Assyrian army.
- 14:32 founded Zion: The destruction of Philistia would leave no refuge for the Philistines. The only place they could go to be saved would be Jerusalem, the city built by God. That would be the place to which the poor of all nations could come, becoming God’s people (Ps. 87).
- 15:1–16:14 The oracle against Moab has five parts: (1) an editorial superscript (15:1); (2) the sudden, devastating destruction of Moab (15:2–9); (3) a plea from Moab for shelter in Zion (16:1–5); (4) a reflection contrasting Moab’s former pride with its fallen state (16:6–12); (5) a postscript (16:13, 15:1 For the origin of the people of Moab, see the story of Lot and his daughters in Gen. 19:30–38 (see also Num. 22–25; Deut. 1:5). burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Ar and Kir were cities of Moab (16:7, 11; Deut. 2:9; 2 Kin. 3:25).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Moab

Moab was a son of Lot by incest (Gen. 19:30–38). Moab was annexed by the Amorite kingdom shortly before the Israelite conquest of Canaan (Num. 21:17–29). After the Israelites defeated the Amorites, Balak, king of the Moabites, joined with the Midianites in hiring the prophet-magician Balaam to curse Israel (Num. 22:1–20). Balaam's mission failed, but when the Israelites camped in Moab, the women of Moab enticed the Israelites into a form of idolatry that involved ritual sexual immorality. This resulted in God's judgment against Israel (Num. 25:1–9).

The Assyrians conquered Moab about 735 B.C., and invading Arabs conquered it about 650 B.C. The prophet Isaiah lamented over Moab's defeat (Is. 15; 16), and Jeremiah predicted Moab's destruction at the end of the seventh century B.C. (Jer. 48). When Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C., some of the Jews fled to Moab to escape being taken into captivity (Jer. 40:11, 12).

15:2 He refers collectively to Moab. High places were sites of pagan worship (16:12). weep . . . wail:

This refers to the mourning over the destruction of the cities of Moab. Baldness and having one's beard cut off were aspects of mourning rituals.

15:3 Sackcloth and weeping were part of Middle Eastern mourning rites (Gen. 23:2; 37:34; 2 Sam. 1:11, 12).

15:4 Heshbon, Elealeh, and Jahaz were cities in Moab. armed soldiers: The weeping would extend even to hardened fighting men.

15:5 My heart refers to Isaiah, who felt sympathy for Moab (16:9–11). Zoar was a southwestern border city of Moab on the south end of the Dead Sea. The Ascent of Luhith is also mentioned by Jeremiah in his lament over Moab (Jer. 48:5).

15:6 The waters and green grass of the oasis could not survive the numerous refugees.

15:9 The term Dimon sounds like blood in Hebrew. Lions: Fleeing from one tragedy after another in their flight southward, the refugees turn to Judah in the west for asylum (16:1–5). As would be the case with Israel (1:9; 6:13; 10:20; 11:16)—but not with Assyria (14:22) and Philistia (14:30)—a remnant would survive in Moab.

16:2 Wandering bird is a sad description of the hopeless condition of the daughters of Moab, the women of the nation.

16:3 Take counsel may also be translated “make plans.” Moab would find salvation in the shadow of Zion (2:2–4).

- 16:4, 5 Moab's salvation ultimately lies in the coming One, Jesus the Messiah, whose throne will be established (9:1–7; 11:1–5; Amos 9:11, 12; Acts 15:16, 17).
- 16:6 Pride is a regular target of the Lord's judgment (2:5–22; 13:11).
- 16:7 Kir Hareseth is another name for Kir (15:1).
- 16:8 Vine is a figure of speech for Moab (compare Israel's description as a vine in 5:1–7). Sea may refer to the Dead Sea because it is the nearest large body of water to Moab.
- 16:9 Heshbon and Elealeh were among the principal settlements in ancient Moab (15:4).
- 16:10 Contrast the lack of gladness in this verse with the ecstatic joy of 9:3.
- 16:11 Kir Heres is an alternative spelling for Kir Hareseth (v. 7) or Kir (15:1). Isaiah the prophet expresses his determination to one day rejoice over Moab. This is a promise of its future restoration.
- 16:12 high place . . . sanctuary: As long as the people worshiped false gods, they would be doomed to pain, judgment, and recurring trouble (15:2).
- 16:13, 14 A former prophecy against Moab (see 15:1) would be realized within three years, perhaps referring to the quelling of a rebellion against Sargon in 715 B.C. However, a remnant would remain (15:9). Moab had far more hope for salvation than did either Babylon or Philistia.
- 17:1–18:7 The oracle against Damascus falls into seven parts: (1) an editorial superscription (17:1); (2) the desolate ruin of Damascus (17:2, 3); (3) the ruin of Israel, which is left only a remnant (17:4–6); (4) the anticipation that in the future, people will trust Israel's God (17:7, 8); (5) the accusation that Damascus replaced God with pagan deities (17:9–11); (6) a proclamation of doom upon the nations "who plunder us" (17:12–14); (7) a prediction that a powerful nation will bring tribute to the Lord (18:1–7).
- 17:1, 2 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. cities . . . flocks: Where people once lived, conditions would be suitable only for flocks (14:23).

Damascus

Damascus is the oldest continually-inhabited city in the world and capital of Syria (7:8), located northeast of the Sea of Galilee. The Bible first mentions the city as the hometown of Eliezer, Abraham's servant (Gen. 15:2). Damascus was situated on the border of the desert at the intersection of three major caravan routes. Major roads extended from the city to the southwest into Canaan and Egypt, straight south to Edom and the Red Sea, and east to Babylonia. Because of its ideal location, the city became a trade center.

The Assyrian King Tiglath-Pileser conquered Syria, overthrowing the Aramean dynasty and destroying Damascus (732 B.C.), just as the prophets Amos and Isaiah had prophesied (Is. 17:1; Amos 1:4, 5). This marked the end of Syria as an independent nation. The city of Damascus was also reduced to a fraction of its former glory.

Panoramic view of modern Damascus

- 17:3 Fortress may refer to Samaria, the capital city. Ephraim designates northern Israel. Since Damascus, the capital of Syria, was allied with Ephraim, the oracle of God’s judgment was against both nations.
- 17:4 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12.
- 17:5 harvests: The nation of Syria would be “harvested” of its people. The word Rephaim is the Hebrew word for “shades” or “ghosts.” Thus the Valley of Rephaim is the Valley of Death.
- 17:6 A remnant would be left (10:20) even though it would be pitifully small.
- 17:7 The verb translated look means “to look with interest” or “to look with favor.” Holy One: For a similar idea, see 6:3.
- 17:8 Altars refers to pagan worship. work of his hands: For similar wording, see 2:8; 31:7. Asherah was represented by wooden images (27:9), which were part of the sexual cults of Baal worship among the Canaanite peoples.
- 17:9 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:11. His strong cities (contrast the “Rock” in v. 10) will become as fragile as a little branch.
- 17:10 You refers to the northern kingdom. forgotten: For background, see Deut. 8:11–20. The people had committed the very sin that God warned them not to: they had forgotten the God who had saved them from slavery. The language recalls the first Exodus; the Lord is called the God of your salvation and the Rock (compare Ex. 15:2; Deut. 32:4).
- 17:11 Make your plant to grow may allude to the ancient practice of force-blooming potted plants and allowing them to die. Pagans believed that this reenactment of the life cycle would secure fertile fields. But even after performing this rite, the harvest would be in ruin. Just as the choice vines of the Lord’s vineyard disappointed Him (5:1–7), so His errant people would find their harvest hopes shattered.
- 17:12 Many people refers to the nations that plunder Israel (v. 14). Seas and mighty waters speak of chaos and death (8:7; Ps. 46:3).
- 17:13 Chaff, which lacks life, value, and stability, was threshed and winnowed on windy mountains or hilltops. When God judges the unrelenting, roaring seas—the nations that plundered God’s people—they will become mere tumbleweed rolling before the whirlwind of God’s judgment.
- 17:14 Sennacherib’s army would be destroyed between eventide and morning (37:36–38). us: Isaiah identifies himself with his plundered people.

Nations and Cities Mentioned in Isaiah

- 18:1 Ethiopia, called Cush in the Bible, was at the southern end of Isaiah's world. A Cushite dynasty took over Egypt in 715 B.C. and probably sent ambassadors to Jerusalem. Cush may have been a Hebrew term for black African peoples (Num. 12:1; Ps. 87:4).
- 18:2 Sea may refer to the Nile River, from which small rivers branched. Tall and smooth (v. 7) probably designates the peoples along the entire stretch of the Nile River. Perhaps the term smooth refers to the ancient Egyptian custom of shaving the whole body.
- 18:3 banner: For the use of this word to refer to salvation instead of judgment, see 11:10, 12.
- 18:4, 5 The figure of God working in rest speaks of His indescribable power and unlimited sovereignty. God is steady in His work. His judgment will be felt like clear heat in sunshine. This is another example of a bad harvest (17:10, 11).
- 18:6 God's judgment will be so extensive that the carcasses of His victims will be devoured in the summer and winter.
- 18:7 the place of the name: Note how closely the Lord identifies with Mt. Zion. This was the one place for the true worship of God.
- 19:1–20:6 The oracle against Egypt falls into three parts after the historical superscription (19:1): (1) the collapse of Egypt before the Lord (19:2–15); (2) the salvation of Egypt in the Lord (19:16–25); (3) a specific historic fulfillment of the collapse of Egypt at the time of Sargon (20:1–6).
- 19:1 the LORD rides on a swift cloud: For similar imagery, see Ps. 18:10; 68:4; Matt. 26:64.
- 19:2 The political anarchy of Egyptians against Egyptians has religious roots; their many gods failed them.

- 19:3 The spirit of Egypt: The principal key for understanding the world of ancient Egypt is the concept of ma'at, an Egyptian word for “order.” When God brought Moses to confront Pharaoh (Ex. 5–14), it was ma'at that was under attack. God would attack the Egyptians in the future as He had in the past.
- 19:4 Cruel master may be an allusion to Pharaoh’s tyranny against Israel (Ex. 6:9).
- 19:5–10 The disruption of the waters and all that is related to them marks God’s attack on the nation.
- 19:10 The foundations and those who make wages together may be a figure for the whole economic spectrum, from wealthy managers to day laborers.
- 19:11 Zoan was the capital of Egypt at this time. Son here refers to a member of a guild. Egypt was famous for its wise men (1 Kin. 4:30), who, as disciples, learned the wisdom of ancient kings.
- 19:12 Where are your wise men: The Lord taunts those who consider themselves wise and learned. True knowledge comes from the fear of the Lord (Prov. 1:7). For a similar idea, see 1 Cor. 1:20.
- 19:13 Noph or Memphis was Egypt’s ancient capital.
- 19:18 Five cities will speak the language of Canaan and swear by—take an oath of allegiance to—the LORD of hosts (1:9). These new habits spring from the miracle of regeneration—a radical transformation of their nature. With the words City of Destruction, Jewish scribes were probably belittling the “City of the Sun,” known by its Greek name Heliopolis, by deliberately changing the word meaning “sun” to the word meaning “destruction.” This is similar to the deliberate change of the name of Ahab’s wife to the name Jezebel (see 1 Kin. 16:31).
- 19:19 Altar and pillar may allude to the patriarchs Abraham and Jacob respectively (Gen. 12:8; 28:22).
- 19:21 The Egyptians will know probably alludes to Israel’s experience in the Exodus (Ex. 6:7; 7:5).
- 19:23 A highway signifies the removal of alienation and separation (11:16). Historically, Egypt and Assyria were enemies.

blessing

(Heb. berakah) (19:24; 65:8; Deut. 11:27; 33:1) Strong's #1293

The significant Hebrew word translated blessing expresses several ideas, namely to fill with potency, to make fruitful, or to secure victory. In the present passage, the word alludes to God's promise to bless all nations through Abraham's descendants (Gen. 12:3). When people offer a blessing, they wish well or offer a prayer on behalf of themselves or someone else (Gen. 49; Deut. 33:1). Old Testament patriarchs are often remembered for the blessing they gave to their children. When God gives a blessing He gives it to those who faithfully follow Him (Deut. 11:27), providing them with salvation (Ps. 3:8), life (Ps. 133:3), and success (2 Sam. 7:29).

19:25 My people and the work of My hands, titles for Israel (10:24; 60:21), are applied here to the converted Gentiles, symbolized by Egypt and Assyria (56:7; 65:1).

Isaiah: A Bible in Miniature?

The Book of Isaiah has been described as the Bible in miniature, for it exhibits remarkable similarities to the Bible as a whole—in both its structure and its message.

The Book of Isaiah

The Bible

- 66 chapters
 - Two sections: chs. 1–39 and chs. 40–66
 - Stress in chs. 1–39 is on God’s righteousness, holiness, and justice.
 - Emphasis in chs. 40–66 is on God’s glory, compassion, and grace.
 - Chapters 1–39 depict Israel’s need for restoration.
 - Chapters 40–66 predict God’s future provision of salvation in the Servant.
 - Isaiah begins with a description of Israel’s rebellion and ends with predictions of restoration.
 - Message: A holy God will gain glory by judging sin and restoring His people.
- 66 books
 - Two parts: 39 Old Testament books and 27 New Testament books
 - Stress in 39 Old Testament books is on God’s righteousness, holiness, and justice.
 - Emphasis in 27 New Testament books is on God’s glory, compassion, and grace.
 - The Old Testament depicts humanity’s need for salvation.
 - The New Testament describes God’s provision of salvation in the Messiah.
 - The Bible begins with a description of humanity’s rebellion and ends with a depiction of salvation in Jesus Christ.
 - Message: A holy God will gain glory by judging sin and saving those who call on the name of His Son Jesus.

20:1 Tartan was one of the three chief officers of the Assyrian Empire (2 Kin. 18:17).

20:2, 3 Isaiah replaced wearing sackcloth, the garb of spiritual mourning, with walking naked and barefoot, signs of being exiled into captivity. servant: For a similar usage, see 41:8. Three years means “involving three years,” a minimum of 14 months. a sign and a wonder: For a similar usage, see 8:18.

20:4 Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, conquered Egypt and fulfilled this prophecy in 671 B.C.

20:5, 6 They and this territory probably refer to the nations bordering the eastern shore of the Mediterranean Sea, who looked to Egypt to save them from Assyria. This would include Judah.

21:1–10 The oracle against Babylon, after an enigmatic superscription (v. 1), consists of a dreamlike vision of Babylon’s fall (vv. 2–9) and its significance to Judah (v. 10).

21:1 Wilderness means “desert.” The phrase Wilderness of the Sea may be a sarcastic parody of Babylon, whose southern region on the Persian Gulf was called the “Land of the Sea.”

21:2 Elam, a major part of Persia, and Media were allied in 700 B.C. Perhaps as part of the Assyrian army (5:26) they helped bring about the fall of Babylon in 689 B.C., since they certainly did so in 539 B.C. (11:11; 13:17). Its sighing may refer to the sighing Babylon inflicted on others, or to its own sighing under Assyrian oppression.

21:3 Perhaps Isaiah was distressed by the report of Babylon’s fall because it meant that Babylon could not save Judah from the Assyrians.

21:4 Although Isaiah longed for the fall of Babylon, he feared its consequences to Judah.

21:5 Having summoned Babylon’s princes to eat and drink, Isaiah summoned them again to anoint the shield in preparation for battle (Dan. 5).

21:6 Lord here means “Master.” The watchman is probably Isaiah.

21:7 A chariot of donkeys probably means “donkey riders” and a chariot of camels probably means “camel riders.” The Persian army used donkeys and camels.

21:8 in the daytime . . . every night suggests “continually”—a display of Isaiah’s faithfulness to His calling.

21:10 My threshing is a metaphor for the punishment coming on Judah.

21:11, 12 This brief oracle against Dumah, an oasis in northern Arabia, consists of an editorial superscription (v. 11), a question by sleepless Edom to Isaiah about how much of the night is left (v. 11), and Isaiah’s enigmatic response that night accompanies the new day (v. 12).

21:11 Dumah was located at the intersection of the east-west trade route between Babylon and Edom and the north-south route between Palmyra and Edom. Dumah played a vital military and economic role in the relationship between Mesopotamia and Edom, and its fate greatly affected Edom. Seir is Edom (34:5–17; Gen. 32:3). Watchman refers to the night patrol who kept watch on the city. The metaphor refers to the prophet Isaiah, who as a guard on the walls could see the dawn—the light of salvation—in the east before others. What of the night may be rephrased as: “What is left of the night?”

21:12 and also the night: Dumah’s future was grim. Relief from Assyrian domination would be followed quickly by Babylonian domination.

21:13–17 The oracle against Arabia, after the superscription (v. 13), has three parts: (1) an address by Isaiah to Tema to provide for Arabian refugees fleeing from battle (vv. 13–15); (2) an address by the Lord to Isaiah confirming and elaborating upon Arabia’s defeat (vv. 16, 17); (3) an epilogue guaranteeing the prophecy (v. 17).

21:13 Dedanites may be the refugees described in v. 15. Dedan was about 90 miles southeast of Tema (v. 14).

21:14 Tema was about two hundred miles southeast of Dumah (v. 11).

21:15 The drawn swords are those of the Assyrians and Babylonians.

21:16 Kedar was a relatively fertile region in the northwestern part of the Arabian desert in which Dedan and Tema were located (60:7). Its refugees would be driven deeper into the desert.

22:1–25 After the superscription (v. 1), the oracle against Jerusalem consists of five parts: (1) a contrast between Jerusalem’s blind revelry and Isaiah’s appalling vision of its selfish rulers having fled the city, leaving it to be plundered (vv. 1–4); (2) Isaiah’s detailed vision of the city’s fall (vv. 5–8); (3) Isaiah’s indictment of Jerusalem for its misplaced confidence in its defenses instead of in the Lord (vv. 8–11); (4) Isaiah’s indictment for its response of merrymaking instead of repenting (vv. 12, 13); (5) a final vision confirming that this last apostasy sealed Jerusalem’s doom (v. 14). The vision is followed by an example of Jerusalem’s blindness in Shebna, the city’s steward (vv. 15–19), whose weakness is contrasted with the ability of his successor Eliakim (vv. 20–25).

22:1 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Valley of Vision sarcastically describes Jerusalem. Mount Zion is ironically personified in its valleys from which it could see nothing. Instead of partying on housetops, the ailing city should have been in its prayer closets.

22:2, 3 In the prophet’s vision, the rulers are not slain with the sword while heroically defending the city, but are captured while fleeing to save their own skins (2 Kin. 25:4–6).

22:4 daughter of my people: For a similar reference, see 1:8.

22:6, 7 Kir is Elam. The Elamites may have been part of the Assyrian army (5:26). gate: The same army that plundered Babylon (21:2) will arrive at Jerusalem’s gates.

22:8 The House of the Forest is the nation’s armory (39:2).

22:9–11 The defense of the city depended upon the availability of water within its walls. Hezekiah addressed this need by digging a tunnel beneath the city, connecting the lower pool in Jerusalem’s southwestern valley with the old pool, the source of water in the eastern valley.

22:12, 13 Called for weeping and for mourning . . . But instead, joy and gladness: God demanded repentance and renewal; the people instead turned to pleasure and parties. eat and drink: At times, this is a proper response to adversity (Eccl. 2:24; 3:13); but to use food, drink, and sensual pleasures as a means of shielding oneself from righteousness before the Lord is disastrous (Luke 17:26–29).

22:15 Steward refers to a high government official who was responsible for caring for the king and his dominion.

22:16 Here refers to Silwan, on the eastern side of the Kidron valley, overlooking the City of David. By hewing himself a sepulcher on high, Shebna rivaled the king (2 Chr. 16:14), to whom he should have been a father (v. 21).

22:17 throw you away: An impressive grave is no defense against God.

22:18, 19 The large country refers to Assyria. drive you out: Shebna was demoted to a secretary by the time of the Assyrian siege (36:3, 22).

22:20 Eliakim was an official whom God would honor in place of the arrogant Shebna (v. 15).

22:21 The pronoun your refers to Shebna (v. 15). The word father suggests the self-sacrificing love of Eliakim for citizens of Jerusalem.

22:22 The steward had the key that gave him an audience with the king (Matt. 16:19; Rev. 3:7).

22:23 A peg suggests one who is firmly in place, a reliable person (but see 22:25). Glorious throne suggests that Eliakim will bring honor to the memory of his father's house in contrast to the shame Shebna had brought to his master (see v. 18).

22:24 All vessels is a metaphor for all of the inhabitants, both the influential and the insignificant.

22:25 the peg that is fastened in the secure place: The reference here appears to be Eliakim (v. 20). Even the noble Eliakim could not sustain the burden of government. Only Immanuel could do that (9:6, 7).

23:1–18 The oracle against Tyre consists of two main parts (following the superscription in v. 1): the fall of Tyre (vv. 1–14) and the restoration of it (vv. 15–18). As in ch. 13, the language is stylized, general, and symbolic, not historically specific.

23:1 burden: For similar phrasing, see 13:1. Tyre was besieged several times over a period of about four hundred years before it was finally laid waste by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. Cyprus had close commercial ties with Tyre (Ezek. 27:6), as did Solomon (1 Kin. 5:1, 8–11). The pronoun it refers to the report that Tyre had fallen.

burden

(Heb. massa') (23:1; 2 Kin. 9:25; Jer. 23:33) Strong's #4853

This noun is a derivative of the verb nasa' which means “to lift up” or “to carry away.” Massa' refers to something that is taken or carried such as a present, tribute, or message. It is also translated oracle (Jer. 23:33) when God uses His prophets to convey judgment against someone or some nation. Isaiah frequently used this term in what are commonly known as the “oracles against the nations,” where he spoke of God’s judgment on different kingdoms (13:1; 15:1; 17:1; 19:1; 21:1, 11). Translating the word as burden emphasizes that Isaiah carried and delivered God’s indictments against the nations.

Go to the List of Word Studies

23:3, 4 Shihor, a synonym for Egypt (see Jer. 2:18), brought its coveted grain to Phoenicia, bringing revenue to Tyre, the marketplace for the nations. Sidon, the other prominent city along with Tyre, depended on the Mediterranean sea for its livelihood, which is personified here as a bereft father.

23:5 Egypt would be in agony because its profitable trading partner was gone.

23:6, 7 Tarshish is Tartessus in Spain and represents the most distant place to the ancient Israelites (2:16). Whose feet . . . to dwell is a personification of Tyre’s colonies. Tyre’s large merchant fleet traversed the Mediterranean Sea. Their colonies were sprinkled throughout the Mediterranean world in support of their shipping empire.

23:8 crowning: Tyre crowned its trading merchants with wealth and prestige.

23:9 dishonor the pride: For a similar idea, see 2:12–19.

23:12 Oppressed suggests “crushed” in war. virgin daughter of Sidon: It is possible that this phrase is used as a parody. Jerusalem is the Lord’s daughter; Tyre is merely a pretender.

23:13 Since the Chaldeans had not escaped the siege towers of the Assyrians who raised up or laid bare the foundations of Babylon’s palaces, neither would Tyre.

23:15 Seventy years symbolizes a full measure of time, a lifetime.

23:16 The forgotten harlot who, in her old age, sings songs to be remembered is a metaphor for the restoration of Tyre.

23:17 Will deal is a translation of the Hebrew verb “to visit.” Although the verb can express God’s merciful visitation on His people, here the verb is used to express God’s judgment (24:21). Commit fornication is a metaphor for Tyre’s forming economic alliances with anyone that enriched her, regardless of ethics.

23:18 Tyre’s pay would be set apart, or “regarded as holy,” for the LORD (18:7; 60:5–11). This was not a violation of Deut. 23:18, which forbade bringing a harlot’s pay to the temple. Tyre’s destruction was part of the Lord’s war against the unrighteous. The spoils would belong to Him as the Victor (Deut. 2:35; Josh. 6:17, 19).

24:1–27:13 The section describing the Lord’s “burdens” against particular nations (chs. 13–23) is now placed in a larger framework that depicts God’s triumph over the entire earth for His elect. Chapter 24 focuses on God’s overthrow of the corrupted earth; ch. 25 focuses on the responsive praise to

His actions. Chapters 26 and 27 focus on God's efforts for His people.

24:1–23 Chapter 24 consists of five stanzas: (1) the desolation of the earth because of sin (vv. 1–6); (2) the end of revelry in the city (vv. 7–13); (3) glory to God, but grief over the earth (vv. 14–16); (4) the hopelessness of flight, for the whole earth shakes (vv. 17–20); (5) the vision of God reigning on Mt. Zion over the cosmos (vv. 21–23).

24:1 Scatters is an allusion to Gen. 11:9. The Lord had scattered the inhabitants of the earth in the past at the tower of Babel; He would do so again.

24:2 As . . . debtor: Wealth and power will make no difference. Both will suffer for wickedness before God.

24:4 The earth mourns: For a similar idea, see Rom. 8:22.

24:5 laws . . . ordinance . . . everlasting covenant: The usual language concerning a breach of the covenant is applied more generally to the wicked nations. Perhaps these words speak of that innate sense of right and wrong—the conscience—that God has given to all humankind, but which everyone violates (Rom. 1:18–32; compare Acts 24:16).

24:6 Left may also be translated “remnant” (10:20, 21).

24:7 New wine is simply a synonym of the standard word for wine.

24:8 Mirth and joy represent the same Hebrew word.

24:10 Confusion is translated “without form” in Gen. 1:2.

24:11 cry for wine: For a similar image, see Zeph. 1:13.

24:13 shaking . . . gleaning: People in desperation continue to seek for a single olive or for grapes.

24:14 They refers to those who love God's law and who have suffered for righteousness.

24:15 dawning light . . . the sea: The imagery suggests the east (the dawn) and west (the Mediterranean Sea). From east to west, everyone should give the Lord the praise that is due to Him.

24:16 But I said: The prophet could not join the oppressed's hymn of praise because he saw the awful treachery that would precede the rejoicing (33:1; Dan. 7:28; 8:27).

24:17, 18 Windows may be an allusion to the Flood (Gen. 7:11). In the OT the word means “openings.”

24:21 The Hebrew word to punish means “to visit” (23:17). The host of stars (Jer. 33:22) is identified with fallen angels (Matt. 24:29; Rev. 12:4, 9).

24:22 prisoners: For a similar idea see 2 Pet. 2:4.

24:23 His elders may be a reference to angelic beings who attend God's majesty.

25:1–12 This poem celebrating God's destruction of the sinful earth falls into three parts: (1) a hymn of praise by Isaiah (vv. 1–5); (2) the Lord's feast on Mt. Zion celebrating His destruction of death (vv. 6–8); (3) a hymn of praise by the congregation (vv. 9–12).

25:1 Wonderful things refers to the wonders only God can do. Faithfulness and truth may be rephrased as “absolute truth.”

25:2 Any proud city is in view here (24:10). never be rebuilt: For a similar idea, see 24:20.

25:3 The terrible nations are those addressed in chs. 13–23. The pairing of glorify (24:15) and fear speaks of the absolute submission to God of all people (Phil. 2:10).

25:4 The repetition of the word strength and the use of the terms refuge (57:13) and shade is similar to the listing of terms for protection in Ps. 91:1–3.

25:5 The use of the term terrible ones, or nations, three times in vv. 3–5 emphasizes divine judgment on the nations represented.

25:6 mountain: For a similar usage, see 2:2. A feast of wines on the lees refers to the best wine. Fat things full of marrow refers to the choicest food. The feast is similar to the one prepared by Wisdom in Prov. 9:1–6.

25:7 The surface of the covering and veil refer to a “shroud.” This is a promise of the end of death (v. 8).

25:8 Death is often pictured as an “enlarged mouth” by the poets of the Bible. Paradoxically, the Lord will swallow up death. Lord is the title meaning Sovereign or Master; the word GOD represents the divine name Yahweh, ordinarily translated Lord. wipe away tears: This promise is given anew in Rev. 7:17; 21:4. the LORD has spoken: The promises are as sure as the eternal character of God (1:20).

25:9 Note the change from “my God” (v. 1) to our God. This verse is the faithful’s song of praise. Be glad and rejoice may be rephrased as “be exceedingly happy.” Salvation is deliverance from constraint, whether it is falling into a pit (Ps. 40:2) or the constraint of sin and death.

25:10 Moab symbolizes the proud. for the refuse heap: This phrase refers to water mixed with dung—a very unpleasant image.

25:12 He will bring down: This will be the work of the Lord.

26:1–27:1 This poem consists of three sections: (1) a pilgrim’s song celebrating the city of God (26:1–6); (2) a song of trust in God (26:7–19); (3) an encouraging promise that God will punish evil (26:20–27:1).

26:1 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12. The pilgrim’s strong city presumably is Mt. Zion (2:2; 60:14).

26:2 Open the gates is the language of a pilgrim song (Ps. 118:19, 20).

26:3 The Hebrew expression translated perfect peace is literally “peace, peace”; compare the word holy in 6:3. Immanuel will inaugurate this superior kind of peace (9:6; 11:6–9).

26:4 Trust means “to commit oneself fully to.” Yah, the LORD is an emphatic designation of God (see 12:2).

26:5, 6 Line after line asserts the destruction of the lofty city (v. 1) by the power of God.

26:7 uprightness; O Most Upright: The relative uprightness of the righteous is put into the context of the absolute uprightness of the Holy One.

26:8 waited: For a similar idea, see 40:31 (compare Ps. 40:1).

26:9 in the night . . . early: The prophet describes his relentless search for God.

26:10 The wicked show contempt for God’s grace (Rom. 2:4). Majesty is translated “excellent things” in 12:5.

26:11 Your hand: The works of God are ignored by the wicked (5:12). The fire of may also be translated “the fire upon.”

26:12 True peace comes only from the Lord (26:3; John 14:27).

26:13 Other masters included rulers of Egypt in the past, rulers of Assyria in the present, and rulers of Babylon in the future. Make mention of Your name refers to God’s character as learned through past experience.

26:14 They are dead: The prophet saw the future demise of the enemies of God’s people. In contrast to the faithful (v. 19), these people will not rise.

26:15 You have increased the nation: The repetition of this expression emphasizes both its certainty and its magnitude.

26:16 The pronoun they refers to the faithful nation.

26:17, 18 a woman with child: A woman can endure labor pains for the sake of the joy that follows. The faithful remnant of Isaiah’s time endured oppression, but brought forth wind, a metaphor for meaningless labor.

26:19 Isaiah, addressing his faithful peers, assures them that their dead will rise in resurrection (Job 19:26; Dan. 12:2). Dew is a picture of new life and blessing (Ps. 133:3; Hos. 14:5).

26:20 My people refers to the faithful, righteous remnant. Their sufferings under the Assyrian tyrants were but for a little moment, and were not worthy to be compared to the eternal joy that would follow (26:19; 54:7; Ps. 30:5; 2 Cor. 4:17).

26:21 Comes can also be translated “is about to come.” When the earth discloses the blood of the poor and needy that it has swallowed from the hands of ruthless tyrants, it will bear testimony against those evil people; the Lord will avenge them (Gen. 4:10).

27:1 Punish links this verse with 26:21; this verse is the climax of the preceding section. As in the case of the serpent Lotan in the Ugaritic myths, Leviathan was a mythological, dragon-like deity who symbolized chaos and who battled unsuccessfully against God (see Job 3:8; 41:1; Ps. 74:14). serpent . . . reptile: Isaiah borrows the imagery of this battle myth to teach that God will triumph over all who oppose Him. in the sea: See Ps. 93 for a development of this theme.

27:2–13 This prophecy is a song about the Lord's restoration of His vineyard, Israel (vv. 2–6); a contrast of the Lord's discipline of Israel (vv. 7–9) with His annihilation of its oppressors (vv. 10, 11); and a promise that the Lord will regather the exiles to Mt. Zion (vv. 12, 13).

27:2 The vineyard is Israel (5:7; 27:6). Red wine contrasts with "wild grapes" (5:2). This was God's intention for His people—He wanted them to produce, as it were, delectable wine.

27:3 I . . . keep it contrasts with "I will lay it waste" (5:6). Water it every moment contrasts with "no rain on it" (5:6). Lest any hurt it contrasts with "I will take away its hedge" (5:5). This passage is a complete reversal of the judgment recorded in ch. 5.

27:4 Fury is not in Me contrasts with "For all this His anger is not turned away" (5:25). Who would set briers and thorns contrasts with "there shall come up briers and thorns" (5:6).

27:5 peace: For a development of this theme, see 9:6; 11:1–16; 26:3.

27:6 Those who come refers to the regathered exiles (v. 13).

27:7 Has He: The two questions that begin with these words expect a negative answer. struck Israel: The Lord struck the nations fatally (14:22, 30), but not Israel (10:24–26).

27:8 Sending it away refers to the Exile (v. 13).

27:9 iniquity . . . covered: See 40:2 for another statement that Israel's punishment atoned for its guilt.

Wooden images: For a similar usage, see 17:8.

27:10 the fortified city will be desolate: For a similar idea, see 25:2, 10–12; 26:5, 6.

27:12 Thresh refers to harvesting a crop by flailing, such as beating an olive tree. the River to the Brook of Egypt: These geographical references mark out Israel's ideal homeland—from the Euphrates to the Wadi el-Arish (Gen. 15:18).

27:13 The great trumpet is a figure of speech for assembling troops (Ex. 19:16, 19; 1 Sam. 13:3; 2 Sam. 6:15; Matt. 24:31; 1 Cor. 15:52; 1 Thess. 4:16).

28:1–35:10 This section consists of six woes (28:1; 29:1, 15; 30:1; 31:1; 33:1), including woes to future rulers (28:1–29:24); woes for accepting foolish counsel (30:1–31:9), with an appendix promising salvation in God the King (32:1–20); and woes against Assyria, which give promise of Zion's future glory (33:1–35:10).

28:1–29 The woe oracle against the northern kingdom's rulers (vv. 1–13) was to serve as an example to Judah's rulers (vv. 14–29). Note the word therefore in v. 14.

28:1 The crown of pride refers to Samaria. drunkards: The biblical writers regularly condemn the abuse of wine, drunkenness, and debauchery (5:11, 12). Ephraim: This name sometimes refers to all of Israel (see 7:2–9).

28:2 The strong one refers to Assyria, which is likened to hail that strips a plant of its leaves and mighty waters that sweep away the stalks (8:7, 8; 17:12, 13).

28:3 crown of pride: This phrase is repeated from v. 1.

28:5 In that day: For a similar phrase, see 2:12. The true crown of glory (29:17–24; 30:18–33; 32:1–33:24) stands in contrast to the false one (vv. 1–4). remnant: For similar references, see 1:9; 10:19–23.

28:6 The spirit of justice will prevail in the messianic age (11:1–5; 42:1–4).

28:7 They also refers to the religious leaders, the priest and the prophet.

28:9, 10 Will he teach was spoken by the hardened leaders against Isaiah.

28:9 A child was weaned between the ages of three and five, the time for elementary moral education, which is described in v. 10.

28:11 The stammering lips were those of the Assyrians, who would become the teachers of Israel because of Israel's own failed leadership (33:19).

28:12 In place of the rest that comes from faith, Israel's oppressors would teach with a rod.

28:13 The word of the LORD would take the shape of discipline in the form of foreigners with stammering lips teaching their morals to Israel, who should have learned from God.

28:14 Scornful men are worse than “fools”; beyond choosing what is bad, they despise what is good (Ps. 1:1).

28:15 covenant with death . . . lies . . . falsehood: These phrases are probably Isaiah’s way of describing the people’s covenant with Egypt. Overflowing scourge is likely the prophet’s way of describing the Assyrian reprisals (10:26; 28:2). The scorners have sarcastically thrown Isaiah’s warnings back in his face.

28:16, 17 Therefore: In response to the people’s scoffing, the Lord GOD promises to establish His future kingdom on the sure foundation of justice and faith. I lay refers to the future, “I will lay.” The apostles identified the stone for a foundation as Jesus Christ (1 Pet. 2:4–6). hail . . . waters: For similar descriptions, see v. 2.

28:19 As often as: The Assyrian army trampled through Israel many times.

28:20 The too-short bed and the too-narrow covering give a false promise of security and comfort, an apt figure for the people’s ill-advised, obstinate alliance with Egypt.

28:21 At Mount Perazim, God broke forth like a mighty flood (2 Sam. 5:20; 1 Chr. 14:11; compare vv. 2, 15, 17, 18). In the Valley of Gibeon, He brought forth hail (Josh. 10:10, 11; compare vv. 2, 17). God’s judgment on Israel was unusual, or “alien,” in that He rarely struck out in wrath against His own sinful people. The Hebrew Scripture is not a record of the wrath of God, but of His long patience toward His erring people, whom He still desires to call “My people” (Ex. 6:2–8).

28:22 Mockers comes from the same Hebrew root as “scornful men” in v. 14. Lord GOD of hosts: For a similar usage, see 1:9. upon the whole earth: For a similar idea, see 24:1–23.

28:27, 28 A threshing sledge would have been too large a tool for such a finely ground product as cummin.

28:29 wonderful in counsel: For a similar idea, see 9:6. The wisdom that the farmer uses in vv. 24–28 to tend his crops comes from God, the source of all good counsel.

- 29:1–14 The second woe is against Jerusalem for its hypocritical religion—specifically its empty worship (vv. 1–8) and its blind prophets (vv. 9–14).
- 29:1 Ariel probably means “altar hearth” (Ezek. 43:15, 16). The destruction and bloodshed in Jerusalem would make the city appear like an altar. The repetition of the term Ariel indicates the Lord’s sorrow over the sorry state to which His city had fallen. where David dwelt: David made Jerusalem his capital and planned the temple that Solomon would later build in that city. These words show God’s continuing love for His servant David, the prototype of the coming King Jesus. Add year to year is a sarcastic reference to repetitious, empty ritual (1:10–17).
- 29:2 Heaviness and sorrow may be rephrased as “grievous sorrow.”
- 29:3 Siege refers to the Assyrian siege of the city in 701 B.C.
- 29:4 Voice . . . like a medium’s refers to the forbidden, deceptive “voices” for which the medium supposedly served as a channel. The strong voice of the city of Jerusalem would become merely a whisper (8:19).
- 29:6 Punished is literally “visited,” a word sometimes used for bringing salvation. thunder and earthquake and great noise . . . storm and tempest . . . fire: The Lord’s coming to His people is described using the imagery of the elements that accompanied Him at Sinai (Ex. 19:16–19) and when He fought for Israel (19:1; 30:27; Judg. 5:4, 5; Ps. 18:7–15; Hab. 3:3–7).
- 29:7 all the nations: For a similar usage, see 5:26. Ariel: The term is also used in v. 1 for the city of Jerusalem. As a dream means “quickly passing,” almost “unreal.”
- 29:9, 10 Pause . . . Blind: Whereas the religious leaders of Israel were physically drunk (28:7), those of Jerusalem stagger not from intoxicating drinks, but from ignorance of the Lord and His ways. Deep sleep is from a word used also of Adam’s sleep (Gen. 2:21), a supernatural stupor. prophets . . . seers: The visions that God had given were not appreciated or obeyed.
- 29:11, 12 The literate represent the religious leaders who found Isaiah’s prophecies sealed due to their own spiritual blindness (Rev. 5:1). The illiterate represent the common people.
- 29:13 The people’s mouths and lips spoke the right things, but their inner nature was far from God.
- 29:14 God’s marvelous work includes both judgment on the proud and salvation for the lowly (vv. 17–24). wisdom . . . shall perish: For a similar idea, see 1 Cor. 1:18–31.
- 29:15–24 The third woe oracle, directed against Israel’s unbelieving counselors, consists of an accusation that the counselors had turned the religious world upside down by seeking to manipulate God rather than submitting to Him (vv. 15, 16), and the promise that God would turn the counselor’s social world upside down by deflating the pretentious and elevating the lowly (vv. 17–24).
- 29:15 The word counsel refers to making alliances instead of running to God for assistance.
- 29:16 potter . . . clay: For a similar idea, see 45:9.
- 29:17 Lebanon is a symbol of the earth’s might (2:13; 10:34; 33:9). Fruitful field, or “garden,” is the opposite of Lebanon, a forest.
- 29:18 Those who were once deaf and blind to the words of the book will miraculously understand it (vv. 9–12).
- 29:19 poor: For a similar usage, see 61:1.
- 29:20 terrible one: For similar references, see 13:11; 25:3, 4; 49:24. scornful: For a similar reference, see 28:14.
- 29:21 By a word refers to false testimony. Lay a snare may include the miscarriage of justice through legal technicalities. By empty words refers to winning a case through lies or clever arguments.
- 29:22 redeemed Abraham: For additional information, see Acts 7:2–4. Jacob shall not now be ashamed: Based on God’s covenant with the patriarchs, the Lord gave a renewed promise of deliverance and blessing to the Israelites.
- 29:23 My hands: God Himself will bring about the redemption of His people. Holy One of Jacob refers to the One whom Jacob regarded as holy; it is a variant of the expression “Holy One of Israel.”

30:1–33 In the previous chapter, Isaiah denounces those who seek human support, instead of depending on the Lord. In chs. 30 and 31, Isaiah addresses the specific folly of depending on Egypt. This woe oracle consists of a condemnation of dependence on Egypt (vv. 1–17) and a promise that the Lord will save Israel and destroy Assyria (vv. 18–33).

30:1 This is the fourth woe in 28:1–35:10. The rebellious children are Hezekiah’s advisers. To the sin of injustice they add the sin of devising plans independently of God. My Spirit is another way of speaking of God (11:2).

30:2 the shadow of Egypt: The contrast, of course, would be trusting in the “shadow of the Almighty” (Ps. 91:1).

30:3 Shame refers to deep humiliation.

30:4 His ambassadors may be the people from Judah who went from Zoan (19:11–13) in the Delta to Hanes, some 50 miles south of Cairo.

30:5 Shame and reproach speak of an intolerable humiliation.

30:6 The burden against the beasts was due to the fact that they vainly carried Judah’s gifts through the wilderness to Egypt (vv. 7–11).

30:7 Rahab, which literally means “Storm” or “Arrogant,” was a dragon from pagan mythology who was pictured as resisting creation. Both Rahab and Leviathan are symbolic of the forces of evil in the universe that God will destroy (51:9).

30:9 That can mean “because.” Law refers to the prophet’s instruction, which is from the Lord Himself (see v. 15).

30:10 Do not see: For a similar usage, see Mic. 2:6.

30:11 To cease: This was the most flagrant of the people’s wicked words.

30:12 To not choose to obey the Lord is to reject Him, even to despise His message. trust in oppression: For a similar idea, see 1:15–17; 29:20, 21.

30:13, 14 A bulge in a high wall and the breaking of the potter’s vessel signify that judgment would come suddenly and completely. A shard is a piece of broken pottery.

30:15 Returning entails repentance. rest: For a similar idea, see 28:12. Quietness and confidence may be rephrased as “utter trust.” Trusting in God’s strength instead of our own is the only way we can find true rest.

30:16 Instead of trusting in the Lord, the people were depending on Egypt for horses and chariots to defend the land (31:1).

30:17 One thousand shall flee: The point is that the nation will be utterly routed (Deut. 32:30).

30:18 God’s justice demands that the Assyrian oppressors be punished (Judg. 2:16). God’s gracious character and His mercy are balanced; they interact with His justice and the fact that He will be exalted.

30:19 You shall weep no more: A similar promise is given in 25:8. the sound of your cry: For a similar idea, see Judg. 2:18.

30:20 bread of adversity: The Lord was giving the Israelites meager rations as though they were in prison (1 Kin. 22:27). But after judgment the Lord would provide salvation: Israel’s eyes would see (29:24). Teachers probably refers to the prophets (v. 10).

30:21 Walk in it contrasts with “turn aside” in v. 11. The people had been living in such a way that they were oblivious to their spiritual teachers (v. 20); now they would be taught by the Spirit of the living God.

30:22 Defile means “to desecrate by destruction” (2 Kin. 23:4–14). Unclean thing refers to something soiled by menstruation; the idea is to get rid of it.

30:23, 24 The promises that were part of the original Mosaic covenant were in force again. rain: Blessing would extend from field to flock (Deut. 28:11, 12).

30:25, 26 on every high mountain . . . light of the sun will be sevenfold: These phrases emphasize the magnitude of the coming salvation. waters: The coming of ample rainfall and strong streams are associated with the blessing that comes from trust in God (32:2; 41:17, 18). When the towers fall is associated with the collapse of human pride (2:12–17).

30:27 The name of the LORD refers to His character, as memorialized in His saving acts throughout history. Comes refers to the Lord's coming in a storm (29:6).

30:28 His breath describes the sound of the Lord's voice as a roaring, overflowing river. neck: For a similar image, see 8:8.

30:29 song . . . in the night: In times of festivals, singing would extend long into the evening. The Mighty One literally means "Rock" (Ps. 144:1).

30:30, 31 Here God's voice is compared to the thunder (Ps. 29:3, 4; contrast v. 28). descent of His arm: The strong arm of God had delivered the Israelites from Egypt; now His arm would descend in judgment (see Ex. 6:6). Assyria: Only here in this section is the enemy nation mentioned by name.

30:32 tambourines: For additional references to this instrument, see Ex. 15:20; 1 Sam. 18:6. And in battles: These were soldier-musicians; they were to be ready to fight or to play music as the occasion demanded.

30:33 Tophet, located south of Jerusalem, was the place where the valleys of Hinnom and Kidron met. It was probably a deep, wide pit containing a bonfire of blazing wood, where children had at times been burned to death as offerings to pagan deities (2 Kin. 23:10; Jer. 7:31, 32; 19:6, 11–14). The area has filled in significantly through the centuries. Brimstone is a reminder of the fiery destruction of Sodom (34:9, 10; Gen. 19:24).

31:1–9 The fifth woe oracle reaffirms the fourth oracle (30:1–33); it too was addressed to those who replaced faith in the Lord with reliance on Egypt. This oracle consists of a condemnation of dependence on Egypt (vv. 1–3), and a promise that the Lord will save Mt. Zion (vv. 4, 5) and destroy Assyria (vv. 6–9).

31:1 Woe to those who go down to Egypt: For a similar idea, see 30:2. Look means "to look with interest" or "to look with respect." Seek the LORD here entails consulting His prophets for direction (29:9, 10; 30:1).

31:2, 3 The house of evildoers refers to Judah. Their help refers to Egypt. Both Egypt and Judah will perish together.

31:4, 5 Lion connotes the LORD of hosts (1:9) and His resolve to fight the enemy. The multitude of shepherds refers to the Assyrian officers. Mount Zion and hill are synonyms. Birds flying about pictures the Lord's passionate commitment to defend Jerusalem. Passing over is a technical term used for the destroying angel who "passed over" Israel in destroying the Egyptians and defending Israel (Ex. 12:13, 23).

31:6, 7 revolted: For an explanation of the rebellion, see 30:1. throw away: For a similar idea, see 30:22. your own hands have made: For similar wording, see 2:8; 17:8.

31:8 Not of man refers to the death angel that destroyed Sennacherib's vaunted army (37:36).

31:9 A banner was a rallying point for a battle. The princes would be too dispirited to rally for the cause. fire: For similar imagery, see 10:17, 18; 30:27, 30, 33.

32:1–20 The fifth woe (ch. 31) concludes with a prophecy about leadership (vv. 1–8) and its effects (vv. 9–20). Paradoxically, generous leaders (vv. 1–5) produce abundance and permanent security (vv. 16–20), whereas the miserly (vv. 6, 7) produce false security and desolation (vv. 9–14).

32:1 The prophecy concerning this king is fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ (7:14; 9:1–7; 11:1–5; 28:16; John 10:11, 16). The princes are His "undershepherds" (1 Pet. 5:2–4).

32:2 The four similes for the future King's protection and provision of His people contrast with Israel's present incompetent leadership (28:7; 29:9, 10; 30:1, 2; 31:1, 2).

32:3, 4 Clear eyes and listening ears are figures for the future sensible leadership, in contrast to the present senseless, foolish leadership. The people's eyes and ears would also be opened (6:9, 10; 29:18, 24; 35:5; 42:7); similarly, they would have a heart that is understanding and a tongue that speaks plainly.

32:6, 7 The contrast between the way the noble and foolish speak comes from the person's heart (v. 4). If a person meditates on evil, that person will speak and act treacherously. destroy the poor with lying words: For a similar idea see 29:20, 21.

32:9 The term complacent is used three times of these women (vv. 9, 10, 12); it is derived from the verb meaning "to trust." Thus the word can also be rendered as "assured" and "secure" (see also vv. 17, 19). Although the wicked erroneously relied on Egypt for their security (see 31:1), the righteous placed their trust in the Lord and obtained true security.

32:11, 12 Mourning women in the ancient Middle East removed their clothing and wore sackcloth around their waists (Gen. 37:34).

32:13, 14 thorns and briars: For similar usage, see 5:6; 7:23. palaces . . . pasture: These images speak of the complete ruin of Jerusalem in the day of God's judgment.

32:15 The new age depends on the creative work of the Spirit (11:2; 42:1; 61:1; Ezek. 36:26, 27; Joel 2:28, 29) who originates on high, in God's dwelling (33:5). This is in contrast to going "down to Egypt" (31:1).

32:16 fruitful field: This is a reversal of the judgment predicted in 29:17.

32:17, 18 The Hebrew words translated assurance and secure are related to the Hebrew word translated "complacent" in v. 9.

32:19 Hail may refer to Assyria (28:2).

33:1–24 The sixth woe differs from the others in that it is addressed to Assyria, not to Judah. By focusing exclusively on Assyria's defeat and Judah's salvation, the prophecy magnifies Judah's exalted King (vv. 3, 5, 10). This woe oracle consists of an introduction of the main themes of the oracle (vv. 1–6); an emphasis on Judah's need for salvation and the Lord's provision of that need (vv. 7–13), and its spiritual impact on sinners (vv. 14–16); and a conclusion showing the majestic King in His beauty (vv. 17–24).

33:1 You refers to Assyria, who treacherously (21:2; 24:16) broke its treaties (2 Kin. 18:13–37).

33:2 be gracious: For a similar idea, see 30:18. The besieged remnant, including Isaiah, had waited for the Lord in prayer (37:14–20) and in confident expectation (40:31). salvation: For a similar reference to God as the only place to find salvation, see 12:2.

33:3 When You lift Yourself up speaks of an exaltation of the heavenly King (vv. 5, 10) as He rises to demonstrate His glory and vindicate His justice. Scattered is an allusion to Moses' song of praise (see Num. 10:35).

33:4 The plunder of God's war with His enemies belongs to the Lord, the true Victor (23:18; 34:2). It will be gathered as swiftly and completely as the caterpillar and locusts can strip a field, since the Lord's judgment will come quickly without warning (1 Thess. 5:2).

33:5 exalted . . . on high: This chapter presents the "rising glory" of the Savior King over His people, defending them against Assyria and all others. Justice and righteousness may be rephrased as "true justice."

33:6 Wisdom and knowledge . . . fear of the LORD: The Messiah's characteristics (11:2) will also characterize His city.

33:7, 8 Valiant ones may sarcastically refer to three officials of Judah who conferred with the Assyrians (36:3, 22). Judah's ambassadors wept bitterly because Assyria took their gifts, but continued to besiege Jerusalem (v. 1). With the treaty between Assyria and Judah broken, the highways were not safe.

33:9 Sharon was on the western coastal plain. Bashan was on the east side of the Jordan.

33:10 Now . . . Now . . . Now: The King is about to assert His authority (vv. 5, 16).

33:11 You refers to Assyria (v. 1). chaff . . . stubble . . . fire: The grandeur of Assyria would be consumed quickly.

33:12 The burnings of lime—all that is left from burning lime is dust—and thorns . . . in the fire indicate the thoroughness and swiftness of Assyria's destruction (27:4).

33:13 Hear: For a similar call for all to acknowledge the Lord as Sovereign, see 34:1.

33:14 Who among us shall dwell: This is the language of a pilgrimage psalm (see Ps. 15:1; 24:3). burnings: For a description of God as a consuming fire, see Deut. 4:24; 9:3; Heb. 12:29.

33:15, 16 walks righteously: For a similar description of the person who can approach the Holy One, see Ps. 1:1, 2; 15:2; Gal. 5:22–25; Eph. 5:1, 2. Who stops . . . shuts: These words do not advocate ignoring social evil, but refusing to take part in it. On high refers to God's dwelling (v. 5)—the place the righteous will go to live with God forever.

33:17 The King is the Lord (v. 22). The land of the Lord's dominion will stretch very far off (26:15).

33:18 The scribe . . . who weighs refers to those who took the tribute (2 Kin. 18:14).

33:19 stammering tongue: For a similar idea concerning Israel's enemies, see Deut. 28:49.

33:20 The feasts were celebrated from the heart (30:29), and not perfunctorily (29:1). Not be taken down implies that the Exile is over. Judah's immediate salvation merges with its ultimate deliverance.

33:21 Judah would be protected figuratively by broad rivers, like those at Tyre (23:1–3) and Thebes (Nah. 3:8). However, no intimidating ship would be on the rivers, because God Himself would defend Judah.

33:22 Note that the Lawgiver is associated with other acts of mercy (Deut. 6:1–3; John 1:14–18); the giving of the Law was God's way to point out the correct path for the Israelites to follow. This was merely another expression of His mercy.

33:24 Sickness and sin will be removed in the coming kingdom of the glorious Savior.

34:1–35:10 Two prophecies form an appendix to the sixth woe (ch. 33): (1) the fertile land of the plundering nations will be transformed into a desert (ch. 34); (2) the desert will be transformed into fertile land (ch. 35).

34:1 nations: For a similar reference, see 5:26. Let the earth hear: For similar calls for all the world to listen to Isaiah's prophecy, see 1:2; 33:13.

34:2 Indignation is a strong term used to describe the wrath of God. Destroyed means "to devote to destruction." Because the Lord had defeated His enemy, the spoils were to be devoted totally to Him by burning them (23:18).

34:3 The blood of the slain would be so great that it would create mudslides.

34:4 The host of heaven here refers to pagan deities (24:21; 2 Kin. 17:16). be dissolved: See the similar language of 13:10, 13. heavens . . . rolled up like a scroll: The old cosmos will give way to the new (51:6; Matt. 24:29; Rev. 6:13, 14; 21:1).

34:5 The Lord's avenging sword moves from demolishing the pantheon of heaven (v. 4) to Edom (63:1) in particular. Curse comes from the same root translated "destroyed" in v. 2. Edom is "devoted to destruction."

34:6 Blood and slaughter link Edom's destruction with that of the nations (vv. 2, 3). Sin must be atoned for by sacrifice, either of the sinner himself as here (Ezek. 33:10), or by the substitutionary sacrifice of Christ (52:13–15).

34:7 Oxen and bulls may represent Edom's troops or leaders.

34:8 vengeance: The Lord secures His sovereignty and keeps His community whole by saving His wronged subjects and punishing their guilty oppressors.

34:9 Brimstone and burning pitch may be allusions to Sodom and Gomorrah (30:33; see Gen. 19:24; Ezek. 38:22).

34:11 The pelican, porcupine, owl, and raven are all unclean creatures of remote, uninhabited places (see Deut. 14:14–17). In the day of God's judgment, Edom would become a wasteland. The Hebrew words translated confusion and . . . emptiness are translated "without form and void" in Gen. 1:2. Edom will be returned to chaos.

34:12 There will be no nobles or princes in the desert.

34:13–15 For a similar description of these unclean desert creatures, see 13:21, 22.

34:16 The book of the LORD may refer to the prophecy found in vv. 1–15.

34:17 As God gave Israel the Promised Land by lot in the sacred assembly (Josh. 18:10), so in His judgment He divided Edom among the unclean animals.

35:1 wilderness . . . desert: The Spirit of God will make the earth fruitful again (32:15). rejoice: The joy of the elements of creation is a reflection of the joy of God's people at the arrival of His salvation (14:7, 8; 44:23; 55:12).

35:2 glory of Lebanon . . . Sharon: This is a reversal of the judgment of 33:9. The glory of the LORD would be seen in the return of the captives from Babylon (40:5).

35:3 Strengthen the weak hands: This phrase is cited in Heb. 12:12 (see also Josh. 1:6, 7, 9, 18). We can reassure ourselves with the knowledge that our Savior is coming. In that day, justice will be restored.

35:4 save you: When the Lord comes, He will offer salvation (see Luke 19:10). vengeance: See the use of this word in 34:8.

35:5, 6 eyes . . . ears . . . lame . . . tongue: This prophecy of healings was fulfilled in the physical and spiritual healings of Jesus (61:1; see Matt. 12:22; Luke 4:18; 7:22). opened . . . unstopped: For similar usage, see 29:18; 32:3.

35:7 The habitation of jackals speaks of the coming reversal of the devastation God had brought on the land (see 34:14). Reeds and rushes speaks of the reversal of the destruction described in 19:5, 6.

35:8 The promise of a safe highway is a reversal of the judgment in 33:8; 34:10 (see also 11:16; 40:3, 4; 57:14; 62:10). ravenous beast: Ferocious animals could make traveling dangerous in the ancient world.

35:10 the ransomed: The restored Babylonian exiles symbolize political and spiritual exiles and the physically and spiritually blind, deaf, and lame of all times and places. The Lord would come to rescue them from their tragic predicaments. come to Zion with singing: For a description of this scene, see 12:1 (compare Ps. 126:1–6). sorrow and sighing: For more detail, see 25:7, 8.

36:1–39:8 This historical bridge between chs. 1–35 and 40–66 consists of two parts: (1) Hezekiah's faith in the face of an Assyrian threat (chs. 36; 37); (2) Hezekiah's mixed faith in the face of illness (chs. 38; 39).

36:1–37:38 This section validates Isaiah's predictions that the Lord would (1) destroy Judah through Assyria (36:1), (2) besiege Jerusalem (36:2–22), (3) deliver the faithful remnant (37:1–35), and destroy the Assyrians (37:36–38). Isaiah proclaims that sin compounded with misplaced confidence brings defeat; conversely, repentance and faith in the Lord brings deliverance (2 Kin. 18:13–19:37; 2 Chr. 32:1–23).

36:1 The fourteenth year of King Hezekiah's sole reign was 701 B.C. all: In his annals, Sennacherib mentions 46 cities that he attacked.

36:2 The Rabshakeh may have been the king's personal advisor. great army: For the defeat of this fighting force, see 37:36. aqueduct: For a similar reference, see 7:3.

36:3 Eliakim . . . Shebna: For further details, see 22:15–23.

36:4 Only the Assyrian leader is referred to here as king, not Hezekiah. This is an indication of the Assyrians' perspective on their own status.

36:6 Judah had refused to listen to Isaiah's insistence that reliance on Egypt was worthless (19:14–16; 30:3, 7; 31:3). Here they were given the same warning from their enemy.

36:7 taken away: Hezekiah had destroyed the idolatrous high places and altars that his father Ahaz had built (see 2 Kin. 18:1–5; 2 Chr. 31:1–3).

36:8 riders: Micah referred to Jerusalem's soldiers as merely a "troop" (Mic. 5:1) compared to the enormous international army of Assyria (Mic. 4:11).

36:9 one captain of the least: Judah had no hope of defeating the force that surrounded him.

36:10 The LORD said to me: Ancient Middle Eastern conquerors liked to claim that the gods of their defeated enemies had joined their side (2 Chr. 35:21). These words about the Lord were no more than a boast.

36:11 Aramaic was the language of international diplomacy during this period.

36:13, 14 The Rabshakeh spoke in Hebrew to be deliberately provocative: he wanted his words to be understood by the citizens of Jerusalem. deceive you: The Rabshakeh structured his speech so that he would quickly discourage those who heard it.

36:17 take you away: The Assyrians commonly exiled the people groups they conquered (see 2 Kin. 15:29; 17:6).

36:18–20 The Rabshakeh assumed that different gods were worshiped in Samaria than in Jerusalem, so he repeated some of the same sentiments articulated by the Assyrian king in 10:10, 11.

36:22 The words of the enemy would not bring pleasure to Hezekiah. The torn clothes indicated that the messengers were bearing bad news (37:1).

37:1 Sackcloth was a sign of mourning, repentance, and humiliation (20:2, 3; 1 Kin. 20:31; Neh. 9:1; Dan. 9:3). went into the house of the LORD: For a related passage, see 1 Kin. 8:33, 34.

37:2 Eliakim . . . Shebna: One of Isaiah’s prophecies condemns Shebna for his arrogance (see 22:15–23).

37:4 For more references to the remnant, see 1:9; 10:20.

37:6 The Lord commonly reassured His servants with the words: Do not be afraid (see 7:4; 35:4; Gen. 15:1; Josh. 1:9). We have no reason to fear if our trust is in the all-powerful God (see Heb. 13:6).

37:11 utterly destroying: See 34:2 for another use of this term.

37:15 Hezekiah prayed: Hezekiah had learned to turn to God for help in his times of need (see 30:1). For another of Hezekiah’s prayers, see 38:2, 3.

37:21 Because you have prayed to Me: God’s gracious response was a direct answer to the prayer of a godly king. Although God can certainly work His will without our prayers, He has chosen to faithfully answer the prayers of His people.

37:22 virgin: Cities are often personified as female in the Scriptures. This imagery speaks of Jerusalem as a “daughter” being threatened by an attacker. Yet Jerusalem prevails and overcomes her assailant. Daughter of Zion is an endearing term for the city of Jerusalem. Just as the Lord called Israel His “son” (see Ex. 4:22), so He looked upon Jerusalem as His daughter (1:8).

37:23 reproached and blasphemed . . . raised your voice . . . lifted up your eyes on high: The folly of the wicked of all ages is epitomized here. Anyone who lifts himself or herself up against the living God deserves the same strong words from the Almighty (see vv. 28, 29). Holy One of Israel: The Lord embodies perfect holiness: He is completely different or set apart from all of creation (40:25); He alone is entirely sinless (6:4–7). Yet God chooses to enter into a relationship with His people, the Israelites (Ps. 40:1).

37:24 Chariots were the most prized military hardware of the time. height of the mountains: See 2:12–16; 14:13, 14 for other occurrences of these arrogant words.

37:25 dug and drunk water: Deserts cannot stop Assyria’s king; he presents himself as invincible. The king boasts that he has dried up Egyptian streams. But the Lord will dry up the Egyptian sea (see 11:15; 44:27).

37:28, 29 your rage against Me: This accusation picks up the point of the indictment in vv. 23, 24. The Assyrians dragged prisoners away with a hook in the nose; soon they would get the hook! The Lord’s judgment was coming. For another use of the image of a hook, see Ezek. 38:4.

37:30 Assyria had promised to feed the Judeans; but only God could guarantee that the people would eat (36:16, 17). The third year could have been as early as 13 to 15 months from that time; any part of a year was counted as a year.

37:33 thus says the LORD: God gives His final sentence against the Assyrian tyrant.

37:35 defend: For similar expressions of the Lord’s protection of Jerusalem, see 27:3; 31:5. For My own sake: The Lord would save and protect the city for His own honor, for He had established the city for the worship of His holy name. For similar wording, see 43:25; 48:9, 11; contrast 42:21. for My servant David’s sake: God maintained His promises to David (9:7; 49:8; 2 Sam. 7:8–16; 1 Kin. 8:17–20; Ps. 89:19–37).

37:36 This verse is the fulfillment of God's promise to take vengeance on those who trouble His people (34:8). the angel of the LORD: Often a visitation from the angel of the Lord brought deliverance to God's people, as in the incident with Balaam (Num. 22) and the appearances to Gideon (Judg. 6:11, 12) and Manoah (see Judg. 13). At other times the angel of the Lord came in judgment (see 2 Sam. 24:10–25). Here the angel of the Lord delivers His people by fighting for them (see Ex. 15:3).

37:38 Death in the house of Nisroch contrasts with life in the house of the Lord (37:14; 38:20). Esarhaddon began his reign in 681 B.C.

38:1–39:8 Although Hezekiah trusted in God to heal him (38:1–22), he failed when the Babylonian envoys visited him. After his recovery, he paraded his own glory, not the Lord's (39:1, 2). Thus he implicitly placed his confidence in military strength and political alliances instead of the strength of the Almighty God. Because of his unbelief, Judah would go into exile (39:3–8).

38:1 In those days refers to a time before the events recorded in chs. 36; 37 (v. 6). These earlier events are presented after Jerusalem's deliverance from Assyria because that deliverance was not the last word for either Hezekiah or Jerusalem.

38:2 prayed: For another prayer of Hezekiah see 37:15.

38:3 loyal heart: For similar descriptions see 2 Kin. 18:3–5. Hezekiah wept bitterly because apparently at that time he had no male heirs. Hezekiah lived an additional 15 years (v. 5); Manasseh, the successor to his throne, was 12 when Hezekiah died (2 Kin. 20:21–21:1).

38:7 sign: For a related reference see 7:11–14.

38:8 Bringing the shadow on the sundial . . . backward symbolized the divine extension of Hezekiah's life.

38:9–20 Hezekiah's thanksgiving song celebrating his healing consists of (1) a report of his lament (vv. 10–14), and (2) a report of the Lord's deliverance (vv. 15–20). His personal deliverance modeled the future national deliverance (see 41:8–11).

38:9 the writing of Hezekiah: Scriptures attest to King Hezekiah's interest in devotional literature. Apparently he instructed his scribes to compile some of the proverbs of Solomon (see Prov. 25:1). Furthermore, he ordered the Levites to worship God with the psalms of David and Asaph. The following song of praise (vv. 10–20) has some affinities with those psalms (see 2 Chr. 29:30).

38:10 Sheol: For additional references to Sheol see 5:14; 14:9, 11; 38:18. Hezekiah was mourning the fact that he was dying at an early age.

38:12 Pulling up a tent represented impermanence (33:20; 2 Cor. 5:1). Hezekiah's life was quickly passing away.

38:17 for my own peace: Hezekiah models an exemplary attitude to hardship: he accepted trials as part of God's good plan for him. For a development of this theme, see Rom. 8:28. sins: The forgiveness of sin and healing are two different aspects of God's salvation (53:5; Matt. 8:14–17; Luke 5:17–26). Apparently Hezekiah's poor health was connected to his sin. Yet not all sickness is due to one's own sin (see Job 42:7–11; John 9:2, 3).

38:18 cannot thank: Praise for healing can only be offered while a person is alive (Ps. 6:5). Hope for temporal life cannot be extended beyond death, but hope for eternal life remains beyond death (Ps. 22:22–31; see 2 Tim. 1:10; Heb. 2:10–12; 1 John 5:11, 12).

38:19 father . . . children: For a similar idea of the righteous teaching their children of God's faithfulness, see Ps. 22:30, 31.

38:20 sing: For a song of praise to God our Savior, see 12:1–6.

38:21 Them may refer to the court physicians. poultice: All healing is of God, who may and often does mediate it through medicine and the skills of health care professionals.

38:22 Depending on one's attitude, the request for a sign may express either unbelief (Matt. 12:39; John 6:30) or faith (v. 7). The healing of a boil would be the sign that the Lord would save Hezekiah (see vv. 20, 21).

39:1 At that time . . . sick: For the background see ch. 38. The letters were probably about rebellion against Assyria. recovered: The miracle of the sundial (38:8) would have held special interest for the astronomy-minded Babylonians (2 Chr. 32:31).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Merodach-Baladan

To the Assyrians, Merodach-Baladan was a persistent rebel king. He appeared on the political scene during the days of Tiglath-Pileser III of Assyria. After Sennacherib came to power, Merodach-Baladan returned to Babylon in 703 B.C., killed the ruler there, and prepared to fight Assyria. Sennacherib reacted energetically and drove Merodach-Baladan into exile once again.

Merodach-Baladan sent ambassadors to Jerusalem to visit King Hezekiah of Judah, who had just recovered miraculously from a serious illness. He sent letters and presents (2 Kin. 20:12; Is. 39:1). Hezekiah showed the Babylonian ambassadors his wealth and arsenal—an act that brought stiff rebuke from the prophet Isaiah (2 Kin. 20:13–18).

Merodach-Baladan was never successful in his bid for Babylonian independence. The task was left for Nabopolassar (626–605 B.C.), who was able to succeed where Merodach-Baladan had failed.

39:2 The fact that Hezekiah showed his treasures instead of praising God suggests that he was trusting in his might and the armies of the nations like Babylon, instead of in the Lord.

- 39:5 LORD of hosts: This is the same title as used in 1:9. It describes the Lord as Commander in Chief of the angelic armies.
- 39:7 Eunuchs were royal officials or servants. In ancient times, these servants were often castrated to keep them from being a threat to the king's harem. For further references to eunuchs, see 56:4; Dan. 1:3–6.
- 40:1–55:13 This section is addressed to the Babylonian exiles in a prophetic manner. This book of comfort, written about 150 years before the time of Cyrus, promised the exiles from Judah that they would return to Jerusalem (40:1, 2), where God would meet them in the form of the Suffering Servant (42:1–4)—the very One who would become a great King (7:14; 9:6, 7; 11:1–5). The restoration after the Exile pointed to the coming of the Lord's kingdom. In Isaiah's prophecy, this first taste of salvation merges with predictions of the full salvation that Jesus Christ would bring.
- 40:1–8 This prophecy consists of addresses by three heavenly heralds. The first calls upon the others to comfort the exiles because their time of servitude has ended (vv. 1, 2). The second calls for building a highway so that all may see the coming of the Lord (vv. 3–5). The third guarantees the vision (vv. 6–8).
- 40:1 Comfort is used to address all of the people of Zion (v. 9) with words of God's mercy. This verb, repeated for emphasis, denotes the announcement of an end to the people's suffering. The message reversed the exiles' complaint (Lam. 1:2). This consolation was fulfilled in the birth of Christ (Luke 2:25). My people . . . your God evokes the covenantal relationship between God and Israel (Ex. 6:7).
- 40:2 Here the word Jerusalem represents the exiles. The Lord would end their period of exile and restore them to the city of Jerusalem. Warfare refers to Israel's hard servitude in Babylon, from which they were about to flee (48:20, 21). Double may mean "the equivalent" or "the right amount."
- 40:3 crying in the wilderness: The voice is heard in the wilderness, calling the people there to ready themselves for the coming of the Lord. The analogy is based on the anticipated coming of a magnificent ruler from a distant land. The people who lived in the area of his intended visit would do everything possible to prepare the road for his arrival. Prepare means "clear away the obstacles" (57:14; 62:10). Highway represents the hearts of people who must be spiritually prepared by repentance for God's glory to be revealed on the earth (Luke 3:3–20).
- 40:4 valley . . . mountain: For a similar description, see Zech. 14:1–11. While the highway of v. 3 was to be prepared by the people of the Lord, the changes required in v. 4 could be accomplished only by divine action.
- 40:5 The glory of the LORD began to be revealed in the restoration of the captives of Judah from the Exile (44:23). More grandly, the glory of the Lord would be displayed in the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ (4:2; Luke 2:29–32; John 1:14). The ultimate revelation of the glory of the Lord will be in His glorious kingdom (60:2; Zeph. 3:14–17), where the Savior King dwells in the presence of His people for all eternity (Rev. 22:1–5). All flesh refers to all mankind. the mouth of the LORD has spoken: The importance of this prophecy is underscored by the language of divine oath.
- 40:7, 8 breath of the LORD: This phrase pictures God's wrath on the wicked as the summer wind that blows on the grass and dries it up (40:24; Jer. 4:11). But the word of our God stands forever: These words offer full assurance of the reliability, stability, and eternal nature of the divine word. The Son of God fulfills the Word (Matt. 5:17, 18), is the Word (John 1:1–18), and lives forever.
- 40:9–11 Isaiah summons Zion to join the heavenly heralds (vv. 1–8) in proclaiming to the other cities of Judah the coming of the victorious Lord to shepherd His people.
- 40:9 In this section of Isaiah (40:1–55:13), Zion is an endearing term for the remnant who have remained faithful to God. The good tidings are that God has come to rescue His enslaved people. Behold your God: Compare John 1:36; 19:5.
- 40:10 The Lord GOD might be rephrased "the Lord, the Master." The Lord's strong . . . arm figuratively brings His mighty acts of judgment and deliverance (48:14; 51:5, 9; 52:10; 53:1).

Reward describes the spoils of victory—namely, the delivered people. The rescued exiles merge with the messianic community (65:15, 16). Work is a synonym for “reward.”

40:11 In the ancient Middle East the ideal king was often depicted as a shepherd (Ps. 23; John 10).

Gather the lambs with His arm is a description of the Father’s love for His people (Mic. 5:4).

40:12–31 This oracle, proclaiming the Lord as the only source of eternal strength, addresses five questions: (1) Who is the Creator? (vv. 12–17); (2) To whom may He be compared? (vv. 18–20); (3) Who rules the kingdoms of this world? (vv. 21–24); (4) To whom may He be compared? (vv. 25, 26); (5) Why are you despondent, Jacob? (vv. 27–31).

40:12 Who: The answer is “God, Creator of the cosmos, and Israel’s Lord” (vv. 15–17). A span is the width of a stretched-out hand. The verse dramatically imposes images of God’s might.

40:13 directed: These questions are an attack against Marduk, a Babylonian deity, who needed the assistance of other gods in creating the world.

40:15 a drop in a bucket: Wicked nations have no power to thwart the purposes of God (Ps. 2:1–6). The word scales links the answer in this verse to the question in v. 12: Who has measured the dust of the earth? Its sovereign Creator has.

40:17 Worthless is the same term used to describe the primeval chaos (Gen. 1:2).

40:18 liken God: The God of Scripture is incomparable; there is no one else like Him (40:25; 46:5; Ps. 113:4–6).

40:19 goldsmith: Many idols were made with wood, then overlaid with gold (41:6, 7; 44:9–20; 46:6, 7). Silver chains kept the idol from moving or falling.

40:20 too impoverished: The poor had to choose the best wood available and then hope it was good enough. Note the satire in these words. What is the value of the prayer of a poor man to a plain idol? What is the value of the prayer of the rich to one covered with gold? To both questions, the answer is “none.”

40:21, 22 Have you not known: The questions here and in v. 28 express God’s incredulity at worshipers of idols. Even though the worship of the Lord reached back to the foundations of the earth (Gen. 4:26; Rom. 1:19, 20), these people chose idols over the true worship of the living God. The circle refers either to the horizon or to the apparent hemisphere over the earth. The point is that God is not to be confused with His creation. stretches out the heavens: Creation is the work of the God of Israel: only He deserves our praise.

40:23, 24 nothing . . . useless: For a similar expression of the insignificance of entire nations before the might of the living God, see v. 17. planted . . . blow . . . wither: This imagery describing God’s judgment is similar to that in vv. 6–8.

40:25 To whom then will you liken Me: This and the following question in this verse form part of an important biblical theme, the incomparability of God (v. 18). Since God is the Holy One, He is distinct from all others.

40:26 Lift up: Human beings are responsible to discern the greatness of the Creator in His creation and are held guilty for suppressing such discernment (Rom. 1:18–32). created: For similar descriptions of God’s creative work, see 4:5; 41:20; 43:1; 45:18; 65:17, 18. These things refers to the heavenly bodies. The Babylonian gods were identified with the heavenly bodies. The words here would have had particular relevance to Israel as they learned to say no to Babylon and yes to the Lord. by number: Each of the stars is known to the Creator; to each He has given a name (Ps. 147:4).

40:27 My way is hidden from the LORD does not question God’s omniscience, but His good will. Would the Lord bless His people? The Israelites had a just claim because God had promised to make them a blessing to the nations (Gen. 12:3; 28:13–15).

40:28, 29 Have you not known: The Lord repeats this rhetorical question for emphasis (see v. 21). God is not only everlasting—transcendent over time—but also the Creator of the ends of the earth—transcendent over space. He is omnipotent and inscrutable. Neither faints nor is weary refers to how God meets the needs of His people: the Lord will never let His people down (Ps.

- 121:3, 4). power to the weak: Strength is a gift of God (Jer. 9:23).
- 40:30 youths: The point is that human strength cannot compare with the power of God.
- 40:31 To wait entails confident expectation and active hope in the Lord—never passive resignation (Ps. 40:1). Mount up . . . run . . . walk depicts the spiritual transformation that faith brings to a person. The Lord gives power to those who trust in Him. eagles: The eagle depicts the strength that comes from the Lord. The Lord describes His deliverance of the Israelites in Ex. 19:4 as similar to being lifted up on an eagle's strong wings. In Ps. 103:5, the strength of people who are nourished by God is compared to the strength of the eagle.
- 41:1–42:17 In this prophecy the Lord puts the nations on trial to show them that He alone is God because only He can predict the future. The trial consists of two cycles (41:1–20; 41:21–42:9), followed by a praise hymn (42:10–17). In each trial cycle, there are three elements: (1) a call of the nations to trial (41:1, 21–24); (2) a prediction of the coming of Cyrus (41:2–7, 25–29); (3) a celebration of the victories of the Servant (41:8–20; 42:1–9).
- 41:1 Keep silence: Divine calls for silence usually anticipate judgment (Zeph. 1:7). Coastlands includes Lydia in Asia Minor, which was conquered by Cyrus (51:5). Renew their strength contrasts strength that results from faith with unassisted human strength.
- 41:2 One from the east refers to Cyrus, king of Persia (559–530 B.C.; see 46:11). Since God had made a covenant between Himself and Abraham (v. 8), He delivered the exiles in righteousness, a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (45:8; 46:13; 51:6; 56:1). God, who has authority over the nations, gave the nations to Cyrus as a ransom for Israel (43:3).
- 41:3 Cyrus advanced so fast it was as though his feet did not touch the ground.
- 41:4 first . . . last: For similar references concerning God's sovereignty over all of time, see 44:6, 10; Heb. 13:8; Rev. 1:8, 17. The Lord is eternal not only in that He is not bound by time, but also in that He is Master of time. I am He: For similar uses of this phrase, see 43:13; 46:4.
- 41:5 The pronoun it refers to the conquests of Cyrus (vv. 2, 3).
- 41:7 This verse satirizes assistance from idols in contrast to the sure help from the living God (vv. 10–16). The goldsmith was working on the idol that presumably could save the people. For a similar reference to this occupation, see 40:19. Here the pronoun it refers to an idol (2:8).
- 41:8 Servant refers to one highly honored by the Lord. There is no higher position to which a person can aspire. The term was bestowed on the person chosen to administer and advance God's kingdom (Ex. 14:31; 2 Sam. 3:18). In chs. 40–55, the title of servant is bestowed implicitly on Cyrus (45:1–4) and explicitly on God's prophets (44:26), the nation of Israel (44:21; 45:4) and particularly on the Lord Jesus Christ (42:1–4; 52:13). Abraham: The Lord calls him friend (see Gen. 18:17, 18; 2 Chr. 20:7; James 2:23).
- 41:9 The ends of the earth probably refers to Mesopotamia (Gen. 11:31; 12:1) and perhaps Egypt (Gen. 15:13). The term indicates God's sovereign rule over the earth (v. 4). The Lord had punished Israel (42:18–25), but had not cast them away (29:22–24).
- 41:10 The Lord's command to the Israelites to fear not contrasts with the fright of pagans in vv. 5, 6. God had bared His right hand at the first Exodus in order to destroy the power of Pharaoh (Ex. 15:6): the phrase indicates His sovereignty and strength over all who oppose Him (40:10).
- 41:11, 12 The people of God are given renewed assurance that their formidable enemies will be brought to nothing (40:17, 23).
- 41:13 The Lord will hold the exile's right hand (42:6) just as He held the hand of Moses (63:12). The Lord is with them; they have nothing to fear.
- 41:14 Exiled Israel seemed as feeble and despicable as a worm (Job 25:6; Ps. 22:6). Redeemer refers to the family protector of distressed relatives, who would avenge murders (Num. 35:19) and redeem indentured slaves (Lev. 25:47–49). A redeemer could also purchase land for a relative or marry a widow whose first husband was childless (see the role of Boaz in the Book of Ruth). When the Lord is called the Redeemer the title highlights His zeal to defend, protect, and purchase back His people (49:26).

41:15 The lowly “worm” (v. 14) would be transformed into a threshing sledge (28:27) that removes mountains, the symbols of opposition and the location of pagan temples and palaces (Mic. 1:3–5).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Threshing Sledge

The purpose of threshing was to separate usable grain from the waste straw or chaff. This was usually done by spreading the stalks of grain several inches deep on a smooth flat area that was on a high piece of ground open to the wind. Specially shod animals walked around on the stalks until the grain separated from the hulls.

Frequently threshing sledges (28:27) made of wood (2 Sam. 24:22) with stone or metal teeth embedded in the bottom side were dragged over the grain by these animals.

The city of Damascus was called under judgment because that nation “threshed Gilead with implements of iron” (Amos 1:3) or behaved with unnecessary cruelty against a conquered people.

God promised to make His people into “a new threshing sledge with sharp teeth” and use them to bring judgment on those who oppress the godly (Is. 41:15).

- 41:16 winnow: As threshed grain is tossed in the air to separate the chaff, so the victorious people of God would have complete control over their enemies.
- 41:17 The poor and needy refers to the exiles moving homeward across the desert. thirst: God will meet the people's most basic needs. For a related reference, see 44:3.
- 41:18 rivers . . . fountains . . . pool of water . . . springs of water: In the first Exodus, the people of Israel were often concerned about water (Ex. 17:1; Num. 20:2). The returning exiles would also need water in the second Exodus (v. 17), but God's provision would be bountiful.
- 41:19 in the wilderness . . . tree: The abundant water supply would also lead to the Lord's massive plantings of trees and vegetation (35:1, 2).
- 41:20 The people's reception of God's power and care is the primary concern. the hand: God's hand indicates His power and strength (40:10; 41:10). created: Only God can truly create (4:5; 40:26).
- 41:21 King of Jacob: This title for God pictures His special relationship with His people (43:15).
- 41:22 The former things probably refers to prophecies of judgment by earlier prophets, and some prophecies spoken by Isaiah in chs. 1–35 (see also 42:9, 21–25; 43:9, 10; 46:8, 9; 48:3). Latter end of them may also be translated "their glorious future." The phrase things to come may refer to the mighty acts God would do through Cyrus. Ultimately, things to come refers to the gathering of God's people and the establishment of Christ's kingdom on earth. The point is that idols cannot tell the past or the future, but the Lord God can.
- 41:23 that you are gods: This is part of the satire (vv. 21, 22). Do good or do evil is a way of saying "do anything."
- 41:24 The word indeed assumes a period of silence between v. 23 and v. 24. The supposed "gods" were mute. An abomination is something that causes revulsion.
- 41:25 from the north . . . From the rising of the sun: The conquest of Media by Cyrus (550 B.C.) made him master of the territories north of Babylon. Cyrus, who did not personally know God (45:4), nevertheless called on God's name when he released the exiles (2 Chr. 36:23; Ezra 1:1–4).
- 41:27 The pronoun they refers to the "former things" and "things to come" (of v. 22). One who brings good tidings refers to the prophet Isaiah.
- 41:28, 29 These verses present the futility of the nations; they do not have any true understanding of reality—past, present, or future (41:26).
- 42:1 Behold: The Lord formally presents His Servant. The title My Servant is identified with Jesus Christ in the NT (Matt. 12:15–21). Isaiah may have foreshadowed Him, but only Christ brings universal justice (v. 4) and an everlasting covenant (v. 6). uphold: When God upholds a person, nothing can bring him down. For a similar idea, see 41:10. The Servant—that is, Jesus—possessed the Holy Spirit (4:4; 11:2; 48:16; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22) which empowered Him to bring justice to the world.

Word Studies

Servant

(Heb. ‘ebed) (20:3; 42:1; 2 Sam. 10:19; Jer. 7:25) Strong’s #5650

This word is derived from a verb meaning “to serve,” “to work,” or “to enslave.” While ‘ebed can mean slave (Gen. 43:18), slavery in Israel was different than in most places in the ancient Middle East. Slavery was regulated by the Law of Moses, which prohibited indefinite slavery and required that slaves be freed on the Sabbath (seventh) year (Ex. 21:2)—and the Year of Jubilee—the fiftieth year (Lev. 25:25–28). Sometimes the Hebrew word can refer to the subjects of a king (2 Sam. 10:19). But usually the word is best translated servant. God referred to His prophets as “My servants” (Jer. 7:25) and spoke of the coming Messiah as His Servant, the One who would perfectly obey His will (see 42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–9; 52:13–53:12).

Go to the List of Word Studies

42:2 The Hebrew word rendered cry out means “to cry out in distress.” The phrase cause His voice to be heard in the street suggests the same idea; the Servant’s rejection is heard for the first time (49:4; 50:5, 6; 53:4–9).

42:3 The phrase a bruised reed represents the poor and needy (41:17; 42:7). The phrase not break is an understatement for the positive equivalent: “mend” or “restore.” A smoking flax represents those who have almost lost their faith and hope in the Lord. The Servant will come to restore the poor and needy and encourage people in the faith (see Matt. 11:5).

42:4 law: The Servant will be more than another Moses (Deut. 18:15–18; Acts 3:22–26); He will mediate the New Covenant (2 Cor. 3:3; Heb. 8:7–13).

42:5 The Lord God introduces Himself as the source of all physical and spiritual life—breath and spirit—for He will enable the Servant to free people from death and spiritual darkness (vv. 6–9).

The Holy Spirit in the Old Testament

No clearer statement of the intimate interworking of the triune God—Father, Son and Holy Spirit—and especially of the Spirit’s powerful role can be found in the Old Testament than in Isaiah’s prophecy of the Servant of the Lord (Is. 42:1–9). The passage summarizes the redeeming work of all three Persons of the Trinity in the salvation of the lost. Thus it ties together in remarkable harmony both the Old Testament and New Testament understandings of God’s grace. It also sheds light on our understanding of the Holy Spirit.

Some Bible readers assume that the Spirit’s activity in Scripture is limited to the New Testament. But actually He is just as active in the Old Testament:

1. The Spirit participated in creation (Gen. 1:2; Job 26:13; Is. 32:15).

2. The Spirit gives life to humanity and the other creatures (Ps. 104:29, 30). It is interesting that when Genesis says God endows people with life by breathing into their nostrils the “breath of life” (Gen. 2:7), the word for “breath” is the same word translated elsewhere as “spirit.”

3. The Spirit strives with sinners (Gen. 6:3), which is perhaps related to His work in convicting people of sin (John 16:8–11).

4. The Spirit came upon certain judges, warriors, and prophets in a way that gave them extraordinary power: for example, Joshua (Num. 27:18), Othniel (Judg. 3:10), Gideon (6:34), Samson (13:25; 14:6), and Saul (1 Sam. 10:9, 10). However, the Spirit later departed from Saul because of his disobedience (16:14).

5. The Spirit played a prominent role in the long span of Old Testament prophecy. David declared that “the Spirit of the LORD spoke by me, and His word was on my tongue” (2 Sam. 23:2). Likewise, Ezekiel reported that “the Spirit entered me when He spoke to me” (Ezek. 2:2).

6. The Spirit inspired holiness in Old Testament believers (Ps. 143:10). And Scripture promised that someday God would put His Spirit in His people in a way that would cause them to live according to His statutes (Ezek. 36:27).

7. The Spirit was crucial in helping God’s people anticipate the ministry of the Messiah. For example, Isaiah 11:1–5 is a trinitarian preview of the working of the Father, the Spirit, and the Son, who is the Branch of Jesse. Looking forward to the ministry of Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit inspired Isaiah to prophesy: “The Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon Him” (Is. 11:2), inspiring God’s Chosen One with wisdom, understanding, counsel, might, knowledge, fear of the Lord, righteousness, and faithfulness. Thus we come full cycle to the New Testament, where Jesus claimed to be the fulfillment of this prophecy (Is. 61:1, 2; Luke 4:18, 19).

42:6 Called, hold, keep, and give are expressions parallel to the words of v. 1. In contrast to Cyrus, who brought political deliverance (41:2), the Servant in righteousness will deliver Israel from sin. The Servant will institute a new covenant binding Israel to the Lord (49:8). The prophets refer to this new covenant as a “covenant of peace” (54:10; Ezek. 34:25); an “everlasting covenant” (which is also associated with the Davidic covenant; 55:3); a “new covenant” (see Jer. 31:31–34); and most often simply as a “covenant.” The people refers to the Gentiles (60:3). Christ is the true light of the world (9:2; 49:6; 60:3; John 8:12; 9:5; Acts 26:17, 18, 23), and Christ’s followers should reflect His light (Matt. 5:14).

42:7 To open . . . darkness is metaphorical language drawn from the Babylonian captivity; it indicates spiritual sight and salvation from sin’s bondage (6:9, 10; 29:18, 24; 32:3; 35:5, 10; 61:1). Christ gave sight to the blind to show that He had the power to give everyone spiritual insight (v. 16).

42:8 My name: The fact that God reveals His name to His people is an indication of His wondrous grace (see Ex. 3:14, 15). My glory: Here and in 48:11 this phrase is parallel to God’s name.

42:9 former . . . new: For a similar idea, see 41:22. The former prophecies had come to pass; God through Isaiah was announcing new prophecies, and these too would come to pass.

42:10, 11 You who go down to the sea . . . the wilderness and its cities: The command is for all people to sing. The new song celebrated the second Exodus from Babylon, just as Moses’ song celebrated the first Exodus from Egypt (Ex. 15:1–21). ends of the earth: For a similar use of this phrase to describe the honor and praise God will receive from all the world, see 41:5.

42:12 Glory links this hymn with the Servant’s Song (v. 8).

- 42:13 man of war: For a similar description of God as a Warrior, see Ex. 15:3. The Lord is completely sovereign: He will fight for His people even when they are exiles in a foreign land (vv. 14–17). The zeal of the Lord is also described in 9:7. He shall prevail against His enemies: A similar promise that the Lord will eventually triumph is found in 41:11, 12.
- 42:14 The phrase held My peace describes the Lord's patient delay in acting (48:9; 57:11). A long time most likely refers to the 70 years of captivity (2 Chr. 36:21). Now indicates the introduction of a new age (43:1; 44:1). woman in labor: The words not only speak of her cry, but of the timely bringing forth of the new age begun with the restoration.
- 42:15 mountains . . . rivers: These words refer to all obstacles in the way of returning to the land from Exile. The word dry up is an allusion to the Exodus through the Red Sea (Ex. 14:16–29; Ps. 66:6) and entrance into the land through the Jordan River (Josh. 3:14–17).
- 42:16 Blind refers to the state of the exiles, forming a link with the Servant's task (v. 7) and the Lord's accusation against Israel (v. 18). Make darkness light echoes the first Exodus (Ex. 13:21, 22). For similar references to darkness and light, see 58:8, 10; 59:9; 60:1, 2.
- 42:18–25 This prophecy, justifying the Exile as punishment, consists of (1) an address by the Lord to the exiles, accusing them of being blind and deaf to His mighty acts (vv. 18–22); and (2) an address by Isaiah accusing the exiles of sin (vv. 23–25).
- 42:18, 19 The people of Israel were deaf because they would not listen (vv. 23, 25) and blind because they would not see (vv. 7, 16). The Lord turned the exiles' implicit accusation that He was deaf and blind (40:27) against them (6:10). My servant: Isaiah uses the title servant for Israel (see 41:8) because that nation was supposed to be God's messenger (44:26) to the nations (see Gen. 12:3).
- 42:21 The LORD is well pleased: For a similar use of this phrase to express God's good will, see 53:10. for His righteousness' sake: In punishing Israel for its sin, the Lord exalted His law.
- 42:22 Israel was robbed and plundered first by the Assyrians (10:6) and then by the Babylonians (39:6). These words link the Lord's speech with Isaiah's in v. 24. No one said Restore until Cyrus commanded the exiles to return to Jerusalem (Ezra 1:2–4).
- 43:1 Thus says the LORD emphasizes the Author of the prophecy and the certainty that it will be fulfilled (49:8; 50:1; 56:1). The words created and formed allude to the creation of the human race in Gen. 1; 2. The Hebrew verb translated created means "to fashion anew"—a divine activity, and is the same key word used in Gen. 1:1 (40:26; 41:20; 45:12, 18; 57:19; 65:17, 18). The second verb formed means "to shape," to fashion as a potter, and is used in Gen. 2:7 of God fashioning the body of the man from the dust of the earth. The use of these verbs here suggests that the Lord's creation of Israel as a people was as decisive an act as His creation of human beings at the beginning. In the same way, the NT describes Christians as new creations in Christ (2 Cor. 5:17; Eph. 2:10). by your name: The Lord's use of name demonstrates His intimate relationship with the Israelites. He had revealed His name to the people (Ex. 6:2–8) and declared their name to Pharaoh (Ex. 4:22).
- 43:2 Pass through the waters is an allusion to the crossing of the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21, 22) and the Jordan River (Josh. 3:14–17). Walk through the fire is a metaphor for protection in danger (Ps. 66:12); consider the Lord's protection of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the fiery furnace (Dan. 3:25–27).
- 43:3 LORD your God: The God of all creation declares Himself to be the God of the Israelites; He had every right to be their God and to call them His people, because He had saved them from the Egyptians. For more on this divine title, see Ex. 6:2–8. Holy One of Israel: For a similar usage of this divine title, see 1:4. The Hebrew word for Savior comes from the verb meaning "to save," the word from which the name Jesus is derived (Matt. 1:21).
- 43:4 Israel is considered precious because of God's sovereign grace (Deut. 7:6–8).
- 43:5, 6 Fear not: God's people are to fear Him—that is, hold Him in awe and reverence. Being sure of His presence, they need not be afraid of anything or anyone else. Israel's descendants are called by the Lord My sons and My daughters (Hos. 11:1). east . . . west . . . north . . . south: For a similar idea, see 11:11. ends of the earth: For similar phrases, see 11:12; 24:14–16; 41:25. The Lord will gather all His people together—all those who praise His name and follow Him.

43:8 As a blind and deaf witness, the nation Israel did not fulfill the prophecy of restoration (42:18–20).

43:10 You is strongly contrasted by “I” at the beginning of v. 11. witnesses: The people of Israel had witnessed the great works of God in their midst (Ex. 4).

43:11–13 These verses form a magnificent celebration of the sovereignty of God (see 14:24, 26, 27; compare Num. 23:19). no foreign god: The Hebrew text contains merely the word foreign; the word god is implied. The point is that only the living God was at work in the Israelites’ midst. savior: This same Hebrew term is used in v. 3. before the day: The Lord was always at work—saving, protecting, guiding, and disciplining His people. The concluding line of the song of praise—there is no one . . . My hand—is quoted from Deut. 32:39.

43:14 Thus says the LORD: The same phrase is used in v. 1 to emphasize the ultimate source of this prophecy: God Himself. The Lord is described as a Redeemer because He zealously defends, protects, and purchases back His people (49:26). In ancient Israel, a redeemer was a family protector of distressed relatives. For a similar use of this title, see 41:14. Babylon: For a description of Babylon’s destruction, see Jer. 51:1–44. The Chaldeans were a people who settled in lower Mesopotamia and founded the Neo-Babylonian Empire.

43:15 With the titles of the LORD (Ex. 3:14, 15), Holy One (1:4), The Creator of Israel (40:26; 41:20), and your King (41:21), the living God declared His intimate relationship with the Israelites. He was not only their God, but also the One who created their nation and ruled over them.

43:18 The Lord commanded the people not to remember the past (46:9, 10). The kingdom of Israel inaugurated at the first Exodus and the conquest of the Promised Land would be insignificant compared to the new kingdom God would establish. former things refers to the prophecies of judgment by Isaiah and other prophets (see 42:9, 21–25; 43:9, 10; 46:8, 9; 48:3). the things of old: For a related passage, see 65:16.

43:19, 20 A new thing refers to Cyrus’s command for the exiles to return to Jerusalem; the fall of Babylon and Israel’s restoration (see v. 20); and the restoration of all things (see 65:17–19). For a similar use of this phrase, see 48:6. a road in the wilderness: The Lord would give the exiles an unobstructed route back to the Promised Land (see 40:3–5). rivers in the desert: Even in desolate regions the Lord would refresh His people (see 41:18, 19).

43:22–28 In this trial scene (see 41:1–42:13; 43:8–13) the Lord finds Israel guilty of sinning against Him by not worshiping Him (vv. 22–24), and instead making Him weary with their sins (v. 24), treating His forgiveness with complacency (v. 25), and sinning against Him from the beginning (vv. 26, 27). The verdict is clear: His destruction of the temple’s leaders was deserved (v. 28; see 42:18–25).

43:22 The Lord’s accusation was that the people had not worshiped Him in the way He prescribed and with the motivation He demanded. You identifies the exiles with their fathers, since the exiles did not have any opportunity to offer sacrifices.

43:23, 24 The exiles’ ingratitude—Nor have you honored Me—contrasts with the Lord’s forbearance—you have burdened Me.

43:25 for My own sake: The Lord chooses to save and forgive. This arises out of His own character. For similar phrases, see 37:35; 42:21; 48:9, 11.

43:26 State your case: More than once through Isaiah, the Lord asks Israel to answer His charges (see 41:21; 45:21).

43:27, 28 First father refers to Abraham (51:2). Despite his many acts of faithfulness, Abraham also had sinned (Gen. 12:18, 19; 20:9). Israel’s false religious leaders (Mic. 3:9, 10) are called your mediators in contrast to “My mediators.” Princes of the sanctuary refers to the leaders of the priests in Jerusalem (1 Chr. 24:5).

44:1 Now: The call to listen immediately is featured in 42:14; 43:1. servant: For a similar usage of the title servant for the nation of Israel see 41:8.

- 44:2 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement emphasizes that God authored the prophecy and thus it is certain to come to pass (43:1). made . . . formed: The Lord demands an audience with Israel because He is their Creator, see 43:1, 7. Fear not: Since the Lord is the all-powerful One, Israel had nothing to fear. This same encouragement not to worry is found in 43:5. Jeshurun, meaning “Upright One,” is a poetic word for the nation of Israel (Deut. 32:15).
- 44:3 Pour water may refer either to miracles during the exiles’ journey home (43:19–21) or to blessings on those who had returned to the Promised Land (41:17; 55:1). pour My Spirit: Moses prayed for the Lord’s Spirit to come on all Israel (Num. 11:29); the prophets foretold it (Joel 2:28–32), and Christ fulfilled it (32:15; Acts 2:14–36).
- 44:5 The repatriated would proudly identify themselves with the Lord. The name of Israel would no longer be associated with a worm (41:14).
- 44:6–23 This passage describes another fact-finding trial like the one in 41:1–42:17; 43:8–13. Between the command not to fear (v. 8) and the command to remember (v. 21) and return (v. 22), there is an extended, biting satire on idolatry (vv. 9–20). An exhortation to nature to praise Israel’s redeeming Lord concludes the oracle (v. 23), which contains many allusions to the Song of Moses (Deut. 31:30–32:43).
- 44:6 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement refers to the truthfulness of what follows (43:1). King of Israel: For background see Ps. 99. Redeemer: This term is also used in 41:14 and refers to the zeal with which the Lord acts to defend his people. First . . . Last: God is completely sovereign over time (41:4). Besides Me there is no God: For a similar idea see Deut. 32:39.
- 44:8 Do not fear: A similar command is given in 43:5. When God is on your side, you do not need to fear anything or anyone else. You are My witnesses: The people of Israel had already witnessed great miracles on their behalf (43:10). Rock: The image of a rock represents stability and protection (Ps. 62:2, 6, 7). For a similar description of God, see Deut. 32:4, 15, 31.
- 44:9–20 This satire against idolatry consists of (1) an introduction condemning idols and those who make them (vv. 9–12), (2) the main section showing the absurdity of idolatry by describing how metal and wooden idols are made (vv. 12–17), and (3) a didactic conclusion against idol makers (vv. 18–20). The prophet Isaiah was speaking to the future generation, warning them of the foolishness of worshiping idols (see 40:19, 20; 41:21–29; 42:17).
- 44:9 an image: This is the term used in the Second Commandment to describe an idol (Ex. 20:4). Useless is translated “without form” in Gen. 1:2.
- 44:10 The Hebrew has the words god and image together, stressing the absurdity of worshiping an image molded by human hands.
- 44:11 be ashamed: When all people come face to face with God, it will be a day of shame for those who rejected Him in this life.
- 44:13 While people were made in the image of God (Gen. 1:26–28), idolaters made gods in the figure of a man (Deut. 4:16; Rom. 1:23).
- 44:15 Isaiah was particularly struck by the absurdity of using one part of a log for burning and the other part of the very same log as an object of worship.
- 44:17 you are my god: This is a scene of complete hopelessness (see 57:13); an idolater prays for deliverance from a powerless piece of wood. Worshiping and depending on any object made by human hands—such as money—is just as hopeless.
- 44:19 abomination: For another use of this word communicating revulsion, see 41:24. a block of wood: The awful truth was that people were worshiping objects made from God’s creation instead of the Creator Himself.
- 44:20 He feeds on ashes: Compare the two banquets in Prov. 9:1–6, 13–18.
- 44:21 My servant: The nation of Israel is often described as God’s servant (see 41:8). formed you: This verb suggests that the formation of the nation was a decisive act on the part of God (43:1). not be forgotten: Although the exiles might have thought God had forgotten (see 49:14, 15), the Lord unambiguously declared that He would remember the nation He had created.

44:22 blotted out: The idea of total forgiveness of sins is also found in 40:2; 43:25. The word redeemed describes God as buying back His people. For the Lord as Redeemer, see 41:14.

44:23 The songs (12:1–6) of the heavens and earth (1:2; 49:13), the forest (35:1, 2) and every tree (14:7, 8; 55:12) mirror the joy of God's people at the arrival of salvation. glorified Himself: The Lord honors Himself when He saves because it demonstrates to the world His mercy and His power (see 40:5; 42:8; 43:7).

44:24–45:13 This salvation oracle proclaiming Cyrus as the Lord's anointed to save Israel consists of an expanded introduction concerning its Author (44:24–28), a direct address to Cyrus summoning him to service (45:1–7), and concluding commands to the heavens to rain the Lord's blessings and to the earth to receive them (45:8). In a twofold epilogue, the Lord reproves anyone who faults His sovereignty (45:9, 10), and asserts His right as Sovereign to fashion His own tools.

44:24 Thus says the LORD: Because the Lord says this, it will come to pass (43:1, 14; 44:2, 6, 24).

Redeemer: This same title is used in 41:14. It pictures the Lord's zeal to defend, protect, and purchase back His people. who formed you: That God formed Israel pictures His desire for them as a nation and His constant loving care on their behalf. For a similar idea, see 43:1.

44:25 Babblers refers to the diviners (2:6, 8; 8:19; Deut. 18:10, 11). wise: These were people wise in their own eyes, but not wise toward the Lord. For a similar description, see 29:14.

(Heb. qasam) (44:25; 1 Sam. 6:2; Ezek. 21:23) Strong's #7080

This term refers to people who attempt to foretell the future through occult practices. Diviners are often mentioned along with other practitioners of the occult—all of whom were forbidden in Israel (Deut. 18:10–22). False prophets, such as Balaam, practiced divination, and the penalty was death (Josh. 13:22; Jer. 27:9; 29:8; Ezek. 22:28). Diviners brought judgment on themselves but on their nations as well (Deut. 18:10; 2 Kin. 17:17, 18; Mic. 3:6, 7). Divining was practiced by several methods: calling up the spirits of the dead, casting arrows as lots, consulting images, looking at the organs of a dead animal, or interpreting dreams and visions (1 Sam. 28:8; Ezek. 13:23; 21:21, 29; 22:28; Mic. 3:6, 7; Zech. 10:2). Diviners charged fees for their services.

- 44:26 performs the counsel: This idea is explored in more detail in 41:1–42:13; 43:8–13; 44:6–8. Israel was to be both the servant (41:8) of the Lord, and His messenger (42:19) to the nations (Gen. 12:3). You shall be inhabited: This same promise is found in Jer. 32:15. built: The rebuilding of the temple and the resettlement of the land after the devastation by Babylon inaugurated the new age (58:12; 61:4).
- 44:27 Deep refers either to the moat protecting Babylon or to the obstacles blocking the returning exiles (42:15). This may be an allusion to the chaotic waters resisting creation (see Gen. 1:2); the Red Sea blocking the first Exodus (43:16–19; 51:10); or the Jordan River opposing the entrance into the Promised Land (Josh. 3:14–17).
- 44:28 Cyrus: Here Isaiah mentions by name the king of Persia who would allow the Israelites to return to Jerusalem in 538 B.C. (see Ezra 1:1–4). For a less specific reference, see 41:2. Shepherd is a title for an ideal king (40:11; Mic. 5:4).
- 45:1 To be anointed, literally to be “Messiah,” indicates appointment to an office, usually as king (61:1). The bestowal of this unique and exalted title on the Persian king, after it had been used in Israel of such notables as the patriarchs (Ps. 105:15), David (Ps. 2:2), and the coming Messiah (Dan. 9:25), must have shocked Isaiah’s Israelite audience (vv. 9, 10). Why would the Lord appoint a foreign pagan to carry out His will? The double doors, which were part of the gates connected with Babylon’s defensive moat, were not shut when Cyrus captured Babylon (44:27).
- 45:2 I will go before you: This was the Lord’s promise to Cyrus, similar to His promise to His people of old. Babylon had one hundred gates of bronze.
- 45:3, 4 have not known Me: Cyrus knew that the Lord had appointed him, but he did not know the Lord God personally (see Ezra 1:2).
- 45:3 Treasures of darkness is an allusion to the fabled wealth of Sardis captured by Cyrus in 546 B.C. Who call you by your name refers to the specific naming of Cyrus by the Lord before Cyrus became king (compare 43:1). In this prophecy, the Lord had named Cyrus as both “shepherd” (40:11; 44:28) and “anointed” (v. 1).
- 45:4 For Jacob My servant’s sake: God anointed Cyrus to establish again the people whom He loved (43:1).

45:6 From the rising of the sun to its setting means everywhere (Ps. 113:3). No other person or object can compare to the holiness and power of our living Creator. He is sovereign over everything—both good and evil. The symbols of light and darkness (Ex. 10:21–23) are clarified by the words peace and calamity (47:11; Amos 3:6).

45:8 Righteousness and salvation are used as synonyms in the Book of Isaiah (46:13; 51:6; 56:1). In the Middle East people commonly believed that the fertility of the earth and the maintenance of the social order depended on the king's right relationship with a deity. Because Cyrus was anointed by the true God, heaven would shower its blessings on earth.

45:9–13 The epilogue counters the objections against the Lord's appointment of foreigner Cyrus as His anointed shepherd (see 44:28; 45:1). It develops in two parts: (1) from analogies of the sovereign rights of a creator over his creation and a father over his children (vv. 9, 10), (2) to the Lord's sovereignty over Israel (v. 11), over all creation (v. 12), and finally over Cyrus (v. 13).

45:9 Woe: For a similar use of this word see 5:8. Maker: For similar references to God as Creator see 29:23; 43:1; 45:11. potsherd: Why should a created being question the Creator? A piece of pottery does not question the potter. For similar references see 29:16; Jer. 18:6.

(Heb. hoy) (5:8; 45:9; 55:1; Jer. 23:1) Strong's #1945

This interjection was primarily used by the prophets at the opening of a section where the evil practices of a particular person or group was denounced (Jer. 23:1). It is found at the beginning of judgment oracles against foreign nations, drawing attention to a threat by God (10:5). These judgment oracles frequently occur in a series, as in ch. 5 (see 5:8, 11, 18, 20, 21). A prophet could use the word woe to express personal feelings of despair or lament (24:16). Yet even then, the prophet was typically expressing God's lament and condemnation of wickedness (Jer. 22:13–17). Jesus used an equivalent expression (Gk. ouai) when he cursed Chorazin and Bethsaida (Matt. 11:21) and later the scribes and Pharisees (Luke 11:44).

45:11 Thus says the LORD: This emphatic statement points to the certainty of these words (43:1, 14; 44:2, 6, 24). things to come: For similar phrases, see 41:22, 23.

45:12 Created is the same verb used in Gen. 1:26–28 (see 43:1).

45:13 The pronoun him refers to Cyrus (44:28; 45:1). Although the Lord gave Cyrus a handsome reward (vv. 3, 4) to ransom His people (43:3), this was not the reason Cyrus sent the captives home.

45:14–25 These prophecies predict worldwide salvation through Israel (14:1, 2; 19:23–25; 49:23; 54:3; 60:11). The nations of Africa will join Israel in worship (v. 14). Idolaters will be ashamed, but Israel will be saved forever (vv. 15–17). The Creator and Redeemer will not be thwarted in His purposes (vv. 18, 19); only He can predict the future, for only He controls it (vv. 20, 21). All nations will eventually bow before Israel's God (vv. 22–25).

45:14 After the Lord handed over Egypt, Cush, and the Sabceans to Cyrus as a ransom (43:3, 4), they would hand themselves over to Israel and its Lord. come over: For a similar reference, see Ps. 68:31. You and yours are both feminine singular, referring to the Daughter of Zion (1:8; 40:9). Bow down to you indicates submission to the Lord and recognition of His presence with His people in Zion (2:2–4).

45:15 God hides Himself in His wrath (8:17; 54:8; 55:8, 9), but He reveals Himself in the Scriptures (48:5–8).

45:17 an everlasting salvation: These words of divine promise are echoed in 51:6.

45:18 Created and formed are used as synonyms as in the Book of Genesis (compare Gen. 1:27; 2:7). Both verbs identify the Lord as the Creator and do not focus on the way He accomplished His grand act of creation. In vain is the same term used in Gen. 1:2. The Lord created the earth to be inhabited, not to be desolate, as the Assyrians and Babylonians had left the land of Israel (6:11; 7:18, 19; 27:10, 11; 33:9; 44:26, 28).

45:19 Pagan diviners pronounced their mysterious and ambiguous oracles in secret and dark places. The Lord's prophets proclaimed the truth openly to all who would listen.

45:20 Draw near together: For similar ideas see 41:1, 21, 22; 43:9; 44:7.

- 45:21 The pronoun this refers to the universal salvation begun with Cyrus's decree that Israel return home (44:24–45:13).
- 45:22 no other: For additional references to God's incomparability see 40:25; 45:5.
- 45:23 I have sworn by Myself: The Lord's promise to Abraham was sworn by His own person (Gen. 22:16; Heb. 6:13). The certainty of the Word of the Lord is emphasized strongly in the Book of Isaiah (40:8). The Lord's promise that to Me every knee shall bow will be fulfilled in Jesus Christ (see Rom. 14:11; 1 Cor. 15:24, 25; Phil. 2:10, 11).
- 45:24 Those who are incensed against God will have no share in His eternal kingdom (50:11; 66:24).
- 46:1–13 This collection of salvation oracles are all spoken by the Lord, and all are addressed to the stubborn exiles. They begin with similar imperatives, "Listen" (v. 3); "Remember" (v. 8); "Listen" (v. 12); and they share the common theme that the Lord is truly God.
- 46:1, 2 Bel, meaning "Lord," was a title of Marduk, Babylon's chief deity. Nebo, Marduk's son, was the god of fate, writing, and wisdom. Ironically, each of these gods is said to bow down, to stoop along with their idols. In pagan thought, the idols and the gods that they embodied were inseparable. The heavy idols that were expected to bring deliverance were themselves dragged away into captivity.
- 46:3 An unbelieving remnant (1:9; 10:20) is likely being referred to here, judging by the parallel words, "transgressors" (v. 8) and "stubborn-hearted" (v. 12; see 1:2; 48:1–5; 57:4). carried from the womb: For a similar image of the Lord carrying the nation of Israel, see Deut. 1:31.
- 46:4, 5 Old age indicates the Lord's never-ceasing care. I am He: Note in this verse the emphasis God places on His activities on behalf of His people; the Lord Himself and no one else would save Israel (41:4). liken Me: This is the third time the incomparability of God is asserted in this section of Isaiah (40:18, 25).
- 46:6, 7 The pronoun they refers to the idol makers (40:19, 20; 41:6, 7; 44:9–20). They bear it: In contrast to the living God who carries and supports His people (see v. 4), idols have to be carried by those who worship them.

Modern-day Idols

Perhaps you think of idols as objects of wood, stone, or metal worshiped by ancient civilizations or primitive peoples. That perception is accurate, but from the Bible's point of view, idolatry fundamentally involves allowing anything or anyone to stand in the place of God.

The ancient Babylonians fashioned many idols for both public and private worship (Is. 46:6, 7). But the Lord ridiculed this practice, for the gods of Babylon were impotent: they had to be hand-carried, as they were unable to move on their own, they were mute, and they were powerless.

Yet as we read the Lord's rebuke in Isaiah, it is worth considering the extent to which people practice forms of idolatry today. For example, modern society has come to rely so heavily on technology and government to solve its problems that many people no longer feel a need for God. They seem to place as much faith in human ingenuity as the ancients placed in their carved images.

Likewise, certain psychotherapies practically do away with any need for the God of the Scriptures. Instead, they rely on their own principles and methods to deal with guilt and sin, and to make people healthy and whole. They hold out the promise that people can become all that they were meant to be apart from God.

A third form of modern idolatry is actually a relic of ancient idolatry. Many people today dabble in occult practices using physical objects such as Ouija boards, Tarot cards, and crystals to tell fortunes and receive supernatural messages. Likewise, horoscopes are as popular as ever, and those who promote them even boast in the fact that astrology, on which horoscopes are based, was heavily practiced in ancient Babylon.

Forms of idolatry such as these may be more sophisticated than the shrines set up by the ancient pagans, but they are idolatry just the same. They have been made to stand in the place of God.

The Lord will not allow those who practice these things to go unpunished. Consider His judgment on the Babylonians (Is. 47:10–15). Is there any reason why He would not pour out just as much wrath on idolaters today? He still hates idolatry (Deut. 7:25, 26). The first and second commandments are still there (Ex. 20:2–6). And the Lord is still who He declared Himself to be to the ancients: “I am God, and there is no other; I am God, and there is none like Me” (Is. 46:9).

46:8 Transgressors refers to the unbelieving remnant (v. 3).

46:10 the end from the beginning: For a similar description see 41:4. As the Sovereign of the cosmos, God can do anything He desires. His pleasure (Ps. 147:10, 11) includes the salvation of His people (Zeph. 3:17) and the worship of their hearts (John 4:23, 24).

46:11 A bird of prey from the east refers to Cyrus (41:2) and to the speed and power of his conquests (41:3). The point is that God may use any tool He wants to accomplish His purposes on earth (Rom. 9:14–23).

46:12 As there were those in the first Exodus who longed to return to Egypt (Num. 14:3), so in the second Exodus there would be those who refused to leave the comfort and security of Babylon and Persia.

46:13 Righteousness is a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (41:2; 45:8; 51:6; 56:1). Salvation from the Exile was not only certain, but near (51:5). Israel My glory: In spite of the Israelites’ long history of rebellion (Ex. 32), God loves His people Israel and has never utterly cast them aside (Rom. 11:1).

47:1–15 The humiliation and exile of Babylon’s gods (ch. 46) left Babylon’s inhabitants exposed to the same fate. Isaiah predicted Babylon’s fall in a mocking funeral song aimed at discouraging Babylon and encouraging Israel. The poem has four stanzas (vv. 1–4, 5–7, 8–11, 12–15).

47:1 O virgin daughter of Babylon: The language is sarcastic. Babylon had acted as though she were “God’s daughter.” She was about to discover that she was the daughter of the Chaldeans. No longer would she be thought of as a heavenly princess—tender and delicate.

47:2, 3 Grinding meal was a usually work for female slaves (Ex. 11:5). Uncover the thigh suggests doing menial labor with overtones of the shame of indecent exposure. Babylon would lose its status and privilege. Nakedness indicates disgrace, impropriety, lack of dignity, and vulnerability (Gen. 9:22, 23).

47:4 In contrast to the humiliated Babylon, Israel had a Redeemer (41:14). The LORD of hosts (1:9) would deliver the nation of Israel.

47:5 The similar structure of vv. 1, 5 link the first stanza (vv. 1–4) with the second stanza (vv. 5–8).

47:6, 7 Babylon’s cruel abuse of Israel when the Lord had given them into Babylon’s hand would be avenged, as in the case of the Assyrians (10:1–19; 49:25). a lady forever: Babylon was arrogantly boasting that it would remain an empire, “the Lady of Kingdoms” (see v. 5; compare Dan. 4:30), throughout all time. This amounted to blasphemy.

47:8 Hear is addressed to the wicked “daughter,” Babylon (vv. 1, 5; see 1:8). Babylon had deified itself with the statement I am (v. 10). They had tried to usurp the Lord’s unique attribute: Only the Almighty has an existence that is not dependent on another (45:5, 6, 18, 21, 22; 46:9). This wicked self-deification mirrors the boasting of the king of Tyre (Ezek. 28:11–19). Babylon is no longer considered a virgin (v. 1), but instead is a widow. The imagery of the loss of children suggests the loss of hope in the future. Contrast Babylon’s fate with that of Zion (49:21–23; 54:1–6).

47:10 Wickedness, wisdom, and knowledge refer to the same idea as “sorceries” and “enchantments” in v. 9 (Dan. 2; 5; contrast with 11:2). No one sees me: The selfish pride of the wicked is based in part on believing that there is not an all-knowing, all-seeing God in the universe.

47:11 The word therefore links Babylon’s pretensions of “knowledge” (v. 10) with the just judgment that the nation did not know.

47:12 The command to stand matches the Lord’s introductory commands in vv. 1, 5. The word sorceries links the final stanza with the earlier ones (vv. 9, 10).

47:15 Babylon’s fate would also overtake those with whom it had labored, its ancient merchants, on whose trade it depended for its wealth. Compare the arrogance of the king of Tyre based on Tyre’s successful trading (Ezek. 28:16, 18).

48:1–11 This passage, addressed to all Israel, condemns the people for hypocrisy (v. 1), idolatry (v. 5), arrogance (v. 7), and treachery (v. 8). At the same time, the oracle promises the people salvation for the sake of the Lord’s name (vv. 9–11). The tone is similar to 42:18, 19; 43:22–25; 46:1–13. The oracle has four parts: (1) summoning Israel to hear the address (vv. 1, 2); (2) a charge that Israel’s unbelief is without excuse because the Lord had revealed that it was He who was helping them (vv. 3–5); (3) a prediction of future salvation (vv. 6–8); and (4) a promise that the Lord will defer judgment for the sake of His name (vv. 9–11).

48:1 Hear is an urgent appeal to “deaf Israel” (6:9, 10; 48:6, 8). Jacob . . . Israel: For a similar use of these names, see 41:8. called by the name: For related descriptions of Israel as called by God, see 43:1, 7; 63:8.

48:2 The holy city is Jerusalem. The citizens of Jerusalem professed to lean on the God of Israel (Rom. 9:6).

48:4 Obstinate means “hard” (46:12; Ex. 32:9; Deut. 9:6, 13). Iron and bronze here are metaphors for rebelliousness (Jer. 6:28).

48:5 Despite Israel’s knowledge that no idol had helped them, Isaiah anticipated that in the future they would attribute their salvation to some other god than the one Lord.

The Purpose of Prophecy

Perhaps you think of prophecy as having mainly to do with predictions about the future. That’s understandable, since prophets in Bible times sometimes foretold what would happen in the future (for example, Is. 7:14–17; 45:1–7; Jer. 28:12–17). However, the purpose of prophecy goes beyond merely informing people about things to come. There are at least two additional reasons why God spoke through the Old Testament prophets:

First, prophecy shows that the Lord is God. A god who cannot reveal himself to human beings is unlikely to command much respect. But through prophecy, the Lord has made Himself known in compelling ways. For example, He demonstrated His omniscience by revealing to the Israelites what would happen in the future, something no pagan idol could do (Is. 48:5). He also demonstrated His power through the prophets in ways that left no doubt about who He is (1 Kin. 18:36–39).

Second, prophecy announces God’s word. Closely related to God’s revelation of Himself through prophecy is His communication of truth that He wants people to know. Prophecy is often referred to as the “word of the LORD” (Is. 1:10; 28:14; 38:4); in fact, it is often prefaced by the words, “thus says the LORD GOD” (7:7; 10:24; 22:15). Thus prophecy is revelation from God. It brings to light truth that would otherwise remain unexpressed.

The point of these revelations is not merely to inform but to declare what is true, and then to tell people how they should live in light of what is true. Sometimes prophecy helps to warn people about the consequences of their actions, and sometimes it encourages them when circumstances appear to be desperate. But whatever its effect on people, the purpose of prophecy is to proclaim God and His word.

48:6 New things include the career of Cyrus (v. 14); the fall of Babylon and Israel’s restoration (v. 20), which inaugurated the messianic age (v. 16); and the restoration of all things (65:17–19). To be able to declare . . . hidden things, the Lord must know and control the future.

48:7, 8 As God unfolded His plan of redemption, He created events that Israel had not heard about before. God knew that if the Israelites had possessed such knowledge, they would have acted treacherously, claiming “Of course I knew them.”

48:9 The Lord works out everything for His praise (42:8–12; 43:21). Defer My anger means to be “longsuffering” (Ex. 34:6).

48:10 Refined, a reference to judgment (1:25; 4:4), refers to the Babylonian captivity. Furnace is an allusion to Israel’s suffering in Egypt (Deut. 4:20; Jer. 11:4).

48:11 For My own sake: The Lord shows His settled will to maintain the integrity of His great name (v. 9). God’s acts of mercy are His own initiative, springing from the depths of His mercy (37:35; 42:21; 43:25). My glory is a parallel expression to “My name” (42:8), as is the expression “My praise” in v. 9. profaned: For descriptions of how Israel had desecrated God’s name, see Ezek. 20:8, 9; 36:21–23.

48:12–22 This section, directed to all Israel, encourages the unrighteous to participate in the Lord’s redemption of the nation from Babylon. The Lord (1) presents Himself as the sovereign Creator (vv. 12, 13), (2) shows that He alone predicted Israel’s salvation through Cyrus (vv. 14, 15), (3) promises to come to the people in the form of His Servant (v. 16), and (4) promises peace and posterity to those who obey Him (vv. 17–19). Isaiah follows the divine speech with an exhortation to flee Babylon (v. 20) and participate joyfully in the second Exodus (vv. 21, 22).

48:12 called: For a similar reference to God’s calling of Israel, see 42:6. First . . . Last: For a similar description of God’s sovereignty over all time, see 41:4.

48:13 Earth and heavens refer to the entire cosmos (13:13; 40:21, 22; 51:6, 13).

48:14 Assemble yourselves probably was addressed to the nations; the pronoun them likely refers to the idols of the nations (41:21–23; 43:9; 45:20, 21). The pronoun him refers to Cyrus (41:2, 25; 45:13; 46:11), a designation made explicit in 44:28–45:1.

48:15 I, even I draws attention to the source of this prophecy: the living God. called: For a similar reference to this calling, see 41:2.

48:16 Me refers to the Servant, Jesus (42:1–13; 61:1), who has spoken through His prophets (1 Pet. 1:10, 11). Lord here means “Master,” suggesting that the speaker is the Servant (50:4). For additional references to God’s Spirit, see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 59:21; 61:1; Luke 3:22.

48:17 The Lord teaches and leads through His servants (Deut. 5:27), His prophets, and His Son.

48:18 A river supplies abundant water to produce luxuriant growth (41:18; 66:12; Amos 5:24). The waves of the sea speak of power, constancy, and increase.

48:19 Sand recalls God’s promise to the patriarchs that the Israelites would become very numerous (Gen. 22:17; 32:12).

- 48:20 By putting the command declare into the present tense, the future salvation is brought vividly into the present (40:9–11; 44:23; 46:1–4). Go forth: The people are told to leave Babylon, forsaking its comforts (Gen. 12:1; Ex. 12:31). proclaim: For examples of proclamations, see 12:1; 44:23; 49:13.
- 48:21 They did not thirst is an allusion to God’s provision of water during the first Exodus (41:17–20; 43:16–21; Ex. 17:1–7; Num. 20:2–11). waters . . . from the rock: For a NT perspective on these miracles see 1 Cor. 10:4.
- 49:1–13 This second song of the suffering Servant (see also 42:1–13) consists of two parts: the Servant’s soliloquy (vv. 1–6) and the Lord’s oracles to Him (vv. 7–9). The song is followed by Isaiah’s elaboration (vv. 9–12), and it concludes with a hymn of praise (v. 13).
- 49:1 coastlands: The Servant’s mission pertains to the whole earth (41:1). Matrix means “womb” (Gen. 25:23; Ruth 1:11).
- 49:2 Through the preaching of His mouth, the Servant will conquer the earth (11:4). like a sharp sword: For similar descriptions of Jesus’ speech, see Eph. 6:17; Heb. 4:12; Rev. 1:16. Shadow suggests protection (30:2, 3; 51:16). Because the Servant’s mission was hidden until He was sent, it would be more effective (48:6–8).
- 49:3 Israel may refer to the quintessential Israel—the Savior Jesus—who would come to redeem national Israel (v. 5). In whom I will be glorified: In partial fulfillment of this prophecy, Jesus prayed to His Father, “I have glorified You on the earth. I have finished the work which You have given Me to do” (John 17:4).
- 49:4 The Servant’s complaint that He labored in vain (26:17, 18) points to His rejection by the nation of Israel and His suffering (42:2). reward: The Servant will be vindicated (50:8) and will be rewarded after His death (53:8) and resurrection (53:10).
- 49:5 The political mission of Cyrus to bring Jacob back from Babylon (44:28; 45:13) foreshadows the spiritually redemptive mission of the Servant to free His people from their captivity to sin (42:7).
- 49:6 light to the Gentiles: The Servant fulfills the call of Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3) and the nation of Israel (Ex. 19:5, 6) to be a blessing to other nations. After Jesus’ death and resurrection, the great commission of global evangelism is carried on by His apostles (Acts 13:47; 26:23) and those who succeed them to the end of the age (Matt. 28:18–20).

salvation

(Heb. yeshu‘ah) (49:6; Job 30:15; Ps. 67:2) Strong’s #3444

This word describes deliverance from distress and the resultant victory and well-being. The term occurs most often in Psalms and Isaiah where it is frequently used along with the word righteousness, indicating a connection between God’s righteousness and His saving acts (45:8; 51:6, 8; 56:1; 62:1; Ps. 98:2). This word can be used for a military victory (1 Sam. 14:45), but it is normally used of God’s deliverance (Ex. 15:2; Ps. 13:5, 6). The expressions “the salvation of the LORD” and “the salvation of our God” speak of God’s work on behalf of His people. The expression “the God of my salvation” is more private in nature, referring to the deliverance of an individual (12:2; 52:10; Ex. 14:13; 2 Chr. 20:17; Ps. 88:1; 98:3).

- 49:7 Paradoxically, the King who humbles Himself to become the servant of rulers will Himself receive homage from them (see 4:2; 45:24; 52:15). Kings will also bow down to His people (see v. 23).
- 49:8 In an acceptable time, in contrast to the day of vengeance (34:8; 61:1; 2 Cor. 6:2), the Lord will hear the Servant’s complaint that His mission toward Israel was in vain (v. 4). The Lord will crown His Servant as King to restore blessing on the famished earth (45:8). The pronoun them refers to Israel.
- 49:9 Go forth is an allusion to Isaiah’s command for the exiles to leave Babylon (48:20). The imagery of feeding in pastures implies that the Servant would be Israel’s Shepherd-King (40:11).
- 49:10 The word thirst is an allusion to 48:21. Heat and sun may be allusions to Ps. 121, a psalm of pilgrimage. The word guide may be an allusion to the first Exodus (42:16; 48:21; Ex. 15:13).
- 49:11 Mountains, which were once barriers (2:2, 13, 14; 42:15), will become highways, the means of salvation (vv. 22, 23). The pronoun My before both mountains and highways is significant: God the Creator is the sovereign Owner of all creation.
- 49:12 The north and the west indicates the universal salvation of all Israel (11:11, 12; 43:5, 6). These oracles are addressed to all Israel and all the earth (48:1; 49:1). Sinim was a district on the southern frontier of ancient Egypt.
- 49:13 Sing: The Lord is the Creator of music (12:1–6; 44:23).
- 49:14–26 This section consists of two complaints of Zion (vv. 14, 24), followed by the Lord’s reassuring responses to them (vv. 15–23; vv. 25, 26). The aim of the two sections is to cause Israel and the nations to know that Israel’s Lord is the eternal God (vv. 23, 26).
- 49:14 Zion represents the exiles (40:1, 9). The complaint The LORD has forsaken me resembles that in 40:27–31. The Lord disciplined the Israelites briefly because of their sin (54:7; Lam. 5:20–22).
- 49:15 The Lord says: I will not forget you. The nuance of the verb suggests an even stronger assurance, “As for Me, I am unable to forget you.”
- 49:16 inscribed: This may refer to the Lord’s command for the names of the tribes of Israel to be inscribed on the stones of the priest’s ephod (see Ex. 28:9–12). When the priest was in the temple,

- the engraved names would remind God of His covenant with Israel. Your walls are continually before Me: The Creator God has His thoughts focused on the welfare of His people (see Ps. 40:5).
- 49:17 Cyrus gave the edict to rebuild Jerusalem (44:28). The restored sons of Zion would carry out the decree. Zion's would-be destroyers were the Babylonians (2 Kin. 25:8–10).
- 49:18 As I live: This is an oath formula. The Lord swears by His own eternal person (Gen. 22:16). Zion's returning "sons" were a splendid ornament, like the jewels of a bride (61:10).
- 49:19 Desolate means "childless" (54:1).
- 49:20 The complaint that the place is too small is in fact a cause for rejoicing (54:1–3; Zech. 2:4, 5), because it means the Lord would cause His people to grow. This prophecy points to the return of the exiles to Jerusalem, for under Ezra and Nehemiah the exiles built a relatively small city (see Ezra 2; Neh. 7). Some view the ultimate fulfillment of this prophecy to be the gathering of the Lord's people at the coming of Jesus' kingdom.
- 49:22 I will lift My hand in an oath: God swears by His own character. Standard is often translated "banner" (11:12). The return of the Israelites from the nations and not only from Babylon shows that the future salvation of all Israel is in view (Rom. 11:26).
- 49:23 The nations that had enslaved Israel had served Israel as foster fathers and nursing mothers (14:2; 43:6; 60:9).
- 49:24, 25 Israel asks rhetorically: Shall the prey—captive Israel—be taken from the mighty—Babylon? Apparently Israel expects a negative answer to this question, but the Lord responds affirmatively. He would contend with the mighty, terrible Babylon (Jer 50:33, 34) and free His people.
- 49:26 oppress: Cannibalism was not unknown during the horrible famine of a siege (9:20; see Deut. 28:53–57; 2 Kin. 6:24–31; Lam. 4:10; Zech. 11:9). I, the LORD . . . Mighty One of Jacob: The last couplet is a celebration of the name and character of the living God. The Almighty asserts that He is the One who can powerfully save His people (Ex. 3:14, 15; 34:6, 7).
- 50:1–3 In this prophecy, the Lord defends Himself (42:18–25; 43:22–28) against the implied accusation brought by the unbelieving exiles of the second generation, that He was unwilling or unable to save them.
- 50:1 Though the Lord had put away Israel, as a husband might put away a wife, it was for only a short period of exile (see 54:5–7; 62:4) and not permanently. Permanent exile would have required a certificate of divorce (see Deut. 24:1–4). If the Lord had issued one, He could not have taken Israel back (see Deut. 24:1–4; Jer. 3:1, 8). No prophet suggested that God had completely broken His covenant; rather, they predicted God's faithfulness to a remnant who would return (Mic. 4:9, 10). Your mother refers to Jerusalem, more specifically, the inhabitants of the preceding generation that had gone into exile. If the Lord had sold Israel to creditors (see Ex. 21:7; 2 Kin. 4:1; Neh. 5:5), He would not have any authority over their destiny. But the Israelites had sold themselves because of their own iniquities (see 42:23–25). Therefore God as their Redeemer could buy them back (see 41:14; 52:3).
- 50:2 God came to Israel at the time of the Exile through the prophets He sent. Later God came to this earth through His Servant and Son, Jesus (41:9). But no one answered Him (see 6:9, 10; 66:4). Is My hand shortened: For a variation of this rhetorical question, see Num. 11:23. dry up the sea: The Lord alluded to His parting of the Red Sea and the Jordan River to evoke images of His strength (see 43:16, 17; 44:27; 51:9–11).
- 50:3 Blackness may be an allusion to the ninth plague of Egypt, when the Lord made darkness cover the earth (see Ex. 10:21).

sackcloth

(Heb. saq) (50:3; Gen. 37:34; 1 Kin. 20:31, 32; Neh. 9:1; Esth. 4:1–4)

Strong's #8242

Sackcloth is a rough, coarse cloth or a baglike garment made of this cloth. In the Bible, sackcloth was often used to symbolize certain actions. In the case of mourning, either over a death (Gen. 37:34; Joel 1:8) or another calamity (Esth. 4:1–4; Job 16:15), the Israelites showed their grief by wearing sackcloth and ashes. This was done also in instances of confession and grief over sin (1 Kin. 21:27). Sackcloth was often worn by prophets, perhaps to show their own brokenness in the face of their terrible message of judgment and doom (20:2; Rev. 11:3). The word for sackcloth in the Bible can also mean sack. Joseph ordered that the sacks of his brothers be filled with grain (Gen. 42:25).

50:4–11 The third Servant song consists of a soliloquy by the Servant (vv. 4–9), and the prophet's address to believing and unbelieving Israel (vv. 10, 11).

50:4 The title Lord GOD is emphasized in this section (vv. 5, 7, 9). The title Lord means "Master"; the word GOD represents the divine name (Yahweh). The Lord educated the Servant's tongue through suffering. The word learned is translated elsewhere as "disciple" (8:16). weary: Unlike unbelieving Israel (Jer. 31:25), the Lord awakens the Servant's ear to hear (contrast 42:18, 19).

50:5 opened: The idea is the same as that in Ps. 40:6—the opening of the ear canal as a symbol for hearing and obeying. not rebellious: Contrast 1:2.

50:6 People sometimes struck the back of a fool (Prov. 10:13; 19:29; 26:3). Jesus Christ suffered this humiliation (42:2; 49:4; 53:12; Matt. 27:26; John 19:1). Pulling someone's beard was a sign of contempt and disrespect (2 Sam. 10:4, 5; Neh. 13:25). shame and spitting: This prophecy was fulfilled in the suffering of Jesus Christ (Matt. 27:30).

50:7 The Lord is the Servant's only source of help (41:10, 13, 14; 49:8). The phrase not be disgraced means to be honored (49:7; 52:13). Like a flint indicates determination in the face of opposition (Ezek. 3:8, 9). For this prophecy's fulfillment in Jesus Christ, see Luke 9:51.

50:8 justifies: God would view this One as completely righteous. This prophecy was fulfilled in Jesus Christ (1 Tim. 3:16).

50:9 the Lord GOD will help Me: See the same voice of confidence in the Lord in Ps. 118:6–12, another prophecy of the suffering of the Savior Jesus.

50:10 Who . . . fears the LORD: The fear of the Lord—that is, the reverence or awe of God—is the beginning of true wisdom (see Prov. 1:7).

50:11 Those who kindle a fire means those who are self-reliant, instead of walking in the light of the Lord and His Servant (2:5; 42:6). When the Light comes into the world, some will choose darkness (John 3:17, 18). Torment indicates God's punishment for unbelief.

51:1–8 Three oracles (vv. 1–3, 4–6, 7, 8) are linked by the same imperative, "Listen" (vv. 1, 4, 7); the same speaker, the Lord (except v. 3); the same addressees, the faithful exiles; and the common theme of comfort as a result of the coming salvation.

- 51:1, 2 Look links the metaphor of v. 1 with its interpretation in v. 2. The metaphors rock and pit are interpreted in v. 2 as referring to Abraham and Sarah.
- 51:3 Zion replaced Eden. Both were walled-in places of fellowship with God, free from sin, and guarded by cherubim so that only God's people could enter (Gen. 3:24; 2 Chr. 3:7).
- 51:4 The Servant is the light of the peoples (42:6; 49:6; John 3:17, 18).
- 51:5 The day of the Lord is always near (2:12; 56:1; Zeph. 1:14; 1 Thess. 5:4–11; James 5:8); here the reference is to the restoration from Exile (46:13). The coastlands (41:1), like the exiles, wait for the Lord. The verb translated wait has to do with confident expectation and active hope (40:31; Ps. 40:1).
- 51:6 Heavens and earth suggest the entire cosmos (13:13; 40:21, 22; 48:13; 51:13). The old cosmos will vanish away and grow old (34:4; Heb. 1:10, 11), and those who dwell in it will die (v. 8). Only God's people will inherit the new cosmos. Righteousness, a synonym for salvation in Isaiah (45:8; 46:13), will last forever (45:17; 56:1).
- 51:7 In whose heart is My law refers to those who are bound to God by the provisions of the New Covenant (42:6; Jer. 31:33). The reproach of the exiles anticipates the rejection of the Servant (50:4–11).
- 51:8 righteousness . . . forever . . . salvation: The interrelationship of salvation, righteousness, and eternity can also be seen in v. 6.
- 51:9–16 This oracle bases Israel's salvation on the Lord's past mighty acts at creation and the Exodus. It consists of three sections: (1) a call to the Lord to stir up His might as in days of old (vv. 9–11); (2) the Lord's response, recalling those acts and chiding the people for forgetting Him (vv. 12, 13); and (3) a recounting of His gift of prophecy (vv. 14–16).
- 51:9 Awake implies that the Lord appeared to be asleep (40:27; Ps. 44:23). The Lord's strength at creation in subduing the sea is the subject of Ps. 93. Isaiah's prayer is based on God's promise (50:2), and poetically addressed to God's strong arm (41:10; 51:5). Rahab was a mythical serpent that resisted God's creation of the universe (see Job 7:12; Ps. 74:13, 14). This imagery, possibly borrowed from Canaanite myths, also represents the Lord's defeat of Egypt—the nation that resisted the creation of Israel (30:7). The language here associates the Lord's creative work in the first Exodus and in the second Exodus (the return of the exiles) with His creative act of transforming the chaos of Gen. 1:2 into the cosmos of Gen. 2:1 (see 27:1).
- 51:10 dried up: For similar references, see 42:15; 50:2. The Lord's victory at the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21, 22) is probably represented by the imagery of a pagan myth in which the sea opposed the creating deity. The probable allusion is supported by the . . . deep, a term used for the primeval chaotic waters of Gen. 1:2. The Exodus is placed within the broader framework of God's power over evil.
- 51:12 The Lord responds to the double imperative of v. 9, "Awake, awake," with the doubled pronoun I, even I.
- 51:13 stretched out: For a similar description of creation, see 40:22. oppressor: For a graphic depiction of the punishment of Israel's oppressors, see 49:26.
- 51:14 Captive exile literally refers to the exiles in Babylon. The meaning extends to all who experience the darkness of sin and alienation from God (48:20; 49:9).
- 51:15 Who divided the sea . . . roared: The sea represents all that is evil and in opposition to the Lord (Ps. 93).
- 51:16 Your mouth refers to the words of the Servant (41:9; 44:26; 50:4). shadow of My hand: For a similar use of the phrase, see 49:2.
- 51:17–23 This salvation oracle urging Jerusalem to have faith in God consists of two parts: (1) Mother Jerusalem (see 49:20, 21; 50:1) must awaken herself from her staggering stupor (vv. 17–20), and (2) the prophet asks the people to hear the Lord's promise that He will transfer the cup of His anger from them into the hands of her enemies (vv. 21–23).
- 51:17 Awake, awake: The same double imperative is found in v. 9 (contrast 40:1). drunk . . . the cup: For similar imagery see Jer. 25:15–29; Lam. 4:21; Ezek. 23:31–34.

- 51:19, 20 These two things refers to the desolation of the land and the destruction of the people. at the head of all the streets: A similar image of destruction is used in Lam. 2:19.
- 51:21–23 The cause of drunkenness was not wine, but the cup of trembling, the terror of God’s judgment. those who afflict you: Israel’s oppressors would be made to drink “the cup of . . . fury” (v. 22).
- 52:1 The double call to the Lord to Awake, awake is also used in 51:9, 17. Holy city (48:2) contrasts with uncircumcised and unclean Babylon. Jerusalem (1:8; 40:1, 9) is commanded to awake because she is forever free of her despicable oppressors. Zion: The exiles are identified by their home city (40:1, 9). Zion’s strength is like beautiful garments that adorn a queen mother (61:10). The Babylonian hordes would not only be expelled (49:17), but would no longer come to Zion (Nah. 1:15; Rev. 21:27; 22:14, 15).
- 52:2 Arise . . . sit down evokes the image of a queen ascending her throne. Loose yourself: For similar images of freed captives, see 42:7; 48:20; 51:14.
- 52:4 to dwell there: The wording suggests that Israel was dependent on Egypt’s hospitality; but the text assumes the Egyptians betrayed that trust. Without cause does not mean that Israel was without sin (42:23–25), but that Israel had not wronged either Egypt or Assyria.
- 52:5 Here refers to Babylon. God’s justice demands that those who make Israel wail will be punished and that Israel will be delivered. My name is blasphemed: For a similar charge, see 37:23, 24.
- 52:6 My people refers to the redeemed exiles. Know My name is an allusion to Ex. 3:13, 14; 6:2. The Lord glorifies His name by predicting and fulfilling the promise of redemption pledged in v. 3.
- 52:7 The vision is of the feet of the one who runs from the scene of battle across mountains to the city waiting for news (2 Sam. 18:26). The glorious message of this runner is salvation, meaning “victorious deliverance” (49:8). This is good news or glad tidings. The idea appears in the NT as “to tell the Good News.” The message Your God reigns stands behind all history; the Lord controls every power on earth.
- 52:10 The LORD has made bare His holy arm in order to fight majestically (40:10; 51:9; Ex. 6:6). the ends of the earth: For similar uses of this phrase, see 45:22; 48:20.
- 52:11 Depart! Depart: For another use of a double word, see 51:9, 17. Touch no unclean thing: For other passages concerning separation, see 2 Cor. 6:17; Heb. 12:14; 13:13; 1 Pet. 2:1–12; Rev. 18:4. In the first Exodus, Israel carried out silver and gold from Egypt; in the second Exodus, the priestly nation would bear the vessels made from those elements (2 Kin. 25:14, 15; Ezra 1:7–11; 5:14, 15).
- 52:12 Before and rear guard are allusions to the pillar of cloud and fire that protected Israel in its flight from Egypt (42:16; 49:10; 58:8; Ex. 13:21, 22; 14:19, 20). the LORD . . . the God of Israel: The pillar of cloud and fire actually stood for the Lord Himself (Ex. 33:9–11).
- 52:13–53:12 The fourth of the Servant Songs forms the central unit of chs. 40–66, predicting the Servant’s death for the sins of His people. The passage consists of three sections: (1) The Father praises the work of the Servant (52:13–15); (2) Israel confesses that it has despised Him (53:1–9); (3) the prophecy expands on the significance of the Servant’s death (53:10–12). This passage is cited many times in the NT, where the Servant is identified with Jesus Christ (see Luke 22:37; 24:27, 46; 1 Cor. 15:3; 1 Pet. 1:11).
- 52:13 Exalted and extolled and be very high may refer to three successive events, describing the Servant’s resurrection, ascension, and glorification (Rom. 4:24, 25). Or the three phrases might simply emphasize the great exaltation of the Lord’s servant (Phil. 2:9–11).

The Suffering Servant

Amidst a declaration of the Lord's coming salvation (see 52:7–12; 54:1–10), Isaiah places a portrait of the Suffering Servant (52:13–53:12). Despised and rejected (53:3), wounded and bruised (53:5), this unattractive Servant would know heartache and sorrow. What was the reason for His suffering? His life could not be the cause, for He was blameless, speaking only the truth (53:9). Yet the Servant would be led to prison and then to death for our sins (53:6–11).

Three other passages in Isaiah focus on the Servant and are called the “Servant Songs” (42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–9). The first song celebrates the Servant as the One who will establish justice for all (42:4). The second highlights the deliverance that the Servant will provide. He will restore Israel and become a “light to the Gentiles.” The third emphasizes the God-given wisdom of the Servant. All this culminates in the description of the suffering and death of the Servant in chapter 53, the final “Servant Song.”

Although at times Isaiah refers to the nation Israel as a Servant (49:3), the preeminent Servant of the Lord was clearly a unique person, a suffering Messiah yet to come (53:6). New Testament authors such as Matthew understood Jesus' teaching and preaching as a direct fulfillment of Isaiah 42:1–4 (see Matt. 12:15–21). Philip used one of the Servant Songs as a starting point for evangelism (53:7, 8). The Ethiopian eunuch asked him to explain the passage “He was led as a lamb to the slaughter” (53:7, 8; Acts 8:31–34). Philip introduced him to Jesus, the One who was led to His death for the sins of all humanity.

52:14 So His visage was marred . . . more than the sons of men: People would be horrified at the Servant's appearance; He would be so disfigured that He would no longer look human.

52:15 The nations are represented by their kings. Shut their mouths is a token of stunned respect. For what had not been told . . . they shall consider: Romans 15:21 refers to this passage. What they are told is the report of ch. 53.

53:1 Who has believed: This rhetorical question, quoted in John 12:38 and Rom. 10:16, expects a negative answer. The word report is related to the verb “they heard” in 52:15. Our refers to the believing remnant in Israel. Arm refers to God's great work (40:10; 52:10; Ps. 118:22, 23).

53:2 Tender plant refers to a shoot rising from a plant's stem or root. A root out of dry ground suggests Christ's rejection by Israel (49:4; 50:6). No form or comeliness indicates that the Servant did not have a majestic manner.

53:3 He is despised and rejected: For related references describing the rejection of the Servant, see 42:2; 49:7; 50:6 (compare Mark 9:12). Man of sorrows does not indicate that the coming One would be humorless or dour, but He knew better than anyone the havoc that sin brings into human life. Because He is a “Man of sorrows,” He is able to comfort those who experience sorrow.

53:4 He has borne: The Savior Jesus came to suffer and die for the sins of others (53:6, 11, 12; Matt. 8:17; Heb. 9:28; 1 Pet. 2:24). Griefs—or pain—and sorrows—or sickness—refer to the consequences of sin. The people considered Christ to have been smitten by God because the law said, “he who is hanged [on a tree] is accursed of God” (Deut. 21:22, 23; Gal. 3:13).

53:5 The repetition of the pronouns He, Him, and His for our and we underscores the fact that the Servant suffered in our place. The chastisement . . . His stripes: For a similar reference, see 1 Pet. 2:24. Peace sums up the Servant's ministry of reconciliation, justification, adoption, and glorification (2 Cor. 5:17–21). By saying that they were healed (v. 4), the remnant expressed its faith in what God had announced in 52:13.

53:6 All we like sheep have gone astray: For a NT perspective, see 1 Pet. 2:25.

53:7 Opened not His mouth speaks of the Servant's willingness to die for sinners; it also marks His dignity and authority (Matt. 26:67, 68; 27:12–14; 1 Pet. 2:23). as a lamb to the slaughter: For similar imagery, see John 1:29, 36; 1 Cor. 5:7; Rev. 5:6, 12; 13:8.

53:8 cut off from the land of the living: This language clearly indicates that the Servant would die.

53:9 Often in Hebrew poetry, the rich appear as synonymous with the wicked. Joseph of Arimathea was a rich man, but he was not wicked (Matt. 27:57–60). at His death: The Hebrew term death is in the plural, as a focus on the deep significance of Christ's death.

53:10 it pleased the LORD: The OT pointed to the doctrine of the atonement long before Jesus died for our sins (see 1 Cor. 15:3 where Paul speaks of the doctrine coming from “the Scriptures”). The atonement was part of God's eternal plan (Eph. 1:4–7). The Father was pleased that His Son should die because it would cover up the sins of many and reconcile them to Himself (see v. 11). Offering refers to the “trespass offering,” the sacrifice of a ram in order to secure the Lord's atonement for sin (Lev. 5:6, 7, 15; 7:1; 14:12; 19:21). Here the prophet Isaiah describes the Servant Jesus as a trespass offering. His seed refers to the spiritual seed, born to the Servant after His death (see Gal. 3:26–29).

53:11 Knowledge means having insight into one's mission (see 52:13). Justify means to acquit from guilt and to declare righteous (5:23).

53:12 As the great King, the Lord will divide the spoil of victory with His Servant (41:8; 52:13). Great and strong correspond to the Servant's condition after His rejection, suffering, and death.

The Suffering Servant

Jesus fulfills Isaiah's prophecy of the Suffering Servant.

The Prophecy

The Fulfillment

He will be exalted (52:13)	Phil. 2:9
He will be disfigured by suffering (52:14; 53:2)	Mark 15:17, 19
He will be widely rejected (53:1, 3)	John 12:37, 38
He will bear our sins and sorrows (53:4)	Rom. 4:25; 1 Pet. 2:24, 25
He will make a blood atonement (53:5)	Rom. 3:25
He will be our substitute (53:6, 8)	2 Cor. 5:21
He will voluntarily accept our guilt and punishment (53:7)	John 10:11
He will be buried in a rich man's tomb (53:9)	John 19:38–42
He will justify many from their sin (53:10, 11)	Rom. 5:15–19
He will die with transgressors (53:12)	Mark 15:27, 28; Luke 22:37

54:1–10 In this salvation oracle (see also 49:14–23), the Lord promises Zion that He has not forsaken her, but will give her many offspring. In vv. 1–3, Zion is a barren woman who gives birth to numerous children. In vv. 4–10, Zion is a forsaken wife who receives an everlasting covenant of peace.

54:1 Sing: For similar commands to sing, see 12:6; 44:23; 49:13. Zion (1:8; 40:1, 9) had not labored with child because Cyrus returned the exiles without any pressure from the Israelites. The increase that began in the restoration from Exile (51:1–3) continues today, for the NT applies this verse to “the heavenly Jerusalem” (Heb. 12:22), “the mother of us all”—the church (Gal. 4:26, 27). Salvation depends on sovereign grace.

54:2 As a husband encourages his wife, the Lord encourages Zion, the mother of His people, to enlarge the family tent for her many children (49:19, 20).

54:3 Expand is an allusion to Gen. 28:14, where the same Hebrew word is translated “spread abroad.”

inherit

(Heb. yarash) (54:3; Deut. 5:33; Josh. 12:1; 19:47) Strong's #3423

The Hebrew word translated inherit means to “take something from someone else and possess it for yourself.” The word is frequently used to describe the Israelite conquest of Canaan (see Deut. 5:33; Josh. 12:1; 19:47). At times the word can be translated dispossess (see Num. 33:53) and may even mean “impoverish” (see 1 Sam. 2:7). In 54:3, the prophet Isaiah uses this word to describe Israel’s expansion. The nation would expand so much that they would take possession of the land of other nations (see 11:14). Isaiah was prophesying that Israel would increase in number so much that they would be like a nomad who has so many children that he has to expand his tents to accommodate them all (54:2).

- 54:4 The shame of your youth refers to Israel’s infidelity, that led to the Egyptian and Assyrian oppression (52:4; Jer. 31:19; Ezek. 16:1–6). The reproach of your widowhood refers to the Babylonian exile (vv. 6–8).
- 54:5 The point of the titles LORD of hosts (1:9), Redeemer (41:14), and God of the whole earth is that God did not forsake Zion out of necessity or weakness (50:1–3). Neither did He forsake Israel permanently (v. 7).
- 54:6 The LORD calls Zion to be His wife (62:4, 5). Like a woman forsaken . . . you were refused refers to Zion’s experience in Exile (40:27; 49:14; 50:1).
- 54:7 God’s anger against His elect is for a mere moment (26:20; Ps. 30:5). Great mercies speaks of the affections of God in nurturing, maternal terms.
- 54:8 Kindness may also be translated “loyal love.” I will have mercy: That is, “I will love you as only a mother can love.”
- 54:9, 10 As the Lord had sworn to Noah that the waters . . . would no longer cover the earth (Gen. 9:11), so He swore to Zion after the Exile that His covenant of peace (42:6; Ezek. 34:25) would not be removed. Contrast this with the mountains and hills, symbols of strength and permanence, that had been removed from sight in the Flood (Gen. 7:19, 20).
- 54:11–17 In this salvation oracle, the Lord addresses devastated Zion, first promising the rebuilt city greater glory than before (vv. 11–13) and then protection (vv. 14–17).
- 54:11, 12 walls of precious stones: For a more detailed description of the New Jerusalem, see Rev. 21:18–21. The afflicted one is Zion or Jerusalem (51:21).
- 54:13 The children . . . taught by the LORD include those taught by Christ (Jer. 31:34; John 6:45), who had “the tongue of the learned” (50:4).
- 54:17 The tongue that speaks propaganda is one of the weapons of war (ch. 36). The Lord will condemn the accusers of His people even as He equipped His Servant (50:7–9; Luke 21:15; 1 Cor. 1:20). Throughout the rest of Isaiah, the word servants refers to all saints, Jews and Gentiles (56:6–8; 63:17; 65:8, 9, 13–15; 66:14), the offspring of the Servant.
- 55:1–13 Chapters 40–55 conclude with two related invitations: (1) to come to the Lord and participate in the Davidic kingdom (55:1–5); and (2) to seek the Lord and find pardon (vv. 6, 7). The promise is sure because God’s grace is unfathomable (vv. 8, 9) and His word will certainly be fulfilled (vv. 10–13). The invitations, first addressed by the Lord to the exiles, are now held out to everyone (Rev. 21:6; 22:17).

55:1 Ho is an exclamation of pity. Everyone: The ones addressed at first are the covenant nation, the remnant who respond to God. But they will be the means for bringing the same message of God’s salvation to the nations (v. 5). Thirsts is a metaphor for desiring what satisfies a person’s spirit (41:17; 44:3; Ps. 42:1, 2; 63:1; Matt. 5:6). Waters is a metaphor for the enjoyment of salvation in God (John 4:10–14; 7:37). Wine and milk are symbols of complete satisfaction (v. 2). Not only does God’s salvation supply what is necessary for life, but it also provides what brings joy. You who have no money . . . buy expresses that salvation cannot be bought, but is a free gift for those who desire it (52:3; Deut. 8:3; Rom. 6:23).

55:3 Incline your ear and Hear are synonyms for come to Me. The everlasting covenant (54:10) refers to the Davidic covenant and to the New Covenant. The sure mercies of David are God’s promises of an eternal Offspring, throne, and kingdom (2 Sam. 7:12–16; 1 Kin. 8:23–26; Ps. 89:19–37). The pronoun Me includes the Servant of the Lord, Jesus the Messiah (48:16; 61:1). you: The promises of the Davidic covenant are extended to all who “come” to God; they are fulfilled in Jesus Christ (4:2; 7:14; 9:6; 11:1–5) and His church (Rom. 16:20).

55:4 God’s fulfillment of the promises to the house of David, climaxing in the resurrection of Christ, serves as a witness to the nations (43:10, 12; 44:8). Jesus Christ is a leader . . . for the people (42:6; 49:6; Dan. 9:25; Heb. 2:10; 12:2).

55:8, 9 God’s gracious thoughts exceed all human imagination (64:4; Rom. 11:33; 1 Cor. 2:9; Eph. 3:20). No one can fathom the depths of His wisdom.

55:10, 11 bring forth: For a similar reference, see 2 Cor. 9:10. God’s word is similar to rainfall; it produces fruit (Ps. 147:15–20). Just as water enlivens and strengthens a withering rose, God’s word produces life in the hearts of sinners.

55:12 The phrase go out refers historically to the Exodus from Babylon (48:20, 21; 52:11, 12). The singing of the elements of creation is a way of describing the singing of God’s people. The rejoicing of the people at the Lord’s salvation will be so full that it will seem that mountains, hills, and trees join in the chorus and applause (14:7, 8; 44:23).

55:13 Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress tree: This expression symbolizes the replacement of God’s judgments with salvation (compare 5:6; 32:13; 41:19). Everlasting sign recalls the rainbow after the Flood (19:20; Gen. 9:8–17).

Word Studies

sign

(Heb. 'ot) (7:14; 19:20; 55:13; Gen. 1:14) Strong's #226

The Hebrew word for sign refers to something which is marked off or made distinct. God gave circumcision to Israel as a sign of their covenant relationship with Him, the fact that they were set apart for Him (Gen. 17:11). The word was also used to call attention to a particular event and God's promises surrounding that event. For instance, the rainbow is a reminder of the Flood and God's promise to refrain from destroying the earth with a flood again (Gen. 9:13). God promised to provide a clear sign of the coming Messiah in His virgin birth (7:14). The counterpart of this word in the NT (Gk. semeion) is used widely by the gospel writers (Matt. 16:4; Mark 8:12; John 2:11) to refer to Jesus' miraculous signs which confirmed His divinity.

56:1–66:24 The prophecies in these concluding chapters are addressed to those who returned to the land of Israel before the rebuilding of the temple in 520 B.C. The temple was still in ruins (63:18; 64:8–12), but its rebuilding was foreseen (56:6–8). The restored worshipping community faced the question of who would be admitted into the religious community (ch. 56). As before the Exile, Israel continued to struggle with idolatry (57:1–13), hypocrisy (ch. 58), injustice (59:1–8), and spiritual malaise (64:1–7).

56:1 about to come: God's salvation is always near (51:5; Phil. 4:5). My righteousness is a synonym for My salvation (41:2; 45:8; 46:13; 51:6).

56:2 Keeps from defiling the Sabbath (Ex. 20:8–11) epitomizes righteousness, for the Sabbath was the sign of the covenant (Ex. 31:13–17; Jer. 17:21–27; Ezek. 20:20, 21). Since keeping the Sabbath revealed clear commitment to the Lord, it was closely associated with righteousness and justice.

56:3 In speaking of the proselyte who has joined himself to the LORD, Isaiah was not speaking of the foreign wives that returning exiles married. Ezra and Nehemiah would have to purge the restored community of these unconverted pagans (see Ezra 9). Isaiah was prophesying of foreigners who would be converted to the worship of the true Lord (see 44:5). These were foreigners who would demonstrate saving faith and thus be counted among those “born in Zion” (see Ps. 87).

56:4, 5 eunuchs: Probably some of the male exiles were castrated so that they could serve in the Babylonian and Persian courts (39:7; Dan. 1:3). A place and a name may be rephrased as “a memorial monument.” For Isaiah, this memorial is better than that of sons and daughters because it symbolizes an everlasting name, or everlasting life, in the temple. Not be cut off is an idiom for preserving one's name through one's offspring. The phrase links this passage with 55:13.

56:7 house of prayer: Inclusion in the covenant community involves intimate communion with God (Ps. 15:1; Matt. 21:13). for all nations: People of other nations who came to a living faith in God were met with a joyful welcome (2:2–4; 1 Kin. 8:41–43). Jesus also spoke of joy in heaven over a repentant sinner (Luke 15:7).

56:8 Outcasts refers to the exiles (11:11, 12).

56:9 The unclean, ravenous beasts summoned to attack the ungodly community are hostile nations

- (18:6; Jer. 12:8, 9; Ezek. 34:5, 8, 25; 1 Cor 15:32). In ancient Eastern religions, demons and spirits were often believed to appear as animals.
- 56:10 The pronoun His refers to the Lord. Watchmen, those who ought to warn the city of approaching danger, refers to prophets (21:6; Jer. 6:17; Ezek. 3:17; 33:2–7) who do not fear God. The ungodly watchmen leave the people defenseless.
- 56:11 greedy dogs: The dog was not highly regarded in biblical culture, and to the Jews they were unclean. Shepherds is a metaphor for rulers (40:11; Ezek. 34:1–6).
- 57:2 Peace here refers to the final state of the righteous who rest in their deathbeds (3:10, 11; 53:5; Phil. 1:21–23). No one understood that the righteous were being spared the judgment to come (2 Kin. 22:19, 20).
- 57:3 offspring: For similar references, see 1:4; Ezek. 16:3, 45. Adulterer and harlot allude to the perverse Canaanite fertility rites that threatened the culture of ancient Israel.
- 57:5 Green tree was associated with pagan fertility rites (1:29, 30; 1 Kin. 14:23; Jer. 2:20). Slaying the children was associated with the worship of Molech and with demon worship (30:33; 2 Kin. 23:10; Ps. 106:37, 38; Jer. 7:31).
- 57:6 Immoral idolatry was the people's portion or lot, instead of the Lord (Deut. 4:19, 20; Ps. 16:5; 142:5).
- 57:7 A high mountain refers to a place for idolatrous practices (Jer. 3:6; Ezek. 16:16; Mic. 1:3–5). The word bed is associated with sexual aspects of idolatry (Ezek. 23:17; Hos. 4:13). sacrifice: Animal and grain offerings were also part of pagan worship. There were enough similarities between true and false worship for people to be confused (compare “wisdom” and “folly” in Prov. 9).
- 57:8 Remembrance may refer to a pagan cultic symbol in the home. made a covenant: This phrase, which has so many associations with true religion, is here used in the context of obscene behavior associated with pagan worship. nudity: The Hebrew word is the regular term for “hand.” Here it appears to be a euphemism for the male genitals.
- 57:9 King probably refers to the Ammonite god Molech (1 Kin. 11:7), whose name means “king.” Sheol here alludes to the gods of the underworld, perhaps associated with necromancy.
- 57:10 There is no hope: The people persisted in worthless idolatry. The people's way is detailed in vv. 5–9. They found a counterfeit life in immorality and idolatry that would only lead to permanent death (Rom. 1:18–32).
- 57:11 of whom have you been afraid . . . not remembered Me: For a related passage, see 51:12, 13. Lied here refers to infidelity to the Lord. The Lord held His peace by not sending judgment immediately (42:14; 48:9; 2 Pet. 3:9).
- 57:12 your righteousness: Here this phrase is stated in sarcasm or irony (58:2, 3; 64:6).
- 57:13 Let your . . . idols deliver you: The thought is pitiful (44:17). The worshiper of idols was appealing to a work of his own hands for deliverance. the wind will carry them all away: The idols are like worthless chaff (Ps. 1:4). But: This word shows that there is an appeal in the denunciation. Each judgment text is a call for repentance. puts his trust: This verb is used of a little chick finding shelter under its mother's wings (4:6; 25:4; Ruth 2:12).
- 57:14 This verse is based on 40:1–4. The phrase one shall say resembles “The voice of one crying” (40:2). Heap it up resembles “Every valley shall be exalted” (40:4). Prepare the way repeats the appeal of 40:3 (see also 11:16; 35:8–10; 62:10). Stumbling block probably refers to the idolatry described in vv. 3–13.
- 57:15 This verse matches Ex. 34:6 as a defining passage for understanding the biblical view of God: Although God is completely unapproachable, He reaches down to lift up those who humble themselves before Him. High and Lofty may be rephrased as “Exceedingly Lofty” (2:11; 6:1; 52:13). This is one of the ways in which Isaiah describes the transcendence and holiness of God. He is above everyone—perfect and holy. inhabits eternity: Not only is God eternal, without beginning or ending, He transcends time itself. In this way He is able to give all of His time to each of His people; He is not bound by the succession of moments that limits our experience. High and holy may be rephrased as “unsearchably high” (32:15; 33:5, 16). Contrite and humble may be rephrased as “genuinely humble,” referring to those who submit and repent under God’s judgment (Ps. 34:17, 18; 51:17; 1 Pet. 5:6).

57:16 God will not contend forever because humans will always fail. Therefore, in His sovereign grace, the Lord “created” salvation (54:9; 57:19; Gen. 8:21, 22; Ps. 130:3, 4).

57:17 I hid: For a related reference, see 1:15. I was angry: For a similar reference to the Lord’s anger, see 54:7, 8. Covetousness violates God’s covenant (56:11; Ps. 119:36; Jer. 22:17).

57:18 I . . . will heal: The Lord is the Physician (30:26). I will . . . lead him: For similar imagery describing the Lord’s guidance, see 40:11; 42:16. Mourners refers to those who lament the destruction of Jerusalem (66:10).

57:19 fruit of the lips: For an explanation of the fruit, see Heb. 13:15. Peace, peace indicates “genuine peace.” Contrast the false use of this phrase in Jer. 6:13, 14; 8:10, 11. far off . . . near: For a similar reference, see 56:7, 8 (compare Acts 2:39; Eph. 2:13, 17).

57:20 cannot rest: Contrast v. 2. The fate of the wicked is also described in 56:9–12; 57:3–13. troubled sea: For a similar analogy comparing the wicked to turbulent waters, see Jude 13.

57:21 There is no peace . . . for the wicked: This phrase is also found in 48:22.

58:1 Isaiah was to alert the people as loudly and clearly as a trumpet (Ex. 19:19; 20:18; Hos. 8:1; 1 Cor. 14:8). Transgression is related to the verb translated “rebelled” in 1:2.

58:2 They seek Me daily contrasts with the seeking called for in 55:6. Ordinance is translated “justice” in 56:1. The hypocritical religionists delight in approaching God in ritual worship (29:13).

58:3, 4 Formerly, the nation fasted in times of national calamity (Jer. 36:9; Joel 1:14); later, fasting became part of the liturgical calendar (Zech. 7:2, 3; 8:19; Luke 18:12). This sermon may have been delivered on the Day of Atonement when the people of Israel afflicted their souls (v. 10; Lev. 16:29). You take no notice: A similar attitude is expressed in Mal. 3:14. Paradoxically, Israel finds pleasure in fasting, but not in keeping the Sabbath (vv. 13, 14). The accusations, you . . . exploit all your laborers and you fast for strife and debate, expose the hypocrisy of the people’s worship. Instead of ceasing their normal pursuits and setting the day aside to fast and pray, they strike with the fist the laborer who does not work. Will not may also be translated “cannot.”

58:5 Is it a fast that I have chosen: For related passages, see 1:10–15; Amos 5:21–23; Mic. 6:7. The people’s fast was not an acceptable day to the LORD because it focused on self-righteousness and not on justice for others. Bow down and spread out refer to the mourning ceremonies which accompanied fasting (2 Sam. 12:16; Joel 1:13, 14). Like a bulrush is meant to signify humility (42:3).

58:6 To loose, to undo, to let . . . go free, and break every yoke are synonyms of genuine righteousness (Ezek. 18:16–18). Yoke is a metaphor for social oppression.

58:7 the hungry . . . the naked: For similar expressions of the duty to take care of the poor, see Job 31:16–23; Matt. 25:35, 36. The poor who are cast out refers to those whose lands and houses were expropriated in payment of debts.

58:8 The light dawned with the advent of Christ (v. 10; 9:2; 10:17; 59:9; 60:1–3; Luke 1:78, 79). Righteousness refers to salvation (56:1). The glory of the LORD probably alludes to the pillar of cloud and fire in the desert (4:5, 6; Ex. 13:21; 14:20). rear guard: A marching army needs an alert rear defense (see also 52:12).

58:9 The pointing of the finger was a sinister gesture (Prov. 6:13).

58:10 The afflicted soul here contrasts with the hypocritical affliction described in v. 3.

58:11 A watered garden and a perennial spring are similes for prosperity and the blessings of God’s salvation.

58:12 Build the old waste places presupposes that the restored exiles had not found the spiritual and economic resources to rebuild Judah (44:26, 28; 61:2, 4; Ezek. 36:10; Hag. 1:2–9). The coming of Christ rebuilt the house of David (Amos 9:11, 12; Acts 15:15–17).

58:13 Doing your pleasure probably refers to commerce (vv. 3, 4; Amos 8:5). Holy day clearly indicates that in vv. 2–9 the Lord was not rejecting ritual altogether (see 66:23).

58:14 This blessing is based on the Song of Moses in Deut. 32:9, 13.

59:1 the LORD's hand is not shortened: For related passages, see 40:10; 50:2. The Lord's ear, unlike Israel's (6:10), is able to hear.

59:3 your hands are defiled with blood: For similar passages on the people's guilt, see 1:15; 59:7; Ezek. 7:23. Your lips have spoken lies: For related passages, see 33:15; 59:13; Mark 7:21–23; Rom. 3:10–18; Gal. 5:19–21.

59:4 Calls for justice probably means to help the poor in the law courts (Job 9:16; 13:22). No one would plead the case of the poor fairly (1:17; 5:23; 59:14). Conceive evil and bring forth iniquity is translated “conceive trouble and bring forth futility” in Job 15:35.

59:5 Hatch . . . eggs and weave the . . . web signify the deliberate, calculated wickedness in the courts (32:7; 59:4).

59:6 Their webs will not become garments illustrates the futility depicted in v. 4 and the ultimate failure of the schemes depicted in v. 5. The wicked power structures would prove worthless (Job 8:14, 15).

59:7, 8 This passage is cited in Rom. 3:15–17 to document the universality of sin. Their feet . . . make haste to shed innocent blood: The people run without forethought into evil (Prov. 1:16). thoughts of iniquity: Contrast 55:7–9. Those who deny peace to others will themselves not know peace (57:21). crooked paths: For similar images of the wicked person's way of life, see Prov. 2:15; 10:9; 28:18.

59:9 Therefore links Israel's repentance with the prophet's reprimand. With the pronoun us, Isaiah identified himself with his people's sins (Ezra 9:6, 7; Dan. 9:5). The words justice and righteousness refer to God's salvation (46:13). Light and darkness refer to salvation and doom respectively (9:2; 42:16; 58:8, 10; 60:1–3). The Book of Isaiah, like the Gospel of John, makes much use of the words light and darkness as a way to contrast eternal life and death, truth and falsehood (John 1:4–9; 3:19–21; 8:12; 9:5; 12:35, 36).

59:10 The people grope . . . like the blind in fulfillment of the covenant curse on those who were disobedient (Deut. 28:29).

59:11 The people growl out of frustration. moan: For related images of the people's despair involving doves, see 38:14; Ezek. 7:16.

59:14 Justice and righteousness speak here of ethical conduct (v. 4).

59:15, 16 Justice refers here to salvation (vv. 9, 10). The Lord, using the first person, expresses the thought of this passage in 63:5. no man: God's salvation does not depend on humans (Ezek. 22:30). no intercessor: Contrast the intercession of the Servant in 53:12. His own arm figuratively represents the Lord as a warrior (42:13; 49:24, 25; 51:9; 52:10). Righteousness refers to the Lord's victorious salvation (46:13; 51:6, 8; 56:1).

59:17 The Lord's breastplate and helmet are taken up by His saints in their battle against the devil (Eph. 6:14–17). garments of vengeance: For a more detailed description of the Lord who comes to judge but also to save, see 63:1–3.

59:18 Recompense to His enemies is translated “fully repays His enemies” in 66:6. Coastlands indicates that the Lord's adversaries were distant nations (41:1). However, He judged wicked Israelites as well (65:6, 7). Only the repentant will be blessed (vv. 9–15, 20).

59:19 From the west . . . from the rising of the sun is another way of saying everywhere. When the enemy comes could also mean “when He comes as an enemy” (35:4).

Standard

A standard was a symbol carried on a pole and raised high in the air, much like a flag, to rally a tribe or a group of warriors in battle (Num. 2:10; Is. 59:19). These standards or ensigns were probably carvings or likenesses of animals raised on a spear or pole (Num. 21:8, 9). These were usually set on a hill and often were accompanied by the sound of a trumpet.

The eagle was one of the earliest known standards. In fact, it became the official standard or symbol of the Roman Empire. Other popular animal standards were stags, steers, horses, lions, unicorns, serpents, and wolves. Assyrian armies carried the moon sickle mounted on a spear in honor of their god, Ashur.

59:20 The Redeemer will come in the person of Jesus Christ. For other prophecies of the Redeemer see 41:14. turn from transgression: For similar appeals to turn from sin in the prophecies of Isaiah see 1:17–19; 30:15; 31:6; 59:9–15.

59:21 Them refers to the repentant (v. 20). My Spirit: For similar references see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 61:1; Luke 3:22. You and your in this verse are singular, probably with reference to Isaiah. God's Spirit and words would be given to all Israel so that all would become prophets of the living God (44:3).

60:1 Arise is addressed to Zion (v. 14). shine: Zion is both the recipient of God's light and the reflector of it. light: Isaiah's prophecies often emphasize the contrast between light and darkness to symbolize the contrast between eternal life and death, salvation and judgment (see 9:2; 10:17; 58:8;

60:2 As was the case during the Exodus from Egypt, darkness is on the wicked while God's light is on His people (Ex. 10:23). Deep darkness elsewhere describes a cloud enfolding the glory of God (Ex. 20:21), and serves as a warning of His impending judgment (Jer. 13:16).

60:3 Gentiles is translated "nations" in 2:2–4. In the earlier passage, they come to heavenly Zion to be taught of God; here they come to bring tribute (vv. 5, 11, 13). Isaiah foresaw a day when not only would the righteous remnant in Israel be devoted to God, but so would the redeemed from all peoples. Christ is the light to kings (42:6; 49:6).

60:4 Lift up your eyes . . . they come to you is cited from 49:18. Your sons . . . your daughters is cited from 49:22. Those verses were addressed to exiles and primarily concerned their return to the land, while this verse is addressed to the few restored exiles and looks to a greater return that is still in the future (11:11).

60:5 become radiant: See "shine" in v. 1. wealth of the Gentiles: For similar phrases, see Hag. 2:7; Zech. 14:14.

60:6 Camels, animals of burden, carried gold and incense. Midian was famous as a caravan leader and trader (Gen. 37:28, 36). Ephah was one of Midian's sons (Gen. 25:4). The allusion to Sheba, renowned for its wealth, links this city with Solomon's (1 Kin. 10:1–13; Ps. 72:10). proclaim the praises: The nations would not bring just their wealth; they would accompany their gifts with public, vocal acknowledgment of the wonder of God (1 Kin. 10:9; Heb. 13:14, 15).

60:8 The ships' sails resemble a fast-moving cloud and doves returning to their roosts.

60:9 The reference to the ships of Tarshish (2:16) alludes to the wealth of King Solomon (1 Kin. 10:22).

60:10 Foreigners, such as Hiram king of Tyre, helped build the first temple (1 Kin. 5); today Gentiles are building up the church, the temple of the Lord (Eph. 2:11–22). Wrath is translated "indignation" in 34:2.

60:11 Zion's gates shall be open continually both because the city is secure and because the doors must be open in order to accommodate the great influx of the wealth of the Gentiles (v. 5). For the "gates of Zion," see Ps. 87:1–3. This verse is alluded to in Rev. 21:24, 25.

60:12 The nation and kingdom that does not serve Zion, where Christ now reigns (Acts 2:29–36), shall perish (John 3:18; Heb. 2:3; 9:27; 10:27). In the coming kingdom, there will be no opposition to the reign of the Savior-King.

60:13 As the glory of Lebanon—its luxurious cypress, pine, and box tree—glorified the first temple (1 Kin. 5:10, 18) so it will beautify the temple again (vv. 5–7). Formerly, the place of the Lord's feet was the ark of the covenant (1 Chr. 28:2); later it was the temple (Ezek. 43:7), and then the whole earth (66:1).

60:15 The new sanctuary will be greater than the old one because it is eternal, rich, and spiritual (vv. 17, 18). you have been forsaken: For related ideas, see 49:14, 21; 50:1; 54:6.

60:16 This verse is modeled on 49:26. In the earlier verse, the nations serve Israel; here they enrich it. milk the breast of kings: This line, representing great wealth, demonstrates clearly that the prophet was using figurative language.

60:17 The new temple will be made of better-than-necessary metals—gold, silver, bronze, and iron—symbolizing by exaggeration its exceedingly great and enduring wealth. Peace and righteousness are personified as officers and magistrates respectively (26:3; 48:18).

60:18 Judging from the figurative language in vv. 15–22, especially v. 17, God's Salvation and Israel's Praise will be the city's defense (Zech. 2:4, 5).

60:19, 20 These verses form the basis for the description of the New Jerusalem in the new heaven and earth (Rev. 21:1, 23; 22:5). See also 65:17; 66:22.

everlasting

(Heb. 'olam) (30:8; 60:19, 20; Ps. 89:2; Amos 9:11) Strong's #5769

This word is likely related to the one that means “to hide”; thus this term connotes “hidden, unknown time,” usually referring to the future but sometimes to the past. The word may speak of time that is limited by a single life, that reaches through several generations (Gen. 6:3, 4; Deut. 15:17; Neh. 2:3; Mal. 3:4), or that extends to the beginning of the created order (64:4; Gen. 49:26). Sometimes the word refers to a period of time beyond death (45:17; Prov. 8:23; Eccl. 12:5; Dan. 12:2). Thus the term is quite naturally used of God, who is eternal and hidden (40:28; Gen. 21:33; Ps. 90:2). It refers to God's never-ending covenants, statutes, salvation, and love (Gen. 9:12; Lev. 16:29–31; Jer. 31:3). The Bible also describes the coming Messiah, His kingdom, and His priesthood as eternal (9:7; Ps. 45:6, 7; 110:4).

60:21 In the new Zion, people shall all be righteous (4:3; Rev. 21:27). Though the exiles were back in the land (49:8; 54:3), they looked to a new Zion, when Israel would inherit the land forever. The branch of My planting: For similar references to God's people as a branch, see 4:2; 5:1–7; 61:3.

60:22 A little one shall become a thousand: The inhabitants of the new Zion will be prolific (54:3; Lev. 26:8).

61:1–11 This is the fifth of the Servant songs. In this song, the emphasis is on the Servant's mission.

61:1 The Spirit: For similar references, see 11:2; 30:1; 42:1; 48:16; 59:21; Luke 3:22. The Me featured so prominently here is the same Servant as in 42:1; 49:1; 50:4; 52:13. Several reasons point to this identification: (1) The Servant refers to God as His Master, the “Lord GOD” (compare 50:4); (2) He has received the Lord's Spirit (compare 42:1); (3) He brings a word of healing and liberation (compare vv. 1–3 with 42:7; 49:9; 50:4); (4) He proclaims the “year of the LORD” (compare v. 2 with 49:8); (5) He is associated with an everlasting covenant (compare v. 8 with 42:6; 49:8); (6) Jesus Christ inaugurated His ministry by identifying Himself as this Servant (Luke 4:17–21). the LORD has anointed: This phrase signifies that the Servant is more than a prophet, since only kings and high priests—with the exception of Elisha (1 Kin. 19:16)—were anointed (45:1). The name Messiah, or Christ in Greek, means the “Anointed One.” Poor also means “humble,” which like brokenhearted, indicates those who confidently hope in God in spite of their present distress (11:4; Ps. 34:18; 51:17). Proclaim liberty probably alludes to the official inauguration of the “Year of Release” or Jubilee (Lev. 25:10). Captives refers to those in bondage to the wicked (58:6) or to wickedness in general—not to the exiles as in 51:14. Those who are bound is translated “prisoners” in 49:9, where it refers in part to the exiles; here it means “captives.”

61:2 The acceptable year of the LORD corresponds to “the day of salvation” (49:8) and “the year of My redeemed” (63:4). our God: For a similar use of this term see 25:9. To comfort all who mourn: For related passages see 12:1; 49:13; Matt. 5:4.

61:3 A host lavished on a guest the oil of joy (Ps. 23:5; 45:7; Luke 7:46). He may be glorified: For similar references see 44:23; 49:5.

61:4 They refers to Jews (58:12) and Gentiles (60:10). desolations of many generations: See 58:12; 60:10.

61:6 priests of the LORD: With Christ, they will make intercession for sinners (53:12; Ex. 19:6; 1 Pet. 2:9; Rev. 1:6). Servants here means “ministers,” a synonym for “priests” (1 Kin. 8:11).

61:7 Everlasting joy: For other references to eternal joy see 35:10; 51:11; 60:19, 20.

61:9 Shall be known has the sense of “shall be renowned.” among the Gentiles . . . whom the LORD has blessed: This section alludes to the fulfillment of the promises made to Abraham (41:8; 51:2; Gen. 12:3).

61:10 I and the parallel My soul refer to personified Zion. Rejoice is translated “joy” in v. 3 (see also 65:18). Clothed signifies the Servant’s new glorified status or condition (47:2; 52:1; 59:17).

Ornaments is translated “beauty” in v. 3. bride: For a similar image see 49:18.

61:11 spring forth: This phrase is also found in 42:9; 43:19; 45:8 to describe the coming of God’s salvation. Righteousness here means “deliverance” (54:17). before all the nations: For related passages see 52:10; 60:2, 3.

righteousness

(Heb. tsedeq) (62:1; Ps. 45:7; 85:10; 132:9; Prov. 1:3) Strong's #6664

This term denotes conformity to an ethical or moral standard. It occurs in reference to honorable business dealings (Gen. 30:33; Lev. 19:36; Deut. 25:15) and proper speech (Ps. 52:3; Prov. 8:8). The term is used most often in relation to one's standing with legal authorities, either human or divine. The word is frequently found in the context of other legal terms such as judgment or justice (Lev. 19:15; Ps. 23:3; 72:2; 119:6–8). Righteousness, judgment, and justice are declared to be the foundation of God's throne (Ps. 89:14; 97:2). God's righteousness is associated with deliverance. It is in this context that one of the divine names of God is revealed: "The Lord Our Righteousness" (41:10; 51:5; Jer. 23:6; 33:16).

- 62:2 The repetition of righteousness (v. 1) shows that the divine oracle and the prophet's comment are linked. A new name, like new clothing (61:10), signifies a new status (Gen. 17:5, 15; 32:28; Rev. 2:17). For the new names see vv. 4, 12.
- 62:3 Zion does not receive a crown of glory, or royal diadem, but is one in the hand of the LORD.
- 62:4 The name Forsaken is a symbolic name for Jerusalem (see the symbolic name Immanuel in 7:14). It appears as the name of a person in 1 Kin. 22:42. For related references see 54:6; 60:15. Desolate: The term is also found in 49:8, 19; 54:1. Hephzibah and Beulah are symbolic names, although Hephzibah does appear as a personal name at 2 Kin. 21:1. The names are explained in the end of the verse.
- 62:6, 7 I refers to the Lord (vv. 1, 8). Watchmen refers to prophets (56:10). You who make mention of the LORD is Isaiah's synonym for "watchmen" and shows that the prophets were intercessors. The phrases do not keep silent and give Him no rest relate the prophets' prayer to the Lord's promises in v. 1 (see 64:12; 65:6).

Watchmen

Watchmen guarded or watched over a city or harvest field. Because of the danger of being raided, every Palestinian city or village had a watchman, especially at night. These watchmen were stationed on the city walls (2 Sam. 18:24), a watchtower (2 Kin. 9:17), or a hilltop (Jer. 31:6). Watchmen were responsible for reporting any hostile action or approaching suspicious person. These watchmen sometimes patrolled the city, called out the hours of the night, and especially looked forward to dawn

(Is. 21:11, 12). At harvest times watchmen guarded the crops at night. Israel's prophets were responsible for watching for impending divine judgment or blessing (Is. 21:6; 52:8; 62:6; Jer. 6:17) and bringing the news to the people.

62:8 The LORD has sworn: For other examples see 14:24; 45:23; 54:9. no longer: This phrase gives assurance that the covenantal blessings will outlast the curses.

62:9 in My holy courts: This phrase anticipates the rebuilding of the temple (Lev. 23:39, 40; Deut. 12:17, 18; 14:22–27; 16:9–17).

62:10 For the double imperatives go through and build up see 40:1; 51:17; 52:11. The prophets not only prayed for the people (vv. 6, 7), they encouraged them to worship. Gates probably refers to those in the “holy courts” (v. 9). The prophet commanded the worshipers of v. 9 to pass through the gates in order to praise the Lord. Prepare the way means to encourage the people to come to the temple for worship (40:3, 4; 57:14). Stones refers to any impediment to worship (57:14). Lift up a banner (5:26; 11:10) is an encouragement to all peoples to worship God.

62:11 Proclaimed to the end of the world links this verse with “a banner for the peoples” in v. 10. The verb say is plural, indicating that a number of people will declare this announcement of salvation to Jerusalem. your salvation is coming: For similar references to the coming of the Lord's salvation see 40:9; Zech. 9:9; Matt. 21:5.

62:12 The pronoun they refers to the Gentiles (v. 2). The Holy People: For similar descriptions of the redeemed see 4:3; Ex. 19:6.

63:1 The word comes links this verse with 62:11. Edom epitomized Israel's enemies (Ps. 137:7; Lam. 4:21, 22; Ezek. 25:12; 35:1–15; Obad. 13, 14); it was famous for its wine-making (see v. 3 for a reference to wine). Note that the text does not say God vanquished Edom, but rather the “peoples” (vv. 3, 6). garments: See the warrior's garments in 59:17. Bozrah was the chief town of Edom (34:6; Jer. 49:13). The pronoun I refers to the Lord.

63:2 The apparel will be red from bloodstains.

63:3 The pronoun I is applied to Christ in Rev. 19:15. trodden: For this figure of judgment see Lam. 1:15; Rev. 14:17–20. The winepress represents the battle.

63:4 year of My redeemed: This phrase alludes to the “law of redemption” of slaves and property (61:2; Lev. 25). A close relative of a slave had the right and duty to buy back the slave and rescue a family member from destitution.

63:7 I will mention: Isaiah, representing the people, publicly proclaims God's saving mercies (Ps. 77:12; 89:1). The plural words lovingkindnesses and praises refer to the Lord's many acts of love and loyalty to His people. The word lovingkindnesses is translated “sure mercies” in 55:3 (see also Ps. 89:1).

63:8 In the Hebrew Bible, the term My people is used in two ways: (1) for those who were united nationally to God by blood and history through Abraham's flesh (48:1; Ex. 3:7), and (2) for those who were united to Him inwardly through Abraham's faith and obedience (Lev. 26:12; Deut. 29:13). The nation is in view here. Lie means “to deal falsely.” Israel's rebellion was unexpected (1:2, 3). Just as godly parents expect godly children (Prov. 22:6), so God Himself expected godly children.

63:9 Their affliction probably refers to God's sympathy for His people in Egypt (Ex. 2:25; 3:7) and at the time of the judges (Judg. 10:16). He was afflicted: God shares the hurt of His people (Ex. 2:23–25). Paul's persecution of the members of the early church caused Christ to be afflicted (Acts 9:4).

- Bore and carried are allusions to Ex. 19:4 (see Deut. 1:31; 32:10–12).
- 63:10 rebelled: This verb means “to be contentious” (Num. 20:10; Ps. 78:40; 106:33, 43). The Holy Spirit is referred to from time to time in the Hebrew Scriptures, and several times in the Book of Isaiah (11:2; 42:1).
- 63:11 Days of old refers to the period of the Exodus and the Wilderness. The sea is an allusion to the Red Sea (50:2; Ex. 14:21–29). Shepherd, referring to Moses, is plural. Christ is the greater Shepherd (John 10:11; Heb. 13:20; 1 Pet. 5:4). Put His Holy Spirit within them is an allusion to Num. 11:17, 25.
- 63:12 Glorious arm is an allusion to Ex. 15:6 (see also 41:13; 51:9). Dividing the water is a reference to Ex. 14:16, 21 (see Ps. 78:13).
- 63:13, 14 The account of the Exodus and settlement of the land is concluded with two images. The first is a horse moving surefootedly across the sea bottom as through a wilderness—that is, a “desert”; the second is a beast, meaning “a domesticated herd,” returning from grazing on mountainsides into the valley . . . to rest (Deut. 12:9; Josh. 1:13; 11:23; 21:44).
- 63:15 Heaven refers to God’s universal rule over space and time (Ps. 11:4–6). The pronoun me is a personified Israel (59:9–15).
- 63:16 The people of Israel are the Lord’s children (v. 8). He is their Father because He created them as a nation (Deut. 32:6; Jer. 3:4, 19). It is rare in the pages of the Hebrew Bible to find the explicit statement of the Fatherhood of God, although it is often presented implicitly. Abraham and Israel, the people’s human fathers (51:2), were limited in their knowledge by time and space—in contrast to the Lord, the people’s Father and Redeemer from Everlasting (41:14).
- 63:17 us: Isaiah identifies himself with his people (59:9–15). The Lord, confirming the people in their sin, hardened their hearts (6:10; Ex. 4:21; Ps. 95:8).
- 63:19 Called by Your name signifies the Lord’s ownership of the people (Deut. 28:10; Jer. 14:9).
- 64:1, 2 Oh, that . . . You would come down: This appeal for the Lord to appear and strike terror in the enemy is based on His appearances at Sinai (Ex. 19:16–18) and for David (Ps. 18:7–15). The image of fire often symbolizes God’s presence (10:17; 31:9; Ex. 19:18; Heb. 12:18), especially in judgment (Heb. 12:29).
- 64:3 awesome things: The appearance of God is a fearsome event (Ex. 19:16–21; Deut. 10:21; 2 Sam. 7:23; Ps. 106:22). for which we did not look: God’s saving acts surpass human expectations (Eph. 3:20). The mountains shook: For a similar description see Ex. 19:18.
- 64:4 Paul cites this verse with some changes in 1 Cor. 2:9. Nor . . . seen any God besides You: For similar ideas see 43:11; Deut. 4:35.
- 64:5 You meet him . . . Who remembers You in Your ways: These words reinforce the idea of v. 4. does righteousness: For a similar phrase see 56:1. The word indeed provides a transition from the petition (63:15–64:5) to the confession of sin (64:5–7).
- 64:6 Unclean means the people were unfit for God’s presence. Filthy rags refers to garments stained during menstruation (see also “sins . . . like scarlet” in 1:18), making a woman unclean (Lev. 15:19–24; Ezek. 36:17). As a leaf signifies the people’s worthlessness and separation from God.
- 64:7 No one who calls is an exaggerated phrase calling attention to the people’s apathy. hidden: God is never really “in hiding,” but He does obscure His presence because of human sin (1:15).
- 64:8 But now, O LORD: These words serve as a contrast to the preceding section, the confession of sin. our Father: For similar references to God as Father see 63:8, 16. We are the clay: For similar imagery of human beings as clay in the Potter’s hands, see Job 10:9; Rom. 9:20, 21.
- 64:9 Do not be furious claims God’s promise in 54:7, 8. Nor remember claims God’s promise in 43:25. Please look refers to God’s “hiding” of Himself in v. 7.
- 64:10 cities . . . Zion . . . Jerusalem: The prophetic picture of the devastation of the land following the Babylonian invasion is used as a means of appeal to the heart of God.
- 64:11 Holy and beautiful may be rephrased as “exquisite beauty.” Our fathers praised You suggests that the speakers are at least a generation removed from the fall of the temple.

- 64:12 Will You restrain Yourself: The people use the language of love, of remembrance, of family, and of shared values in this section (vv. 8–12) to implore God to act again on their behalf.
- 65:1 I was sought literally means “I allowed Myself to be sought.” I was found literally means “I allowed Myself to be found.” This promise links this oracle with Isaiah’s lament (64:7). Here I am (58:9) is repeated for emphasis (see the repetition of the word comfort in 40:1). The Lord’s glorious presence assures salvation. A nation that was not called by My name includes the Gentiles (42:1; 49:6, 22; 52:15) and the remnant who “sought” God (v. 10). Together they are the servants who will be called “by another name” (v. 15). Paul saw his ministry to the Gentiles as a fulfillment of this promise (Rom. 10:20, 21). Peter calls the church “a holy nation” (1 Pet. 2:9).
- 65:2 I have stretched out My hands pictures God beckoning Israel to respond to Him. All day long suggests the Lord’s long-suffering patience. Rebellious describes Israel (63:10). Who, repeated six times in vv. 2–5, introduces a sorry catalogue of Israel’s abominable religious practices: arrogance (v. 2), open defiance (v. 3), idolatrous fertility rites (v. 3), divination (v. 4), eating unclean foods (v. 4), and blasphemous self-righteousness (v. 5). their own thoughts: Contrast the Lord’s thoughts in 55:8, 9.
- 65:3 To My face means “openly.” The people did not hide their shameful practices or restrain their evil habits. The Babylonians would commonly offer incense to the “host of heaven” on the brick or tile roofs of houses (2 Kin. 23:12; Jer. 19:13; Zeph. 1:5).
- 65:4 Spend the night in the tombs may refer to the practice of seeking an oracle from a god or from the dead. The Law prohibited eating swine’s flesh (66:17; Lev. 11:7; Deut. 14:8). Abominable things refers to other foods that were prohibited to Israel (Lev. 11). When the people of Israel ate the same foods as their neighbors, they ceased to be holy or distinct.
- 65:5 I am holier than you: The idolaters were like the worst of the Pharisees in the NT times. Jesus called the Pharisees children of the devil (John 8:44), but they regarded themselves as better than others (Luke 18:9–14). Smoke and fire stand for things that provoke God’s anger.
- 65:6 It is written refers to the heavenly book that records sin. Royal courts in the ancient world recorded unpunished crimes. I will not keep silence: For a similar phrase, see 62:1. repay: For similar references to the Lord’s vengeance see 33:10–14; 34:8; 59:18.
- 65:7 the iniquities of your fathers: For related passages see Ex. 20:5; Ezek. 18:20. blasphemed Me: The Israelites rejected and offended God by offering sacrifices to the false gods of other nations on the hilltops (see Ezek. 20:27, 28). Therefore: The punishment matches the crime (47:11).
- 65:8 New wine represents the servants (54:17); the otherwise unproductive cluster represents all Israel (5:1, 2). The association of wine and blessing here is common in the Scriptures. Servants include “the remnant,” as well as foreigners (56:6). not destroy them all: For a related passage see 1:8, 9.
- 65:9 I will bring forth descendants is fulfilled in Christ and in all those who are found in Him (Gal. 3:16, 26–29). Jacob and Judah represent all Israel. An heir involves the Messiah (Gen. 49:10; Matt. 21:38; Gal. 3:16). My elect: For a related passage see 41:8, 9 (compare Gal. 3:26–29).
- 65:10 Sharon, the coastal plain in the west, and the Valley of Achor, near Jericho in the east, represent the whole land.
- 65:11 The word who occurs four times in this verse, introducing more (vv. 2–5) of Israel’s sins. These sins involved forsaking the Lord, forgetting His place of worship, worshiping Gad, a god of good luck, and worshiping Meni, a god of fate.
- 65:12 When I called, you did not answer contrasts with “Before they call, I will answer” in v. 24.
- 65:13 Therefore logically connects this stanza with the first two, vv. 1–7, 8–12. Behold . . . But: The pattern here recalls the blessings and curses on Mt. Gerizim and Mt. Ebal (Deut. 27), in the Beatitudes (Luke 6:20–26), and in Christ’s picture of the Last Judgment (Matt. 25:31–46). eat and drink: This is a festive meal accompanied by rejoicing.
- 65:14 Sing here develops the idea of rejoicing in v. 13 (see also 12:1–6; 35:10; 61:7).
- 65:15 The chosen (v. 9) will use the apostates’ name as a curse by invoking the terrible fate of the apostates upon others. The chosen will say, “The Lord make you like apostate Israel.” See Jer. 29:22 for an example of how the Babylonian captives used the names of Zedekiah and Ahab as a curse. Another name signifies the launching of a new era (62:2); this name would be associated with blessing (v. 16), not with a curse.

65:16 He who blesses himself in the earth—Jew or Gentile—will invoke the Lord’s name, because He is the God of truth.

65:17, 18 I create may also be translated “I am creating” or “I am about to create.” new heavens and a new earth: As God fashioned the existing heavens and earth, so He will fashion a new cosmos that will be ready for His presence and for the enjoyment of His people. Former encompasses everything up to the creation of the new cosmos (Rev. 21:4). Be glad and rejoice means “to be openly, deliriously happy.” Saints are called upon to celebrate by faith the coming glorious salvation (66:10). Create Jerusalem signifies that it will be entirely new, with no resemblance to the old city (62:7). John also links the “new heaven and new earth” with the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:1, 2).

65:19 My people: This title for the citizens of Jerusalem is also used in 63:8. weeping shall no longer be heard: For similar ideas concerning God’s coming salvation see 25:8; 35:10; 51:11.

65:20 the child shall die one hundred years old: On one level, these words indicate a return in the coming kingdom to the extended life spans that are noted before the Flood (Gen. 5). It appears that people will not be affected by disease and aging in the same way as in our present world. Sinner can also mean “the one who fails” to live a long life.

65:21, 22 These verses imply meaningful work in both the coming kingdom as well as in the new cosmos, along with a reverse of the curse (Deut. 28:49–52). houses . . . vineyards: The life of blessing in the coming kingdom is presented in terms that would have been readily understood by the people of Isaiah’s day (Mic. 4:4). Industry will not be limited to these twin pursuits, but the happy, blessed life is indicated by them. As the days of a tree indicates longevity and stability (v. 20). The words long enjoy reinforces the idea of longevity.

65:23 They shall not labor in vain: These words speak of God reversing the curse on this cosmos (Gen. 3:17–22) and removing the curse that came in the time of Moses (Deut. 28:30). The word vain means “empty.”

65:24 Before they call, I will answer expresses the truth that there will be no sorrow between petition and praise (30:19; 58:9). Praise will be continuous.

65:25 This verse condenses the promises of 11:6–9. The figures represent the reversal of nature and the coming of universal peace. Dust shall be the serpent’s food is an allusion to Gen. 3:14 to indicate that this specific curse will be consummated.

66:1 The Lord has no need for a man-made temple because heaven and earth—the whole cosmos—is His sanctuary (40:22). footstool: The resting place for the “feet” of the Lord is extended beyond the ark of the covenant (60:13) to the whole earth. Where is the house: No place on earth can accommodate the transcendent God (1 Kin. 8:27). The place of My rest refers to the temple (1 Chr. 28:2; Ps. 132:8, 14).

66:2 Those things refers to everything in the universe. I look: God seeks true worshipers (John 4:24). Contrite spirit . . . trembles at My word is similar to Jesus’ phrase “in spirit and truth” (John 4:24).

66:3 The term He who, used four times in this verse, refers to those who worship according to the letter but not the spirit of the Law. Their worship in God’s estimation is as unacceptable as if it consisted of abominable pagan practices (1:11–14; 65:3–5). God’s harsh criticism of false liturgy is tempered with His promise of the coming true liturgy (vv. 20, 23). Slays a man may refer to child sacrifice (57:5). Breaks a dog’s neck may refer to a pagan practice; in any case, the dog was regarded as an unclean animal, a detestable scavenger. The sacrifice of a bull, a lamb, a grain offering, and incense was considered to be their own ways because the worshipers lacked a contrite spirit. It was as if their soul delighted in their abominations.

- 66:4 So will I choose their delusions: For a related passage see 63:17. their fears: This is the judgment spelled out in vv. 15, 16, 24. when I called . . . I do not delight: This passage echoes 65:12.
- 66:5 You who tremble at His word: These words link vv. 5–11 with vv. 1–4. Your brethren who hated you: These words intensify the opposition encountered in ch. 65. Let the LORD be glorified represents the false worshiper's hypocritical righteousness (v. 17). Cast . . . out of the temple, the true worshipers went into the world and brought back Gentiles (v. 18). Joy is spoken sarcastically (Ps. 22:8). The persecutors shall be ashamed and the persecuted shall "rejoice" (v. 10).
- 66:6 Isaiah heard the sound of battle noise proceeding from the city and the temple (13:4). His enemies refers to the self-righteous idolaters persecuting God's servants. This prophecy may find its fulfillment in the fall of the temple in A.D. 70 (Matt. 24:1, 2) or at the Lord's Second Coming (66:17; 2 Thess. 1:7–10).
- 66:7, 8 Before she . . . gave birth represents the birth of the community from the cast-out worshipers as coming so quickly that it will be without pain. At times, Zion is pictured as the daughter of the Lord (1:8); here she is the mother of His people. The male child and her children may refer to Christ and His Church.
- 66:9 The rhetorical questions introduced by the words shall I guarantee the prophecy of vv. 7, 8. God finishes what He begins (Phil. 1:6).
- 66:11 Through the joyful faith of v. 10, saints before Christ's coming ate figuratively at a banquet (65:13).
- 66:12 For links vv. 12–24 with vv. 5–11. The pronoun her refers to Mother Jerusalem (vv. 7, 8). You refers to true worshipers and their offspring (v. 22), the beloved children of Mother Jerusalem. On her sides . . . carried: For similar images see 49:22; 60:4.
- 66:13 I will comfort you: Here God Himself is the comforting "Mother" (2 Cor. 1:3, 4).
- 66:14 Heart and bones refer to mental and physical health (Ps. 6:2; 109:18).
- 66:15 For links the judgment with rebuke. This verse is a picture of God's judgment. The Lord's coming corresponds to Isaiah's prayer (64:1–3). Fire is the lightning; His chariots are the storm clouds (Deut. 33:26; Ps. 18:10). Like a whirlwind depicts the speed and strength of the Lord's coming (Jer. 4:13).
- 66:16 The Divine Warrior comes with fire (v. 15) and sword (27:1; 31:8; Luke 21:24; Rev. 19:11–15). All flesh refers to all of the false worshipers described in this chapter (Jer. 9:2).
- 66:17 This section summarizes the abominable practices of the false worshipers (65:2–5; 66:3).
- 66:18 Their works and their thoughts probably refers to the right acts and spirit of the true worshipers, on whom God looks with favor (v. 2), since reference is made to bringing salvation to the Gentiles (v. 19). My glory probably refers to God's presence in His temple (Ezek. 11:22, 23; 44:4).
- 66:19 The sign may be the deliverance of the true worshipers as judgment falls on the false. Those . . . who escape may refer to those who escape God's slaughter (vv. 16, 17), but more likely to those who escape persecution (Matt. 24:9–14). Those who escaped would bring God's glory to the nations (v. 18) and then give birth to the new age (vv. 7–11). to Tarshish . . . the coastlands: For similar references see 23:6; 60:9. declare My glory among the Gentiles: For another prophecy by Isaiah of the spread of God's glory throughout the world, see 24:14–16.
- 66:20 an offering to the LORD: For a related reference see Deut. 12:5–7. horses . . . camels: Animals represent the diverse countries from which they come. The Gentiles are likened to a clean vessel (56:6, 7; Acts 10:28), a striking reversal of the dominant attitude towards Gentiles in the OT (52:1).
- 66:22 A prediction of the coming of the new heavens and the new earth also occurs in 65:17. Your descendants . . . remain guarantees the continuity of true Israel (65:9; Rom. 11:1–36).
- 66:23 From one New Moon to another refers to all time. All flesh refers to the blessed—Jew and Gentile—in contrast to the rejected (vv. 16, 24). Through all time and from all the earth, true worship will be offered to God.

66:24 Corpses refers to the rebels (5:25; 34:3). The word for transgressed is related to the word for rebelled in 1:2. Their worm . . . is not quenched depicts eternal punishment (48:22; 57:20). The imagery derives from the Valley of Hinnom that was Jerusalem's garbage dump, where unclean corpses decomposed and were burned. This verse is cited by Jesus in Mark 9:44, 46, 48. Although the Book of Isaiah depicts God's coming salvation, it closes with a strong statement of the judgment of the wicked.

Introduction

The Book of Jeremiah, perhaps more vividly than any other book of the Bible, reveals the inner struggles of a prophet of God. In “confessions” such as those in 15:10–21; 20:7–18, Jeremiah candidly reveals his inner turmoil concerning his call to prophetic ministry. Indeed, the prophet’s anguish over the message of judgment upon his people and the coming destruction of the land was at times overwhelming (4:19–22). Yet despite his anguish, Jeremiah fulfilled his ministry of proclaiming God’s judgment against the people of Judah for their idolatry, their unfaithfulness to the covenant, and their obstinate disobedience of His will. Long acknowledged as one of the great prophets of the Old Testament, Jeremiah serves to this day as an example of someone who remained faithful to the word of God despite countless hardships.

Jeremiah is taken to Egypt

Author and Date Jeremiah was born in Anathoth, just three miles northeast of Jerusalem in the hill country of Benjamin. His father was Hilkiah. Jeremiah's ministry extended from 626 to 586 B.C., making him a contemporary of Zephaniah, Ezekiel, and Habakkuk. The prophet's writing ministry began in the fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign in 605 B.C. (see 36:1, 2), though portions of the book may have been written earlier. The book was completed sometime after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

Historical Setting Jeremiah's ministry covered a very critical time in the history of the ancient Middle East. When Josiah king of Judah died at the hands of the Egyptian army, Judah became subject to Egypt and its ruler Pharaoh Necho. The people of Judah chose Jehoahaz to succeed Josiah. However, three months later Necho appointed Jehoiakim (Eliakim) to rule as his vassal on the throne in Jerusalem. Having lost their freedom, the people of Judah turned not to God but to the idols they had worshiped in the days of Manasseh and Amon. This idolatry was the reason for Jeremiah's proclamations of God's judgment.

In 605 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar defeated Pharaoh Necho at Carchemish, and Jehoiakim immediately submitted to the Babylonian king, who permitted him to remain on the throne as a vassal. Three years later, Jehoiakim rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar and was deposed (see 2 Kin. 24:1, 2). Jehoiachin replaced Jehoiakim on the throne for a short time, but he was then exiled to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar. Thousands of political and religious leaders were carried to Babylon with Jehoiachin in 597 B.C. (see 2 Kin. 24:14–16).

Nebuchadnezzar made Jehoiakim's brother Zedekiah the new ruler of Judah. In 589 B.C., Zedekiah led a rebellion against Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar's reprisal was swift. His army entered Judah and destroyed all resisting fortified settlements. Nebuchadnezzar's army turned aside from besieging Jerusalem when the Egyptian army appeared in southwest Palestine in the summer of 588 B.C. But the Egyptians soon withdrew, and Nebuchadnezzar resumed his siege. Several times during the siege of Jerusalem, Zedekiah came to Jeremiah for counsel from the Lord. The prophet advised him to surrender, but Zedekiah would not listen.

Jerusalem's walls were breached in the fourth month of 586 B.C. One month later, the temple was burned, along with the palaces, houses, and other administrative buildings. An additional 4,600 Jerusalemites were deported to Babylon. Gedaliah was appointed governor of Judah at Riblah. Jeremiah, who had been imprisoned by Zedekiah, was released and sent to serve under Gedaliah. Gedaliah was assassinated and his supporters fled to Egypt, fearful of Nebuchadnezzar's revenge. Jeremiah went with them to Egypt against his will, and there he continued to confront the Jews for their idolatry and unfaithfulness.

Structure The structure and organization of the Book of Jeremiah have perplexed interpreters for generations. A brief examination of passages with explicit historical notes proves that the material is not ordered chronologically. Instead, the organization of the oracles, prose sermons, and other material is based on content, audience, and connective links. The division is as follows: (1) the call of Jeremiah (ch. 1); (2) the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem (chs. 2–24); (3) Jeremiah's ministry to the nations (chs. 25–51); (4) an historical appendix recounting the fall of Jerusalem (ch. 52). This arrangement gives balance and unity to the lengthy prophetic text.

Message Jeremiah's prayers, confessions, laments, and dialogues reveal the depth of the prophet's understanding of the character of God and the nature of His relationship to people. For Jeremiah, the God of Israel was the incomparable God of all creation, the Lord over nature and history. He reigned not only over Judah and Israel but over all nations (25:13).

The thread that wove together Jeremiah's knowledge of God was his understanding of the word of God. It permeated the prophet's life and speech, for God Himself promised to touch Jeremiah's mouth and infuse His words into Jeremiah's mind and speech (1:9). From then on, God's words were like an unquenchable fire burning within the prophet's soul (20:9).

Jeremiah was keenly aware of the provisions of the covenant between God and Israel. The covenant bound Israel to God in a special relationship of love, faithfulness, and hope. But the covenant had two sides. Faithfulness to the Lord and the covenant would bring blessing; disobedience would result in punishment, destruction, and exile (see Deut. 27:14—28:68). Jeremiah called the people to obey the words of the covenant and to turn from their idolatry and their unjust treatment of one another (11:6, 7).

Jeremiah's message of judgment also contained a word of hope: a righteous remnant would be restored. The land had been defiled by the people's idolatry. The leaders had brought the nation to the brink of disaster and the people were exiled. But based on His everlasting love for Israel, God promised to bring the people back from captivity and restore them to blessing (30:18—31:6). Israel's enemies would be defeated (30:16), and the people would sing joyfully of God's goodness (31:12).

Christ in the Scriptures

Although Jeremiah's references to Jesus are not as numerous as Isaiah's, they are equally as strong. He paints a word picture of the Messiah in 23:1–8 in which we see Him as the coming Shepherd, righteous Branch, and a King who “shall reign and prosper, and execute judgment and righteousness in the earth . . . now this is His name by which He will be called: THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS” (23:5, 6).

But Jeremiah doesn't stop there. He writes of one who “will make a new covenant” (31:31–34). This is the same one who will fulfill God's covenants with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3; 17:1–8), with Moses and the people (Deut. 28–30), and with David (2 Sam. 7:1–17).

Jeremiah 1

¹The words of Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah, of the priests who were ^ain Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, ²to whom the word of the LORD came in the days of ^bJosiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, ^cin the thirteenth year of his reign.

³It came also in the days of ^dJehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, ^euntil the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah, king of Judah, ^funtil the carrying away of Jerusalem captive ^gin the fifth month.

The Prophet Is Called

⁴Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

⁵“Before I ^hformed you in the womb ⁱI knew you;
Before you were born I ^jsanctified¹ you;
I ²ordained you a prophet to the nations.”

⁶Then said I:

^k“Ah, Lord GOD!
Behold, I cannot speak, for I am a youth.”

⁷But the LORD said to me:

“Do not say, ‘I am a youth,’
For you shall go to all to whom I send you,
And ^lwhatever I command you, you shall speak.
^{8m}Do not be afraid of their faces,
For ⁿI am with you to deliver you,” says the LORD.

⁹Then the LORD put forth His hand and ^otouched my mouth, and the LORD said to me:

“Behold, I have ^pput My words in your mouth.
^{10q}See, I have this day set you over the nations and over the kingdoms,
To ^rroot out and to pull down,
To destroy and to throw down,
To build and to plant.” Word Studies: build

¹¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying, “Jeremiah, what do you see?” And I said, “I see a ³branch of an almond tree.”

¹²Then the LORD said to me, “You have seen well, for I am ⁴ready to perform My word.”

¹³And the word of the LORD came to me the second time, saying, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see ^sa boiling pot, and it is facing away from the north.”

¹⁴Then the LORD said to me:

“Out of the ^tnorth calamity shall break forth
On all the inhabitants of the land.

¹⁵For behold, I am ^ucalling
All the families of the kingdoms of the north,” says the LORD;

“They shall come and ^veach one set his throne
At the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem,
Against all its walls all around,
And against all the cities of Judah.

¹⁶I will utter My judgments
Against them concerning all their wickedness,
Because ^wthey have forsaken Me,
Burned ^xincense to other gods,
And worshiped the works of their own ^yhands.

¹⁷“Therefore ^zprepare yourself and arise,
And speak to them all that I command you.
^aDo not be dismayed before their faces,
Lest I dismay you before them.

¹⁸For behold, I have made you this day
^bA fortified city and an iron pillar,
And bronze walls against the whole land—
Against the kings of Judah,
Against its princes,
Against its priests,
And against the people of the land. Article: Jeremiah's Faith

¹⁹They will fight against you,
But they shall not prevail against you.
For I am with you,” says the LORD, “to deliver you.”

Jeremiah 2

God's Case Against Israel

¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Go and cry in the hearing of Jerusalem, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD:

“I remember you,
The kindness of your ^ayouth,
The love of your betrothal,
^bWhen you ¹went after Me in the wilderness,
In a land not sown.
^{3c}Israel was holiness to the LORD,
^dThe firstfruits of His increase.
^eAll that devour him will offend;
Disaster will ^fcome upon them,” says the LORD.’ ”

⁴Hear the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob and all the families of the house of Israel.

⁵Thus says the LORD:

^g“What injustice have your fathers found in Me,
That they have gone far from Me,
^hHave followed ²idols,
And have become idolaters?
⁶Neither did they say, ‘Where is the LORD,
Who ⁱbrought us up out of the land of Egypt,
Who led us through ^jthe wilderness,
Through a land of deserts and pits,
Through a land of drought and the shadow of death,
Through a land that no one crossed
And where no one dwelt?’
⁷I brought you into ^ka bountiful country,
To eat its fruit and its goodness.
But when you entered, you ^ldefiled My land
And made My heritage an abomination.
⁸The priests did not say, ‘Where is the LORD?’

And those who handle the ^mlaw did not know Me;
The rulers also transgressed against Me;
ⁿThe prophets prophesied by Baal,
And walked after things that do not profit.

⁹“Therefore ^oI will yet ³bring charges against you,” says the
LORD,

“And against your children’s children I will bring charges.

¹⁰For pass beyond the coasts of ⁴Cyprus and see,
Send to ⁵Kedar and consider diligently,
And see if there has been such a ^pthing.

^{11q}Has a nation changed its gods,
Which are ^rnot gods?

^sBut My people have changed their Glory
For what does not profit.

¹²Be astonished, O heavens, at this,
And be horribly afraid;
Be very desolate,” says the LORD.

¹³“For My people have committed two evils:
They have forsaken Me, the ^tfountain of living waters,
And hewn themselves cisterns—broken cisterns that can hold no water.

¹⁴“Is Israel ^ua servant?
Is he a homeborn slave?
Why is he plundered?

^{15v}The young lions roared at him, and growled;
They made his land waste;
His cities are burned, without inhabitant.

¹⁶Also the people of ⁶Noph and ^wTahpanhes
Have ⁷broken the crown of your head.

^{17x}Have you not brought this on yourself,
In that you have forsaken the LORD your God
When ^yHe led you in the way?

¹⁸And now why take ^zthe road to Egypt,
To drink the waters of ^aSihor?
Or why take the road to ^bAssyria,
To drink the waters of ⁸the River?

¹⁹Your own wickedness will ^ccorrect you,
And your backslidings will rebuke you.
Know therefore and see that it is an evil and bitter thing
That you have forsaken the LORD your God,
And the ⁹fear of Me is not in you,”
Says the Lord GOD of hosts.

²⁰“For of old I have ^dbroken your yoke and burst your bonds;
And ^eyou said, ‘I will not ¹⁰transgress,’
When ^fon every high hill and under every green tree
You lay down, ^gplaying the harlot.
²¹Yet I had ^hplanted you a noble vine, a seed of highest quality.

How then have you turned before Me
Into ⁱthe degenerate plant of an alien vine?
²²For though you wash yourself with lye, and use much soap,
Yet your iniquity is ^jmarked¹¹ before Me,” says the Lord
GOD.

²³“How^k can you say, ‘I am not ¹²polluted,
I have not gone after the Baals’?
See your way in the valley;
Know what you have done:
You are a swift dromedary breaking loose in her ways, Bible
Times & Culture Notes: Dromedary \(Camel\)

²⁴A wild donkey used to the wilderness,
That sniffs at the wind in her desire;
In her time of mating, who can turn her away?
All those who seek her will not weary themselves;
In her month they will find her.

²⁵Withhold your foot from being unshod, and your throat from thirst.
But you said, ^l‘There is no hope.
No! For I have loved ^maliens, and after them I will go.’

²⁶“As the thief is ashamed when he is found out,
So is the house of Israel ashamed;
They and their kings and their princes, and their priests and their ⁿprophets,

27 Saying to a tree, 'You are my father,'
And to a ^ostone, 'You gave birth to me.'
For they have turned their back to Me, and not their face.
But in the time of their ^ptrouble
They will say, 'Arise and save us.'
28 But ^qwhere are your gods that you have made for yourselves?
Let them arise,
If they ^rcan save you in the time of your ¹³trouble;
For ^s*according to* the number of your cities
Are your gods, O Judah.

29 "Why will you plead with Me?
You all have transgressed against Me," says the LORD.
30 "In vain I have ^tchastened your children;
They ^ureceived no correction.
Your sword has ^vdevoured your prophets
Like a destroying lion.

31 "O generation, see the word of the LORD!
Have I been a wilderness to Israel,
Or a land of darkness?
Why do My people say, 'We ¹⁴are lords;
^wWe will come no more to You'?
32 Can a virgin forget her ornaments,
Or a bride her attire?
Yet My people ^xhave forgotten Me days without number.

33 "Why do you beautify your way to seek love?

Therefore you have also taught
The wicked women your ways.

³⁴Also on your skirts is found
^yThe blood of the lives of the poor innocents.
I have not found it by ¹⁵secret search,
But plainly on all these things.

^{35z}Yet you say, 'Because I am innocent,
Surely His anger shall turn from me.'
Behold, ^aI will plead My case against you,
^bBecause you say, 'I have not sinned.'

^{36c}Why do you gad about so much to change your way?
Also ^dyou shall be ashamed of Egypt ^eas you were ashamed of Assyria.

³⁷Indeed you will go forth from him
With your hands on ^fyour head;
For the LORD has rejected your trusted allies,
And you will ^gnot prosper by them.

Jeremiah 3

Israel Is Shameless

¹“They say, ‘If a man divorces his wife,

And she goes from him
And becomes another man's,
^aMay he return to her again?'
Would not that ^bland be greatly polluted?
But you have ^cplayed the harlot with many lovers;
^dYet return to Me," says the LORD.

²"Lift up your eyes to ^ethe desolate heights and see:
Where have you not ¹lain with men?
^fBy the road you have sat for them
Like an Arabian in the wilderness;
^gAnd you have polluted the land
With your harlotries and your wickedness.
³Therefore the ^hshowers have been withheld,
And there has been no latter rain.
You have had a ⁱharlot's forehead;
You refuse to be ashamed.

⁴Will you not from this time cry to Me,
'My Father, You are ^jthe guide of ^kmy youth?' Word Studies: guide

⁵^lWill He remain angry forever?
Will He keep it to the end?'
Behold, you have spoken and done evil things,
As you were able."

A Call to Repentance

⁶The LORD said also to me in the days of Josiah the king: “Have you seen what ^mbacksliding Israel has done? She has ⁿgone up on every high mountain and under every green tree, and there played the harlot.

^{7o}“And I said, after she had done all these things, ‘Return to Me.’ But she did not return. And her treacherous ^psister Judah saw it.

⁸“Then I saw that ^qfor all the causes for which backsliding Israel had committed adultery, I had ^rput her away and given her a certificate of divorce; ^syet her treacherous sister Judah did not fear, but went and played the harlot also.

⁹“So it came to pass, through her casual harlotry, that she ^tdefiled the land and committed adultery with ^ustones and trees.

¹⁰“And yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah has not turned to Me ^vwith her whole heart, but in pretense,” says the LORD.

¹¹Then the LORD said to me, ^w“Backsliding Israel has shown herself more righteous than treacherous Judah.

¹²“Go and proclaim these words toward ^xthe north, and say:

‘Return, backsliding Israel,’ says the LORD;

‘I will not cause My anger to fall on you.

For I am ^ymerciful,’ says the LORD;

‘I will not remain angry forever.

^{13z}Only acknowledge your iniquity,

That you have transgressed against the LORD your God,

And have ^ascattered your ²charms

To ^balien deities ^cunder every green tree,

And you have not obeyed My voice,’ says the LORD.

¹⁴“Return, O backsliding children,” says the LORD; ^d“for I am married to you. I will take you, ^eone from a city and two from a family, and I will bring you to ^fZion.

¹⁵“And I will give you ^gshepherds according to My heart, who will ^hfeed you with knowledge and understanding.

¹⁶“Then it shall come to pass, when you are multiplied and ⁱincreased in the land in those days,” says the LORD, “that they will say no more, ‘The ark of the covenant of the LORD.’ ^jIt shall not come to mind, nor shall they remember it, nor shall they visit it, nor shall it be made anymore.

¹⁷“At that time Jerusalem shall be called The Throne of the LORD, and all the nations shall be gathered to it, ^kto the name of the LORD, to Jerusalem. No more shall they ^lfollow³ the dictates of their evil hearts.

¹⁸“In those days ^mthe house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of ⁿthe north to ^othe land that I have given as an inheritance to your fathers.

¹⁹“But I said:

‘How can I put you among the children
And give you ^pa pleasant land,
A beautiful heritage of the hosts of nations?’

“And I said:

‘You shall call Me, ^q“My Father,”
And not turn away from Me.’
²⁰Surely, as a wife treacherously departs from her ⁴husband,
So ^rhave you dealt treacherously with Me,
O house of Israel,” says the LORD.

²¹A voice was heard on ^sthe desolate heights,
Weeping and supplications of the children of Israel.
For they have perverted their way;
They have forgotten the LORD their God.

²²“Return, you backsliding children,
And I will ^theal your backslidings.”

“Indeed we do come to You,
For You are the LORD our God.

^{23u}Truly, in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills,
And from the multitude of mountains;
^vTruly, in the LORD our God
Is the salvation of Israel.

^{24w}For shame has devoured
The labor of our fathers from our youth—
Their flocks and their herds,

Their sons and their daughters.

²⁵We lie down in our shame,

And our ⁵reproach covers us.

^xFor we have sinned against the LORD our God,

We and our fathers,

From our youth even to this day,

And ^yhave not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God.”

Jeremiah 4

¹“If you will return, O Israel,” says the LORD,

^a“Return to Me;

And if you will put away your abominations out of My sight,
Then you shall not be moved.

^{2b}And you shall swear, ‘The LORD lives,’

^cIn truth, in ¹judgment, and in righteousness;

^dThe nations shall bless themselves in Him,
And in Him they shall ^eglory.”

³For thus says the LORD to the men of Judah and Jerusalem:

^f“Break up your ²fallow ground,

And ^gdo not sow among thorns.

^{4h}Circumcise yourselves to the LORD,

And take away the foreskins of your hearts,

You men of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem,

Lest My fury come forth like fire,

And burn so that no one can quench it,

Because of the evil of your doings.”

An Imminent Invasion

⁵Declare in Judah and proclaim in Jerusalem, and say:

ⁱ“Blow the trumpet in the land;
Cry, ‘Gather together,’
And say, ^j‘Assemble yourselves,
And let us go into the fortified cities.’
⁶Set up the ³standard toward Zion.
Take refuge! Do not delay!
For I will bring disaster from the ^knorth,
And great destruction.”

^{7l}The lion has come up from his thicket,
And ^mthe destroyer of nations is on his way.
He has gone forth from his place
ⁿTo make your land desolate.
Your cities will be laid waste,
Without inhabitant.
⁸For this, ^oclothe yourself with sackcloth,
Lament and wail.
For the fierce anger of the LORD
Has not turned back from us.

⁹“And it shall come to pass in that day,” says the LORD,
“That the heart of the king shall perish,
And the heart of the princes;
The priests shall be astonished,
And the prophets shall wonder.”

¹⁰Then I said, “Ah, Lord GOD!
^pSurely You have greatly deceived this people and Jerusalem,
^qSaying, ‘You shall have peace,’
Whereas the sword reaches to the ⁴heart.”

¹¹At that time it will be said
To this people and to Jerusalem,
^r“A dry wind of the desolate heights blows in the wilderness

Toward the daughter of My people—

Not to fan or to cleanse— Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Desert Winds

¹²A wind too strong for these will come for Me;

Now ^sI will also speak judgment against them.”

¹³“Behold, he shall come up like clouds,

And ^this chariots like a whirlwind.

^uHis horses are swifter than eagles.

Woe to us, for we are plundered!”

¹⁴O Jerusalem, ^vwash your heart from wickedness,

That you may be saved.

How long shall your evil thoughts lodge within you?

¹⁵For a voice declares ^wfrom Dan

And proclaims ⁵affliction from Mount Ephraim:

¹⁶“Make mention to the nations,

Yes, proclaim against Jerusalem,

That watchers come from a ^xfar country

And raise their voice against the cities of Judah.

^{17y}Like keepers of a field they are against her all around,

Because she has been rebellious against Me,” says the LORD.

¹⁸“Your^z ways and your doings

Have procured these things for you.

This is your wickedness,

Because it is bitter,

Because it reaches to your heart.”

Sorrow for the Doomed Nation

¹⁹O my ^asoul, my soul!
I am pained in my very heart!
My heart makes a noise in me;
I cannot hold my peace,
Because you have heard, O my soul,
The sound of the trumpet,
The alarm of war.

^{20b}Destruction upon destruction is cried,
For the whole land is plundered.
Suddenly ^cmy tents are plundered,
And my curtains in a moment.

²¹How long will I see the ⁶standard,
And hear the sound of the trumpet?

²²“For My people are foolish,
They have not known Me.
They are ⁷silly children,
And they have no understanding.
^dThey are wise to do evil,
But to do good they have no knowledge.”

^{23e}I beheld the earth, and indeed it was ^fwithout form, and void;

And the heavens, they had no light.

^{24g}I beheld the mountains, and indeed they trembled,
And all the hills moved back and forth.

²⁵I beheld, and indeed there was no man,
And ^hall the birds of the heavens had fled.

²⁶I beheld, and indeed the fruitful land was a ⁱwilderness,
And all its cities were broken down
At the presence of the LORD,
By His fierce anger.

²⁷For thus says the LORD:

“The whole land shall be desolate;

^jYet I will not make a full end.

²⁸For this ^kshall the earth mourn,

And ^lthe heavens above be black,

Because I have spoken.

I have ^mpurposed and ⁿwill not relent,

Nor will I turn back from it. Word Studies: mourn

²⁹The whole city shall flee from the noise of the horsemen and bowmen.

They shall go into thickets and climb up on the rocks.

Every city shall be forsaken,

And not a man shall dwell in it.

³⁰“And when you are plundered,

What will you do?

Though you clothe yourself with crimson,

Though you adorn yourself with ornaments of gold,

^oThough you enlarge your eyes with paint,

In vain you will make yourself fair;

^p*Your* lovers will despise you;

They will seek your life.

³¹“For I have heard a voice as of a woman in ⁸labor,

The anguish as of her who brings forth her first child,

The voice of the daughter of Zion bewailing herself;

She ^qspreads her hands, saying,

‘Woe is me now, for my soul is ⁹weary

Because of murderers!’

Jeremiah 5

The Justice of God's Judgment

¹“Run to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem;
See now and know;
And seek in her open places
^aIf you can find a man,
^bIf there is anyone who executes ¹judgment,
Who seeks the truth,
^cAnd I will pardon her.
^{2d}Though they say, ‘As ^ethe LORD lives,’ Surely they ^fswear falsely.”

³O LORD, are not ^gYour eyes on the truth?
You have ^hstricken them,
But they have not grieved;
You have consumed them,
But ⁱthey have refused to receive correction.
They have made their faces harder than rock;
They have refused to return.

⁴Therefore I said, “Surely these are poor.
They are foolish;
For ^jthey do not know the way of the LORD,
The judgment of their God.
⁵I will go to the great men and speak to them,
For ^kthey have known the way of the LORD,
The judgment of their God.”

But these have altogether ^lbroken the yoke
And burst the bonds.

⁶Therefore ^ma lion from the forest shall slay them,
ⁿA wolf of the deserts shall destroy them;
^oA leopard will watch over their cities.
Everyone who goes out from there shall be torn in pieces,
Because their transgressions are many;

Their backslidings have increased.

⁷“How shall I pardon you for this?

Your children have forsaken Me
And ^psworn by those ^q*that are* not gods.
^rWhen I had fed them to the full,

Then they committed adultery
And assembled themselves by troops in the harlots' houses.
^{8s}They were like well-fed lusty stallions;
Every one neighed after his neighbor's wife.
⁹Shall I not punish them for these things?" says the LORD.
"And shall I not ^tavenge Myself on such a nation as this?

¹⁰"Go up on her walls and destroy,
But do not ²make a ^ucomplete end.
Take away her branches,
For they are not the LORD's.
¹¹For ^vthe house of Israel and the house of Judah
Have dealt very treacherously with Me," says the LORD.

^{12w}They have lied about the LORD,
And said, ^x"It is not He.
^yNeither will ³evil come upon us,
Nor shall we see sword or famine.
¹³And the prophets become wind,
For the word is not in them.
Thus shall it be done to them."

¹⁴Therefore thus says the LORD God of hosts:

"Because you speak this word,
^zBehold, I will make My words in your mouth fire,
And this people wood,
And it shall devour them.
¹⁵Behold, I will bring a ^anation against you ^bfrom afar,
O house of Israel," says the LORD.
"It is a mighty nation,
It is an ancient nation,
A nation whose language you do not know,
Nor can you understand what they say.
¹⁶Their quiver is like an open tomb;
They are all mighty men.
¹⁷And they shall eat up your ^charvest and your bread,
Which your sons and daughters should eat.

They shall eat up your flocks and your herds;
They shall eat up your vines and your fig trees;
They shall destroy your fortified cities,
In which you trust, with the sword.

¹⁸“Nevertheless in those days,” says the LORD, “I ^dwill not ⁴make a complete end of you.

¹⁹“And it will be when you say, ^e‘Why does the LORD our God do all these things to us?’ then you shall answer them, ‘Just as you have ^fforsaken Me and served foreign gods in your land, so ^gyou shall serve aliens in a land that is not yours.’

²⁰“Declare this in the house of Jacob
And proclaim it in Judah, saying,

²¹‘Hear this now, O ^hfoolish people,
Without ⁵understanding,
Who have eyes and see not,
And who have ears and hear not:

²²ⁱ‘Do you not fear Me?’ says the LORD.
‘Will you not tremble at My presence,
Who have placed the sand as the ^jbound of the sea,
By a perpetual decree, that it cannot pass beyond it?
And though its waves toss to and fro,
Yet they cannot prevail;
Though they roar, yet they cannot pass over it.

²³But this people has a defiant and rebellious heart;
They have revolted and departed.

²⁴They do not say in their heart,
“Let us now fear the LORD our God,
^kWho gives rain, both the ^lformer and the latter, in its season.
^mHe reserves for us the appointed weeks of the harvest.”

²⁵ⁿYour iniquities have turned these things away,
And your sins have withheld good from you.

²⁶‘For among My people are found wicked men;
They ^olie in wait as one who sets snares;
They set a trap;
They catch men.

²⁷As a cage is full of birds,
So their houses are full of deceit.
Therefore they have become great and grown rich.
²⁸They have grown ^pfat, they are sleek;
Yes, they ⁶surpass the deeds of the wicked;
They do not plead ^qthe cause,
The cause of the fatherless;
^rYet they prosper,
And the right of the needy they do not defend.
^{29s}Shall I not punish them for these things?' says the LORD.
'Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?'

³⁰"An astonishing and ^thorrible thing
Has been committed in the land:
³¹The prophets prophesy ^ufalsely,
And the priests rule by their own power;
And My people ^vlove to have it so.
But what will you do in the end?

Jeremiah 6

Impending Destruction from the North

Gather yourselves to flee from the midst of Jerusalem!
Blow the trumpet in Tekoa,
And set up a signal-fire in ^aBeth Haccerem;
^bFor disaster appears out of the north,
And great destruction.
²I have likened the daughter of Zion
To a lovely and delicate woman.
³The ^cshepherds with their flocks shall come to her.
They shall pitch their tents against her all around.
Each one shall pasture in his own place.”

⁴“Prepare ^dwar against her;
Arise, and let us go up ^eat noon.
Woe to us, for the day goes away,
For the shadows of the evening are lengthening.
⁵Arise, and let us go by night,
And let us destroy her palaces.”

⁶For thus has the LORD of hosts said:

“Cut down trees,
And build a mound against Jerusalem.
This is the city to be punished.
She is full of oppression in her midst.
^{7f}As a fountain ¹wells up with water,
So she wells up with her wickedness.
⁸Violence and plundering are heard in her.
Before Me continually are ²grief and wounds.
⁸Be instructed, O Jerusalem,
Lest ^hMy soul depart from you;
Lest I make you desolate,
A land not inhabited.”

⁹Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“They shall thoroughly glean as a vine the remnant of Israel;
As a grape-gatherer, put your hand back into the branches.”

¹⁰To whom shall I speak and give warning,
That they may hear?
Indeed their ⁱear is uncircumcised,
And they cannot give heed.
Behold, ^jthe word of the LORD is a reproach to them;
They have no delight in it.

¹¹Therefore I am full of the fury of the LORD.

^kI am weary of holding it in.

“I will pour it out ^lon the children outside,
And on the assembly of young men together;
For even the husband shall be taken with the wife,
The aged with him who is full of days.

¹²And ^mtheir houses shall be turned over to others,
Fields and wives together;
For I will stretch out My hand
Against the inhabitants of the land,” says the LORD.

¹³“Because from the least of them even to the greatest of them,

Everyone is given to ⁿcovetousness;
And from the prophet even to the ^opriest,
Everyone deals falsely.

¹⁴They have also ^phealed the ³hurt of My people ⁴slightly,

^qSaying, ‘Peace, peace!’

When there is no peace.

¹⁵Were they ^rashamed when they had committed abomination?

No! They were not at all ashamed;
Nor did they know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;
At the time I punish them,
They shall be cast down,” says the LORD.

¹⁶Thus says the LORD:

“Stand in the ways and see,

And ask for the ^sold paths, where the good way is,
And walk in it;
Then you will find ^trest for your souls.
But they said, 'We will not walk in it.'
¹⁷Also, I set ^uwatchmen over you, saying,
^v'Listen to the sound of the trumpet!'
But they said, 'We will not listen.'
¹⁸Therefore hear, you nations,
And know, O congregation, what is among them.
^{19w}Hear, O earth!
Behold, I will certainly bring ^xcalamity on this people—
^yThe fruit of their thoughts,
Because they have not heeded My words
Nor My law, but rejected it.
^{20z}For what purpose to Me
Comes frankincense ^afrom Sheba,
And ^bsweet cane from a far country?
^cYour burnt offerings are not acceptable,
Nor your sacrifices sweet to Me."

²¹Therefore thus says the LORD:

"Behold, I will lay stumbling blocks before this people,
And the fathers and the sons together shall fall on them.
The neighbor and his friend shall perish."

²²Thus says the LORD:

"Behold, a people comes from the ^dnorth country,
And a great nation will be raised from the farthest parts of the earth.

²³They will lay hold on bow and spear;
They are cruel and have no mercy;
Their voice ^eroars like the sea;
And they ride on horses,
As men of war set in array against you, O daughter of Zion."

²⁴We have heard the report of it;

Our hands grow feeble.

^fAnguish has taken hold of us,
Pain as of a woman in ⁵labor.

²⁵Do not go out into the field,
Nor walk by the way.
Because of the sword of the enemy,
Fear is on every side.

²⁶O daughter of my people,

^gDress in sackcloth

^hAnd roll about in ashes!

ⁱMake mourning as for an only son, most bitter lamentation;
For the plunderer will suddenly come upon us.

²⁷“I have set you as an assayer and ^ja fortress among My people,

That you may know and test their way.

^{28k}They are all stubborn rebels, ^lwalking as slanderers.

They are ^mbronze and iron,

They are all corrupters;

²⁹The bellows blow fiercely,

The lead is consumed by the fire;

The smelter refines in vain,

For the wicked are not drawn off.

³⁰*People* will call them ⁿrejected silver,
Because the LORD has rejected them.”

Jeremiah 7

Trusting in Lying Words

(cf. Jer. 26:4–6)

¹The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

^{2a}“Stand in the gate of the LORD’s house, and proclaim there this word, and say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, all you of Judah who enter in at these gates to worship the LORD!’ ”

³Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ^b“Amend your ways and your doings, and I will cause you to dwell in this place.

^{4c}“Do not trust in these lying words, saying, ‘The temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD are these.’

⁵“For if you thoroughly amend your ways and your doings, if you thoroughly ^dexecute ¹judgment between a man and his neighbor,

⁶“if you do not oppress the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and do not shed innocent blood in this place, ^eor walk after other gods to your hurt, ^{7f}“then I will cause you to dwell in this place, in ^gthe land that I gave to your fathers forever and ever.

⁸“Behold, you trust in ^hlying words that cannot profit.

⁹ⁱ“Will you steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, burn incense to Baal, and ^jwalk after other gods whom you do not know, ^{10k}“and then come and stand before Me in this house ^lwhich is called by My name, and say, ‘We are delivered to do all these abominations’?

¹¹“Has ^mthis house, which is called by My name, become a ⁿden of thieves in your eyes? Behold, I, even I, have seen it,” says the LORD.

¹²“But go now to ^oMy place which was in Shiloh, ^pwhere I set My name at the first, and see ^qwhat I did to it because of the wickedness of My people Israel. Article: A Sobering Object Lesson

¹³“And now, because you have done all these works,” says the LORD, “and I spoke to you, ^rrising up early and speaking, but you did not hear, and I ^scalled you, but you did not answer, ¹⁴“therefore I will do to the house which is called by My name, in which you trust, and to this place which I gave to you and your fathers, as I have done to ^tShiloh.

¹⁵“And I will cast you out of My sight, ^uas I have cast out all your brethren —^vthe whole posterity of Ephraim.

¹⁶“Therefore ^wdo not pray for this people, nor lift up a cry or prayer for them, nor make intercession to Me; ^xfor I will not hear you.

¹⁷“Do you not see what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

^{18y}“The children gather wood, the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead dough, to make cakes for the queen of heaven; and they ^zpour out drink offerings to other gods, that they may provoke Me to anger.

^{19a}“Do they provoke Me to anger?” says the LORD. “Do they not provoke themselves, to the shame of their own faces?”

²⁰Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, My anger and My fury will be poured out on this place—on man and on beast, on the trees of the field and on the fruit of the ground. And it will burn and not be quenched.”

²¹Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ^b“Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices and eat meat.

^{22c}“For I did not speak to your fathers, or command them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt offerings or sacrifices.

²³“But this is what I commanded them, saying, ^d‘Obey My voice, and ^eI will be your God, and you shall be My people. And walk in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you.’

^{24f}“Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but ^gfollowed² the counsels and the ³dictates of their evil hearts, and ^hwent⁴ backward and not forward.

²⁵“Since the day that your fathers came out of the land of Egypt until this day, I have even ⁱsent to you all My servants the prophets, daily rising up early and sending them.

^{26j}“Yet they did not obey Me or incline their ear, but ^kstiffened their neck. ^lThey did worse than their fathers.

²⁷“Therefore ^myou shall speak all these words to them, but they will not obey you. You shall also call to them, but they will not answer you.

Judgment on Obscene Religion

²⁸“So you shall say to them, ‘This is a nation that does not obey the voice of the LORD their God ⁿnor receive correction. ^oTruth has perished and has been cut off from their mouth.

^{29p}‘Cut off your hair and cast it away, and take up a lamentation on the desolate heights; for the LORD has rejected and forsaken the generation of His wrath.’

³⁰“For the children of Judah have done evil in My sight,” says the LORD. ^q“They have set their abominations in the house which is called by My name, to ⁵pollute it.

³¹“And they have built the ^rhigh places of Tophet, which is in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to ^sburn their sons and their daughters in the fire, ^twhich I did not command, nor did it come into My heart.

³²“Therefore behold, ^uthe days are coming,” says the LORD, “when it will no more be called Tophet, or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter; ^vfor they will bury in Tophet until there is no room.

³³“The ^wcorpses of this people will be food for the birds of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth. And no one will frighten them away.

³⁴“Then I will cause to ^xcease from the cities of Judah and from the streets of Jerusalem the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride. For ^ythe land shall be desolate.

Jeremiah 8

¹“At that time,” says the LORD, “they shall bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of its princes, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves.

²“They shall spread them before the sun and the moon and all the host of heaven, which they have loved and which they have served and after which they have walked, which they have sought and ^awhich they have worshiped. They shall not be gathered ^bnor buried; they shall be like refuse on the face of the earth.

³“Then ^cdeath shall be chosen rather than life by all the ¹residue of those who remain of this evil family, who remain in all the places where I have driven them,” says the LORD of hosts.

The Peril of False Teaching

⁴“Moreover you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD:

“Will they fall and not rise?
Will one turn away and not return?
⁵Why has this people ^dslidden back,
Jerusalem, in a perpetual backsliding?
^eThey hold fast to deceit,
^fThey refuse to return.
^{6g}I listened and heard,
But they do not speak aright.
^hNo man repented of his wickedness,
Saying, ‘What have I done?’
Everyone turned to his own course,
As the horse rushes into the battle.

⁷“Even ⁱthe stork in the heavens
Knows her appointed times;
And the turtledove, the swift, and the swallow
Observe the time of their coming.
But ^jMy people do not know the judgment of the LORD.

⁸“How can you say, ‘We are wise,
^kAnd the law of the LORD is with us’?
Look, the false pen of the scribe certainly works falsehood.

Word Studies: falsehood

^{9l}The wise men are ashamed,
They are dismayed and taken.
Behold, they have rejected the word of the LORD;
So ^mwhat wisdom do they have?

¹⁰Therefore ⁿI will give their wives to others,
And their fields to those who will inherit them;
Because from the least even to the greatest
Everyone is given to ^ocovetousness;
From the prophet even to the priest
Everyone deals falsely.

¹¹For they have ^phealed the hurt of the daughter of My people

²slightly,
Saying, ^q‘Peace, peace!’
When there is no peace.
¹²Were they ^rashamed when they had committed abomination?
No! They were not at all ashamed,
Nor did they know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;
In the time of their punishment
They shall be cast down,” says the LORD.

¹³“I will surely ³consume them,” says the LORD.
“No grapes shall be ^son the vine,
Nor figs on the ^tfig tree,
And the leaf shall fade;
And the things I have given them shall ^upass away from them.” ’ ’

¹⁴“Why do we sit still?
^vAssemble yourselves,
And let us enter the fortified cities,
And let us be silent there.
For the LORD our God has put us to silence
And given us ^wwater⁴ of gall to drink,
Because we have sinned against the LORD.

¹⁵“We ^xlooked for peace, but no good came;
And for a time of health, and there was trouble!
¹⁶The snorting of His horses was heard from ^yDan.
The whole land trembled at the sound of the neighing of His ^zstrong ones;
For they have come and devoured the land and all that is in it,
The city and those who dwell in it.”

¹⁷“For behold, I will send serpents among you,
Vipers which cannot be ^acharmed,
And they shall bite you,” says the LORD.

The Prophet Mourns for the People

¹⁸I would comfort myself in sorrow;
My heart is faint in me.

¹⁹Listen! The voice,
The cry of the daughter of my people
From ^ba far country:
“Is not the LORD in Zion?
Is not her King in her?”

“Why have they provoked Me to anger
With their carved images—
With foreign idols?”

²⁰“The harvest is past,
The summer is ended,
And we are not saved!”

^{21c}For the hurt of the daughter of my people I am hurt.
I am ^dmourning;
Astonishment has taken hold of me.

²²*Is there* no ^ebalm in Gilead,
Is there no physician there?
Why then is there no recovery
For the health of the daughter of my people?

Jeremiah 9

¹Oh, ^athat my head were waters,
And my eyes a fountain of tears,
That I might weep day and night
For the slain of the daughter of my people!

²Oh, that I had in the wilderness
A lodging place for travelers;
That I might leave my people,
And go from them!
For ^bthey are all adulterers,
An assembly of treacherous men.

³“And like their bow ^cthey have bent their tongues for lies.
They are not valiant for the truth on the earth.
For they proceed from ^devil to evil,
And they ^edo not know Me,” says the LORD.

⁴“Everyone ^ftake heed to his ¹neighbor,
And do not trust any brother;
For every brother will utterly supplant,
And every neighbor will ^gwalk with slanderers.

⁵Everyone will ^hdeceive his neighbor,
And will not speak the truth;
They have taught their tongue to speak lies;
They weary themselves to commit iniquity.

⁶Your dwelling place is in the midst of deceit;
Through deceit they refuse to know Me,” says the LORD.

⁷Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Behold, ⁱI will refine them and ²try them;
^jFor how shall I deal with the daughter of My people?
⁸Their tongue is an arrow shot out;
It speaks ^kdeceit;
One speaks ^lpeaceably to his neighbor with his mouth,
But ³in his heart he ⁴lies in wait.

^{9m}Shall I not punish them for these things?" says the LORD.
"Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?"

¹⁰I will take up a weeping and wailing for the mountains,
And ⁿfor the ⁵dwelling places of the wilderness a lamentation,
Because they are burned up,
So that no one can pass through;
Nor can men hear the voice of the cattle.
^oBoth the birds of the heavens and the beasts have fled;
They are gone.

¹¹"I will make Jerusalem ^pa heap of ruins, ^qa den of jackals.
I will make the cities of Judah desolate, without an inhabitant."

^{12r}Who is the wise man who may understand this? And who is he to whom the mouth of the LORD has spoken, that he may declare it? Why does the land perish and burn up like a wilderness, so that no one can pass through?

¹³And the LORD said, "Because they have forsaken My law which I set before them, and have ^snot obeyed My voice, nor walked according to it, ¹⁴"but they have ^twalked according to the ⁶dictates of their own hearts and after the Baals, ^uwhich their fathers taught them," ¹⁵therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: "Behold, I will ^vfeed them, this people, ^wwith wormwood, and give them ⁷water of gall to drink.

¹⁶"I will ^xscatter them also among the Gentiles, whom neither they nor their fathers have known. ^yAnd I will send a sword after them until I have consumed them."

The People Mourn in Judgment

¹⁷Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Consider and call for ^zthe mourning women,
That they may come;
And send for skillful wailing women,
That they may come.

¹⁸Let them make haste
And take up a wailing for us,
That ^aour eyes may run with tears,
And our eyelids gush with water.

¹⁹For a voice of wailing is heard from Zion:
‘How we are plundered!
We are greatly ashamed,
Because we have forsaken the land,
Because we have been cast out of ^bour dwellings.’ ”

²⁰Yet hear the word of the LORD, O women,
And let your ear receive the word of His mouth;
Teach your daughters wailing,
And everyone her neighbor a lamentation.

²¹For death has come through our windows,
Has entered our palaces,
To kill off ^cthe children—⁸*no longer to be* outside!
And the young men—⁹*no longer* on the streets!

²²Speak, “Thus says the LORD:

‘Even the carcasses of men shall fall ^das refuse on the open field,
Like cuttings after the harvester,
And no one shall gather them.’ ”

²³Thus says the LORD:

^e“Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom,
Let not the mighty man glory in his ^fmight,
Nor let the rich man glory in his riches;

²⁴But ^glet him who glories glory in this,
That he understands and knows Me,
That I am the LORD, exercising lovingkindness, ¹⁰judgment, and righteousness in the earth.
^hFor in these I delight,” says the LORD.

²⁵“Behold, the days are coming,” says the LORD, “that ⁱI will punish all who are circumcised with the uncircumcised—

²⁶“Egypt, Judah, Edom, the people of Ammon, Moab, and all who are in the ^jfarthest corners, who dwell in the wilderness. For all these nations are uncircumcised, and all the house of Israel are ^kuncircumcised in the heart.”

Jeremiah 10

Idols and the True God

¹Hear the word which the LORD speaks to you, O house of Israel.

²Thus says the LORD:

^a“Do not learn the way of the Gentiles;
Do not be dismayed at the signs of heaven,
For the Gentiles are dismayed at them.
³For the customs of the peoples are ¹futile;
For ^bone cuts a tree from the forest,
The work of the hands of the workman, with the ax.
⁴They decorate it with silver and gold;
They ^cfasten it with nails and hammers
So that it will not topple.
⁵They are upright, like a palm tree,
And ^dthey cannot speak;
They must be ^ecarried,
Because they cannot go by themselves.
Do not be afraid of them,
For ^fthey cannot do evil,
Nor can they do any good.”

⁶Inasmuch as there is none ^glike You, O LORD
(You are great, and Your name is great in might), ^{7h}Who would not fear You, O King of the nations?
For this is Your rightful due.
For ⁱamong all the wise men of the nations,
And in all their kingdoms,
There is none like You.
⁸But they are altogether ^jdull-hearted and foolish;
A wooden idol is a ²worthless doctrine.
⁹Silver is beaten into plates;
It is brought from Tarshish,
And ^kgold from Uphaz,

The work of the craftsman
And of the hands of the metalsmith;
Blue and purple are their clothing;
They are all ^lthe work of skillful men.
¹⁰But the LORD is the true God;
He is ^mthe living God and the ⁿeverlasting King.
At His wrath the earth will tremble,
And the nations will not be able to endure His indignation.

¹¹Thus you shall say to them: ^o“The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth ^pshall perish from the earth and from under these heavens.”

¹²He ^qhas made the earth by His power,
He has ^restablished the world by His wisdom,
And ^shas stretched out the heavens at His discretion.
¹³When He utters His voice,
There is a ³multitude of waters in the heavens:
^u“And He causes the vapors to ascend from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain,
He brings the wind out of His treasures.”

^{14v}Everyone is ^wdull-hearted, without knowledge;
^xEvery metalsmith is put to shame by an image;
^yFor his molded image is falsehood,
And there is no breath in them.
¹⁵They are futile, a work of errors;
In the time of their punishment they shall perish.
^{16z}The Portion of Jacob is not like them,
For He is the Maker of all things,
And ^aIsrael is the tribe of His inheritance;
^bThe LORD of hosts is His name.

The Coming Captivity of Judah

^{17c}Gather up your wares from the land,
O ⁴inhabitant of the fortress!

¹⁸For thus says the LORD:

“Behold, I will ^dthrow out at this time
The inhabitants of the land,
And will distress them,
^eThat they may find it so.”

^{19f}Woe is me for my hurt!
My wound is severe.
But I say, ^g“Truly this is an infirmity,
And ^hI must bear it.”

²⁰ⁱMy tent is plundered,
And all my cords are broken;
My children have gone from me,
And they are ^jno more.
There is no one to pitch my tent anymore,
Or set up my curtains.

²¹For the shepherds have become dull-hearted,
And have not sought the LORD;
Therefore they shall not prosper,
And all their flocks shall be ^kscattered.

²²Behold, the noise of the report has come,
And a great commotion out of the ^lnorth country,
To make the cities of Judah desolate, a ^mden of jackals.

²³O LORD, I know the ⁿway of man is not in himself;
It is not in man who walks to direct his own steps.

²⁴O LORD, ^ocorrect me, but with justice;
Not in Your anger, lest You bring me to nothing.

^{25p}Pour out Your fury on the Gentiles, ^qwho do not know
You,
And on the families who do not call on Your name;

For they have eaten up Jacob,
Devoured him and consumed him,
And made his dwelling place desolate.

Jeremiah 11

The Broken Covenant

¹The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

²“Hear the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

³“and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD God of Israel: ^a“Cursed is the man who does not obey the words of this covenant

⁴“which I commanded your fathers in the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, ^bfrom the iron furnace, saying, ^c“Obey My voice, and do according to all that I command you; so shall you be My people, and I will be your God,’

⁵“that I may establish the ^doath which I have sworn to your fathers, to give them ^e“a land flowing with milk and honey,’ as it is this day.” ’ ” And I answered and said, ¹“So be it, LORD.”

⁶Then the LORD said to me, “Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying: ‘Hear the words of this covenant ^fand do them.

⁷‘For I earnestly exhorted your fathers in the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, until this day, ^grising early and exhorting, saying, “Obey My voice.”

^{8h}‘Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but ⁱeveryone ²followed the dictates of his evil heart; therefore I will bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but which they have not done.’ ”

⁹And the LORD said to me, ^j“A conspiracy has been found among the men of Judah and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

¹⁰“They have turned back to ^kthe iniquities of their forefathers who refused to hear My words, and they have gone after other gods to serve them; the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken My covenant which I made with their fathers.”

¹¹Therefore thus says the LORD: “Behold, I will surely bring calamity on them which they will not be able to ³escape; and ^lthough they cry out to Me, I will not listen to them.

¹²“Then the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go and ^mcry out to the gods to whom they offer incense, but they will not save them at all in the time of their trouble.

¹³“For according to the number of your ⁿcities were your gods, O Judah; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem you have set up altars to that shameful thing, altars to burn incense to Baal.

¹⁴“So ^odo not pray for this people, or lift up a cry or prayer for them; for I will not hear them in the time that they cry out to Me because of their trouble.

¹⁵“What^p has My beloved to do in My house,
Having ^qdone lewd deeds with many?
And ^rthe holy flesh has passed from you.
When you do evil, then you ^srejoice.

¹⁶The LORD called your name,
^tGreen Olive Tree, Lovely and of Good Fruit.
With the noise of a great tumult
He has kindled fire on it,
And its branches are broken.

¹⁷“For the LORD of hosts, ^uwho planted you, has pronounced doom against you for the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves to provoke Me to anger in offering incense to Baal.”

Jeremiah's Life Threatened

¹⁸Now the LORD gave me knowledge of it, and I know it; for You showed me their doings.

¹⁹But I was like a docile lamb brought to the slaughter; and I did not know that they had devised schemes against me, saying, “Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, ^vand let us cut him off from ^wthe land of the living, that his name may be remembered no more.”

²⁰But, O LORD of hosts,
You who judge righteously,
^xTesting the ⁴mind and the heart,
Let me see Your ^yvengeance on them,
For to You I have revealed my cause.

²¹“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the men of ^zAnathoth who seek your life, saying, ^a‘Do not prophesy in the name of the LORD, lest you die by our hand’—

²²“therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: ‘Behold, I will punish them. The young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall ^bdie by famine;

²³‘and there shall be no remnant of them, for I will bring catastrophe on the men of Anathoth, even ^cthe year of their punishment.’ ”

Jeremiah 12

Jeremiah's Question

¹Righteous ^aare You, O LORD, when I plead with You;
Yet let me talk with You about Your judgments.

^bWhy does the way of the wicked prosper?
Why are those happy who deal so treacherously?

²You have planted them, yes, they have taken root;
They grow, yes, they bear fruit.

^cYou are near in their mouth
But far from their ¹mind.

³But You, O LORD, ^dknow me;
You have seen me,
And You have ^etested my heart toward You.
Pull them out like sheep for the slaughter,
And prepare them for ^fthe day of slaughter.

⁴How long will ^gthe land mourn,
And the herbs of every field wither?

^hThe beasts and birds are consumed,
ⁱFor the wickedness of those who dwell there,
Because they said, "He will not see our final end."

The LORD Answers Jeremiah

⁵"If you have run with the footmen, and they have wearied
you,

Then how can you contend with horses?
And if in the land of peace,

In which you trusted, they wearied you,
Then how will you do in ^jthe ²floodplain of the Jordan?

⁶For even ^kyour brothers, the house of your father,
Even they have dealt treacherously with you;
Yes, they have called ³a multitude after you.

¹Do not believe them,
Even though they speak ⁴smooth words to you.

⁷“I have forsaken My house, I have left My heritage;
I have given the dearly beloved of My soul into the hand of her enemies. Word Studies: forsaken ⁸My heritage is to Me like a lion in the forest;

It cries out against Me;
Therefore I have ^mhated it.

⁹My ⁵heritage is to Me like a speckled vulture;
The vultures all around are against her.
Come, assemble all the beasts of the field,
ⁿBring them to devour!

¹⁰“Many ^orulers⁶ have destroyed ^pMy vineyard,
They have ^qtrodden My portion underfoot;
They have made My ⁷pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.

¹¹They have made it ^rdesolate;
Desolate, it mourns to Me;
The whole land is made desolate,
Because ^sno one takes it to heart.

¹²The plunderers have come
On all the desolate heights in the wilderness,
For the sword of the LORD shall devour
From one end of the land to the other end of the land;
No flesh shall have peace.

¹³They have sown wheat but reaped thorns;
They have ⁸put themselves to pain but do not profit.
But be ashamed of your harvest
Because of the fierce anger of the LORD.”

¹⁴Thus says the LORD: “Against all My evil neighbors who ^utouch the inheritance which I have caused My people Israel to inherit—behold, I will ^vpluck them out of their land and pluck out the house of Judah from among them.

¹⁵^w“Then it shall be, after I have plucked them out, that I will return and have compassion on them ^xand bring them back, everyone to his heritage and everyone to his land.

¹⁶“And it shall be, if they will learn carefully the ways of My people, ^yto swear by My name, ‘As the LORD lives,’ as they taught My people to swear by Baal, then they shall be ^zestablished in the midst of My people.

¹⁷“But if they do not ^aobey, I will utterly pluck up and destroy that nation,”
says the LORD.

Jeremiah 13

Symbol of the Linen Sash

¹Thus the LORD said to me: “Go and get yourself a linen sash, and put it ¹around your waist, but do not put it in water.”

²So I got a ²sash according to the word of the LORD, and put it around my waist.

³And the word of the LORD came to me the second time, saying,

⁴“Take the ³sash that you acquired, which is ⁴around your waist, and arise, go to the ⁵Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole in the rock.”

⁵So I went and hid it by the Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me.

⁶Now it came to pass after many days that the LORD said to me, “Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the sash which I commanded you to hide there.”

⁷Then I went to the Euphrates and dug, and I took the ⁶sash from the place where I had hidden it; and there was the sash, ruined. It was profitable for nothing.

⁸Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

⁹“Thus says the LORD: ‘In this manner ^aI will ruin the pride of Judah and the great ^bpride of Jerusalem.

¹¹‘For as the sash clings to the waist of a man, so I have caused the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah to cling to Me,’ says the LORD, ‘that ^ethey may become My people, ^ffor renown, for praise, and for ^gglory; but they would ^hnot hear.’

Symbol of the Wine Bottles

¹²“Therefore you shall speak to them this word: ‘Thus says the LORD God of Israel: “Every bottle shall be filled with wine.” ’ And they will say to you, ‘Do we not certainly know that every bottle will be filled with wine?’

¹³“Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land—even the kings who sit on David’s throne, the priests, the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—with drunkenness!

¹⁴“And ^jI will dash them ⁸one against another, even the fathers and the sons together,” says the LORD. “I will not pity nor spare nor have mercy, but will destroy them.” ’ ”

Pride Precedes Captivity

¹⁵Hear and give ear:

Do not be proud,
For the LORD has spoken.

^{16k}Give glory to the LORD your God
Before He causes ^ldarkness,

And before your feet stumble
On the dark mountains,
And while you are ^mlooking for light,
He turns it into ⁿthe shadow of death
And makes it dense darkness.
¹⁷But if you will not hear it,
My soul will ^oweep in secret for your pride;

My eyes will weep bitterly
And run down with tears,
Because the LORD's flock has been taken captive.

¹⁸Say to ^pthe king and to the queen mother,
“Humble yourselves;
Sit down,
For your rule shall collapse, the crown of your glory.”

¹⁹The cities of the South shall be shut up,
And no one shall open them;
Judah shall be carried away captive, all of it;
It shall be wholly carried away captive.

²⁰Lift up your eyes and see
Those who come from the ⁿnorth.
Where is the flock that was given to you,
Your beautiful sheep?

²¹What will you say when He punishes you?

For you have taught them
To be chieftains, to be head over you.
Will not ^rpangs seize you,
Like a woman in ⁹labor?
²²And if you say in your heart,
^s“Why have these things come upon me?”
For the greatness of your iniquity
^tYour skirts have been uncovered,
Your heels ¹⁰made bare.
²³Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard its spots?
Then may you also do good who are accustomed to do evil.

²⁴“Therefore I will ^uscatter them ^vlike stubble
That passes away by the wind of the wilderness.
^{25w}This is your lot,
The portion of your measures from Me,” says the LORD, “Because you have forgotten Me
And trusted in ^xfalsehood.
²⁶Therefore ^yI will uncover your skirts over your face,
That your shame may appear.
²⁷I have seen your adulteries
And your lustful ^zneighings,
The lewdness of your harlotry,
Your abominations ^aon the hills in the fields.
Woe to you, O Jerusalem!
Will you still not be made clean?”

Jeremiah 14

Sword, Famine, and Pestilence

¹The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning the droughts.

²“Judah mourns,
And ^aher gates languish;
They ^bmourn for the land,
And ^cthe cry of Jerusalem has gone up.

³Their nobles have sent their lads for water;
They went to the cisterns and found no water.
They returned with their vessels empty;
They were ^dashamed and confounded
^eAnd covered their heads.

⁴Because the ground is parched,
For there was ^fno rain in the land,
The plowmen were ashamed;
They covered their heads.

⁵Yes, the deer also gave birth in the field,
But ¹left because there was no grass.

⁶And ^gthe wild donkeys stood in the desolate heights;
They sniffed at the wind like jackals;
Their eyes failed because there was no grass.”

⁷O LORD, though our iniquities testify against us,
Do it ^hfor Your name’s sake;
For our backslidings are many,
We have sinned against You.

⁸ⁱO the Hope of Israel, his Savior in time of trouble,
Why should You be like a stranger in the land,
And like a traveler who turns aside to tarry for a night?

⁹Why should You be like a man astonished,
Like a mighty one ^j*who* cannot save?
Yet You, O LORD, ^k*are* in our midst,
And we are called by Your name;

Do not leave us!

¹⁰Thus says the LORD to this people:

^l“Thus they have loved to wander;
They have not restrained their feet.
Therefore the LORD does not accept them;
^mHe will remember their iniquity now,
And punish their sins.”

¹¹Then the LORD said to me, ⁿ“Do not pray for this people, for their good.

^{12o}“When they fast, I will not hear their cry; and ^pwhen they offer burnt offering and grain offering, I will not accept them. But ^qI will consume them by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence.”

^{13r}Then I said, “Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, the prophets say to them, ‘You shall not see the sword, nor shall you have famine, but I will give you ²assured ^speace in this place.’ ”

¹⁴And the LORD said to me, ^t“The prophets prophesy lies in My name. ^uI have not sent them, commanded them, nor spoken to them; they prophesy to you a false vision, ³divination, a worthless thing, and the ^vdeceit of their heart.

¹⁵“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the prophets who prophesy in My name, whom I did not send, ^wand who say, ‘Sword and famine shall not be in this land’—‘By sword and famine those prophets shall be consumed!

¹⁶‘And the people to whom they prophesy shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem because of the famine and the sword; ^xthey will have no one to bury them—they nor their wives, their sons nor their daughters—for I will pour their wickedness on them.’

¹⁷“Therefore you shall say this word to them:

^y‘Let my eyes flow with tears night and day,
And let them not cease;
^zFor the virgin daughter of my people
Has been broken with a mighty stroke, with a very severe blow.

¹⁸If I go out to ^athe field,
Then behold, those slain with the sword!

And if I enter the city,
Then behold, those sick from famine!
Yes, both prophet and ^bpriest go about in a land they do not know.' ”

The People Plead for Mercy

^{19c}Have You utterly rejected Judah?
Has Your soul loathed Zion?
Why have You stricken us so that ^d*there is* no healing for us?
^eWe looked for peace, but there was no good;
And for the time of healing, and there was trouble.
²⁰We acknowledge, O LORD, our wickedness
And the iniquity of our ^ffathers,
For ^gwe have sinned against You.
²¹Do not abhor us, for Your name's sake;
Do not disgrace the throne of Your glory.
^hRemember, do not break Your covenant with us.
²²ⁱAre there any among ^jthe idols of the nations that can cause ^krain?
Or can the heavens give showers?
^lAre You not He, O LORD our God?
Therefore we will wait for You,
Since You have made all these.

Jeremiah 15

The LORD Will Not Relent

¹Then the LORD said to me, ^a“Even if ^bMoses and ^cSamuel stood before Me, My ¹mind would not be favorable toward this people. Cast them out of My sight, and let them go forth.

²“And it shall be, if they say to you, ‘Where should we go?’ then you shall tell them, ‘Thus says the LORD:

^d“Such as are for death, to death;
And such as are for the sword, to the sword;
And such as are for the famine, to the famine;
And such as are for the ^ecaptivity, to the captivity.” ’

³“And I will ^fappoint over them four forms of destruction,” says the LORD: “the sword to slay, the dogs to drag, ^gthe birds of the heavens and the beasts of the earth to devour and destroy.

⁴“I will hand them over to ^htrouble, to all kingdoms of the earth, because of ⁱManasseh the son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, for what he did in Jerusalem.

⁵“For who will have pity on you, O Jerusalem?
Or who will bemoan you?
Or who will turn aside to ask how you are doing?

^{6j}You have forsaken Me,” says the LORD,
“You have ^kgone backward.

Therefore I will stretch out My hand against you and destroy
you;

^lI am ²weary of relenting!

⁷And I will winnow them with a winnowing fan in the gates of the land;

I will ^mbereave them of children;

I will destroy My people,

Since they ⁿdo not return from their ways.

⁸Their widows will be increased to Me more than the sand of the seas;

I will bring against them,

Against the mother of the young men,
A plunderer at noonday;
I will cause anguish and terror to fall on them ^osuddenly.

⁹“She^p languishes who has borne seven;
She has breathed her last;
^qHer sun has gone down
While it was yet day;
She has been ashamed and confounded.
And the remnant of them I will deliver to the sword
Before their enemies,” says the LORD.

Jeremiah's Dejection

¹⁰Woe is me, my mother,
That you have borne me,
A man of strife and a man of contention to the whole ³earth!
I have neither lent for interest,
Nor have men lent to me for interest.
Every one of them curses me.

¹¹The LORD said:

“Surely it will be well with your remnant;
Surely I will cause ^sthe enemy to intercede with you
In the time of adversity and in the time of affliction.
¹²Can anyone break iron,
The northern iron and the bronze?
¹³Your wealth and your treasures
I will give as ^tplunder without price,
Because of all your sins,
Throughout your territories.
¹⁴And I will ⁴make you cross over with your enemies
^uInto a land which you do not know;
For a ^vfire is kindled in My anger,
Which shall burn upon you.”

¹⁵O LORD, ^wYou know;
Remember me and ⁵visit me,

And ^xtake vengeance for me on my persecutors.
In Your enduring patience, do not take me away.
Know that ^yfor Your sake I have suffered rebuke.
¹⁶Your words were found, and I ^zate them,
And ^aYour word was to me the joy and rejoicing of my heart;
For I am called by Your name,
O LORD God of hosts.
^{17b}I did not sit in the assembly of the mockers,
Nor did I rejoice;
I sat alone because of Your hand,
For You have filled me with indignation.
¹⁸Why is my ^cpain perpetual
And my wound incurable,
Which refuses to be healed?
Will You surely be to me ^dlike an unreliable stream,
As waters that ⁶fail?

The LORD Reassures Jeremiah

¹⁹Therefore thus says the LORD:

^e“If you return,
Then I will bring you back;
You shall ^fstand before Me;
If you ^gtake out the precious from the vile,
You shall be as My mouth.
Let them return to you,
But you must not return to them.
²⁰And I will make you to this people a fortified bronze ^hwall;
And they will fight against you,
But ⁱthey shall not prevail against you;
For I am with you to save you
And deliver you,” says the LORD.
²¹“I will deliver you from the hand of the wicked,
And I will redeem you from the grip of the terrible.”

Jeremiah 16

Jeremiah's Life-Style and Message

¹The word of the LORD also came to me, saying,

²“You shall not take a wife, nor shall you have sons or daughters in this place.”

³For thus says the LORD concerning the sons and daughters who are born in this place, and concerning their mothers who bore them and their fathers who begot them in this land:

⁴“They shall die ^agruesome deaths; they shall not be ^blamented nor shall they be ^cburied, but they shall be ^dlike refuse on the face of the earth. They shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, and their ^ecorpses shall be meat for the birds of heaven and for the beasts of the earth.”

⁵For thus says the LORD: ^f“Do not enter the house of mourning, nor go to lament or bemoan them; for I have taken away My peace from this people,” says the LORD, “lovingkindness and mercies.

⁶“Both the great and the small shall die in this land. They shall not be buried; ^gneither shall men lament for them, ^hcut themselves, nor ⁱmake themselves bald for them.

⁷“Nor shall men break bread in mourning for them, to comfort them for the dead; nor shall men give them the cup of consolation to ^jdrink for their father or their mother.

⁸“Also you shall not go into the house of feasting to sit with them, to eat and drink.”

⁹For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, ^kI will cause to cease from this place, before your eyes and in your days, the voice of ^lmirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

¹⁰“And it shall be, when you show this people all these words, and they say to you, ^l‘Why has the LORD pronounced all this great disaster against us? Or what is our iniquity? Or what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?’

¹¹“then you shall say to them, ^m‘Because your fathers have forsaken Me,’ says the LORD; ‘they have walked after other gods and have served them and worshiped them, and have forsaken Me and not kept My law.

¹²‘And you have done ⁿworse than your fathers, for behold, ^oeach one ²follows the dictates of his own evil heart, so that no one listens to Me.

^{13p}‘Therefore I will cast you out of this land ^qinto a land that you do not know, neither you nor your fathers; and there you shall serve other gods day and night, where I will not show you favor.’

God Will Restore Israel

(cf. Jer. 23:7, 8)

¹⁴“Therefore behold, the ^rdays are coming,” says the LORD, “that it shall no more be said, ‘The LORD lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt,’ ¹⁵“but, ‘The LORD lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of the ^snorth and from all the lands where He had driven them.’ For ^tI will bring them back into their land which I gave to their fathers.

¹⁶“Behold, I will send for many ^ufishermen,” says the LORD, “and they shall fish them; and afterward I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain and every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.

¹⁷“For My ^veyes are on all their ways; they are not hidden from My face, nor is their iniquity hidden from My eyes.

¹⁸“And first I will repay ^wdouble for their iniquity and their sin, because ^xthey have defiled My land; they have filled My inheritance with the carcasses of their detestable and abominable idols.”

¹⁹O LORD, ^ymy strength and my fortress,

^zMy refuge in the day of affliction,

The Gentiles shall come to You

From the ends of the earth and say,

“Surely our fathers have inherited lies,

Worthlessness and ^aunprofitable things.”

²⁰Will a man make gods for himself,

^bWhich are not gods?

²¹“Therefore behold, I will this once cause them to know,

I will cause them to know

My hand and My might;

And they shall know that ^cMy name is the LORD.

Jeremiah 17

Judah's Sin and Punishment

¹“The sin of Judah is ^awritten with a ^bpen of iron;
With the point of a diamond it is ^cengraved
On the tablet of their heart,
And on the horns of your altars,
²While their children remember
Their altars and their ^dwooden¹ images
By the green trees on the high hills.
³O My mountain in the field,
I will give as plunder your wealth, all your treasures,
And your high places of sin within all your borders.
⁴And you, even yourself,
Shall let go of your heritage which I gave you;
And I will cause you to serve your enemies
In ^ethe land which you do not know;
For ^fyou have kindled a fire in My anger which shall burn forever.”

⁵Thus says the LORD:

^g“Cursed is the man who trusts in man
And makes ^hflesh his ²strength,
Whose heart departs from the LORD.
⁶For he shall be ⁱlike a shrub in the desert,
And ^jshall not see when good comes,
But shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness,
^k*In* a salt land which is not inhabited.

⁷“Blessed¹ is the man who trusts in the LORD,
And whose hope is the LORD.
⁸For he shall be ^mlike a tree planted by the waters,
Which spreads out its roots by the river,
And will not ³fear when heat comes;
But its leaf will be green,

And will not be anxious in the year of drought,
Nor will cease from yielding fruit.

⁹“The ⁿheart is deceitful above all things,
And ⁴desperately wicked;
Who can know it?

¹⁰I, the LORD, ^osearch the heart,
I test the ⁵mind,
^pEven to give every man according to his ways,
According to the fruit of his doings.

¹¹“As a partridge that ⁶broods but does not hatch,
So is he who gets riches, but not by right;
It ^qwill leave him in the midst of his days,
And at his end he will be ^ra fool.”

¹²A glorious high throne from the beginning
Is the place of our sanctuary.

¹³O LORD, ^sthe hope of Israel,
^tAll who forsake You shall be ashamed.

“Those who depart from Me
Shall be ^uwritten in the earth,
Because they have forsaken the LORD,
The ^vfountain of living waters.”

Jeremiah Prays for Deliverance

¹⁴Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed;
Save me, and I shall be saved,
For ^wYou are my praise. Word Studies: heal

¹⁵Indeed they say to me,
^x“Where is the word of the LORD?
Let it come now!”

¹⁶As for me, ^yI have not hurried away from being a shepherd who follows You,
Nor have I desired the woeful day;
You know what came out of my lips;
It was right there before You.

¹⁷Do not be a terror to me;
^zYou are my hope in the day of doom.

^{18a}Let them be ashamed who persecute me,
But ^bdo not let me be put to shame;
Let them be dismayed,
But do not let me be dismayed.
Bring on them the day of doom,
And ^cdestroy⁷ them with double destruction!

Hallow the Sabbath Day

¹⁹Thus the LORD said to me: “Go and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of Judah come in and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem;

²⁰“and say to them, ^d‘Hear the word of the LORD, you kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who enter by these gates.

²¹‘Thus says the LORD: ^e“Take heed to yourselves, and bear no burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem;

²²“nor carry a burden out of your houses on the Sabbath day, nor do any work, but hallow the Sabbath day, as I ^fcommanded your fathers.

^{23g}“But they did not obey nor incline their ear, but ⁸made their neck stiff, that they might not hear nor receive instruction.

²⁴“And it shall be, ^hif you heed Me carefully,” says the LORD, “to bring no burden through the gates of this city on the ⁱSabbath day, but hallow the Sabbath day, to do no work in it, ^{25j}“then shall enter the gates of this city kings and princes sitting on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and their princes, accompanied by the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and this city shall remain forever.

²⁶“And they shall come from the cities of Judah and from ^kthe places around Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin and from ^lthe ⁹lowland, from the mountains and from ^mthe ¹⁰South, bringing burnt offerings and sacrifices, grain offerings and incense, bringing ⁿsacrifices of praise to the house of the LORD.

²⁷“But if you will not heed Me to hallow the Sabbath day, such as not carrying a burden when entering the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day, then ^oI will kindle a fire in its gates, ^pand it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be ^qquenched.” ’ ’

Jeremiah 18

The Potter and the Clay

¹The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying:

²“Arise and go down to the potter’s house, and there I will cause you to hear My words.”

Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Potter’s Wheel

³Then I went down to the potter’s house, and there he was, making something at the ¹wheel.

⁴And the vessel that he ²made of clay was ³marred in the hand of the potter; so he made it again into another vessel, as it seemed good to the potter to make.

⁵Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

⁶“O house of Israel, ^acan I not do with you as this potter?” says the LORD. “Look, ^bas the clay is in the potter’s hand, so are you in My hand, O house of Israel!

⁷“The instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to ^cpluck up, to pull down, and to destroy it, ^{8d}“if that nation against whom I have spoken turns from its evil, ^eI will relent of the disaster that I thought to bring upon it.

⁹“And the instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it, ¹⁰“if it does evil in My sight so that it does not obey My voice, then I will relent concerning the good with which I said I would benefit it.

¹¹“Now therefore, speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, I am fashioning a disaster and devising a plan against you. ^fReturn now every one from his evil way, and make your ways and your doings ^ggood.” ’ ’

God’s Warning Rejected

¹²And they said, ^h“That is hopeless! So we will walk according to our own plans, and we will every one ⁴obey the ⁱdictates⁵ of his evil heart.”

¹³Therefore thus says the LORD:

^j“Ask now among the Gentiles,

Who has heard such things?

The virgin of Israel has done ^ka very horrible thing.

¹⁴Will a man ⁶leave the snow water of Lebanon,

Which comes from the rock of the field?
Will the cold flowing waters be forsaken for strange waters?

¹⁵“Because My people have forgotten ¹Me,
They have burned incense to worthless idols.
And they have caused themselves to stumble in their ways,
From the ^mancient paths,
To walk in pathways and not on a highway,
¹⁶To make their land ⁿdesolate and a perpetual ^ohissing;
Everyone who passes by it will be astonished
And shake his head.
^{17p}I will scatter them ^qas with an east wind before the enemy;
^rI will ⁷show them the back and not the face
In the day of their calamity.”

Jeremiah Persecuted

¹⁸Then they said, ^s“Come and let us devise plans against Jeremiah; ^tfor the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come and let us attack him with the tongue, and let us not give heed to any of his words.”

¹⁹Give heed to me, O LORD,
And listen to the voice of those who contend with me!

^{20u}Shall evil be repaid for good?
For they have ^vdug a pit for my life.
Remember that I ^wstood before You
To speak good ⁸for them,
To turn away Your wrath from them.

²¹Therefore ^xdeliver up their children to the famine,
And pour out their blood
By the force of the sword;
Let their wives become widows
And ^ybereaved of their children.
Let their men be put to death,
Their young men be slain
By the sword in battle.

²²Let a cry be heard from their houses,
When You bring a troop suddenly upon them;
For they have dug a pit to take me,
And hidden snares for my feet.

²³Yet, LORD, You know all their counsel
Which is against me, to slay me.

^zProvide no atonement for their iniquity,
Nor blot out their sin from Your sight;
But let them be overthrown before You.
Deal thus with them
In the time of Your ^aanger.

Jeremiah 19

The Sign of the Broken Flask

¹Thus says the LORD: “Go and get a potter’s earthen flask, and take some of the elders of the people and some of the elders of the priests.

²“And go out to ^athe Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the Potsherd Gate; and proclaim there the words that I will tell you, ^{3b}“and say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, I will bring such a catastrophe on this place, that whoever hears of it, his ears will ^ctingle.

⁴“Because they ^dhave forsaken Me and made this an alien place, because they have burned incense in it to other gods whom neither they, their fathers, nor the kings of Judah have known, and have filled this place with ^ethe blood of the innocents ^{5f}“(they have also built the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt offerings to Baal, ^gwhich I did not command or speak, nor did it come into My mind),

⁶“therefore behold, the days are coming,” says the LORD, “that this place shall no more be called Tophet or ^hthe Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. Article: The Valley of Slaughter

⁷“And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place, ⁱand I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies and by the hands of those who seek their lives; their ^jcorpses I will give as meat for the birds of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth.

⁸“I will make this city ^kdesolate and a hissing; everyone who passes by it will be astonished and hiss because of all its plagues.

⁹“And I will cause them to eat the ^lflesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and everyone shall eat the flesh of his friend in the siege and in the desperation with which their enemies and those who seek their lives shall drive them to despair.” ’

^{10m}“Then you shall break the flask in the sight of the men who go with you,

¹¹“and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: ⁿ“Even so I will break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter’s vessel, which cannot be ¹made whole again; and they shall ^obury them in Tophet till there is no place to bury.

¹²“Thus I will do to this place,” says the LORD, “and to its inhabitants, and make this city like Tophet.

¹³“And the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah shall be defiled ^plike the place of Tophet, because of all the houses on whose ^qroofs they have burned incense to all the host of heaven, and ^rpoured out drink offerings to other gods.” ’ ”

¹⁴Then Jeremiah came from Tophet, where the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood in ^sthe court of the Lord’s house and said to all the people,

¹⁵“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Behold, I will bring on this city and on all her towns all the doom that I have pronounced against it, because ^tthey have stiffened their necks that they might not hear My words.’ ”

Jeremiah 20

The Word of God to Pashhur

¹Now ^aPashhur the son of ^bImmer, the priest who was also chief governor in the house of the LORD, heard that Jeremiah prophesied these things.

²Then Pashhur struck Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the high ^cgate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the LORD.

³And it happened on the next day that Pashhur brought Jeremiah out of the stocks. Then Jeremiah said to him, “The LORD has not called your name Pashhur, but ¹Magor-Missabib.

⁴“For thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will make you a terror to yourself and to all your friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and your eyes shall see it. I will ^dgive all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall carry them captive to Babylon and slay them with the sword.

⁵‘Moreover I ^ewill deliver all the wealth of this city, all its produce, and all its precious things; all the treasures of the kings of Judah I will give into the hand of their enemies, who will plunder them, seize them, and ^fcarry them to Babylon.

⁶‘And you, Pashhur, and all who dwell in your house, shall go into captivity. You shall go to Babylon, and there you shall die, and be buried there, you and all your friends, to whom you have ^gprophesied lies.’ ”

Jeremiah’s Unpopular Ministry

⁷O LORD, You ²induced me, and I was persuaded;

^hYou are stronger than I, and have prevailed.

ⁱI am ³in derision daily;
Everyone mocks me.

⁸For when I spoke, I cried out;

^jI shouted, “Violence and plunder!”

Because the word of the LORD was made to me
A reproach and a derision daily. Word Studies: word

⁹Then I said, “I will not make mention of Him, Nor speak anymore in His name.”

But His word was in my heart like a ^kburning fire

Shut up in my bones;
I was weary of holding it back,
And ¹I could not.

^{10m}For I heard many ⁴mocking:
“Fear on every side!”
“Report,” they say, “and we will report it!”
ⁿAll my acquaintances watched for my stumbling, saying, “Perhaps he can be induced;
Then we will prevail against him,
And we will take our revenge on him.”

¹¹But the LORD is ^owith me as a mighty, awesome One.
Therefore my persecutors will stumble, and will not ^pprevail.
They will be greatly ashamed, for they will not prosper.
Their ^qeverlasting confusion will never be forgotten.

¹²But, O LORD of hosts,
You who ^rtest the righteous,
And see the ⁵mind and heart,
^sLet me see Your vengeance on them;
For I have pleaded my cause before You.

¹³Sing to the LORD! Praise the LORD!
For ^tHe has delivered the life of the poor
From the hand of evildoers.

^{14u}Cursed be the day in which I was born!
Let the day not be blessed in which my mother bore me!

¹⁵Let the man be cursed
Who brought news to my father, saying,
“A male child has been born to you!”
Making him very glad.

¹⁶And let that man be like the cities
Which the LORD ^voverthrew, and did not relent;
Let him ^whear the cry in the morning
And the shouting at noon,

^{17x}Because he did not kill me from the womb,
That my mother might have been my grave,
And her womb always enlarged with me.

¹⁸^yWhy did I come forth from the womb to ^zsee ⁶labor and sorrow,
That my days should be consumed with shame?

Jeremiah 21

Jerusalem's Doom Is Sealed

¹The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD when ^aKing Zedekiah sent to him ^bPashhur the son of Melchiah, and ^cZephaniah the son of Maaseiah, the priest, saying,

^{2d}“Please inquire of the LORD for us, for ¹Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon makes war against us. Perhaps the LORD will deal with us according to all His wonderful works, that the king may go away from us.”

³Then Jeremiah said to them, “Thus you shall say to Zedekiah,

⁴“Thus says the LORD God of Israel: “Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, with which you fight against the king of Babylon and the ²Chaldeans who besiege you outside the walls; and ^eI will assemble them in the midst of this city. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Chaldeans

⁵“I ^fMyself will fight against you with an ^goutstretched hand and with a strong arm, even in anger and fury and great wrath.

⁶“I will strike the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast; they shall die of a great pestilence.

⁷“And afterward,” says the LORD, ^h“I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, his servants and the people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence and the sword and the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those who seek their life; and he shall strike them with the edge of the sword. ⁱHe shall not spare them, or have pity or mercy.” ’

⁸“Now you shall say to this people, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, ^jI set before you the way of life and the way of death.

⁹“He who ^kremains in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence; but he who goes out and ³defects to the Chaldeans who besiege you, he shall ^llive, and his life shall be as a prize to him.

¹⁰“For I have ^mset My face against this city for adversity and not for good,” says the LORD. ⁿ“It shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall ^oburn it with fire.” ’

Message to the House of David

¹¹“And concerning the house of the king of Judah, say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD,

¹²‘O house of David! Thus says the LORD:

^p“Execute⁴ judgment ^qin the morning;
And deliver him who is plundered
Out of the hand of the oppressor,
Lest My fury go forth like fire
And burn so that no one can quench it,
Because of the evil of your doings.

¹³“Behold, ^rI am against you, O ⁵inhabitant of the valley,
And rock of the plain,” says the LORD,
“Who say, ^s‘Who shall come down against us?
Or who shall enter our dwellings?’

¹⁴But I will punish you according to the ^tfruit of your ⁶doings,” says the LORD;
“I will kindle a fire in its forest,
And ^uit shall devour all things around it.” ’ ’ ”

Jeremiah 22

¹Thus says the LORD: “Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and there speak this word, ²“and say, ^a‘Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, you who sit on the throne of David, you and your servants and your people who enter these gates!

³‘Thus says the LORD: ^b“Execute¹ judgment and righteousness, and deliver the plundered out of the hand of the oppressor. Do no wrong and do no violence to the stranger, the ^cfatherless, or the widow, nor shed innocent blood in this place.

⁴“For if you indeed do this thing, ^dthen shall enter the gates of this house, riding on horses and in chariots, accompanied by servants and people, kings who sit on the throne of David.

⁵“But if you will not ²hear these words, ^eI swear by Myself,” says the LORD, “that this house shall become a desolation.” ’ ”

⁶For thus says the LORD to the house of the king of Judah:

“You are ^fGilead to Me, The head of Lebanon; Yet I surely will make you a wilderness, Cities which are not inhabited.

⁷I will prepare destroyers against you, Everyone with his weapons; They shall cut down ^gyour choice cedars ^hAnd cast them into the fire.

⁸“And many nations will pass by this city; and everyone will say to his neighbor, ⁱ‘Why has the LORD done so to this great city?’

⁹“Then they will answer, ^j‘Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God, and worshiped other gods and served them.’ ”

¹⁰Weep not for ^kthe dead, nor bemoan him; Weep bitterly for him ^lwho goes away, For he shall return no more, Nor see his native country.

Message to the Sons of Josiah ¹¹For thus says the LORD concerning ^mShallum³ the son of Josiah, king of Judah, who reigned instead of Josiah his father, ⁿwho went from this place: “He shall not return here anymore, ¹²“but he shall die in the place where they have led him captive, and shall see this land no more.

¹³“Woe^o to him who builds his house by unrighteousness And his ⁴chambers by injustice, ^pWho uses his neighbor’s service without wages And gives him nothing for his work, ¹⁴Who says, ‘I will build myself a wide house with spacious ⁵chambers, And cut out windows for it, Paneling it with cedar And painting it with vermillion.’

¹⁵“Shall you reign because you enclose yourself in cedar? Did not your father eat and drink, And do justice and righteousness?

Then ⁹*it was* well with him.

¹⁶He ⁶judged the cause of the poor and needy; Then it was well.

Was not this knowing Me?” says the LORD.

¹⁷“Yet^r your eyes and your heart are for nothing but your covetousness, For shedding innocent blood, And practicing oppression and violence.”

¹⁸Therefore thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah:

^s“They shall not lament for him, Saying, ^t‘Alas, my brother!’ or ‘Alas, my sister!’

They shall not lament for him, Saying, ‘Alas, master!’ or ‘Alas, his glory!’

^{19u}He shall be buried with the burial of a donkey, Dragged and cast out beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

²⁰“Go up to Lebanon, and cry out, And lift up your voice in Bashan; Cry from Abarim, For all your lovers are destroyed.

²¹I spoke to you in your prosperity, But you said, ‘I will not hear.’

^vThis has been your manner from your youth, That you did not obey My voice.

²²The wind shall eat up all ^wyour ⁷rulers, And your lovers shall go into captivity; Surely then you will be ashamed and humiliated For all your wickedness.

²³O inhabitant of Lebanon, Making your nest in the cedars, How gracious will you be when pangs come upon you, Like ^xthe pain of a woman in ⁸labor?

Message to Coniah ²⁴“As I live,” says the LORD, ^y“though ⁹Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, ^zwere the ¹⁰signet on My right hand, yet I would pluck you off; ^{25a}“and I will give you into the hand of those who seek your life, and into the hand of those whose face you fear—the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and the hand of the ¹¹Chaldeans.

^{26b}“So I will cast you out, and your mother who bore you, into another country where you were not born; and there you shall die.

²⁷“But to the land to which they desire to return, there they shall not return.

²⁸“Is this man ¹²Coniah a despised, broken idol— ^cA vessel in which is no pleasure?

Why are they cast out, he and his descendants, And cast into a land which they do not know?

^{29d}O earth, earth, earth, Hear the word of the LORD!

³⁰Thus says the LORD: ‘Write this man down as ^echildless, A man who shall not prosper in his days; For ^fnone of his descendants shall prosper, Sitting on the throne of David, And ruling anymore in Judah.’ ”

Jeremiah 23

The Branch of Righteousness ¹“Woe ^ato the shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of My pasture!” says the LORD.

²Therefore thus says the LORD God of Israel against the shepherds who feed My people: “You have scattered My flock, driven them away, and not attended to them. ^bBehold, I will attend to you for the evil of your doings,” says the LORD.

³“But ^cI will gather the remnant of My flock out of all countries where I have driven them, and bring them back to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and increase.

⁴“I will set up ^dshepherds over them who will feed them; and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, nor shall they be lacking,” says the LORD.

⁵“Behold, ^ethe days are coming,” says the LORD, “That I will raise to David a Branch of righteousness; A King shall reign and ¹prosper, ^fAnd execute ²judgment and righteousness in the ³earth.

^{6g}In His days Judah will be saved, And Israel ^hwill dwell safely; Now ⁱthis is His name by which He will be called:

⁴THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

⁷“Therefore, behold, ^jthe days are coming,” says the LORD, “that they shall no longer say, ‘As the LORD lives who brought up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt,’

⁸“but, ‘As the LORD lives who brought up and led the descendants of the house of Israel from the north country ^kand from all the countries where I had driven them.’ And they shall dwell in their own ^lland.”

False Prophets and Empty Oracles

⁹My heart within me is broken Because of the prophets; ^mAll my bones shake.

I am like a drunken man, And like a man whom wine has overcome,
Because of the LORD, And because of His holy words.

¹⁰For ⁿthe land is full of adulterers; For ^obecause of a curse the land mourns.

^pThe pleasant places of the wilderness are dried up.
Their course of life is evil, And their might is not right.

¹¹“For ^qboth prophet and priest are profane; Yes, ^rin My house I have found their wickedness,” says the LORD.

¹²“Therefore^s their way shall be to them Like slippery ways;
In the darkness they shall be driven on And fall in them; For I ^twill bring disaster on them, The year of their punishment,” says the LORD.

¹³“And I have seen ⁵folly in the prophets of Samaria: ^uThey prophesied by Baal And ^vcaused My people Israel to err.

¹⁴Also I have seen a horrible thing in the prophets of Jerusalem: ^wThey commit adultery and walk in lies; They also ^xstrengthen the hands of evildoers, So that no one turns back from his wickedness.

All of them are like ^ySodom to Me, And her inhabitants like Gomorrah.

¹⁵“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets:

‘Behold, I will feed them with ^zwormwood, And make them drink the water of gall; For from the prophets of Jerusalem ⁶Profaneness has gone out into all the land.’ ”

¹⁶Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Do not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you.
They make you worthless; ^aThey speak a vision of their own heart, Not from the mouth of the LORD.

¹⁷They continually say to those who despise Me, ‘The LORD has said, ^b“You shall have peace” ’; And to everyone who ^cwalks according to the ⁷dictates of his own heart, they say, ^d“No evil shall come upon you.’ ”

¹⁸For ^ewho has stood in the counsel of the LORD, And has perceived and heard His word?

Who has marked His word and heard it?

¹⁹Behold, a ^fwhirlwind of the LORD has gone forth in fury— A violent whirlwind!

It will fall violently on the head of the wicked.

²⁰The ^ganger of the LORD will not turn back Until He has executed and performed the thoughts of His heart.

^hIn the latter days you will understand it perfectly.

²¹“I have not sent these prophets, yet they ran.

I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

²²But if they had stood in My counsel, And had caused My people to hear My words, Then they would have ^jturned them from their evil way And from the evil of their doings.

²³“Am I a God near at hand,” says the LORD, “And not a God afar off?

²⁴Can anyone ^khide himself in secret places, So I shall not see him?” says the LORD; ^l“Do I not fill heaven and earth?” says the LORD.

²⁵“I have heard what the prophets have said who prophesy lies in My name, saying, ‘I have dreamed, I have dreamed!’

²⁶“How long will this be in the heart of the prophets who prophesy lies? Indeed they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart, ²⁷“who try to make My people forget My name by their dreams which everyone tells his neighbor, ^mas their fathers forgot My name for Baal.

²⁸“The prophet who has a dream, let him tell a dream; And he who has My word, let him speak My word faithfully.

What is the chaff to the wheat?” says the LORD.

²⁹“Is not My word like a ⁿfire?” says the LORD, “And like a hammer that breaks the rock in pieces?

³⁰“Therefore behold, ^oI am against the prophets,” says the LORD, “who steal My words every one from his neighbor.

³¹“Behold, I am ^pagainst the prophets,” says the LORD, “who use their tongues and say, ‘He says.’

³²“Behold, I am against those who prophesy false dreams,” says the LORD, “and tell them, and cause My people to err by their ^qlies and by ^rtheir recklessness. Yet I did not send them or command them; therefore they shall not ^sprofit this people at all,” says the LORD.

³³“So when these people or the prophet or the priest ask you, saying, ‘What is ^tthe ⁸oracle of the LORD?’ you shall then say to them, ⁹‘What oracle?’ I will even forsake you,” says the LORD.

³⁴“And as for the prophet and the priest and the people who say, ‘The ¹⁰oracle of the LORD!’ I will even punish that man and his house.

³⁵“Thus every one of you shall say to his neighbor, and every one to his brother, ‘What has the LORD answered?’ and, ‘What has the LORD spoken?’

³⁶“And the ¹¹oracle of the LORD you shall mention no more. For every man’s word will be his oracle, for you have ^uperverted the words of the living God, the LORD of hosts, our God.

³⁷“Thus you shall say to the prophet, ‘What has the LORD answered you?’ and, ‘What has the LORD spoken?’

³⁸“But since you say, ‘The ¹²oracle of the LORD!’ therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Because you say this word, “The oracle of the LORD!” and I have sent to you, saying, “Do not say, ‘The oracle of the LORD!’ ”

³⁹“therefore behold, I, even I, ^vwill utterly forget you and forsake you, and the city that I gave you and your fathers, and will cast you out of My presence.

⁴⁰“And I will bring ^wan everlasting reproach upon you, and a perpetual ^xshame, which shall not be forgotten.’ ”

Jeremiah 24

The Sign of Two Baskets of Figs ¹The ^aLORD showed me, and there were two baskets of figs set before the temple of the LORD, after Nebuchadnezzar ^bking of Babylon had carried away captive ^cJeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and the princes of Judah with the craftsmen and smiths, from Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon.

Charts and Diagrams: The Object Lessons and Parables of a Prophet

²One basket had very good figs, like the figs that are first ripe; and the other basket had very bad figs which could not be eaten, they were so ^dbad.

³Then the LORD said to me, “What do you see, Jeremiah?” And I said, “Figs, the good figs, very good; and the bad, very bad, which cannot be eaten, they are so bad.”

⁴Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying, ⁵“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘Like these good figs, so will I ¹acknowledge those who are carried away captive from Judah, whom I have sent out of this place for their own good, into the land of the Chaldeans.

⁶‘For I will set My eyes on them for good, and ^eI will bring them back to this land; ^fI will build them and not pull them down, and I will plant them and not pluck them up.

⁷‘Then I will give them ^ga heart to know Me, that I am the LORD; and they shall be ^hMy people, and I will be their God, for they shall return to Me ⁱwith their whole heart.

⁸‘And as the bad ^jfigs which cannot be eaten, they are so bad’—surely thus says the LORD—‘so will I give up Zedekiah the king of Judah, his princes, the ^kresidue of Jerusalem who remain in this land, and ^lthose who dwell in the land of Egypt.

⁹‘I will deliver them to ^mtrouble into all the kingdoms of the earth, for their harm, ⁿto be a reproach and a byword, a taunt and a curse, in all places where I shall drive them.

¹⁰‘And I will send the sword, the famine, and the pestilence among them, till they are ²consumed from the land that I gave to them and their fathers.’ ”

Jeremiah 25

Seventy Years of Desolation ¹The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, ^ain the fourth year of ^bJehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah (which was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon), ²which Jeremiah the prophet spoke to all the people of Judah and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: ^{3c}“From the thirteenth year of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, even to this day, this is the twenty-third year in which the word of the LORD has come to me; and I have spoken to you, rising early and speaking, ^dbut you have not listened.

⁴“And the LORD has sent to you all His servants the prophets, ^erising early and sending them, but you have not listened nor inclined your ear to hear.

⁵“They said, ^f‘Repent now everyone of his evil way and his evil doings, and dwell in the land that the LORD has given to you and your fathers forever and ever.

⁶‘Do not go after other gods to serve them and worship them, and do not provoke Me to anger with the works of your hands; and I will not harm you.’

⁷“Yet you have not listened to Me,” says the LORD, “that you might ^gprovoke Me to anger with the works of your hands to your own hurt.

⁸“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: ‘Because you have not heard My words, ⁹‘behold, I will send and take ^hall the families of the north,’ says the LORD, ‘and Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, ⁱMy servant, and will bring them against this land, against its inhabitants, and against these nations all around, and will utterly destroy them, and ^jmake them an astonishment, a hissing, and perpetual desolations.

¹⁰‘Moreover I will ¹take from them the ^kvoice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, ^lthe sound of the millstones and the light of the lamp.

¹¹‘And this whole land shall be a desolation and an astonishment, and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy ^myears.

¹²‘Then it will come to pass, ⁿwhen ²seventy years are completed, that I will punish the king of Babylon and that nation, the land of the Chaldeans, for their iniquity,’ says the LORD; ^o‘and I will make it a perpetual desolation.

¹³‘So I will bring on that land all My words which I have pronounced against it, all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah has prophesied concerning all the nations.

^{14p}‘(For many nations ^qand great kings shall ^rbe served by them also; ^sand I will repay them according to their deeds and according to the works of their own hands.)’ ”

Judgment on the Nations ¹⁵For thus says the LORD God of Israel to me:
“Take this ^twine cup of ³fury from My hand, and cause all the nations, to whom I send you, to drink it.

¹⁶“And ^uthey will drink and stagger and go mad because of the sword that I will send among them.”

¹⁷Then I took the cup from the LORD’s hand, and made all the nations drink, to whom the LORD had sent me: ¹⁸Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, its kings and its princes, to make them ^va desolation, an astonishment, a hissing, and ^wa curse, as it is this day; ¹⁹Pharaoh king of Egypt, his servants, his princes, and all his people; ²⁰all the mixed multitude, all the kings of ^xthe land of Uz, all the kings of the land of the ^yPhilistines (namely, Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and ^zthe remnant of Ashdod); ^{21a}Edom, Moab, and the people of Ammon; ²²all the kings of ^bTyre, all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the coastlands which are across the ^csea; ^{23d}Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all who are in the farthest corners; ²⁴all the kings of Arabia and all the kings of the ^emixed multitude who dwell in the desert; ²⁵all the kings of Zimri, all the kings of ^fElam, and all the kings of the ^gMedes; ^{26h}all the kings of the north, far and near, one with another; and all the kingdoms of the world which are on the face of the earth. Also the king of ⁴Sheshach shall drink after them.

²⁷“Therefore you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ⁱ“Drink, ^jbe drunk, and vomit! Fall and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you.” ’

²⁸“And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup from your hand to drink, then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “You shall certainly drink!

²⁹“For behold, ^kI begin to bring calamity on the city ^lwhich is called by My name, and should you be utterly unpunished? You shall not be unpunished, for ^mI will call for a sword on all the inhabitants of the earth,” says the LORD of hosts.’

³⁰“Therefore prophesy against them all these words, and say to them:

‘The LORD will ⁿroar from on high, And utter His voice from ^oHis holy habitation; He will roar mightily against ^pHis fold.

He will give ^qa shout, as those who tread the grapes,
Against all the inhabitants of the earth.

³¹A noise will come to the ends of the earth— For the LORD has ^ra controversy with the nations; ^sHe will plead His case with all flesh.

He will give those who are wicked to the sword,’ says the LORD.”

³²Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Behold, disaster shall go forth From nation to nation, And ^ta great whirlwind shall be raised up From the farthest parts of the earth.

^{33u}“And at that day the slain of the LORD shall be from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth. They shall not be ^vlamented, ^wor gathered, or buried; they shall become refuse on the ground.

³⁴“Wail, ^xshepherds, and cry!

Roll about in the ashes,

You leaders of the flock!

For the days of your slaughter and your dispersions are fulfilled; You shall fall like a precious vessel. Word Studies: shepherd

³⁵And the shepherds will have no ⁵way to flee, Nor the leaders of the flock to escape.

³⁶A voice of the cry of the shepherds, And a wailing of the leaders to the flock will be heard.

For the LORD has plundered their pasture, ³⁷And the peaceful dwellings are cut down Because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

³⁸He has left His lair like the lion; For their land is desolate Because of the fierceness of the Oppressor, And because of His fierce anger.”

Jeremiah 26

Jeremiah Saved from Death (cf. Jer. 7:1–15) ¹In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came from the LORD, saying, ²“Thus says the LORD: ‘Stand in ^athe court of the LORD’s house, and speak to all the cities of Judah, which come to worship in the LORD’s house, ^ball the words that I command you to speak to them. ^cDo not diminish a word.

^{3d}‘Perhaps everyone will listen and turn from his evil way, that I may ^erelent concerning the calamity which I purpose to bring on them because of the evil of their doings.’

⁴“And you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD: ^f“If you will not listen to Me, to walk in My law which I have set before you, ⁵“to heed the words of My servants the prophets ^gwhom I sent to you, both rising up early and sending them (but you have not heeded), ⁶“then I will make this house like ^hShiloh, and will make this city ⁱa curse to all the nations of the earth.” ’ ”

⁷So the priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD.

⁸Now it happened, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak to all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people seized him, saying, “You will surely die!

⁹“Why have you prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, ‘This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be ^jdesolate, without an inhabitant?’” And all the people were gathered against Jeremiah in the house of the LORD.

¹⁰When the princes of Judah heard these things, they came up from the king’s house to the house of the LORD and sat down in the entry of the New Gate of the LORD’s house.

¹¹And the priests and the prophets spoke to the princes and all the people, saying, ¹“This man deserves to ^kdie! For he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears.”

¹²Then Jeremiah spoke to all the princes and all the people, saying: “The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city with all the words that you have heard.

¹³“Now therefore, ^lamend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God; then the LORD will relent concerning the doom that

He has pronounced against you.

¹⁴“As for me, here ^mI am, in your hand; do with me as seems good and ²proper to you.

¹⁵“But know for certain that if you put me to death, you will surely bring innocent blood on yourselves, on this city, and on its inhabitants; for truly the LORD has sent me to you to speak all these words in your hearing.”

¹⁶So the princes and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, “This man does not deserve to die. For he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God.”

¹⁷ⁿThen certain of the elders of the land rose up and spoke to all the assembly of the people, saying: ¹⁸^o“Micah of Moresheth prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and spoke to all the people of Judah, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts:

^p“Zion shall be plowed like a field, Jerusalem shall become ^qheaps of ruins, And the mountain of the ³temple Like the ⁴bare hills of the forest.” ’

¹⁹“Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah ever put him to death? ^rDid he not fear the LORD and ^sseek the LORD’s favor? And the LORD ^trelented concerning the doom which He had pronounced against them. ^uBut we are doing great evil against ourselves.”

²⁰Now there was also a man who prophesied in the name of the LORD, Urijah the son of Shemaiah of Kirjath Jearim, who prophesied against this city and against this land according to all the words of Jeremiah.

²¹And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men and all the princes, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death; but when Urijah heard it, he was afraid and fled, and went to Egypt.

²²Then Jehoiakim the king sent men to Egypt: Elnathan the son of Achbor, and other men who went with him to Egypt.

²³And they brought Urijah from Egypt and brought him to Jehoiakim the king, who killed him with the sword and cast his dead body into the graves of the ⁵common people.

²⁴Nevertheless ^vthe hand of Ahikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah, so that they should not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.

Jeremiah 27

Symbol of the Bonds and Yokes ¹In ¹the beginning of the reign of ²Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, ^aking of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, ²“Thus says the LORD to me: ‘Make for yourselves bonds and yokes, ^band put them on your neck, ³‘and send them to the king of Edom, the king of Moab, the king of the Ammonites, the king of Tyre, and the king of Sidon, by the hand of the messengers who come to Jerusalem to Zedekiah king of Judah.

⁴‘And command them to say to their masters, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel—thus you shall say to your masters: ^{5c}‘I have made the earth, the man and the beast that are on the ground, by My great power and by My outstretched arm, and ^dhave given it to whom it seemed proper to Me.

^{6e}‘And now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, ^fMy servant; and ^gthe beasts of the field I have also given him to serve him.

^{7h}‘So all nations shall serve him and his son and his son’s son, ⁱuntil the time of his land comes; ^jand then many nations and great kings shall make him serve them.

⁸‘And it shall be, that the nation and kingdom which will not serve Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and which will not put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation I will punish,’ says the LORD, ‘with the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, until I have consumed them by his hand.

⁹‘Therefore do not listen to your prophets, your diviners, your ³dreamers, your soothsayers, or your sorcerers, who speak to you, saying, “You shall not serve the king of Babylon.”

¹⁰‘For they prophesy a ^klie to you, to remove you far from your land; and I will drive you out, and you will perish.

¹¹‘But the nations that bring their necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him, I will let them remain in their own land,’ says the LORD, ‘and they shall till it and dwell in it.’ ” ” ”

¹²I also spoke to ^lZedekiah king of Judah according to all these words, saying, “Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live!

^{13m}“Why will you die, you and your people, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, as the LORD has spoken against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?”

¹⁴“Therefore ⁿdo not listen to the words of the prophets who speak to you, saying, ‘You shall not serve the king of Babylon,’ for they prophesy ^oa lie to you; ¹⁵“for I have ^pnot sent them,” says the LORD, “yet they prophesy a lie in My name, that I may drive you out, and that you may perish, you and the prophets who prophesy to you.”

¹⁶Also I spoke to the priests and to all this people, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Do not listen to the words of your prophets who prophesy to you, saying, “Behold, ^qthe vessels of the LORD’s house will now shortly be brought back from Babylon”; for they prophesy a lie to you.

¹⁷‘Do not listen to them; serve the king of Babylon, and live! Why should this city be laid waste?

¹⁸‘But if they are prophets, and if the word of the LORD is with them, let them now make intercession to the LORD of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, do not go to Babylon.’

¹⁹“For thus says the LORD of hosts ^rconcerning the pillars, concerning the Sea, concerning the carts, and concerning the remainder of the vessels that remain in this city, ²⁰“which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon did not take, when he carried away ^scaptive Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon, and all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem—
²¹“yes, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the ^tvessels that remain in the house of the LORD, and in the house of the king of Judah and of Jerusalem: ²²‘They shall be ^ucarried to Babylon, and there they shall be until the day that I ^vvisit them,’ says the LORD. ‘Then ^wI will bring them up and restore them to this place.’ ”

Jeremiah 28

Hananiah's Falsehood and Doom ¹And ^ait happened in the same year, at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the ^bfourth year and in the fifth month, that Hananiah the son of ^cAzur the prophet, who was from Gibeon, spoke to me in the house of the LORD in the presence of the priests and of all the people, saying, ²“Thus speaks the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: ‘I have broken ^dthe yoke of the king of Babylon.

^{3e}‘Within two full years I will bring back to this place all the vessels of the LORD’s house, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ^ftook away from this place and carried to Babylon.

⁵Then the prophet Jeremiah spoke to the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the priests and in the presence of all the people who stood in the house of the LORD, ⁶and the prophet Jeremiah said, ^g“Amen! The LORD do so; the LORD perform your words which you have prophesied, to bring back the vessels of the LORD’s house and all who were carried away captive, from Babylon to this place.

⁷“Nevertheless hear now this word that I speak in your hearing and in the hearing of all the people: ⁸“The prophets who have been before me and before you of old prophesied against many countries and great kingdoms—of war and disaster and pestilence.

⁹“As for ^hthe prophet who prophesies of ⁱpeace, when the word of the prophet comes to pass, the prophet will be known as one whom the LORD has truly sent.”

¹⁰Then Hananiah the prophet took the ^jyoke off the prophet Jeremiah’s neck and broke it.

¹¹And Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Even so I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ^kfrom the neck of all nations within the space of two full years.’ ” And the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

¹²Now the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, saying,

¹³“Go and tell Hananiah, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD: “You have broken the yokes of wood, but you have made in their place yokes of iron.”

¹⁴‘For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ^l“I have put a yoke of iron on the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; and they shall serve him. ^mI have given him the beasts of the field also.” ’ ”

¹⁵Then the prophet Jeremiah said to Hananiah the prophet, “Hear now, Hananiah, the LORD has not sent you, but ⁿyou make this people trust in a ^olie.

¹⁶“Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will cast you from the face of the earth. This year you shall ^pdie, because you have taught ^qrebellion against the LORD.’ ”

¹⁷So Hananiah the prophet died the same year in the seventh month.

Jeremiah 29

Jeremiah's Letter to the Captives ¹*Now these are the words of the letter that Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem to the remainder of the elders who were ^acarried away captive—to the priests, the prophets, and all the people whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon.*

²(This happened after ^bJeconiah¹ the king, the ^cqueen mother, the ²eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, the craftsmen, and the smiths had departed from Jerusalem.) ³*The letter was sent by the hand of Elasah the son of ^dShaphan, and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent to Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying,*

⁴Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, to all who were carried away captive, whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem to Babylon: ⁵Build houses and dwell in them; plant gardens and eat their fruit.

⁶Take wives and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons and give your daughters to husbands, so that they may bear sons and daughters—that you may be increased there, and not diminished.

⁷And seek the peace of the city where I have caused you to be carried away captive, ^eand pray to the LORD for it; for in its peace you will have peace.

⁸For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not let your prophets and your diviners who are in your midst ^fdeceive you, nor listen to your dreams which you cause to be dreamed.

⁹For they prophesy ^gfalsely to you in My name; I have not sent them, says the LORD.

¹⁰For thus says the LORD: After ^hseventy years are completed at Babylon, I will visit you and perform My good word toward you, and cause you to ⁱreturn to this place.

¹¹For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, says the LORD, thoughts of peace and not of evil, to give you a future and a hope.

¹²Then you will ^jcall upon Me and go and pray to Me, and I will ^klisten to you.

¹³And ^lyou will seek Me and find Me, when you search for Me ^mwith all your heart.

¹⁴ⁿI will be found by you, says the LORD, and I will bring you back from your captivity; ^oI will gather you from all the nations and from all the places where I have driven you, says the LORD, and I will bring you to the place from which I cause you to be carried away captive.

¹⁵Because you have said, “The LORD has raised up prophets for us in Babylon”—^{16p}therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king who sits on the throne of David, concerning all the people who dwell in this city, and concerning your brethren who have not gone out with you into captivity—¹⁷thus says the LORD of hosts: Behold, I will send on them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, and will make them like ^qrotten figs that cannot be eaten, they are so bad.

¹⁸And I will pursue them with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence; and I ^rwill deliver them to trouble among all the kingdoms of the earth—to be ^sa curse, an astonishment, a hissing, and a reproach among all the nations where I have driven them, Word Studies: hissing

¹⁹because they have not heeded My words, says the LORD, which ^tI sent to them by My servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them; neither would you heed, says the LORD.

²⁰Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all you of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon.

²¹Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Ahab the son of Kolaiah, and Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah, who prophesy a ^ulie to you in My name: Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall slay them before your eyes.

^{22v}And because of them a curse shall be taken up by all the captivity of Judah who are in Babylon, saying, “The LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, ^wwhom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire”; ²³because ^xthey have done disgraceful things in Israel, have committed adultery with their neighbors’ wives, and have spoken lying words in My name, which I have not commanded them. Indeed I ^yknow, and am a witness, says the LORD.

²⁴You shall also speak to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, saying, ²⁵Thus speaks the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: You have sent letters in your name to all the people who are at Jerusalem, ^zto Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying, ²⁶“The LORD has made you priest instead of Jehoiada the priest, so that there should be ^aofficers in the house of the LORD over every man who is ^bdemented and considers himself a prophet, that you should ^cput him in prison and in the stocks.

²⁷Now therefore, why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth who makes himself a prophet to you?

²⁸For he has sent to us in Babylon, saying, ‘This captivity is long; build houses and dwell in them, and plant gardens and eat their fruit.’ ”

²⁹Now Zephaniah the priest read this letter in the hearing of Jeremiah the prophet.

³⁰Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying: ³¹Send to all those in captivity, saying, Thus says the LORD concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: Because Shemaiah has prophesied to you, ^dand I have not sent him, and he has caused you to trust in a ^elie— ³²therefore thus says the LORD: Behold, I will punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite and his ³family: he shall not have anyone to dwell among this people, nor shall he see the good that I will do for My people, says the LORD, ^fbecause he has taught rebellion against the LORD.

Jeremiah 30

Restoration of Israel and Judah ¹*The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,* ²*“Thus speaks the LORD God of Israel, saying: ‘Write in a book for yourself all the words that I have spoken to you.*

³*‘For behold, the days are coming,’ says the LORD, ‘that ^aI will bring back from captivity My people Israel and Judah,’ says the LORD. ^b‘And I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.’ ”*

⁴*Now these are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and Judah.*

⁵*“For thus says the LORD:*

‘We have heard a voice of trembling, Of ¹fear, and not of peace.

⁶*Ask now, and see, Whether a ²man is ever in ³labor with child?*

So why do I see every man with his hands on his loins ^cLike a woman in labor, And all faces turned pale?

^{7d}Alas! For that day is great, ^eSo that none is like it; And it is the time of Jacob’s trouble, But he shall be saved out of it.

⁸*‘For it shall come to pass in that day,’*

Says the LORD of hosts, ‘That I will break his yoke from your neck, And will burst your bonds; Foreigners shall no more enslave them.

⁹*But they shall serve the LORD their God, And ^fDavid their king, Whom I will ^graise up for them.*

¹⁰*‘Therefore ^hdo not fear, O My servant Jacob,’ says the LORD, ‘Nor be dismayed, O Israel; For behold, I will save you from afar, And your seed ⁱfrom the land of their captivity.*

*Jacob shall return, have rest and be quiet, And no one shall make him afraid.*

¹¹*For I am with ^jyou,’ says the LORD, ‘to save you; ^kThough I make a full end of all nations where I have scattered you, ^lYet I will not make a complete end of you.*

But I will correct you ^min justice, And will not let you go altogether unpunished.'

¹²"For thus says the LORD:

ⁿ"Your affliction is incurable, Your wound is severe.

¹³*There is* no one to plead your cause, That you may be bound up; ^oYou have no healing medicines.

^{14p}All your lovers have forgotten you; They do not seek you; For I have wounded you with the wound ^qof an enemy, With the chastisement ^rof a cruel one, For the multitude of your iniquities, ^s*Because* your sins have increased.

¹⁵Why ^tdo you cry about your affliction?

Your sorrow is incurable.

Because of the multitude of your iniquities, Because your sins have increased, I have done these things to you.

¹⁶"Therefore all those who devour you ^ushall be devoured; And all your adversaries, every one of them, shall go into ^vcaptivity; Those who plunder you shall become ^wplunder, And all who prey upon you I will make a ^xprey.

^{17y}For I will restore health to you And heal you of your wounds,' says the LORD, 'Because they called you an outcast saying:

"This is Zion; No one seeks her." '

¹⁸"Thus says the LORD:

'Behold, I will bring back the captivity of Jacob's tents, And ^zhave mercy on his dwelling places; The city shall be built upon its own ⁴mound, And the palace shall remain according to its own plan.

¹⁹Then ^aout of them shall proceed thanksgiving And the voice of those who make merry; ^bI will multiply them, and they shall not diminish; I will also glorify them, and they shall not be small.

²⁰Their children also shall be ^cas before, And their congregation shall be established before Me; And I will punish all who oppress them.

²¹Their nobles shall be from among them, ^dAnd their governor shall come from their midst; Then I will ^ecause him to draw near, And he shall approach Me; For who is this who pledged his heart to approach Me?' says the LORD.

²²‘You shall be ^fMy people, And I will be your God.’ ”

²³Behold, the ^gwhirlwind of the LORD
Goes forth with fury, A ⁵continuing whirlwind; It will fall violently on the head of the wicked.

²⁴The fierce anger of the LORD will not return until He has done it,
And until He has performed the intents of His heart.

^hIn the latter days you will consider it.

Jeremiah 31

The Remnant of Israel Saved ¹“At ^a*the same time,*” says the LORD, ^b“I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be My people.”

²Thus says the LORD:

“The people who survived the sword Found grace in the wilderness—Israel, when ^cI went to give him rest.”

³The LORD has appeared ¹of old to me, saying:

“Yes, ^dI have loved you with ^ean everlasting love; Therefore with lovingkindness I have ^fdrawn you.

⁴Again ^gI will build you, and you shall be rebuilt, O virgin of Israel!
You shall again be adorned with your ^htambourines, And shall go forth in the dances of those who rejoice.

⁵ⁱYou shall yet plant vines on the mountains of Samaria; The planters shall plant and ²eat them as ordinary food.

⁶For there shall be a day When the watchmen will cry on Mount Ephraim, ^j‘Arise, and let us go up to Zion, To the LORD our God.’ ”

⁷For thus says the LORD:

^k“Sing with gladness for Jacob, And shout among the chief of the nations; Proclaim, give praise, and say, ‘O LORD, save Your people, The remnant of Israel!’

⁸Behold, I will bring them ^lfrom the north country, And ^mgather them from the ends of the earth, Among them the blind and the lame,
The woman with child And the one who labors with child, together; A great throng shall return there.

⁹ⁿThey shall come with weeping, And with supplications I will lead them.

I will cause them to walk ^oby the rivers of waters, In a straight way in which they shall not stumble; For I am a Father to Israel, And Ephraim is My ^pfirstborn.

¹⁰“Hear the word of the LORD, O nations, And declare it in the ³isles afar off, and say, ‘He who scattered Israel ^qwill gather him, And keep him as a shepherd does his flock.’

¹¹For ^rthe LORD has redeemed Jacob, And ransomed him ^sfrom the hand of one stronger than he.

¹²Therefore they shall come and sing in ^tthe height of Zion, Streaming to ^uthe goodness of the LORD— For wheat and new wine and oil, For the young of the flock and the herd; Their souls shall be like a ^vwell-watered garden, ^wAnd they shall sorrow no more at all.

¹³“Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, And the young men and the old, together; For I will turn their mourning to joy, Will comfort them, And make them rejoice rather than sorrow.

¹⁴I will ⁴sate the soul of the priests with abundance, And My people shall be satisfied with My goodness, says the LORD.”

Mercy on Ephraim ¹⁵Thus says the LORD:

^x“A voice was heard in ^yRamah, Lamentation and bitter ^zweeping, Rachel weeping for her children, Refusing to be comforted for her children, Because ^athey are no more.”

¹⁶Thus says the LORD:

“Refrain your voice from ^bweeping, And your eyes from tears; For your work shall be rewarded, says the LORD, And they shall come back from the land of the enemy.

¹⁷There is ^chope in your future, says the LORD, That your children shall come back to their own border.

¹⁸“I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself: ‘You have ^dchastised me, and I was chastised, Like an untrained bull; ^eRestore me, and I will return, For You are the LORD my God.

¹⁹Surely, ^fafter my turning, I repented; And after I was instructed, I struck myself on the thigh; I was ^gashamed, yes, even humiliated, Because I bore the reproach of my youth.’

²⁰*Is Ephraim My dear son?*

Is he a pleasant child?

For though I spoke against him, I earnestly remember him still;

^hTherefore My ⁵heart yearns for him; ⁱI will surely have mercy on him, says the LORD.

²¹“Set up signposts, Make landmarks; ^jSet your heart toward the highway, The way in which you went.

⁶Turn back, O virgin of Israel, Turn back to these your cities.

²²How long will you ^kgad about, O you ^lbacksliding daughter?

For the LORD has created a new thing in the earth— A woman shall encompass a man.”

Future Prosperity of Judah ²³Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “They shall again use this speech in the land of Judah and in its cities, when I bring back their captivity: ^m‘The LORD bless you, O home of justice, and ⁿmountain of holiness!’

²⁴“And there shall dwell in Judah itself, and ^oin all its cities together, farmers and those going out with flocks.

²⁵“For I have ⁷satiated the weary soul, and I have replenished every sorrowful soul.”

²⁶After this I awoke and looked around, and my sleep was ^psweet to me.

²⁷“Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, that ^qI will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man and the seed of beast.

²⁸“And it shall come to pass, that as I have ^rwatched over them ^sto pluck up, to break down, to throw down, to destroy, and to afflict, so I will watch over them ^tto build and to plant, says the LORD. Word Studies: plant

^{29u}“In those days they shall say no more:

‘The fathers have eaten sour grapes, And the children’s teeth are set on edge.’

^{30v}“But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man who eats the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge.

A New Covenant ³¹“Behold, the ^wdays are coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah— Article: The New Covenant

³²“not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that ^xI took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt, My covenant which they broke, ⁸though I was a husband to them, says the LORD.

^{33y}“But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the LORD: ^zI will put My law in their minds, and write it on their ⁹hearts; ^aand I will be their God, and they shall be My people.

³⁴“No more shall every man teach his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, ‘Know the LORD,’ for ^bthey all shall know Me, from the least of them to the greatest of them, says the LORD. For ^cI will forgive their iniquity, and their sin I will remember no more.”

³⁵Thus says the LORD, ^dWho gives the sun for a light by day,
The ordinances of the moon and the stars for a light by night, Who disturbs ^ethe sea, And its waves roar ^f(The LORD of hosts is His name): ³⁶“If ^gthose ordinances depart From before Me, says the LORD, Then the seed of Israel shall also cease From being a nation before Me forever.”

³⁷Thus says the LORD:

^h“If heaven above can be measured, And the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, I will also ⁱcast off all the seed of Israel
For all that they have done, says the LORD.

³⁸“Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, that the city shall be built for the LORD ^jfrom the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate.

^{39k}“The surveyor’s line shall again extend straight forward over the hill
Gareb; then it shall turn toward Goath.

⁴⁰“And the whole valley of the dead bodies and of the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Brook Kidron, ^lto the corner of the Horse Gate toward the east, ^m*shall be* holy to the LORD. It shall not be plucked up or thrown down anymore forever.”

Jeremiah 32

Jeremiah Buys a Field ¹*The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD*
^a*in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year* of Nebuchadnezzar.

²For then the king of Babylon's army besieged Jerusalem, and Jeremiah the prophet was shut up ^bin the court of the prison, which was in the king of Judah's house.

³For Zedekiah king of Judah had shut him up, saying, "Why do you ^cprophesy and say, 'Thus says the LORD: ^d"Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it; ⁴"and Zedekiah king of Judah ^eshall not escape from the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him ¹face to face, and see him ^feye to eye; ⁵"then he shall ^glead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there he shall be ^huntil I visit him," says the LORD; ⁱ"though you fight with the Chaldeans, you shall not succeed" '?"

⁶And Jeremiah said, "The word of the LORD came to me, saying, ⁷'Behold, Hanamel the son of Shallum your uncle will come to you, saying, "Buy my field which is in Anathoth, for the ^jright of redemption is yours to buy it." ' "

⁸"Then Hanamel my uncle's son came to me in the court of the prison according to the word of the LORD, and said to me, 'Please buy my field that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is yours, and the redemption yours; buy it for yourself.' Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD.

⁹"So I bought the field from Hanamel, the son of my uncle who was in Anathoth, and ^kweighed out to him the money—seventeen shekels of silver.

¹⁰"And I signed the ²deed and sealed it, took witnesses, and weighed the money on the scales.

¹¹"So I took the purchase deed, both that which was sealed according to the law and custom, and that which was open; ¹²"and I gave the purchase deed to ¹Baruch the son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, in the presence of Hanamel my uncle's son, and in the presence of the ^mwitnesses who signed the purchase deed, before all the Jews who sat in the court of the prison.

¹³"Then I charged ⁿBaruch before them, saying, ¹⁴"Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Take these deeds, both this purchase deed which is sealed and this deed which is open, and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may last many days.”

¹⁵‘For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Houses and fields and vineyards shall be ^opossessed again in this land.” ’

Jeremiah Prays for Understanding ¹⁶“Now when I had delivered the purchase deed to Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed to the LORD, saying:

¹⁷‘Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, ^pYou have made the heavens and the earth by Your great power and outstretched arm. ^qThere is nothing too ³hard for You.

¹⁸‘You show ^rlovingkindness to thousands, and repay the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them—the Great, ^sthe Mighty God, whose name is ^tthe LORD of hosts.

¹⁹‘You are ^ugreat in counsel and mighty in ⁴work, for your ^veyes are open to all the ways of the sons of men, ^wto give everyone according to his ways and according to the fruit of his doings.

²⁰‘You have set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, to this day, and in Israel and among other men; and You have made Yourself ^xa name, as it is this day.

²³‘And they came in and took possession of it, but ^athey have not obeyed Your voice or walked in Your law. They have done nothing of all that You commanded them to do; therefore You have caused all this calamity to come upon them.

²⁴‘Look, the siege mounds! They have come to the city to take it; and the city has been given into the hand of the Chaldeans who fight against it, because of ^bthe sword and famine and pestilence. What You have spoken has happened; there You see it!

²⁵‘And You have said to me, O Lord GOD, “Buy the field for money, and take witnesses”—yet the city has been given into the hand of the Chaldeans.’ ”

God’s Assurance of the People’s Return ²⁶Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, ²⁷“Behold, I am the LORD, the ^cGod of all flesh. Is there anything too hard for Me?

²⁸“Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it.

³¹‘For this city has been to Me a provocation of My anger and My fury from the day that they built it, even to this day; ^gso I will remove it from before My face ³²‘because of all the evil of the children of Israel and the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke Me to anger—^hthey, their kings, their princes, their priests, ⁱtheir prophets, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

³³‘And they have turned to Me the ^jback, and not the face; though I taught them, ^krising up early and teaching them, yet they have not listened to receive instruction.

³⁴‘But they ^lset their abominations in ⁵the house which is called by My name, to defile it.

³⁵‘And they built the high places of Baal which are in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to ^mcause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire to ⁿMolech, ^owhich I did not command them, nor did it come into My mind that they should do this abomination, to cause Judah to sin.’

³⁶“Now therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city of which you say, ‘It shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence’: ³⁷‘Behold, I will ^pgather them out of all countries where I have driven them in My anger, in My fury, and in great wrath; I will bring them back to this place, and I will cause them ^qto dwell safely.

³⁸‘They shall be ^rMy people, and I will be their God; ³⁹‘then I will ^sgive them one heart and one way, that they may fear Me forever, for the good of them and their children after them.

⁴⁰‘And ^tI will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from doing them good; but ^uI will put My fear in their hearts so that they will not depart from Me.

⁴¹‘Yes, ^vI will rejoice over them to do them good, and ^wI will ⁶assuredly plant them in this land, with all My heart and with all My soul.’

⁴²“For thus says the LORD: ^x‘Just as I have brought all this great calamity on this people, so I will bring on them all the good that I have promised them.

⁴³‘And fields will be bought in this land ^yof which you say, “It is desolate, without man or beast; it has been given into the hand of the Chaldeans.”

⁴⁴‘Men will buy fields for money, sign deeds and seal them, and take witnesses, in ^zthe land of Benjamin, in the places around Jerusalem, in the cities of Judah, in the cities of the mountains, in the cities of the ⁷lowland, and in the cities of the ⁸South; for ^aI will cause their captives to return,’ says the LORD.”

Excellence of the Restored Nation ¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah a second time, while he was still ^ashut up in the court of the prison, saying, ²“Thus says the LORD ^bwho made it, the LORD who formed it to establish it ^c(the ¹LORD is His name): ^{3d}‘Call to Me, and I will answer you, and show you great and ²mighty things, which you do not know.’

⁴“For thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city and the houses of the kings of Judah, which have been pulled down to fortify against ^ethe siege mounds and the sword: ⁵‘They come to fight with the Chaldeans, but only to ^ffill their places with the dead bodies of men whom I will slay in My anger and My fury, all for whose wickedness I have hidden My face from this city.

⁶‘Behold, ^gI will bring it health and healing; I will heal them and reveal to them the abundance of peace and truth.

⁷‘And ^hI will cause the captives of Judah and the captives of Israel to return, and will rebuild those places ⁱas at the first.

⁸‘I will ^jcleanse them from all their iniquity by which they have sinned against Me, and I will pardon all their iniquities by which they have sinned and by which they have transgressed against Me.

^{9k}‘Then it shall be to Me a name of joy, a praise, and an honor before all nations of the earth, who shall hear all the good that I do to them; they shall ^lfear and tremble for all the goodness and all the prosperity that I provide for it.’

¹⁰“Thus says the LORD: ‘Again there shall be heard in this place—^mof which you say, “It is desolate, without man and without beast”—in the cities of Judah, in the streets of Jerusalem that are desolate, without man and without inhabitant and without beast, ¹¹‘the ⁿvoice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of those who will say:

^o“Praise the LORD of hosts, For the LORD is good, For His mercy endures forever”— and of those who will bring ^pthe sacrifice of praise into the house of the LORD. For I will cause the captives of the land to return as at the first,’ says

the LORD.

¹²“Thus says the LORD of hosts: ^q‘In this place which is desolate, without man and without beast, and in all its cities, there shall again be a dwelling place of shepherds causing their flocks to lie down.

¹⁴‘Behold, the days are coming,’ says the LORD, ‘that ^uI will perform that good thing which I have promised to the house of Israel and to the house of Judah:

¹⁵‘In those days and at that time I will cause to grow up to David A ^vBranch of righteousness; He shall execute judgment and righteousness in the earth.

¹⁶In those days Judah will be saved, And Jerusalem will dwell safely. And this is the name by which she will be called:

³THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.’

¹⁷“For thus says the LORD: ‘David shall never ^wlack a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel; ¹⁸‘nor shall the ^xpriests, the Levites, lack a man to ^yoffer burnt offerings before Me, to ⁴kindle grain offerings, and to sacrifice continually.’ ”

The Permanence of God’s Covenant ¹⁹And the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, ²⁰“Thus says the LORD: ‘If you can break My covenant with the day and My covenant with the night, so that there will not be day and night in their season, ²¹‘then ^zMy covenant may also be broken with David My servant, so that he shall not have a son to reign on his throne, and with the Levites, the priests, My ministers.

²²‘As ^athe host of heaven cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea measured, so will I ^bmultiply the descendants of David My servant and the ^cLevites who minister to Me.’ ”

²³Moreover the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying, ²⁴“Have you not considered what these people have spoken, saying, ‘The two families which the LORD has chosen, He has also cast them off’? Thus they have ^ddespised My people, as if they should no more be a nation before them.

²⁵“Thus says the LORD: ‘If ^eMy covenant is not with day and night, and if I have not ^fappointed the ordinances of heaven and earth, ^{26g}then I will ^hcast away the descendants of Jacob and David My servant, so that I will not take any of his descendants to be rulers over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will cause their captives to return, and will have mercy on them.’ ”

Jeremiah 34

Zedekiah Warned by God ¹*The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, ^awhen Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army, ^ball the kingdoms of the earth under his dominion, and all the people, fought against Jerusalem and all its cities, saying, ²“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘Go and ^cspeak to Zedekiah king of Judah and tell him, “Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, ^dI will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.*

³*‘And ^eyou shall not escape from his hand, but shall surely be taken and delivered into his hand; your eyes shall see the eyes of the king of Babylon, he shall speak with you ^fface¹ to face, and you shall go to Babylon.’ ” ’*

⁴*“Yet hear the word of the LORD, O Zedekiah king of Judah! Thus says the LORD concerning you: ‘You shall not die by the sword.*

⁵*‘You shall die in peace; as in ^gthe ceremonies of your fathers, the former kings who were before you, ^hso they shall burn incense for you and ⁱlament for you, saying, “Alas, lord!” For I have pronounced the word, says the LORD.’ ”*

⁶*Then Jeremiah the prophet spoke all these words to Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem, ⁷when the king of Babylon’s army fought against Jerusalem and all the cities of Judah that were left, against Lachish and Azekah; for ^jonly these fortified cities remained of the cities of Judah.* Bible Times & Culture Notes: Lachish

Treacherous Treatment of Slaves ⁸*This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people who were at Jerusalem to proclaim ^kliberty to them: ⁹*that every man should set free his male and female slave—a Hebrew man or woman —^mthat no one should keep a Jewish brother in bondage.

¹⁰*Now when all the princes and all the people, who had entered into the covenant, heard that everyone should set free his male and female slaves, that no one should keep them in bondage anymore, they obeyed and let them go.*

¹¹*But afterward they changed their minds and made the male and female slaves return, whom they had set free, and brought them into subjection as male and female slaves.*

¹²Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, ¹³“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘I made a ⁿcovenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying, ¹⁴“At the end of ^oseven years let every man set free his Hebrew brother, who ²has been sold to him; and when he has served you six years, you shall let him go free from you.” But your fathers did not obey Me nor incline their ear.

¹⁵‘Then you ³recently turned and did what was right in My sight—every man proclaiming liberty to his neighbor; and you ^pmade a covenant before Me ^qin the house which is called by My name.

¹⁶‘Then you turned around and ^rprofaned My name, and every one of you brought back his male and female slaves, whom he had set at liberty, at their pleasure, and brought them back into subjection, to be your male and female slaves.’

¹⁷“Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘You have not obeyed Me in proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother and every one to his neighbor. ^sBehold, I proclaim liberty to you,’ says the LORD—^t“to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine! And I will deliver you to ^utrouble among all the kingdoms of the earth.

¹⁸‘And I will give the men who have transgressed My covenant, who have not performed the words of the covenant which they made before Me, when ^vthey cut the calf in two and passed between the parts of it— ¹⁹‘the princes of Judah, the princes of Jerusalem, the ⁴eunuchs, the priests, and all the people of the land who passed between the parts of the calf— ²⁰‘I will ^wgive them into the hand of their enemies and into the hand of those who seek their life. Their ^xdead bodies shall be for meat for the birds of the heaven and the beasts of the earth.

²¹‘And I will give Zedekiah king of Judah and his princes into the hand of their enemies, into the hand of those who seek their life, and into the hand of the king of Babylon’s army ^ywhich has gone back from you.

^{22z}‘Behold, I will command,’ says the LORD, ‘and cause them to return to this city. They will fight against it ^aand take it and burn it with fire; and ^bI will make the cities of Judah a desolation without inhabitant.’ ”

Jeremiah 35

The Obedient Rechabites ¹*The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying,*
²*“Go to the house of the ^aRechabites, speak to them, and bring them into the house of the LORD, into one of ^bthe chambers, and give them wine to drink.”*

Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Rechabites

³Then I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habazziniah, his brothers and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites, ⁴and I brought them into the house of the LORD, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan the son of Igdaiah, a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, ^cthe keeper of the ¹door.

⁵Then I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites bowls full of wine, and cups; and I said to them, “Drink wine.”

⁶But they said, “We will drink no wine, for ^dJonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us, saying, ‘You shall drink ^eno wine, you nor your sons, forever.

⁷‘You shall not build a house, sow seed, plant a vineyard, nor have any of these; but all your days you shall dwell in tents, ^fthat you may live many days in the land where you are sojourners.’

⁸“Thus we have ^gobeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, in all that he charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, or our daughters, ⁹“nor to build ourselves houses to dwell in; nor do we have vineyard, field, or seed.

¹⁰“But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us.

¹¹“But it came to pass, when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, ‘Come, let us ^hgo to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans and for fear of the army of the Syrians.’ So we dwell at Jerusalem.”

¹²Then came the word of the LORD to Jeremiah, saying, ¹³“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, “Will you not ⁱreceive instruction to ²obey My words?” says the LORD.

¹⁴“The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab, which he commanded his sons, not to drink wine, are performed; for to this day they drink none, and obey their father’s commandment. ^jBut although I have spoken to you, ^krising early and speaking, you did not ³obey Me.

¹⁵“I have also sent to you all My ^lservants the prophets, rising up early and sending them, saying, ^m‘Turn now everyone from his evil way, amend your doings, and do not go after other gods to serve them; then you will ⁿdwell in the land which I have given you and your fathers.’ But you have not inclined your ear, nor obeyed Me.

¹⁶“Surely the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have performed the commandment of their ^ofather, which he commanded them, but this people has not obeyed Me.” ’

¹⁷“Therefore thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Behold, I will bring on Judah and on all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the doom that I have pronounced against them; ^pbecause I have spoken to them but they have not heard, and I have called to them but they have not answered.’ ”

¹⁸And Jeremiah said to the house of the Rechabites, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Because you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts and done according to all that he commanded you, ¹⁹‘therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not lack a man to ^qstand before Me forever.” ’ ”

Jeremiah 36

The Scroll Read in the Temple ¹Now it came to pass in the ^afourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying: ²“Take a ^bscroll of a book and ^cwrite on it all the words that I have spoken to you against Israel, against Judah, and against ^dall the nations, from the day I spoke to you, from the days of ^eJosiah even to this day.

³“It ^fmay be that the house of Judah will hear all the adversities which I purpose to bring upon them, that everyone may ^gturn from his evil way, that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.”

⁴Then Jeremiah ^hcalled Baruch the son of Neriah; and ⁱBaruch wrote on a scroll of a book, ¹at the instruction of Jeremiah, all the words of the LORD which He had spoken to him.

⁵And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, “I am confined, I cannot go into the house of the LORD.

⁶“You go, therefore, and read from the scroll which you have written ²at my instruction, the words of the LORD, in the hearing of the people in the LORD’s house on ^jthe day of fasting. And you shall also read them in the hearing of all Judah who come from their cities.

⁷“It may be that they will present their supplication before the LORD, and everyone will turn from his evil way. For great is the anger and the fury that the LORD has pronounced against this people.”

⁸And Baruch the son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading from the book the words of the LORD in the LORD’s house.

⁹Now it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people who came from the cities of Judah to Jerusalem.

¹⁰Then Baruch read from the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the upper court at the ^kentry of the New Gate of the LORD’s house, in the ³hearing of all the people.

The Scroll Read in the Palace ¹¹When Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the LORD from the book, ¹²he then went down to the king's house, into the scribe's chamber; and there all the princes were sitting—¹Elishama the scribe, Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, ^mElnathan the son of Achbor, Gemariah the son of Shaphan, Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

¹³Then Michaiah declared to them all the words that he had heard when Baruch read the book in the hearing of the people.

¹⁴Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, to Baruch, saying, "Take in your hand the scroll from which you have read in the hearing of the people, and come." So Baruch the son of Neriah took the scroll in his hand and came to them.

¹⁵And they said to him, "Sit down now, and read it in our hearing." So Baruch read it in their hearing.

¹⁶Now it happened, when they had heard all the words, that they looked in fear from one to another, and said to Baruch, "We will surely tell the king of all these words."

¹⁷And they asked Baruch, saying, "Tell us now, how did you write all these words—⁴at his instruction?"

¹⁸So Baruch answered them, "He proclaimed with his mouth all these words to me, and I wrote them with ink in the book."

¹⁹Then the princes said to Baruch, "Go and hide, you and Jeremiah; and let no one know where you are."

The King Destroys Jeremiah's Scroll ²⁰And they went to the king, into the court; but they stored the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the hearing of the king.

²¹So the king sent Jehudi to bring the scroll, and he took it from Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the hearing of the king and in the hearing of all the princes who stood beside the king.

²²Now the king was sitting in ⁿthe winter house in the ninth month, with a fire burning on the hearth before him.

²³And it happened, when Jehudi had read three or four columns, that the king cut it with the scribe's knife and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the scroll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth.

²⁴Yet they were ^onot afraid, nor did they ^ptear their garments, the king nor any of his servants who heard all these words.

²⁵Nevertheless Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah implored the king not to burn the scroll; but he would not listen to them.

²⁶And the king commanded Jerahmeel ⁵the king's son, Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, to seize Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet, but the LORD hid them.

Jeremiah Rewrites the Scroll ²⁷Now after the king had burned the scroll with the words which Baruch had written ⁶at the instruction of Jeremiah, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying: ²⁸"Take yet another scroll, and write on it all the former words that were in the first scroll which Jehoiakim the king of Judah has burned.

²⁹"And you shall say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, 'Thus says the LORD: "You have burned this scroll, saying, ⁹"Why have you written in it that the king of Babylon will certainly come and destroy this land, and cause man and beast to ^rcease from here?' "

³¹"I will punish him, his ⁷family, and his servants for their iniquity; and I will bring on them, on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and on the men of Judah all the doom that I have pronounced against them; but they did not heed." ' ' "

³²Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to Baruch the scribe, the son of Neriah, who wrote on it ⁸at the instruction of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire. And besides, there were added to them many similar words.

Jeremiah 37

Zedekiah's Vain Hope (2 Kin. 24:17; 2 Chr. 36:10) ¹Now King ^aZedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah.

^{2b}But neither he nor his servants nor the people of the land gave heed to the words of the LORD which He spoke by the prophet Jeremiah.

³And Zedekiah the king sent Jehucal the son of Shelemiah, and ^cZephaniah the son of Maaseiah, the priest, to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, ^d“Pray now to the LORD our God for us.”

⁴Now Jeremiah was coming and going among the people, for they had not yet put him in prison.

⁵Then ^ePharaoh's army came up from Egypt; and when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard news of them, they departed from Jerusalem.

⁶Then the word of the LORD came to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, Word Studies: prophet

⁷“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, ‘Thus you shall say to the king of Judah, ^fwho sent you to Me to inquire of Me: “Behold, Pharaoh's army which has come up to help you will return to Egypt, to their own land.

^{8g}“And the Chaldeans shall come back and fight against this city, and take it and burn it with fire.” ’

⁹“Thus says the LORD: ‘Do not deceive yourselves, saying, “The Chaldeans will surely depart from us,” for they will not depart.

^{10h}“For though you had defeated the whole army of the Chaldeans who fight against you, and there remained only wounded men among them, they would rise up, every man in his tent, and burn the city with fire.’ ”

Jeremiah Imprisoned ¹¹And it happened, when the army of the Chaldeans left the siege of Jerusalem for fear of Pharaoh's army, ¹²that Jeremiah went out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin to claim his property there among the people.

¹³And when he was in the Gate of Benjamin, a captain of the guard was there whose name was Irijah the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “You are defecting to the Chaldeans!”

¹⁴Then Jeremiah said, ¹“False! I am not defecting to the Chaldeans.” But he did not listen to him. So Irijah seized Jeremiah and brought him to the princes.

¹⁵Therefore the princes were angry with Jeremiah, and they struck him ⁱand put him in prison in the ^jhouse of Jonathan the scribe. For they had made that the prison.

¹⁶When Jeremiah entered ^kthe dungeon and the cells, and Jeremiah had remained there many days, ¹⁷then Zedekiah the king sent and took him out. The king asked him secretly in his house, and said, “Is there any word from the LORD?” And Jeremiah said, “There is.” Then he said, “You shall be ^ldelivered into the hand of the king of Babylon!”

¹⁸Moreover Jeremiah said to King Zedekiah, “What offense have I committed against you, against your servants, or against this people, that you have put me in prison?”

¹⁹“Where now are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, ‘The king of Babylon will not come against you or against this land’?”

²⁰“Therefore please hear now, O my lord the king. Please, let my petition be accepted before you, and do not make me return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.”

²¹Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they should commit Jeremiah ^mto the court of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread from the bakers’ street, ⁿuntil all the bread in the city was gone. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

Jeremiah 38

Jeremiah in the Dungeon ¹Now Shephatiah the son of Mattan, Gedaliah the son of Pashhur, ^aJucal¹ the son of Shelemiah, and ^bPashhur the son of Malchiah ^cheard the words that Jeremiah had spoken to all the people, saying, ²“Thus says the LORD: ^d‘He who remains in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence; but he who goes over to the Chaldeans shall live; his life shall be as a prize to him, and he shall live.’

³“Thus says the LORD: ^e‘This city shall surely be ^fgiven into the hand of the king of Babylon’s army, which shall take it.’ ”

⁴Therefore the princes said to the king, “Please, ^glet this man be put to death, for thus he ²weakens the hands of the men of war who remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking such words to them. For this man does not seek the ³welfare of this people, but their harm.”

⁵Then Zedekiah the king said, “Look, he is in your hand. For the king can do nothing against you.”

^{6h}So they took Jeremiah and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah ⁴the king’s son, which was in the court of the prison, and they let Jeremiah down with ropes. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire. So Jeremiah sank in the mire.

⁷ⁱNow Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, one of the ⁵eunuchs, who was in the king’s house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon. When the king was sitting at the Gate of Benjamin, ⁸Ebed-Melech went out of the king’s house and spoke to the king, saying: ⁹“My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon, and he is likely to die from hunger in the place where he is. For there is ^jno more bread in the city.”

¹⁰Then the king commanded Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian, saying, “Take from here thirty men with you, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon before he dies.”

¹¹So Ebed-Melech took the men with him and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took from there old clothes and old rags, and let them down by ropes into the dungeon to Jeremiah.

¹²Then Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian said to Jeremiah, “Please put these old clothes and rags under your armpits, under the ropes.” And Jeremiah did so.

¹³So they pulled Jeremiah up with ropes and lifted him out of the dungeon. And Jeremiah remained ^kin the court of the prison.

Zedekiah's Fears and Jeremiah's Advice ¹⁴Then Zedekiah the king sent and had Jeremiah the prophet brought to him at the third entrance of the house of the LORD. And the king said to Jeremiah, "I will ^lask you something. Hide nothing from me."

¹⁵Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, "If I declare it to you, will you not surely put me to death? And if I give you advice, you will not listen to me."

¹⁶So Zedekiah the king swore secretly to Jeremiah, saying, "As the LORD lives, ^mwho made our very souls, I will not put you to death, nor will I give you into the hand of these men who seek your life."

¹⁷Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, "Thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: 'If you surely ⁿsurrender⁶ ^oto the king of Babylon's princes, then your soul shall live; this city shall not be burned with fire, and you and your house shall live.

¹⁸'But if you do not ⁷surrender to the king of Babylon's princes, then this city shall be given into the hand of the Chaldeans; they shall burn it with fire, and ^pyou shall not escape from their hand.' "

¹⁹And Zedekiah the king said to Jeremiah, "I am afraid of the Jews who have ^qdefected to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they ^rabuse me."

²⁰But Jeremiah said, "They shall not deliver you. Please, obey the voice of the LORD which I speak to you. So it shall be ^swell with you, and your soul shall live.

²¹"But if you refuse to ⁸surrender, this is the word that the LORD has shown me: ²²'Now behold, all the ^twomen who are left in the king of Judah's house shall be surrendered to the king of Babylon's princes, and those women shall say:

"Your close friends have ⁹set upon you And prevailed against you; Your feet have sunk in the mire, And they have ¹⁰turned away again."

²³'So they shall surrender all your wives and ^uchildren to the Chaldeans. ^vYou shall not escape from their hand, but shall be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon. And you shall cause this city to be burned with fire.' "

²⁴Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "Let no one know of these words, and you shall not die.

²⁵“But if the princes hear that I have talked with you, and they come to you and say to you, ‘Declare to us now what you have said to the king, and also what the king said to you; do not hide it from us, and we will not put you to death,’

²⁶“then you shall say to them, ^w‘I presented my request before the king, that he would not make me return ^xto Jonathan’s house to die there.’ ”

²⁷Then all the princes came to Jeremiah and asked him. And he told them according to all these words that the king had commanded. So they stopped speaking with him, for the conversation had not been heard.

²⁸Now ^yJeremiah remained in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken. And he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

Jeremiah 39

The Fall of Jerusalem (2 Kin. 25:1–12; Jer. 52:4–16) ¹In the ^aninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem, and besieged it.

²In the ^beleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, the ¹city was penetrated.

^{3c}Then all the princes of the king of Babylon came in and sat in the Middle Gate: Nergal-Sharezzer, Samgar-Nebo, Sarsechim, ²Rabsaris, Nergal-Sarezzer, ³Rabmag, with the rest of the princes of the king of Babylon.

^{4d}So it was, when Zedekiah the king of Judah and all the men of war saw them, that they fled and went out of the city by night, by way of the king's garden, by the gate between the two walls. And he went out by way of the ⁴plain.

⁵But the Chaldean army pursued them and ^eovertook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. And when they had captured him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, to ^fRiblah in the land of Hamath, where he pronounced judgment on him.

⁶Then the king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah before his ^geyes in Riblah; the king of Babylon also killed all the ^hnobles of Judah.

⁷Moreover ⁱhe put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him with bronze ⁵fetters to carry him off to Babylon.

^{8j}And the Chaldeans burned the king's house and the houses of the people with ^kfire, and broke down the ^lwalls of Jerusalem.

^{9m}Then Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive to Babylon the remnant of the people who remained in the city and those who ⁿdefected to him, with the rest of the people who remained.

¹⁰But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left in the land of Judah the ^opoor people, who had nothing, and gave them vineyards and fields ⁶at the same time.

Jeremiah Goes Free ¹¹Now Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, saying,

¹²“Take him and look after him, and do him no ^pharm; but do to him just as he says to you.”

¹³So Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard sent Nebushasban, Rabсарis, Nergal-Sharezer, Rabmag, and all the king of Babylon's chief officers; ¹⁴then they sent someone ^qto take Jeremiah from the court of the prison, and committed him ^rto Gedaliah the son of ^sAhikam, the son of Shaphan, that he should take him home. So he dwelt among the people.

¹⁵Meanwhile the word of the LORD had come to Jeremiah while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying, ¹⁶“Go and speak to ^tEbed-Melech the Ethiopian, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, ^uI will bring My words upon this city for adversity and not for good, and they shall be performed in that day before you.

¹⁷“But I will deliver you in that day,” says the LORD, “and you shall not be given into the hand of the men of whom you are afraid.

¹⁸“For I will surely deliver you, and you shall not fall by the sword; but ^vyour life shall be as a prize to you, ^wbecause you have put your trust in Me,” says the LORD.’ ”

Jeremiah 40

Jeremiah with Gedaliah the Governor (2 Kin. 25:22–26) ¹The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD ^aafter Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him bound in chains among all who were carried away captive from Jerusalem and Judah, who were carried away captive to Babylon.

²And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah and ^bsaid to him: “The LORD your God has pronounced this doom on this place.

³“Now the LORD has brought it, and has done just as He said. ^cBecause you people have sinned against the LORD, and not obeyed His voice, therefore this thing has come upon you.

⁴“And now look, I free you this day from the chains that ¹were on your hand. ^dIf it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will look after you. But if it seems wrong for you to come with me to Babylon, remain here. See, ^eall the land is before you; wherever it seems good and convenient for you to go, go there.”

⁵Now while Jeremiah had not yet gone back, Nebuzaradan said, “Go back to ^fGedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ^gwhom the king of Babylon has made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people. Or go wherever it seems convenient for you to go.” So the captain of the guard gave him rations and a gift and let him go.

^{6h}Then Jeremiah went to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, to ⁱMizpah, and dwelt with him among the people who were left in the land.

^{7j}And when all the captains of the armies who were in the fields, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed to him men, women, children, and ^kthe poorest of the land who had not been carried away captive to Babylon, ⁸then they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah—^lIshmael the son of Nethaniah, ^mJohanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and ⁿJezaniah² the son of a ^oMaachathite, they and their men.

⁹And Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, took an oath before them and their men, saying, “Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Dwell in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be ^pwell with you.

¹⁰“As for me, I will indeed dwell at Mizpah and serve the Chaldeans who come to us. But you, gather wine and summer fruit and oil, put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that you have taken.”

¹¹Likewise, when all the Jews who were in Moab, among the Ammonites, in Edom, and who were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ¹²then all the Jews ⁹returned out of all places where they had been driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruit in abundance.

¹³Moreover Johanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields came to Gedaliah at Mizpah, ¹⁴and said to him, ³“Do you certainly know that ^rBaalis the king of the Ammonites has sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah to murder you?” But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam did not believe them.

¹⁵Then Johanan the son of Kareah spoke secretly to Gedaliah in Mizpah, saying, “Let me go, please, and I will kill Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no one will know it. Why should he murder you, so that all the Jews who are gathered to you would be scattered, and the ^sremnant in Judah perish?”

¹⁶But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said to Johanan the son of Kareah, “You shall not do this thing, for you speak falsely concerning Ishmael.”

Jeremiah 41

Insurrection Against Gedaliah ¹Now it came to pass in the seventh month ^athat Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the royal ¹family and of the officers of the king, came with ten men to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, at ^bMizpah. And there they ate bread together in Mizpah.

²Then Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men who were with him, arose and ^cstruck Gedaliah the son of ^dAhikam, the son of Shaphan, with the sword, and killed him whom the king of Babylon had made ^egovernor over the land.

³Ishmael also struck down all the Jews who were with him, that is, with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans who were found there, the men of war.

⁴And it happened, on the second day after he had killed Gedaliah, when as yet no one knew it, ⁵that certain men came from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, eighty men ^fwith their beards shaved and their clothes torn, having cut themselves, with offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to ^gthe house of the LORD.

⁶Now Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went out from Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he went along; and it happened as he met them that he said to them, “Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam!”

⁷So it was, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah ^hkilled them and cast them into the midst of a ²pit, he and the men who were with him.

⁸But ten men were found among them who said to Ishmael, “Do not kill us, for we have treasures of wheat, barley, oil, and honey in the field.” So he desisted and did not kill them among their brethren.

⁹Now the ³pit into which Ishmael had cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had slain, because of Gedaliah, was ⁱthe same one Asa the king had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel. Ishmael the son of Nethaniah filled it with the slain.

¹⁰Then Ishmael carried away captive all the ^jrest of the people who were in Mizpah, ^kthe king’s daughters and all the people who remained in Mizpah, ^lwhom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam. And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive and departed to go over to ^mthe Ammonites.

¹¹But when ⁿJohanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces that were with him heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, ¹²they took all the men and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah; and they found him by ^othe great pool that is in Gibeon.

¹³So it was, when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, that they were glad.

¹⁴Then all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah turned around and came back, and went to Johanan the son of Kareah.

¹⁵But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men and went to the Ammonites.

¹⁶Then Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, took from Mizpah all the ^prest of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah after he had murdered Gedaliah the son of Ahikam—the mighty men of war and the women and the children and the eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gibeon.

¹⁷And they departed and dwelt in the habitation of ^qChimham, which is near Bethlehem, as they went on their way to ^rEgypt, ¹⁸because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had murdered Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, ^swhom the king of Babylon had made governor in the land.

Jeremiah 42

The Flight to Egypt Forbidden ¹Now all the captains of the forces, ^aJohanan the son of Kareah, Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, from the least to the greatest, came near ²and said to Jeremiah the prophet, ^b“Please, let our petition be acceptable to you, and ^cpray for us to the LORD your God, for all this remnant (since we are left but ^da few of many, as you can see), ³“that the LORD your God may show us ^ethe way in which we should walk and the thing we should do.”

⁴Then Jeremiah the prophet said to them, “I have heard. Indeed, I will pray to the LORD your God according to your words, and it shall be, that ^fwhatever the LORD answers you, I will declare it to you. I will ^gkeep nothing back from you.”

⁵So they said to Jeremiah, ^h“Let the LORD be a true and faithful witness between us, if we do not do according to everything which the LORD your God sends us by you.

⁶“Whether it is ¹pleasing or ²displeasing, we will ⁱobey the voice of the LORD our God to whom we send you, ^jthat it may be well with us when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.”

⁷And it happened after ten days that the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah.

⁸Then he called Johanan the son of Kareah, all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people from the least even to the greatest, ⁹and said to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me to present your petition before Him: ¹⁰‘If you will still remain in this land, then ^kI will build you and not pull you down, and I will plant you and not pluck you up. For I ^lrelent concerning the disaster that I have brought upon you.

¹¹‘Do not be afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom you are afraid; do not be afraid of him,’ says the LORD, ^m‘for I am with you, to save you and deliver you from his hand.

¹²‘And ⁿI will show you mercy, that he may have mercy on you and cause you to return to your own land.’

¹³“But if ^oyou say, ‘We will not dwell in this land,’ disobeying the voice of the LORD your God, ¹⁴“saying, ‘No, but we will go to the land of ^pEgypt where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor be hungry for bread, and there we will dwell’— ¹⁵“Then hear now the word of the LORD, O remnant of Judah! Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘If you ^qwholly³ set ^ryour faces to enter Egypt, and go to dwell there, ¹⁶‘then it shall be that the ^ssword which you feared shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt; the famine of which you were afraid shall follow close after you there in Egypt; and there you shall die.

¹⁷‘So shall it be with all the men who set their faces to go to Egypt to dwell there. They shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. And ^tnone of them shall remain or escape from the disaster that I will bring upon them.’

¹⁸“For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘As My anger and My fury have been ^upoured out on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so will My fury be poured out on you when you enter Egypt. And ^vyou shall be an oath, an astonishment, a curse, and a reproach; and you shall see this place no more.’

¹⁹“The LORD has said concerning you, O remnant of Judah, ^w‘Do not go to Egypt!’ Know certainly that I have ⁴admonished you this day.

²⁰“For you ⁵were hypocrites in your hearts when you sent me to the LORD your God, saying, ‘Pray for us to the LORD our God, and according to all that the LORD your God says, so declare to us and we will do it.’

²¹“And I have this day declared it to you, but you have ^xnot obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, or anything which He has sent you by me.

²²“Now therefore, know certainly that you ^yshall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence in the place where you desire to go to dwell.”

Jeremiah 43

Jeremiah Taken to Egypt

¹Now it happened, when Jeremiah had stopped speaking to all the people all the ^awords of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had sent him to them, all these words,

^{2b}that Azariah the son of Hoshaiiah, Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the proud men spoke, saying to Jeremiah, “You speak falsely! The LORD our God has not sent you to say, ‘Do not go to Egypt to dwell there.’

³“But ^cBaruch the son of Neriah has ¹set you against us, to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they may put us to death or carry us away captive to Babylon.”

⁴So Johanan the son of Kareah, all the captains of the forces, and all the people would ^dnot obey the voice of the LORD, to remain in the land of Judah.

⁵But Johanan the son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces took ^eall the remnant of Judah who had returned to dwell in the land of Judah, from all nations where they had been driven—

⁶men, women, children, ^fthe king’s daughters, ^gand every person whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch the son of Neriah.

^{7h}So they went to the land of Egypt, for they did not obey the voice of the LORD. And they went as far as ⁱTahpanhes.

⁸Then the ^jword of the LORD came to Jeremiah in Tahpanhes, saying,

⁹“Take large stones in your hand, and hide them in the sight of the men of Judah, in the ²clay in the brick courtyard which is at the entrance to Pharaoh’s house in Tahpanhes;

¹⁰“and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, I will send and bring Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, ^kMy servant, and will set his throne above these stones that I have hidden. And he will spread his royal pavilion over them.

^{11l}“When he comes, he shall strike the land of Egypt and deliver to death those appointed for death, and to captivity those appointed for captivity, and to the sword those appointed for the sword.

¹²³“I will kindle a fire in the houses of ⁿthe gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive. And he shall array himself with the land of Egypt, as a shepherd puts on his garment, and he shall go out from there in peace.

¹³“He shall also break the sacred pillars of ⁴Beth Shemesh that are in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of the Egyptians he shall burn with fire.” ’ ’

Jeremiah 44

Israelites Will Be Punished in Egypt

¹The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews who dwell in the land of Egypt, who dwell at ^aMigdol, at ^bTahpanhes, at ^cNoph,¹ and in the country of ^dPathros, saying, Bible Times & Culture Notes: Tahpanhes

²“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘You have seen all the calamity that I have brought on Jerusalem and on all the cities of Judah; and behold, this day they are ^ea desolation, and no one dwells in them,

³‘because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke Me to anger, in that they went ^fto burn incense and to ^gserve other gods whom they did not know, they nor you nor your fathers.

⁴‘However ^hI have sent to you all My servants the prophets, rising early and sending them, saying, “Oh, do not do this abominable thing that I hate!”

⁵‘But they did not listen or incline their ear to turn from their wickedness, to burn no incense to other gods.

⁶‘So My fury and My anger were poured out and kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they ²are wasted and desolate, as it is this day.’

⁷“Now therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Why do you commit this great evil ⁱagainst yourselves, to cut off from you man and woman, child and infant, out of Judah, leaving none to remain, ⁸‘in that you ^jprovoke Me to wrath with the works of your hands, burning incense to other gods in the land of Egypt where you have gone to dwell, that you may cut yourselves off and be ^ka curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth?

⁹‘Have you forgotten the wickedness of your fathers, the wickedness of the kings of Judah, the wickedness of their wives, your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

¹⁰‘They have not been ^lhumbled,³ to this day, nor have they ^mfeared; they have not walked in My law or in My statutes that I set before you and your fathers.’

¹¹“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Behold, ⁿI will set My face against you for catastrophe and for ⁴cutting off all Judah.

¹²‘And I will take the remnant of Judah who have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to dwell there, and ^othey shall all be consumed and fall in the land of Egypt. They shall be consumed by the sword and by famine. They shall die, from the least to the greatest, by the sword and by famine; and ^pthey shall be an oath, an astonishment, a curse and a reproach!

^{13q}‘For I will punish those who dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence,

¹⁴‘so that none of the remnant of Judah who have gone into the land of Egypt to dwell there shall escape or survive, lest they return to the land of Judah, to which they ^rdesire⁵ to return and dwell. For ^snone shall return except those who escape.’ ”

¹⁵Then all the men who knew that their wives had burned incense to other gods, with all the women who stood by, a great multitude, and all the people who dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying:

¹⁶“As for the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the LORD, ^twe will not listen to you!

¹⁷“But we will certainly do ^uwhatever has gone out of our own mouth, to burn incense to the ^vqueen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her, as we have done, we and our fathers, our kings and our princes, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. For then we had plenty of ⁶food, were well-off, and saw no trouble.

¹⁸“But since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring out drink offerings to her, we have lacked everything and have been consumed by the sword and by famine.”

¹⁹*The women also said,* ^w“And when we burned incense to the queen of heaven and poured out drink offerings to her, did we make cakes for her, to worship her, and pour out drink offerings to her without our husbands’ permission?”

²⁰Then Jeremiah spoke to all the people—the men, the women, and all the people who had given him that answer—saying:

²¹“The incense that you burned in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings and your princes, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them, and did it not come into His mind?

²²“So the LORD could no longer bear it, because of the evil of your doings and because of the abominations which you committed. Therefore your land is a desolation, an astonishment, a curse, and without an inhabitant, ^xas it is this day.

²³“Because you have burned incense and because you have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD or walked in His law, in His statutes or in His testimonies, ^ytherefore this calamity has happened to you, as at this day.”

²⁴Moreover Jeremiah said to all the people and to all the women, “Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah who are in the land of Egypt!

²⁵“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: ‘You and your wives have spoken with your mouths and fulfilled with your hands, saying, “We will surely keep our vows that we have made, to burn incense to the queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her.” You will surely keep your vows and perform your vows!’

²⁶“Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt: ‘Behold, ^zI have sworn by My ^agreat name,’ says the LORD, ‘that ^bMy name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, “The Lord GOD lives.”

²⁷‘Behold, I will watch over them for adversity and not for good. And all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt ^cshall be consumed by the sword and by famine, until there is an end to them.

²⁸‘Yet ^da small number who escape the sword shall return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah; and all the remnant of Judah, who have gone to the land of Egypt to dwell there, shall know whose words will stand, Mine or theirs.

²⁹‘And this shall be a sign to you,’ says the LORD, ‘that I will punish you in this place, that you may know that My words will surely ^estand against you for adversity.’

³⁰“Thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, ^fI will give Pharaoh Hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies and into the hand of those who seek his life, as I gave ^gZedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, his enemy who sought his life.’ ”

Jeremiah 45

Assurance to Baruch

¹The ^aword that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to ^bBaruch the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in a book ¹at the instruction of Jeremiah, in the ^cfourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying,

²“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to you, O Baruch:

³“You said, “Woe is me now! For the LORD has added grief to my sorrow. I ^dfainted in my sighing, and I find no rest.” ’

⁴“Thus you shall say to him, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, ^ewhat I have built I will break down, and what I have planted I will pluck up, that is, this whole land.

⁵“And do you seek great things for yourself? Do not seek them; for behold, ^fI will bring adversity on all flesh,” says the LORD. “But I will give your ^glife to you as a prize in all places, wherever you go.” ’ ”

Jeremiah 46

Judgment on Egypt

¹The word of the LORD which came to Jeremiah the prophet against ^athe nations.

²Against ^bEgypt.

^cConcerning the army of Pharaoh Necho, king of Egypt, which was by the River Euphrates in Carchemish, and which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ^ddefeated in the ^efourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah:

³“Order¹ the ²buckler and shield,
And draw near to battle!

⁴Harness the horses,
And mount up, you horsemen!
Stand forth with your helmets,
Polish the spears,
^fPut on the armor!

⁵Why have I seen them dismayed and turned back?
Their mighty ones are beaten down;
They have speedily fled,
And did not look back,
For ^gfear was all around,” says the LORD.

⁶“Do not let the swift flee away,
Nor the mighty man escape;
They will ^hstumble and fall
Toward the north, by the River Euphrates.

⁷“Who is this coming up ⁱlike a flood,
Whose waters move like the rivers?

⁸Egypt rises up like a flood,
And its waters move like the rivers;
And he says, ‘I will go up and cover the earth,
I will destroy the city and its inhabitants.’

⁹Come up, O horses, and rage, O chariots!
And let the mighty men come forth:

³The Ethiopians and ⁴the Libyans who handle the shield,
And the Lydians ^jwho handle and bend the bow.

¹⁰For this is ^kthe day of the Lord GOD of hosts,

A day of vengeance,
That He may avenge Himself on His adversaries.
^lThe sword shall devour;
It shall be ⁵satiated and made drunk with their blood;
For the Lord GOD of hosts ^mhas a sacrifice
In the north country by the River Euphrates.

¹¹“Goⁿ up to Gilead and take balm,
^oO virgin, the daughter of Egypt;
In vain you will use many medicines;
^pYou shall not be cured.
¹²The nations have heard of your ^qshame,
And your cry has filled the land;
For the mighty man has stumbled against the mighty;
They both have fallen together.”

Babylonia Will Strike Egypt

¹³The word that the LORD spoke to Jeremiah the prophet, how Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon would come and ^rstrike the land of Egypt.

¹⁴“Declare in Egypt, and proclaim in ^sMigdol;
Proclaim in ⁶Noph and in ^rTahpanhes;
Say, ‘Stand fast and prepare yourselves,
For the sword devours all around you.’

¹⁵Why are your valiant men swept away?

They did not stand
Because the LORD drove them away.
¹⁶He made many fall;
Yes, ^uone fell upon another.
And they said, 'Arise!
^vLet us go back to our own people
And to the land of our nativity
From the oppressing sword.'
¹⁷They cried there,
'Pharaoh, king of Egypt, is but a noise.
He has passed by the appointed time!'

¹⁸"As I live," says the King,
^wWhose name is the LORD of hosts,
"Surely as Tabor is among the mountains
And as Carmel by the sea, so he shall come. Bible Times & Culture

Notes: Mount Tabor

¹⁹O ^xyou daughter dwelling in Egypt,
Prepare yourself ^yto go into captivity!
For ⁷Noph shall be waste and desolate, without inhabitant.

²⁰"Egypt is a very pretty ^zheifer,
But destruction comes, it comes ^afrom the north.
²¹Also her mercenaries are in her midst like ⁸fat bulls,
For they also are turned back,
They have fled away together.
They did not stand,
For ^bthe day of their calamity had come upon them,
The time of their punishment.
²²^cHer noise shall go like a serpent,
For they shall march with an army
And come against her with axes,
Like those who chop wood.

²³"They shall ^dcut down her forest," says the LORD,
"Though it cannot be searched,
Because they are innumerable,
And more numerous than ^egrasshoppers.

²⁴The daughter of Egypt shall be ashamed;
She shall be delivered into the hand
Of ^fthe people of the north.”

²⁵The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, says: “Behold, I will bring punishment on ⁹Amon of ^gNo, ¹⁰and Pharaoh and Egypt, ^hwith their gods and their kings—Pharaoh and those who ⁱtrust in him.

^{26j}“And I will deliver them into the hand of those who seek their lives, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and the hand of his servants.
^kAfterward it shall be inhabited as in the days of old,” says the LORD.

God Will Preserve Israel

(cf. Jer. 30:10, 11)

²⁷“But^l do not fear, O My servant Jacob,
And do not be dismayed, O Israel!
For behold, I will ^msave you from afar,
And your offspring from the land of their captivity;
Jacob shall return, have rest and be at ease;
No one shall make him afraid.
²⁸Do not fear, O Jacob My servant,” says the LORD,
“For I am with you;
For I will make a complete end of all the nations
To which I have driven you,
But I will not make ⁿa complete end of you.
I will rightly ^ocorrect you,
For I will not leave you wholly unpunished.”

Jeremiah 47

Judgment on Philistia

¹The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet ^aagainst the Philistines, ^bbefore Pharaoh attacked Gaza.

²Thus says the LORD:

“Behold, ^cwaters rise ^dout of the north,
And shall be an overflowing flood;
They shall overflow the land and all that is in it,
The city and those who dwell within;
Then the men shall cry,
And all the inhabitants of the land shall wail.

³At the ^enoise of the stamping hooves of his strong horses,
At the rushing of his chariots,
At the rumbling of his wheels,
The fathers will not look back for their children,

¹Lacking courage,

⁴Because of the day that comes to plunder all the ^fPhilistines,
To cut off from ^gTyre and Sidon every helper who remains;
For the LORD shall plunder the Philistines,

^hThe remnant of the country of ⁱCaphtor.²

^{5j}Baldness has come upon Gaza,

^kAshkelon is cut off
With the remnant of their valley.
How long will you cut yourself?

⁶“O you ^lsword of the LORD,
How long until you are quiet?
Put yourself up into your scabbard,
Rest and be still!

⁷How can ³it be quiet,
Seeing the LORD has ^mgiven it a charge
Against Ashkelon and against the seashore?
There He has ⁿappointed it.”

Jeremiah 48

Judgment on Moab

¹Against ^aMoab.

Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

“Woe to ^bNebo!

For it is plundered,

^cKirjathaim is shamed and taken;

¹The high stronghold is shamed and dismayed—

^{2d}No more praise of Moab.

In ^eHeshbon they have devised evil against her:

‘Come, and let us cut her off as a nation.’

You also shall be cut down, O ^fMadmen!²

The sword shall pursue you;

³A voice of crying shall be from ^gHoronaim:

‘Plundering and great destruction!’

⁴“Moab is destroyed;

³Her little ones have caused a cry to be heard;

^{5h}For in the Ascent of Luhith they ascend with continual weeping;

For in the descent of Horonaim the enemies have heard a cry of destruction.

⁶“Flee, save your lives!

And be like ⁴the ⁱjuniper in the wilderness.

⁷For because you have trusted in your works and your ^jtreasures,

You also shall be taken.

And ^kChemosh shall go forth into captivity,

His ^lpriests and his princes together.

⁸And ^mthe plunderer shall come against every city;

No one shall escape.

The valley also shall perish,

And the plain shall be destroyed,

As the LORD has spoken.

⁹“Giveⁿ wings to Moab,

That she may flee and get away;
For her cities shall be desolate,
Without any to dwell in them.

¹⁰ Cursed is he who does the work of the LORD deceitfully,
And cursed is he who keeps back his sword from blood.

¹¹ “Moab has been at ease from ⁵his youth;
He ^phas settled on his dregs,
And has not been emptied from vessel to vessel,
Nor has he gone into captivity.
Therefore his taste remained in him,
And his scent has not changed.

¹² “Therefore behold, the days are coming,” says the LORD,
“That I shall send him ⁶wine-workers

Who will tip him over

And empty his vessels
And break the bottles.

¹³Moab shall be ashamed of ^qChemosh,
As the house of Israel ^rwas ashamed of ^sBethel, their confidence.

¹⁴“How can you say, ^t‘We are mighty
And strong men for the war’?

¹⁵Moab is plundered and gone up from her cities;
Her chosen young men have ^ugone down to the slaughter,” says ^vthe King,
Whose name is the LORD of hosts.

¹⁶“The calamity of Moab is near at hand,
And his affliction comes quickly.

¹⁷Bemoan him, all you who are around him;
And all you who know his name,
Say, ^w‘How the strong staff is broken,
The beautiful rod!’

¹⁸“O ^xdaughter inhabiting ^yDibon,
Come down from your glory,
And sit in thirst;
For the plunderer of Moab has come against you,
He has destroyed your strongholds.

¹⁹O inhabitant of ^zAroer,
^aStand by the way and watch;

Ask him who flees
And her who escapes;
Say, 'What has happened?'
²⁰Moab is shamed, for he is broken down.
^bWail and cry!
Tell it in ^cArnon, that Moab is plundered.

²¹"And judgment has come on the plain country:
On Holon and Jahzah and Mephaath,
²²On Dibon and Nebo and Beth Diblathaim,
²³On Kirjathaim and Beth Gamul and Beth Meon,
²⁴On ^dKerioth and Bozrah,
On all the cities of the land of Moab,
Far or near.
^{25e}The ⁷horn of Moab is cut off,
And his ^farm is broken," says the LORD.

²⁶"Make^g him drunk,
Because he exalted himself against the LORD.
Moab shall wallow in his vomit,
And he shall also be in derision.
²⁷For ^hwas not Israel a derision to you?
ⁱWas he found among thieves?
For whenever you speak of him,
You shake your head in ^jscorn.
²⁸You who dwell in Moab,
Leave the cities and ^kdwell in the rock,
And be like ^lthe dove which makes her nest
In the sides of the cave's mouth.

²⁹"We have heard the ^mpride of Moab
(He is exceedingly proud),
Of his loftiness and arrogance and ⁿpride,
And of the haughtiness of his heart."

³⁰"I know his wrath," says the LORD,
"But it is not right;
^oHis ⁸lies have made nothing right.

³¹Therefore ^pI will wail for Moab,
And I will cry out for all Moab;
⁹I will mourn for the men of Kir Heres.
^{32q}O vine of Sibmah! I will weep for you with the weeping of ^rJazer.
Your plants have gone over the sea,
They reach to the sea of Jazer.
The plunderer has fallen on your summer fruit and your vintage.
^{33s}Joy and gladness are taken

From the plentiful field
And from the land of Moab;
I have caused wine to ¹⁰fail from the winepresses;
No one will tread with joyous shouting—
Not joyous shouting!

³⁴“From^t the cry of Heshbon to ^uElealeh and to Jahaz
They have uttered their voice,
^vFrom Zoar to Horonaim,
Like ¹¹a three-year-old heifer;
For the waters of Nimrim also shall be desolate.

³⁵“Moreover,” says the LORD,
“I will cause to cease in Moab
^wThe one who offers sacrifices in the ¹²high places
And burns incense to his gods.
³⁶Therefore ^xMy heart shall wail like flutes for Moab,
And like flutes My heart shall wail
For the men of Kir Heres.
Therefore ^ythe riches they have acquired have perished.

³⁷“For ^zevery head shall be bald, and every beard clipped;
On all the hands shall be cuts, and ^aon the loins sackcloth—
³⁸A general lamentation
On all the ^bhousetops of Moab,
And in its streets;
For I have ^cbroken Moab like a vessel in which is no pleasure,” says the LORD.

³⁹“They shall wail:
‘How she is broken down!
How Moab has turned her back with shame!’
So Moab shall be a derision
And a dismay to all those about her.”

⁴⁰For thus says the LORD:

“Behold, ^done shall fly like an eagle,
And ^espread his wings over Moab.

⁴¹Kerioth is taken,
And the strongholds are surprised;
^fThe mighty men's hearts in Moab on that day shall be
Like the heart of a woman in birth pangs.
⁴²And Moab shall be destroyed ^gas a people,
Because he exalted himself against the LORD.
^{43h}Fear and the pit and the snare shall be upon you,
O inhabitant of Moab," says the LORD.
⁴⁴"He who flees from the fear shall fall into the pit,
And he who gets out of the pit shall be caught in the ⁱsnare.
For upon Moab, upon it ^jI will bring
The year of their punishment," says the LORD.

⁴⁵"Those who fled stood under the shadow of Heshbon
Because of exhaustion.
But ^ka fire shall come out of Heshbon,
A flame from the midst of ^lSihon,
And ^mshall devour the brow of Moab,
The crown of the head of the sons of tumult.
⁴⁶ⁿWoe to you, O Moab!
The people of Chemosh perish;
For your sons have been taken captive,
And your daughters captive.

⁴⁷"Yet I will bring back the captives of Moab ^oIn the latter days," says the LORD.

Thus far is the judgment of Moab.

Jeremiah 49

Judgment on Ammon

¹Against the ^aAmmonites.

Thus says the LORD:

“Has Israel no sons?

Has he no heir?

Why then does ¹Milcom inherit ^bGad,

And his people dwell in its cities?

^{2c}Therefore behold, the days are coming,” says the LORD,

“That I will cause to be heard an alarm of war

In ^dRabbah of the Ammonites;

It shall be a desolate mound,

And her ²villages shall be burned with fire.

Then Israel shall take possession of his inheritance,” says the LORD.

³“Wail, O ^eHeshbon, for Ai is plundered!

Cry, you daughters of Rabbah,

^fGird yourselves with sackcloth!

Lament and run to and fro by the walls;

For ³Milcom shall go into captivity

With his ^gpriests and his princes together.

⁴Why ^hdo you boast in the valleys,

⁴Your flowing valley, O ⁱbacksliding daughter?

Who trusted in her ^jtreasures, ^ksaying,

‘Who will come against me?’

⁵Behold, I will bring fear upon you,”

Says the Lord GOD of hosts,

“From all those who are around you;

You shall be driven out, everyone headlong,

And no one will gather those who wander off.

⁶But ^lafterward I will bring back

The captives of the people of Ammon,” says the LORD.

Judgment on Edom

^{7m}Against Edom.

Thus says the LORD of hosts:

ⁿ“Is wisdom no more in Teman?

^oHas counsel perished from the prudent?

Has their wisdom ^pvanished?

⁸Flee, turn back, dwell in the depths, O inhabitants of ^qDedan!

For I will bring the calamity of Esau upon him,

The time that I will punish him.

^{9r}If grape-gatherers came to you,

Would they not leave some gleaning grapes?

If thieves by night,

Would they not destroy until they have enough?

^{10s}But I have made Esau bare;

I have uncovered his secret places,

And he shall not be able to hide himself.

His descendants are plundered,

His brethren and his neighbors,

And ^the is no more.

¹¹Leave your fatherless children,

I will preserve them alive;

And let your widows trust in Me.”

¹²For thus says the LORD: “Behold, ^uthose whose judgment was not to drink of the cup have assuredly drunk. And are you the one who will altogether go unpunished? You shall not go unpunished, but you shall surely drink of it. Word Studies: cup

¹³“For ^vI have sworn by Myself,” says the LORD, “that ^wBozrah shall become a desolation, a reproach, a ⁵waste, and a curse. And all its cities shall be perpetual ⁶wastes.”

^{14x}I have heard a message from the LORD,

And an ambassador has been sent to the nations:

“Gather together, come against her,

And rise up to battle!

¹⁵“For indeed, I will make you small among nations,
Despised among men.

¹⁶Your fierceness has deceived you,
The ^ypride of your heart,
O you who dwell in the clefts of the rock,
Who hold the height of the hill!
^zThough you make your ^anest as high as the eagle,
^bI will bring you down from there,” says the LORD.

¹⁷“Edom also shall be an astonishment;
^cEveryone who goes by it will be astonished
And will hiss at all its plagues.

^{18d}As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah
And their neighbors,” says the LORD,
“No one shall remain there,
Nor shall a son of man dwell in it.

¹⁹“Behold, ^e he shall come up like a lion from ^fthe ⁷floodplain of the Jordan
Against the dwelling place of the strong;
But I will suddenly make him run away from her.
And who is a chosen man that I may appoint over her?
For ^gwho is like Me?
Who will arraign Me?
And ^hwho is that shepherd
Who will withstand Me?” Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Lower Jordan Valley

²⁰ⁱTherefore hear the counsel of the LORD that He has taken against Edom,
And His purposes that He has proposed against the inhabitants of Teman:
Surely the least of the flock shall ⁸draw them out;
Surely He shall make their dwelling places desolate with them.

^{21j}The earth shakes at the noise of their fall;
At the cry its noise is heard at the Red Sea.

²²Behold, ^kHe shall come up and fly like the eagle,
And spread His wings over Bozrah;

The heart of the mighty men of Edom in that day shall be
Like the heart of a woman in birth pangs.

Judgment on Damascus

²³ⁱAgainst Damascus.

^m“Hamath and Arpad are shamed,
For they have heard bad news.
They are fainthearted;

ⁿ*There is* ⁹trouble on the sea;
It cannot be quiet.

²⁴Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.

^oAnguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in ¹⁰labor.

²⁵Why is ^pthe city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?

²⁶^qTherefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day,” says the LORD of hosts.

²⁷“^rI will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad.”

Judgment on Kedar and Hazor

^{28s}Against Kedar and against the kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon shall strike.

Thus says the LORD:

“Arise, go up to Kedar,
And devastate ^tthe men of the East!

²⁹Their ^utents and their flocks they shall take away.
They shall take for themselves their curtains,
All their vessels and their camels;
And they shall cry out to them,
^v‘Fear is on every side!’

³⁰“Flee, get far away! Dwell in the depths,
O inhabitants of Hazor!” says the LORD.
“For Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon has taken counsel against you,
And has conceived a plan against you.

³¹“Arise, go up to ^wthe wealthy nation that dwells securely,”
says the LORD,

“Which has neither gates nor bars,

^xDwelling alone.

³²Their camels shall be for booty,
And the multitude of their cattle for plunder.
I will ^yscatter to all winds those ¹¹in the farthest corners,
And I will bring their calamity from all its sides,” says the LORD.

³³“Hazor ^zshall be a dwelling for jackals, a desolation forever;
No one shall reside there,
Nor son of man dwell in it.”

Judgment on Elam

³⁴The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet against ^aElam, in the ^bbeginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying,

³⁵“Thus says the LORD of hosts:

‘Behold, I will break ^cthe ¹²bow of Elam,
The foremost of their might.

³⁶Against Elam I will bring the four winds
From the four quarters of heaven,
And scatter them toward all those winds;
There shall be no nations where the outcasts of Elam will not go.

³⁷For I will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies
And before those who seek their life.

^dI will bring disaster upon them,
My fierce anger,’ says the LORD;
‘And I will send the sword after them
Until I have consumed them.

³⁸I will ^eset My throne in Elam,
And will destroy from there the king and the princes,’ says
the LORD.

³⁹‘But it shall come to pass ^fin the latter days:

I will bring back the captives of Elam,’ says the LORD.” In-Text

Jeremiah 50

Judgment on Babylon and Babylonia

¹The word that the LORD spoke ^aagainst Babylon and against the land of the Chaldeans by Jeremiah the prophet.

²“Declare among the nations,
Proclaim, and ¹set up a standard;
Proclaim—do not conceal it—
Say, ‘Babylon is ^btaken, ^cBel is shamed.
²Merodach is broken in pieces;
^dHer idols are humiliated,
Her images are broken in pieces.’
^{3e}For out of the north ^fa nation comes up against her,
Which shall make her land desolate,
And no one shall dwell therein.
They shall ³move, they shall depart,
Both man and beast.

⁴“In those days and in that time,” says the LORD,
“The children of Israel shall come,
^gThey and the children of Judah together;
^hWith continual weeping they shall come,
ⁱAnd seek the LORD their God.
⁵They shall ask the way to Zion,
With their faces toward it, saying,
‘Come and let us join ourselves to the LORD
In ^ja perpetual covenant
That will not be forgotten.’

⁶“My people have been ^klost sheep.
Their shepherds have led them ^lastray;
They have turned them away on ^mthe mountains.
They have gone from mountain to hill;
They have forgotten their resting place.
⁷All who found them have ⁿdevoured them;
And ^otheir adversaries said, ^p‘We have not offended, Because they have sinned against the LORD, ^qthe habitation of justice,

The LORD, ^rthe hope of their fathers.’

⁸“Move^s from the midst of Babylon,
Go out of the land of the Chaldeans;
And be like the ⁴rams before the flocks.

⁹For behold, I will raise and cause to come up against Babylon

An assembly of great nations from the north country,
And they shall array themselves against her;
From there she shall be captured.

Their arrows shall be like those of ⁵an expert warrior;

^uNone shall return in vain.

¹⁰And Chaldea shall become plunder;

^vAll who plunder her shall be satisfied,” says the LORD.

¹¹“Because^w you were glad, because you rejoiced,
You destroyers of My heritage,
Because you have grown fat ^xlike a heifer threshing grain,
And you ⁶bellow like bulls,

¹²Your mother shall be deeply ashamed;
She who bore you shall be ashamed.

Behold, the least of the nations shall be a ^ywilderness,
A dry land and a desert.

¹³Because of the wrath of the LORD
She shall not be inhabited,

^zBut she shall be wholly desolate.

^aEveryone who goes by Babylon shall be horrified
And hiss at all her plagues.

¹⁴“Put^b yourselves in array against Babylon all around,
All you who bend the bow;
Shoot at her, spare no arrows,
For she has sinned against the LORD.

¹⁵Shout against her all around;

She has ^cgiven her hand,
Her foundations have fallen,

^dHer walls are thrown down;

For ^eit is the vengeance of the LORD.

Take vengeance on her.

As she has done, so do to her.

¹⁶Cut off the sower from Babylon,
And him who handles the sickle at harvest time.
For fear of the oppressing sword
^fEveryone shall turn to his own people,
And everyone shall flee to his own land.

¹⁷“Israel is like ^gscattered sheep;
^hThe lions have driven him away.
First ⁱthe king of Assyria devoured him;
Now at last this ^jNebuchadnezzar king of Babylon has broken his bones.”

¹⁸Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

“Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land,
As I have punished the king of ^kAssyria.

¹⁹But I will bring back Israel to his home,
And he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan;
His soul shall be satisfied on Mount Ephraim and Gilead.

²⁰In those days and in that time,” says the LORD,
^m“The iniquity of Israel shall be sought, but there shall be none;
And the sins of Judah, but they shall not be found;
For I will pardon those ⁿwhom I preserve.

²¹“Go up against the land of Merathaim, against it,
And against the inhabitants of ^oPekod.

⁷Waste and utterly destroy them,” says the LORD,
“And do ^paccording to all that I have commanded you.

^{22q}A sound of battle is in the land,
And of great destruction.

²³How ^rthe hammer of the whole earth has been cut apart and broken!

How Babylon has become a desolation among the nations!
I have laid a snare for you;

²⁴You have indeed been ^strapped, O Babylon,

And you were not aware;
You have been found and also caught,
Because you have ^tcontended against the LORD.

²⁵The LORD has opened His armory,
And has brought out ^uthe weapons of His indignation;
For this is the work of the Lord GOD of hosts
In the land of the Chaldeans.

²⁶Come against her from the farthest border;
Open her storehouses;
Cast her up as heaps of ruins,
And destroy her utterly;
Let nothing of her be left.

²⁷Slay all her ^vbulls,
Let them go down to the slaughter.
Woe to them!

For their day has come, the time of ^wtheir punishment.

²⁸The voice of those who flee and escape from the land of Babylon

^xDeclares in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God,
The vengeance of His temple.

²⁹“Call together the archers against Babylon.
All you who bend the bow, encamp against it all around;
Let none of them ⁸escape.

^yRepay her according to her work;
According to all she has done, do to her;
^zFor she has been proud against the LORD,
Against the Holy One of Israel.

^{30a}Therefore her young men shall fall in the streets,
And all her men of war shall be cut off in that day,” says the LORD.

³¹“Behold, I am against you,
O most haughty one!” says the Lord GOD of hosts;
“For your day has come,

⁹The time that I will punish you.

³²The most ^bproud shall stumble and fall,
And no one will raise him up;

^cI will kindle a fire in his cities,

And it will devour all around him.”

³³Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“The children of Israel were oppressed,
Along with the children of Judah;
All who took them captive have held them fast;
They have refused to let them go.

^{34d}Their Redeemer is strong;

^eThe LORD of hosts is His name.

He will thoroughly plead their ^fcase,
That He may give rest to the land,
And disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.

³⁵“A sword is against the Chaldeans,” says the LORD,

“Against the inhabitants of Babylon,
And ^gagainst her princes and ^hher wise men.

³⁶A sword is ⁱagainst the soothsayers, and they will be fools.

A sword is against her mighty men, and they will be dismayed.

³⁷A sword is against their horses,

Against their chariots,

And against all ^jthe mixed peoples who are in her midst;

And ^kthey will become like women.

A sword is against her treasures, and they will be robbed.

^{38l}A ¹⁰drought is against her waters, and they will be dried up.

For it is the land of carved images,

And they are insane with their idols. Article: Contemporary Pagans

³⁹“Therefore^m the wild desert beasts shall dwell there with the jackals,

And the ostriches shall dwell in it.

ⁿIt shall be inhabited no more forever,

Nor shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation.

^{40o}As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah

And their neighbors,” says the LORD,

“So no one shall reside there,

Nor son of man ^pdwell in it.

⁴¹“Behold,^q a people shall come from the north,
And a great nation and many kings
Shall be raised up from the ends of the earth.

⁴²^rThey shall hold the bow and the lance;
^sThey are cruel and shall not show mercy.
^tTheir voice shall roar like the sea;
They shall ride on horses,
Set in array, like a man for the battle,
Against you, O daughter of Babylon.

⁴³“The king of Babylon has ^uheard the report about them,
And his hands grow feeble;
Anguish has taken hold of him,
Pangs as of a woman in ^vchildbirth.

⁴⁴“Behold,^w he shall come up like a lion from the ¹¹floodplain of the Jordan
Against the dwelling place of the strong;
But I will make them suddenly run away from her.
And who is a chosen man that I may appoint over her?
For who is like Me?
Who will arraign Me?
And ^xwho is that shepherd
Who will withstand Me?”

⁴⁵Therefore hear ^ythe counsel of the LORD that He has taken against Babylon,
And His ^zpurposes that He has proposed against the land of the Chaldeans:

^aSurely the least of the flock shall draw them out;
Surely He will make their dwelling place desolate with them.

⁴⁶^bAt the noise of the taking of Babylon
The earth trembles,
And the cry is heard among the nations.

Jeremiah 51

The Utter Destruction of Babylon

¹Thus says the LORD:

“Behold, I will raise up against ^aBabylon,
Against those who dwell in ¹Leb Kamai,
^bA destroying wind.

²And I will send ^cwinnowers to Babylon,
Who shall winnow her and empty her land.

^dFor in the day of doom
They shall be against her all around.

³Against her ^elet the archer bend his bow,
And lift himself up against her in his armor.

Do not spare her young men;

^fUtterly destroy all her army.

⁴Thus the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, ^gAnd those thrust through in her streets.

⁵For Israel is ^hnot forsaken, nor Judah,

By his God, the LORD of hosts,

Though their land was filled with sin against the Holy One of Israel.”

⁶ⁱFlee from the midst of Babylon,

And every one save his life!

Do not be cut off in her iniquity,

For ^jthis is the time of the LORD’s vengeance;

^kHe shall recompense her.

^{7l}Babylon was a golden cup in the LORD’s hand,

That made all the earth drunk.

^mThe nations drank her wine;

Therefore the nations ⁿare deranged.

⁸Babylon has suddenly ^ofallen and been destroyed.

^pWail for her!

^qTake balm for her pain;

Perhaps she may be healed.

⁹We would have healed Babylon,

But she is not healed.

Forsake her, and ^rlet us go everyone to his own country; ^sFor her judgment reaches to heaven and is lifted up to the skies.

¹⁰The LORD has ^trevealed our righteousness.
Come and let us ^udeclare in Zion the work of the LORD our God.

^{11v}Make² the arrows bright!
Gather the shields!
^wThe LORD has raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes.
^xFor His plan is against Babylon to destroy it,
Because it is ^ythe vengeance of the LORD,
The vengeance for His temple.

^{12z}Set up the standard on the walls of Babylon;
Make the guard strong,
Set up the watchmen,
Prepare the ambushes.
For the LORD has both devised and done
What He spoke against the inhabitants of Babylon.

^{13a}O you who dwell by many waters,
Abundant in treasures,
Your end has come,
The measure of your covetousness.

^{14b}The LORD of hosts has sworn by Himself:
“Surely I will fill you with men, ^cas with locusts,
And they shall lift ^dup a shout against you.”

^{15e}He has made the earth by His power;
He has established the world by His wisdom,
And ^fstretched out the heaven by His understanding.

¹⁶When He utters His voice—
There is a multitude of waters in the heavens:
^g“He causes the vapors to ascend from the ends of the earth;
He makes lightnings for the rain;
He brings the wind out of His treasures.”

^{17h}Everyone is dull-hearted, without knowledge;
Every metalsmith is put to shame by the carved image;

ⁱFor his molded image is falsehood,
And there is no breath in them.

¹⁸They are futile, a work of errors;
In the time of their punishment they shall perish.

¹⁹The Portion of Jacob is not like them,
For He is the Maker of all things;
And Israel is the tribe of His inheritance.
The LORD of hosts is His name.

²⁰“You^j are My battle-ax and weapons of war:

For with you I will break the nation in pieces;
With you I will destroy kingdoms;

²¹With you I will break in pieces the horse and its rider;
With you I will break in pieces the chariot and its rider;

²²With you also I will break in pieces man and woman;
With you I will break in pieces ^kold and young;

With you I will break in pieces the young man and the maiden;

²³With you also I will break in pieces the shepherd and his flock;

With you I will break in pieces the farmer and his yoke of oxen;

And with you I will break in pieces governors and rulers.

²⁴“And^l I will repay Babylon

And all the inhabitants of Chaldea

For all the evil they have done

In Zion in your sight,” says the LORD.

²⁵“Behold, I am against you, ^mO destroying mountain,
Who destroys all the earth,” says the LORD.

“And I will stretch out My hand against you,
Roll you down from the rocks,

ⁿAnd make you a burnt mountain.

²⁶They shall not take from you a stone for a corner
Nor a stone for a foundation,

^oBut you shall be desolate forever,” says the LORD.

^{27p}Set up a banner in the land,
Blow the trumpet among the nations!
^qPrepare the nations against her,
Call ^rthe kingdoms together against her:
Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz.
Appoint a general against her;
Cause the horses to come up like the bristling locusts.
²⁸Prepare against her the nations,
With the kings of the Medes,
Its governors and all its rulers,
All the land of his dominion.
²⁹And the land will tremble and sorrow;
For every ^spurpose of the LORD shall be performed against Babylon,
^tTo make the land of Babylon a desolation without inhabitant.
³⁰The mighty men of Babylon have ceased fighting,
They have remained in their strongholds;
Their might has failed,
^uThey became like women;
They have burned her dwelling places,
^vThe bars of her gate are broken.
^{31w}One runner will run to meet another,
And one messenger to meet another,
To show the king of Babylon that his city is taken on all sides;
^{32x}The passages are blocked,
The reeds they have burned with fire,
And the men of war are terrified.

³³For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

“The daughter of Babylon is ^ylike a threshing floor
When ^z*it* is time to thresh her;

Yet a little while

^aAnd the time of her harvest will come.”

³⁴“Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon

Has ^bdevoured me, he has crushed me;

He has made me an ^cempty vessel,

He has swallowed me up like a monster;

He has filled his stomach with my delicacies,

He has spit me out.

³⁵Let the violence done to me and my flesh be upon Babylon,”

The inhabitant of Zion will say;

“And my blood be upon the inhabitants of Chaldea!”

Jerusalem will say.

³⁶Therefore thus says the LORD:

“Behold, ^dI will plead your case and take vengeance for you.

^eI will dry up her sea and make her springs dry.

^{37f}Babylon shall become a heap,

A dwelling place for jackals,

^gAn astonishment and a hissing,

Without an inhabitant.

³⁸They shall roar together like lions,

They shall growl like lions’ whelps.

³⁹In their excitement I will prepare their feasts;

^hI will make them drunk,

That they may rejoice,

And sleep a perpetual sleep
And not awake,” says the LORD.

⁴⁰“I will bring them down
Like lambs to the slaughter,
Like rams with male goats.

⁴¹“Oh, how ⁱSheshach³ is taken!
Oh, how ^jthe praise of the whole earth is seized!
How Babylon has become desolate among the nations!

^{42k}The sea has come up over Babylon;
She is covered with the multitude of its waves.

^{43l}Her cities are a desolation,
A dry land and a wilderness,
A land where ^mno one dwells,
Through which no son of man passes.

⁴⁴I will punish ⁿBel⁴ in Babylon,
And I will bring out of his mouth what he has swallowed;
And the nations shall not stream to him anymore.
Yes, ^othe wall of Babylon shall fall.

⁴⁵“My^p people, go out of the midst of her!
And let everyone deliver ⁵himself from the fierce anger of the LORD.

⁴⁶And lest your heart faint,
And you fear ^qfor the rumor that will be heard in the land
(A rumor will come one year,
And after that, in another year
A rumor will come,
And violence in the land,
Ruler against ruler),

⁴⁷Therefore behold, the days are coming
That I will bring judgment on the carved images of Babylon;
Her whole land shall be ashamed,
And all her slain shall fall in her midst.

⁴⁸Then ^rthe heavens and the earth and all that is in them
Shall sing joyously over Babylon;

^sFor the plunderers shall come to her from the north,” says the LORD.

⁴⁹As Babylon has caused the slain of Israel to fall,
So at Babylon the slain of all the earth shall fall.

⁵⁰You who have escaped the sword,
Get away! Do not stand still!
^uRemember the LORD afar off,
And let Jerusalem come to your mind.

⁵¹^vWe are ashamed because we have heard reproach.
Shame has covered our faces,
For strangers ^whave come into the ⁶sanctuaries of the LORD's house.

⁵²"Therefore behold, the days are coming," says the LORD,
"That I will bring judgment on her carved images,
And throughout all her land the wounded shall groan.
⁵³^xThough Babylon were to ⁷mount up to heaven,
And though she were to fortify the height of her strength,
Yet from Me plunderers would come to her," says the LORD.

⁵⁴^yThe sound of a cry comes from Babylon,
And great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans,
⁵⁵Because the LORD is plundering Babylon
And silencing her loud voice,
Though her waves roar like great waters,
And the noise of their voice is uttered,
⁵⁶Because the plunderer comes against her, against Babylon,
And her mighty men are taken.
Every one of their bows is broken;
^zFor the LORD is the God of recompense,
He will surely repay.

⁵⁷"And I will make drunk
Her princes and ^awise men,
Her governors, her deputies, and her mighty men.
And they shall sleep a perpetual sleep
And not awake," says ^bthe King,
Whose name is the LORD of hosts.

⁵⁸Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“The broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly ^cbroken,⁸
And her high gates shall be burned with fire;
^dThe people will labor in vain,
And the nations, because of the fire;
And they shall be weary.”

Jeremiah's Command to Seraiah

⁵⁹The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah the son of ^eNeriaah, the son of Mahseiah, when he went with Zedekiah the king of Judah to Babylon in the fourth year of his reign. And Seraiah was the quartermaster.

⁶⁰So Jeremiah ^fwrote in a book all the evil that would come upon Babylon, all these words that are written against Babylon.

⁶¹And Jeremiah said to Seraiah, “When you arrive in Babylon and see it, and read all these words, ⁶²“then you shall say, ‘O LORD, You have spoken against this place to cut it off, so that ^gnone shall remain in it, neither man nor beast, but it shall be desolate forever.’

⁶³“Now it shall be, when you have finished reading this book, ^hthat you shall tie a stone to it and throw it out into the Euphrates.

⁶⁴“Then you shall say, ‘Thus Babylon shall sink and not rise from the catastrophe that I will bring upon her. And they shall be weary.’ ” Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

Jeremiah 52

The Fall of Jerusalem Reviewed

(2 Kin. 24:18—25:26; 2 Chr. 36:11–20; Jer. 39:1–10)

¹Zedekiah was ^atwenty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of ^bLibnah.

²He also did evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

³For because of the anger of the LORD this happened in Jerusalem and Judah, till He finally cast them out from His presence. Then Zedekiah ^crebelled against the king of Babylon.

⁴Now it came to pass in the ^dninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and encamped against it; and they built a siege wall against it all around.

⁵So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.

⁶By the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, the famine had become so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land.

⁷Then the city wall was broken through, and all the men of war fled and went out of the city at night by way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden, even though the Chaldeans were near the city all around. And they went by way of the ¹plain.

⁸But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and they overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. All his army was scattered from him.

^{9e}So they took the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, and he pronounced judgment on him.

^{10f}Then the king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes. And he killed all the princes of Judah in Riblah.

¹¹He also ^gput out the eyes of Zedekiah; and the king of Babylon bound him in ²bronze fetters, took him to Babylon, and put him in prison till the day of his death.

The Temple and City Plundered and Burned

^{12h}Now in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month (ⁱwhich was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon), ^jNebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, who served the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem.

¹³He burned the house of the LORD and the king's house; all the houses of Jerusalem, that is, all the houses of the great, he burned with fire.

¹⁴And all the army of the Chaldeans who were with the captain of the guard broke down all the walls of Jerusalem all around.

¹⁵^kThen Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive some of the poor people, the rest of the people who remained in the city, the defectors who had deserted to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the craftsmen.

¹⁶But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left some of the poor of the land as vinedressers and farmers.

¹⁷The ^mbronze pillars that were in the house of the LORD, and the carts and the bronze Sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces, and carried all their bronze to Babylon.

¹⁸They also took away ⁿthe pots, the shovels, the trimmers, the ³bowls, the spoons, and all the bronze utensils with which the priests ministered.

¹⁹The basins, the firepans, the bowls, the pots, the lampstands, the spoons, and the cups, whatever was solid gold and whatever was solid silver, the captain of the guard took away.

²⁰The two pillars, one Sea, the twelve bronze bulls which were under it, and the carts, which King Solomon had made for the house of the LORD —^othe bronze of all these articles was beyond measure.

²¹Now concerning the ^ppillars: the height of one pillar was eighteen ⁴cubits, a measuring line of twelve cubits could measure its circumference, and its thickness was ⁵four fingers; it was hollow.

²²A capital of bronze was on it; and the height of one capital was five cubits, with a network and pomegranates all around the capital, all of bronze. The second pillar, with pomegranates was the same.

²³There were ninety-six pomegranates on the sides; ^qall the pomegranates, all around on the network, were one hundred.

The People Taken Captive to Babylonia

²⁴^rThe captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief priest, ^sZephaniah the second priest, and the three doorkeepers.

²⁵He also took out of the city an ⁶officer who had charge of the men of war, seven men of the king's close associates who were found in the city, the principal scribe of the army who mustered the people of the land, and sixty men of the people of the land who were found in the midst of the city.

²⁶And Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took these and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah.

²⁷Then the king of Babylon struck them and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. Thus Judah was carried away captive from its own land.

²⁸*r*These are the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive: *u*in the seventh year, *v*three thousand and twenty-three Jews;

²⁹*w*in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem eight hundred and thirty-two persons;

³⁰in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Jews seven hundred and forty-five persons. All the persons were four thousand six hundred.

Jehoiachin Released from Prison

(2 Kin. 25:27–30)

^{31x}Now it came to pass in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth day of the month, that ⁷Evil-Merodach king of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, ^ylifted⁸ up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah and brought him out of prison.

³²And he spoke kindly to him and gave him a more prominent seat than those of the kings who were with him in Babylon.

³³So ⁹Jehoiachin changed from his prison garments, ^zand he ate bread regularly before the king all the days of his life.

³⁴And as for his provisions, there was a regular ration given him by the king of Babylon, a portion for each day until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

Annotations for Jeremiah

- 1:1 The name Jeremiah probably means either “The Lord Exalts” or “The Lord Establishes.”
- 1:2 The word of the LORD came literally to Jeremiah. He did not speak out of his own imagination, as did false prophets like Hananiah (28:1, 2). Jeremiah spoke as God revealed His word and will. Jeremiah’s call to ministry came in the thirteenth year of Josiah, who reigned 31 years.
- 1:3 Jeremiah’s ministry as a prophet lasted from the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim (608 B.C.) to the eleventh year of Zedekiah and the fall of Jerusalem (586 B.C.). Gedaliah was appointed governor over the peasant-populated Judah after the Babylonians, under Nebuchadnezzar, had deported the leading citizens of Jerusalem. Jeremiah continued ministering until he was taken unwillingly to Egypt following the assassination of Gedaliah.
- 1:4 the word of the LORD came: A standard way of introducing a divine oracle at the beginning of a prophetic book (see Ezek. 1:3; Hos. 1:1; Joel 1:1; Jon. 1:1; Mic. 1:1; Zeph. 1:1; Hag. 1:1; Zech. 1:1).
- 1:5 Jeremiah was keenly aware that the call of God in his life had been determined by God from before his conception. As God’s word became a reality in his life, the prophet understood that God knew him and had called him to proclaim a critical message at a crucial point in the history of the nation. The word knew refers to an intimate knowledge that comes from relationship and personal commitment. That intimate relationship was made apparent in God’s sanctifying work, whereby Jeremiah was “set apart” (made holy) for special service. Jeremiah’s role was to be a prophet to the nation of Judah as well as a messenger of God for all nations.
- 1:6 Like Moses, who was called to speak to the Pharaoh of Egypt at a decisive point in Israel’s history, Jeremiah was called to address the kings of Judah and leaders of Babylon. Jeremiah’s doubts concerning his power to speak before the nations’ leaders were due to his youth. The word youth can refer to a wide range of ages—from infancy up to the teen years. The term can also refer to a servant of any age.
- 1:7, 8 Jeremiah would not go and speak alone or of his own accord, but according to the word of the Lord and with His powerful presence. The term deliver is used in Jeremiah to indicate the saving of the people from their captors (15:20, 21), the deliverance of the poor from their oppressors (20:13), and the safety of the prophet from possible harm before national leaders. I am with you: Twice in his call (see also v. 19), God reassured Jeremiah of His presence and protection. In moments of personal crisis, Jeremiah prayed these words back to God (20:11).
- 1:9 Jeremiah is commissioned for his task and the essence of his message is outlined. I have put My words in your mouth: The source of Jeremiah’s message was clearly the Lord, but the message would be expressed through the personality, experience, and artistry of the prophet. This verse gives us an understanding of the dual nature of Scripture. The message is the Lord’s; its expression is accomplished through His servants the prophets (see Heb. 1:1).
- 1:10 I have . . . set you over the nations: The nations were instruments in God’s purpose of revealing Himself. The Lord would use Babylon to punish Judah, and then He would use the Persians to punish Babylon. The phrasing here suggests the official appointment of a person to an authoritative position, as when Nebuchadnezzar appointed Gedaliah governor of Judah. With God’s words in his mouth, Jeremiah had the authority to stand before any ruler. To root out and to pull down . . . To build and to plant: Judgment and restoration were the two messages of the prophet of God. The words root out, pull down, destroy, throw down, build, and plant are repeated at key points in the Book of Jeremiah to reaffirm Jeremiah’s call (18:7; 24:6; 31:28; 42:10; 45:4).

(Heb. banah) (1:10; 24:6; Gen. 22:9; Is. 45:13) Strong's #1129

Things described as built using this word are “a new house” in Deut. 20:5, “the altar” in Deut. 27:6, and “the house of the LORD” in 1 Kin. 6:1. The expression “build a house” can also refer to establishing a family (Ruth 4:11) or a dynasty (Ps. 89:4). The word may also be used in the sense of “rebuilding” or “restoring” something that has been destroyed or is in disrepair (Neh. 2:17). Jeremiah’s commission as God’s prophet included the task of building and planting (1:10). In the present context the term is used figuratively of the prophetic ministry of restoring the people of God, or spiritually rebuilding Israel as the people of God, after the Exile (31:4).

- 1:11, 12 God confirmed His call to Jeremiah with two visions. The first vision involved an almond tree, which blossoms when other trees are still dormant. The almond tree served as a harbinger of spring, as though it “watched over” the beginning of the season. In a similar fashion, God was “watching over” His word, ready to bring judgment on Israel.
- 1:13, 14 The second vision God used to confirm Jeremiah’s call involved a boiling pot that was tilted toward the south, indicating the direction in which the pot’s contents would be spilled. The calamity suggested by this vision was an enemy attack on Judah and Jerusalem from the north. In 20:4, Jeremiah finally identifies this enemy as Babylon. Babylon itself was east of Jerusalem, but the road went around the desert and approached from the north.
- 1:15 The calamity from the north (v. 14) would involve a siege of Jerusalem and all the cities of Judah. I am calling: The use of the first-person pronoun indicates that it was God Himself who was at war with His people.
- 1:16 One of the main reasons for God’s judgment on Judah and Jerusalem was Israel’s worship of other gods. God is not one among many; He alone is God of Israel (see Deut. 6:4). Burned incense: The Hebrew term meaning “to burn” or “to make smoke” is used 19 times in Jeremiah, all in the context of burning sacrifices to other gods. worshipped: The term means “to cause oneself to bow down” in honor or service of God or man. The first and foremost commandment (see Ex. 20:3) had been broken.
- 1:17 Prepare yourself is literally “gird up your loins,” or tuck your robe in your belt so you can run (see 1 Sam. 2:4). Do not be dismayed: If Jeremiah shrank back in terror before the men God had commanded him to confront, God Himself would bring terror into the prophet’s life.
- 1:18 Jeremiah’s position is phrased in military language, emphasizing the certainty that God would fight for him. God made Jeremiah an impregnable fortified city with bronze walls. Jeremiah’s defense system could not be battered down or tunneled under by men and armies. kings . . . princes . . . priests . . . people: This list of the various types of people in Israel suggests that the entire nation would be against Jeremiah.

Jeremiah's Faith

Some might consider Jeremiah the model of faithfulness, while others might think of him as an example of failure and futility. He served as God's prophet for over 40 years, yet the rulers and the people of Judah did not listen to his warnings. Jeremiah was put in prison, thrown into a well, and taken to Egypt against his will. He was not allowed to marry. He was rejected by his friends, neighbors, family, false priests and prophets, and kings. Jeremiah stood alone in his call for the people to repent and turn to God. He warned them time and time again of their impending punishment. And even though much of what he prophesied came true during his ministry, the people and the leaders continued to ignore him.

Yet through all the hardship and humiliation he was forced to endure, Jeremiah remained obedient and faithful to God. Although at first he questioned God's calling, once he accepted his position he became a model of perseverance and devotion. After enduring decades of abuse, threats, and outright indifference, Jeremiah could easily have turned his back and walked away. But he knew that was exactly the problem God had told him to warn the people about. The people had turned away from God's will, and Jeremiah was not about to do the same. Some may look back at his ministry and consider it a failure because the people did not respond to his call. In reality, his life was a glorious success because Jeremiah remained faithful to his God. He may not have seen immediate results, but his struggle to obey God in a world that had turned wholesale away from its Creator has inspired generations of believers.

1:19 The people and their leaders would fight against Jeremiah and his message, but they would not overcome because God Himself protects and fights for the faithful.

2:1–3 Chapter 2 is presented in the form of a covenant lawsuit, an indictment brought by God against His people (2:1-3:5). Jeremiah challenged the people of Judah to remember God. The betrothal period between God and Israel in the wilderness was a time when Israel went after, or worshiped, the Lord. The nation of Israel is referred to as the firstfruits, which rightfully belonged to God (see Deut. 26:1–11) and holiness, something set apart for God's glory. In the time of Jeremiah, the people of Judah no longer remembered the days when their grandfathers and grandmothers had worshiped and obeyed God.

2:5 Idols means “futility,” “vapor,” or “worthlessness.” The Hebrew word translated followed is used in the books of Jeremiah and Deuteronomy to describe the worship of idols and other gods. they . . . have become idolaters: Those who serve idols, which are only vapor, become like vapor themselves.

2:6 In pursuing other gods, the people of Israel lost sight of their identity as the elect of God. They forgot how God had delivered them from oppression in Egypt and had given them food, water, and protection in the wilderness for 40 years.

2:7 God's guiding hand had brought Israel out of the desert and into a bountiful country, the region of Carmel, with its luxurious trees and vineyards. Israel had enjoyed the bounty of the land flowing with milk and honey, but then turned God's beautiful heritage into a polluted abomination. The word heritage refers to God's possession of the land that He bestowed upon the nation.

- 2:8 The people had not sought the Lord, nor had the priests, rulers, or prophets. Those who should have known God most intimately did not know Him at all. The rulers transgressed against God and His covenant. The prophets prophesied in the name of Baal rather than God.
- 2:9 Charges of apostasy and idolatry are formally presented in 2:9–13.
- 2:10, 11 The only nation whose god was truly God, was at the same time the only nation that exchanged its God for others.
- 2:13 God's people had forsaken (1:16) Him and served worthless deities. God, the fountain of living waters, offered a limitless supply of fresh, life-giving sustenance. Instead the people chose broken cisterns, which were useless for storing water and useless for sustaining life.
- 2:14 Israel was not founded to be a servant or homeborn slave. Yet the nation that God set free from slavery and oppression had placed itself in the position of a servant, enslaved by Assyria and Egypt.
- 2:15 Assyria—the young lions—laid waste to Israel and Judah during several invasions between 734 and 701 B.C.
- 2:16 Egypt forced Judah into a vassal relationship. The Egyptians had broken the crown of Israel's head by killing Josiah. Noph is Memphis, the capital of Lower Egypt. Tahpanhes was in the eastern Nile delta.
- 2:18 Sihor means “Black” and refers to the Nile River. The word River refers to the Euphrates, which is associated with Assyria. Tragically, the people of Judah had left the everlasting fountain of God for the broken cisterns of Assyria and Egypt (v. 13).
- 2:19 Backslidings means “turnings.” Israel had turned in every direction for help except to the true source of safety and security. The phrase says the Lord GOD of hosts confirms the severity of the crime and the certainty of the punishment about to befall the people of God.
- 2:20 Israel had broken its yoke like a beast, even though the people had promised to be faithful when they came into the land (see Josh. 24:24). Instead, idolatrous abandonment of God had pervaded the land: on every high hill and under every green tree. The term harlot is a figurative way of referring to unfaithfulness to God, and in addition it may refer to the ritual prostitution of Canaanite and Phoenician fertility cults.
- 2:21 Noble vine refers to the lush vines of the Sorek valley, which runs from Jerusalem to the Mediterranean through some of the richest farmland in the country. Judah became an alien vine, fertilized by foreign gods (see Is. 5).
- 2:23–25 The picture of the wild dromedary, a female camel in heat, and a wild donkey mad with lust vividly portrays the craving of Israel for foreign gods.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Dromedary (Camel)

To the Hebrews, camels (gamal) were predominantly a beast of burden. Camels are bad-tempered, a bit dense, and complain when they have to carry a load, but they can cope with a hot, harsh environment. Long legs keep the camel's belly comfortably away from the blazing sands. The camel conserves water. Its thick wool coat provides natural insulation as it maintains an even body temperature and hardly perspires. A thirsty camel may gulp 25 gallons of water but can go for long periods without food or water. The dromedary camel has one hump—a mass of muscle and fat that serves as its reserve fuel tank. After an arduous journey, the hump may become floppy and soft and have to be built up again.

- 2:29, 30 The term plead recalls the charges made by God against Israel in v. 9. The people tried to plead their case, but Jeremiah repeated God's charge of rebellion (v. 8). God, the Sovereign Lord, chastened His children repeatedly, but they devoured His spokesmen the prophets like hungry mountain lions.
- 2:31, 32 A virgin bride could hardly forget the wedding sash that was the sign of her new status. Yet God's bride Israel had forgotten her wedding adornment—God Himself.
- 2:33 taught the wicked women: This phrase implies that Judah had become so skilled in adulterous ways that they could have instructed prostitutes in new methods of seduction.
- 2:34, 35 The blood . . . of the poor innocents: Provision for the poor was specifically commanded in the Law (see Deut. 15:7–11).
- 2:36, 37 Israel turned every direction but to the Lord. Appealing to Egypt would have been as fruitless as appealing to Assyria had been in the past. With your hands on your head: This was a gesture of grief and remorse—in this case, over Israel's futile pursuits.
- 3:1 Deuteronomy 24:1–4 forbids a man to remarry his divorced wife if she has remarried and been divorced in the meantime. The implication is that the woman has been defiled by the second marriage. After forsaking God, Israel had taken many other lovers—that is, the nation worshiped many other gods. Yet the Lord in His mercy still extended His loving hand to His unfaithful bride. The word return implies repentance (5:3).
- 3:2 desolate heights: This term parallels the high hills of 2:20. Upon these barren heights Israel committed physical and spiritual adultery. The word lain has strong sexual connotations. Like Arabs who were known for ambushing caravans, Israel lustily sought other gods.
- 3:3 Showers and latter rain refer to the two types of rain that fall in Israel in the spring, from March to early April. These rains are vital in the dry land. Even the punishment of drought did not soften Israel's harlot's forehead. This term may refer to a distinguishing mark of slaves, or it may describe a person's character (see Ezek. 3:8). Israel was like a prostitute who was totally unashamed.

Word Studies guide

(Heb. 'alluph) (3:4; Prov. 2:17; 16:28; Mic. 7:5) Strong's #441

The Hebrew word translated as guide here means “friend.” Israel’s appeal based on God’s friendship with them will avail them nothing due to their hardness of heart (v. 3). This word is translated companion in Prov. 2:17; Mic. 7:5, where the subjects are human. In Ps. 55:13 the treachery of a false friend is reproached.

Go to the List of Word Studies

3:6 The reign of Josiah (640–609 B.C.) followed the idolatrous reigns of Manasseh (697–642 B.C.) and Amon (642–640 B.C.). On every high mountain and under every green tree echoes the words of 2:20 (see also v. 2).

3:7 Return means to “return” to God in faith (5:3). Judah had witnessed Israel’s refusal to repent.

3:8 Adultery is forbidden by one of the Ten Commandments (see Deut. 5:18), the heart of the covenant. Because of Israel’s adultery, the Lord presented her with a certificate of divorce based on Deut. 24:1–4. As a consequence, in 722 B.C. Israel was taken captive by Assyria, and Samaria was destroyed. Judah looked on but did not learn from Israel’s example.

3:10 Judah pretended to repent in times of distress, but did not actually turn with its heart to the Lord (see Deut. 6:5; 10:16). The heart means the people’s will, mind, and emotion.

3:11 Because it had not learned from Israel’s example, Judah was considered more treacherous than Israel.

3:12 The cry toward the north may indicate a summons for the northern kingdom in the days of Josiah to repent. Return, backsliding Israel: If the people turned in repentance (3:1, 7; 5:3), God’s anger would not come upon them. The basis of this appeal is that God is merciful, faithful to His covenant promise.

3:13 Iniquity refers to the breaking of the covenant commandments. Israel’s rebellious iniquity is identified as the pursuit of alien gods, idolatry committed throughout the land.

3:14 To marry in this context means to become lord or master. In other words married describes the covenant relation between God and Israel. take you . . . bring you: The remnant of Israel would be united with the remnant of Judah on Mt. Zion in Jerusalem.

3:15 shepherds: Throughout the Bible the image of the shepherd is an important one. God provides shepherds for His people to watch over them, guide them, care for them, and lead them. From Moses in the OT to Jesus in the New, God provides faithful, devoted leaders after His own heart. God rules with a heart of knowledge and understanding, not falsehood and deceit.

3:16 God ordained that His shepherds would lead Israel through a time of blessing, increase in numbers, and material prosperity. In that future time, the highest symbol of God’s presence, the ark of the covenant, would no longer be central to the true religion of Israel. God Himself would be central to Jewish worship.

3:17 Jerusalem, not the ark of the covenant, would be The Throne of the LORD and the focal point of the world’s religion. The name of the LORD summarizes the essence of His character and His relationship with His people (see Ex. 3; 14; 15).

- 3:18 Restoration and reunification of Israel, unknown since the days of David and Solomon, would be brought about by God Himself. From the north, the direction from which Israel's enemies typically came, God would bring back His people and bless them in the land of promise, under the Lord's chosen Shepherd—the Messiah.
- 3:19 The possession of the land was always dependent on the covenant faithfulness of Israel to their God. The Lord's desire has always been to bless His people.
- 3:21 The confessions and prayers of the people are voiced in the midst of their idolatry. Their cries were but idle words, because they had forgotten their God.
- 3:22 The call to repentance of v. 14 is reiterated in words strongly reminiscent of Hos. 14:1–4. The confession begins with acknowledgment of the Lord as God in accordance with the First Commandment (Ex. 20:2, 3).
- 3:23 The term vain, meaning “falsehood,” is found 37 times in Jeremiah, often in reference to idolatry and false prophecy (see 5:2; 7:4, 9). The mountains were centers of idol worship and thus were strongholds of falsehood. True salvation or deliverance could be found only in the true God of Israel.
- 3:24 Shame is a euphemism for idolatry, which had consumed Israel's thoughts, their flocks and fields, and even their children. The reference to children recalls the human sacrifices in the Valley of Hinnom in the days of Manasseh.
- 3:25 The people acknowledged the shame and reproach that they had brought upon themselves. They had sinned against God since their days of youth in the wilderness.
- 4:1 The term abominations or “detestable objects” is usually used in the context of idolatry in the OT (7:30). You shall not be moved implies that repentant Israel would be unwavering in its faith in God.
- 4:2 The LORD lives: This phrase was regularly used in oaths. When spoken by those faithful to the covenant it should have been a sign of truth, judgment, and righteousness. These three terms summarize the ultimate and ideal demands of the covenant. They are the standards by which all men, from kings to slaves, were and will be judged. bless themselves: The results of Israel's justice and righteousness would have international consequences. See God's promise to Abraham in Gen. 12:1–3, that other nations would be blessed through his descendants.
- 4:3 fallow ground: This is unused soil, not a regularly plowed field. Israel needed a new field in which to sow its seed of faithfulness, a radical departure from its ways of sin and idolatry.
- 4:4 Circumcise: Circumcision was a sign of the covenant relationship between Israel and God (see Gen. 17:10–14). The intent of God was always that the outward symbol should be a sign of an inward reality of total devotion to Him (see Deut. 10:12–21). fury: Jeremiah's stern warning of judgment is given with the picture of an unquenchable fire (see Joel 2:3). If the people did not repent of evil, destruction would come.
- 4:5 Jeremiah announced the judgment of Judah and Jerusalem with the alarming sound of a trumpet, literally a shofar made of a ram's horn. This was the instrument used to sound the alarm when an enemy attacked a city.
- 4:6 Standard may refer to signal fires that connected Jerusalem with the perimeter fortresses of Judah. Since the foe from the north was yet unidentified by Jeremiah, this prophecy probably dates from between 622 and 609 B.C. All of Israel's enemies except Egypt came from the north. Later on, Jeremiah identified this enemy as Babylon.
- 4:7 Destruction would come as a terrible surprise, like a lion . . . from his thicket pouncing suddenly upon its prey. The desolation of the land and the deportation of the people would be the result.
- 4:8 Sackcloth was a rough-textured fabric worn as a sign of mourning or distress (6:26). fierce anger: The burning wrath of God would come as an inextinguishable fire.
- 4:10 Even Jeremiah was overwhelmed at what God was about to bring upon Jerusalem. This passage indicates the deep inner struggle Jeremiah faced in his proclamation of the divine message.

Jeremiah challenged God's dealings with His people, claiming that God had deceived the people with a message of peace. False prophets like Hananiah foretold a time of peace when in reality despair was more in order.

4:11, 12 The sirocco wind comes from the deserts east and south of Israel, bringing scorching heat and whirling dust. The divine winds of judgment would bring destruction to Jerusalem, the daughter of God. This last phrase is particularly touching; Jacob is God's "son," and Jerusalem is His "daughter" (see 4:31; 6:2).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The Desert Winds

Wind is both a boon and a bane to Palestine. The hot climate is eased by cool Mediterranean winds during the day. Chill evenings provide a welcome change from the day's heat in desert and hill country. The moisture-laden sea winds combine with cool air at night to give Palestine its vital dew. A southeasterly wind marks the change of seasons in Palestine, from spring to summer and from summer to fall. Jeremiah 4:11 mentions "a dry wind of the desolate heights [that] blows in the wilderness." This dry wind loaded with dust makes the people very uncomfortable.

The Bible's "east wind" (Jer. 18:17) may be what the Arabs call a khamsin. This wind leaves people irritable and feeling like doing nothing because of the oppressive heat. Jonah may have experienced this: "God prepared a vehement east wind; and the sun beat on Jonah's head" (Jon. 4:8).

4:13 Judah had become the foe of God, and He would use the nation's international foes to discipline them. The imagery of clouds and chariots like a whirlwind portray the thoroughness and swiftness of God's judgment. The people would respond in horror to their fate.

- 4:14 The word wash is used in Leviticus and Numbers to describe the cleansing of garments that had become defiled through contact with unclean objects or diseases. Cleansing of the heart is foundational to salvation (see Is. 1:18–20).
- 4:15 Dan: The most northern city of Israel proper. Dan was conquered by Tiglath-Pileser III in 733 B.C. and was incorporated as part of an Assyrian province. The city continued to be occupied through the Assyrian period by remnants of the northern kingdom and by foreigners who had been settled there. Ephraim was in the southernmost region of the northern kingdom of Israel. The message is clear. Just as Israel had been subjugated, Judah was also in danger.
- 4:16, 17 Jeremiah, the prophet to the nations, announced the attack of foreign enemies who would raise their battle cries against Judah.
- 4:19, 20 Soul here means “bowels” or “belly,” a reference to the internal organs. In ancient Middle Eastern thought, the internal organs were the seat of emotions and feelings. The term describes Jeremiah’s inward anguish over the coming destruction of Jerusalem. The phrase makes a noise depicts the “groaning” of the prophet’s heart at the sound of the trumpet announcing Judah’s destruction (v. 5). The destruction of Judah extended to the entire land, even to Jeremiah’s own dwelling place, adding to his misery.
- 4:22 Foolish describes the character of the people. The terms foolish and silly are contrary to the terms knowledge and understanding. God described His people as impudent children. They were wise in the ways of evil, but totally deficient in knowing how to do good.
- 4:23 without form, and void: This Hebrew phrase is the same one used in Gen. 1:2 to describe the chaos before the ordering of the cosmos. no light: The prophets spoke of darkness as part of God’s judgment on the world. Here the lack of light describes the disastrous effects of sin on creation, particularly on the land of Judah.
- 4:24, 25 The symbols of stability and of strength would be shaken as by an earthquake. Birds would disappear as Hosea had proclaimed (see Hos. 4:3). In Gen. 1, the creation of the birds of the heavens depicts the fulfillment of the creative process. In Jeremiah and Hosea, the removal of the birds symbolizes the reversal of creation.
- 4:26 The term fruitful refers to the region of Mt. Carmel, where there were productive vineyards, olive groves, and oak trees. The term is used figuratively to symbolize the productivity of the land as a “garden of God.” Yet this also would be turned to desert—desolate and unproductive land.
- 4:27 Desolate refers to the uninhabitable devastation of Judah as a result of its unfaithfulness. Yet the land would not see total destruction. A slim ray of future hope still existed. God remembers His mercy in His wrath.
- 4:28 The black skies associate darkness with God’s judgment. The term relent, meaning “to repent” or “to be sorry,” parallels the term turn back. God’s judgment on sin and rebellion is inescapable (see Num. 23:19).

(Heb. 'abal) (4:28; 12:4, Job 14:22) Strong's #56

This verb is one of several Hebrew verbs which refers to the outward acts involved in ancient mourning rites for the dead. Mourning often involved the appearance of an individual: a mourner would frequently wear sackcloth and ashes as a symbol of mourning (6:26)—sometimes even the head would be shaved (Amos 8:10). In the Bible, this Hebrew word is also translated lament (Lam. 2:8). Often the word is used figuratively of objects which cannot really mourn. Here Jeremiah uses the word to describe the earth as mourning in reaction to the broken covenant. God's people had neglected their obligations to the Lord's covenant.

- 4:30 Instead of turning to the Lord in its time of despair, Judah would turn to the idolatrous activity which had caused its dismal plight. To adorn oneself in crimson, gold, and eye paint depicts the seduction of clients by a prostitute. The word lovers describes Judah and Israel's history of physical and spiritual prostitution.
- 4:31 The voice of God called for repentance; but the voice of the people cried out in anguish and despair, but not to the Lord their Savior. daughter of Zion: The term is an endearing way of describing Jerusalem as God's beloved daughter (see 4:11; 6:2). The use of this warm phrase in such a terrible context heightens our appreciation of the horror of the moment. spreads her hands: This phrase portrays the agony of the impending death of Jerusalem. My soul is weary suggests dying words of agony and despair. Judah's lovers had become her murderers.
- 5:1 Similar to Abraham's plea that Sodom be saved on account of the few faithful people among its inhabitants (see Gen. 18:16–33), so Jeremiah summoned the people to search the city of Jerusalem for one just and righteous person. Judgment describes one who has done what is right and just before God and man.
- 5:2 Used at times by the prophets of Jeremiah's day to introduce divine oracles or by people in swearing oaths (4:2), the phrase as the LORD lives invokes God's name and character in the proclamation.
- 5:3 God always looks for truth (v. 1) and faithfulness. When truth was found lacking in Judah, God punished the people of Jerusalem through foreign invasion. But rather than responding with remorse and repentance, the people reacted in rebellion. The Hebrew term translated correction means "chastisement" or "discipline." Sometimes it means "instruction." In the prophets it generally refers to God's attempt to teach His children faithfulness by means of discipline or punishment (7:28). But despite the words of Jeremiah and other prophets, Israel refused "correction" and continued down the path of self-destruction. The illustration of faces harder than rock emphasizes the rebellious attitudes of the people.
- 5:4 Here the term poor is paralleled by the word foolish, a rare term used by Isaiah (19:13) to refer to the nation as deluded and deceived. Thus the word poor refers to those who lack knowledge of God and are insensitive to His instruction and inattentive to His will.

- 5:5, 6 Greatness is achieved not by wealth and power but by the knowledge of God and obedience to Him. known: The word refers to intimate and practical knowledge. Here the knowledge is of the way of the LORD—the path characterized by truth, justice, and righteousness. Jeremiah paints a picture of Judah as oxen that have broken their yoke, wandering aimlessly through the field, guided by their own desires. Because they have broken the yoke, they are exposed to the elements and the wild animals of the forest and desert. The animals symbolize the foreign nations who would lay siege to their cities. The cause of the devastation is the many transgressions, meaning “rebellions,” and backslidings, or “turnings,” of Judah.
- 5:7 The message is still addressed to the leaders of Judah (v. 5). The word pardon means forgiveness that cannot be granted where there is no repentance, but only continual abandoning of the ways of the Lord. not gods: The use of this phrase, found also in 2:11 and 16:20, is tantamount to declaring the nonexistence of the foreign deities that Judah worshiped. The words your children refers to the children of the leaders, who are the leaders’ children and not God’s. I had fed: The term means God had satisfied their every need. adultery . . . harlots’ houses: These terms refer to physical adultery, though the source of this immoral sexual conduct may have been the presence of pagan cultic prostitutes. The prophets generally referred to cultic prostitution as adultery.
- 5:8 In the context of Josiah’s reforms, the men may have turned from cultic prostitutes, whom the king had eradicated, to ordinary prostitutes. From the brothels they turned to one another’s wives. Like stallions, their lust was uncontrollable.
- 5:9 The Hebrew word translated punish, literally meaning “to visit,” can be used of the visitation of God in mercy (see Ps. 65:9) or in wrath. Here it clearly refers to wrath.
- 5:10 An unidentified adversary is called upon by the Lord to attack Jerusalem, but not to utterly destroy her. her branches: The degenerate, unfaithful limbs would be pruned because they were not His.
- 5:12 The people lied about the Lord, denying that He was about to inflict a horrible defeat. They had deceived themselves into thinking that God would not punish His own city and people, forgetting the negative effects of disobedience to the covenant (see Deut. 27; 28).
- 5:13 False prophets like Hananiah (28:11) had foretold a time of peace and deliverance from the domination and destructiveness of their enemies. But their word was like an empty breeze. The very sword (v. 12) they denied would seal their fate.
- 5:14 LORD God of hosts: This phrase reminds the hearer that the true God of Israel controls all of the forces of heaven and earth. this word: This refers to the proclamation of Jeremiah, who voices the words of the Lord with the intensity of a blazing fire.
- 5:15 The true prophet Jeremiah announces the imminent coming of a mighty nation from distant lands who will carry out the divine purpose. The nation is not named, indicating that the oracle predates the advent of Babylon under Nabopolassar and Nebuchadnezzar. The only identification is that the enemy speaks a tongue unknown to the people in Jerusalem.
- 5:17 The word eat is used four times in this verse to paint an image of the enemy as consuming field, flock, and fortifications.
- 5:18 In the middle of a prophecy of judgment, Jeremiah includes a word of hope. The phrase in those days is indicative of the judgment God would visit upon His people. God would not destroy His people, but He would make them suffer greatly.
- 5:19 In summary, Jeremiah repeats two key words describing the sins of Judah and Israel: forsaken (abandonment) and foreign gods (idolatry; see 1:16; 2:13). Since Judah persisted in worshiping gods from foreign lands, God would allow them to be deported and serve their enemies.
- 5:20 house of Jacob: Even after the northern kingdom had been destroyed, the prophets still spoke of Israel. There was not a complete destruction of the northern tribes, as is commonly assumed.
- 5:21 foolish: This term emphasizes the people’s ignorance of the ways of God. The parallel phrase without understanding shows the waywardness of the mind of the nation. Judah’s blind eyes and deaf ears were a fulfillment of Isaiah’s prophecy more than one hundred years earlier (see Is. 6:10).

- 5:22 To fear God is to acknowledge His majesty and to submit to His will. The negative rhetorical questions highlight Judah's refusal to submit to and to serve God. Instead, they bowed to the many foreign gods who were entirely powerless. God controls the sea, the realm of the mythological Canaanite gods Yamm and Lotan (see Is. 27:1).
- 5:24 The fear of the LORD is associated here with His creation of the natural world. our God: This title indicates the covenant affinity between the Lord and His people which was sadly lacking in their heart and mind. Who gives rain: In the Canaanite fertility cult, Baal was viewed as the provider of the rains that enriched the soil and brought productivity (see 1 Kin. 17:1). Elijah's victory over Baal and Asherah on Mt. Carmel demonstrated that the God of Israel was the true provider (see 1 Kin. 18).
- 5:26–28 the wicked: Those responsible for the welfare of the whole populace had abused their positions by exploiting the lesser elements of Israelite society. The picture presented is one of birds, or the poor, being ensnared by great men who were building wealth at the expense of orphans and the needy (see Deut. 10:18).
- 5:30, 31 Jeremiah describes the moral depravity of Judah's leaders as an astonishing and horrible thing. The deterioration of the leadership of the land reached to the prophets and priests, the very people who were to be the mainstays of righteousness among the people. Both offices had succumbed to the temptation of abusing their power, rejecting their responsible roles as messengers and servants of God.
- 6:1 The siege alarm was sounded to the cities surrounding Jerusalem. Jeremiah called his own tribe of Benjamin in the north to abandon the city for more secure territory. To the south in Tekoa, the watchman's trumpet was blown; to the west in the Beth Haccerem region, communication signal fires were sent. The offensives of Sennacherib in 701 B.C. and of Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C. brought siege forces from both the north and the south. The origin of the disaster is the north, the direction from which most of Israel's enemies approached Jerusalem.
- 6:4, 5 Prepare or "make holy" speaks of ritual sanctification performed in preparation for battle. The words are overheard in the camps of the enemies who are about to come against Jerusalem. Sorcerers and diviners were called upon to perform sacrifices to determine the will of the gods and assure a successful outcome in battle.
- 6:6 The terminology implies that God Himself was the true combatant against Jerusalem. Though the enemies were calling on their supposed deities for help in their siege against Jerusalem, it was the Lord who would fight for them and assure the defeat of Jerusalem. Cut down trees . . . build a mound: A siege mound was a ramp of wood, stone, and sand that sloped toward the wall of a city. Armored siege machines could go up the ramp and attack the city walls. The reason for the assault was the oppression within the city. The leaders were abusing their power, especially against the poor, widows, and orphans (see Deut. 14:29).
- 6:7 Jerusalem had become a well of bitter and polluted waters rather than fresh and pure water. Violence and plundering characterized the city that was once overflowing with peace, justice, and righteousness. Grief and wounds describe the sickness and injury that would continually plague the inhabitants. The horrors of the siege of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 588–586 B.C. were unspeakable (see the Book of Lamentations).
- 6:8 Instructed can also mean "disciplined" or "chastened." Jerusalem was advised to heed the discipline of the Lord or face imminent desolation as a result of His departure.
- 6:9 The LORD of hosts may also be translated "The Lord of armies" (2:19; 5:14). Thoroughly glean indicates the intensity and thoroughness of the punishment. Every person among the remnant of Israel would know God's judgment. put your hand back: Jeremiah had to return to his proclamation so that no one would be unaware.
- 6:10 Because their ears were uncircumcised, meaning that their lives were not devoted to the Lord, the citizens of Jerusalem were incapable of keeping the covenant. Furthermore, their rebellion had become so ingrained that the word of the LORD had become a disgrace to them. The revelation of God's divine will was no longer a delight to them.

- 6:11 Jeremiah's own emotions reveal his identification with God's feelings about Judah. The prophet was both angry and weary with the entire nation, from the youngest of children to the oldest of the aged men.
- 6:12 The entire land and its contents would be given to others by the power of the hand of God. God's hand had saved the people; it would also bring about their judgment.
- 6:13 The accusation of covetousness suggests monetary gain by means of deception and fraud. Even those called to guide the nation in its covenant relationship had defrauded God and man.
- 6:14 The religious leaders sought to comfort the people with a message of hope and peace. But such words were not the word of God. Peace describes the wholeness of life, the safety, security, and tranquility of heart and mind that come from living by faith according to God's word.
- 6:15 Nor did they know how to blush: The people had lost all sense of what was right before God. they shall fall: Everyone would experience the harsh hand of God's judgment.
- 6:16, 17 Old paths probably refers to the Sinai covenant and the Book of Deuteronomy, as Jeremiah called the people back to former days of steadfast devotion. The people obstinately refused to walk rightly and find rest. They also refused to listen to the alarming sound of the trumpet, denying that any danger existed.
- 6:18, 19 The nations and the earth are called to witness the stubborn character of Judah (see Is. 1:2; Mic. 1:2). My words . . . My law: The revelation of God through Moses and the prophets was rejected by the people for whom it was prepared and given.
- 6:20 Even if the people used the most expensive offerings available in the markets of that day, their sacrifices were still neither acceptable nor sweet. The burnt offerings were the "holocaust" offerings, in which the entire animal was consumed by fire. The sacrifices were those that were partially consumed by the offerers. The people performed these sacrifices incorrectly, making themselves the primary beneficiaries of their own worship.
- 6:24, 25 Anguish or distress overwhelmed the people. Their pain is compared to childbirth. The people were prisoners in their own city.
- 6:26 Daughter of my people may be rendered "O Daughter, My people" (see 4:11, 31; 6:2, 23). Jeremiah used an endearing word for Jerusalem even in the middle of this warning of coming judgment. The most dreaded loss for an ancient Israelite family was that of an only son. Sackcloth was a dark, coarse fabric of goat or camel hair (4:8). To roll about in ashes symbolically expressed sorrow and despair.
- 6:27 The Lord describes Jeremiah's role. Jeremiah would act as the nation's assayer, the one who tests or evaluates quality or purity. fortress: An alternative translation of this term is tester or assessor, which might fit this context better as a synonym for assayer.
- 6:28 Jeremiah gives his assessment of the people. Rebels speaks of their defiant attitudes. Slanderers refers to those who tell tales. Corrupters refers to those who destroy.
- 6:29, 30 Jeremiah assesses Judah as a refiner purifies silver, using lead to remove impurities (9:7). The lead is consumed, so the dross in the silver ore cannot be purged. This results in the refiner discarding the ore because it is so impure that the smelting process is not worth the energy it takes. Similarly God rejects those whose wickedness cannot be refined.
- 7:1, 2 The word that came to Jeremiah was a direct message from God in His temple courts. Stand in the gate: The parallel in 26:2 suggests the proclamation was made in the outer court of the temple, where Jeremiah would have been guaranteed a large audience. Worship suggests bowing prostrate in service and obedience to a god, king, or priest. In bowing down, the worshiper pledged himself or herself to obedience in adhering to the demands of the one being honored (22:9).
- 7:3 The LORD of hosts can also be translated "God of armies" (2:19; 5:14; 6:9). Amend: The call to repentance here uses a different term (26:13) from the usual word translated "return" (3:1). A complete transformation of the people's ways and doings, lifestyle and beliefs, was necessary.
- 7:4 Trust conveys the sense of security and confidence that the people had in their holy place. They believed that since God had chosen Jerusalem as His dwelling, had promised that a Davidic king would remain on the throne forever, and had delivered the city from attack in the days of Hezekiah and Isaiah, He would never allow the city or the temple to be destroyed. Lying words may refer to the unfounded reliance on the temple as an idolatrous symbol or to the worship of foreign gods. The temple of the LORD had become a talisman to the Israelites. They believed the building guaranteed their security whether or not they obeyed the provisions of the covenant. This false hope was a lie (3:23; 7:9; 8:8).

7:5, 6 The only true hope for dwelling in the context of the temple was a radical restructuring of Judah's society. Thoroughly amend, or "make good" or "do good," emphasizes the necessary transformation of Jerusalem's inhabitants. thoroughly execute judgment: The emphatic phrase form implies the depth of corruption that existed in the land; there was no justice. Stranger refers to resident aliens who were dwelling in the land. The fatherless and the widow were accorded special treatment in the Law, but they had been abused by the leaders of Jerusalem. Innocent blood refers to those convicted of capital crimes on false charges, such as Urijah the prophet (26:23). Humanitarian concern for all persons was a central element of the covenant. To walk after other gods is to serve and worship them.

7:7 I will cause you to dwell: This phrase emphasizes the will and work of God to establish the nation of Israel in the land. In order for the nation to dwell in the land, it had to be faithful to God (see Deut. 7:6–11).

7:8 The refrain of v. 4 is complemented here by the phrase cannot profit (2:8, 11). The idea that the temple was inviolable was as profitless as the powerless gods that Israel idolized.

7:9 The covenant stipulations that Jerusalem's inhabitants had violated are listed here (see Ex. 20:1–17). burn incense: Jeremiah uses this phrase 19 times in the context of worshiping deities other than God (1:16). Know refers to an intimate, purposeful relationship—like that between husband and wife.

7:10 Stand before means "to place (oneself) in submissive service to someone." Entering the temple of God in such a manner while worshiping other gods was incomprehensible. Furthermore, for the people to think that they were secure (delivered) enough to perform perverted abominations (2:7) was the ultimate hypocrisy. Paul builds on this concept in Rom. 6:12–16.

7:11 den of thieves: Like robbers hiding in a cave for safety, Judah attempted to hide behind the sanctuary of the temple for protection from the divine hand of judgment. But the Lord had seen the hypocrisy of Israel's ways. Jesus quoted this verse when He cleansed the second temple (see Matt. 21:13).

7:12 Shiloh was the site of the tent of meeting and ark of the covenant in the days of the judges. Leaders in the family of Eli had abused their priestly position for personal gain, and idolatry was rampant in the land. When the Israelites attempted to use the ark as a victory-giving talisman, the ark was captured (see 1 Sam. 4) and the sanctuary was destroyed by the Philistines. The Philistines were instruments of divine punishment for the wickedness of God's people. God's love for His people does not prevent Him from chastising them for their wickedness.

A Sobering Object Lesson

Shiloh was a sobering object lesson for Judah. Once the center of Israel's religious life and the site of the tabernacle (see 1 Sam. 1:3), Shiloh lay in ruins in Jeremiah's day, and its people had been taken captive by the Assyrians. Why? Because the northern kingdom of Israel had turned away from the Lord to idols. Jeremiah warned that the same outcome awaited the people of Jerusalem—and for the same reason (Jer. 7:12–15).

Jeremiah’s message of judgment must have sounded incredible. Jerusalem was the site of the temple, the magnificent house of worship that David had envisioned and Solomon had built to the glory of God (see 2 Chr. 5:1). How could God allow His temple and its city to be destroyed? Yet if anyone doubted Jeremiah’s warning, all they had to do was travel a little more than 20 miles north to Shiloh.

Apparently, few people heeded the prophet’s word, because Jerusalem fell to the Babylonians within a few short years. The temple was burned and most of the people were either killed or deported.

This tragic outcome challenges us to consider whether idols exist in our own lives. We don’t bow down to images of wood and stone, but if we allow anything to take the place of God, then we are practicing idolatry. This can happen in our work, in our relationships, and, like the people of ancient Judah, even in our houses of worship. In that case, God may take away the thing that we hold so dear in order to redirect our attention and affection to where they belong—on Him. The first commandment is still in effect: “You shall have no other gods before Me” (Ex. 20:3).

7:13 All these works are the sins listed in vv. 6, 8, 9.

7:14, 15 The earlier dwelling place of the ark of God, Shiloh, served as an example of the impending destruction of Jerusalem. The temple had to be destroyed to vindicate the name of God; the people had to be removed from the land in order to purge it of wickedness.

7:16 God’s instruction to Jeremiah, do not pray for this people, indicates the extreme depravity of Jerusalem’s inhabitants (see also 11:14; 14:11). No manner of intercession was to be made on behalf of Judah. God would not hear Jeremiah’s appeals.

7:17, 18 The queen of heaven refers to the goddess Ishtar (Astarte), who was worshiped in open-air cultic centers throughout the eastern Mediterranean region and Mesopotamia. Worship of Ishtar involved the preparation of special cakes that bore the goddess’s image, as well as drink offerings (44:19). The family cooperation in the idolatrous worship of Ishtar stood in direct opposition to the covenant demands that a father instruct his children in the ways of the Lord (see Deut. 6:4–9).

7:19 Provoke, which means “to vex or irritate,” describes the effects of Israel’s continual unfaithfulness on God. Furthermore, they were bringing harm upon themselves.

- 7:20 God's judgment on the abominable idolatry of Ishtar worship is described in terms of a fire that cannot be quenched. The devastation of the fire would extend to man, beast, field, and fruit.
- 7:21 Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices: Because the people had missed the true meaning of the Lord's worship, they could multiply their offerings as much as they liked and it would do them no good. The Lord cared for none of their sacrifices. To Him they were simply meat.
- 7:22 All sacrifices were not rejected, only those offered without true repentance and a commitment to obey the Lord.
- 7:23 God required that His people obey His voice. that it may be well with you: Obedience would bring blessing. When the prophets lashed out against sacrifice, it was not against the sacrificial system as God had established it, but against the corruption of that system as the people practiced it. The same thing is found in the NT passages that seemingly speak against the Law. Both the NT writers and the Hebrew prophets denounce the abuses of divine systems in human hands.
- 7:24 The history of Israel is seen in terms of disobedience rather than faithfulness to the covenant, reflecting the people's evil hearts (4:14). The result was a worsening or backward direction rather than an improving or forward walk.
- 7:25 From the days of Moses, God sent His servants the prophets to call the nation of Israel to obedience based upon the covenant. Daily rising up early and sending them indicates the persistence and urgency of God's message through His prophets.
- 7:26, 27 Incline their ear suggests eager listening and readiness to obey. Stiffened their neck suggests a cold rebuff to the will and work of God. Jeremiah, like Isaiah before him (see Is. 6:9, 10), was told that the people would not respond to his message.
- 7:28 The people were stubborn, rejecting the laws of the covenant. They were persistently disobedient to the voice of the LORD revealed through His prophets. Correction refers to the instruction of the Law and the prophets (5:3). Truth refers to the faithfulness and fidelity that was characteristic of God but absent among His people.
- 7:29 To cut off one's hair was a way of expressing mourning and grief. The act may also have symbolized that Judah had rejected the covenant relationship just as if they had broken a Nazirite vow, a sign of personal devotion that required the hair not to be cut (see Num. 6:1–21). desolate heights: The place of lamentation was the very place where Judah carried on its idolatrous practices (3:2). The Lord had rejected this generation, even as they had rejected His Law (6:19) and had been rejected by their "lovers" (4:30).
- 7:30, 31 The evil doings of this generation, which had continued since the days of Manasseh, included the placing of abominations or "detestable objects" such as idols and pagan altars in the temple of God. The Tophet sacrifices, adopted from Phoenician and Canaanite practices, involved the ritual sacrifice of children in times of national crisis or disaster. burn . . . in the fire: This took place in the Valley of Hinnom southwest of Jerusalem (also called Gehenna).
- 7:32 days are coming: This phrase signifies the advent of a divine intervention in history, usually in judgment. With the phrase Valley of Slaughter, Jeremiah uses the prophetic device of changing a name to express the Lord's assessment of the Valley of Hinnom.
- 7:33 Unburied corpses left to the elements and animals were regarded as a horrible desecration in the ancient Middle East.
- 7:34 Prayer would avail Judah nothing on account of its great sin. The nation would be devoid of all joy and gladness. The land would be desolate. The word desolate is used extensively in Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel to refer to the devastation in Jerusalem.
- 8:1–3 In the day when Jerusalem's judgment was fulfilled at the hands of its enemies, the bones of its people and their leaders would be desecrated by being removed from their graves. the sun and the moon and all the host of heaven: The gods and goddesses to whom Jerusalem looked for deliverance would stand over the people's desecrated corpses, which are pictured here as refuse or "dung" (9:22). Those who survived the siege and attack as exiles and slaves would prefer death over life.

8:4, 5 The questions in these verses emphasize the absurdity of Judah's lifestyle. Instead of correcting their erroneous behavior, the people were engaged in perpetual backsliding, falling deeper and deeper into sin and despair. hold fast: In stubborn defiance, the people clung to their lives of deceit or "treachery."

8:6 No righteous or repentant person could be found in the city of Jerusalem. Rather than turning from sin, every person pursued his or her own course, a lifestyle leading to destruction.

8:7 Jeremiah contrasts the citizens of Jerusalem with the birds in the heavens who understand the approach of the seasons and appointed times. Whereas the birds follow their instincts to migrate, the people of Israel refused to follow God's promptings to obey His covenant. Note that God still refers to the people of Judah as My people even though they continued to rebel against Him. do not know: Like his northern counterpart Hosea (see Hos. 4:6), Jeremiah identified the people's major deficiency as their lack of knowledge of the Lord and His judgment.

8:8, 9 Jeremiah contended with fraudulent scribes and wise men whose understanding of the Law Jeremiah deemed falsehood. False pen describes the idolatry and errant beliefs of Jerusalem's leadership. The wisdom of the scribes and wise men was folly and shame because it was not founded on a true knowledge of God's word and law.

falsehood

(Heb. sheqer) (8:8; 23:25; Prov. 6:17; 31:30) Strong's #8267

This word refers to all actions meant to deceive others, such as fraud, lying, betrayal, and unfaithfulness. It is sometimes translated lying (7:4), vain (3:23), or deceitful (Prov. 31:30). One of Jeremiah's greatest tasks as a prophet was to speak out against the deceitful schemes of lying prophets (23:9–40). These prophets were prophesying relief for Judah from suffering when God was actually handing Judah over to the Babylonians for judgment (23:17–19). Their deceptive ways made them enemies to the truth, the truth of God's Word (see Ps. 119:20, 30).

8:10–12 The people had interpreted the Law unwisely, believing that peace and prosperity would be granted to them. They were grossly mistaken (6:12–15).

8:14 Assemble . . . enter: Judah's inhabitants would gather within the citadel and walls of Jerusalem for protection from an oncoming army. Silent can also be translated "perish." The people believed that God was judging them with bitter, poisoned water, by which they would surely die.

8:15 The search for peace and health was hopeless and full of trouble—"terror" or "dismay." God's hand of judgment strikes terror in the hearts and minds of those who continue in sin and rebellion.

8:16 Dan lies at the northern border of Israel. In 1:14, 15, Jeremiah warned that calamity would come from the north. The snorting of enemy horses would sound the fury of the impending invasion. His horses: The enemy's horses were instruments of divine judgment.

8:17 serpents . . . Vipers: Judgment by means of poisonous snakes is described in Num. 21:6.

8:18 The hopelessness of Judah was so overwhelming to Jeremiah that his heart was faint. The word faint describes an illness or sickness that results from great sorrow.

8:19 Cry refers to great grief resulting from God's rejection, or foreign oppression (see Ps. 18:6). Far country or "far places" probably refers to the outer reaches of the land of Judah. Is not the LORD in Zion? Is not her King in her: These rhetorical questions expect an affirmative response. God, the King, had not abandoned His people; it was the Israelites who had rejected the living God for other gods. Provoked vividly describes the defiant attitudes of the people toward the pure worship of God. Carved images generally refers to stone idols. The phrase foreign idols in Hebrew is "foreign futilities." The people were looking for deliverance in useless and motionless images. Excavations in Jerusalem dating back to Jeremiah's time have uncovered numerous images and household idols.

8:20–22 This proverb reflects the sense of helplessness in the early fall. The harvest was meager and the oppression persisted. Even Jeremiah was deeply hurt—this translates a Hebrew word derived from the verb meaning "to break," "to shatter"; in other words, the prophet's spirit was broken over the fate of his people. Is there no balm in Gilead: The region of Gilead was known for its balsam ointment (see Gen. 37:25). There is no healing, physical or spiritual, for a people intent on rebelling against God.

9:1 my eyes a fountain of tears: Jeremiah, who is known as the "weeping prophet," identified personally with the suffering of his people. Here he expresses his desire for a reserve of tears that would flow without stopping.

9:2 Jeremiah desired a wilderness refuge where he would be free from the agony, sorrow, bitterness, and degradation of Jerusalem. The word adulterers refers literally to unfaithful husbands or wives, but here to idolaters as those who are spiritually faithless.

9:4 take heed to his neighbor . . . do not trust any brother: The personal affairs of the people were characterized by deceit, slander, and mistrust. Ethical standards had collapsed. Supplant, which means “to defraud,” is the basis of the name Jacob. As Jacob deceived his brother Esau, so the people of Judah defrauded their brethren (see Gen. 27).

9:5, 6 They weary themselves to commit iniquity: The people had literally worn themselves out with perversions. Deceit here is the same term used of Jacob’s trickery toward Esau (see Gen. 27:35). The term refers to swindling by false speech or false scales. they refuse to know Me: The essence of Judah’s problem was its lack of knowledge of God.

9:7 Jeremiah returns to the imagery of metallurgical refining (6:28–30). God would refine and try the people by fire to see if any were faithful to Him.

9:8, 9 Jeremiah returns to the imagery of bow and arrow to depict Judah’s deceit (v. 3). The picture is of a person speaking peaceably to his neighbor while lying in wait to ambush him.

9:10, 11 weeping and wailing for the mountains: The entire land would be laid waste by destruction. Even the animals would abandon the land because not a crumb of food would remain for the birds and beasts. The holy city of Jerusalem would become a den of jackals where no man or woman lived. Jackals are desert creatures who live far from people. The only way Jerusalem could become home for jackals was for it to be no longer inhabited by God’s people.

9:12 The wise man observes and understands the natural order and the working of God in the world He has made. No wise person could be found among the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

9:13, 14 The people’s lack of adherence to the covenant they had forsaken is indicated by the phrase have not obeyed . . . nor walked. The word obey, which comes from the Hebrew word meaning “to hear,” implies an active response to the hearing of God’s word. Instead of walking according to God’s law, the people walked according to the dictates or “stubbornness” of their own hearts.

9:15, 16 Water of gall, used in 8:14 to describe God’s judgment, refers to some kind of poisonous or salty drink. scatter them . . . send a sword: The people of Judah would be exiled from their promised homeland and even killed as they ran away because they rejected God.

9:17 Skillful wailing women refers to professional mourners, women who attended funerals to express the emotions of those in sorrow. Women were called by Jeremiah to sing laments when Josiah died (see 2 Chr. 35:25). Here they are called to weep over the collapse of Jerusalem.

9:18 make haste: There is urgency in summoning the skilled mourners to lead the people in tearful lament over the imminent destruction of Judah.

9:19 plundered: This term, which means “to devastate,” is used frequently in Jeremiah to refer to the impending devastation of Jerusalem.

9:20–22 Teach your daughters wailing: The impending disaster in Jerusalem would be so great and the dead would be so numerous that multitudes of trained mourners would be needed. Death has come like the Canaanite god of death Mot, who was believed to enter a household through an open window to bring adversity, destruction, and death. children . . . young men . . . men: Death claims its victims without respect to sex or age. Corpses would remain in the open field like refuse or dung (8:2), or like cuttings left in the field to decompose.

9:23, 24 wise . . . mighty . . . rich: The people with whom Jeremiah contended were depending on their own capabilities rather than on God. Glory may also be translated boast, meaning “to praise oneself.” The idea is that people should find their real meaning and true worth in the fact that they know God and may celebrate His attributes. True knowledge of God resulting from an intimate relationship with Him will be demonstrated in a person’s character. Three attributes of God that He demands of people called by His Name are lovingkindness, meaning “loyal love”; judgment, meaning “justice”; and righteousness, meaning “uprightness.”

9:25, 26 God would punish or “visit” Judah, along with its uncircumcised neighboring nations. Circumcision, the sign of God’s covenant with Abraham, was meaningless without a heart faithfully devoted to God. Here Judah is listed as just another nation. In fact, it is not even at the head of the list. The point of this text is similar to the concept of temple inviolability (ch. 7). Just as God would destroy even the temple (7:12–14), so He would ignore even circumcision when it was merely an outward symbol (see Deut. 10:12–22).

“Sin Is Sin”

Jeremiah presents a sobering message, both to the people of his day as well as to people today: God is against all sin. His judgment of wrath falls on the sin of all individuals and all nations, without exception (Jer. 9:25, 26). It doesn’t matter whether one is Jew (“circumcised”) or Gentile (“uncircumcised”). No group is exempt. No one has special privileges. As Paul put it, “The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men” (Rom. 1:18). All have sinned and stand under God’s judgment (Rom. 3:10–18, 23).

Jeremiah leaves no room for bargaining. He says that God will punish Egypt, Judah, Edom, Ammon, Moab, and every other nation, even those living in the farthest corners of the earth. That includes all the nations that have ever existed or will exist. Apparently the Lord sees no difference between the sins of Judah and the sins of Egypt, the sins of ancient cultures or the sins of modern culture. Sin is sin. There are no good sins. The sins of one people are as evil as the sins of another.

This is the “bad news” that makes the message of Christ’s work on the Cross good news indeed. Yet even the bad news shows that God is as evenhanded in His judgment as He is in His mercy and grace (Rom. 3:29, 30). He warns of judgment on all, but He also offers life to all. No one can hide from the all-seeing eyes of the Lord. But no one needs to lose out on His salvation unless that person rejects God’s provision, Christ.

10:2 The way of the Gentiles was worshiping natural phenomena by means of handmade icons and symbolic imagery. The signs of heaven were the astral deities (8:1–3) worshiped in the days of Manasseh and reinstituted following the death of Josiah and the collapse of his reforms. dismayed: The heavenly realms held a certain awe or terror for the nations, but Israel was to worship God who held the heavenly realm under His control.

10:3, 4 Customs refers to the practice of constructing deities for worship. Futile, which means “vapor,” “vanity,” or “worthlessness,” describes the utter uselessness of idol worship.

10:5 The upright idols were dumb and motionless; they required attendants to care for them and carry them from place to place. Do not be afraid: There is no reason to fear—let alone worship—things that are completely powerless, unable to do good or evil.

10:6, 7 there is none like You, O LORD: This phrase expresses one of the great teachings of the prophets—the “incomparability of God.” God is not simply “better” than other gods; He alone is the living God.

- 10:8 Dull-hearted can mean “brutish,” “stupid,” or “unreceptive.” The idea here is that instruction received from idolaters is as worthless as the idols themselves.
- 10:9, 10 Silver came from Tarshish, which some scholars have identified with Tartessus in southern Spain. The wooden and metallic idol was adorned with blue and purple fabrics, whose dye probably originated with the Phoenicians. However, even the most skillful or “wise” craftsmen could not manufacture true gods, for there is but one true, living, and everlasting God. The fabricated icons were lifeless, deteriorating, false gods who were no more powerful or wise than their makers.
- 10:11 This verse was originally written in Aramaic rather than Hebrew, the usual language of the OT, but the reason for this change of language is not known. (Aramaic also occurs in Ezra and Daniel.) The message is clear that the helpless so-called gods would be destroyed.
- 10:12, 13 Jeremiah emphasizes the creative power of God, drawing from the imagery of Job 38 and Ps. 8. By God’s power, wisdom, and discretion or “understanding,” the earth and the heavens were brought into orderly existence. By the command of His voice, at Creation (see Gen. 1:1-2:4), the waters, lightning, and wind are summoned. Jeremiah reminded the people of Judah that their God not only created the universe but also governs its ongoing life.
- 10:14, 15 True knowledge is found only in relationship to God. metalsmith: The craftsmen who used silver and gold for the images they constructed were put to shame by their handiwork. The lifeless and useless objects that they fashioned showed that their efforts were futile.
- 10:16 The Portion of Jacob: The Lord is the portion or “share” of His people, sufficient for their every need. His inheritance: Israel belonged to God; God is the sufficiency of His people.
- 10:17, 18 Gather up your wares: The Assyrian stone reliefs of Shalmaneser III depict captives transporting household goods on their heads as they go into exile in the eastern reaches of the empire. Soon, this would be the fate of the people of Judah.
- 10:19 Woe is me: Jeremiah personally identified with Judah and the destruction of Jerusalem. my hurt . . . My wound: The injuries inflicted upon Judah were severe; the Hebrew text suggests “incurable wounds.” infirmity: Supplementing the words hurt and wounds, the word infirmity completes the threefold imagery of the damage done to Judah. Writing in triplets was a Hebrew technique to symbolize fullness.
- 10:20 Like the Bedouin whose tent had been destroyed by marauding bandits, Judah lay plundered while its children were murdered or deported. No one remained to pitch the tent and reestablish the nation.
- 10:21 In the Book of Jeremiah, shepherds usually refers to the national leaders to whom God gave the responsibility of maintaining justice. Judah’s leaders had become dull-hearted, dumbfounded by the chastisement that God had brought upon them. Because the leaders had not sought God with a whole heart, they would not prosper with the growth of their flocks. Instead the shepherds would lose their flocks. The people would be scattered like sheep.
- 10:22 The advance of the foe from the north is announced (1:14, 15; 8:16). The armies of this foe would destroy the towns of Judah, reducing it to a desolate . . . den of jackals (9:11).
- 10:24 The verb correct, which means “to discipline” or “to instruct,” has as its goal conformity to the word and will of God. Jeremiah pleaded with the Lord to deal with the nation according to His justice, but to withhold His anger.
- 10:25 The passage ends with a prayer to God to bring judgment upon those who destroyed Judah. Even though the Gentile nations were not heirs to God’s covenant, they would be judged according to God’s ethical standards.
- 11:1, 2 Jeremiah’s message from the Lord here is strongly associated with the Book of Deuteronomy. The term words is the Hebrew name of the Book of Deuteronomy; it is also used to refer to the terms of the covenant. A covenant is a legal treaty or relationship between individuals, between nations, or—in the case of Israel—between a nation and its God. The covenant specified rights, obligations, and responsibilities of the parties entering into the agreement.

- 11:3 Cursed suggests the negative provisions of the covenant as summarized in Deut. 27:26 (see all of Deut. 27; 28).
- 11:4 iron furnace: This terminology comes directly from Deut. 4:20, which is set in a context of a warning against worshiping idols. Obey: Obedience is the key to blessing (see Deut. 27:10; 28:1–14).
- 11:5, 6 that I may establish the oath: The blessing of the land, as promised to Abraham, was dependent upon the covenant loyalty of the people. The words Judah and Jerusalem are a standard way of referring to the entire nation of Israel. Hear . . . and do: These terms set forth the correct response to God's law.
- 11:7, 8 The emphatic form of the Hebrew phrase earnestly exhorted highlights the history of God's continual urgent—rising early—pleas for loyalty from His nation, from the Exodus until the present. The message had been the same from the beginning: obey. Incline their ear also means “obey.” The Hebrew word translated dictates means stubbornness or obstinacy.
- 11:9, 10 A conspiracy is a plot with treacherous intent. turned back: The people had returned to the ways of their forefathers, who had rebelled against God and the covenant. Gone after means “to serve” or “to worship.” Both the northern and southern kingdoms had practiced idolatry and broken the first of the Ten Commandments.
- 11:11 Because the heart of the nation was evil, God would bring calamity upon the people. God's justice is inescapable when sin is intrinsic to one's character. Even if the people were to cry out in distress, God would not listen.
- 11:12, 13 Rather than accept God's punishment and repent of their evil ways, the nation preferred to cry out to other gods for deliverance. The altars of their incense (1:16; 7:9) and sacrifices would become shameful objects.
- 11:14 Judah's status was decided. Jeremiah's prayer would be to no avail (7:16; 14:11).
- 11:15 My house: The nation had no right to worship in God's temple while paying homage to other gods.
- 11:16 The LORD called Judah the Green Olive Tree, indicating its beauty and His blessing on the nation. But the noise of a great tumult or tempest would accompany the attacking army that would ravage and destroy the tree with fire.
- 11:17 The term planted recalls the theme of 2:21, the idea that God had established Israel as His choicest vine. However, here the context is the impending doom that would result from the evil done by the Lord's people.
- 11:18, 19 the LORD gave me knowledge: God revealed to Jeremiah a plot against the prophet's life. a docile lamb brought to the slaughter: This imagery is reminiscent of Is. 53:7 and the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ.
- 11:20 Jeremiah appealed for vindication to God, as the one true righteous Judge. Mind is literally the internal organs of the body, and is a way of referring to the seat of human emotion. Heart refers to the seat of the intellect and will. Vengeance describes God's fury and anger against sin that demands punishment.
- 11:21–23 The men of Anathoth insisted that Jeremiah not prophesy in the name of the LORD. If Jeremiah had yielded to their demand, he would have repudiated his calling, his person, and his God. The threat of death to Jeremiah was answered by punishment of the young men as well as their children. The prediction of death by famine was fulfilled when the city was besieged by the Babylonians in the days of Zedekiah.
- 12:1 Plead means “contend legally.” While no legal grievance can be brought against God, Jeremiah could pose legal questions to the righteous Judge.
- 12:2 The theme of God's establishing the nation of Israel is also found in 2:21; 11:17. The plant had taken root, but was producing bad fruit. near in their mouth . . . far from their mind: Pious phrases, such as “as the Lord lives,” were often spoken by the rebellious leaders of Israel, but without a commitment of their mind (11:20).

- 12:3 You, O LORD, know me: God's intimate relationship with Jeremiah is evidenced here. The prophet had faced becoming like a sheep for the slaughter (11:19); here he calls for his enemies to be judged in the same way.
- 12:4 How long: Jeremiah's question related to God's delay of judgment on the people of the land. land mourn . . . herbs of every field wither . . . beasts and birds are consumed: These three elements are recurring themes in Jeremiah and other prophetic texts (see 4:28; Is. 40:7; Zeph. 1:3). In spite of past chastisement, the people believed that God would not bring their country to an end.
- 12:5, 6 God's response to Jeremiah's question (v. 4) comes in the form of two metaphorical questions. The first metaphor, of foot racing, was designed to teach Jeremiah that the obstacles he faced in his hometown were meager compared to those he would encounter before the kings of Judah and Babylon (the horses). The second metaphor, of peace, was designed to remind the prophet of the impending turmoil he would have to endure in proclaiming the message of judgment to an unrepentant leadership. The relatively peaceful setting of Anathoth, with its minor opposition from treacherous family members, served to prepare Jeremiah to struggle against greater antagonists.
- 12:7–13 The precise setting of this lament is unknown. Yet the context would fit the period after Nebuchadnezzar seized control of Palestine and the vassal kingdom of Jehoiakim. Edomites, Moabites, and others attacked the perimeters of Judah, plundering towns and fortresses and taking captives.
- 12:7 dearly beloved: God's love and concern for His people does not preclude discipline when their sin makes it necessary.

(Heb. ‘azab) (2:13; 12:7; Is. 1:4; 54:7) Strong’s #5800

The prophets frequently used this term to describe the people’s relationship to the covenant God made with them. Israel is described as “forsaking” God and His covenant by turning to idols (22:9; Ezek. 20:8). Moses warned the Hebrews about breaking God’s covenant and forsaking Him. Because of their unfaithfulness, God would in turn forsake His own people (see Deut. 31:16, 17). Here the prophet Jeremiah indicates that this divine threat had become a reality for the nation of Judah (12:7).

12:8, 9 Judah had become like a lion roaring against God, resulting in His beloved becoming His hated.

12:10, 11 Rulers here refers to the foreign kings who had come as agents of God to judge Judah. The repetition of the word desolate three times in v. 11 describes the complete devastation of Judah (see Is. 6:11). Because of sin, the land that once saw God’s bounteous blessing would experience His devastating judgment.

12:12 Destruction would come to the desolate heights where Israel and Judah performed their idolatrous deeds (3:2; 3:21; 4:11).

12:13 The imagery turns to the fields, which the Israelites believed were endowed with fertility by Baal. Because of the people’s idolatry, their fields were overgrown with thorns.

12:14 Evil neighbors included the powerful nations of Babylon and Assyria, as well as opportunistic kingdoms like Edom, Moab, and Ammon. These latter kingdoms seized land, crops, and hostages when Judah was weakened by invasion. The inheritance refers to the land that God gave His people under specific conditions. Pluck . . . out, which means “to root out, destroy,” is often used in the Book of Jeremiah in the context of God’s retribution on evil nations. Judah would be “plucked out” from among those who were plucked out.

12:15 This verse offers a glimmer of hope in the middle of a prophecy of judgment. In the midst of His judgment, God would remember His covenant with Abraham. Eventually He would return and have compassion on His people. Land portions would revert to their original owners.

12:16 The nations are given a stern condition regarding their survival and blessing. They are advised to learn the ways of Israel more diligently than they had taught Israel their own ways of Baal worship. If the nations would do this and place themselves under His covenant—swear by His name, they would be established. This is a call for the nations to share in Israel’s salvation.

13:1, 2 linen sash: This article of clothing was like a short skirt or kilt worn by men. Jeremiah was not supposed to wash it.

13:3–5 Jeremiah was commanded to take his linen sash to the Euphrates River and hide it between the rocks. Since this would have meant a round-trip journey of some seven hundred miles—a trip that would have taken two to three months—some scholars have suggested that the river, generally translated as Euphrates, was within Palestine, perhaps the springs at the head of the Wadi Farah.

13:6, 7 Because Jeremiah’s sash was dirty and then was exposed to the elements, it was ruined and profitable for nothing.

13:8–11 As Jeremiah's waistcloth was ruined (v. 7), so Judah's pride would be reduced to ruin. Pride describes the self-exalting conduct that characterized Israel in its love for idols. This pride is explained in a triplet of verbal phrases: refuse to hear . . . follow the dictates of their hearts . . . walk after other gods. Jeremiah's undefiled waistcloth in v. 1 symbolized unspoiled Judah in its early days of devotion to God, tightly bound to Him in covenant faithfulness. But as the waistcloth became ruined near the Euphrates, so Judah defiled itself by its allegiances to Assyria, Babylon, and their national deities.

13:12 Jeremiah's quotation of a well-known proverb on the blessing of plentiful wine would be met with a derogatory response. The bottle was a clay storage jar used for wine, water, and oil.

13:13 Blessing turned to debauchery among the leaders and citizens of Jerusalem. The listing of kings, priests, prophets, and inhabitants is a means of depicting the entire religious and political nation by listing the different parts.

13:14 The wine jars of God's wrath would be smashed and broken together, a picture of a devastated nation. The triplet of synonyms for compassion—pity, spare, and have mercy—heightens the effect of hopelessness in Judah's situation.

13:15 Proud here refers to self-exaltation and contempt for the spoken or revealed word of God.

13:16 To give glory to God is to exalt and worship Him. This verse warns of the consequences of failing to glorify God. Four Hebrew synonyms for darkness are found in this verse, deepening the impression of divine displeasure meted out against God's people. In the rugged mountains that dominate the landscape of Judah, where walking in the dark is hazardous, no hope or light would be discerned.

13:17 Jeremiah had been told not to pray for the rebellious and unresponsive people of Judah (7:16; 11:14; 14:11), but here he expresses in secret his deep lament for the LORD's flock, who had been carried away into exile.

13:18, 19 The king and the queen mother are Jehoiachin and his mother Nehushta, who were exiled by Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 24:8–12) after only three months on the throne in Jerusalem. Humble yourselves: Jeremiah advised the royal household to submit to Babylon. Judah had established a series of fortresses in the South that were an important line of defense from the days of Solomon to Zedekiah. They were a source of pride for the military but were destroyed by the Assyrians and again by the Babylonians.

13:20 Those who come from the north refers to the Babylonians.

13:21 you have taught them . . . to be head over you: This verse seems to indicate that Judah had cooperated with its enemies as they began to dominate the nation. The metaphor of childbirth portrays Judah reaping the fruits of its labors in pain and anguish.

13:22 Your skirts have been uncovered: Judah would be shamed by its conquerors in the same way that a prostitute was publicly disgraced.

13:23 The negative rhetorical question confirmed Judah's inability to change its own ways. The nation had reinforced its habit of doing evil (4:22) for so long that it did not know how to do good.

13:24, 25 The consequence of Judah's continual rebellion would be the scattering of its inhabitants like chaff or stubble driven by the desert wind. The word falsehood is one of the key terms Jeremiah uses to refer to the fraudulent worship of foreign deities.

13:26, 27 Uncover your skirts refers to public exposure (v. 22). Since Judah had lustfully sought adulterous relationships with foreign gods and goddesses, God would expose and bring to shame its actions. Adulteries are literally sins against marriage. Applied to Israel the term means involvement with another nation's gods. Neighings refers to animals in heat pursuing mates. The lewdness of your harlotry describes both physical and spiritual prostitution.

14:1 Droughts were viewed as indicators of divine displeasure, as in the idolatrous days of Ahab, Jezebel, and Elijah.

14:2 Four short clauses using four words for lament profile the mourning of the country. The Hebrew word translated mourns is a general word for grief over the dead. Languish means “to wither” or “to shrink back.” The Hebrew word for mourn describes the dark gloom of weeping and wailing. Finally, cry describes a clamoring cry of joy or sorrow.

14:3, 4 nobles: The men of renown, who could have afforded any price for water, sent out servants to search in all the normal locations for water, but no water could be found. The rain-starved farmlands were scorched by the sun, and the farmers covered their heads in mourning.

14:5, 6 The drought of Judah affected even the wild animals. The doe abandoned its fawn for lack of forage. Wild donkeys stood on barren hills, sniffing the wind for the scent of moisture—to no avail.

14:7 Jeremiah echoes the sentiments of his people in his plea for forgiveness and deliverance for the nation. The word iniquities refers to the accountable guilt that results from continual unconfessed sin.

14:8 Jeremiah pleaded with God on the basis of God’s name and character, particularly His role as the Hope and Savior of His people. Instead of having an intimate relationship with Judah, God had become like a stranger or a traveler in the land, because the people worshiped other gods.

14:10 Unlike the troubled Jeremiah, the people were unrepentant and in need of correction. Jeremiah realized that judgment was inevitable because God offered no hint of deliverance. they have loved to wander: Loved describes voluntary desire. Wander describes a repetitive back and forth movement—in this case, of seeking every possible occasion for sin. Because no one displayed any restraint from sin, God could not violate His holy character and accept the people of Judah.

14:11, 12 Because divine discipline was inevitable, Jeremiah was instructed not to pray for the good of Jerusalem. fast . . . offer burnt offering: These methods of expressing penitence and establishing communion with God were ineffective because of the people’s disobedience. The doom of Judah was sealed.

14:13 Jeremiah complained to the Lord about false prophets who were proclaiming a message of peace instead of war and pestilence. These pretentious prophets presumed upon God’s mercy and promise of deliverance as demonstrated in the days of Hezekiah and Isaiah, when Jerusalem was miraculously rescued from the siege of Sennacherib’s army.

14:14 The prophet who truly speaks in the name of God will see his words come to pass. The false prophets who promised peace (v. 13) spoke lies of their own device (see 2 Pet. 1:19–21). Divination is prohibited in Deut. 18:14. Worthless thing is a degrading description of the idols that were worshiped in the days of Isaiah (see Is. 2:8) but condemned by the Law (see Lev. 19:4).

14:15, 16 God’s condemnation would fall first on the false prophets because of their prophecies of peace (v. 13). Next in line for judgment would be the inhabitants of the city who had been deceived by the false prophets.

14:17, 18 The setting for this lament over the desecrated city may be either 597 B.C., when Judah was invaded, or 588–586 B.C., when Jerusalem fell.

14:20 The people of Judah acknowledged their wickedness, meaning “rebellion,” their iniquity, meaning “perversity,” and the fact that they had sinned. This triplet of terms indicates the pervasiveness of sin in the land.

14:21, 22 The people’s plea for God’s mercy was based on His character—His name’s sake, His glory, His covenant relationship with Israel, and His power over creation. Entreaties based on divine character and attributes are common in the Psalms. At stake was God’s reputation and the blessing that would come to the people, but here the obligations of the people to the Lord are disregarded.

15:1 When Moses and Samuel interceded with God on behalf of the nation, God responded favorably. However, not even these men of God could alter the Lord’s intended purpose for the people of Judah—namely, that they should be driven from the land.

15:2 Death, sword, famine, and captivity would be the outcome of God’s judgment. He would use foreign armies as instruments of judgment (14:11, 12).

- 15:3, 4 The four forms of destruction describe the complete judgment of Judah. The imagery of dogs, birds, and beasts devouring human flesh vividly illustrates not only death, but desecration. The basis for this desecration is the defilement of Jerusalem that took place during the reign of Manasseh, when idolatry reigned in the temple courts and children were sacrificed to Molech (7:31).
- 15:6 Forsaken means “cast down” or “rejected.” The people threw off the yoke of the covenant and went backward instead of forward in obedience. My hand indicates the active power of God in accomplishing His will for His people (see Deut. 26:8). I am weary of relenting: Relenting refers to God’s restraining from totally demolishing Israel and Judah. For hundreds of years, the Lord had refrained from fully punishing Israel for its idolatry and unfaithfulness.
- 15:7, 8 Like wheat chaff that is scattered by the winnowing fork and the wind, the people of Judah would be dispersed. The population would be decimated. The further ravaging of the land is revealed in the numerous widows who would be left in the wake of the death of the men of Judah.
- 15:9 The blessing of seven sons was the ultimate hope for ancient mothers and fathers. But the utmost horror was to lose all seven in death, resulting in the loss of an heir.
- 15:10 Jeremiah’s faithfulness to his call to be a prophet had caused only strife and contention. Every one of them curses me: To curse someone in ancient Israel was to invoke condemnation on that person with a prescribed formula.
- 15:12 Iron here may symbolize Jeremiah, who was called an “iron pillar” in his call in 1:18. The iron of the north could then refer to the high quality iron from Asia Minor or the Balkans. Otherwise the imagery is that of a powerful foe from the north.
- 15:13, 14 Judah would be taken captive and exiled to an unknown land, as had happened to Israel a century before. Fire is often used in the books of the prophets as a symbol of divine wrath and judgment (4:4; 11:16).
- 15:15 God’s patience was shown in the way He endured for a long time the sin of His people. Jeremiah requested God to be patient with him and not take . . . away his life because of his own rebellion (see Jeremiah’s lament in v. 10).
- 15:16 Eating the words of the Lord means to internalize them and allow their meaning to become a reality in one’s life. Inner joy and rejoicing, or “abundant joy,” are the endowment of the one who knows and is known by the Lord. To be called by the Lord’s name is to be recognized as belonging to Him as a servant.
- 15:17 Jeremiah’s isolation and indignation were the results of his obedience to the word and calling of God.
- 15:18 My pain refers to Jeremiah’s internal agonizing over his prophetic role. The unreliable stream is a vivid picture of the arid regions of the Middle East, where water is at a premium and streams can run dry without warning.
- 15:19 The Lord responded to Jeremiah’s impassioned inquiry (vv. 15–18) with a message of repentance and reassurance of Jeremiah’s call. return: Jeremiah is admonished to “repent” (3:1, 7, 12), after which God would restore him to his prophetic position as God’s spokesman. Stand before means “to serve”; repentance and divine appointment are necessary for genuine prophetic service.
- 15:20, 21 I will make you . . . a fortified bronze wall . . . they shall not prevail: Jeremiah was recommissioned with words similar to those of his original calling (1:18, 19). The term deliver suggests bringing out from danger, bondage, and oppression. Redeem means to rescue from danger. The wicked refers to people such as Jehoiakim and the men of Anathoth who had opposed Jeremiah so vehemently (11:18–23). God promises His presence in times of opposition, persecution, and imprisonment for His sake.
- 16:1, 2 In the case of Jeremiah, the prohibition against marriage was both a sign to the nation and a blight against his name among the people. Celibacy was abnormal; large families were indicative of God’s blessing upon a household. Jeremiah faced life with God as his sole comfort and support.

- 16:5 God's prohibition against participating in the customary grief process reveals the abnormal nature of Jeremiah's life. The trio of terms for sorrow—mourning, lament, and bemoan—is followed by a trio of terms referring to God's faithful care—peace, lovingkindness, and mercies—from which Judah had been removed.
- 16:6, 7 The pagan mourning practices of cutting oneself and shaving oneself bald were strictly forbidden in the Law of Moses (see Lev. 19:28; 21:5; Deut. 14:1). The bread of mourning and cup of consolation probably refer to food and drink brought for the family of the deceased.
- 16:8, 9 The house of feasting was a banquet hall often used for wedding celebrations. Jeremiah was restricted from participating in all meaningful family ceremonies. Jeremiah's life was symbolic of the state of Israel and the estrangement between God and Judah.
- 16:10 The trio of questions posed by the people indicates their lack of understanding of God's word. The people of Judah had missed the purpose for which they were chosen, to manifest to the world the nature and character of God by living as the people of God.
- 16:11, 12 Judah had forsaken its covenant LORD and pursued other deities. Abandoning God and His law or "instruction" led to disaster. listens: This term is foundational to the nation's existence; it recalls Deut. 6:4, the central creed of Israel's biblical faith.
- 16:13 The blessing of devotion to God was freedom, prosperity, and large families in the land. Blessing was dependent on obedience; the consequence of disobedience was a dreaded life out of the land, in a world the people did not know.
- 16:14, 15 the days are coming: The future restoration of Israel would surpass the ancient deliverance from Egypt (23:7, 8).
- 16:16 The fishermen and hunters refer to the Babylonian armies that would scour the land for Judah's rebels. Hunting and fishing imagery as a metaphor for deportation is also found in Ezek. 12:13; Amos 4:2.
- 16:18 Defiled is used sometimes to refer to combined ethical, physical, and spiritual uncleanness. God's land or inheritance had been profaned by numerous cultic objects, which Jeremiah scathingly refers to as the carcasses of their detestable and abominable idols.
- 16:19, 20 A message of hope begins with a trio of honorific terms for God: strength, fortress, and refuge. Strength and fortress are related words in Hebrew, like the English "strength" and "stronghold." A refuge is a place of safety from danger. Jeremiah knew that His only place of strength and safety was in God. The scope of Jeremiah's hope is universal. The Gentiles, among whom the people of Judah would be exiled, would come to the God of Israel in fulfillment of the promise of Gen. 12:1–3.
- 17:1 Judah's sin had become so deeply engraved that it could not be removed. The point of a diamond on a pen of iron indicates the permanence of the engraving. The heart of the people, the center of their spiritual, emotional, and mental well-being, was inextricably entangled in stubborn rebellion against God.
- 17:3 Jerusalem and the other cities of Judah were demolished and plundered by the Babylonians. The remaining treasures of the temple of God were carried by Nebuchadnezzar's army to Babylon. Even the idolatrous cultic centers were destroyed (15:13, 14).
- 17:4 let go: This phrase, when used in the context of land, usually refers to letting the land lie fallow during the sabbatical year (see Ex. 23:10, 11). Judah's captivity would provide rest for the land from the idolatrous activities of its people.
- 17:5, 6 cursed: This term is used extensively in Deuteronomy. Two different words for man are used in this passage. The first refers to a strong and capable male; the second is a generic term for humankind as made in the image of God (see Gen. 1:26–28). One cannot trust in both God and humankind; to turn one's heart toward people is to turn away from God.
- 17:7 The term blessed is used often in the Psalms and Deuteronomy to describe the benefits that accrue to one who is devoted to the Lord and His Word. The words translated trusts and hope are related in Hebrew.

17:8 planted: The imagery of a fruitful tree derives directly from Ps. 1:3. This verse teaches that one who trusts in God will not be free from trials and adversity, but that God will bring fruit and blessing in and through those difficulties (14:1–9; 15:19–21).

17:9 The heart refers to the mind, the source of thinking, feeling, and action.

17:11 The teaching of 17:1–10 is supported by a proverb based on the common belief that the partridge hatched eggs other than its own. When the young birds recognized that the partridge was not their mother, they would leave her. Similarly, a man who unjustly gains wealth will be abandoned by that wealth and then be known as a fool. Fool here refers to a person without moral, ethical, or spiritual character.

17:12, 13 A glorious high throne refers to the temple in Jerusalem and the ark of the covenant, the symbol of God's presence and sovereignty over the nation. The hope of Israel refers to the expectation of deliverance and the restoration of the faithful (14:8). Judah had nowhere to turn because it had forsaken God and His lordship. There is only one source of life and hope for Israel and all nations—the LORD, the fountain of living waters.

17:14 Though Jeremiah struggled with difficulties, including persecution and loneliness, he continually turned in praise to the Lord who can heal and save. Likewise, the only hope of healing and salvation for the nation of Judah was divine intervention.

(Heb. apha') (17:14; 2 Chr. 7:14; Is. 19:22; 53:5; 57:18) Strong's #7495

This word applies literally to the work of a physician. Occasionally it refers to inanimate objects and can be best translated repair (1 Kin. 18:30). But more commonly this word connotes the idea of restoring to normal, as in 2 Chr. 7:14, where God promises to restore the land if His people pray. In the psalms, God is praised for His role in healing disease (Ps. 103:3), healing the brokenhearted (Ps. 147:3), and healing the soul by providing salvation (Ps. 30:2; 107:20). Isaiah declared that the healing of God's people results from the sacrificial wounds of His Son (Is. 53:5–12).

- 17:15, 16 Some scoffers dared to defy God and the word revealed through Jeremiah, taunting the Lord to bring the judgment threatened by His spokesman. Jeremiah pointed out that he took no pleasure in proclaiming judgment. He remained a devoted shepherd who was intimately concerned for his own people.
- 17:17 Terror may refer to physical, emotional, or mental horror. The word hope, meaning “refuge” or “shelter,” refers to a position of safety and security in the face of danger and helplessness, such as Jeremiah faced in Judah and Jerusalem.
- 17:18 Jeremiah called for his persecutors to be ashamed and dismayed, to be dishonored and demoralized. The prophet also called upon the Lord to confirm the message of judgment in the day of doom and double destruction.
- 17:19, 20 The particular gate is not mentioned, though the description would place it in the area of the Davidic citadel. Jeremiah's message was to be proclaimed throughout the city. From kings to peasants, all of the inhabitants of the city were to hear—and obey—the word of the Lord.
- 17:21, 22 Take heed: This same phrasing is used in Deut. 4:15 in a warning against idolatry. The sanctity of the Sabbath was a most serious matter. The Sabbath stood as a sign of creation and the covenant relationship between God and Israel. To hallow it is to set it apart, to distinguish it from other days.
- 17:23 Abuse of the Sabbath was apparently commonplace throughout the history of the nation.
- 17:24, 25 If the Sabbath was kept holy, signifying the covenant faithfulness of Israel, the nation would retain its sovereign kings and princes. In other words, the promise of unending Davidic succession in kingship would be fulfilled (see 2 Sam. 7:16).
- 17:26 If the stipulations of v. 21 were followed, the temple would once again become the center of worship for the nation. People would travel from throughout the land to Jerusalem to worship God with their sacrifices.
- 17:27 The consequence of disobedience would be total destruction of the city. If the stipulations of 17:21 were not followed, the Lord of the covenant would bring an unquenchable, destructive fire against the city and its palaces (see 4:4; Hos. 8:14; Amos 1:4-2:5).
- 18:2 Arise and go down is a common formula for divinely directed service.

The Potter's Wheel

The potter's wheel was used by potters to make their pottery even and symmetrical. Before its invention, pottery was built up of coils of clay smoothed and shaped by hand. The "slow wheel" was a small flat disk on a spindle, with a larger stone disk on the other end. It was spun by hand as the potter alternated between keeping the wheel in motion and shaping the clay. The "fast wheel" was really two wheels, one above the other, with an axle joining them. The potter sat on a bench and turned the lower wheel with his feet. This way, he could keep it going rapidly, yet still have both hands free to shape the clay on the upper wheel.

Jeremiah visited a potter at his wheel and compared the potter who molds his clay to God who has the power to mold the nation of Israel (18:2-8).

18:4-6 The potter's vessel was marred and thus unsuitable for its intended purpose. The potter's remolding of the clay into an acceptable and unblemished work symbolized God's action in reforming Israel. The people had become marred and defiled and had to be reformed into a vessel fit to be identified with the Lord.

18:7, 8 If a nation threatened with destruction would turn from its evil, God would relent of the promised disaster. God the Potter was more than willing to forgive the iniquity and stubborn rebellion of Judah. Unfortunately, the people continued in their stiffnecked ways. In Gal. 4:19, Paul uses this imagery to depict the formation of the image of Christ in the obedient Christian.

18:9, 10 A nation to whom God has promised His blessing may forfeit its preferred status through disobedience. In such a case, God would relent of the good He had promised and bring calamity upon the rebellious people.

18:11 God was fashioning a disaster, a calamity, for Judah if it did not repent or return to Him and change its actions from evil to good.

18:12 The people's response to God's warning (v. 11) is similar to that in 17:23: They rebelliously pursued their own ways. Hopeless describes the despair the people felt concerning obedience to God. These feelings were the direct result of the evil heart that is characteristic of people who continually turn away from the Lord and His ways.

18:13, 14 Negative rhetorical questions show the absurdity of Israel's rebellion. The snow water of Lebanon describes the Mt. Hermon watershed that erupts in numerous springs, providing most of the water for the Jordan River. God's blessing was often demonstrated in the provision of water from rocks in arid regions (see Ex. 17:6). No one would trade cool spring water for strange or "alien" waters.

18:15 The principal indictment brought against Judah was idolatry, which had resulted in the people's wayward lives and the humiliating destruction of the land. forgotten: This term is used in the same way in 3:21; 13:25. worthless idols: Foreign deities such as Baal and Asherah were represented by empty and ineffective cultic figurines. they have caused themselves to stumble: The people had brought upon themselves the droughts and disaster that they faced because they had strayed from the ancient paths, the way of the Law and the covenant relationship to God.

18:16 make their land desolate: For similar descriptions of the destruction of Judah, see 4:27; 6:8; 9:11.

18:17 An east wind refers to the scorching, late-spring sirocco wind from the northern Arabian desert. I will show them the back and not the face: This graphic expression depicts God withholding His assistance from the nation in its day of despair (2:27).

18:18 Similar to the situation in 11:18–23, the people devised plans to counter the words of Jeremiah. They reasoned that with their own priests, wise men, and prophets in Jerusalem, they did not need to listen to Jeremiah.

18:19, 20 Jeremiah reminded the Lord how he had interceded for the people and had asked God to turn away His wrath and judgment. But instead of showing their appreciation for Jeremiah's intervention, the people dug a pit in anticipation of his demise.

18:21, 22 Jeremiah's cry for personal revenge may not be as easily justified as those of the psalmists (see Ps. 137). Nonetheless, he had been falsely charged with misrepresenting the truth of God. All the imprecations, or calls for divine cursing, in the Bible have one element in common: Though strongly worded, they await the work of God rather than speaking of initiating revenge. Famine was one of the curses of breaking the covenant (see Deut. 28:48).

18:23 You know: As God had known Jeremiah's heart (12:3; 15:15), so He was keenly aware of the people's plots against the prophet. The word translated atonement is the same Hebrew word used in Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. The word emphasizes total cleansing and removal of sin and its effects. The word blot out is also used to refer to the removal of sin and guilt by God. Jeremiah's appeal was for God to condemn in anger rather than to forgive his enemies.

19:1, 2 A flask was a small, narrow-necked water bottle made of clay, six to ten inches tall. The elders were summoned to follow Jeremiah to the Valley of the Son of Hinnom (7:31, 32), a dumping area where children were ritually sacrificed in the days of Manasseh.

19:3 Hear: This key word of the Deuteronomic code (see Deut. 6:4) calls for a decision regarding the content of the message. his ears will tingle: This expression is used to refer to a harsh, ringing judgment announcement (see 1 Sam. 3:11).

19:4, 5 made this an alien place: The people, through their idolatry, had prevented the once-holy city of Jerusalem from being the place where God chose His name to dwell. The city had become a place of alien gods and goddesses. neither they . . . nor the kings of Judah have known: The word know speaks of an intimate, personal knowledge that it is impossible to have with inanimate physical objects. The blood of the innocents refers to the murderous act of child sacrifice (7:31). Human sacrifice was known among the Phoenicians, Moabites, and Canaanites. This abominable practice, performed in the name of religious worship, was explicitly forbidden in the covenant (see Deut. 12:31).

The Valley of Slaughter

A deep, narrow ravine south of Jebus (later Jerusalem), called the Valley of Hinnom or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, was the boundary between the territories of Benjamin and Judah (Josh. 15:8; 18:16). The location was unremarkable in Joshua's day, but came to have great significance later in Israelite history.

In the period of the divided monarchy, this valley was the site of a pagan altar (see Deut. 12:2) known as Tophet ("fireplace"; Jer. 7:31, 32; 19:6, 11–14). Parents sacrificed their children there to the god Molech. The Bible singles out Ahaz and Manasseh, kings of Judah, as having led the way in this grotesque ritual (2 Chr. 28:3; 33:6). But Scripture praises King Josiah for destroying this idolatrous altar during his reforms (2 Kin. 23:10).

Jeremiah, who was called as a prophet during Josiah's reign, foretold that God would judge the Israelites for committing the awful abomination of human sacrifice, among other evils. The Lord would cause such destruction that the Valley of Hinnom would become a cemetery known as the Valley of Slaughter (Jer. 7:32; 19:6).

This prophecy began to be fulfilled when Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. Later, the valley became the city dump for Jerusalem. Fires continually smoldered there, as the site was used as a burning ground for refuse and the dead bodies of criminals and animals.

In time, the valley became so noxious that its name became a synonym for hell. The Hebrew phrase ge ("valley of") hinnom eventually became the Greek gehenna, translated as "hell fire" (Matt. 5:22; Mark 9:43, 45, 47). At one time, Jewish tradition even held that the entrance to hell began at that valley.

- 19:7 Babylon was the agent who would make void, or “lay waste,” the counsel of the elders who rebutted the Lord’s message through Jeremiah and continued in idolatry.
- 19:8 God would allow Jerusalem to be made an object of derision and humiliation in order to vindicate His name (18:16). Plagues would strike the city according to the covenant curse of Deut. 28:58–61 (see Lam. 2:15; Zeph. 2:15).
- 19:9 The gruesome practice of cannibalism appears, recalling the words of Deut. 28:53. After years of siege resulting in severe famine, the people would resort to eating human flesh in order to survive. This prophecy was literally fulfilled in 586 B.C. when Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah, and again in A.D. 70 when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.
- 19:11 As pottery breaks into pieces when it is thrown on the hard ground, so God’s judgment would shatter the city and scatter those dwelling there. Restoration would be impossible. The number of corpses would outnumber possible burial sites (7:32, 33).
- 19:12, 13 As the inhabitants of Jerusalem had made the Valley of the Son of Hinnom a place of death, so the Lord would make the entire city of Jerusalem a place of death (vv. 4–6).
- 20:1 Pashhur . . . chief governor: A person in this position had to be a priest. He had oversight of the temple, the temple guards, entry into the courts, and so on. Jeremiah’s proclamations against the city and the temple were of grave concern to Pashhur because of the threat to the continuation of the cult in which he was involved.
- 20:2 Jeremiah was beaten and confined to a stockade by Pashhur. This was not a normal prison or dungeon, but a holding cell for those who might defile the area by uncleanness or aberrant behavior. The high gate of Benjamin was also called the Upper Gate, to distinguish it from another city gate of the same name. This portal provided access into the temple courtyards from the north, the direction of Benjamin’s territory.
- 20:3, 4 The name Magor-Missabib means “Terror on Every Side.” As Pashhur had been a terror to Jeremiah, so he would become a terror to himself, his family, and his associates. The foe from the north described in earlier passages (1:13–15) is here identified as Babylon.
- 20:5 The four resources of Jerusalem that would be transported with the exiles to Babylon were wealth, produce, precious things, and treasures. This list is balanced by four terms for the confiscation of Jerusalem’s valuables: give, plunder, seize, and carry. The use of these terms for both the plunder and the confiscation indicates comprehensiveness.
- 20:6 Pashhur, his family, and his close associates who had opposed Jeremiah would be deported to Babylon because Pashhur had prophesied lies. Pashhur apparently had announced that Jerusalem would not suffer destruction.
- 20:7 induced . . . persuaded: A play on words is intended by using two forms of the same word, which means “to entice.” Jeremiah claimed that the Lord had seduced him and that he had succumbed to the temptation.
- 20:8 Jeremiah had faithfully proclaimed the Lord’s word of judgment and destruction, but the prophecy had not been fulfilled, thus opening the prophet up to reproach and derision.

word

(Heb. dabar) (1:2, 13; 7:2; 20:8; 26:5; Deut. 24:5) Strong's #1697

This Hebrew word is derived from the verb “to speak,” and it signifies the word or thing spoken. Often it refers to the idea or content of what is said, and is translated matter (2 Sam. 11:19), thing (Ex. 16:16), or business (Deut. 24:5). The phrase “word of the LORD” is used by the prophets at the beginning of a divine message (see 1:13). In the case of prophetic literature, word can be a technical term for a prophecy. In the Bible, the word of revelation is associated with prophets (26:5), just as wisdom is associated with wise men and the law with priests (18:18). Jeremiah used dabar more than any other prophet in order to clarify the authority given to him by God.

- 20:9 Jeremiah decided to refrain from declaring God's word or speaking in His name. But the divine message could not be held within or in any way hindered from accomplishing God's purpose (see Is. 46:10, 11; 55:11). God's word was like a consuming fire in Jeremiah's heart and bones; unless the word was unleashed, the prophet would perish. Unlike the heart of the people, Jeremiah's mental, physical, emotional, and spiritual life was overwhelmed by God's word and will for His people.
- 20:10 Jeremiah was mocked with his own words, fear on every side (v. 3, 4). Report . . . and we will report it: Whatever Jeremiah announced or denounced, the leaders of Judah turned back against him until he was devastated and demoralized.
- 20:11 Most psalms of individual lament contain a confession of trust in God (see Ps. 13). Jeremiah turned to God in prayer and praise in his hour of deepest need. with me: In his call, Jeremiah was promised God's presence to deliver him (1:8, 19). mighty, awesome One: God was Jeremiah's powerful warrior. Jeremiah's enemies would not prevail (vv. 7, 10), but would stumble and fall before God. Their punishment would be shame and everlasting confusion (23:40).
- 20:12 You who test: God tests (6:27; 17:10) and judges the righteous, those who walk uprightly in His ways and truth. see the mind and heart: God can see the innermost being of a person and discern his or her attitude and spirit. vengeance: Jeremiah cried for the Lord's promised judgment and destruction to be fulfilled without delay.
- 20:13 Jeremiah's confession of trust turns to praise as he quotes or paraphrases a psalm or hymn. The context and content of the psalm closely parallel Ps. 35:9, 10 (see also Ps. 109:30, 31).
- 20:14, 15 In ancient Israel, to curse God or one's parents was an offense punishable by death. Jeremiah avoided committing a capital offense by cursing his conception and birth, and hence his call from God.
- 20:16, 17 Jeremiah's intense dejection caused him to call for the death of the man who told Jeremiah's father the good news of his son's birth. did not relent: Jeremiah, in his distress, thought it would have been more merciful for him to die before birth than to endure the hardship of rejection, persecution, and imprisonment that he faced.
- 21:1 Pashhur the son of Melchiah had Jeremiah cast into a dungeon for the prophet's alleged disloyalty to the kingdom (38:1–6). Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah was a temple officer who, with others, sought divine guidance through Jeremiah’s counsel (37:3, 4).

21:2 To inquire of the Lord means to seek His will. Nebuchadnezzar was king of Babylon from 605–562 B.C. wonderful works: This phrase is primarily used of God in His cosmic activity and mighty acts in history on behalf of Israel (see Ps. 40:5). God had delivered Jerusalem from destruction during the siege of Sennacherib of Assyria in 701 B.C.; King Zedekiah was hoping for a similar divine deliverance.

21:3, 4 Jeremiah’s response to Zedekiah was demoralizing. Instead of turning back the forces of the Babylonians, God would thwart what little strength Jerusalem could muster against them.

Chaldeans

The Chaldeans were one of the ancient peoples that formed the dominant population in Babylonia, especially beginning with the empire of Nebuchadnezzar II (king of Babylonia from 605 to 562 B.C.).

In the Bible, the term Chaldeans is first mentioned in connection with Haran—the son of Terah and brother of Abram. Abram lived in Ur of the Chaldeans before the Chaldeans dominated Babylonia (Gen. 11:28–31). Most references to Chaldeans appear in the Book of Jeremiah (21:4, 9; 35:11; 51:4, 54). Jeremiah identified the Chaldeans with the Babylonians who besieged the city of Jerusalem during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, looted the temple, and carried the Israelites into captivity.

The term also was used by ancient authors to denote those educated in classical Babylonian literature, especially astronomy and astrology (Dan. 2:2, 4, 5, 10). Some believe the “wise men from the East” (Matt. 2:1) may have been Chaldean astrologers.

21:5 Because the people of Judah had become God’s enemies, God would fight against them. outstretched hand . . . strong arm: The divine instruments by which Israel had gained freedom from Egypt (see Ex. 15:6; Deut. 6:21) and deliverance from their enemies would be used against them.

21:6, 7 The pestilence that would strike man and beast recalls one of God’s plagues on the Egyptians prior to the Exodus (see Ex. 9:1–7). Nebuchadnezzar . . . enemies . . . those who seek their life: Not only did the Babylonians inflict damage upon Judah, so did constant enemies like the Edomites, who raided and then settled in the dry regions to the south. God would not spare or have pity on the stubborn and rebellious inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

21:8, 9 way of life . . . way of death: Death would come to those who attempted to survive the siege of Jerusalem; life was possible through surrender to the Chaldeans (Babylonians). Prize usually refers to the booty and spoils of war. Those who submitted to the Babylonians were on the side of God, and their “booty” would be their lives (38:2).

21:10 I have set My face: This phrase describes the fixed intention of God, which in this context was against Jerusalem. The result would be adversity rather than good.

- 21:11–14 This oracle in language reminiscent of 7:6 and Deut. 17:18–20 establishes the basis for judgments against the kings of Judah in subsequent chapters. The king was to be devoted to the commandments of God and was to mete out judgment, or justice. The ultimate test of the king was measured in his judicial response to those who were oppressed and plundered (see Is. 1:17; Amos 4:1–3).
- 21:13, 14 inhabitant of the valley . . . rock of the plain: These phrases refer to Jerusalem. come down: Attacking armies generally approached Jerusalem from the north along an elevated ridge. Punish means “to visit in judgment” in this context.
- 22:1 One goes down to Jerusalem by coming from the north in Anathoth and descending slightly in elevation. The house of the king was the royal palace located just south of the temple courtyards.
- 22:2 Jeremiah’s prophecy was addressed to three groups: kings who sit upon the throne of David and thus are of David’s lineage, the kings’ servants (royal officials and attendants), and the people who enter these gates. The last phrase may refer to the citizens in general or to personnel who regularly entered the palace gates.
- 22:3 According to Is. 11:1–5, the ideal Davidic king would execute judgment, or justice, and righteousness, or uprightness, fairness, and conformity to standard. This description anticipates the “Branch of righteousness” in 23:5. The wisdom and prophetic writers echoed the same sentiment concerning the righteousness of kingdoms—that they must be measured according to their protection of the three segments of society who were unable to defend themselves: the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow.
- 22:4, 5 If justice and righteousness characterized the leadership of the land, the continued prosperity of the Davidic dynasty would be assured. However, if the Lord’s words were not heeded, the house of David would be made a desolation—that is, a ruin or waste.
- 22:6, 7 Gilead and Lebanon were sources for timber for the royal palaces. These luxurious residences would be reduced to deserted wilderness and set ablaze if the kings disobeyed the covenant.
- 22:8 Even the nations—the Gentiles—would recognize that the punishment described in vv. 5–7 was the work of the Lord, the result of His displeasure with His people.
- 22:9 The pagan nations would recognize that the destruction of Jerusalem was the result of Judah’s violation of its covenant with God. The people of Judah had exchanged their God for alien deities, whom they worshiped and served.
- 22:11, 12 This is the first of three messages directed at specific kings of Judah. Josiah died at Megiddo in 609 B.C. while attempting to block Pharaoh Necho of Egypt from coming to the aid of Assyria. who went from this place: This is a reference to Jehoahaz, also called Shallum. This fourth son of Josiah was placed on the throne by the people of Judah, but he was dethroned after three months by Pharaoh Necho. Shallum was imprisoned and taken captive to Egypt (see 2 Chr. 36:1–4). Eliakim (Jehoiakim), Shallum’s brother, was placed on the throne as an Egyptian vassal. Necho maintained control of Palestine until Nebuchadnezzar defeated Egypt at the Battle of Carchemish in 605 B.C. Shallum (Jehoahaz) died without returning from Egypt, in fulfillment of Jeremiah’s words (2 Kin. 23:34).
- 22:13, 14 unrighteousness . . . injustice: The key terms for true, biblical leadership quality—righteousness and justice—were negated by the king’s actions. uses his neighbor’s service without wages: The king was supposed to be the guardian of his people, but Jehoiakim enslaved his fellow Israelites to build his self-aggrandizing palaces.
- 22:15, 16 Did not your father . . . do justice and righteousness: This rhetorical question identifies Josiah, father of Jehoiakim, as a model king. knowing Me: Israel perished because of its lack of knowledge of God (see Hos. 4:6). Knowledge of God here is related to concern for the poor and needy (20:13).
- 22:17 Jehoiakim did not follow in the footsteps of Josiah. covetousness . . . shedding innocent blood . . . practicing oppression and violence: This triad of sins characterizing the reign of Jehoiakim would hammer home a resounding message to Judah concerning the collapse of its kingship. Covenant violations would not go unpunished.

22:18, 19 A king of such despicable character as Jehoiakim deserved no lament. burial of a donkey: Instead of proper funeral rites due a king, Jehoiakim would receive an ignoble burial, like an animal, alone and unlamented.

22:20 Jerusalem was called upon to mourn its destruction in the mountainous regions of the north—Lebanon, in the northeast—Bashan, and in the mountainous regions of the southeast—Abarim. Lovers here probably refers to Judah's past and present political allies, such as Phoenicia, Aram, Moab, and Egypt.

22:21 God had spoken to Israel and Judah in times of prosperity, as in the days of Azariah, Jeroboam II, and Josiah, but the people would not hear and obey the words of the prophets, righteous kings, priests, and other leaders.

22:22, 23 The wind shall eat up: The winds of adversity and invasion would carry off Judah's leaders and allies alike. The nation would be ashamed that it had entered into such futile associations. Lebanon refers to Jerusalem here (in contrast to v. 20). Cedars refers to the luxuriant royal palaces in the city (see Ezek. 17:1–10).

22:24–27 Coniah, also known as Jehoiachin, succeeded his father in 598 B.C. under the threat of siege from Babylon as a result of Jehoiakim's rebellion. The king's signet ring, a symbol of his power and authority, was used to seal official court documents. Jehoiachin could not serve God in such a capacity because of his evil reign (see 2 Kin. 24:9). Jehoiachin reigned for three months until he and his family were exiled to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 24:6–16). Your mother refers to Nehushta, the queen mother of the 18-year-old Jehoiachin. Eventually Jehoiachin was released from prison, after the death of Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kin. 25:27).

22:28–30 childless: The king had seven sons (see 1 Chr. 3:17, 18), but the Davidic lineage of kingship would not extend to his heirs. A man who shall not prosper: Jehoiachin remained in prison throughout the reign of Nebuchadnezzar from 598 to 562 B.C.

23:1, 2 Woe usually introduces a harsh message of judgment. shepherds: In the ancient Middle East, the ideal of kingship was often presented in the imagery of a shepherd. For Israel, the ideal of the Good Shepherd was found in its Great King (see Ps. 23) and was reflected in the reign of David, the shepherd-king. But instead of protecting and nurturing the nation, the shepherd kings of Israel had scattered and not attended to or “visited” the people.

23:3 The kings of Israel had caused the dispersion of the nation; but the Lord would mercifully bring about the restoration of the remnant. The concept of a reestablished remnant is prominent in the prophets (see Is. 1:9; 10:20–23; 11:16; 46:3). The blessing of restoration and prosperity as a consequence of repentance is outlined in Deut. 30:1–10.

23:4 God would raise up a new generation of kings who would place the people's welfare and God's will above all other considerations.

23:5 Branch: Beginning with Is. 4:2, this term is used of the promised Messiah (see 33:15; Zech. 3:8; 6:12). This great king will reign with judgment, or justice, and righteousness. This ideal was founded on God's promise to David (2 Sam. 7:16). The necessity for the Lord to send His own king is based on the failure of Israel's monarchs to live up to the standards of kingship (21:11, 12; 22:1–4).

23:6 The days of the Messiah's reign would bring salvation. Both Judah and Israel would be restored. The name that characterizes this ideal king is THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. Contrast that to the name Zedekiah, which means “The Lord Is My Righteousness” (21:1). Zedekiah's name was a gross misnomer compared to the One who would establish the true, righteous rule—God's appointed king (see also Is. 9:7; 11:1–10). This verse is one of the texts in the Hebrew Bible that speaks specifically and surely of the coming of the glorious Savior and King.

23:7, 8 the days are coming: The future restoration of Israel would exceed anything in the past; it would surpass even the first Exodus, the deliverance from Egypt. A similar text is found in 16:14, 15, following a judgment oracle.

- 23:9, 10 Heart here refers to the mind more than the emotions. Jeremiah's dismay over the false prophets weakened him mentally and physically, so much so that he felt drunken from the inner turmoil. The prophet also felt unrest from his being consumed by the holy words of God. adulterers: This term could apply to those who practiced immoral sexual behavior, those who committed spiritual adultery by pursuing other gods, and those who were involved in cultic prostitution. The effects of the adultery reached to the land. Instead of experiencing the God-given fertility and productivity of crops, the pleasant places were dried up. Wilderness refers not to the desert in this context, but to pasture land. Might here refers to royal power.
- 23:11 Prophets were to be spokesmen for God in directing the nation. Priests were to teach the Law, to distinguish between the clean and the unclean, and to oversee religious ceremonies (see Lev. 10:8–20). Profane means “unclean” or “corrupt.” My house: Like the prophet and priest, the temple of God had become polluted by the wickedness of the spiritual leaders.
- 23:13, 14 The prophets of Samaria, rather than speaking in the name of God, prophesied by Baal. They caused the people of Israel to err—that is, to stray morally, mentally, and spiritually from God's norms. Horrible thing here refers to “something utterly disgusting” (5:30). God found that the prophets of Jerusalem were committing adultery (v. 10) and walking in lies. The term lie is used commonly by Jeremiah to refer to idolatry. The leaders of Judah had supported evildoers who, like the kings, had abused the power of their position. The nation had become like Sodom and Gomorrah and thus deserved the same judgment those cities suffered (see Gen. 19:12–29).
- 23:15 Wormwood and water of gall refer to bitterness and death by poison. According to Deut. 18:20, the consequence of false prophecy was death.
- 23:16 Worthless is used to describe the futility of listening to those who speak a vision of their own heart. Visions were commonly understood to be a means of receiving a message from God (or the gods). The term vision used here and in 14:14 is also found in Daniel (Dan. 1:17; 8:1); plus it is used in other prophetic books to describe a divine revelation (see Is. 1:1; Mic. 3:6).
- 23:17 The false prophets proclaimed a false hope of peace and security to those who despised Jeremiah. However God's intention was to bring evil, or calamity (6:14).
- 23:18 God's counsel is available to one who walks in the fear of the Lord according to His word, who understands God's working in nature and history.
- 23:19, 20 God's counsel to Jeremiah's audience was not peace but harsh judgment. Whirlwind is used as a symbol of God's judgment (see Is. 29:6). thoughts of His heart: This phrase denotes God's plans and purposes by which He was bringing punishment (contrast Ps. 40:5).
- 23:21, 22 A true prophet must be sent by God with a word from God. A true prophet of God calls people to repentance of sin or evil and to renewed faith.
- 23:25–27 Lies here is singular, referring to the quality of the word the false prophets spoke. I have dreamed: Dreams were prized among the Assyrians, Egyptians, and Babylonians as a means of divine revelation. But in Israelite law and tradition, dreams were received cautiously. the heart of the prophets: The character of the false prophets was based on lies and deceit. Their deception was apparent because their goal was to draw the people into idolatry with their fanciful dreams, leading people to forget God and follow Baal (2:8).
- 23:28, 29 This poetic interlude compares dream and word. A dream is fleeting, like chaff in the wind. God's word has the force of fire and a hammer.
- 23:30, 31 steal My words: Lacking true knowledge and a word from God, the false prophets repeated false hopes and twisted God's words. use their tongues and say, “He says”: The false prophets spoke on their own, lacking a true word from God.
- 23:32 The counterfeit spokesmen of God prophesied false dreams, deluding the people. Recklessness further indicates the perverse character of the false prophets.
- 23:34–36 No true oracle would come from the false prophets. The sharing of oracles among neighbors (v. 27) would involve perverting the words of the living God. Perverted means “overturned.” The false prophets turned God's words around to their own desired benefit.

23:38–40 Speaking the oracle of the LORD was forbidden for the false prophets. everlasting reproach . . . perpetual shame: The disgrace that resulted from the false prophets would last for an extended period of time; its memory would endure forever (20:11).

24:1 The LORD showed me: This phrase suggests a visionary experience like those of Amos and Joel. The historical setting is the 597 B.C. exile of Jeconiah (Jehoiachin).

The Object Lessons and Parables of a Prophet

Since the people were not responding to Jeremiah's messages of warning and judgment, God had the prophet perform object lessons in order to arouse curiosity and effectively communicate the Lord's message to the people.

Passage: 13:1–11

Sign: The ruined waistband

Meaning: A linen sash was buried and later dug up. Its ruined state symbolized how the nation—which was intended to be close to God—had become corrupt and useless through idolatry.

Passage: 13:12–27

Sign: The wine jugs

Meaning: Jeremiah's prophecies concerning the broken wine jugs symbolized the coming judgment.

Passage: 16:1–9

Sign: Jeremiah's celibacy

Meaning: Jeremiah was forbidden to marry or participate in Jewish feasts to demonstrate how imminent God's judgment was.

Passage: 18:1–23

Sign: The potter

Meaning: Jeremiah was sent to watch a potter make a vessel and then remake it into something else. This functioned as a reminder to the people of God's sovereignty.

Passage: 19:1–15

Sign: The broken jar

Meaning: Jeremiah purchased a flask and then gathered the nation's leaders near the Valley of Hinnom—Jerusalem's "landfill." There Jeremiah broke the flask as a sign of God's coming judgment on His people because of their idolatrous ways.

Passage: 24:1–10

Sign: The baskets of figs

Meaning: Jeremiah spoke of a vision in which he saw two baskets of figs before the temple—one filled with good, ripe figs and the other with rotten figs. The good figs represented the Jews taken into Babylonian exile, while the bad figs represented the Jews who fled to Egypt.

Go to the List of Charts and Diagrams

24:2 The observation of good, or newly ripened, figs in the temple would place this account in the context of the fall festival of firstfruits (see Deut. 26:1–11).

- 24:4–7 The good figs are identified with the deported exiles, including Jeconiah’s royal household, whom God set apart for good. God would bring . . . back the captives, establish them in the land, and multiply their crops. Above all, God would give them a heart to know Him. This verse anticipates the new covenant message of 31:31–34.
- 24:8–10 According to chs. 28; 36–38, the people who remained in Jerusalem treated Jeremiah harshly, subjecting him to beating and imprisonment. Zedekiah and his entourage, along with Jews who fled to Egypt, would see the trouble, meaning “trembling fear” or “horror,” and harm, meaning “calamity,” from the Lord.
- 25:1 the first year of Nebuchadnezzar: In 605 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar succeeded his father on the throne of Babylon. He quickly moved his army to Carchemish and then defeated the Egyptians and some Assyrians. The following year Nebuchadnezzar’s forces gained control of all of Palestine, reaching southward to the Brook of Egypt.
- 25:3 Starting from the time he was called in 626 B.C., Jeremiah faithfully proclaimed the word of the Lord for 23 years. The idiom rising early and speaking describes Jeremiah’s diligence and persistence.
- 25:4, 5 Other prophets, such as Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Urijah (26:20), and those of previous centuries, had persistently proclaimed the message of repentance so that the nation might remain in the land. Security, prosperity, and long life in the land were directly related to the nation’s covenant faithfulness to God (see Deut. 28; 29).
- 25:6, 7 The phrase go after is used throughout Jeremiah to mean resorting to other gods in worship. The works of your hands refers to the manmade idols used in pagan worship, a breach of the covenant (see Ex. 20:3–5) that provoked God to anger.
- 25:8, 9 behold, I: The Lord was the One bringing judgment; the Babylonians and tribes from the north were merely agents of His destruction. families of the north: The Babylonian army employed Scythian and Cimmerian mercenaries from Asia Minor. Nebuchadnezzar . . . My servant: This expression does not imply that the Babylonian monarch worshiped Israel’s God, but simply that he was used by God to fulfill His purposes (as in the case of Cyrus, who is called the Lord’s “anointed” in Is. 45:1).
- 25:10, 11 take: This term means “cause to perish” and indicates harsh judgment. Life as they knew it would cease. These nations refers to Judah and the surrounding nations, such as Moab and Phoenicia, who would be subjected to enslavement and captivity. Seventy years is the approximate length of the Babylonian captivity.
- 25:15–17 The triad sequence drink . . . stagger . . . go mad depicts the judgment process by which the sword of the Lord subdues those opposed to Him. The state of drunkenness was condemned in the OT; to drink the cup and stagger was to display one’s guilt (see Num. 5:19–28). Then I took the cup: Jeremiah responded faithfully to God’s commands.
- 25:18 The list of nations that would be made to drink from the cup of the Lord’s judgment begins with Judah and Jerusalem, which would be made a source of derision (19:8; 25:9).
- 25:19 The first foreign nation condemned by God through Jeremiah was Egypt. The expanded oracle is found in ch. 46.
- 25:20 The land of Uz is generally interpreted as the region of Edom or northern Arabia. Ashkelon was captured by Nebuchadnezzar in 604 B.C. Gaza and Ashdod are also mentioned in Nebuchadnezzar’s Babylonian chronicles (see ch. 47).
- 25:21, 22 The states of Edom, Moab, and Ammon, and the Phoenician coastal territories of Tyre and Sidon, suffered heavily under Nebuchadnezzar’s attacks (see 48:1–49:22; Ezek. 27; 28).
- 25:23, 24 The Arabian desert kingdoms of Dedan, Tema, and Buz were condemned. Dedan and Tema were in Edomite territory (49:7, 8). The location of Buz is unknown.
- 25:25, 26 Elam and Media were located east of Babylon (49:34–39).
- 25:27, 28 The triad of terms for progressive inebriation—drink, be drunk, and vomit—emphasizes the extent of judgment that would flow from God’s cup of wrath. Those who refused the cup would be forced to drink.

25:29 God's judgment would begin with His own people and their holy city. God would bring calamity on the city that was called by His name. In doing so, God would vindicate His name and His holiness. From Jerusalem, God's sword of judgment would go forth to the ends of the earth.

25:30 on high . . . from His holy habitation: Generally these phrases refer to God's abode on Mt. Zion (see Joel 3:16; Amos 1:2).

25:31 A noise refers to a thunderous judgment resulting from God's controversy or "covenant lawsuit" against the nations. Though they had not received the Law like Judah and Israel, the Gentiles would be judged because they were wicked. The word wicked refers to the guilt associated with the breach of ethical standards, including violating the poor and needy and abusing the oppressed.

25:32, 33 As with Judah's horrifying calamity of unburied corpses (7:33), the nations would experience massive death and extensive destruction. The neglect of the dead is described in a triad of terms: not be lamented . . . (not be) gathered . . . (not be) buried. This desecration would be finalized by the decay of bodies into refuse or "dung" (8:2; 9:22; 16:4).

Word Studies

shepherd

(Heb. ra'ah) (23:1; 25:34; 31:10; Gen. 49:24; Ps. 23:1) Strong's #7462

The Hebrew noun for shepherd refers to someone who feeds and tends domestic animals. David spoke of God as his shepherd because God provided, sustained, and guided him (Ps. 23). Kings and other leaders were also seen as shepherds of their people, and the title “shepherd” was frequently applied to kings in the ancient Middle East. David was a true shepherd-king, responsibly leading and protecting his people (2 Sam. 5:1, 2). Jeremiah rebuked the leaders of Israel who were false shepherds and failed in their responsibility of caring for the spiritual well-being of God’s people (23:1–4).

Go to the List of Word Studies

25:37, 38 Homes and pastures that once were peaceful and secure would be devastated. The Oppressor is a surprising designation for the Lord.

26:1 In the beginning: This expression technically refers to the part of the year between the day the king ascended to the throne and the beginning of his first full year of reign, which began in the spring month of Nisan (March-April), 608 B.C.

26:2 The court of the temple may refer to one of the inner courts connected by the gate mentioned in 7:2. Come to worship describes the normal worship there or perhaps more specifically the pilgrimages to Jerusalem for festival and fast days. Do not diminish: Jeremiah was told to speak unsparingly with unwavering boldness.

26:3 The introduction to the judgment oracle is expressed in conditional terms. If the people repented of evil the Lord would relent from the calamity He was threatening to bring on them.

26:6 Shiloh was not far from Jerusalem. The people could see the effects of its destruction by the Philistines in 1050 B.C.—a destruction that overtook it even though it was the first resting place of the ark of the covenant. Jeremiah uses Shiloh as an illustration of the coming judgment of Jerusalem even though the temple of God had been built there.

26:8, 9 The priests and the prophets and all the people refers to the collective worship assembly. The religious leaders responsible for overseeing the temple considered Jeremiah’s words blasphemy, for he spoke of the destruction of the temple itself. The people rejected Jeremiah’s prophecy and tried to kill him (see John 8:59 for the similar rejection suffered by Jesus).

26:10, 11 Jeremiah’s words were reported to the princes, the royal administrators and kingdom officials, who came to the New Gate to carry out an official inquiry. The prophets and priests presented an accusation against Jeremiah, calling for the death sentence for speaking against Jerusalem.

26:12, 13 Jeremiah called the assembly to amend, or make good, their evil ways and to obey God’s voice, here referring to the covenant and the words proclaimed by Jeremiah.

26:14, 15 Held captive by the hostile crowd, Jeremiah pointed to the potential sin of shedding innocent blood. Jeremiah had already accused the leaders of Jerusalem of shedding innocent blood with child sacrifices in the Hinnom valley (2:34; 19:4). truly the LORD has sent me: Sentencing God’s prophet to death would result in greater judgment, in addition to the people’s other offenses against heaven.

26:16 This man does not deserve to die: Jeremiah's self-defense gained acceptance from the crowd, against the objections of the wicked religious leaders.

26:17–19 After Jeremiah's hearing, one of the elders from the people cited the precedent of the eighth century prophet Micah of Moresheth. In the reign of Hezekiah, Micah had announced the impending destruction of Jerusalem by the Assyrians (see Mic. 3:12). Yet because of the repentance of Hezekiah and the inhabitants, the city was spared from the onslaught of the Assyrian army under Sennacherib (701 B.C.).

26:20–23 Urijah, whose name means "My Light Is the Lord," was from Kirjath Jearim, about 15 miles west of Jerusalem (see 1 Sam. 7:1, 2). Like Jeremiah, Urijah had prophesied in the name of the LORD about judgment against Jerusalem. When Jehoiakim and his administrators heard of Urijah's declarations, they sought to seize the "blasphemous" prophet, who escaped by fleeing to Egypt. Since Jehoiakim was a vassal to Necho of Egypt, Urijah was extradited and executed. Elnathan the son of Achbor was among the princes in Jehoiakim's court who heard the reading of Jeremiah's first scroll of oracles (36:11–19) and protested Jehoiakim's burning of the scroll (36:20–26).

26:24 Jeremiah was sheltered by Ahikam the son of Shaphan who, along with his father, served as a scribe under Josiah when the Book of the Law was found in the temple (see 2 Kin. 22:8–14). Ahikam's brother Gemariah also opposed Jehoiakim's burning of Jeremiah's original scroll (36:25). This faithful family was supportive of Jeremiah and was instrumental in saving his life.

27:2, 3 Bonds and yokes are wooden bars or beams that attach to a pair of oxen with leather bands. The symbolic act of wearing the yoke would communicate bondage, restraint, and enslavement. The messengers were foreign ambassadors in Jerusalem.

27:4, 5 The foreign ambassadors were to announce to their masters that the God of Israel is the true sovereign Lord over creation and the affairs of humans. The whole of creation is summed up in the triad earth . . . man . . . beast. Unlike the gods of the nations, whose power was often believed to be geographically limited, the God of Israel reigned over all the earth, granting territorial rights and power to nations and kings as it seemed proper to Him.

27:6, 7 My servant: With all of his military might and conquests, the king of Babylon was still a servant of the God of Israel, carrying out the Lord's purposes—namely the judgment of Judah. son's son . . . time of his land: Following the death of Nebuchadnezzar in 562 B.C., his heirs and successors retained control of Babylon for only 24 years. Babylon fell without a battle to Cyrus and the Persian armies in 539 B.C., and later to Alexander the Great of Greece.

27:8 The symbol of the yoke is explained to the foreign ambassadors. Those who would not submit as vassals to Babylon would be punished.

27:9, 10 The way kings summoned various prophet-diviners to give them direction is well known from the Book of Daniel (see Dan. 2:2; 5:7). Besides prophets, there were diviners, like Balaam (see Num. 22-24), who were prohibited from practicing their craft in Israel (see Deut. 18:9–14); dreamers, a class of fortune-tellers prohibited by the Law (see Deut. 13:1–5); as well as soothsayers and sorcerers, both common among the nations but forbidden to practice their trades in Israel (see Deut. 18:9–14). The collective effort of these diviners to determine the fate of their nations failed. Like the false prophets of Judah, they heralded a message of rebellion and resistance against Babylon. Only Jeremiah stood for the truth: the Lord would punish Judah through Nebuchadnezzar.

27:11 bring their necks under the yoke: To submit to Babylon was to submit to the will and purposes of God.

27:12, 13 Jeremiah's message to Zedekiah was the same as his message to the foreign ambassadors (vv. 4–11): submit to Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians and live, or rebel against Nebuchadnezzar—and God—and die.

27:15 I have not sent them: Divine call and commission are prerequisites to fulfilling a true prophetic role.

27:16, 17 Do not listen: For the priests to listen to the false words of the prophets concerning the inviolability of the temple was to seal their own doom and that of the temple. Many vessels (v. 19) had been carried off by Nebuchadnezzar in the exile of Jeconiah (Jehoiachin). The false prophets said that Babylon would be defeated and the temple furnishings would be returned.

27:18 Jeremiah proposed a test to verify the words of the contentious prophets. if the word of the LORD is with them: If the prophets truly spoke for the Lord, their intercession—the survival of the remaining temple implements—would come to pass. vessels which are left: Many of the furnishings of the temple of the Lord were transported to Babylon in the exile of Jehoiachin and his entourage (see 2 Kin. 24:13). According to Jeremiah, the vessels that remained would be taken in the final destruction of the city. Events would demonstrate whose word was from the Lord.

27:21, 22 Jeremiah's message from the Lord is presented in detail. The remaining vessels in the temple, as well as in the king's palace, would be carried to Babylon until the Lord restored His people. In the midst of a prophetic message against the false prophets, Jeremiah spoke a message of hope and restoration. Destruction was imminent, but God does not forget His people. He would restore the righteous remnant.

28:1 The same year refers to the time of ch. 27 (593 B.C.). The fifth month was the month of Ab (July-August). Hananiah was from Gibeon, six miles northwest of Jerusalem and about five miles west of Jeremiah's hometown, Anathoth. Hananiah's name means "The Lord Is Gracious."

28:2–4 Hananiah spoke in the name of the LORD of hosts, using the name of God as Jeremiah did to introduce a solemn message of judgment against Babylon. Building on Jeremiah's imagery of the yoke (ch. 27), Hananiah proclaimed the contradictory message that the yoke of . . . Babylon would be broken by God. Hananiah believed that God's message for Judah was one of imminent deliverance—within two full years—from servitude to the king of Babylon. Hananiah also prophesied the return of the holy vessels taken by Nebuchadnezzar from the temple of God. Furthermore, Hananiah espoused the popular belief that the kingship of Zedekiah was illegitimate and that God would restore Jeconiah (Jehoiachin) to the throne in Jerusalem.

28:7–9 war and disaster and pestilence: Hananiah's message of peace and prosperity ran contrary to the long tradition of the genuine Hebrew prophets. Amos, Hosea, Micah, Joel, and Nahum spoke words of judgment and destruction against great kingdoms like Assyria and Egypt. Peace in this context refers to the well-being and wholeness resulting from God's restoration of the nation.

28:10, 11 Seizing the yoke from Jeremiah's neck (ch. 27) and breaking it before the people, Hananiah made a resounding proclamation: Even so I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar . . . from the neck of all nations within the space of two full years. This announcement reversed every statement by Jeremiah and advanced the cause of rebellion against Babylon by Judah and the surrounding nations, something King Zedekiah had desired all along.

28:12, 13 After an indefinite period of time, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. God's prophet was instructed to return to Hananiah with a new interpretation of the yoke motif. Because Hananiah had broken the original yokes of wood, God would replace them with yokes of iron that could not be broken.

28:14 All these nations against which Jeremiah originally had spoken (in 27:1–11) would serve Nebuchadnezzar.

28:15, 16 Hananiah had not been sent by God, but he had led the people astray with a lie. As a result, Hananiah would be cast . . . from the face of the earth and die that very year.

28:17 the seventh month: Two months after Hananiah prophesied about Judah's captivity (v. 1), the false prophet was dead.

29:1 words of the letter: A written document was carried from Jerusalem to the Jews in Babylon. remainder: This may imply that some of the elders were executed in the 594 B.C. revolt alluded to in vv. 21–23.

29:2 This parenthetical passage provides background from 2 Kin. 24:12–16 concerning the deportation of Jeconiah (Jehoiachin), the royal family, and chief artisans of Judah to Babylon in 597 B.C. This method of eliminating leaders and leaving the peasant population to pay taxes to the kingdom was learned from the Assyrians and was designed to reduce the likelihood of rebellion.

29:3 The messengers were Elasah the son of Shaphan, perhaps a brother of the sympathetic Ahikam (26:24), and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah, a member of Jehoiakim's administration (36:10).

29:4 Jeremiah reminded the exiled community that ultimately it was God, not Nebuchadnezzar, who had caused them to be carried away captive . . . to Babylon.

29:5, 6 Jeremiah had proclaimed a period of 70 years (25:12) of Babylonian exile. For the meantime, he counseled the people to settle in and carry on their normal daily activities. The terms build and plant are significant because they fulfill the particulars of Jeremiah's call (1:10). Exile did not necessarily mean imprisonment or enslavement, but displacement and resettlement in unknown lands. be increased . . . not diminished: If the people were faithful in the circumstances of captivity, God would cause them to prosper with children and with fertile crops.

29:7 The exiles were instructed to seek and pray for the peace, or well-being, of Babylon and the other towns where they were deported. As a result, they themselves would live in peace as beneficiaries of God's gracious sovereignty over the nations (27:5, 6).

29:8, 9 Jeremiah issued a warning against following the advice of prophets, diviners, and dreams. A similar warning was issued to the nations surrounding Judah in 27:9, 10 and to Judah in 27:14, 17.

29:10 The concept of the seventy years of Babylon captivity is reiterated from 25:12. The number 70 symbolizes completion and fulfillment of God's sovereign plans for creation and human history. The completion of the years of the kingdom of Babylon would also be the completion of Judah's exile.

29:11 I know the thoughts that I think: The Lord here places considerable emphasis on His unchangeable plan to bring peace and not evil. a future . . . a hope: God had not terminated His relationship with Judah; He remembered His covenant promises of restoration (see Deut. 30:1–10).

29:12, 13 The promised response of the Lord to the people's prayers stands in contrast to His refusal to hear in 7:16. all your heart: The picture here differs greatly from the usual depiction of the heart of the people of Judah as stubborn and wicked (3:10; 4:14; 7:24). God would search the people's heart and reveal its true character (11:20).

29:14 I will be found: Those who seek God with a whole heart will find Him and experience His renewal. I will bring you back . . . gather you . . . bring you to the place: God was the captor, and He would restore His people from captivity.

hissing

(Heb. shereqah) (29:18; 2 Chr. 29:8; Mic. 6:16) Strong's #8322

The Hebrew word translated hissing is from a verb meaning “to whistle” (Is. 5:26) or “to play a pipe” as a signal for flocks (see Judg. 5:16). This word may refer to a superstitious practice among ancients: They would shake their head and whistle when passing by the ruins of a village or a deserted city, as a charm against suffering the same fate. The OT prophets used this word to warn the Israelites of the ridicule and scorn they would endure as part of God’s judgment on their sins (Lam. 2:15, 16; Zeph. 2:15). Jeremiah often used this word in connection with “astonishment” over a calamity (19:8; 29:18; 51:37). Zechariah used the same word to describe God’s gracious regathering of the Israelites from the Exile (Zech. 10:8), using the image of a shepherd whistling for his sheep.

- 29:19 The cause of Jerusalem’s shame was its failure to heed the words of God, revealed through the covenant stipulations and the diligent—rising up early—proclamation of the prophets (25:3; 26:5).
- 29:21 Ahab the son of Kolaiah, and Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah were the prophets spoken of in 29:15. The two were accused by Jeremiah of a deplorable crime: prophesying a lie in God’s name. Their lie was prophesying the imminent collapse of Babylon and the restoration of the captives to Jerusalem. Such false prophecy urging rebellion against God was a capital offense (see Deut. 13:5–10). The prophetic punishment of Ahab and Zedekiah was death by command of Nebuchadnezzar.
- 29:22, 23 This term curse may be a play on the name Kolaiah (“called of the Lord”; v. 21). He claimed to be called of God, but was cursed along with those who supported his position. These Jewish leaders had compounded their sin by doing disgraceful things (see Deut. 22:21).
- 29:24–28 Jeremiah addressed Shemaiah the Nehelamite concerning his correspondence with Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah and the Jerusalem priesthood. Shemaiah had challenged Zephaniah’s apparent leniency in dealing with the problem of Jeremiah’s prophecies about the exiles’ immediate future.
- 29:29, 30 When Zephaniah received the letter from Shemaiah, he read it to Jeremiah, who then received a word of judgment from God against Shemaiah and his family.
- 29:31, 32 prophesied . . . caused you to trust in a lie: The accusation against Shemaiah parallels that of numerous judgment oracles in Jeremiah (5:31; 14:14; 23:16; 27:10). The ensuing sentence against Shemaiah is like those against Pashhur (20:6), Jehoiachin or Coniah (22:30), and Hananiah (28:16).
- 30:2 The oracles of Jeremiah were recorded by the scribe Baruch (ch. 36). Book refers to any type of writing medium, from a clay tablet to a parchment scroll. Jeremiah’s oracles were recorded on a scroll (36:2).
- 30:3 they shall possess it: Possession of the land, as in the original possession under Joshua’s leadership, would be the responsibility of the faithful remnant living according to the covenant relationship.
- 30:5, 6 voice of trembling . . . fear . . . not of peace: Jeremiah’s audience was the whole nation of Israel and Judah, which had experienced the dread and horror of the day of the Lord (see Joel 1:1-2:11; Amos 5:18-20). Hands on his loins symbolizes the agony of God's people, who had become like defenseless pregnant women in the midst of delivery before their enemies (4:31; 6:24).

30:7-9 The incomparable day of God was an ordained time of horror and distress for Israel and Judah, out of which the Lord would save them. Jeremiah expressed the hope of release from the bondage of the yoke of Babylon according to the Lord's timing (25:12) and not that of men (28:11). Then Israel would no longer serve foreigners in foreign lands or in their own. Instead, the people of God would serve the LORD their God, and David their king. God would raise up a messianic king from David's line to rule over the nation (see Is. 9:7; 11:1; Hos. 3:5).

30:10 My servant: The use of this terminology for Israel and Judah parallels that of Is. 42:1; 44:1. The hope of the nation was rest, tranquility in the absence of external and internal distress, and quiet, security and ease resulting from trust in the Lord.

30:12 Your affliction is incurable, Your wound is severe: God's hand of judgment had brought serious harm to the nation, a mortal wound unless God intervened.

30:13 Healing here refers to the growth of new skin over an open wound.

30:14 Israel's lovers were nations like Assyria, Egypt, Phoenicia, Ammon, and Edom, with whom it had made political and religious alliances. These nations had quickly forgotten Judah; they shrank back or were defeated by Nebuchadnezzar. Egypt, for example, had supported Zedekiah's rebellion, but was defeated in 588 B.C. by Nebuchadnezzar. When the Egyptian army retreated beyond the Brook of Egypt, the army of Babylon laid siege to Jerusalem and destroyed it, in 586 B.C. (37:1-5).

30:15 iniquities . . . sins: These terms are repeated from v. 14, emphasizing the character of the people and echoing the reasons for harsh judgment. The lament applied to both the sin and its results.

30:16, 17 Restoration and healing of Israel came in two forms, retribution against its enemies and healing of its wounds. Four sets of terms designate God's retributive justice: those who devour would be devoured; adversaries would go into captivity; those who plunder would become plunder; and all who prey would become prey. Healing was promised in response to the people's repentance (3:22; 33:6), a reversal of their incurable position (8:22; 30:12).

30:18 Jacob's tents . . . dwelling places . . . city . . . palace: These phrases emphasize God's work in rebuilding the homes and cities of His returning exiles, from the peasant population to the administration.

30:19 Instead of the voice of lament, fear, and trembling echoing throughout the land (4:31; 30:5), the sound of thanksgiving and merrymaking would reverberate. The word thanksgiving refers to a manner of appreciative praise. Merry suggests the joy of laughter and play.

30:21 Israel's leaders would no longer be appointed by foreign kings, and foreign rulers would not preside over Israel's lands.

30:23, 24 These verses are essentially a reiteration of 23:19, 20. In this context, they attest to Israel's new understanding of its God and assure the people of God's judgment on their enemies and oppressors.

31:1 Coinciding with the restoration of the nation to its land would be the fulfillment of the covenant between God and His people, all the families of Israel.

31:2 survived the sword . . . found grace in the wilderness . . . give him rest: These phrases describe Israel's deliverance from Egypt and God's victory over the army of Pharaoh. God's grace, or favor, was manifest in the desert as He provided sustenance, shelter, and rest for His people.

31:3 Of old, which may also be translated "from afar," may refer to the betrothal days of Israel in the wilderness (2:1-3) or to the distant lands of Assyria and Babylon to which Israel and Judah had been exiled. The phrase everlasting love is paralleled with lovingkindness, which means "loyal love" or "covenant loyalty." Out of His faithfulness to the covenants He established with Abraham and Moses, and out of His great love, God established the nation Israel for His glory and for hers. The Lord would also deliver His people from captivity and reestablish them by His love.

- 31:4 There will be rejoicing as village life is restored. I will build: In Ps. 127:1, the psalmist says that unless God builds a house, the labor is in vain. O virgin of Israel: Earlier in Jeremiah, this expression was used sadly in depicting the departure of Israel from faith in God (2:32; 14:17). Here the image is reversed; Israel is rebuilt in the manner of her former betrothal (2:2), having become again like a virgin bride to God. adorned . . . go forth in the dances: Joyful celebration of marriage and festival throughout villages is in view here (v. 13).
- 31:5 The mountains of Samaria, which were ravaged by the Assyrians in 733–722 B.C., would be replanted with vineyards. The hills would produce fruit for consumption rather than tribute for foreign powers. The plantings would be for regular, normal enjoyment—a gift of God in the lives of His people.
- 31:6 The day would come when the nation would be united once again, with northern kingdom Israelites making pilgrimages to Zion (Jerusalem) for worship, instead of continuing to visit the rival sanctuaries of Dan and Bethel (see 1 Kin. 12:27–29). The purpose of the watchmen would be not to warn the people about oncoming armies but to call them to come with joy to the holy city.
- 31:7 The chief of the nations would be Jacob, meaning Israel. In 15:9 the remnant is described as all but vanquished. Here the restored community shouts for joy.
- 31:9 weeping . . . supplications: Phrases from the Songs of Ascents (Ps. 120–134) are found here. In Ps. 126, those who are weeping are filled with gladness at the Lord's return of exiles from captivity. rivers of waters: This imagery of God's provision of life-sustaining water through the desert is like Is. 35:5–7. The reference to the straight way parallels Is. 40:3–5. Father: This text is one of the few cases in the OT where the fatherhood of God is portrayed directly (see Deut. 32:6; Is. 63:16). Israel was familiar with the idea of God as Father, but it was not until the teaching of Jesus that the phrase took on the importance that we understand it to have in our lives today. Firstborn conveys the concept of preeminence (31:7; Deut. 32:9).
- 31:10, 11 God would be the people's good shepherd, unlike past kings (23:1–4). redeemed . . . ransomed: These two terms for redemption describe the transfer of ownership of Israel from the mighty Babylon to the incomparable God. Israel's freedom was gained by God, its great "kinsman redeemer" (see Is. 51:10, 11).
- 31:12 The blessings of the goodness of the Lord are bountiful crops, flocks, and vineyards (see Ps. 65). well-watered garden: This expression of blessing upon the crops is also found in Is. 58:11.
- 31:14 The theme of joy is summarized in God's intention to fill the priests and the people with abundance. Jeremiah gave the people hope and comfort in facing the poverty and oppression of exile and captivity.
- 31:15 According to 1 Sam. 10:2, 3, Rachel's tomb was near Zelzah, which was near Ramah in Benjamin. This may have been a memorial for Rachel, located in the tribal allotment of the descendants of her son Benjamin (see Gen. 35:16–20). Genesis says that Rachel was buried in Ephrath, near Bethlehem (Gen. 35:19; 48:7). Rachel was the mother of the northern Israelite tribes of Benjamin and Joseph, whose sons were Ephraim and Manasseh. Rachel's bitter weeping was caused by the exile and captivity of her children. She refused to be comforted in her sorrow and loss.
- 31:17 Hope describes a faith that waits expectantly for God's redemptive and eternal blessing. their own border: Ephraim would be restored to its God-ordained territories.
- 31:18, 19 struck . . . on the thigh: This indicates an outward demonstration of remorse over sin and change of life (see Ezek. 21:12).
- 31:20 My heart yearns: This phrase describes the Lord's deep love and concern for the welfare of His children.
- 31:21 The signposts and landmarks would point out the way to the people's homeland. More importantly, Israel was instructed to set its heart toward the way that is the path of faith in its God.
- 31:22 Backsliding was a major theme in 3:6–4:4, describing the continual waywardness of the nation. Here the Lord was bringing about the re-creation of His people. A new thing probably refers to the fact that virgin Israel would encompass or cling to her divine Bridegroom.

31:23–26 Mountain of holiness refers to the ideal city of Jerusalem, the holy mountain home of God, the Righteous One, and Judah, His righteous remnant. As with Israel, Judah's reestablishment would see renewed productivity of its crops and flocks (31:5, 12). The people would be satiated (31:14).

31:27, 28 sow: God would plant and multiply the seed of man and animal in the land of Judah. To build and to plant are the same terms used in Jeremiah's call (1:10).

plant

(Heb. nata') (1:10; 18:9; 31:28; 2 Sam. 7:10) Strong's #5193

Aside from references to the planting of crops (Gen. 9:20), this verb is used to describe the placement of tents and other objects on the ground (Dan. 11:45). Jeremiah uses this word to testify of God's sovereignty not only over Israel but over the establishment and eventual overthrow of all powers great and small on earth (12:2). Since God planted and established every nation, He could also uproot them whenever He wished (1:10).

Go to the List of Word Studies

31:29, 30 The proverb in this passage is also found in Ezek. 18:2. The contexts in both books indicate that this proverb is not original to Jeremiah or Ezekiel. In Israel and other ancient Middle Eastern communities, corporate responsibility was emphasized in legal and moral matters (see Deut. 5:9), though individual accountability was not overlooked (see Deut. 24:16; 2 Sam. 12:1–15). In Jeremiah and Ezekiel, focus is placed on the responsibility of the individual for his or her own iniquity.

31:31 days are coming: In Jeremiah, this phrase usually introduces a special occasion of divine intervention in history. new covenant: As contrasted with the Mosaic and Deuteronomic covenant. house of Israel . . . house of Judah: According to 11:10, both kingdoms had broken God's covenant by rejecting His words and by worshiping other gods.

The New Covenant

Jeremiah is the only Old Testament prophet who speaks of the New Covenant that Jesus inaugurated (see Matt. 26:28). Some readers, desiring to celebrate what is “new” in the “New Covenant,” might be tempted to disparage the former covenant, the Mosaic covenant. But we should be careful to avoid any implication that there was something wrong in the covenant God had graciously bestowed on Israel. God had never designed the Law of Moses as a means to obtain salvation. Instead, forgiveness of sins has always been God's gracious gift to those who have humbled themselves before Him in faith (see Gen. 15:6; Mic. 6:6–8; Rom. 4:1–5:2; 7:13–25). The Law was God's way of pointing out the pathway that believers should walk. Thus the problem with the covenant at Mount Sinai was not in God's provision, but in Israel's response. The Israelites had continually broken the covenant. Time and again through priests and prophets God called His people to repent, but any change of heart they underwent they soon abandoned. In the days of Jeremiah, King Josiah destroyed the idols that were in the land. But soon after this godly king died, the people turned back to worshiping the idols of the neighboring countries. The hearts of the people remained unchanged. Only God Himself could change hearts and minds: thus a New Covenant was needed.

The announcement of a New Covenant by the prophet Jeremiah would have been alarming to godly Israelites. After all, the old covenant had come from the very hand of God and had been accompanied by miracles and wonders. But the New Covenant would also be accompanied by the miracle of changed hearts and lives. The very Spirit of God would enter people's lives in order to assure their adherence to the covenant (31:34; see Acts 2). No longer would intermediaries like priests or prophets have to stand between the people and God. The Spirit would teach the people the knowledge of God—a knowledge that would be evidenced by faith, obedience, and devotion to the Lord. Jesus fulfilled Jeremiah's prediction of the coming of a New Covenant through His work on the Cross. By His death, the giving of His lifeblood for many, redemption and forgiveness of sins were attained (31:34). While Jesus was on earth, He instructed His disciples in His Father's ways (Luke 24:13–27). But after Jesus ascended to heaven, the Spirit of God was poured out on the believers gathered in Jerusalem, fulfilling the promise spoken by Jeremiah.

31:32 The old covenant demanded adherence to stipulations (see Ex. 19:1-23:33) which the people were unable to keep. Above all other commandments, the people were commanded to love and serve God and abandon all others (see Ex. 23:33; Deut. 6:4, 5). This they did not do. fathers: From the wilderness period (see Ex. 32:1–10; Num. 25:1–9) until the days of Manasseh, the history of Israel was permeated with idolatrous activity, only occasionally broken by periods of true faithfulness to God. The people seemed incapable of acting in sustained obedience to the covenant. husband: As Hosea was to Gomer, the Lord had been a faithful and devoted husband to Israel.

31:33 I will make: The new covenant would be initiated by God Himself, assuring its effectiveness. after those days: This expression looks forward to the time of fulfillment of the new covenant, which found fruition in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. put My law in their minds . . . write it on their hearts: Together the mind and heart describe the total inner motivations of mind, will, emotion, and spirit.

31:34 No more shall every man teach: No longer would intermediaries like priests or prophets be needed to show the people how to know the LORD. From youngest to oldest, from peasant farmer to kings and princes, all would know God. Knowledge of God is a major theme of Jeremiah (2:8; 4:22; 5:4; 8:7) as well as of other prophets (see Hos. 5:4). This knowledge is an intimate relationship with God evidenced by faith, obedience, and devotion. God will forgive and will purposefully not remember the sin and iniquity of His people who come to Him in repentance and faith. Jesus the Messiah fulfilled this promised New Covenant through His work on the Cross (see Matt. 26:26–28; Mark 14:22–24; 1 Cor. 11:25).

31:35 sun . . . moon . . . stars: God, the Creator of all things, entered into covenant with His people. sea . . . waves: The Hebrew people learned from their Canaanite neighbors to fear the sea (see Ps. 93). But God is Master of the sea, as He is Master of all things (see Is. 51:15).

31:36, 37 Ordinances here are the natural laws that govern creation. The foundation of the New Covenant is as sure as the God who maintains creation. measured . . . searched out: At the peak of Judah's apostasy, shortly before the destruction of the nation by Babylon in divine judgment, the Lord emphatically reaffirmed His covenant relationship with the Jewish people in such strong terms that the promise was unbreakable, even by Him. When we observe the sun, moon, or stars in the sky (v. 35), we should remember God's promise to the Jewish people, even as God does.

31:38–40 days are coming: This expression introduces a new era in the history of God's dealing with

His people. A survey is made of the environs of the new Jerusalem, a city built for the LORD in its entirety. The Tower of Hananel (see Neh. 3:1) was located at the northeast corner of the city. The Corner Gate (see 2 Kin. 14:13) was to the northwest. Expansion of the northwest side of the city took place under Uzziah and Hezekiah. The valley of the dead bodies is probably a reference to the Valley of Hinnom, where children had been sacrificed in times of terrible apostasy (7:32). The fields as far as the Brook Kidron are the slopes of Mt. Zion bordered by the Valley of Hinnom. plucked up . . . thrown down: The destructive terms of Jeremiah's call are employed again (1:10). No longer would the city see devastation, for it would be holy to the LORD.

32:1, 2 This verse relates the chronologies of Israel and Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar's eighteenth year was 588 B.C., at the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem. The siege resulted from Zedekiah's revolt against Babylonian rule.

32:3–5 Jeremiah was imprisoned for his declaration that Jerusalem would fall to the Chaldeans and Zedekiah would be taken captive. face to face . . . eye to eye: The one-on-one confrontation with Nebuchadnezzar would result in the removal of Zedekiah's eyes (39:5–7).

32:6–8 The Lord instructed Jeremiah to purchase a field in his hometown of Anathoth, three miles north of Jerusalem, when Jeremiah's cousin Hanamel came to visit. right of redemption: According to Lev. 25:25–30, a man had the right to redeem property when a relative found it necessary to sell land because of debt or financial failure.

32:9 The land transaction was conducted according to the legal customs of the day. The price of seventeen shekels would amount to about seven ounces of silver.

32:10, 11 According to custom, one copy of a deed was sealed for safekeeping; a second copy was left open for future consultation.

32:12 Baruch the son of Neriah: This friend of Jeremiah is first mentioned here (see ch. 36); he may have brought the silver for the land to Jeremiah in prison.

32:13–15 earthen vessel: Examples of storage jars that served as safety-deposit vessels have been excavated Judah. The Dead Sea Scrolls were also stored in ceramic vessels, aiding their preservation for almost two thousand years. The illustrated message of the purchase was assurance and confirmation that restoration of the land was certain. shall be possessed again: Jeremiah realized that the end of the city was near (v. 2); his action in purchasing land was a remarkable demonstration of faith in God that the people of Judah would return one day to their land.

32:17 There is nothing too hard for You: Affirming God's power in creation (27:5) bolstered Jeremiah's faith in God's ability to deal with the siege of Jerusalem.

32:18, 19 The Lord's mercy and devotion to His people was demonstrated in His extending lovingkindness, or loyal love, to thousands (see Deut. 5:9, 10). The Lord's faithful love far outweighs His punishing judgment, but the seriousness of sin is not to be overlooked (see Ex. 20:5, 6; 34:7). everyone according to his ways: Each man and woman will be judged individually on the basis of his or her own actions (17:10).

32:20, 21 The great historical demonstration of God's loyal love was the exodus of Israel from Egypt. This was accomplished with signs and wonders (see Ps. 78:43) by which the name of God was made known among nations such as Moab (see Num. 22–24), and peoples such as those in Jericho (see Josh. 2:8–14). strong hand . . . outstretched arm: These expressions are found in Israel's confessional statement regarding the Exodus (Deut. 26:8). The addition of great terror indicates the mighty acts done against the Egyptians.

32:22, 23 The final step in this rehearsal of history was the gift of the Promised Land. not obeyed: The nation responded to God's grace with disobedience and breaking of the covenant, resulting in the calamity of the Babylonian siege and the eventual destruction of Jerusalem.

32:24, 25 You see it: What Jeremiah had prophesied in the name of God, the attack of the Babylonian foe from the north and the ensuing sword, famine, and pestilence (21:7), was now being fulfilled. Buying a field in a disintegrating land seemed out of line with Jeremiah's previous messages of destruction. Why buy land in a region overrun by Babylonians?

- 32:26, 27 God of all flesh: God was Lord over Israel and Judah, and Lord over the nations (27:1–11)—including mighty Babylon (25:15–26).
- 32:32 kings . . . princes . . . priests . . . prophets . . . men of Judah . . . inhabitants of Jerusalem: This exhaustive list indicates the rebellion of the entire nation against God.
- 32:36 This verse serves as a summary of the situation in Jerusalem, described by the regular triad of devastation: sword . . . famine . . . pestilence.
- 32:39 one heart . . . one way: Because the Lord had written on the heart of the people a New Covenant (31:33), no longer would they worship other deities and turn to foreign nations for help. The word way is often used in Jeremiah to denote the character of a person's life, whether evil (4:18; 7:3; 5; 10:2; 18:11) or good (7:23). fear Me: To fear God is to submit to His sovereign majesty and walk according to His way.
- 32:40 The expression everlasting covenant is also found in Is. 55:3; Ezek. 16:60; 37:26. In Ezekiel it is equated with a “covenant of peace” that God will establish with His people. This covenant will be everlasting, unlike the Sinai covenant which had been broken and ignored for so long. My fear in their hearts: This phrasing closely parallels in meaning and purpose that of the New Covenant of 31:31–34.
- 32:41 plant: This term from Jeremiah's call (1:10) depicts God establishing His people back in their homeland with a restoration of peace and prosperity. My heart . . . My soul: These terms describe God's total devotion of heart, will, and emotions to His faithful children.
- 32:42–44 calamity . . . good: God would act to reverse the manner in which He dealt with His people after they had been punished by the Babylonians. Men will buy fields: Final assurance is given to Jeremiah, who had purchased a field in perilous and disastrous times. Fields would be bought and sold again throughout the land when the captives had been brought home.
- 33:1 while he was still shut up: A chronological tie is made to 32:2 (588 B.C.). Jeremiah had been placed under palace court guard because of what his enemies regarded as “seditious speeches,” announcing the fall of Jerusalem and giving advice to Zedekiah to surrender to Nebuchadnezzar.
- 33:3 Jeremiah urged the people to call out to the Lord, pointing out that this time the Lord would hear and answer (7:16) their cries. Mighty things has the abstract meaning of “inaccessible” or “unfathomable.” God had done great things in creation; here the people were invited to observe anew the unfathomable greatness of God's work on their behalf.
- 33:4, 5 Houses that were built along the city walls could be torn down and filled with rubble to produce a wider, more solid wall. This was one means of combating the sloping earthen siege ramparts that armies constructed opposite domestic quarters rather than at heavily fortified towers or gates.
- 33:6 Judah and Jerusalem in their idolatry and rebellion were without peace and health (8:15, 22). The Lord promised healing in response to their repentance (3:22; 30:17).
- 33:8 Forgiveness is described with two terms, cleanse and pardon. The word cleanse describes ritual purification of what is physically or spiritually unclean or defiled, like Israel and Judah (2:23; 7:30). Pardon means “to forgive,” and in the OT is used only with God as the subject as He forgives man. This fact helps us understand the reaction of the scribes when they heard Jesus forgiving sins (see Mark 2:7).
- 33:9 As the citizens of Moab (see Num. 22:1–6) and Jericho (see Josh. 2:8–14) were full of fear and trembling before the nation that had benefited from the Lord's mighty works, so all would fear and tremble in amazement at God's new masterwork.
- 33:12, 13 The focus turns to the regions within the nation of Judah that would experience God's mighty restoration. desolate: Note the parallel judgment in 7:34; 25:9. The regions listed are similar to those in 17:26. The six locations are organized around two triads: one introduced by the words mountains (the hill country), lowland (the Shephelah), and South (the Negev); and the second moving in a north-south direction: Benjamin, around Jerusalem, Judah. The term flocks is used to depict the Israelites as they returned from captivity into the fold of the holy city of Jerusalem.

33:15, 16 These verses closely parallel 23:5, 6, which has as its focus the royal leadership of the nation, the combined restored Israel and Judah. Branch of righteousness: God would raise up a messianic king of Davidic lineage who would rule according to the divine ideal, with judgment, meaning justice, and righteousness. saved . . . dwell safely: Following the devastation of the Babylonian onslaught, Jerusalem would exist under divine protection.

33:17, 18 The Davidic covenant of divine succession is reiterated (see 2 Sam. 7:12–16). The Levitical priesthood would likewise be heirs to a divine succession in overseeing the sacrificial system in the Jerusalem temple. Jesus, as Priest and King, fulfills both offices in the New Covenant.

33:23, 24 The two families in this context are the houses of David and Levi (see Zech. 12:12, 13). Because of their sins of rebellion against the covenant and their idolatry, Israel and Judah were despised (6:30; 7:29) by God and ridiculed among the nations.

33:25, 26 Ordinances refers to the laws which govern the divine order of the cosmos (5:22; 31:35, 36). If day and night should cease, only then would God cast away the great multitude of the descendants of Jacob. The promise of leadership succession is extended to the nation in terms of its existence as the people of God. The evidence of that promise and God's mercy would be the return and restoration of the exiles to the land of God's inheritance.

(Heb. ma'as) (8:9; 33:26; Lev. 26:43) Strong's #3988

This Hebrew verb means “to despise,” “to hold without regard,” or “to refuse, reject” (Lev. 26:43; Job 30:1; 1 Sam. 16:10). Like the Hebrew verb ‘azab (meaning “to abandon”), this term has reciprocal connotations when used in covenant contexts. When the people of Judah rejected God’s law (6:19), the Lord rejected that generation (7:29). As part of the New Covenant, the Lord promised that He would never again reject His people, but would forgive their sin and remember it no more (31:34, 37).

34:1 all his army . . . all the kingdoms . . . all the people: Jeremiah pictured all the armed forces of Babylon and its vassals arrayed simultaneously against Judah and Jerusalem.

34:2, 3 you shall not escape: Though Zedekiah attempted to flee to Jericho, Nebuchadnezzar’s forces captured him and brought him to Riblah for a face to face meeting with Nebuchadnezzar (32:3, 4).

34:4, 5 In 21:4–7, Jeremiah proclaimed the destruction of Jerusalem and the death of its inhabitants by sword, pestilence, and famine. The particular implications for Zedekiah are outlined here. The king would die in peace in Babylon, meaning that he would not be executed by the sword. According to 2 Kin. 25:6, 7, his sons were killed before his eyes and then his eyes were put out.

34:7 The background of the siege of Judah and Jerusalem is outlined. The fortifications at Azekah and Lachish in the lowlands were the avenue through which possible aid from Egypt would have come. They were the last to fall before Jerusalem was destroyed.

Lachish

Lachish was a walled city in the lowlands of Judah captured by Joshua and the Israelites (Josh. 10:32). The city is mentioned in early Egyptian sources as an important military stronghold. Archaeologists have excavated Lachish (modern Tell ed-Duweir), and it has become one of the most significant sites in the Holy Land. A small temple with an altar for burnt offerings was discovered here, along with a deep well that probably provided water for the city when it was under siege. Other important finds consisted of early Hebrew writings on bowls, seals, a stone altar, and 21 pottery sherds on which were written letters about the attack on Lachish and Jerusalem by Babylon in 586 B.C. One of the letters states that signals from Azekah could no longer be seen. It was written shortly after the events noted in Jer. 34:7, which observe that Lachish and Azekah were the only fortified cities left in Judah.

34:8, 9 covenant: A legal agreement was made between Zedekiah and the people of Jerusalem during the Babylonian siege to release from bondage all Hebrew slaves. Liberty is a technical word for the release of Hebrew slaves every 50 years in the Year of Jubilee (see Lev. 25:8–10), when slaves were freed and indebted land was returned to its original owners. In Deut. 15:1, 12–15, a similar release during the sabbatical year is outlined.

34:10, 11 The princes concurred with the king's covenant (vv. 8, 9) and released Jews in bondage to them, but then reversed their decision when the siege was briefly withdrawn (vv. 21, 22). This opportunism in a moment of crisis demonstrated the leaders' contempt of the covenant.

34:12–14 Jeremiah, a faithful steward of the word of God, began his attack against Judah's leaders by recounting the teaching of the Law on the matter of emancipating slaves (see Ex. 21:2–6; Deut. 15:12–15). He reminded the people that their forefathers were slaves in Egypt, and that God had freed them from slavery and oppression.

34:15, 16 When the princes of Judah emancipated their Hebrew slaves, it demonstrated their covenant faithfulness and devotion to God (v. 10). But when the righteous decision was reversed (v. 11), the name of God was profaned. The name of God sums up and represents His attributes, character, and work. That name had been defiled by the breach of covenant in the same way that the people had defiled the land with their idolatry (16:18).

34:17 Because the leaders of Judah had disobeyed the covenant by revoking the liberty granted to Hebrew slaves (v. 11), the Lord declared that He would grant liberty to the leaders—liberty from their disobedience and liberty to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine.

34:18, 19 The covenant ceremony is outlined. The main ritual of the two-party covenant began with cutting the sacrificial animal in half, after which the two participants would walk together between the parts (see Gen. 15). The divided animal portrayed the potential fate of one who broke the covenant stipulations.

34:20 I will give them into the hand of their enemies: The slaves who had been wronged by the leaders of Judah would be vindicated by God, using the Babylonian army as His instrument.

34:21, 22 gone back: Nebuchadnezzar had withdrawn from Jerusalem to meet the Egyptian army of Pharaoh Hophra. Zedekiah had hoped that Hophra would be successful in delivering Israel from its impending doom. However, Nebuchadnezzar soon renewed the siege of Jerusalem and destroyed the city.

35:1 in the days of Jehoiakim: Jehoiakim reigned from 609 to 598 B.C.

35:2 The Rechabites were a tightly knit group of descendants of the Kenites (see Judg. 1:16; 1 Chr. 2:55). This group is known first from the story of Jehonadab the son of Rechab, who assisted Jehu in purging the Baal prophets from Samaria (see 2 Kin. 10:15–28). The Rechabites lived as nomads, rejecting all forms of urban and agrarian life. They refused to drink wine or strong drink and would not cultivate vineyards. They also would not plant any other crops. Many scholars believe that they were a clan of metalsmiths. The Rechabites were invited by Jeremiah into one of the chambers surrounding the courtyard of the temple of God for a symbolic demonstration.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The Rechabites

The Rechabites were a Kenite tribe founded by Jonadab, the son of Rechab. They were convinced it was easier to live a godly life as nomads than in the settled life of the cities, where they would be tempted with idolatry and immorality. They did not drink wine or other intoxicating drink; they chose to live in tents rather than houses.

When Nebuchadnezzar's army attacked Judah, the Rechabites sought refuge in Jerusalem. At God's command, Jeremiah tested them to see if they would live up to their vows. He set wine before them and encouraged them to drink, but they refused. Jeremiah praised them and held them up as an object lesson to the people of Judah who had disobeyed the laws of God.

Because of their faithfulness, Jeremiah promised that the Rechabites would never cease to exist. Followers of this group still live in the Middle East—in Iraq and Yemen.

35:3–5 Man of God refers to a number of named and unnamed prophets, emissaries from God who delivered specific messages (see 1 Sam. 2:27; 1 Kin. 12:22; 13:1; 2 Kin. 1:9). Hanan was apparently sympathetic to Jeremiah's preaching. In the temple and in the presence of leading temple personnel, Jeremiah tested the Rechabites' faithfulness to their tradition by putting wine in front of them and telling them to drink.

35:6–10 The faithful Rechabites refused to drink wine, on the basis of the teaching of Jonadab their forefather. obeyed the voice: This is the language of faithfulness, often used in the negative by Jeremiah to refer to Judah's failure to obey the covenant (3:13; 7:23, 24).

35:13–15 receive instruction . . . obey My words: This phrasing comes from the words of the Rechabites (v. 8) and from Jeremiah's oracle in 7:28. The Rechabites had obeyed the instructions of their forefather Jonadab. In the case of Judah, though God Himself had instructed the Israelites in the covenant and had presented His message repeatedly through many faithful prophets, the people had not obeyed Him. Rising early and speaking . . . sending describes the persistence of the many prophets in Israel's history.

35:16 The Rechabites had not wavered in keeping the commandment of Jonadab, but the Israelites had continually rebelled against the teaching of God.

35:18, 19 Blessing is pronounced over the faithful household of the Rechabites. Their complete obedience is outlined in a triad of verbs: obeyed . . . kept . . . done.

36:1 The narrative recounts the interaction with Jehoiakim concerning the word of God during the king's fourth year, 605–604 B.C. In late spring as the year began and the river was "at flood stage," Nebuchadnezzar crossed the Euphrates and defeated the Egyptians at Carchemish. it came to pass: The original scroll of Jeremiah's oracles, which had been prepared with the scribal assistance of Baruch, was read in the temple in the ninth month of the fourth year of Jehoiakim in November–December 604 B.C. (see v. 9). This was at the same time as the attack of the Babylonians on Ashkelon.

36:2 scroll of a book: The usual material for a scroll was parchment (a kind of leather), though Egyptian papyrus was also available. The contents of the scroll were the oracles dating from the days of Josiah, at the advent of Jeremiah's ministry (626 B.C.), to this day (604 B.C.).

36:4 Baruch the son of Neriah was a trained scribe and close friend of Jeremiah (32:12). at the instruction: This phrase refers to the process of dictation from Jeremiah to Baruch.

36:5 Confined can refer to physical imprisonment, being placed under guard (33:1; 39:15); a mental or spiritual constraint; or some other form of restriction. No prison is mentioned in this chapter. It is possible that Jeremiah was somehow prohibited from entering the temple courts, perhaps after his temple sermon (7:1–15; 26:1–19).

36:6, 7 The scroll of Jeremiah's early oracles against Israel and Judah was to be read on a day of fasting, a time aside by official declaration of the king or priests (v. 9) in a period of national crisis.

36:8 Baruch, a faithful disciple like Jeremiah, read from the book of God's words in the temple of the Lord. This act closely parallels the reading of the Book of the Law in the temple of God, after it was discovered there (see 2 Kin. 22; 23).

36:9, 10 The official proclamation of the fast came in November–December of 604 B.C. People from all over Judah assembled in the temple of the Lord for the fast, providing Baruch and Jeremiah a sizable audience. Gemariah was the son of Shaphan, the scribe who read the scroll found during Josiah's reign (see 2 Kin. 22:1–20). It seems Gemariah was sympathetic toward Jeremiah, allowing the use of the room in the upper court, a room overlooking the temple courts and giving access to those gathered for the fast.

36:11–13 Gemariah's son Micaiah reported the occasion and words to the royal princes, including Gemariah and Elnathan. Elnathan's father Achbor also played a role in the reading of the scroll in the days of Josiah's reform. The parallels between Josiah's reform and Jeremiah's desire for national revival were included by Baruch deliberately, to remind the people of the earlier event.

36:14 Jehudi: The list of three ancestors is unusual. The last name Cushi may indicate that Jehudi was a Cushite, thus of foreign ancestry. Jehudi was the messenger appointed to summon Baruch to the court of the princes.

36:15–19 looked in fear: Alarmed at the words of the scroll, the princes felt impelled to inform the king. wrote them with ink: Baruch told the princes how and when the scroll was written. The leaders told Baruch to go with Jeremiah and hide until the matter could be investigated.

36:20–24 Baruch and Jeremiah would have learned later that the original scroll was destroyed, since they were in hiding when it happened. winter house: The royal palace had rooms with fireplaces for use in the winter. As the scroll was read, Jehoiakim showed no signs of fear or lamentation, unlike Josiah when the Book of the Law was read in his hearing (see 2 Kin. 22:11–13).

36:25, 26 The king's son could mean: (1) the literal son of Jehoiakim; (2) the son of a man named Hamelek, which means "the king"; (3) or an office title for a person with the function of a deputy or policeman. The third view seems to be indicated in this context.

36:27, 28 The Lord told Jeremiah and Baruch to prepare a second scroll of the earlier oracles. Verse 32 notes that additional material was included.

36:29–31 Indictment and judgment against Jehoiakim is pronounced. The indictment was declared because he destroyed the scroll of the word of the Lord. First, the Davidic lineage would not continue through him. His son would rule for only three months before Nebuchadnezzar deported Jehoiachin to Babylon, where he died. Second, the king's body would be treated disgracefully after his death. As the king had cast the scroll into the fire, so his body would be cast from the royal palace. Third, the royal household would experience the destructive judgment that had been proclaimed in the words of the original scroll.

37:1, 2 Zedekiah, like Jehoiakim and so many other kings before him in Israel and Judah, had rejected the word of God and its warnings of judgment, although it was communicated tirelessly and faithfully by God's messengers the prophets. The end of rebellion was in sight. Jerusalem would soon fall to the Babylonian armies, the instruments of divine discipline.

37:3, 4 Jehucal was a friend of Pashhur (21:1). Together they eventually called for Jeremiah to be executed (38:1). Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah was a member of the delegation who had sought a word from God at the beginning of the Babylonian siege (21:1–10). He was sympathetic toward Jeremiah, as reflected in the letter from Shemaiah (29:24–28).

37:5 In late spring or early summer 588 B.C., Pharaoh Hophra led the Egyptian army into southern Palestine. The Babylonian forces withdrew their siege of Judah and Jerusalem to confront the Egyptians. Zedekiah hoped the Babylonians would be defeated, but his hopes proved to be in vain.

37:6–8 Jeremiah's response to Jehucal and Zephaniah (vv. 3, 4) was the same unchanging word from the LORD he had always proclaimed. The Babylonians would soon return to destroy Jerusalem.

prophet

(Heb. nabi') (37:6; Deut. 13:1; 1 Sam. 3:20; 2 Kin. 19:2) Strong's #5030

The probable root word for nabi' means “to announce” or “to proclaim” (19:14; Ezek. 37:4). Another possible derivation is from a Hebrew word meaning “to bubble up” or “to pour forth.” Prophecy can be compared to the “bubbling up” of the Holy Spirit in a person who delivers a divine message (compare Amos 3:8; Mic. 3:8). In OT times, prophets were heralds or spokesmen who delivered a message for someone else (see 1:5; 2:8; 2 Kin. 17:13; Ezek. 37:7). In the case of the Hebrew prophets, they spoke for God Himself. This is the reason the prophets introduced their messages with “thus says the LORD of hosts” on countless occasions (see 9:7, 17).

37:9, 10 Do not deceive yourselves: To think that the brief respite caused by the Egyptian appearance in the southern coastal plain was proof of imminent deliverance, as the false prophets declared, was an exercise in self-deception and futile imagination.

37:11, 12 The lifting of the siege by the Babylonians afforded the people in Jerusalem some opportunity for movement outside the city.

37:13 Irijah, a captain of the guard and a royal military official, arrested Jeremiah at the Gate of Benjamin on the north side of the city. The charge of defection was not unreasonable. Jeremiah had advised the people of Jerusalem to defect to the Chaldeans so that their lives would be spared (21:9). A number of them followed his advice (38:19).

37:14–16 Jeremiah denied the accusation of defection but to no avail. Irijah arrested the prophet and arraigned him before the court of princes. Prison space was lacking in Jerusalem due to the crowded conditions of the siege, so a prison was devised in the house of Jonathan the scribe, the dungeon and the cells: Jeremiah's prison seems to have been a cistern with vaulted ceilings in Jonathan's house.

37:17–19 Fearing possible exposure and opposition from his courtiers, Zedekiah secretly summoned Jeremiah and asked of him a word from the Lord. The several encounters between Jeremiah and Zedekiah indicate the weak character of Zedekiah. He seems to have earnestly desired a word from God but could not come to grips with the reality and respond appropriately.

37:20, 21 Jeremiah appealed to Zedekiah's sense of justice and decency and asked to be released from prison. Zedekiah consented and committed the prophet to the court of the prison, a place near the royal palace where limited mobility was possible, such as in the transaction to purchase the field (see 32:1–15; Neh. 3:25).

38:1 Jucal (Jehucal) was one of the emissaries sent by Zedekiah to Jeremiah in 37:3. Pashhur came to Jeremiah with a group when the Babylonian siege began in January 588 B.C.

38:2, 3 Verse 2 is almost an exact duplicate of 21:9. Jeremiah said the choice was between life under the Babylonians and death among the ruins of Jerusalem. Such a statement was treasonous, as was the statement that Jerusalem must fall.

38:4 The princes accused Jeremiah of demoralizing Judah and seeking the harm of Jerusalem.

weakens the hands: This expression describes the discouragement or demoralization of soldiers (see Ezra 4:4).

38:5 the king can do nothing: Zedekiah was powerless before the court of princes. The fate of Jeremiah was placed in their hands.

38:6 Jeremiah was imprisoned in the basement cistern of Malchiah the king's son. Probably due to the length of the Babylonian siege, the cistern had no water sufficient for drinking, only mire of muddy lime clay. This particular cistern had a narrow circular opening, and could be entered and exited only by means of ropes. The court princes probably expected Jeremiah to die a slow and quiet death in a very unpleasant environment.

38:7–9 Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian: The name means “Servant of the King.” Gate of Benjamin: Jeremiah had entered and left the city many times through this northern gate. The king was likely performing his normal function of mediating disputes and settling legal questions. no more bread: A siege cut off water and food supplies from a city, hoping starvation would force a surrender.

38:11–13 Ebed-Melech took special care to obtain rags for Jeremiah to cushion his armpits, preventing the ropes from cutting his skin. A foreigner, a once-despised Cushite, cared more for the prophet of God than did the king and princes of Jeremiah's own people.

38:14 This meeting between Jeremiah and Zedekiah is parallel to the account in 37:17–21. The location of the third entrance is unknown. The secrecy of the meeting may indicate that it was a private access for the king from the royal palace into the temple courts. Zedekiah's request to ask Jeremiah something is asked with sincerity. He wanted the prophet to be honest and open in his answer.

38:15, 16 will you not: Jeremiah was fearful of being returned to the dungeon, of being turned over to the Egyptian courtiers who would do him further harm, or of being executed for speaking boldly against the king. Zedekiah swore by the name of God that no harm would come to the prophet from any source.

38:17, 18 Jeremiah repeated to the king the message recorded in vv. 2, 3. Surrender would spare the life of the king and the city; failure to surrender would bring death and destruction.

38:19 I am afraid: Zedekiah revealed he was afraid to surrender to the Babylonians because he feared retaliation by early deserters (21:9; 39:9; 52:15) from Jerusalem. His unfitness to be king is proven by his concern for his personal safety above that of the city and its inhabitants.

38:20–23 Jeremiah tried to settle Zedekiah's fears and to resolve his moral and ethical dilemma by reassuring him that surrender would result in his personal safety. But if the king refused to surrender to Nebuchadnezzar, the word of judgment would fall. Women and children would be handed over to Nebuchadnezzar, and Jerusalem would be destroyed.

38:24–26 Zedekiah instructed Jeremiah not to tell the pro-Egyptian princes about their conversation lest the prophet be executed. Together they constructed an account of their meeting that might be used if Jeremiah was questioned about what had been said. It is clear that Zedekiah was afraid of a revolt from within his royal court.

38:27, 28 As expected, the princes questioned Jeremiah. The answer he and Zedekiah had prepared proved satisfactory.

39:1 The Babylonian siege began in the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, that is, in December 589 or January 588 B.C. Today the tenth of Tebeth is a fast day in the Jewish calendar.

39:2 eleventh year of Zedekiah . . . fourth month . . . ninth day: The walls of Jerusalem were breached about the time food supplies were exhausted, in June or July 586 B.C.

39:3 sat in the Middle Gate: The Middle Gate was probably in the north wall of Jerusalem, the direction from which the city was taken. The Babylonian princes sat in the gate to assert their authority in the conquered city. Nergal-Sharezer ruled Babylon from 560 to 556 B.C. Nebo may be a short form of Nebushasban. When combined with Sarsechim, the resulting name is probably a variation of the name Nebushasban Rabsaris (v. 13). Rabmag and Rabsaris are titles.

39:4 When Zedekiah saw the Babylonian officers enter the gate on the north side of Jerusalem, he and his men left at night through a gate between the two walls, probably near the union of the Kidron and Tyropoeon valleys on the south side of the city. Plain refers to the Jordan valley.

39:5–7 Zedekiah and his military escort were captured near Jericho and taken to Riblah, a city in Aram. Hamath was a region of Aram. There Zedekiah met Nebuchadnezzar face to face, as Jeremiah had prophesied (34:3). Zedekiah's sons and his men were killed before his eyes just before he was blinded. Bronze fetters refers to the pairs of shackles placed on his wrists and ankles. Zedekiah died in prison in Babylon (52:11).

39:8–10 In addition to the royal palace and homes of the inhabitants, 52:13 includes the “house of the Lord” among the buildings burned in Jerusalem. poor: Typically the Babylonians deported the upper classes, such as court officials, merchants, artisans, and craftsmen, and left behind peasants to work the fields.

39:11 Nebuchadnezzar had given special instructions to Nebuzaradan regarding the treatment of Jeremiah. The positive teaching of the prophet regarding the king of Babylon had come to his attention in some way, perhaps through deserters or spies.

39:12–14 During the destruction of Jerusalem, Jeremiah was released from the court of the prison and brought to Mizpah to be under charge of Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar had appointed governor over the peasant population of Judah and Benjamin. A more detailed account of Jeremiah's trip from Jerusalem to Ramah to Mizpah is found in 40:1–6.

39:15–18 Ebed-Melech, who had carefully rescued Jeremiah from the muddy cistern in the prison court (38:11–13), was promised safety and deliverance by the Lord because of his assistance to Jeremiah and because he had put his trust in God.

40:1 Ramah was about five miles north of Jerusalem, along the ancient road leading from Jerusalem to Shechem. With the destruction of Jerusalem still in process, Ramah served as a way station for captives going to the eastern provinces of the Babylonian Empire.

40:2, 3 Nebuzaradan knew of Jeremiah's predictions regarding the demise of Jerusalem and the victories of the armies of Babylon. Prophets whose words were deemed verified were generally treated well by peoples of the ancient Middle East. The LORD your God has pronounced this doom: Consider the irony of a foreigner stating the truth concerning the reason for Jerusalem's destruction.

40:4, 5 Jeremiah was released from bondage and given three options: (1) to go with Nebuzaradan to Babylon and enjoy special treatment and protection there; (2) to remain in the care of Gedaliah, the district governor at Mizpah; (3) to live in the land as he chose. Nebuzaradan gave Jeremiah rations and gifts because of the prophet's proclamations about Babylon and Nebuchadnezzar (25:9; 27:6).

40:6 Jeremiah chose to go to Mizpah to serve under Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, staying with his people not far from his hometown and the property he had purchased while in the court of the prison (32:1–15). Mizpah was about eight miles north of Jerusalem.

40:7–10 The captains of the armies refers to the surviving Jewish commanders of the armies in the towns throughout Judah who had fled into the rugged hill country. Among the list of escaped leaders was Ishmael, a member of the royal family and a court officer (41:1); Johanan, who would become the leader of the assembly (vv. 13–16); and Jezaniah (Jaazaniah) whose father was a Maacathite.

40:11, 12 The Jews who had escaped the Babylonian onslaught into neighboring states returned home and began working the fields, vineyards, and orchards.

40:13, 14 Johanan led a group of leaders to Gedaliah to warn him of a plot by Ishmael and the Ammonite king Baalis to assassinate the governor.

40:15, 16 Johanan secretly asked Gedaliah permission to kill Ishmael quietly, fearing reprisal from Babylon that would surely destroy the reconstruction efforts and lead to further bloodshed. Unfortunately, Gedaliah was far too trusting of Ishmael, the royal descendant who seems to have coveted Gedaliah's position.

41:1, 2 The year of the assassination of Gedaliah is not given, only the month—the seventh month or Tishri, September-October. The murder of the governor could have taken place as soon as three months after the fall of Jerusalem. Others associate the third deportation of 582 B.C. with this rebellion. Ishmael's act was especially despicable since it took place during a banquet.

41:4-7 Two days after Gedaliah's death a group of faithful pilgrims were on their way to Jerusalem, probably with grain rather than animal offerings. Ishmael and his followers falsely led the worshipers aside, massacred them, and cast their bodies into a pit.

41:10 carried away: Ishmael took captives from Mizpah for future use. He then fled into Ammonite territory, no doubt to join forces with his ally Baalis.

41:11, 12 When Johanan, who had warned Gedaliah about the assassination plot (40:13-16), heard of the atrocities of Ishmael, he mustered his captains and forces and confronted the rebel army at Gibeon. The pool, six miles northwest of Jerusalem and three miles from Mizpah, was the site of the famous battle between Joab and Abner's men (see 2 Sam. 2:12-29).

41:13-15 When they saw Johanan, the captives Ishmael had taken from Mizpah ran over to join his forces. Ishmael and eight of his men escaped to Ammon.

41:16-18 Fearing imminent reprisal from the Babylonians on account of the rebellion, Johanan gathered the inhabitants of Mizpah, including Jeremiah, together with those he had rescued and began a trek toward Egypt, seeking a place of safety. Egypt was the only country in the region that was free from Babylonian control. Johanan and his group went south toward Bethlehem, camping at Chimham.

42:1-3 said to Jeremiah: The people asked Jeremiah to intercede with the Lord on their behalf.

42:4-6 I will pray: Jeremiah cautiously agreed to pray to God. He asked the people to agree to abide by the answer he received. The people responded with an oath of obedience, calling upon the Lord as witness.

42:7-10 after ten days: God's response to Jeremiah's prayer on behalf of the people did not come immediately. Jeremiah convened the assembly and declared the answer from God in terms reminiscent of his call: build you . . . not pull you down . . . plant you . . . not pluck you up (1:10).

42:11, 12 Jeremiah assured the people with the same words the Lord had used to give him assurance in his call: I am with you, to save you and deliver you (1:8). God's promise to bring His people through a time of trial to experience His restorative power would show His great mercy. God had promised this restoration in earlier oracles (12:15).

42:13, 14 If the people disobeyed God and fled to Egypt, they would suffer the consequences. The people's hope for safety in Egypt is presented in a triad of phrases: see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor be hungry. The people seem to have had their minds made up before they sought the word from the Lord (vv. 2, 3).

42:15-17 set their faces: This expression indicates the fixed intentions of the people. The announcement of judgment against the disobedient evacuees echoes Jeremiah's earlier pronouncements against Judah. The very thing they were trying to escape from would meet them in Egypt. sword . . . famine . . . pestilence: This common triad indicates the completeness of God's judgment upon the disobedient.

43:1-3 The people had already intended to go to Egypt to escape the perceived danger of Babylon. Azariah and Johanan spoke out against the counsel given by Jeremiah in 42:9-22.

43:4-7 Johanan led the migration to Egypt, against the direction of the Lord through Jeremiah. The caravan journeyed as far as Tahpanhes, a city on the eastern edge of the Nile Delta (2:16).

43:10, 11 This judgment oracle echoes earlier pronouncements against Judah, with Nebuchadnezzar identified as the servant of God (25:9; 27:6). The stones symbolized the strong foundation of Nebuchadnezzar's empire, the point from which he would spread his royal pavilion (tent, or canopy). death . . . captivity . . . sword: Severe judgment is pronounced on Egypt, including judgment on the disobedient people of Judah.

43:12, 13 The destructive judgment was extended to the temples of Egyptian gods and goddesses.

Destruction of Egyptian temples was carried out by Esarhaddon of Assyria in the seventh century B.C., and again by Cambyses of Persia in the sixth century B.C. Beth Shemesh (“House of the Sun”) was the temple of the sun god Re. The temple was known for its two rows of pillars, or inscribed obelisks.

44:1 Migdol is a common Semitic term meaning “Watchtower.” Here the term is identified with a small fortress 25 miles east of Tahpanhes. Noph is another name for Memphis, the capital of Lower Egypt. Pathros is Upper Egypt. Since Jehohaz had been deported to Egypt in 609 B.C., a number of Jews had settled there in the fertile lands along the Nile.

Tahpanhes

Tahpanhes was a city on the eastern frontier of lower Egypt, in the area of the Nile delta (2:16). This city was probably named for a powerful general who brought the surrounding area under firm Egyptian control in the eleventh century B.C. Tahpanhes became a place of refuge for Jews who fled their homeland after the assassination of Gedaliah, the governor of Judah placed in power by the Babylonians. Jeremiah warned the Jews against this move (42:16). He dramatically visualized this for them by hiding stones at Tahpanhes for the foundation of the throne of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon (43:9, 10).

Tahpanhes is identified with the modern Tell Defneh, a small mound bordering Lake Menzaleh in northern Egypt.

44:2, 3 Jerusalem was brought to desolation because the people broke God’s covenant by worshipping other gods, rejecting the lordship of God, and thus provoking Him to anger.

44:4, 5 prophets, rising early and sending: Jerusalem had been warned time and again by faithful and tireless messengers from God (7:25; 25:4; 26:5). they did not listen or incline their ear: The reference here is to the people’s disobedience in continually worshipping foreign deities.

44:8 provoke: This term indicates willful, stubborn rebellion against God, which roused His anger.

44:9, 10 They have not been humbled . . . nor have they feared: The present generation of Jews had learned nothing from the past failures of the nation. The people were not broken in heart, only more stubborn.

44:11, 12 I will set My face against you: This expression describes the will of God, here pronouncing judgment upon the rebellious Jews in Egypt. set their faces: God had set His face against the remnant of Judah because they had set their face to enter Egypt against His will (43:7).

44:13, 14 The Jews in Egypt would suffer the same judgment as those in Jerusalem. Only a small remnant would survive to tell their story.

44:16, 17 The people countered Jeremiah’s words with an argument from experience. They rejected God by saying that when they worshiped the queen of heaven—that is, the goddess Ishtar or Astarte, they had plenty of food, were well off, and saw no trouble.

- 44:18 Queen of heaven refers to Ishtar, a goddess of war and fertility who was worshiped with explicit sexual activity. The people reasoned that when they stopped worshiping the queen of heaven in the days of Josiah's reform, their king was killed and their land was overrun and destroyed.
- 44:19 Women were leaders in the Ishtar rites, which included incense burning, drink offerings, and special ceremonial cakes marked with the symbol of the goddess (7:18).
- 44:21 remember: This term is often used in contexts describing the basis for God's judgment.
- 44:22, 23 no longer bear it: The longsuffering of the Lord had reached its end. The cause of the judgment was the people's evil . . . doings and abominations. When the covenant was broken, the covenant curses came to bear.
- 44:24, 25 The focus here is on the stubbornness of the women who persisted in their idolatry. Nothing could make them abandon their vows to worship Ishtar.
- 44:26, 27 The name of God reveals His quality and character in dealing with humankind.
- 44:28, 29 A small remnant would survive and see the fulfillment of God's word as revealed through Jeremiah. Their own hopes of prosperity in Egypt would vanish, and the sign of God's work against them would be the fall of Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt. In 570 B.C. Hophra was overthrown in a military coup by his own general Amasis. Three years later he was executed in fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecy.
- 45:1 Baruch assisted and encouraged Jeremiah when he was imprisoned. In this passage Jeremiah replies with a personal word of encouragement from the Lord for his scribal friend. The date of the passage, 604 B.C., identifies it with the circumstances of ch. 36. Baruch had read Jeremiah's oracles before the temple crowd and the princes of Judah, before Jehoiakim burned the original scroll. A second scroll was prepared by Baruch, and he remained an assistant to Jeremiah throughout his ministry, including the journey to Egypt.
- 45:2, 3 Jeremiah addressed Baruch in light of the scribe's sorrow. Woe: Baruch lamented his plight in the same manner that Jeremiah had done (15:10). added grief to my sorrow: Baruch suffered mental anguish and personal rejection from his people due to his association with Jeremiah (36:15–19; 43:3).
- 45:5 great things: Baruch apparently had hopes for position, honor, and distinction. However, these dreams were lost through his association with Jeremiah. Yet Baruch would be spared the judgment that would befall the land, for the Lord would give him his life as a prize, or booty (21:9; 38:2).
- 46:1 This verse introduces a collection of oracles against the nations. The text moves generally from the west—Egypt—to the east—Elam and Babylon. Scattered throughout the oracles are brief messages of the restoration of Israel and Judah. Internal evidence indicates a date prior to the fall of Jerusalem for most of the material. In v. 2, the first oracle is dated specifically to 605 B.C. In other oracles, the contents reflect events dating from Nebuchadnezzar's southern campaigns (604 B.C.) to his subsequent campaigns in 586 or even 582 B.C. The main message of these oracles is the sovereignty of God over all the nations of the earth.
- 46:2 Against Egypt: The background here is Nebuchadnezzar's defeat of Pharaoh Necho at Carchemish in 605 B.C. Jeremiah's proclamations concerning the future Babylonian invasion were no doubt based in part on this battle, which firmly established Nebuchadnezzar as the great imperial monarch of his generation.
- 46:3, 4 Buckler and shield are two different sizes of shields (see 1 Kin. 10:16, 17).
- 46:5, 6 The strong Egyptian army was overpowered suddenly by the mightier Babylonians. fear . . . all around: This expression was also the name given to Pashhur by Jeremiah in 20:3, 4, and to Jeremiah's persecutors in 20:10.
- 46:7–9 Egypt had been weak for three hundred years (see 1 Kin. 14:25), but was still known for producing and exporting chariots. Ethiopians, Libyans, and Lydians were apparently mercenaries under Necho.
- 46:10–12 The day of the Lord GOD is described here as a day of vengeance in which Egypt is punished for the death of Josiah. The imagery of a devouring sword is also found in 2:30. Egypt's demise is pictured as a sacrificial feast. As there was no healing balm for sinful Judah, so now Egypt was mortally wounded, stumbling to its death.

46:13 This verse is a prose introduction to a poetic description of Nebuchadnezzar's attack on Egypt. After the battle at Carchemish, the Babylonian march through Palestine was resumed in 604 B.C. They attacked Ashkelon and then pursued the Egyptians.

46:14–17 Why are your valiant men swept away: The fall of the gods before God in judgment is a prominent theme in the oracles against the nations (v. 25). the LORD drove them: Babylon is depicted as the instrument of God's judgment.

46:18, 19 King . . . LORD of hosts: The term hosts can also be translated "armies." God is the true and sovereign King over all the armies of heaven and earth. Tabor . . . Carmel: The mountains stand for the certainty of God's kingship. Like Judah, Egypt would face God's destructive judgment.

Mount Tabor

Tabor is a mountain of limestone in the northeastern part of the Valley of Jezreel (Josh. 19:22). Now called Jebel et-Tur, Mt. Tabor rises some 1,350 feet above the plain. Because of its strategic location and commanding height, Mt. Tabor frequently was fortified with protective walls. It played an important role in Israel's history. Here Barak gathered ten thousand men and attacked the Canaanite armies of Sisera (Judg. 4:6, 12, 14). Here the Midianite kings Zebah and Zalmunna killed Gideon's brothers (Judg. 8:18, 19). During the time of the prophets, the top of the mountain was a sanctuary for idolatry (Hos. 5:1). In fact, the mountain may have been the site of a pagan sanctuary from ancient times (Deut. 33:19). In 218 B.C. Antiochus III captured a town on the summit and fortified it. As a Jewish general, Josephus added a defensive rampart to the fortress in A.D. 66. The remains of this structure can still be seen today.

- 46:20–24 Egypt’s destroyer invaded from the north, the same direction from which Judah’s adversary attacked. fat bulls: Egypt’s well-paid mercenaries were frail before God and the Babylonians, who came like lumberjacks cutting down the forest and chopping the fleeing serpents, the Egyptians. Egypt’s demise is parallel to Israel’s; the virgin daughter had been violated and stood ashamed (2:26), soon to be taken captive by Babylon.
- 46:25, 26 The gods and goddesses of Egypt were punished in the defeat of the people who worshiped them. days of old: After the Babylonian invasion and exile, normal life in Egypt would be restored.
- 46:27, 28 do not be dismayed: Israel would be preserved. These verses are like 30:10, 11 with only slight variation.
- 47:2 The metaphor of rising waters is found in Is. 8:7, 8; 28:17 in reference to the Assyrian army; here the foe is Babylon (1:13; 4:6; 6:1, 22; 25:9). The destructive overflowing of the river is more typical of the Euphrates River in the north than of the Nile floods, which bring beneficial nutrients to the fertile valley.
- 47:3 Lacking courage is literally “from weakness of hands,” describing the paralyzing terror felt by parents as they abandon their children in flight.
- 47:4, 5 Philistines and Phoenicians are associated through their origins among the sea peoples who came from the northern Mediterranean and Aegean islands to the coastlands of Palestine in the twelfth century B.C. Caphtor is identified with Crete. Tyre and Sidon were the largest Phoenician ports. Gaza and Ashkelon were the last of the Philistine strongholds to fall, along with Ashdod, which is not mentioned. Baldness . . . cut yourself: Shaving the head and self-inflicted wounds were mourning customs forbidden in Israel (16:6).
- 47:6, 7 The image of the sword of the LORD is often used to portray divine judgment (12:12; 46:10, 14, 16). quiet . . . Rest . . . be still: The judgment had long been withheld; the longsuffering of the Lord had reached its end.
- 48:6–8 The juniper ekes out its stunted growth in the wilderness, hiding in crevasses of rock. As the apostate people of Judah trusted in the queen of heaven (44:17, 18), Moab trusted in its patron deity Chemosh, a god of fertility and storm. captivity: Taking a deity captive was a well-known Middle Eastern custom. The national statue of the patron deity was seized and it was believed that the captured god could no longer protect its people.
- 48:11–13 not been emptied from vessel to vessel: Though Moab was subject to Israel in the ninth century B.C., it had never experienced exile and had become complacent in its security. God would empty Moab’s vessels, causing the Moabites to be taken captive. break the bottles: Moab’s cities would be destroyed. Chemosh (v. 7), the great protector of Moab, would become powerless before God, as Bethel fell with Israel (Amos 3:14).
- 48:14–17 Jeremiah assured Moab that there is but one true King, Whose name is the LORD of hosts, the all-powerful “God of armies.” Bemoan: A note of sarcasm is communicated. The nations around Moab, like Judah, who was attacked by Moab’s mercenaries, were called upon to lament Moab’s destruction.

- 48:18–20 Dibon was the capital from which King Mesha ruled (see 2 Kin. 3:4–27). The haughty Moab was shamed by the destruction of its mighty fortresses.
- 48:21–25 Mephaath was one of the Levitical cities (see Josh. 21:37). Bozrah refers not to the capital of Edom, but to Bezer, one of the cities of refuge (see Josh. 20:8). Kerioth is mentioned in Amos 2:2. Horn and arm are symbols of the power and strength that was broken.
- 48:26–29 Make him drunk: Judgment is portrayed in the form of drunkenness to the point of vomiting, the result of Moab’s mockery of Israel (25:15–29). Pride refers to the self-indulging, self-honoring haughtiness by which one thinks of oneself as greater than others.
- 48:30–33 The scene in Moab turns to mourning and intense lamentation over the failure of the crops and vineyards. Kir Heres, also called Kir Haraseth, (see 2 Kin. 3:25; Is. 16:11), may be a name for the capital city of Moab (Kir of Moab; see Is. 15:1). The joy once heard echoing from the vineyards and winepresses had vanished before the horrifying sound of horses’ hoofbeats and clashing weapons.
- 48:34 The waters of Nimrim empty into the Jordan opposite Jericho. A lament from Heshbon and Elealeh to Horonaim and Zoar would cover all the Moabite plateau from north to south, from the Dead Sea to the desert.
- 48:35–39 offers sacrifices . . . burns incense: Idolatry would end; the people could no longer worship Chemosh and other deities. head . . . beard . . . hands . . . loins: Every kind of lament would be used to mourn for Moab, as the proud Moab became a derision and a dismay like Judah.
- 48:40–44 The imagery is that of Babylon spreading its ravaging armies over Moab like an eagle spreading its wings (49:22; Deut. 32:11; Ezek. 17:7). exalted himself: Moab’s chief sin was pride, considering itself greater than the God of Israel. Its pride would be turned to fear and terror, and then the nation would be taken captive.
- 48:47 Bring back means “restore the fortunes of.” Moab would see its people restored to their homeland. Their crops and vineyards would once again be productive. Moab, Judah, and Israel returned home in 538 B.C., during the reign of Cyrus.
- 49:1, 2 Milcom, the patron deity of the Ammonites, is pictured as taking possession of the land formerly belonging to the Gadites, a process that began in the days of the judges.
- 49:3 Heshbon (48:2) was at one time possessed by the Ammonites, but later lost to the Moabites. Ai is not the Israelite city of the same name. Rabbah was the capital city of the Ammonites. The captivity of the patron deity Milcom was tantamount to his defeat, visible in the exile of leaders and people, together with his statue, from their homeland.
- 49:4 Valleys . . . flowing valley may be a reference to the Jabbok valley on the northern border of Ammon.
- 49:5 no one will gather those who wander off: Those who fell by the wayside during the flight from Ammon would be abandoned.
- 49:7 Edom was known in the Bible for its wisdom (Obad. 8). Teman was the name of a city or district of Edom in which the capital city Bozrah was located.
- 49:9–11 grape-gatherers: This imagery derives from 6:9, but there was no real remnant left in Edom. The nation had been totally ravaged and stripped bare, with only women and children left alive to work the land. These workers were invited to trust in God.
- 49:12, 13 drink of the cup: The imagery of the cup of divine wrath is found in 25:15–29. Here it is particularly applied to Edom and more specifically to its capital city, Bozrah.

cup

(Heb. kos) (25:15; 49:12; Ps. 23:5; Is. 51:22) Strong's #3563

The Hebrew word translated cup refers to a drinking goblet. In the OT prophetic books, the word is usually associated with imagery of God's wrath, such as the "wine cup of fury" or "the cup of horror" (25:15; Ezek. 23:33). In other places the cup can have a positive significance: it indicates a close relationship with a powerful person (see "Pharaoh's cup" in Gen. 40:11). Moreover in both the OT and NT, the cup can be symbolic of fellowship because of the cup's association with togetherness. The cup is an important image in the NT, especially in the celebration of the Lord's Supper (1 Cor. 11:25–28).

49:14–16 The imagery in these verses is that of the nations being mustered by God to besiege Edom. Edom would be reduced from a proud people of mighty mountain fortresses to one that was small among the nations.

49:17–19 an astonishment . . . hiss: Like Israel, Judah, Egypt, Moab, and Ammon, Edom would be destroyed and would become an object of derision. Like the lion that emerges from the thickets along the lower Jordan and seizes its prey, God would attack the Edomites through His appointed instrument.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The Lower Jordan Valley

The Lower Jordan Valley contains three distinct levels known as the zor, the qattara, and the ghor. The zor is a narrow strip of land one or two miles wide, which the Bible calls the "floodplain of the Jordan" (49:19). Thanks to seasonal floods, the zor is a jungle of dense brush, shrubs, and tamarisk trees. The sons of the prophets were cutting down trees here when Elisha recovered an ax head (2 Kings 6:1–7).

Away from the river is the qattara. This territory is covered by ancient deposits of sediment from the lake that once filled the Jordan Valley. Seasonal streams carve deep crevices. No one grew crops there because the soil was salty. Modern Israeli scientists are reclaiming the soil by washing it with river water.

The ghor is a steep but fertile terrace between the qattara and the mountains. Farmers irrigate and cultivate these fields.

Aerial view of the Lower Jordan Valley. Note the zor, the qattara, and the ghor.

49:20–22 The two things on which Edom most prided itself, its wisdom and its fortresses, would vanish before the judgment of the Lord. As the strongholds collapsed, the earth would quake; its tremors would be felt all the way to the Red Sea. The imagery of the broad wings of the eagle, representing the all-encompassing power of God and His agents of destruction, is also found in 48:40, 41.

49:23–25 Hamath and Arpad were major towns located west and north of the capital of Damascus.

49:28 The region of Kedar was the most important Arab tribal group in the biblical period. Kedar was in northern Arabia and was known for its sheepherding and merchant caravans (see 2:10; Is. 60:7; Ezek. 27:21). The phrase men of the East is associated with the Arameans, Midianites, Amalekites, and other nomadic desert tribes (see Gen. 29:1; Judg. 7:12).

49:29 The various items listed in this verse are typically those of nomadic peoples. The panic-filled shout, fear is on every side, is common in Jeremiah's oracles (6:25; 20:10; 46:5; 49:5).

49:30–33 Nebuchadnezzar's destructive army would attack the tent villages of Kedar and Hazor. The oases would be left to the jackals for habitation (9:11; 10:22). The Bedouin peoples would be scattered afar, as if by the hot desert winds.

49:34–36 break the bow: The Elamites were famous for their skilled archers (see Is. 22:6), who became an important part of the Persian army under Cyrus. The expression four winds indicates the military might that the Lord musters against His enemies (see Ezek. 37:9; Dan. 8:8).

49:37–39 I will set My throne: This expression depicts the establishment of the kingdom of the God of Israel, the great conquering King in the land of the Elamites (1:15; 43:10). Elam would experience the restorative power of God, as its people were returned and its fortunes restored (48:47; 49:6).

50:1 The Chaldeans, or Babylonians, were vassals of Assyria until the revolt of Nabopolassar, who gained control of Babylon in 626 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar, the son of Nabopolassar who succeeded his father to the throne in 605 B.C., was the strongest and longest-reigning Chaldean monarch. After Nebuchadnezzar died, the nation declined steadily. In 539 B.C. it was conquered by Cyrus, apparently with little effort.

50:2, 3 Bel was a title like Baal, meaning “Lord,” for Merodach, another name for Babylon’s patron deity Marduk. idols . . . images: The oracle begins with a defamation of the gods of Babylon. The term translated images means animal droppings. The Hebrew prophets are openly contemptuous of idols and speak of them with ridicule. out of the north: The invading nation is not defined, yet from historical records it is known that Cyrus attacked Babylon from the north after defeating the city of Sippar.

50:4, 5 Israel and Judah would be restored as they sought the Lord in mournful repentance, looking for help to return home. They would enter into a perpetual covenant with the Lord that they would not forget or reject (see Ezek. 16:60).

50:6, 7 Shepherds refers to the national princes, priests, and prophets who led the people to sin against the Lord, their true source of hope and sustenance (23:1–4).

50:8–10 The train of thought turns to the Jews, who should flee from Babylon like rams of a flock.

50:11–13 Babylon’s plunder would be its punishment for gloating over Judah’s demise and the abuse of God’s heritage. Great Babylon would be reduced to the least of the nations. Defamation, drought, desertion, desolation, and derision were Babylon’s destiny (18:16; 19:8; 49:17).

50:14–16 against her all around: Assault forces would press hard on every side, as what had been the instrument of God became the object of His wrath.

50:17–20 The Lord had used Babylon to punish Assyria for deporting Israel; He would use another foe from the north to inflict punishment on Babylon. The result would be the restoration of Israel and Judah and the pardoning of their iniquities and sins, the very reason for their demise (5:25; 16:10, 18; 31:34; 33:8).

50:21–28 utterly destroy: The tables would be turned on Babylon, the soon-to-be-broken hammer and future heaps of ruins. The Lord GOD of hosts had launched His vengeful weapons upon the city through His anointed servant Cyrus (see 2 Chr. 36:22, 23; Is. 45:1).

50:33, 34 The wise and righteous Ruler would plead the case of the oppressed children of Judah and obtain their redemption. A redeemer was one who secured the freedom of a kinsman, protecting family rights. Here God, the Redeemer of Israel (see Is. 47:4), offers to obtain the legal freedom of His people from captivity.

50:35–38 The sword of God would overturn all elements of Babylon’s greatness—its leaders, its weapons, and its wealth. A drought is against her waters: Babylon was built on both sides of the Euphrates River, and the region of southern Mesopotamia was networked with irrigation canals. The Lord would carry out His judgment against Babylon as He had in the days of Elijah.

Contemporary Pagans

Today’s increasingly secular society may seem to have little in common with the world of Jeremiah’s day. Yet the truth is that many people who disavow the traditional idea of God or gods nevertheless have a very similar mind-set to the pagan idol worshipers, or “Gentiles” (10:2), of ancient times.

Jeremiah lived in a world of cultures based on idolatry (10:3–10). His own nation, Judah, was quite given over to idols during the reigns of Manasseh and Amon, probably the period when Jeremiah was a boy (2 Kin. 21). In fact, the prophet observed that Judah had as many gods as it had cities (Jer. 2:28). Likewise, each society surrounding Judah worshiped its pantheon of gods. The Babylonians, for example, were said to be “insane with their idols” (50:38). Looking back on these religions from today’s perspective, our tendency may be to think of an idol merely as an object crafted from wood or metal to whom superstitious, benighted pagans bowed down in hopes of receiving good fortune or avoiding misfortune. But that would be a superficial understanding. An idol is anything that is sacred to a person, in that it defines self-worth, becomes the controlling center of life, and takes priority over all other loyalties.

In light of that definition, what are some of the idols that people worship today? Certainly work and possessions would have to qualify for many people, especially given the addictive way in which they pursue them. What would be an idol for you? What do you hold “sacred” in the sense that it defines who you are, controls your life, and is the last thing that you would ever let go?

Jeremiah recognized the idols of his day for what they were—futile customs that supplanted the true God (10:3, 10). Are you pursuing futility at the cost of knowing the living Lord?

51:1, 2 destroying wind: The imagery of a scorching desert wind is found in 4:11, 12; 18:17. The imagery of winnowing or scattering is found in 13:24.

- 51:5 Though Israel and Judah had forsaken the lordship of God, He had not forsaken His sinful people.
- 51:6–10 The imagery of Babylon’s cup of fury from 25:15–29 is reversed. Here Babylon’s cup is broken by the Lord. balm: As in the case of Judah (8:22), decadent Babylon was beyond healing and had to be abandoned. The destruction of Babylon was the vindication of the justice of God. Jeremiah’s prediction (25:12–14) would be realized: Israel would be made righteous through God’s work.
- 51:11–14 vengeance: The Lord would avenge Babylon’s fierce abuse of Israel and other conquered nations. The covetousness of Babylon is typified in the taking of temple treasures from Jerusalem (see 2 Kin. 25:13–17). locusts: The locust plague depicts the swarm of enemy soldiers pouring into the magnificent city.
- 51:20–26 Babylon had been God’s battle-ax for judgment against the nations, and Judah in particular. I will repay: Babylon would experience God’s battle-ax of punishment for the evil it inflicted on Jerusalem. The seemingly invincible mountain of Babylon would be crumbled by the power of God’s outstretched arm.
- 51:27, 28 Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz were mountain tribes from what is today eastern Turkey and Armenia. The Medes were from the Zagros mountain region in present-day central Iran.
- 51:29–32 The mighty men of Babylon have ceased fighting: The Nabonidus Chronicle, a text describing the fall of Babylon, reports that “Cyrus entered Babylon without a battle.” By the time Cyrus reached Babylon, he had conquered all of Babylonia except for the capital city, cutting off roads and supply routes.
- 51:33 The harvest threshing floor depicts the punishment of Babylon.
- 51:36–40 plead your case: The imagery here involves a legal proceeding. Babylon had been arraigned, indicted, and convicted. Here it is sentenced to punishment by the Lord. The lions of Babylon would be slaughtered like lambs.
- 51:41–44 The primeval sea, conquered by Marduk according to the Babylonian creation myth, would overflow Babylon in the form of enemy nations. Bel is an honorary title for Marduk, the patron deity of Babylon. I will bring out . . . what he has swallowed: Nebuchadnezzar had swallowed up nations like a glutton (v. 34); those very same nations would be returned.
- 51:45–48 The release of Israel from captivity is foreseen. The people would be called upon to flee the city because of its impending destruction. In Jeremiah, the expression days are coming usually introduces a message of divine intervention into history. carved images: Babylon was known for its thousands of images of its numerous gods and goddesses. As the king claimed to conquer nations in the name of his patron deity, so the gods of the defeated would be punished along with their worshipers. The devastation of decadent Babylon would be no cause for mourning among the nations. Instead, the nations would sing joyfully of Babylon’s fall.
- 51:49, 50 slain of Israel: Babylon would be destroyed for killing so many in Israel. The remnant of Israel would be called upon to remember their God and how He delivered them from afar.
- 51:59–64 Jeremiah instructed Seraiah, a brother of Baruch who was about to be taken captive to Babylon, to read a scroll within the walls of Babylon. The scroll that Jeremiah gave to Seraiah contained a list of the various evils that would befall Babylon as a result of God’s judgment.
- 52:1–3 Zedekiah reigned as king of Judah from 598 to 586 B.C., until God finally cast him out of Jerusalem for doing evil in the sight of the LORD (23:1–4).
- 52:4–6 The siege of Jerusalem began on the tenth day of the tenth month (Tebeth)—probably in December 589 B.C. The siege of Jerusalem lasted over two years. In June–July 586 B.C., as food supplies were exhausted, the walls of Jerusalem were breached (39:2).
- 52:7–11 The attempted escape, capture, and ultimate fate of Zedekiah are also described in 39:1–10.
- 52:13–16 The entire city of Jerusalem was burned, from the temple to the royal palace to the houses. The city walls were demolished. Leading citizens and some of the poor were deported under Nebuzaradan’s command, leaving only a remnant of peasant farmers to work the fields, vineyards, and orchards.

52:17–23 Sacred implements and furniture from the temple of God were taken as booty to Babylon. Most of these items are described in 1 Kin. 7:15–51. The bronze bulls had been removed by Ahaz and presented to Tiglath-Pileser III (see 2 Kin. 16:10–18), but apparently had been returned or remade.

52:24–27 Certain persons were chosen for execution. Seraiah was the grandson of Hilkiah, the faithful priest under Josiah. Zephaniah is possibly the person of the same name in 29:25. Doorkeepers were key temple personnel. Leaders of Judah's forces were executed.

52:31–34 Jehoiachin was released from prison soon after Nebuchadnezzar died in 562 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar's son Evil-Merodach became king but reigned only two years (562–560 B.C.). lifted up the head: Jehoiachin was pardoned by the king of Babylon. Jehoiachin was provided food and given a seat of honor in Babylon. This restoration was symbolic of the future restoration of Israel and Judah to their homeland.

Introduction

The Book of Lamentations reveals the broken heart of the prophet Jeremiah. In forceful poetry, Jeremiah expresses his grief over the national tragedy that had unfolded before his eyes: Jerusalem, God's city, had fallen to the Babylonians. Jeremiah's sorrow and tears were not for his own personal loss, however, but for the sinfulness of the Israelites. The people of Israel had chosen to reject God. Yet even in this time of suffering there was hope. The Lord would not discipline His people forever; He would eventually restore those who waited on Him.

Author Although no author is named in the book, the prophet Jeremiah has been traditionally identified as the writer of Lamentations. In fact, some copies of the ancient Greek Septuagint translation begin the book with these words: "And it came to pass, after Israel had been carried captive, and Jerusalem became desolate, that Jeremiah sat weeping, and lamented this lamentation over Jerusalem." Crediting Lamentations to Jeremiah is based on the following considerations: (1) Jeremiah was known as a composer of laments (see 2 Chr. 35:25). (2) Jeremiah was the prophet who mourned, "Oh, that my head were waters, and my eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people!" (see Jer. 9:1). (3) In 3:1, the author seems to identify himself with Jeremiah when he says, "I am the man who has seen affliction by the rod of His wrath." (4) There are many linguistic similarities between Lamentations and Jeremiah.

Literary Structure The five chapters of Lamentations are five poems with chapter 3 as the midpoint or climax. Accordingly, the first two chapters build an "ascent," or crescendo, to the climax, the grand confession in 3:23, 24: "Great is Your faithfulness. The LORD is my portion." The last two chapters are a “descent,” or decrescendo, from the pinnacle of chapter 3.

Chapters 1 and 5 provide summaries of the siege and fall of Jerusalem while chapters 2 and 4 offer more detailed and explicit descriptions of the devastation. Chapter 3 moves from a mixture of lament and hope in verses 1–24 to colorful praise of the compassionate and faithful Lord in verses 25–39. This is followed by the confession of verses 40–54 and the accompanying prayer of verses 55–66. Then chapter 4 relaxes the emotional intensity of the earlier chapters, dispassionately describing how suffering affected all classes of the populace of Jerusalem. The final chapter is a prayer that begins with “Remember, O LORD” (5:1) and ends with “Turn us back to You, O LORD” (5:21). In this way, Jeremiah’s lament moves from mourning to praise and then from praise to a prayer for restoration.

The poetry of the book enhances its purpose and structure. Chapters 1 through 4 are composed as acrostics of the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Each verse or group of verses begins with a word whose initial letter carries on the sequence of letters in the Hebrew alphabet. This would be similar to an English poem in which the first line begins with A; the second line begins with B, and so on. One purpose of this device was probably to aid in memorization of the passage. The acrostic also suggests that the writer has thought things through and is giving a complete account of the subject.

Theological Significance Like the Book of Job, the Book of Lamentations addresses human suffering. Unlike Job, Lamentations focuses on national suffering—specifically, the suffering of Judah. Along the way, the book tackles some of the toughest questions faced by God’s people: How can God’s love and justice be reconciled with our pain? If God is in control of history, how could a nation suffer so much so soon after it had been led by such godly leaders as King Josiah and those involved in that revival? Where was God during His people’s unhappiest hour?

The Book of Lamentations offers some very practical theological reflections on the purposes and results of suffering. Rather than explaining away pain, the book helps us face pain. By avoiding cheery clichés, the Book of Lamentations provides companionship for those who are suffering and plants seeds of hope for rebuilding after the suffering is over.

In fact, the anger of God is a sign that He cares. The Lord’s anger is never capricious or unreasonable. His discipline is a sign that He has not abandoned us. Even in His display of anger, God is still full of mercy and grace. The beacon light in the midst of disintegration is found in 3:22–24. Come what may, God remains faithful. His faithfulness is the greatest comfort to those who suffer; His compassions are new every morning.

Christ in the Scriptures

In his mournful lyrics Jeremiah does more than focus on his feelings. His vulnerable grief focuses our attention on the One who is to come. This weeping prophet is a type of Jesus. Six centuries later, the Son of God weeps over the same city. “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the one who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you were not willing! See! Your house is left to you desolate” (Matt. 23:37, 38).

This tear-stained prophet also provides an accurate description of the one Isaiah called “a Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief” (Is. 53:3). Jeremiah speaks of the Messiah being afflicted (1:12; 3:19), despised, and derided by His enemies (2:15, 16; 3:14, 30).

Lamentations 1

Jerusalem in Affliction

¹How lonely sits the city
That was full of people!
^aHow like a widow is she,
Who was great among the nations!
The ^bprincess among the provinces
Has become a ¹slave!

²She ^cweeps bitterly in the ^dnight,
Her tears are on her cheeks;

Among all her lovers
She has none to comfort her.
All her friends have dealt treacherously with her;
They have become her enemies. Word Studies: weeps

^{3e}Judah has gone into captivity,
Under affliction and hard servitude;
^fShe dwells among the ²nations,
She finds no ^grest;
All her persecutors overtake her in dire straits.

⁴The roads to Zion mourn
Because no one comes to the ³set feasts.
All her gates are ^hdesolate;
Her priests sigh,
Her virgins are afflicted,
And she is in bitterness.

⁵Her adversaries ⁱhave become ⁴the master,
Her enemies prosper;
For the LORD has afflicted her
^jBecause of the multitude of her transgressions.
Her ^kchildren have gone into captivity before the enemy.

⁶And from the daughter of Zion
All her splendor has departed.
Her princes have become like deer
That find no pasture,
That ⁵flee without strength
Before the pursuer.

⁷In the days of her affliction and roaming,
Jerusalem ^lremembers all her pleasant things
That she had in the days of old.
When her people fell into the hand of the enemy,
With no one to help her,

The adversaries saw her
And mocked at her ⁶downfall.

^{8m}Jerusalem has sinned gravely,
Therefore she has become ⁷vile.
All who honored her despise her
Because ⁿthey have seen her nakedness;
Yes, she sighs and turns away.

⁹Her uncleanness is in her skirts;
She ^odid not consider her destiny;
Therefore her collapse was awesome;
She had no comforter.
“O LORD, behold my affliction,
For the enemy is exalted!”

¹⁰The adversary has spread his hand
Over all her ⁸pleasant things;
For she has seen ^pthe nations enter her ⁹sanctuary,

Those whom You commanded qNot to enter Your assembly.

11All her people sigh,
rThey 10seek bread;
They have given their 11valuables for food to restore life.
“See, O LORD, and consider,
For I am scorned.”

12“Is it nothing to you, all you who 12pass by?

Behold and see

^sIf there is any sorrow like my sorrow,
Which has been brought on me,
Which the LORD has inflicted
In the day of His fierce anger.

¹³“From above He has sent fire into my bones,
And it overpowered them;
He has ^tspread a net for my feet
And turned me back;

He has made me desolate
And faint all the day.

¹⁴“The^u yoke of my transgressions was ¹³bound;
They were woven together by His hands,
And thrust upon my neck.
He made my strength fail;
The Lord delivered me into the hands of those whom I am not able to withstand.

¹⁵“The Lord has trampled underfoot all my mighty men in my midst;
He has called an assembly against me
To crush my young men;
^vThe Lord trampled as in a winepress
The virgin daughter of Judah.

¹⁶“For these things I weep;
My eye, ^wmy eye overflows with water;
Because the comforter, who should restore my life,
Is far from me.

My children are desolate
Because the enemy prevailed.”

^{17x}Zion ¹⁴spreads out her hands,
But no one comforts her;
The LORD has commanded concerning Jacob
That those ^yaround him become his adversaries;
Jerusalem has become an unclean thing among them.

¹⁸“The LORD is ^zrighteous,
For I ^arebelled against His ¹⁵commandment.
Hear now, all peoples,
And behold my sorrow;
My virgins and my young men
Have gone into captivity.

¹⁹“I called for my lovers,
But they deceived me;

My priests and my elders
Breathed their last in the city,

While they sought food
To restore their life.

²⁰“See, O LORD, that I am in distress;
My ^bsoul¹⁶ is troubled;
My heart is overturned within me,
For I have been very rebellious.
^cOutside the sword bereaves,
At home it is like death.

²¹“They have heard that I sigh,
But no one comforts me.
All my enemies have heard of my trouble;
They are ^dglad that You have done it.
Bring on ^ethe day You have ¹⁷announced,
That they may become like me.

²²“Let^f all their wickedness come before You,
And do to them as You have done to me
For all my transgressions;
For my sighs are many,
And my heart is faint.”

Lamentations 2

God's Anger with Jerusalem

¹How the Lord has covered the daughter of Zion
With a ^acloud in His anger!

^bHe cast down from heaven to the earth

^cThe beauty of Israel,
And did not remember ^dHis footstool
In the day of His anger.

²The Lord has swallowed up and has ^enot pitied
All the dwelling places of Jacob.

He has thrown down in His wrath

The strongholds of the daughter of Judah;

He has brought them down to the ground;

^fHe has profaned the kingdom and its princes.

³He has cut off in fierce anger

Every ¹horn of Israel;

⁸He has drawn back His right hand

From before the enemy.

^hHe has blazed against Jacob like a flaming fire
Devouring all around.

⁴ⁱStanding like an enemy, He has bent His bow;

With His right hand, like an adversary,

He has slain ^jall who were pleasing to His eye;

On the tent of the daughter of Zion,

He has poured out His fury like fire.

^{5k}The Lord was like an enemy.

He has swallowed up Israel,

He has swallowed up all her palaces;

^lHe has destroyed her strongholds,

And has increased mourning and lamentation

In the daughter of Judah.

⁶He has done violence ^mto His ²tabernacle, ⁿ*As if it were* a garden;
He has destroyed His place of assembly;
The LORD has caused
The appointed feasts and Sabbaths to be forgotten in Zion.
In His burning indignation He has ^ospurned the king and the priest.

⁷The Lord has spurned His altar,
He has ^pabandoned His sanctuary;
He has ³given up the walls of her palaces
Into the hand of the enemy.
^qThey have made a noise in the house of the LORD
As on the day of a set feast.

⁸The LORD has ⁴purposed to destroy
The ^rwall of the daughter of Zion.
^sHe has stretched out a line;
He has not withdrawn His hand from destroying;
Therefore He has caused the rampart and wall to lament;
They languished together.

⁹Her gates have sunk into the ground;
He has destroyed and ^tbroken her bars.
^uHer king and her princes are among the ⁵nations;
^vThe Law is no more,
And her ^wprophets find no ⁶vision from the LORD.

¹⁰The elders of the daughter of Zion
^xSit on the ground and keep silence;
⁷They ^ythrow dust on their heads
And ^zgird themselves with sackcloth.

The virgins of Jerusalem
Bow their heads to the ground.

^{11a}My eyes fail with tears,
My ⁸heart is troubled;
^bMy ⁹bile is poured on the ground
Because of the destruction of the daughter of my people,
Because ^cthe children and the infants
Faint in the streets of the city.

¹²They say to their mothers,
“Where is grain and wine?”
As they swoon like the wounded
In the streets of the city,
As their life is poured out
In their mothers’ bosom.

¹³How shall I ^dconsole¹⁰ you?
To what shall I liken you,
O daughter of Jerusalem?
What shall I compare with you, that I may comfort you,
O virgin daughter of Zion?
For your ruin is spread wide as the sea;
Who can heal you?

¹⁴Your ^eprophets have seen for you
False and deceptive visions;
They have not ^funcovered your iniquity,
To bring back your captives,
But have envisioned for you false ^gprophecies and delusions.

¹⁵All who ¹¹pass by ^hclap their hands at you;
They hiss ⁱand shake their heads
At the daughter of Jerusalem:
“Is this the city that is called
^j‘The perfection of beauty,
The joy of the whole earth’?”

^{16k}All your enemies have opened their mouth against you;

They hiss and gnash their teeth.
They say, ¹⁶“We have swallowed her up!
Surely this is the ^mday we have waited for;
We have found it, ⁿwe have seen it!”

¹⁷The LORD has done what He ^opurposed;

He has fulfilled His word
Which He commanded in days of old.
He has thrown down and has not pitied,
And He has caused an enemy to ^prejoice over you;
He has exalted the ¹²horn of your adversaries.

¹⁸Their heart cried out to the Lord,
“O wall of the daughter of Zion,
^qLet tears run down like a river day and night;
Give yourself no relief;
Give ¹³your eyes no rest.

¹⁹“Arise, ^rcry out in the night,
At the beginning of the watches;
^sPour out your heart like water before the face of the Lord.

Lift your hands toward Him
For the life of your young children,
Who faint from hunger ^tat the head of every street.”

²⁰“See, O LORD, and consider!
To whom have You done this?
^uShould the women eat their offspring,
The children ¹⁴they have cuddled?
Should the priest and prophet be slain
In the sanctuary of the Lord?

²¹“Young^v and old lie
On the ground in the streets;
My virgins and my young men
Have fallen by the ^wsword;
You have slain them in the day of Your anger,
You have slaughtered and not pitied.

²²“You have invited as to a feast day
^xThe terrors that surround me.
In the day of the LORD’s anger
There was no refugee or survivor.
^yThose whom I have borne and brought up
My enemies have ^zdestroyed.”

Lamentations 3

The Prophet's Anguish and Hope

¹I am the man who has seen affliction by the rod of His wrath.

Article: Light-bearers

²He has led me and made me walk
In darkness and not in light.

³Surely He has turned His hand against me
Time and time again throughout the day.

⁴He has aged ^amy flesh and my skin,
And ^bbroken my bones.

⁵He has besieged me
And surrounded me with bitterness and ¹woe.

^{6c}He has set me in dark places
Like the dead of long ago.

^{7d}He has hedged me in so that I cannot get out;
He has made my chain heavy.

⁸Even ^ewhen I cry and shout,
He shuts out my prayer.

⁹He has blocked my ways with hewn stone;
He has made my paths crooked.

^{10f}He has been to me a bear lying in wait,
Like a lion in ²ambush.

¹¹He has turned aside my ways and ^gtorn me in pieces;
He has made me desolate.

¹²He has bent His bow
And ^hset me up as a target for the arrow.

¹³He has caused ⁱthe ³arrows of His quiver
To pierce my ⁴loins.

¹⁴I have become the ^jridicule of all my people—
^kTheir taunting song all the day.

^{15l}He has filled me with bitterness,

He has made me drink wormwood.

¹⁶He has also broken my teeth ^mwith gravel,
And ⁵covered me with ashes.

¹⁷You have moved my soul far from peace;
I have forgotten ⁶prosperity.

¹⁸ⁿAnd I said, “My strength and my hope
Have perished from the LORD.”

¹⁹Remember my affliction and roaming,
^oThe wormwood and the ⁷gall.

²⁰My soul still remembers
And ⁸sinks within me.

²¹This I recall to my mind,
Therefore I have ^phope.

^{22q}Through the LORD’s mercies we are not consumed,
Because His compassions ^rfail not.

²³*They are new* ^severy morning;
Great is Your faithfulness.

²⁴“The LORD is my ^tportion,” says my soul,
“Therefore I ^uhope in Him!”

²⁵The LORD is good to those who ^vwait for Him,
To the soul who seeks Him.

²⁶*It is good that one* should ^whope ^xand wait quietly
For the salvation of the LORD.

^{27y}It is good for a man to bear
The yoke in his youth.

^{28z}Let him sit alone and keep silent,
Because God has laid it on him;

^{29a}Let him put his mouth in the dust—
There may yet be hope.

^{30b}Let him give his cheek to the one who strikes him,
And be full of reproach.

³¹For the Lord will not cast off forever.

³²Though He causes grief,

Yet He will show compassion
According to the multitude of His mercies.

³³For ^dHe does not afflict ⁹willingly,
Nor grieve the children of men.

³⁴To crush under one's feet
All the prisoners of the earth,
³⁵To turn aside the justice due a man
Before the face of the Most High,
³⁶Or subvert a man in his cause—
^eThe Lord does not approve.

³⁷Who is he ^f*who* speaks and it comes to pass,
When the Lord has not commanded it?

³⁸*Is it* not from the mouth of the Most High
That ^gwoe and well-being proceed?

^{39h}Why should a living man ¹⁰complain, ⁱA man for the punishment of his sins?

⁴⁰Let us search out and examine our ways,
And turn back to the LORD;

^{41j}Let us lift our hearts and hands
To God in heaven.

^{42k}We have transgressed and rebelled;
You have not pardoned.

⁴³You have covered Yourself with anger
And pursued us;
You have slain and not pitied.

⁴⁴You have covered Yourself with a cloud,
That prayer should not pass through.

⁴⁵You have made us an ^loffscouring and refuse
In the midst of the peoples.

^{46m}All our enemies
Have opened their mouths against us.

⁴⁷ⁿFear and a snare have come upon us,

^oDesolation and destruction.

^{48p}My eyes overflow with rivers of water
For the destruction of the daughter of my people.

^{49q}My eyes flow and do not cease,
Without interruption,

⁵⁰Till the LORD from heaven

^rLooks down and sees.

⁵¹My eyes bring suffering to my soul
Because of all the daughters of my city.

⁵²My enemies ^swithout cause
Hunted me down like a bird.

⁵³They ¹¹silenced my life ^tin the pit
And ^uthrew ¹²stones at me.

^{54v}The waters flowed over my head;

^wI said, "I am cut off!"

^{55x}I called on Your name, O LORD,
From the lowest ^ypit.

^{56z}You have heard my voice:

"Do not hide Your ear
From my sighing, from my cry for help."

⁵⁷You ^adrew near on the day I called on You,
And said, ^b"Do not fear!"

⁵⁸O Lord, You have ^cpleaded the case for my soul;

^dYou have redeemed my life.

⁵⁹O LORD, You have seen ¹³how I am wronged;

^eJudge my case.

⁶⁰You have seen all their vengeance,
All their ^fschemes against me.

⁶¹You have heard their reproach, O LORD,
All their schemes against me,

⁶²The lips of my enemies
And their whispering against me all the day.

⁶³Look at their ⁸sitting down and their rising up;
I am their taunting song.

^{64h}Repay them, O LORD,
According to the work of their hands.

⁶⁵Give them ¹⁴a veiled heart;
Your curse be upon them!

⁶⁶In Your anger,

Pursue and destroy them

ⁱFrom under the heavens of the ^jLORD.

Lamentations 4

The Degradation of Zion

¹How the gold has become dim!
How changed the fine gold!
The stones of the sanctuary are ¹scattered
At the head of every street.

²The precious sons of Zion,
²Valuable as fine gold,
How they are ³regarded ^aas clay pots,
The work of the hands of the potter!

³Even the jackals present their breasts
To nurse their young;
But the daughter of my people is cruel,
^bLike ostriches in the wilderness.

⁴The tongue of the infant clings
To the roof of its mouth for thirst;
^cThe young children ask for bread,
But no one breaks it for them.

⁵Those who ate delicacies
Are desolate in the streets;
Those who were brought up in scarlet ^dEmbrace ash heaps.

⁶The punishment of the iniquity of the daughter of my people
Is greater than the punishment of the ^esin of Sodom,
Which was ^foverthrown in a moment,
With no hand to help her!

⁷Her ⁴Nazirites were ⁵brighter than snow
And whiter than milk;
They were more ruddy in body than rubies,
Like sapphire in their ⁶appearance.

⁸*Now* their appearance is blacker than soot;
They go unrecognized in the streets;

⁸Their skin clings to their bones,
It has become as dry as wood.

⁹Those slain by the sword are better off
Than those who die of hunger;
For these ^hpine away,
Stricken for lack of the fruits of the ⁱfield.

¹⁰The hands of the ^jcompassionate women
Have ⁷cooked their ^kown children;
They became ^lfood for them
In the destruction of the daughter of my people.

¹¹The LORD has fulfilled His fury,
^mHe has poured out His fierce anger.
ⁿHe kindled a fire in Zion,
And it has devoured its foundations.

¹²The kings of the earth,
And all inhabitants of the world,

Would not have believed
That the adversary and the enemy
Could ^oenter the gates of Jerusalem—

^{13p}Because of the sins of her prophets
And the iniquities of her priests,
^qWho shed in her midst
The blood of the just.

¹⁴They wandered blind in the streets;
^rThey have defiled themselves with blood,
^sSo that no one would touch their garments.

¹⁵They cried out to them,
“Go away, ^tunclean!
Go away, go away,
Do not touch us!”
When they fled and wandered,
Those among the nations said,
“They shall no longer dwell here.”

¹⁶The ⁸face of the LORD scattered them;
He no longer regards them.
^u*The people* do not respect the priests
Nor show favor to the elders.

¹⁷Still ^vour eyes failed us,
Watching vainly for our help;

In our watching we watched
For a nation that could not save us.

^{18w}They ⁹tracked our steps
So that we could not walk in our streets.
^xOur end was near;
Our days were over,
For our end had come.

¹⁹Our pursuers were ^yswifter
Than the eagles of the heavens.
They pursued us on the mountains
And lay in wait for us in the wilderness.

²⁰The ^zbreath of our nostrils, the anointed of the LORD,
^aWas caught in their pits,
Of whom we said, "Under his shadow
We shall live among the nations."

²¹Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of ^bEdom,
You who dwell in the land of Uz!
^cThe cup shall also pass over to you
And you shall become drunk and make yourself naked.

^{22d}The punishment of your iniquity ¹⁰is accomplished,
O daughter of Zion;
He will no longer send you into captivity.
^eHe will punish your iniquity,
O daughter of Edom;
He will uncover your sins!

Lamentations 5

Prayer for Restoration

¹Remember, ^aO LORD, what has come upon us;
Look, and behold ^bour reproach!

^{2c}Our inheritance has been turned over to aliens,
And our houses to foreigners.

³We have become orphans and waifs,
Our mothers are like ^dwidows.

⁴We pay for the water we drink,
And our wood comes at a price.

^{5e}They pursue at our ¹heels;
We labor and have no rest.

^{6f}We have given our hand ^gto the Egyptians
And the ^hAssyrians, to be satisfied with bread.

⁷ⁱOur fathers sinned and are no more,
But we bear their iniquities.

⁸Servants rule over us;
There is none to deliver us from their hand.

⁹We get our bread at the risk of our lives,
Because of the sword in the wilderness.

¹⁰Our skin is hot as an oven,
Because of the fever of famine.

¹¹They ^jravished the women in Zion,
The maidens in the cities of Judah.

¹²Princes were hung up by their hands,
And elders were not respected.

¹³Young men ^kground at the millstones;
Boys staggered under loads of wood.

¹⁴The elders have ceased gathering at the gate,
And the young men from their ^lmusic.

¹⁵The joy of our heart has ceased;
Our dance has turned into ^mmourning.

¹⁶ⁿThe crown has fallen from our head.

Woe to us, for we have sinned!

¹⁷Because of this our heart is faint;

^oBecause of these things our eyes grow dim;

¹⁸Because of Mount Zion which is ^pdesolate,
With foxes walking about on it.

¹⁹You, O LORD, ^qremain forever;

^rYour throne from generation to generation.

^{20s}Why do You forget us forever,
And forsake us for so long a time?

^{21r}Turn us back to You, O LORD, and we will be ²restored;
Renew our days as of old, Word Studies: renew

²²Unless You have utterly rejected us,
And are very angry with us!

Annotations for Lamentations

- 1:1 How: This exclamatory word is used frequently in laments and funeral songs. It expresses astonishment, sorrow, and dismay (see 2:1; 4:1; Is. 1:21; 14:4; Jer. 9:19; 48:17; Ezek. 26:17).
lonely: This is a stranded individual, one who is like a widow. Jerusalem is personified, or portrayed as a person (see Is. 1:21). Beginning in v. 12, Jerusalem “speaks” of her own troubles in the first person. princess . . . slave: This is a terrible reversal of fortune.
- 1:2 Among all her lovers (v. 19) describes Judah’s sin of turning away from God and toward the gods of Canaan (see Jer. 3:1–6). Also, the sins of Judah often involved the sexual forms of pagan worship that characterized the Canaanite people.

weeps

(Heb. bakah) (1:2, 16; Job 30:31) Strong's #1058

This verb describes the act of wailing, which expresses emotions ranging from grief to happiness. While the word is often associated with lamentation, the “bitter wailing” of ancient people who were mourning their dead (2 Sam. 1:12), it is also used with expressions of joy (Gen. 29:11). The ancients wept when saying farewell (Ruth 1:9), over impending doom (Jer. 9:1), to express their joy over the rebuilt temple (Ezra 3:12), and at the burial of an individual (Gen. 50:1). In Lamentations, Jeremiah weeps over the sins of the people, the sins that would eventually result in the destruction of Jerusalem (1:1, 16).

- 1:3 The southern kingdom Judah is personified here as Jerusalem was in v. 1. captivity: The implications of v. 1 are made clear. The reference here is to the Babylonian captivity suffered by Judah following the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.
- 1:4 When the temple was built, Zion was used to describe the hill on which the temple was located. Later the name came to stand for the whole city. mourn: The roads “mourned” because there would no longer be throngs of pilgrims traveling to Jerusalem to worship at the temple. her gates: The image of sad gates is also found in Ps. 24:7–10, which indicates that the gates would not always mourn. priests . . . virgins: These two words indicate people from all elements of the city; everyone in the city experienced bitterness.
- 1:5 the LORD has afflicted her: God punished Jerusalem because of the people’s transgressions. The suffering described in the Book of Lamentations was fully deserved (v. 1). Her children have gone into captivity: God had warned Israel in Lev. 26:41 that captivity in a foreign land would be the result of continued sinning (see Deut. 32:23–27). The foreign nation was God’s instrument of punishment.
- 1:6 Daughter of Zion is an endearing term for Jerusalem that speaks of God’s extraordinary love for the city (see Ps. 87:2). All her splendor has departed: Israel’s glory was found in the presence of the Lord (see Ps. 96:8). But that glory had been removed from the Most Holy Place (see Ezek. 9:3; 10:19; 11:22).
- 1:7 In this verse the name Jerusalem is a comprehensive term that alludes to the “widowed” city of Jerusalem in v. 1; the nation “Judah” in v. 3; and the center of worship on “Mount Zion” in v. 4. The nation, the city, and the temple were ravaged by the invading Babylonian armies in 586 B.C. The emphasis is on Jerusalem’s utter helplessness as her enemies ridiculed her miseries (v. 21). Her pleasant things refers to objects of value in the temple (v. 10), and perhaps objects in the people’s homes as well (v. 11).
- 1:8 they have seen her nakedness: It was an extreme humiliation for a woman to be stripped of all her clothing in public. Such exposure was reserved for prostitutes (see Ezek. 16:35–39; 23:29), which Judah had become in a spiritual sense (vv. 2, 8, 9).
- 1:9 Judah is pictured as a “dirty harlot” because of her involvement with the sins of Canaanite worship. In fact, Judah was so engaged in dishonorable behavior that she had lost her sense of decorum and would not clean her skirts. She did not consider her destiny despite Moses' warning, "Oh, that they were wise, that . . . they would consider their latter end!" (Deut. 32:29).

1:10 Since God's people had not preserved the sanctuary of their hearts from pollution, they had no reason to be amazed when their enemies desecrated the earthly sanctuary. As a rule, Gentiles were forbidden to enter the congregation of the Lord (Ammon and Moab are mentioned specifically in Deut. 23:3, 4; the command was extended to all nations in Neh. 13:3; Ezek. 44:7, 9).

1:11 They seek bread: Moses had predicted a famine in Deut. 28:17, 38–42. See, O LORD: The call for God to pay attention is very similar to those found in the Psalms of Lament (see Ps. 142:4).

1:12 Passersby are asked rhetorically to look, listen, and compare Jerusalem's grief to any other grief experienced by mortals. God's fierce anger is put in the context of the day of the Lord (see Joel 2:1–11; Zeph. 1:14–18).

1:13 Jerusalem's suffering is portrayed, using several metaphors: (1) fire from heaven, (2) a hunter's net spread to trap animals, (3) an animal yoke fastened about the head of a person (v. 14), and (4) the crushing of grapes in a winepress (v. 15). turned me back: The purpose of Jerusalem's suffering was to bring about a turning or repentance.

1:14 yoke of my transgressions: The idea here is sinful patterns of life becoming compulsive, burdening people like a yoke on a beast of burden. woven together by His hands . . . He made my strength fail: God imposed a yoke until all of Zion's strength failed. With no power of their own left, weary people are more likely to listen to God. Those whom I am not able to withstand refers to the Babylonians.

1:15 The virgin daughter of Judah: Jerusalem (Judah) was supposed to be the chaste bride of God. Instead she had become a polluted harlot because her people worshiped other gods than the God with whom they covenanted (vv. 2, 8, 9).

1:16 The people of Jerusalem wept because the very fate Jeremiah had prophesied had come to pass. comforter . . . Is far from me: The real Comforter of Judah is God. But because of Judah's sin, God would not come to their assistance.

1:17 Spreads out her hands is a reference to prayer (2:19). an unclean thing: The Israelites were supposed to be God's holy people (see Deut. 7:6). However, they had become worse than their pagan neighbors.

1:18 The LORD is righteous: Verses 5 and 17 establish that ultimately it was the Lord who permitted Jerusalem's collapse. Yet God remained just and right in what He did (see Ex. 9:27; Ezra 9:15; Neh. 9:33; Jer. 12:1). virgins . . . young men: Pairs of opposites usually indicate totality in Hebrew (see "priests . . . virgins" in v. 4); these particular groupings suggest the "best of the nation" (2:4, 21).

1:19 priests . . . elders: The people who should have been a help were themselves in trouble.

1:20 While the roads leading to Jerusalem "mourned" because there would be no more pilgrims traveling to the city (v. 4), the sword of Judah's enemies mourned because there were no more Jews to kill.

1:21 All my enemies: Those who previously had been friends of Judah (v. 2) became Judah's enemies. Bring on the day: Several times the "day" of God's wrath is mentioned in the Book of Lamentations (2:1, 21, 22). The term is used to refer not only to the time of Jerusalem's fall in the past, but also to a future day when God would rectify all of the wrongs that the nations had committed against Israel and God.

2:1 His anger is a firm expression of God's displeasure with wickedness and sin. Yet God's anger never shuts us off from His compassion (see Ps. 77:9). The beauty of Israel was found in its temple (see Is. 64:11) and its ark of the covenant (see 1 Sam. 4:21, 22; Ps. 78:60, 61). In 1 Chr. 28:2 God's footstool is identified with the ark of the covenant. Occasionally God was pictured as enthroned and seated between the cherubim that were over the ark (see 1 Sam. 4:4; 2 Sam. 6:2; Ps. 80:1; 99:1, 5; 132:7).

2:3 The horn was a symbol of strength and power (see 1 Sam. 2:1; Ps. 75:5; 92:10; 148:14; Jer.

- 48:25). drawn back His right hand: Usually the right hand of God is understood as the instrument of help for God's people stretched out against their enemies (see Ex. 15:6; Ps. 20:6). Here God's hand is withdrawn from the enemies, leaving the people of God at their mercy.
- 2:4 like an enemy: The Lord did not simply relax His protection of Judah (v. 3). He purposely worked against His people with His right hand. All who were pleasing to His eye refers to virgins and young men—the pride of the nation (1:18).
- 2:5 swallowed up: Sheol, or death, is sometimes portrayed as “swallowing up” people (see Prov. 1:12; 27:20; 30:16); here God is described as doing the swallowing (v. 2).
- 2:6, 7 Tabernacle means “booth” or “hut,” a structure found in a garden. The point seems to be that the glorious temple of God had become similar to the dilapidated house of David (Amos 9:11). The temple of God had become a booth of branches similar to those used for the Feast of Booths (Succoth). altar . . . sanctuary . . . walls . . . house: Each of these terms refers to the holy temple (v. 6).
- 2:8 Four weeks after the capture of Jerusalem, Nebuchadnezzar had destroyed the temple, the palace, the homes of the people, and the city wall (see 2 Kin. 25:9, 10; Jer. 52:13, 14).
- 2:9 The Law is no more: These words do not suggest the end of the Law, but rather the ceasing of the work of the Law in the lives of the people for their blessing (see Deut. 6:1–3). her prophets find no vision: Divinely appointed instruction ceased for both the nation and the individual. This is not to say that the Law or prophecy were no longer available. God spoke to Jeremiah ten days after the prophet requested a word from God (see Jer. 42:4–7); furthermore Ezekiel and Daniel prophesied during the 70 years of the Exile.
- 2:10 Throwing dust on the head (see Job 16:15; Is. 29:4; Mic. 1:10) was a common sign of mourning in Israel and in other countries of the ancient world. virgins of Jerusalem: Their sadness was increased by the knowledge that this was not a time for marriage and family. Even though their lives had been spared, they had lost their futures.
- 2:11 My eyes fail with tears: This is the response of the author Jeremiah who suffered with the afflicted (1:2). Bile is literally “liver,” a symbol of deep emotion.
- 2:12 Grain and wine are used here merely as a synonym for food.
- 2:13 How shall I console you: Jeremiah had no words to help the grieving women of Jerusalem as they looked helplessly on their dying babies.
- 2:14 false and deceptive visions: False prophets spewed forth their “utterly valueless” lies.
- 2:15 Shake their heads was a common expression of derision (see Ps. 22:7; 109:25; Jer. 18:16; see also 1 Kin. 9:8; Job 27:23; Jer. 19:8; 49:17; 50:13; Ezek. 27:36; Zeph. 2:15). Losing face in the ancient Middle East was a terrible evil. In the Psalms (see Ps. 48:2; 50:2), Jerusalem was the joy of the whole earth, the source of spiritual blessings for all the nations of the earth (see Gen. 12:3). Now Jerusalem was profaned (v. 2) and unclean (1:17).
- 2:17 The LORD has done what He purposed: God had promised Moses that He would judge sin (see Deut. 28:15, 16). The destruction of Jerusalem was a fulfillment of that promise. Jeremiah used the same language to affirm that God had planned to deal with Babylon as well (see Jer. 51:12).
- 2:18 The wall of the people's hearts was more impenetrable than the wall of the city of Jerusalem (2:7, 8).
- 2:19 Arise: The call is for people to awaken and scream for mercy from the Lord. Lift your hands refers to a posture of prayer (see 1:17; Ps. 134:2).
- 2:20 Should the women eat their offspring: So desperate were the scenes of starvation in Jerusalem that women actually fought over whose deceased child would be eaten next (4:10). priest and prophet: Many godly people in Jerusalem perished.
- 2:21 Young and old: The punishment of Jerusalem affected everyone. virgins . . . young men: The punishment of Jerusalem extended even to the “pride of the city” (1:18; 2:4).
- 2:22 The terrors that surround me: The people mocked Jeremiah with the slogan “terror on every side,” for in the people's eyes he saw catastrophe everywhere.

3:1 I am the man: Jeremiah's personal testimony paralleled the experience of the city of Jerusalem as a whole (2:11). The rod of His wrath here refers to the Babylonians as instruments of God's judgment (see 2 Sam. 7:14; Job 9:34; 21:9; Ps. 89:32; Prov. 22:8). In Is. 10:5, Assyria is referred to as "the rod of [God's] anger."

Light-bearers

Today's world is full of pain and bitterness. So many groups feel deep disappointment. So many problems seem to defy solutions. A glance at the daily headlines reveals a tide of distrust, discord, and disharmony sweeping the planet. Can Christians be effective in such an environment? Not unless they recognize the pain and perplexities that abound wherever real people encounter the real struggles of everyday existence.

Jeremiah serves as a model for how to make a sober, realistic appraisal of human need. As he witnessed the devastation left in the aftermath of Jerusalem's fall, he reflected on the darkness and despair that covered the city (Lam. 3:1–18). Yet having looked that harsh reality in the eye, he then turned an eye toward God. He recognized that God was the only hope that remained for his people—hope in God's mercy, compassion, faithfulness, and goodness (vv. 22–24).

Like Jeremiah, Christians today have a message of hope to offer the world—the hope that is in Jesus Christ. We do not have all the answers to today's needs and problems, but we have the Lord. He is the light of the world, and we are called to bring His light into this dark world (Matt. 5:14–16; John 1:4, 5; 1 John 1:5).

God could have used angels or miracles or numerous other means to announce His message. Instead, He has chosen everyday people to carry His message. Working through ordinary people facing the ordinary issues of day-to-day life, God intends to let the world know that there is hope beyond the problems and frustrations of the here and now.

Are you fulfilling this calling in your life?

3:2 The imagery of darkness in this verse represents adversity and God's judgment (see Job 12:25; Is. 9:2; Amos 5:18).

3:4 He has aged my flesh: This imagery suggests the ebbing and wasting away of Jeremiah's life and that of the nation.

3:6 like the dead of long ago: So hopeless did the situation seem that he felt like he had died long ago. Dark places may imply the grip of death itself (see Ps. 88:6 where the same Hebrew word is used in parallel to the word pit).

3:7 He has hedged me in: Jeremiah felt as though there was no way out of his predicament.

3:8 He shuts out my prayer: On occasion, God had forbidden Jeremiah to pray for the deliverance of Judah (see Jer. 11:14; 14:11).

3:9 He has blocked my ways with hewn stone: A common practice of the Assyrians was to wall up prisoners in extremely confined places and leave them to die.

3:10, 11 Jeremiah compared God to a bear or lion waiting to ambush (see Hos. 13:8; Amos 5:19).

God had permitted Judah to be attacked and mangled.

3:12, 13 He has bent His bow: This verse echoes Job 16:12, 13, in which Job compares God to an archer who makes human beings His target (2:4).

3:14 I have become the ridicule of all my people: Jeremiah was made the butt of scoffing and mockery (see Jer. 20:7).

3:15 Wormwood was a bitter herb used to flavor some drinks.

3:16 He has also broken my teeth with gravel: The people had sensed that they were so associated with dust and sackcloth—symbols of mourning—that it was as though they fed on dirt. The dust became gravel which broke the people's teeth. The people were also covered with ashes, another symbol of mourning (see Jer. 6:26).

3:19, 20 Remember: Jeremiah attempted to change his mood by recalling his past experiences. However, what he remembered only made him feel worse.

3:21 This I recall to my mind: Jeremiah's remembrance of God's faithfulness brought about a change in the prophet's emotions. As long as we contemplate our troubles, the more convinced we will become of our isolation, our hopelessness, our inability to extricate ourselves from the present trouble. But when we focus on the Lord, we are able finally to rise above, rather than to suffer under, our troubles.

3:22 This verse seems to contradict all that had been written up to this point (see 2:1–5). Yet the very fact that there was a prophet left to write these words and a remnant left to read them show that not every person in Jerusalem had been consumed. The fact that there was a remnant at all was due to the mercies and compassions of God. Even in His wrath (2:1–4), God remembers to be merciful.

3:23 new every morning: Every day presents us with a new opportunity to discover and experience more of God's love. Even in the midst of terrible sorrow, Jeremiah looked for signs of mercy. Great is Your faithfulness: Here is the heart of the Book of Lamentations. The comforting, compassionate character of God dominates the wreckage of every other institution and office. God remains "full of grace and truth" in every situation (see Ex. 34:6, 7; John 1:14).

3:24 The LORD is my portion: This expression is based on Num. 18:20, in which Aaron was denied an inheritance in the land but was told instead that the Lord Himself was his portion and inheritance. The same idea is also found in Ps. 16:5; 73:26; 119:57; 142:5. I hope in Him: Hope is not a wishful thought, but a confident expectation in the Lord. The verb hope suggests the idea of a "waiting attitude" (v. 21).

3:25 those who wait: The idea here is the acceptance of God's will and His timing (see Ps. 40:1; Is. 40:31). The Hebrew word for hope here translates another verb meaning "to hope" or "to wait," not the same as the one in v. 24 (see Ps. 40:1; Is. 40:31).

3:26 good: Not only is God good to those who wait and hope on Him (v. 25), but it was also good for the people. hope and wait quietly: A quiet confidence in the salvation of the LORD is always in order. Verses 22–26 focus on the renewal of hope in the midst of terrible distress.

3:27 Youth here refers not to age, but the sense of still-unbroken strength, as opposed to diminished vitality.

3:29 Put his mouth in the dust is a figure of speech for conquest. The phrase pictures a captive lying face down with the conqueror's foot on his back. Hope refers to the confident expectation that the Lord will deliver (v. 26).

3:31, 32 The promises that God made to the patriarchs (see Gen. 12:1–3; 15:13–21; 22:15–18) were not cast off, but were still in force. The wickedness of God's people delayed but could not frustrate the complete fulfillment of His promises.

3:34–36 before the face of the Most High: God is offended when a person deprives another human being of his or her rights. God is omniscient and notices everything.

3:40–42 These verses present a plan for repentance and renewal. turn back: Repentance in the OT prophets is often expressed by the verb meaning "to turn" (see 5:21; Jer. 3:1). lift our hearts and hands: Lifting hands was a common posture in prayer (2:19).

- 3:44 So long as sin festered, God's wrath was a cloud (2:1) or veil through which no prayer could penetrate—including the prayers of the people (see Jer. 14:12) and the prayers of Jeremiah (see Jer. 7:16; 11:14; 14:11).
- 3:47 Desolation and destruction may be rephrased as “utter devastation.”
- 3:49–51 The imagery of weeping continues from v. 48 (see also 1:2; 2:11). Daughters of my city refers to the people of Jerusalem.
- 3:52–54 silenced my life in the pit: Jeremiah speaks not only of his own experience of being cast into a pit (see Jer. 38:4–6), but also of his pain and grief over the wretched condition of his fellow countrymen. The pit is a metaphor for the grave or extreme danger (see Ps. 28:1; 30:3; 40:2). The waters is another danger symbol (see Ps. 69:2).
- 3:55–57 The Lord's name is the term by which He delights to reveal His mercies to His people (see Ex. 3:14, 15).
- 3:58–60 pleaded the case: Jeremiah used the terms of God's formal accusation (see Jer. 2:1–3:5); however, here the words are used for the people rather than against them. You have redeemed my life: Here is a hint of the light of the NT gospel in the dark pages of the Book of Lamentations. The only way that God would be able to plead the case of His people was if He Himself paid for—or redeemed them from—their sinfulness.
- 3:61–63 Jeremiah here turns to the enemies who treated God's people so poorly during their weakened state (1:21).
- 3:64–66 Repay them, O LORD: The request for divine vindication is an expression of a longing for God's righteousness and the success of His kingdom and His truth.
- 4:1, 2 The Babylonian army looted the temple and overturned all its huge stones. precious sons: The people of Jerusalem were of more value than the temple. Elsewhere these people are referred to as “My son, My firstborn” (Ex. 4:22) and “a special treasure to Me . . . a kingdom of priests and a holy nation” (Ex. 19:5, 6). The bodies of the brave defenders of Jerusalem were thrown out like broken pieces of clay pots.
- 4:3 Jackals were the dogs of the desert, disreputable beasts. However, even these animals cared for their young. Ostriches, on the other hand, seem to care very little for their young.
- 4:4 The tongue of the infant: The theme of thirsting and starving children is revisited (see 2:11–13).
- 4:5 People who formerly could have eaten any delicacies they wanted groveled in refuse heaps during the terrible days of the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem.
- 4:7, 8 Nazirites were men and women who specifically committed themselves to God for periods of special devotion (see Num. 6:1–21). Like sapphire . . . soot: The siege of Jerusalem was so terrible that no one was exempt, not even the truly godly people like the Nazirites.
- 4:9 Dying early in the siege was perhaps better than living through all of its horrors.
- 4:10 This verse describes the horrible effects of the long siege that were alluded to in 2:20. The women who were forced to eat their own children began as compassionate women. cooked their own children: This unimaginable horror could only have occurred in the most inhumane conditions of human suffering.
- 4:13, 14 The very people who should have been agents of righteousness became agents of sin (see Jer. 8:10; 14:18).
- 4:15, 16 Wherever the wicked wandered, they were treated as lepers, people who were not welcome in any place. the LORD scattered them: The priests and prophets were separated from the face of the LORD because they had helped cause the people of Judah to stumble.
- 4:17–19 a nation that could not save us: After the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., the survivors in Judah turned to Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt to deliver them, thereby breaking covenant with Nebuchadnezzar and the specific word of God (see Jer. 42–44; Ezek. 29:16).
- 4:20 The heir to the Davidic line was “the breath of life” to the nation. But King Zedekiah was captured while trying to escape, put in chains, blinded after watching his sons massacred, and marched off to Babylon to die.

- 4:21, 22 It is possible that the phrase daughter of Edom is a sarcastic, judgmental phrase. Edom may have thought so highly of herself (see Obad. 3) that she believed she could assume the place of privilege her father Esau had lost, once Judah was destroyed.
- 5:2, 3 The Promised Land had been a gift from the Lord to Abraham. This inheritance was a kind of “down payment” on the future reign of God that would include the restoration of His people to that land. God demonstrated that He owned all nations and that Israel was to be His instrument for blessing all the nations on the earth. Yet in their present condition, the people of Israel seemed to be the most helpless of all peoples.
- 5:4–6 The survivors of the Babylonian siege were reduced to servitude, caught between the Egyptians and the Assyrians (4:17–19).
- 5:8, 9 The small harvests that were obtained from the land after the destruction of Jerusalem were vulnerable to nomads from the desert who occasionally took the lives of the people of Judah as well.
- 5:10 Our skin is hot: Disease would have been rampant during the siege.
- 5:11–13 The suffering of Jerusalem left no one unscathed—women, princes, elders, and young men.
- 5:14 gate . . . music: Ordinary events and pleasures were no longer appropriate or even possible for the people of Jerusalem.
- 5:15 joy . . . dance: This verse illustrates Eccl. 3:4. This was a time to weep and mourn, not to laugh and dance.
- 5:16 The crown has fallen from our head expresses the loss of Judah’s position of honor.
- 5:17 our heart is faint . . . our eyes grow dim: The normal zest for life was gone. Death would be better than a horrible existence during the siege of Jerusalem.
- 5:18 foxes: The idea of wild animals roaming the holy city where the people of God once came in glad worship was the final indignity.
- 5:19 You, O LORD, remain forever: God’s eternal rule and reign are a hope and support during the bleakest moments of suffering and despair (see Ps. 80:1, 2; 89:3, 4; 103:19).
- 5:21 The one word turn (1:13; 3:40) can summarize God’s message to His rebellious people. In one of Jeremiah’s earlier messages, he had exhorted the people to turn to God no less than seven times (see Jer. 3:1, 7, 12, 14, 22; 4:1).
- 5:21, 22 Unless You have utterly rejected us: What is stated as a possibility actually emphasizes that the occurrence is completely out of the question: The Lord cannot reject His own people forever. The same literary technique is found in Jer. 14:19.

(Heb. chadash) (5:21; 2 Chr. 24:4; Ps. 103:5) Strong's #2318

As a verb, the term can mean “to renew” (Ps. 51:10) or “to repair” (Is. 61:4). As an adjective, the word identifies something new in contrast to something old (such as the “old harvest” versus the “new harvest”; see Lev. 26:10), or something different when compared to the status quo (such as “a new spirit”; see Ezek. 11:19; 18:31). The Bible teaches that God alone is the One who makes things new, whether a new song in the heart of the faithful (Ps. 40:3), a new phase in His plan of redemption (Is. 42:9; 43:19), a new name (Is. 62:2), or a new heavens and earth (Is. 65:17).

Introduction

The prophet Ezekiel had the thankless job of proclaiming God's message on the crowded and hostile streets of Babylon. At the same time that Jeremiah was warning the citizens of Jerusalem of the coming destruction of that holy city, Ezekiel was preaching the same message to the exiles in Babylon. Even though these exiles were hundreds of miles away from the Promised Land and the temple, God would not leave them in the dark. Instead He sent Ezekiel to warn, exhort, and comfort the weary exiles.

Author Ezekiel received and reported revelations from the living God as an exile in Babylon during 593–571 B.C. All that is known of this solitary prophet comes from his written prophecy, and no compelling data exist for the acceptance of any author other than the one named in the book itself: Ezekiel, son of Buzi (a priest), who was taken captive with Jehoiachin and other Hebrews in 597 B.C.

Since he was from a priestly family, Ezekiel was a priest as well as a prophet. Therefore he was well acquainted with the Levitical laws and rituals as well as the temple and its regulations. This becomes evident when he writes of his apocalyptic vision of the future messianic temple. Furthermore, he had a detailed knowledge of the Mosaic covenant, including the ethical, moral, and spiritual requirements of God's revelation and the inevitable results of obedience or disobedience to God's law. Even though his exiled audience was cut off from the temple, the priesthood, and the related ceremonies and feasts, the prophet Ezekiel informed the exiles not only of these details, but also of the importance of obeying God's law and seeking after Him.

The Book of Ezekiel reveals that the prophet was married (see 24:15–18) and had a house (see 3:24; 8:1). Overall, he enjoyed a large measure of freedom in captivity. The Babylonians had not captured the Jews in order to make them slaves in Babylon; instead they wanted to displace the population of Israel, especially its leadership and nobility, and settle their own citizens and other foreigners in the land. As for his personality and abilities, Ezekiel appears to have been articulate, intelligent, and dramatic. He was a person that could withstand great opposition in order to obey the demands God placed on his life.

Chronology Unlike most biblical prophetic books, Ezekiel gives considerable attention to chronology and exact dates throughout his book. No other prophet provides so many dates (13). By utilizing the data from archaeology and the most recent research into the calendar systems of the ancient Middle East, a precise dating of many events in Ezekiel is possible.

The key to dating the opening chronological notice and the other specific dates in Ezekiel is the reference in 1:2 to the “fifth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity.” In 2 Kings 24:12, this deportation is equated with the “eighth year of (Nebuchadnezzar's) reign” or 597 B.C. Ezekiel began prophesying in 593 B.C. calling attention to the Babylonian captivity of Judah. He ended in 571

B.C. with a message on God's coming judgment upon Egypt at the hand of the same Babylonian monarch. Ezekiel prophesied during four different periods: 593–588 B.C. (1:1—25:17); 587–585 B.C. (26:1—29:16; 30:20—39:29); 573 B.C. (40:1—48:35); and 571 B.C. (29:17—30:19). In all, Ezekiel prophesied from 593 to 571 B.C., a period of 22 years surrounding the climactic fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

Religious and Literary Context During Ezekiel's life and ministry, Israel (the northern kingdom) was corrupt politically and spiritually. Their idolatry led to captivity by Assyria in 722 B.C. The leadership of Judah (the southern kingdom) at that time was righteous; but eventually they too, although experiencing brief revivals at times, fell into the idolatry of the neighboring nations. The people refused to heed the prophets' reminders about the curses and blessings promised by God in the Mosaic covenant.

Ezekiel prophesied that there would come catastrophe and captivity for Judah and Jerusalem. Yet he also had a message from God concerning eventual restoration and renewal, based on God's faithfulness to the promises of all the covenants made with His people since the Abrahamic covenant.

In speaking to his fellow exiles in Babylon, Ezekiel experienced and then employed visions (chs. 1–3; 8–11; 37; 40–48). These visions are similar in structure to “dream visions” known from Mesopotamian literature of the seventh and sixth centuries B.C. These texts have two main sections: (1) an introduction to the setting and general situation, including time, place, circumstances, and the person involved; and (2) a description of the vision. In chs. 37; 40–48, Ezekiel uses such a format to introduce apocalyptic visions—revelations that symbolically describe the end times. Living in Babylon, both Ezekiel and his audience were familiar with this type of literature.

Elsewhere, Ezekiel employs themes and illustrations from the religious life and literature of the societies whose judgment he predicts. Typically the nations under God's judgment were those that had mistreated Israel or had led them into idol worship. The exiles and those Israelites still living in Judah knew the religious behavior and beliefs of their neighbors and would not be puzzled by the prophet's language.

In addition to visions and religious themes, Ezekiel uses many literary techniques to communicate God's message to the exiles: both prose and poetry, parables and proverbs, lamentations and dirges, allegories and puns.

Historical Setting Ezekiel ministered in Babylon, at Tel Abib near the Chebar River. This is in the southeastern section of modern Iraq, northwest of the Persian Gulf. The Babylonians settled the Jewish exiles in this region to colonize them.

Ezekiel's ministry was primarily to those Jews deported from Judah by the Babylonians and any Israelites that remained in exile from previous deportations by the Assyrians. Still his messages had great instructional and practical significance for the Hebrews remaining in Israel and for the surrounding pagan nations, whose fate he foretold. Although Ezekiel was transported in visions to Jerusalem (see chs. 8; 11), those revelations were always for the benefit of him and those to whom he was speaking in exile.

Ezekiel's warnings of national calamity include warnings of disease, death, destruction, and deportation. Yet because of God's unconditional promises and through the people's repentance, God's spiritual and material blessings would return to the people. Ezekiel's purpose was to remind His people of their spiritual unfaithfulness (ch. 16) and of God's faithfulness to His own promises. Ezekiel showed the people how judgment was a natural outcome of a holy God's wrath against sin. It was also a loving God's means of disciplining His people: to correct their beliefs, redirect their behavior, and restore intimate fellowship between Himself and them. Thus Ezekiel preached to the exiles the imminence of God's judgment and the need for individual and national repentance.

Themes The Book of Ezekiel stresses the ultimate aim of God's charity and chastisement: that "they shall know that I am the LORD." This refrain is repeated 65 times in the book and emphasizes that the purpose of God's actions is always to bring about the spiritual renewal of all people.

Ezekiel teaches both individual and corporate responsibility for sin before God (chs. 18; 23). While themes of idolatry, social injustice, public and private immorality, imminent judgment, and future blessings of restoration and redemption are not unique to Ezekiel, his prophecies relate these themes to the centrality of the temple and the influence of the sacrificial system in the life of Israel. Past defilement and disobedience by the priests and people had led to the present dispersion and would lead to further judgment (chs. 4–32). The people's behavior was intrinsically connected to how they approached their God in worship. Insincere worship would lead to immoral behavior and judgment; proper worship of the living God would lead to moral behavior and blessings. Yet in the end, Ezekiel concludes with the comforting news that a day would come when God's rule and practical righteousness would return with a new temple and city and a renewed land and nation (chs. 33–48).

Christ in the Scriptures

For Ezekiel, the One who is coming to be Israel's ultimate King will have the lone right to rule over the people God has chosen to be His. A unique people can only be led by a unique individual. And until He appears, the prophet demands that those who would attempt to mount the throne prematurely "remove the turban, and take off the crown" (21:26).

Ezekiel is confident that day will come. His confidence is reflected in the additional metaphor that he uses to call attention to that hope. Describing a field far from the palace, he pictures God's Anointed as the true Shepherd who will deliver and feed His flock (34:11–31).

Ezekiel 1

Ezekiel's Vision of God

¹Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by ^athe River Chebar, that ^bthe heavens were opened and I saw ^cvisions¹ of God.

²On the fifth day of the month, which was in the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, ³the word of the LORD came expressly to Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the ²Chaldeans by the River Chebar; and ^dthe hand of the LORD was upon him there.

⁴Then I looked, and behold, ^ea whirlwind was coming ^fout of the north, a great cloud with raging fire engulfing itself; and brightness was all around it and radiating out of its midst like the color of amber, out of the midst of the fire.

^{5g}Also from within it came the likeness of four living creatures. And ^hthis was their appearance: they had ⁱthe likeness of a man.

⁶Each one had four faces, and each one had four wings.

⁷Their ³legs were straight, and the soles of their feet were like the soles of calves' feet. They sparkled ^jlike the color of burnished bronze.

^{8k}The hands of a man were under their wings on their four sides; and each of the four had faces and wings.

⁹Their wings touched one another. The creatures did not turn when they went, but each one went straight ^lforward.

¹⁰As for ^mthe likeness of their faces, each ⁿhad the face of a man; each of the four had ^othe face of a lion on the right side, ^peach of the four had the face of an ox on the left side, ^qand each of the four had the face of an eagle.

¹¹Thus were their faces. Their wings stretched upward; two wings of each one touched one another, and ^rtwo covered their bodies.

¹²And ^seach one went straight forward; they went wherever the spirit wanted to go, and they did not turn when they went.

¹³As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, ^tlike the appearance of torches going back and forth among the living creatures. The fire was bright, and out of the fire went lightning.

¹⁴And the living creatures ran back and forth, ^uin appearance like a flash of lightning.

¹⁵Now as I looked at the living creatures, behold, ^va wheel was on the earth beside each living creature with its four faces.

^{16w}The appearance of the wheels and their workings was ^xlike the color of beryl, and all four had the same likeness. The appearance of their workings was, as it were, a wheel in the middle of a wheel.

¹⁷When they moved, they went toward any one of four directions; they did not turn aside when they went.

¹⁸As for their rims, they were so high they were awesome; and their rims were ^yfull of eyes, all around the four of them.

^{19z}When the living creatures went, the wheels went beside them; and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up.

²⁰Wherever the spirit wanted to go, they went, because there the spirit went; and the wheels were lifted together with them, ^afor the spirit of the ⁴living creatures was in the wheels.

²¹When those went, these went; when those stood, these stood; and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up together with them, for the spirit of the ⁵living creatures was in the wheels.

^{22b}The likeness of the ⁶firmament above the heads of the ⁷living creatures was like the color of an awesome ^ccrystal, stretched out ^dover their heads.

²³And under the firmament their wings spread out straight, one toward another. Each one had two which covered one side, and each one had two which covered the other side of the body.

^{24e}When they went, I heard the noise of their wings, ^flike the noise of many waters, like ^gthe voice of the Almighty, a tumult like the noise of an army; and when they stood still, they let down their wings.

²⁵A voice came from above the firmament that was over their heads; whenever they stood, they let down their wings.

^{26h}And above the firmament over their heads was the likeness of a throne, ⁱin appearance like a sapphire stone; on the likeness of the throne was a likeness with the appearance of a man high above ^jit.

²⁷Also from the appearance of His waist and upward ^kI saw, as it were, the color of amber with the appearance of fire all around within it; and from the appearance of His waist and downward I saw, as it were, the appearance of fire with brightness all around.

^{28l}Like the appearance of a rainbow in a cloud on a rainy day, so was the appearance of the brightness all around it. ^mThis was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD.

Ezekiel Sent to Rebellious Israel

So when I saw it, ⁿI fell on my face, and I heard a voice of One speaking.

Ezekiel 2

¹And He said to me, “Son of man, ^astand on your feet, and I will speak to you.” Word Studies: son of man

²Then ^bthe Spirit entered me when He spoke to me, and set me on my feet; and I heard Him who spoke to me.

³And He said to me: “Son of man, I am sending you to the children of Israel, to a rebellious nation that has ^crebelled against Me; ^dthey and their fathers have transgressed against Me to this very day.

^{4e}“For they are ¹impudent and stubborn children. I am sending you to them, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD.’

^{5f}“As for them, whether they hear or whether they refuse—for they are a ^grebellious house—yet they ^hwill know that a prophet has been among them.

⁶“And you, son of man, ⁱdo not be afraid of them nor be afraid of their words, though ^jbriers and thorns are with you and you dwell among scorpions; ^kdo not be afraid of their words or dismayed by their looks, ^lthough they are a rebellious house.

^{7m}“You shall speak My words to them, whether they hear or whether they refuse, for they are rebellious.

⁸“But you, son of man, hear what I say to you. Do not be rebellious like that rebellious house; open your mouth and ⁿeat what I give you.”

⁹Now when I looked, there was ^oa hand stretched out to me; and behold, ^pa scroll of a book was in it.

¹⁰Then He spread it before me; and there was writing on the inside and on the outside, and written on it were lamentations and mourning and woe.

Ezekiel 3

¹Moreover He said to me, “Son of man, eat what you find; ^aeat this scroll, and go, speak to the house of Israel.”

²So I opened my mouth, and He caused me to eat that scroll.

³And He said to me, “Son of man, feed your belly, and fill your stomach with this scroll that I give you.” So I ^bate, and it was in my mouth ^clike honey in sweetness.

⁴Then He said to me: “Son of man, go to the house of Israel and speak with My words to them.

⁵“For you are not sent to a people of unfamiliar speech and of hard language, but to the house of Israel, ⁶“not to many people of unfamiliar speech and of hard language, whose words you cannot understand. Surely, ^dhad I sent you to them, they would have listened to you.

⁷“But the house of Israel will not listen to you, ^ebecause they will not listen to Me; ^ffor all the house of Israel are ¹impudent and hard-hearted.

⁸“Behold, I have made your face strong against their faces, and your forehead strong against their foreheads.

^{9g}“Like adamant stone, harder than flint, I have made your forehead; ^hdo not be afraid of them, nor be dismayed at their looks, though they are a rebellious house.”

Bible Times & Culture Notes: Adamant Stone

¹⁰Moreover He said to me: “Son of man, receive into your heart all My words that I speak to you, and hear with your ears.

¹¹“And go, get to the captives, to the children of your people, and speak to them and tell them, ⁱ‘Thus says the Lord GOD,’ whether they hear, or whether they refuse.”

¹²Then ^jthe Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me a great thunderous voice: “Blessed is the ^kglory of the LORD from His place!”

¹³I also heard the ^lnoise of the wings of the living creatures that touched one another, and the noise of the wheels beside them, and a great thunderous noise.

¹⁴So the Spirit lifted me up and took me away, and I went in bitterness, in the ²heat of my spirit; but ^mthe hand of the LORD was strong upon me.

¹⁵Then I came to the captives at Tel Abib, who dwelt by the River Chebar; and ⁿI sat where they sat, and remained there astonished among them seven days.

Ezekiel Is a Watchman

¹⁶Now it ^ocame to pass at the end of seven days that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

^{17p}“Son of man, I have made you ^qa watchman for the house of Israel; therefore hear a word from My mouth, and give them ^rwarning from Me:

¹⁹“Yet, if you warn the wicked, and he does not turn from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity; ^tbut you have delivered your soul.

²⁰“Again, when a ^urighteous man turns from his righteousness and commits iniquity, and I lay a stumbling block before him, he shall die; because you did not give him warning, he shall die in his sin, and his righteousness which he has done shall not be remembered; but his blood I will require at your hand.

²¹“Nevertheless if you warn the righteous man that the righteous should not sin, and he does not sin, he shall surely live because he took warning; also you will have delivered your soul.”

^{22v}Then the hand of the LORD was upon me there, and He said to me, “Arise, go out ^winto the plain, and there I shall talk with you.”

²³So I arose and went out into the plain, and behold, ^xthe glory of the LORD stood there, like the glory which I ^ysaw by the River Chebar; ^zand I fell on my face.

²⁴Then ^athe Spirit entered me and set me on my feet, and spoke with me and said to me: “Go, shut yourself inside your house.

²⁵“And you, O son of man, surely ^bthey will put ropes on you and bind you with them, so that you cannot go out among them.

^{26c}“I will make your tongue cling to the roof of your mouth, so that you shall be mute and ^dnot be ³one to rebuke them, ^efor they are a rebellious house.

^{27f}“But when I speak with you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them, ^g‘Thus says the Lord GOD.’ He who hears, let him hear; and he who refuses, let him refuse; for they are a rebellious house.

Ezekiel 4

The Siege of Jerusalem Portrayed

¹“You also, son of man, take a clay tablet and lay it before you, and portray on it a city, Jerusalem.

^{2a}“Lay siege against it, build a ^bsiege wall against it, and heap up a mound against it; set camps against it also, and place battering rams against it all around.

³“Moreover take for yourself an iron plate, and set it as an iron wall between you and the city. Set your face against it, and it shall be ^cbesieged, and you shall lay siege against it. ^d*This will be* a sign to the house of Israel.

⁴“Lie also on your left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it. According to the number of the days that you lie on it, you shall bear their iniquity.

⁵“For I have laid on you the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days; ^eso you shall bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

⁶“And when you have completed them, lie again on your right side; then you shall bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days. I have laid on you a day for each year.

⁷“Therefore you shall set your face toward the siege of Jerusalem; your arm shall be uncovered, and you shall prophesy against it.

^{8f}“And surely I will ¹restrain you so that you cannot turn from one side to another till you have ended the days of your siege.

⁹“Also take for yourself wheat, barley, beans, lentils, millet, and spelt; put them into one vessel, and make bread of them for yourself. During the number of days that you lie on your side, three hundred and ninety days, you shall eat it.

¹⁰“And your food which you eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day; from time to time you shall eat it.

¹¹“You shall also drink water by measure, one-sixth of a hin; from time to time you shall drink.

¹²“And you shall eat it as barley cakes; and bake it using fuel of human waste in their sight.”

¹³Then the LORD said, “So ^gshall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles, where I will drive them.”

¹⁴So I said, ^h“Ah, Lord GOD! Indeed I have never defiled myself from my youth till now; I have never eaten ⁱwhat died of itself or was torn by beasts, nor has ^jabominable² flesh ever come into my mouth.”

¹⁵Then He said to me, “See, I am giving you cow dung instead of human waste, and you shall prepare your bread over it.”

¹⁶Moreover He said to me, “Son of man, surely I will cut off the ^ksupply of bread in Jerusalem; they shall ^leat bread by weight and with anxiety, and shall ^mdrink water by measure and with dread, ¹⁷“that they may lack bread and water, and be dismayed with one another, and ⁿwaste away because of their iniquity.

Ezekiel 5

A Sword Against Jerusalem

¹“And you, son of man, take a sharp sword, take it as a barber’s razor, ^aand pass it over your head and your beard; then take scales to weigh and divide the hair.

^{2b}“You shall burn with fire one-third in the midst of ^cthe city, when ^dthe days of the siege are finished; then you shall take one-third and strike around it with the sword, and one-third you shall scatter in the wind: I will draw out a sword after ^ethem.

^{3f}“You shall also take a small number of them and bind them in the edge of your garment.

⁴“Then take some of them again and ^gthrow them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire. From there a fire will go out into all the house of Israel.

⁵“Thus says the Lord GOD: ‘This is Jerusalem; I have set her in the midst of the nations and the countries all around her.

⁶‘She has rebelled against My judgments by doing wickedness more than the nations, and against My statutes more than the countries that are all around her; for they have refused My judgments, and they have not walked in My statutes.’

⁷“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Because you have ¹multiplied disobedience more than the nations that are all around you, have not walked in My statutes ^hnor kept My judgments, ²nor even done according to the judgments of the nations that are all around you’—

⁸“therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Indeed I, even I, am against you and will execute judgments in your midst in the sight of the nations.

⁹ⁱ‘And I will do among you what I have never done, and the like of which I will never do again, because of all your abominations.

¹⁰‘Therefore fathers ^jshall eat their sons in your midst, and sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments among you, and all of you who remain I will ^kscatter to all the winds.

¹¹‘Therefore, as I live,’ says the Lord GOD, ‘surely, because you have ^ldefiled My sanctuary with all your ^mdetestable things and with all your abominations, therefore I will also diminish you; ⁿMy eye will not spare, nor will I have any pity.

^{12o}‘One-third of you shall die of the pestilence, and be consumed with famine in your midst; and one-third shall fall by the sword all around you;

and ^pI will scatter another third to all the winds, and I will draw out a sword after ^qthem.

¹³‘Thus shall My anger ^rbe spent, and I will ^scause My fury to rest upon them, ^tand I will be avenged; ^uand they shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken it in My zeal, when I have spent My fury upon them.

¹⁴‘Moreover ^vI will make you a waste and a reproach among the nations that are all around you, in the sight of all who pass by.

¹⁵‘So ³it shall be a ^wreproach, a taunt, a ^xlesson, and an astonishment to the nations that are all around you, when I execute judgments among you in anger and in fury and in ^yfurious rebukes. I, the LORD, have spoken.

¹⁶‘When I ^zsend against them the terrible arrows of famine which shall be for destruction, which I will send to destroy you, I will increase the famine upon you and cut off your ^asupply of bread.

¹⁷‘So I will send against you famine and ^bwild beasts, and they will bereave you. ^cPestilence and blood shall pass through you, and I will bring the sword against you. I, the LORD, have spoken.’ ”

Ezekiel 6

Judgment on Idolatrous Israel

¹Now the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

²“Son of man, ^aset your face toward the ^bmountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

³“and say, ‘O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD! Thus says the Lord GOD to the mountains, to the hills, to the ravines, and to the valleys: “Indeed I, even I, will bring a sword against you, and ^cI will destroy your ¹high places.

⁴“Then your altars shall be desolate, your incense altars shall be broken, and ^dI will cast down your slain men before your idols. Word Studies: idols

⁵“And I will lay the corpses of the children of Israel before their idols, and I will scatter your bones all around your altars.

⁶“In all your dwelling places the cities shall be laid waste, and the ²high places shall be desolate, so that your altars may be laid waste and made desolate, your idols may be broken and made to cease, your incense altars may be cut down, and your works may be abolished.

⁷“The slain shall fall in your midst, and ^eyou shall know that I am the LORD.

^{8f}“Yet I will leave a remnant, so that you may have some who escape the sword among the nations, when you are ^gscattered through the countries.

⁹“Then those of you who escape will ^hremember Me among the nations where they are carried captive, because ⁱI was crushed by their adulterous heart which has departed from Me, and ^jby their eyes which play the harlot after their idols; ^kthey will loathe themselves for the evils which they committed in all their abominations.

¹⁰“And they shall know that I am the LORD; I have not said in vain that I would bring this calamity upon them.”

¹¹“Thus says the Lord GOD: ^l“Pound³ your fists and stamp your feet, and say, ‘Alas, for all the evil abominations of the house of Israel! ^mFor they shall fall by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence.

¹²“He who is far off shall die by the pestilence, he who is near shall fall by the sword, and he who remains and is besieged shall die by the famine. ⁿThus will I spend My fury upon them.

¹³“Then you shall know that I am the LORD, when their slain are among their idols all around their altars, ^oon every high hill, ^pon all the mountaintops, ^qunder every green tree, and under every thick oak, wherever they offered sweet incense to all their idols.

¹⁴‘So I will ^rstretch out My hand against them and make the land desolate, yes, more desolate than the wilderness toward ^sDiblah, in all their dwelling places. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.’ ” ’ ”

Ezekiel 7

Judgment on Israel Is Near

¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“And you, son of man, thus says the Lord GOD to the land of Israel:

^a‘An end! The end has come upon the four corners of the land.

³Now the end has come upon you,
And I will send My anger against you;
I will judge you ^baccording to your ways,
And I will repay you for all your abominations.

^{4c}My eye will not spare you,
Nor will I have pity;
But I will repay your ways,
And your abominations will be in your midst;
^dThen you shall know that I am the LORD!’

⁵“Thus says the Lord GOD:

‘A disaster, a singular ^edisaster;
Behold, it has come!

⁶An end has come,
The end has come;
It has dawned for you;
Behold, it has come!

^{7f}Doom has come to you, you who dwell in the land;

^gThe time has come,
A day of trouble is near,
And not of rejoicing in the mountains.

⁸Now upon you I will soon ^hpour out My fury,
And spend My anger upon you;
I will judge you according to your ways,
And I will repay you for all your abominations.

⁹‘My eye will not spare,
Nor will I have pity;
I will ⁱrepay you according to your ways,
And your abominations will be in your midst.

Then you shall know that I am the LORD who strikes.

¹⁰Behold, the day!

Behold, it has come!

ⁱDoom has gone out;

The rod has blossomed,

Pride has budded.

^{11j}Violence has risen up into a rod of wickedness;

None of them shall remain,

None of their multitude,

None of ²them;

^kNor shall there be wailing for them.

¹²The time has come,

The day draws near.

‘Let not the buyer ^lrejoice,

Nor the seller ^mmourn,

For wrath is on their whole multitude.

¹³For the seller shall not return to what has been sold,

Though he may still be alive;

For the vision concerns the whole multitude,

And it shall not turn back;

No one will strengthen himself
Who lives in iniquity.

¹⁴‘They have blown the trumpet and made everyone ready,
But no one goes to battle;
For My wrath is on all their multitude.

¹⁵ⁿThe sword is outside,
And the pestilence and famine within.
Whoever is in the field
Will die by the sword;
And whoever is in the city,
Famine and pestilence will devour him.

¹⁶‘Those who ^osurvive will escape and be on the mountains
Like doves of the valleys,
All of them mourning,
Each for his iniquity.

¹⁷Every ^phand will be feeble,
And every knee will be as weak as water.

¹⁸They will also ^qbe girded with sackcloth;
Horror will cover them;
Shame will be on every face,
Baldness on all their heads.

¹⁹‘They will throw their silver into the streets,
And their gold will be like refuse;
Their ^rsilver and their gold will not be able to deliver them
In the day of the wrath of the LORD;
They will not satisfy their souls,
Nor fill their stomachs,
Because it became their stumbling block of iniquity.

²⁰‘As for the beauty of his ornaments,
He set it in majesty;
^sBut they made from it
The images of their abominations—
Their detestable things;

Therefore I have made it
Like refuse to them.

²¹I will give it as ^tplunder
Into the hands of strangers,
And to the wicked of the earth as spoil;
And they shall defile it.

²²I will turn My face from them,
And they will defile My secret place;
For robbers shall enter it and defile it.

²³‘Make a chain,
For ^uthe land is filled with crimes of blood,
And the city is full of violence.

²⁴Therefore I will bring the ^vworst of the Gentiles,
And they will possess their houses;
I will cause the pomp of the strong to cease,
And their holy places shall be ^wdefiled.

²⁵³Destruction comes;
They will seek peace, but there shall be none.

²⁶^xDisaster will come upon disaster,
And rumor will be upon rumor.

^yThen they will seek a vision from a prophet;
But the law will perish from the priest,
And counsel from the elders.

²⁷‘The king will mourn,
The prince will be clothed with desolation,
And the hands of the common people will tremble.
I will do to them according to their way,
And according to what they deserve I will judge them;
Then they shall know that I am the LORD!’ ”

Ezekiel 8

Abominations in the Temple

¹And it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house with ^athe elders of Judah sitting before me, that ^bthe hand of the Lord GOD fell upon me there.

^{2c}Then I looked, and there was a likeness, like the appearance of fire—from the appearance of His waist and downward, fire; and from His waist and upward, like the appearance of brightness, ^dlike the color of amber.

³He ^estretched out the form of a hand, and took me by a lock of my hair; and ^fthe Spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven, and ^gbrought me in visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the north gate of the inner court, ^hwhere the seat of the image of jealousy was, which ⁱprovokes¹ to jealousy.

⁴And behold, the ^jglory of the God of Israel was there, like the vision that I ^ksaw in the plain.

⁵Then He said to me, “Son of man, lift your eyes now toward the north.” So I lifted my eyes toward the north, and there, north of the altar gate, was this image of jealousy in the entrance.

⁶Furthermore He said to me, “Son of man, do you see what they are doing, the great ^labominations that the house of Israel commits here, to make Me go far away from My sanctuary? Now turn again, you will see greater abominations.”

⁷So He brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, there was a hole in the wall.

⁸Then He said to me, “Son of man, dig into the wall”; and when I dug into the wall, there was a door.

⁹And He said to me, “Go in, and see the wicked abominations which they are doing there.”

¹⁰So I went in and saw, and there—every ^msort of ⁿcreeping thing, abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, ²portrayed all around on the walls.

¹¹And there stood before them ^oseventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, and in their midst stood Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan. Each man had a censer in his hand, and a thick cloud of incense went up.

¹²Then He said to me, “Son of man, have you seen what the elders of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the room of his idols? For they say, ^p‘The LORD does not see us, the LORD has forsaken the land.’ ”

¹³And He said to me, “Turn again, and you will see greater abominations that they are doing.”

¹⁴So He brought me to the door of the north gate of the LORD’s house; and to my dismay, women were sitting there weeping for ³Tammuz.

¹⁵Then He said to me, “Have you seen this, O son of man? Turn again, you will see greater abominations than these.”

¹⁶So He brought me into the inner court of the LORD’s house; and there, at the door of the temple of the LORD, ^qbetween the porch and the altar, ^rwere about twenty-five men ^swith their backs toward the temple of the LORD and their faces toward the east, and they were worshiping ^tthe sun toward the east.

¹⁷And He said to me, “Have you seen this, O son of man? Is it a trivial thing to the house of Judah to commit the abominations which they commit here? For they have ^ufilled the land with violence; then they have returned to provoke Me to anger. Indeed they put the branch to their nose.

^{18v}“Therefore I also will act in fury. My ^weye will not spare nor will I have pity; and though they ^xcry in My ears with a loud voice, I will not hear them.”

Ezekiel 9

The Wicked Are Slain

¹Then He called out in my hearing with a loud voice, saying, “Let those who have charge over the city draw near, each with a ¹deadly weapon in his hand.”

²And suddenly six men came from the direction of the upper gate, which faces north, each with his ²battle-ax in his hand. ^aOne man among them was clothed with linen and had a writer’s inkhorn ³at his side. They went in and stood beside the bronze altar.

³Now ^bthe glory of the God of Israel had gone up from the cherub, where it had been, to the threshold of the ⁴temple. And He called to the man clothed with linen, who had the writer’s inkhorn at his side;

⁴and the LORD said to him, “Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and put ^ca mark on the foreheads of the men ^dwho sigh and cry over all the abominations that are done within it.”

⁵To the others He said in my ⁵hearing, “Go after him through the city and ^ekill; ⁶^fdo not let your eye spare, nor have any pity.

^{6g}“Utterly⁷ slay old and young men, maidens and little children and women; but ^hdo not come near anyone on whom is the mark; and ⁱbegin at My sanctuary.” ^jSo they began with the elders who were before the ⁸temple.

⁷Then He said to them, “Defile the ⁹temple, and fill the courts with the slain. Go out!” And they went out and killed in the city.

⁸So it was, that while they were killing them, I was left alone; and I ^kfell on my face and cried out, and said, ^l“Ah, Lord GOD! Will You destroy all the remnant of Israel in pouring out Your fury on Jerusalem?”

⁹Then He said to me, “The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is exceedingly great, and ^mthe land is full of bloodshed, and the city full of perversity; for they say, ⁿ“The LORD has forsaken the land, and ^othe LORD does not see!’

¹⁰“And as for Me also, My ^peye will neither spare, nor will I have pity, but ^qI will recompense their deeds on their own head.”

¹¹Just then, the man clothed with linen, who had the inkhorn at his side, reported back and said, “I have done as You commanded me.”

Ezekiel 10

The Glory Departs from the Temple

¹And I looked, and there in the ^afirmament¹ that was above the head of the cherubim, there appeared something like a sapphire stone, having the appearance of the likeness of a throne.

^{2b}Then He spoke to the man clothed with linen, and said, “Go in among the wheels, under the cherub, fill your hands with ^ccoals of fire from among the cherubim, and ^dscatter them over the city.” And he went in as I watched.

³Now the cherubim were standing on the ²south side of the ³temple when the man went in, and the ^ecloud filled the inner court.

^{4f}Then the glory of the LORD went up from the cherub, and paused over the threshold of the ⁴temple; and ^gthe house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the LORD’s ^hglory.

⁵And the ⁱsound of the wings of the cherubim was heard even in the outer court, like ^jthe voice of Almighty God when He speaks.

⁶Then it happened, when He commanded the man clothed in linen, saying, “Take fire from among the wheels, from among the cherubim,” that he went in and stood beside the wheels.

⁷And the cherub stretched out his hand from among the cherubim to the fire that was among the cherubim, and took some of it and put it into the hands of the man clothed with linen, who took it and went out.

^{8k}The cherubim appeared to have the form of a man’s hand under their wings.

^{9l}And when I looked, there were four wheels by the cherubim, one wheel by one cherub and another wheel by each other cherub; the wheels appeared to have the color of a ^mberyl stone.

¹⁰As for their appearance, all four looked alike—as it were, a wheel in the middle of a wheel.

¹¹ⁿWhen they went, they went toward any of their four directions; they did not turn aside when they went, but followed in the direction the head was facing. They did not turn aside when they went.

¹²And their whole body, with their back, their hands, their wings, and the wheels that the four had, were ^ofull of eyes all around.

¹³As for the wheels, they were called in my ⁵hearing, “Wheel.”

^{14p}Each one had four faces: the first face was the face of a cherub, the second face the face of a man, the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle.

¹⁵And the cherubim were lifted up. This was ^qthe living creature I saw by the River Chebar.

^{16r}When the cherubim went, the wheels went beside them; and when the cherubim lifted their wings to mount up from the earth, the same wheels also did not turn from beside them.

^{17s}When ⁶*the cherubim* stood still, the wheels stood still, and when ⁷*one* was lifted up, ⁸*the other* lifted itself up, for the spirit of the living creature was in them.

¹⁸Then ^tthe glory of the LORD ^udeparted from the threshold of the ⁹temple and stood over the cherubim.

¹⁹And ^vthe cherubim lifted their wings and mounted up from the earth in my sight. When they went out, the wheels were beside them; and they stood at the door of the ^weast gate of the LORD's house, and the glory of the God of Israel was above them.

^{20x}This is the living creature I saw under the God of Israel ^yby the River Chebar, and I knew they were cherubim.

^{21z}Each one had four faces and each one four wings, and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings.

²²And ^athe likeness of their faces was the same as the faces which I had seen by the River Chebar, their appearance and their persons. ^bThey each went straight forward.

Ezekiel 11

Judgment on Wicked Counselors

¹Then ^athe Spirit lifted me up and brought me to ^bthe East Gate of the LORD's house, which faces eastward; and there ^cat the door of the gate were twenty-five men, among whom I saw Jaazaniah the son of Azzur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people.

²And He said to me: "Son of man, these are the men who devise iniquity and give wicked ¹counsel in this city, ³"who say, 'The time is not ^d*near to build houses;* ^e*this city is the* ²*caldron, and we are the meat.*'

⁴"Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man!"

⁵Then ^fthe Spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and said to me, "Speak! 'Thus says the LORD: "Thus you have said, O house of Israel; for ^gI know the things that come into your mind.

^{6h}"You have multiplied your slain in this city, and you have filled its streets with the slain."

⁷Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ⁱ"Your slain whom you have laid in its midst, they are the meat, and this city is the caldron; ^jbut I shall bring you out of the midst of it.

⁸"You have ^kfeared the sword; and I will bring a sword upon you," says the Lord GOD.

⁹"And I will bring you out of its midst, and deliver you into the hands of strangers, and ^lexecute judgments on you.

^{10m}"You shall fall by the sword. I will judge you at ⁿthe border of Israel. ^oThen you shall know that I am the LORD.

^{11p}"This city shall not be your ³caldron, nor shall you be the meat in its midst. I will judge you at the border of Israel.

¹²"And you shall know that I am the LORD; for you have not walked in My statutes nor executed My judgments, but ^qhave done according to the customs of the Gentiles which are all around you." ' '

¹³Now it happened, while I was prophesying, that ^rPelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then ^sI fell on my face and cried with a loud voice, and said, "Ah, Lord GOD! Will You make a complete end of the remnant of Israel?"

God Will Restore Israel

¹⁴Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹⁵“Son of man, your brethren, your relatives, your countrymen, and all the house of Israel in its entirety, are those about whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, ‘Get far away from the LORD; this land has been given to us as a possession.’

¹⁶“Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Although I have cast them far off among the Gentiles, and although I have scattered them among the countries, ^tyet I shall be a little ⁴sanctuary for them in the countries where they have gone.” ’

¹⁷“Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: ^u“I will gather you from the peoples, assemble you from the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.” ’

¹⁸“And they will go there, and they will take away all its ^vdetestable things and all its abominations from there.

¹⁹“Then ^wI will give them one heart, and I will put ^xa new spirit within ⁵them, and take ^ythe stony heart out of their flesh, and give them a heart of flesh, ^{20z}“that they may walk in My statutes and keep My judgments and do them; ^aand they shall be My people, and I will be their God.

²¹“But as for those whose hearts follow the desire for their detestable things and their abominations, ^bI will recompense their deeds on their own heads,” says the Lord GOD.

²²So the cherubim ^clifted up their wings, with the wheels beside them, and the glory of the God of Israel was high above them.

²³And ^dthe glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city and stood ^eon the mountain, ^fwhich is on the east side of the city.

²⁴Then ^gthe Spirit took me up and brought me in a vision by the Spirit of God into ⁶Chaldea, to those in captivity. And the vision that I had seen went up from me.

²⁵So I spoke to those in captivity of all the things the LORD had shown me.

Ezekiel 12

Judah's Captivity Portrayed

¹Now the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

²“Son of man, you dwell in the midst of ^aa rebellious house, which ^bhas eyes to see but does not see, and ears to hear but does not hear; ^cfor they are a rebellious house. Word Studies: rebellious

⁴“By day you shall bring out your belongings in their sight, as though going into captivity; and at evening you shall go in their sight, like those who go into captivity.

⁵“Dig through the wall in their sight, and carry your belongings out through it.

⁶“In their sight you shall bear them on your shoulders and carry them out at twilight; you shall cover your face, so that you cannot see the ground, ^dfor I have made you a sign to the house of Israel.”

⁷So I did as I was commanded. I brought out my belongings by day, as though going into captivity, and at evening I dug through the wall with my hand. I brought them out at twilight, and I bore them on my shoulder in their sight.

⁸And in the morning the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

⁹“Son of man, has not the house of Israel, ^ethe rebellious house, said to you, ^f‘What are you doing?’

¹⁰“Say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “This ^gburden¹ concerns the prince in Jerusalem and all the house of Israel who are among them.” ’

¹¹“Say, ^h‘I am a sign to you. As I have done, so shall it be done to them; ⁱthey shall be carried away into captivity.’

¹²“And ^jthe prince who is among them shall bear his belongings on his shoulder at twilight and go out. They shall dig through the wall to carry them out through it. He shall cover his face, so that he cannot see the ground with his eyes.

¹³“I will also spread My ^knet over him, and he shall be caught in My snare.
^lI will bring him to Babylon, to the land of the Chaldeans; yet he shall not see it, though he shall die there.

^{14m}“I will scatter to every wind all who are around him to help him, and all his troops; and ⁿI will draw out the sword after them.

^{15o}“Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I scatter them among the nations and disperse them throughout the countries.

^{16p}“But I will spare a few of their men from the sword, from famine, and from pestilence, that they may declare all their abominations among the Gentiles wherever they go. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.”

Judgment Not Postponed

¹⁷Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹⁸“Son of man, ^qeat your bread with ²quaking, and drink your water with trembling and anxiety.

¹⁹“And say to the people of the land, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and to the land of Israel: “They shall eat their bread with anxiety, and drink their water with dread, so that her land may ^rbe emptied of all who are in it, ^sbecause of the violence of all those who dwell in it.

²⁰“Then the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall become desolate; and you shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ”

²¹And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²²“Son of man, what is this proverb that you people have about the land of Israel, which says, ^t‘The days are prolonged, and every vision fails’?

²³“Tell them therefore, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “I will lay this proverb to rest, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel.” But say to them, ^u“The days are at hand, and the ³fulfillment of every vision.

²⁴“For ^vno more shall there be any ^wfalse⁴ vision or flattering divination within the house of Israel.

²⁵“For I am the LORD. I speak, and ^xthe word which I speak will come to pass; it will no more be postponed; for in your days, O rebellious house, I will say the word and ^yperform it,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

²⁶Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

^{27z}“Son of man, look, the house of Israel is saying, ‘The vision that he sees is ^afor many days from now, and he prophesies of times far off.’

^{28b}“Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “None of My words will be postponed any more, but the word which I speak ^cwill be done,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

Ezekiel 13

Woe to Foolish Prophets

¹And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, prophesy ^aagainst the prophets of Israel who prophesy, and say to ^bthose who prophesy out of their own ^cheart, ¹‘Hear the word of the LORD!’ ”

³Thus says the Lord GOD: “Woe to the foolish prophets, who follow their own spirit and have seen ²nothing!

⁴“O Israel, your prophets are ^dlike foxes in the deserts.

⁵“You ^ehave not gone up into the ³gaps to build a wall for the house of Israel to stand in battle on the day of the LORD.

^{6f}“They have envisioned futility and false divination, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD!’ But the LORD has ^gnot sent them; yet they hope that the word may ⁴be confirmed.

⁷“Have you not seen a futile vision, and have you not spoken false divination? You say, ‘The LORD says,’ but I have not spoken.”

⁸Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “Because you have spoken nonsense and envisioned lies, therefore I am indeed against you,” says the Lord GOD.

⁹“My hand will be ^hagainst the prophets who envision futility and who ⁱdivine lies; they shall not be in the assembly of My people, ^jnor be written in the record of the house of Israel, ^knor shall they enter into the land of Israel.

^lThen you shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

¹⁰“Because, indeed, because they have seduced My people, saying, ^m‘Peace!’ when there is no peace—and one builds a wall, and they ⁿplaster⁵ it with untempered mortar—

¹¹“say to those who plaster it with untempered mortar, that it will fall. ^oThere will be flooding rain, and you, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall tear it down.

¹²“Surely, when the wall has fallen, will it not be said to you, ‘Where is the mortar with which you plastered it?’ ”

¹³Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “I will cause a stormy wind to break forth in My fury; and there shall be a flooding rain in My anger, and great hailstones in fury to consume it.

¹⁴“So I will break down the wall you have plastered with untempered mortar, and bring it down to the ground, so that its foundation will be uncovered; it will fall, and you shall be consumed in the midst of it. ^pThen you shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁵“Thus will I accomplish My wrath on the wall and on those who have plastered it with untempered mortar; and I will say to you, ‘The wall is no more, nor those who plastered it,

¹⁶“that is, the prophets of Israel who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who ^qsee visions of peace for her when there is no peace,’ ” says the Lord GOD.

¹⁷“Likewise, son of man, ^rset your face against the daughters of your people, ^swho prophesy out of their own ⁶heart; prophesy against them,

¹⁸“and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Woe to the women who sew magic charms ⁷on their sleeves and make veils for the heads of people of every height to hunt souls! Will you ^thunt the souls of My people, and keep yourselves alive?

¹⁹“And will you profane Me among My people ^ufor handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, killing people who should not die, and keeping people alive who should not live, by your lying to My people who listen to lies?”

²⁰“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I am against your magic charms by which you hunt souls there like ⁸birds. I will tear them from your arms, and let the souls go, the souls you hunt like birds.

²¹“I will also tear off your veils and deliver My people out of your hand, and they shall no longer be as prey in your hand. ^vThen you shall know that I am the LORD.

²²“Because with ^wlies you have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad; and you have ^xstrengthened the hands of the wicked, so that he does not turn from his wicked way to save his life.

²³“Therefore ^yyou shall no longer envision futility nor practice divination; for I will deliver My people out of your hand, and you shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 14

Idolatry Will Be Punished

¹Now ^asome of the elders of Israel came to me and sat before me.

²And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

³“Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their hearts, and put before them ^bthat which causes them to stumble into iniquity. ^cShould I let Myself be inquired of at all by them?

⁴“Therefore speak to them, and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Everyone of the house of Israel who sets up his idols in his heart, and puts before him what causes him to stumble into iniquity, and then comes to the prophet, I the LORD will answer him who comes, according to the multitude of his idols, Article: Idolatry of the Heart

⁵“that I may seize the house of Israel by their heart, because they are all estranged from Me by their idols.” ’

⁶“Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Repent, turn away from your idols, and ^dturn your faces away from all your abominations. Word Studies: repent

⁷“For anyone of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who dwell in Israel, who separates himself from Me and sets up his idols in his heart and puts before him what causes him to stumble into iniquity, then comes to a prophet to inquire of him concerning Me, I the LORD will answer him by Myself.

^{8e}“I will set My face against that man and make him a ^fsign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of My people. ^gThen you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁹“And if the prophet is induced to speak anything, I the LORD ^hhave induced that prophet, and I will stretch out My hand against him and destroy him from among My people Israel.

¹⁰“And they shall bear their iniquity; the punishment of the prophet shall be the same as the punishment of the one who inquired, ¹¹“that the house of Israel may ⁱno longer stray from Me, nor be profaned anymore with all their transgressions, ^jbut that they may be My people and I may be their God,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

Judgment on Persistent Unfaithfulness

¹²The word of the LORD came again to me, saying:

¹³“Son of man, when a land sins against Me by persistent unfaithfulness, I will stretch out My hand against it; I will cut off its ^ksupply of bread, send famine on it, and cut off man and beast from it.

¹⁵“If I cause ⁿwild beasts to pass through the land, and they ¹empty it, and make it so desolate that no man may pass through because of the beasts, ¹⁶“even ^o*though* these three men were ²in it, as I live,” says the Lord GOD, “they would deliver neither sons nor daughters; only they would be delivered, and the land would be ^pdesolate.

¹⁷“Or if ^qI bring a sword on that land, and say, ‘Sword, go through the land,’ and I ^rcut off man and beast from it, ¹⁸“even ^s*though* these three men were in it, as I live,” says the Lord GOD, “they would deliver neither sons nor daughters, but only they themselves would be delivered.

¹⁹“Or if I send ^ta pestilence into that land and ^upour out My fury on it in blood, and cut off from it man and beast,

²⁰“even ^v*though* Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live,” says the Lord GOD, “they would deliver neither son nor daughter; they would deliver only themselves by their righteousness.”

²¹For thus says the Lord GOD: “How much more it shall be when ^wI send My four ³severe judgments on Jerusalem—the sword and famine and wild beasts and pestilence—to cut off man and beast from it?

^{22x}“Yet behold, there shall be left in it a remnant who will be ^ybrought out, both sons and daughters; surely they will come out to you, and ^zyou will see their ways and their doings. Then you will be comforted concerning the disaster that I have brought upon Jerusalem, all that I have brought upon it.

²³“And they will comfort you, when you see their ways and their doings; and you shall know that I have done nothing ^awithout cause that I have done in it,” says the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel 15

The Outcast Vine

¹Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

²“Son of man, how is the wood of the vine better than any other wood, the vine branch which is among the trees of the forest?

³“Is wood taken from it to make any object? Or can men make a peg from it to hang any vessel on?

⁴“Instead, ^ait is thrown into the fire for fuel; the fire devours both ends of it, and its middle is burned. Is it useful for any work?

⁵“Indeed, when it was whole, no object could be made from it. How much less will it be useful for any work when the fire has devoured it, and it is burned?

⁶“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so I will give up the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

⁷‘and ^bI will set My face against them. ^cThey will go out from one fire, but another fire shall devour them. ^dThen you shall know that I am the LORD, when I set My face against them.

⁸“Thus I will make the land desolate, because they have persisted in unfaithfulness,’ says the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel 16

God's Love for Jerusalem

¹Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, ^acause Jerusalem to know her abominations,

³“and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD to Jerusalem: “Your ¹birth ^band your nativity are from the land of Canaan; ^cyour father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite.

⁴“As for your nativity, ^don the day you were born your navel cord was not cut, nor were you washed in water to cleanse you; you were not rubbed with salt nor wrapped in swaddling cloths.

⁵“No eye pitied you, to do any of these things for you, to have compassion on you; but you were thrown out into the open field, when you yourself were ²loathed on the day you were born.

⁶“And when I passed by you and saw you struggling in your own blood, I said to you in your blood, ‘Live!’ Yes, I said to you in your blood, ‘Live!’

^{7e}“I made you ³thrive like a plant in the field; and you grew, matured, and became very beautiful. Your breasts were formed, your hair grew, but you were naked and bare.

⁸“When I passed by you again and looked upon you, indeed your time was the time of love; ^fso I spread ⁴My wing over you and covered your nakedness. Yes, I ^gswore an oath to you and entered into a ^hcovenant with you, and ⁱyou became Mine,” says the Lord GOD.

⁹“Then I washed you in water; yes, I thoroughly washed off your blood, and I anointed you with oil.

¹⁰“I clothed you in embroidered cloth and gave you sandals of ⁵badger skin; I clothed you with fine linen and covered you with silk. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Silk

¹¹“I adorned you with ornaments, ^jput bracelets on your wrists, ^kand a chain on your neck.

¹²“And I put a ⁶jewel in your nose, earrings in your ears, and a beautiful crown on your head.

¹³“Thus you were adorned with gold and silver, and your clothing was of fine linen, silk, and embroidered cloth. ¹You ate pastry of fine flour, honey, and oil. You were exceedingly ^mbeautiful, and succeeded to royalty.

¹⁴ⁿ“Your fame went out among the nations because of your beauty, for it was perfect through My splendor which I had bestowed on you,” says the Lord GOD.

Jerusalem’s Harlotry

^{15o}“But you trusted in your own beauty, ^pplayed the harlot because of your fame, and poured out your harlotry on everyone passing by who would have it.

^{16q}“You took some of your garments and adorned multicolored ⁷high places for yourself, and played the harlot on them. Such things should not happen, nor be.

¹⁷“You have also taken your beautiful jewelry from My gold and My silver, which I had given you, and made for yourself male images and played the harlot with them.

¹⁸“You took your embroidered garments and covered them, and you set My oil and My incense before them.

¹⁹“Also ^rMy food which I gave you—the pastry of fine flour, oil, and honey which I fed you—you set it before them as ⁸sweet incense; and so it was,” says the Lord GOD.

^{20s}“Moreover you took your sons and your daughters, whom you bore to Me, and these you sacrificed to them to be devoured. Were your acts of harlotry a small matter, ²¹“that you have slain My children and offered them up to them by causing them to pass through the ^tfire?

²²“And in all your abominations and acts of harlotry you did not remember the days of your ^uyouth, ^vwhen you were naked and bare, struggling in your blood.

²³“Then it was so, after all your wickedness—‘Woe, woe to you!’ says the Lord GOD—²⁴“that ^wyou also built for yourself a shrine, and ^xmade a ⁹high place for yourself in every street.

²⁵“You built your high places ^yat the head of every road, and made your beauty to be abhorred. You offered yourself to everyone who passed by, and multiplied your acts of harlotry.

²⁶“You also committed harlotry with ^zthe Egyptians, your very fleshly neighbors, and increased your acts of harlotry to ^aprovoke Me to anger.

²⁷“Behold, therefore, I stretched out My hand against you, diminished your ¹⁰allotment, and gave you up to the will of those who hate you, ^bthe daughters of the Philistines, who were ashamed of your lewd behavior.

²⁸“You also played the harlot with the ^cAssyrians, because you were insatiable; indeed you played the harlot with them and still were not satisfied.

²⁹“Moreover you multiplied your acts of harlotry as far as the land of the trader, ^dChaldea; and even then you were not satisfied.

³⁰“How degenerate is your heart!” says the Lord GOD, “seeing you do all these things, the deeds of a brazen harlot.

Jerusalem's Adultery

^{31e}“You erected your shrine at the head of every road, and built your ¹¹high place in every street. Yet you were not like a harlot, because you scorned ^fpayment.

³²“You are an adulterous wife, who takes strangers instead of her husband.

³³“Men make payment to all harlots, but ^gyou made your payments to all your lovers, and ¹²hired them to come to you from all around for your harlotry.

³⁴“You are the opposite of other women in your harlotry, because no one solicited you to be a harlot. In that you gave payment but no payment was given you, therefore you are the opposite.”

Jerusalem's Lovers Will Abuse Her

³⁵“Now then, O harlot, hear the word of the LORD!

³⁶“Thus says the Lord GOD: “Because your filthiness was poured out and your nakedness uncovered in your harlotry with your lovers, and with all your abominable idols, and because of ^hthe blood of your children which you gave to them,

³⁷“surely, therefore, ⁱI will gather all your lovers with whom you took pleasure, all those you loved, and all those you hated; I will gather them from all around against you and will uncover your nakedness to them, that they may see all your nakedness.

³⁸“And I will judge you as ^jwomen who break wedlock or ^kshed blood are judged; I will bring blood upon you in fury and jealousy.

³⁹“I will also give you into their hand, and they shall throw down your shrines and break down ^lyour ¹³high places. ^mThey shall also strip you of your clothes, take your beautiful jewelry, and leave you naked and bare.

⁴⁰ⁿ“They shall also bring up an assembly against you, ^oand they shall stone you with stones and thrust you through with their swords.

⁴¹“They shall ^pburn your houses with fire, and ^qexecute judgments on you in the sight of many women; and I will make you ^rcease playing the harlot, and you shall no longer hire lovers.

⁴²“So ^sI will lay to rest My fury toward you, and My jealousy shall depart from you. I will be quiet, and be angry no more.

⁴³“Because ^tyou did not remember the days of your youth, but ¹⁴agitated Me with all these things, surely ^uI will also recompense your ¹⁵deeds on your own head,” says the Lord GOD. “And you shall not commit lewdness in addition to all your abominations.

More Wicked than Samaria and Sodom

⁴⁴“Indeed everyone who quotes proverbs will use this proverb against you: ‘Like mother, like daughter!’

⁴⁵“You are your mother’s daughter, ¹⁶loathing husband and children; and you are the ^vsister of your sisters, who loathed their husbands and children; ^wyour mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite.

⁴⁶“Your elder sister is Samaria, who dwells with her daughters to the north of you; and ^xyour younger sister, who dwells to the south of you, is Sodom and her daughters.

⁴⁷“You did not walk in their ways nor act according to their abominations; but, as if that were too little, ^yyou became more corrupt than they in all your ways.

⁴⁸“As I live,” says the Lord GOD, “neither ^zyour sister Sodom nor her daughters have done as you and your daughters have done.

⁴⁹“Look, this was the iniquity of your sister Sodom: She and her daughter had pride, ^afullness of food, and abundance of idleness; neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.

⁵⁰“And they were haughty and ^bcommitted abomination before Me; therefore ^cI took them away as ¹⁷I saw fit.

⁵¹“Samaria did not commit ^dhalf of your sins; but you have multiplied your abominations more than they, and ^ehave justified your sisters by all the abominations which you have done.

⁵²“You who judged your sisters, bear your own shame also, because the sins which you committed were more abominable than theirs; they are more righteous than you. Yes, be disgraced also, and bear your own shame, because you justified your sisters.

^{53f}“When I bring back their captives, the captives of Sodom and her daughters, and the captives of Samaria and her daughters, then I will also bring back ^gthe captives of your captivity among them, ⁵⁴“that you may bear your own shame and be disgraced by all that you did when ^hyou comforted them.

⁵⁵“When your sisters, Sodom and her daughters, return to their former state, and Samaria and her daughters return to their former state, then you and your daughters will return to your former state.

⁵⁶“For your sister Sodom was not a byword in your mouth in the days of your pride, ⁵⁷“before your wickedness was uncovered. It was like the time of the ⁱreproach of the daughters of ¹⁸Syria and all those around her, and of ^jthe daughters of the Philistines, who despise you everywhere.

^{58k}“You have paid for your lewdness and your abominations,” says the LORD.

⁵⁹“For thus says the Lord GOD: “I will deal with you as you have done, who ^ldespised ^mthe oath by breaking the covenant.

An Everlasting Covenant

⁶⁰“Nevertheless I will ⁿremember My covenant with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish ^oan everlasting covenant with you.

⁶¹“Then ^pyou will remember your ways and be ashamed, when you receive your older and your younger sisters; for I will give them to you for ^qdaughters, ^rbut not because of My covenant with you.

^{62s}“And I will establish My covenant with you. Then you shall know that I am the LORD, ⁶³“that you may ^tremember and be ashamed, ^uand never open your mouth anymore because of your shame, when I provide you an atonement for all you have done,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

Ezekiel 17

The Eagles and the Vine

¹And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, pose a riddle, and speak a ^aparable to the house of Israel,

³“and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

^b“A great eagle with large wings and long pinions,
Full of feathers of various colors,

Came to Lebanon
And ^ctook from the cedar the highest branch.
⁴He cropped off its topmost young twig
And carried it to a land of trade;
He set it in a city of merchants.
⁵Then he took some of the seed of the land
And planted it in ^da fertile field;
He placed it by abundant waters
And set it ^elike a willow tree.
⁶And it grew and became a spreading vine ^fof low stature;
Its branches turned toward him,
But its roots were under it.
So it became a vine,
Brought forth branches,
And put forth shoots.

⁷“But there was ¹another great eagle with large wings and many feathers;
And behold, ⁸this vine bent its roots toward him,
And stretched its branches toward him,
From the garden terrace where it had been planted,
That he might water it.
⁸It was planted in ²good soil by many waters,
To bring forth branches, bear fruit,
And become a majestic vine.” ’

⁹“Say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Will it thrive?
^hWill he not pull up its roots,
Cut off its fruit,
And leave it to wither?
All of its spring leaves will wither,
And no great power or many people
Will be needed to pluck it up by its roots.
¹⁰Behold, it is planted,

Will it thrive?

ⁱWill it not utterly wither when the east wind touches it?
It will wither in the garden terrace where it grew.” ’ ”

¹¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹²“Say now to ^jthe rebellious house: ‘Do you not know what these things mean?’ Tell them, ‘Indeed ^kthe king of Babylon went to Jerusalem and took its king and princes, and led them with him to Babylon.

¹³‘And he took the king’s offspring, made a covenant with him, ^mand put him under oath. He also took away the mighty of the land, ¹⁴‘that the kingdom might be ⁿbrought low and not lift itself up, but that by keeping his covenant it might stand.

¹⁵‘But ^ohe rebelled against him by sending his ambassadors to Egypt, ^pthat they might give him horses and many people. ^qWill he prosper? Will he who does such things escape? Can he break a covenant and still be delivered?

¹⁶‘As I live,’ says the Lord GOD, ‘surely ^rin the place where the king dwells who made him king, whose oath he despised and whose covenant he broke—with him in the midst of Babylon he shall die.

¹⁷^s‘Nor will Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company do anything in the war, ^twhen they heap up a siege mound and build a ³wall to cut off many persons.

¹⁸‘Since he despised the oath by breaking the covenant, and in fact ^ugave⁴ his hand and still did all these things, he shall not escape.’ ” ¹⁹Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “As I live, surely My oath which he despised, and My covenant which he broke, I will recompense on his own head.

²⁰“I will ^vspread My net over him, and he shall be taken in My snare. I will bring him to Babylon and ^wtry him there for the ⁵treason which he committed against Me.

²¹^x“All his ⁶fugitives with all his troops shall fall by the sword, and those who remain shall be ^yscattered to every wind; and you shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken.”

Israel Exalted at Last

(cf. Ezek. 31:1–9)

²²Thus says the Lord GOD: “I will take also one of the highest ^zbranches of the high cedar and set it out. I will crop off from the topmost of its young twigs ^aa tender one, and will ^bplant it on a high and prominent mountain.

^{23c}“On the mountain height of Israel I will plant it; and it will bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a majestic cedar. ^dUnder it will dwell birds of every sort; in the shadow of its branches they will dwell.

²⁴“And all the trees of the field shall know that I, the LORD, ^ehave brought down the high tree and exalted the low tree, dried up the green tree and made the dry tree flourish; ^fI, the LORD, have spoken and have done it.”

Ezekiel 18

A False Proverb Refuted

¹The word of the LORD came to me again, saying,

²“What do you mean when you use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying:

‘The ^afathers have eaten sour grapes,
And the children’s teeth are set on edge’? Article: Accountability

³“As I live,” says the Lord GOD, “you shall no longer use this proverb in Israel.

⁴“Behold, all souls are ^bMine;

The soul of the father
As well as the soul of the son is Mine;
^cThe soul who sins shall die.
⁵But if a man is just
And does what is lawful and right;
^{6d}If he has not eaten ¹on the mountains,
Nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel,
Nor ^edefiled his neighbor's wife,
Nor approached ^fa woman during her impurity;
⁷If he has not ^goppressed anyone,
But has restored to the debtor his ^hpledge;
Has robbed no one by violence,
But has ⁱgiven his bread to the hungry
And covered the naked with ^jclothing;
⁸If he has not ²exacted ^kusury
Nor taken any increase,
But has withdrawn his hand from iniquity
And ¹executed true ³judgment between man and man;
⁹*If* he has walked in My statutes
And kept My judgments faithfully—
He is just;
He shall surely ^mlive!”
Says the Lord GOD.

¹⁰“If he begets a son who is a robber
Or ⁿa shedder of blood,
Who does any of these things
¹¹And does none of those duties,
But has eaten ⁴on the mountains
Or defiled his neighbor's wife;
¹²If he has oppressed the poor and needy,
Robbed by violence,
Not restored the pledge,
Lifted his eyes to the idols,
Or ^ocommitted abomination;
¹³If he has exacted usury
Or taken increase—
Shall he then live?

He shall not live!
If he has done any of these abominations,
He shall surely die;
^pHis blood shall be upon him.

¹⁴*“If, however, he begets a son
Who sees all the sins which his father has done,
And considers but does not do likewise;
^{15q}Who has not eaten ⁵on the mountains,
Nor lifted his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel,
Nor defiled his neighbor’s wife;
¹⁶Has not oppressed anyone,
Nor withheld a pledge,
Nor robbed by violence,
But has given his bread to the hungry
And covered the naked with clothing;
¹⁷Who has withdrawn his hand from ⁶the poor
And not received usury or increase,*

But has executed My judgments
And walked in My statutes—
He shall not die for the iniquity of his father;
He shall surely live!

¹⁸“As for his father,
Because he cruelly oppressed,
Robbed his brother by violence,
And did what is not good among his people,
Behold, ^rhe shall die for his iniquity.

Turn and Live

¹⁹“Yet you say, ‘Why ^sshould the son not bear the guilt of the father?’ Because the son has done what is lawful and right, and has kept all My statutes and observed them, he shall surely live.

²⁰“The soul who sins shall die. ^uThe son shall not bear the guilt of the father, nor the father bear the guilt of the son. ^vThe righteousness of the righteous shall be upon himself, ^wand the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself.

²¹“But ^xif a wicked man turns from all his sins which he has committed, keeps all My statutes, and does what is lawful and right, he shall surely live; he shall not die.

²²^y“None of the transgressions which he has committed shall be remembered against him; because of the righteousness which he has done, he shall ^zlive.

²³^a“Do I have any pleasure at all that the wicked should die?” says the Lord GOD, “and not that he should turn from his ways and live?

²⁴“But ^bwhen a righteous man turns away from his righteousness and commits iniquity, and does according to all the abominations that the wicked man does, shall he live? ^cAll the righteousness which he has done shall not be remembered; because of the unfaithfulness of which he is guilty and the sin which he has committed, because of them he shall die.

²⁶^e“When a righteous man turns away from his righteousness, commits iniquity, and dies in it, it is because of the iniquity which he has done that he dies.

²⁷“Again, ^fwhen a wicked man turns away from the wickedness which he committed, and does what is lawful and right, he preserves himself alive.

²⁸“Because he ^gconsiders and turns away from all the transgressions which he committed, he shall surely live; he shall not die.

²⁹^h“Yet the house of Israel says, ‘The way of the Lord is not fair.’ O house of Israel, is it not My ways which are fair, and your ways which are not fair?

³⁰ⁱ“Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways,” says the Lord GOD. ^j“Repent, and turn from all your transgressions, so that iniquity will not be your ruin.

³¹^k“Cast away from you all the transgressions which you have committed, and get yourselves a ^lnew heart and a new spirit. For why should you die, O house of Israel?

³²“For ^mI have no pleasure in the death of one who dies,” says the Lord GOD. “Therefore turn and ⁿlive!”

Ezekiel 19

Israel Degraded

²“and say:

‘What is your mother? A lioness:
She lay down among the lions;
Among the young lions she nourished her cubs.

³She brought up one of her cubs,
And ^bhe became a young lion;
He learned to catch prey,
And he devoured men.

⁴The nations also heard of him;
He was trapped in their pit,
And they brought him with chains to the land of ^cEgypt.

⁵‘When she saw that she waited, that her hope was lost,
She took ^danother of her cubs and made him a young lion.

^{6e}He roved among the lions,
And ^fbecame a young lion;
He learned to catch prey;
He devoured men.

⁷ⁱHe knew their desolate places,
And laid waste their cities;
The land with its fullness was desolated
By the noise of his roaring.

^{8g}Then the nations set against him from the provinces on every side,

And spread their net over him;

^hHe was trapped in their pit.

⁹ⁱThey put him in a cage with ²chains,
And brought him to the king of Babylon;
They brought him in nets,

That his voice should no longer be heard on ^jthe mountains of Israel.

¹⁰‘Your mother was ^klike a vine in your ³bloodline,

Planted by the waters,

¹Fruitful and full of branches

Because of many waters.

¹¹She had strong branches for scepters of rulers.

^mShe towered in stature above the thick branches,

And was seen in her height amid the ⁴dense foliage.

¹²But she was ⁿplucked up in fury,

She was cast down to the ground,

And the ^oeast wind dried her fruit.

Her strong branches were broken and withered;

The fire consumed them.

¹³And now she is planted in the wilderness,

In a dry and thirsty land.

^{14p}Fire has come out from a rod of her branches

And devoured her fruit,

So that she has no strong branch—a scepter for ruling.’ ”

^qThis is a lamentation, and has become a lamentation.

Ezekiel 20

The Rebellions of Israel

¹It came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, that ^acertain of the elders of Israel came to inquire of the LORD, and sat before me.

²Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

³“Son of man, speak to the elders of Israel, and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Have you come to inquire of Me? As I live,” says the Lord GOD, ^b“I will not be inquired of by you.” ’

⁴“Will you judge them, son of man, will you judge them? Then ^cmake known to them the abominations of their fathers.

⁵“Say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “On the day when ^dI chose Israel and raised My hand in an oath to the descendants of the house of Jacob, and made Myself ^eknown to them in the land of Egypt, I raised My hand in an oath to them, saying, ^f“I am the LORD your God.’

⁶“On that day I raised My hand in an oath to them, ^gto bring them out of the land of Egypt into a land that I had searched out for them, ^h“flowing with milk and honey,’ ⁱthe glory of all lands.

⁷“Then I said to them, ‘Each of you, ^jthrow away ^kthe abominations which are before his eyes, and do not defile yourselves with ^lthe idols of Egypt. I am the LORD your God.’ Word Studies: abomination

⁸“But they rebelled against Me and would not ¹obey Me. They did not all cast away the abominations which were before their eyes, nor did they forsake the idols of Egypt. Then I said, ‘I will ^mpour out My fury on them and fulfill My anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.’

⁹ⁿ“But I acted for My name’s sake, that it should not be profaned before the Gentiles among whom they were, in whose sight I had made Myself ^oknown to them, to bring them out of the land of Egypt.

¹⁰“Therefore I ^pmade them go out of the land of Egypt and brought them into the wilderness.

^{11q}“And I gave them My statutes and ²showed them My judgments, ^r“which, if a man does, he shall live by them.’

¹²“Moreover I also gave them My ^sSabbaths, to be a sign between them and Me, that they might know that I am the LORD who sanctifies them.

¹³“Yet the house of Israel ^trebelled against Me in the wilderness; they did not walk in My statutes; they ^udespised My judgments, ^v“which, if a man does, he shall live by them’; and they greatly ^wdefiled My Sabbaths. Then I said I would pour out My fury on them in the ^xwilderness, to consume them.

^{14y}“But I acted for My name’s sake, that it should not be profaned before the Gentiles, in whose sight I had brought them out.

¹⁵“So ^zI also raised My hand in an oath to them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given them, ^a‘flowing with milk and honey,’ ^bthe glory of all lands, ^{16c}“because they despised My judgments and did not walk in My statutes, but profaned My Sabbaths; for ^dtheir heart went after their idols.

^{17e}“Nevertheless My eye spared them from destruction. I did not make an end of them in the wilderness.

¹⁸“But I said to their children in the wilderness, ‘Do not walk in the statutes of your fathers, nor observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols.

¹⁹‘I am the LORD your God: ^fWalk in My statutes, keep My judgments, and do them;

^{20g}‘hallow My Sabbaths, and they will be a sign between Me and you, that you may know that I am the LORD your God.’

²¹“Notwithstanding, ^hthe children rebelled against Me; they did not walk in My statutes, and were not careful to observe My judgments, ⁱ‘which, if a man does, he shall live by them’; but they profaned My Sabbaths. Then I said I would pour out My fury on them and fulfill My anger against them in the wilderness.

²²“Nevertheless I ³withdrew My hand and acted for My name’s sake, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the Gentiles, in whose sight I had brought them out.

²³“Also I raised My hand in an oath to those in the wilderness, that ^jI would scatter them among the Gentiles and disperse them throughout the countries, ^{24k}“because they had not executed My judgments, but had despised My statutes, profaned My Sabbaths, and ^ltheir eyes were fixed on their fathers’ idols.

²⁵“Therefore ^mI also gave them up to statutes that were not good, and judgments by which they could not live;

²⁶“and I pronounced them unclean because of their ritual gifts, in that they caused all ⁴their firstborn to pass ⁿthrough the fire, that I might make them desolate and that they ^omight know that I am the LORD.” ’

²⁷“Therefore, son of man, speak to the house of Israel, and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “In this too your fathers have ^pblasphemed Me, by being unfaithful to Me.

²⁸“When I brought them into the land concerning which I had raised My hand in an oath to give them, and ^qthey saw all the high hills and all the thick trees, there they offered their sacrifices and provoked Me with their offerings. There they also sent up their ^rsweet aroma and poured out their drink offerings.

²⁹“Then I said to them, ‘What is this ⁵high place to which you go?’ So its name is called ⁶Bamah to this day.” ’

³⁰“Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Are you defiling yourselves in the manner of your ^sfathers, and committing harlotry according to their ^tabominations?

³¹“For when you offer ^uyour gifts and make your sons pass through the fire, you defile yourselves with all your idols, even to this day. So shall I be inquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live,” says the Lord GOD, “I will ^vnot be inquired of by you.

^{32w}“What you have in your mind shall never be, when you say, ‘We will be like the Gentiles, like the families in other countries, serving wood and stone.’

God Will Restore Israel

³³“As I live,” says the Lord GOD, “surely with a mighty hand, ^xwith an outstretched arm, and with fury poured out, I will rule over you.

³⁴“I will bring you out from the peoples and gather you out of the countries where you are scattered, with a mighty hand, with an outstretched arm, and with fury poured out.

³⁵“And I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there ^yI will plead My case with you face to face.

^{36z}“Just as I pleaded My case with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so I will plead My case with you,” says the Lord GOD.

³⁷“I will make you ^apass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the ^bcovenant; ^{38c}“I will purge the rebels from among you, and those who transgress against Me; I will bring them out of the country where they dwell, but ^dthey shall not enter the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

³⁹“As for you, O house of Israel,” thus says the Lord GOD: ^e“Go, serve every one of you his idols—and hereafter—if you will not obey Me; ^fbut profane My holy name no more with your gifts and your idols.

⁴⁰“For ^gon My holy mountain, on the mountain height of Israel,” says the Lord GOD, “there ^hall the house of Israel, all of them in the land, shall serve Me; there ⁱI will accept them, and there I will require your offerings and the firstfruits of your ⁷sacrifices, together with all your holy things.

⁴¹“I will accept you as a ^jsweet aroma when I bring you out from the peoples and gather you out of the countries where you have been scattered; and I will be hallowed in you before the Gentiles.

^{42k}“Then you shall know that I am the LORD, ^lwhen I bring you into the land of Israel, into the country for which I raised My hand in an oath to give to your fathers.

⁴³“And ^mthere you shall remember your ways and all your doings with which you were defiled; and ⁿyou shall ⁸loathe yourselves in your own sight because of all the evils that you have committed.

^{44o}“Then you shall know that I am the LORD, when I have dealt with you ^pfor My name’s sake, not according to your wicked ways nor according to your corrupt doings, O house of Israel,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

Fire in the Forest

⁴⁵Furthermore the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

^{46q}“Son of man, set your face toward the south; ⁹preach against the south and prophesy against the forest land, the ¹⁰South, ⁴⁷“and say to the forest of the South, ‘Hear the word of the LORD! Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, ^rI will kindle a fire in you, and it shall devour ^severy green tree and every dry tree in you; the blazing flame shall not be quenched, and all faces ^tfrom the south to the north shall be scorched by it.

⁴⁸“All flesh shall see that I, the LORD, have kindled it; it shall not be quenched.” ’ ’ ”

⁴⁹Then I said, “Ah, Lord GOD! They say of me, ‘Does he not speak ^uparables?’ ”

Ezekiel 21

Babylon, the Sword of God

¹And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

^{2a}“Son of man, set your face toward Jerusalem, ^bpreach¹ against the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel;

³“and say to the land of Israel, ‘Thus says the LORD: “Behold, I am ^cagainst you, and I will draw My sword out of its sheath and cut off both ^drighteous and wicked from you.

⁴“Because I will cut off both righteous and wicked from you, therefore My sword shall go out of its sheath against all flesh ^efrom south to north,

⁵“that all flesh may know that I, the LORD, have drawn My sword out of its sheath; it ^fshall not return anymore.” ’

^{6g}“Sigh therefore, son of man, with ^{2a}a breaking heart, and sigh with bitterness before their eyes.

⁷“And it shall be when they say to you, ‘Why are you sighing?’ that you shall answer, ‘Because of the news; when it comes, every heart will melt, ^hall hands will be feeble, every spirit will faint, and all knees will be weak as water. Behold, it is coming and shall be brought to pass,’ says the Lord GOD.”

⁸Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

⁹“Son of man, prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the LORD!’ Say:

ⁱ‘A sword, a sword is sharpened
And also polished!

¹⁰Sharpened to make a dreadful slaughter,
Polished to flash like lightning!
Should we then make mirth?
It despises the scepter of My son,
As it does all wood.

¹¹And He has given it to be polished,
That it may be handled;
This sword is sharpened, and it is polished
To be given into the hand of ^jthe slayer.’

¹²“Cry and wail, son of man;
For it will be against My people,
Against all the princes of Israel.
Terrors including the sword will be against My people;
Therefore ^kstrike your thigh.

¹³“Because it is ^la testing,
And what if the sword despises even the scepter?
^m*The scepter* shall be no more,”

says the Lord GOD.

¹⁴“You therefore, son of man, prophesy,
And ⁿstrike your hands together.
The third time let the sword do double damage.
It is the sword that slays,
The sword that slays the great men,
That enters their ^oprivate chambers.
¹⁵I have set the point of the sword against all their gates,
That the heart may melt and many may stumble.
Ah! ^p*It is* made bright;
It is grasped for slaughter:

¹⁶“Swords^{q3} at the ready!
Thrust right!
Set your blade!
Thrust left—
Wherever your ⁴edge is ordered!

¹⁷“I also will ^rbeat My fists together,
And ^sI will cause My fury to rest;
I, the LORD, have spoken.”

¹⁸The word of the LORD came to me again, saying:

¹⁹“And son of man, appoint for yourself two ways for the sword of the king of Babylon to go; both of them shall go from the same land. Make a sign; put it at the head of the road to the city.

²⁰“Appoint a road for the sword to go to ^tRabbah of the Ammonites, and to Judah, into fortified Jerusalem.

²¹“For the king of Babylon stands at the parting of the road, at the fork of the two roads, to use divination: he shakes the arrows, he consults the ⁵images, he looks at the liver.

²²“In his right hand is the divination for Jerusalem: to set up battering rams, to call for a slaughter, to ^ulift the voice with shouting, ^vto set battering rams against the gates, to heap up a siege mound, and to build a wall.

²³“And it will be to them like a false divination in the eyes of those who ^whave sworn oaths with them; but he will bring their iniquity to remembrance, that they may be taken.

²⁴“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Because you have made your iniquity to be remembered, in that your transgressions are uncovered, so that in all your doings your sins appear—because you have come to remembrance, you shall be taken in hand.

²⁵‘Now to you, O ^xprofane, wicked prince of Israel, ^ywhose day has come, whose iniquity shall end,

²⁶‘thus says the Lord GOD:

“Remove the turban, and take off the crown;
Nothing shall remain the same.

^zExalt the humble, and humble the exalted.

²⁷⁶Overthrown, overthrown,
I will make it overthrown!

^aIt shall be no longer,
Until He comes whose right it is,
And I will give it to ^b*Him*.” ’

A Sword Against the Ammonites

²⁸“And you, son of man, prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD^c concerning the Ammonites and concerning their reproach,’ and say:

‘A sword, a sword is drawn,
Polished for slaughter,
For consuming, for flashing—
²⁹While they ^dsee false visions for you,
While they divine a lie to you,
To bring you on the necks of the wicked, the slain
^eWhose day has come,
Whose iniquity shall end.

³⁰‘Return^f it to its sheath.

^gI will judge you

In the place where you were created,

^hIn the land of your ⁷nativity.

³¹I will ⁱpour out My indignation on you;

I will ^jblow against you with the fire of My wrath,

And deliver you into the hands of brutal men who are skillful to ^kdestroy.

³²You shall be fuel for the fire;

Your blood shall be in the midst of the land.

^lYou shall not be remembered,

For I the LORD have spoken.’ ”

Ezekiel 22

Sins of Jerusalem

¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Now, son of man, ^awill you judge, will you judge ^bthe bloody city? Yes, show her all her abominations!

³“Then say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “The city sheds ^cblood in her own midst, that her time may come; and she makes idols within herself to defile herself.

⁴“You have become guilty by the blood which you have ^dshed, and have defiled yourself with the idols which you have made. You have caused your days to draw near, and have come to the end of your years; ^etherefore I have made you a reproach to the nations, and a mockery to all countries.

⁵“Those near and those far from you will mock you as ¹infamous and full of tumult.

⁶“Look, ^fthe princes of Israel: each one has used his ²power to shed blood in you.

⁷“In you they have ^gmade light of father and mother; in your midst they have ^hoppressed the stranger; in you they have mistreated the ³fatherless and the widow.

⁸“You have despised My holy things and ⁱprofaned My Sabbaths.

⁹“In you are ^jmen who slander to cause bloodshed; ^kin you are those who eat on the mountains; in your midst they commit lewdness.

¹⁰“In you men ^luncover their fathers’ nakedness; in you they violate women who are ^mset apart during their impurity.

¹¹“One commits abomination ⁿwith his neighbor’s wife; ^oanother lewdly defiles his daughter-in-law; and another in you violates his sister, his father’s ^pdaughter.

¹²“In you ^qthey take bribes to shed blood; ^ryou take usury and increase; you have made profit from your neighbors by extortion, and ^shave forgotten Me,” says the Lord GOD.

¹³“Behold, therefore, I ^tbeat My fists at the dishonest profit which you have made, and at the bloodshed which has been in your midst.

^{14u}“Can your heart endure, or can your hands remain strong, in the days when I shall deal with you? ^vI, the LORD, have spoken, and will do it.

^{15w}“I will scatter you among the nations, disperse you throughout the countries, and ^xremove your filthiness completely from you.

¹⁶“You shall defile yourself in the sight of the nations; then ^yyou shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ”

Israel in the Furnace

¹⁷The word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹⁸“Son of man, ^zthe house of Israel has become dross to Me; they are all bronze, tin, iron, and lead, in the midst of a ^afurnace; they have become dross from silver. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Iron

¹⁹“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Because you have all become dross, therefore behold, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem.

²⁰‘As men gather silver, bronze, iron, lead, and tin into the midst of a furnace, to blow fire on it, to ^bmelt it; so I will gather you in My anger and in My fury, and I will leave you there and melt you.

²¹‘Yes, I will gather you and blow on you with the fire of My wrath, and you shall be melted in its midst.

²²‘As silver is melted in the midst of a furnace, so shall you be melted in its midst; then you shall know that I, the LORD, have ^cpoured out My fury on you.’ ”

Israel’s Wicked Leaders

²³And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²⁴“Son of man, say to her: ‘You are a land that is ^dnot ⁴cleansed or rained on in the day of indignation.’

^{25e}“The conspiracy of her ⁵prophets in her midst is like a roaring lion tearing the prey; they ^fhave devoured ⁶people; ^gthey have taken treasure and precious things; they have made many widows in her midst.

^{26h}“Her priests have ⁷violated My law and ⁱprofaned My holy things; they have not ^jdistinguished between the holy and unholy, nor have they made known the difference between the unclean and the clean; and they have hidden their eyes from My Sabbaths, so that I am profaned among them.

²⁷“Her ^kprinces in her midst are like wolves tearing the prey, to shed blood, to destroy ⁸people, and to get dishonest gain.

^{28l}“Her prophets plastered them with untempered mortar, ^mseeing false visions, and divining ⁿlies for them, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD,’ when the LORD had not spoken.

²⁹“The people of the land have used oppressions, committed robbery, and mistreated the poor and needy; and they wrongfully ^ooppress the stranger.

^{30p}“So I sought for a man among them who would ^qmake a wall, and ^rstand in the gap before Me on behalf of the land, that I should not destroy it; but I found no one.

³¹“Therefore I have ^spoured out My indignation on them; I have consumed them with the fire of My wrath; and I have recompensed ^ttheir deeds on their own heads,” says the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel 23

Two Harlot Sisters

¹The word of the LORD came again to me, saying:

²“Son of man, there were ^atwo women,
The daughters of one mother.

^{3b}They committed harlotry in Egypt,
They committed harlotry in ^ctheir youth;
Their breasts were there embraced,
Their virgin bosom was there pressed.

⁴Their names: ¹Oholah the elder and ²Oholibah ^dher sister;

^eThey were Mine,
And they bore sons and daughters.
As for their names,
Samaria is Oholah, and Jerusalem is Oholibah.

The Older Sister, Samaria

⁵“Oholah played the harlot even though she was Mine;
And she lusted for her lovers, the neighboring ^fAssyrians,

⁶*Who were* clothed in purple,
Captains and rulers,
All of them desirable young men,
Horsemen riding on horses.

⁷Thus she committed her harlotry with them,
All of them choice men of Assyria;
And with all for whom she lusted,
With all their idols, she defiled herself.

⁸She has never given up her harlotry brought ^gfrom Egypt,
For in her youth they had lain with her,
Pressed her virgin bosom,
And poured out their immorality upon her.

⁹“Therefore I have delivered her
Into the hand of her lovers,
Into the hand of the ^hAssyrians,
For whom she lusted.

¹⁰They uncovered her nakedness,

Took away her sons and daughters,
And slew her with the sword;
She became a byword among women,
For they had executed judgment on her.

The Younger Sister, Jerusalem

¹¹“Now ⁱalthough her sister Oholibah saw this, ^jshe became more corrupt in her lust than she, and in her harlotry more corrupt than her sister’s harlotry.

¹²“She lusted for the neighboring ^kAssyrians,
^lCaptains and rulers,
Clothed most gorgeously,
Horsemen riding on horses,
All of them desirable young men.

¹³Then I saw that she was defiled;
Both took the same way.

¹⁴But she increased her harlotry;
She looked at men portrayed on the wall,
Images of ^mChaldeans portrayed in vermillion,

¹⁵Girded with belts around their waists,
Flowing turbans on their heads,
All of them looking like captains,
In the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea,
The land of their nativity.

¹⁶ⁿAs soon as her eyes saw them,

She lusted for them
And sent ^omessengers to them in Chaldea.

¹⁷“Then the ³Babylonians came to her, into the bed of love,
And they defiled her with their immorality;
So she was defiled by them, ^pand alienated herself from them.
¹⁸She revealed her harlotry and uncovered her nakedness.
Then ^qI ^ralienated Myself from her,
As I had alienated Myself from her sister.

¹⁹“Yet she multiplied her harlotry
In calling to remembrance the days of her youth, ^sWhen she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.
²⁰For she lusted for her ⁴paramours,
Whose flesh is like the flesh of donkeys,
And whose issue is like the issue of horses.
²¹Thus you called to remembrance the lewdness of your youth,
When the ^tEgyptians pressed your bosom
Because of your youthful breasts.

Judgment on Jerusalem

²²“Therefore, Oholibah, thus says the Lord GOD:

^u“Behold, I will stir up your lovers against you,
From whom you have alienated yourself,
And I will bring them against you from every side:

²³The Babylonians,
All the Chaldeans,

^vPekod, Shoa, Koa,

^wAll the Assyrians with them,
All of them desirable young men,
Governors and rulers,
Captains and men of renown,
All of them riding on horses.

²⁴And they shall come against you
With chariots, wagons, and war-horses,
With a horde of people.

They shall array against you
Buckler, shield, and helmet all around.

‘I will delegate judgment to them,
And they shall judge you according to their judgments.

²⁵I will set My ^xjealousy against you,
And they shall deal furiously with you;
They shall remove your nose and your ears,
And your remnant shall fall by the sword;
They shall take your sons and your daughters,
And your remnant shall be devoured by fire.

^{26y}They shall also strip you of your clothes
And take away your beautiful jewelry.

²⁷‘Thus ^zI will make you cease your lewdness and your ^aharlotry
Brought from the land of Egypt,
So that you will not lift your eyes to them,
Nor remember Egypt anymore.’

²⁸‘For thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Surely I will deliver you into the hand of ^bthose you hate, into the hand of those ^cfrom whom you alienated yourself.

^{29d}‘They will deal hatefully with you, take away all you have worked for, and ^eleave you naked and bare. The nakedness of your harlotry shall be uncovered, both your lewdness and your harlotry.

³⁰‘I will do these things to you because you have ^fgone as a harlot after the Gentiles, because you have become defiled by their idols.

³¹‘You have walked in the way of your sister; therefore I will put her ^gcup in your hand.’

³²‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

‘You shall drink of your sister’s cup,
The deep and wide one;
^hYou shall be laughed to scorn
And held in derision;
It contains much.

³³You will be filled with drunkenness and sorrow,
The cup of horror and desolation,

The cup of your sister Samaria.
³⁴You shall ⁱdrink and drain it,
You shall break its ⁵shards,
And tear at your own breasts;
For I have spoken,
Says the Lord GOD.

³⁵“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

‘Because you ^jhave forgotten Me and ^kcast Me behind your back,
Therefore you shall bear the penalty
Of your lewdness and your harlotry.’ ”

Both Sisters Judged

³⁶The LORD also said to me: “Son of man, will you ^ljudge Oholah and Oholibah? Then ^mdeclare to them their abominations.

³⁷“For they have committed adultery, and ⁿblood is on their hands. They have committed adultery with their idols, and even sacrificed their sons ^owhom they bore to Me, passing them through the fire, to devour them.

³⁸“Moreover they have done this to Me: They have ^pdefiled My sanctuary on the same day and ^qprofaned My Sabbaths.

³⁹“For after they had slain their children for their idols, on the same day they came into My sanctuary to profane it; and indeed ^rthus they have done in the midst of My house.

⁴⁰“Furthermore you sent for men to come from afar, ^sto whom a messenger was sent; and there they came. And you ^twashed yourself for them, ^upainted your eyes, and adorned yourself with ornaments.

⁴¹“You sat on a stately ^vcouch, with a table prepared before it, ^won which you had set My incense and My oil.

⁴²“The sound of a carefree multitude was with her, and ⁶Sabeans were brought from the wilderness with men of the common sort, who put bracelets on their ⁷wrists and beautiful crowns on their heads.

⁴³“Then I said concerning her who had grown old in adulteries, ‘Will they commit harlotry with her now, and she with them?’

⁴⁴“Yet they went in to her, as men go in to a woman who plays the harlot; thus they went in to Oholah and Oholibah, the lewd women.

⁴⁵“But righteous men will ^xjudge them after the manner of adulteresses, and after the manner of women who shed blood, because they are adulteresses, and ^yblood is on their hands.

⁴⁶“For thus says the Lord GOD: ^z‘Bring up an assembly against them, give them up to trouble and plunder.

^{47a}‘The assembly shall stone them with stones and ⁸execute them with their swords; ^bthey shall slay their sons and their daughters, and burn their houses with fire.

⁴⁸‘Thus ^cI will cause lewdness to cease from the land, ^dthat all women may be taught not to practice your lewdness.

⁴⁹‘They shall repay you for your lewdness, and you shall ^epay for your idolatrous sins. ^fThen you shall know that I am the Lord GOD.’ ”

Ezekiel 24

Symbol of the Cooking Pot

(cf. Jer. 1:13–19)

¹Again, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, write down the name of the day, this very day—the king of Babylon started his siege against Jerusalem ^athis very day.

^{3b}“And utter a parable to the rebellious house, and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

^c“Put on a pot, set it on,
And also pour water into it.
⁴Gather pieces of meat in it,
Every good piece,
The thigh and the shoulder.
Fill it with choice ¹cuts;
⁵Take the choice of the flock.
Also pile fuel bones under it,
Make it boil well,
And let the cuts simmer in it.”

⁶“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

“Woe to ^dthe bloody city,
To the pot whose scum is in it,
And whose scum is not gone from it!
Bring it out piece by piece,
On which no ^elot has fallen.
⁷For her blood is in her midst;
She set it on top of a rock;
^fShe did not pour it on the ground,
To cover it with dust.
⁸That it may raise up fury and take vengeance,
^gI have set her blood on top of a rock,
That it may not be covered.”

⁹“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

^h“Woe to the bloody city!
I too will make the pyre great.
¹⁰Heap on the wood,
Kindle the fire;
Cook the meat well,
Mix in the spices,
And let the ²cuts be burned up.

¹¹“Then set the pot empty on the coals,
That it may become hot and its bronze may burn,
That ⁱits filthiness may be melted in it,
That its scum may be consumed.

¹²She has ³grown weary with ⁴lies,
And her great scum has not gone from her.
Let her scum be in the fire!

¹³In your ^jfilthiness is lewdness.
Because I have cleansed you, and you were not cleansed,
You will ^knot be cleansed of your filthiness anymore,
^lTill I have caused My fury to rest upon you.

^{14m}I, the LORD, have spoken it;
ⁿIt shall come to pass, and I will do it;
I will not hold back,
^oNor will I spare,
Nor will I relent;

According to your ways

And according to your deeds
⁵They will judge you,”
Says the Lord GOD.’ ”

The Prophet's Wife Dies

¹⁵Also the word of the LORD came to me, saying, Charts and Diagrams: Unforgettable Sermons

¹⁶“Son of man, behold, I take away from you the desire of your eyes with one stroke; yet you shall ^pneither mourn nor weep, nor shall your tears run down.

¹⁷“Sigh in silence, ^qmake no mourning for the dead; ^rbind your turban on your head, and ^sput your sandals on your feet; ^tdo not cover your ⁶lips, and do not eat man’s bread of sorrow.”

¹⁸So I spoke to the people in the morning, and at evening my wife died; and the next morning I did as I was commanded.

¹⁹And the people said to me, ^u“Will you not tell us what these things signify to us, that you behave so?”

²⁰Then I answered them, “The word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²²‘And you shall do as I have done; ^xyou shall not cover your ⁹lips nor eat man’s bread of sorrow.

²³‘Your turbans shall be on your heads and your sandals on your feet; ^yyou shall neither mourn nor weep, but ^zyou shall pine away in your iniquities and mourn with one another.

²⁴‘Thus ^aEzekiel is a sign to you; according to all that he has done you shall do; ^band when this comes, ^cyou shall know that I am the Lord GOD.’ ”

²⁵‘And you, son of man—will it not be in the day when I take from them ^dtheir stronghold, their joy and their glory, the desire of their eyes, and ¹⁰that on which they set their minds, their sons and their daughters:

²⁶‘on that day ^eone who escapes will come to you to let you hear it with your ears;

^{27f}‘on that day your mouth will be opened to him who has escaped; you shall speak and no longer be mute. Thus you will be a sign to them, and they shall know that I am the LORD.’ ”

Ezekiel 25

Proclamation Against Ammon

¹The word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, ^aset your face ^bagainst the Ammonites, and prophesy against them.

³“Say to the Ammonites, ‘Hear the word of the Lord GOD! Thus says the Lord GOD: ^c“Because you said, ‘Aha!’ against My sanctuary when it was profaned, and against the land of Israel when it was desolate, and against the house of Judah when they went into captivity, ⁴“indeed, therefore, I will deliver you as a possession to the ¹men of the East, and they shall set their encampments among you and make their dwellings among you; they shall eat your fruit, and they shall drink your milk.

⁵“And I will make ^dRabbah ^ea stable for camels and Ammon a resting place for flocks. ^fThen you shall know that I am the LORD.”

⁶“For thus says the Lord GOD: “Because you ^gclapped your hands, stamped your feet, and ^hrejoiced in heart with all your disdain for the land of Israel,

⁷“indeed, therefore, I will ⁱstretch out My hand against you, and give you as plunder to the nations; I will cut you off from the peoples, and I will cause you to perish from the countries; I will destroy you, and you shall know that I am the LORD.”

Proclamation Against Moab

⁸‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Because ^jMoab and ^kSeir say, ‘Look! The house of Judah is like all the nations,’ ⁹“therefore, behold, I will clear the territory of Moab of cities, of the cities on its frontier, the glory of the country, Beth Jeshimoth, Baal Meon, and ^lKirjathaim.

^{10m}“To the men of the East I will give it as a possession, together with the Ammonites, that the Ammonites ⁿmay not be remembered among the nations.

¹¹“And I will execute judgments upon Moab, and they shall know that I am the LORD.”

Proclamation Against Edom

¹²Thus says the Lord GOD: ^o“Because of what Edom did against the house of Judah by taking vengeance, and has greatly offended by avenging itself on them,” ¹³therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “I will also stretch out My hand against Edom, cut off man and beast from it, and make it desolate from Teman; ²Dedan shall fall by the sword.

^{14p}“I will lay My vengeance on Edom by the hand of My people Israel, that they may do in Edom according to My anger and according to My fury; and they shall know My vengeance,” says the Lord GOD.

Proclamation Against Philistia

¹⁵‘Thus says the Lord GOD: ^q“Because ^rthe Philistines dealt vengefully and took vengeance with ³a spiteful heart, to destroy because of the ⁴old hatred,”

¹⁶‘therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ^s“I will stretch out My hand against the Philistines, and I will cut off the ^tCherethites ^uand destroy the remnant of the seacoast.

¹⁷“I will ^vexecute great vengeance on them with furious rebukes; ^wand they shall know that I am the LORD, when I lay My vengeance upon them.” ’ ” In-

Ezekiel 26

Proclamation Against Tyre

¹And it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, ^abecause Tyre has said against Jerusalem, ^b‘Aha! She is broken who was the gateway of the peoples; now she is turned over to me; I shall be filled; she is laid waste.’

³“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Behold, I am against you, O Tyre, and will cause many nations to come up against you, as the sea causes its waves to come up.

⁴And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre and break down her towers; I will also scrape her dust from her, and ^cmake her like the top of a rock.

⁶Also her daughter villages which are in the fields shall be slain by the sword. ^eThen they shall know that I am the LORD.’

⁷“For thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Behold, I will bring against Tyre from the north ^fNebuchadnezzar¹ king of Babylon, ^gking of kings, with horses, with chariots, and with horsemen, and an army with many people.

⁸He will slay with the sword your daughter villages in the fields; he will ^hheap up a siege mound against you, build a wall against you, and raise a ²defense against you.

⁹He will direct his battering rams against your walls, and with his axes he will break down your towers.

¹⁰‘Because of the abundance of his horses, their dust will cover you; your walls will shake at the noise of the horsemen, the wagons, and the chariots, when he enters your gates, as men enter a city that has been breached.

¹¹‘With the hooves of his ⁱhorses he will trample all your streets; he will slay your people by the sword, and your strong pillars will fall to the ground.

¹²‘They will plunder your riches and pillage your merchandise; they will break down your walls and destroy your pleasant houses; they will lay your stones, your timber, and your soil in the ^jmidst of the water.

^{13k}‘I will put an end to the sound of ^lyour songs, and the sound of your harps shall be heard no more.

^{14m}‘I will make you like the top of a rock; you shall be a place for spreading nets, and you shall never be rebuilt, for I the LORD have spoken,’ says the Lord GOD.

¹⁵“Thus says the Lord GOD to Tyre: ‘Will the coastlands not ⁿshake at the sound of your fall, when the wounded cry, when slaughter is made in the midst of you?

¹⁶‘Then all the ^oprinces of the sea will ^pcome down from their thrones, lay aside their robes, and take off their embroidered garments; they will clothe themselves with trembling; ^qthey will sit on the ground, ^rtremble every moment, and ^sbe astonished at you.

¹⁷‘And they will take up a ^tlamentation for you, and say to you:

“How you have perished,
O one inhabited by seafaring men,
O renowned city,
Who was ^ustrong at sea,
She and her inhabitants,
Who caused their terror to be on all her inhabitants!
¹⁸Now ^vthe coastlands tremble on the day of your fall;
Yes, the coastlands by the sea are troubled at your departure.” ’

¹⁹“For thus says the Lord GOD: ‘When I make you a desolate city, like cities that are not inhabited, when I bring the deep upon you, and great waters cover you,

²⁰‘then I will bring you down ^wwith those who descend into the Pit, to the people of old, and I will make you dwell in the lowest part of the earth, in places desolate from antiquity, with those who go down to the Pit, so that you may never be inhabited; and I shall establish glory ^xin the land of the living.

^{21y}‘I will make you a terror, and you shall be no more; ^zthough you are sought for, you will never be found again,’ says the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel 27

Lamentation for Tyre

¹The word of the LORD came again to me, saying,
²“Now, son of man, ^atake up a lamentation for Tyre,
³“and say to Tyre, ^b‘You who ¹are situated at the entrance of the sea, ^cmerchant of the peoples on many coastlands, thus says the Lord GOD:

“O Tyre, you have said,
^d‘I am perfect in beauty.’
⁴Your borders are in the midst of the seas.
Your builders have perfected your beauty.
⁵They ²made all your planks of fir trees from ^eSenir;
They took a cedar from Lebanon to make you a mast.
⁶Of ^foaks from Bashan they made your oars;
The company of Ashurites have inlaid your planks
With ivory from ^gthe coasts of ³Cyprus.
⁷Fine embroidered linen from Egypt was what you spread for your sail;
Blue and purple from the coasts of Elishah was what covered
you.

⁸“Inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad were your oarsmen;
Your wise men, O Tyre, were in you;
They became your pilots.
⁹Elders of ^hGebal and its wise men
Were in you to caulk your seams;
All the ships of the sea
And their oarsmen were in you
To market your merchandise.

¹⁰“Those from Persia, ⁴Lydia, and ⁵Libya
Were in your army as men of war;
They hung shield and helmet in you;
They gave splendor to you.

¹¹Men of Arvad with your army were on your walls all around,
And the men of Gammad were in your towers;

They hung their shields on your walls all around;
They made ⁱyour beauty perfect.

^{12j}“Tarshish was your merchant because of your many luxury goods. They gave you silver, iron, tin, and lead for your goods. Bible Times & Culture Notes: Tin ^{13k}“Javan, Tubal, and Meshech were your traders. They bartered ^lhuman lives and vessels of bronze for your merchandise.

¹⁴“Those from the house of ^mTogarmah traded for your wares with horses, steeds, and mules.

¹⁵“The men of ⁿDedan were your traders; many isles were the market of your hand. They brought you ivory tusks and ebony as payment.

¹⁶“Syria was your merchant because of the abundance of goods you made. They gave you for your wares emeralds, purple, embroidery, fine linen, corals, and rubies.

¹⁷“Judah and the land of Israel were your traders. They traded for your merchandise wheat of ^oMinnith, millet, honey, oil, and ^pbalm.

¹⁸“Damascus was your merchant because of the abundance of goods you made, because of your many luxury items, with the wine of Helbon and with white wool.

¹⁹“Dan and Javan paid for your wares, ⁶traversing back and forth. Wrought iron, cassia, and cane were among your merchandise.

^{20q}“Dedan was your merchant in saddlecloths for riding.

²¹“Arabia and all the princes of ^rKedar were your regular merchants. They traded with you in lambs, rams, and goats.

²²“The merchants of ^sSheba and Raamah were your merchants. They traded for your wares the choicest spices, all kinds of precious stones, and gold.

²³“Haran, Canneh, Eden, the merchants of ^uSheba, Assyria, and Chilmad were your merchants.

²⁴“These were your merchants in choice items—in purple clothes, in embroidered garments, in chests of multicolored apparel, in sturdy woven cords, which were in your marketplace.

²⁵“The ^vships of Tarshish were carriers of your merchandise.
You were filled and very glorious ^win the midst of the seas.

²⁶Your oarsmen brought you into many waters,
But ^xthe east wind broke you in the midst of the seas.

²⁷“Your ^yriches, wares, and merchandise,
Your mariners and pilots,
Your caulkers and merchandisers,
All your men of war who are in you,
And the entire company which is in your midst,
Will fall into the midst of the seas on the day of your ruin.
²⁸The ^zcommon-land⁷ will shake at the sound of the cry of your pilots.

²⁹“All ^awho handle the oar,
The mariners,
All the pilots of the sea
Will come down from their ships and stand on the ⁸shore.
³⁰They will make their voice heard because of you;
They will cry bitterly and ^bcast dust on their heads;
They ^cwill roll about in ashes;
³¹They will ^dshave themselves completely bald because of
you,
Gird themselves with sackcloth,

And weep for you
With bitterness of heart and bitter wailing.

³²In their wailing for you
They will ^etake up a lamentation,
And lament for you:
^f‘What city is like Tyre,
Destroyed in the midst of the sea?

³³‘When^g your wares went out by sea,
You satisfied many people;
You enriched the kings of the earth
With your many luxury goods and your merchandise.

³⁴But ^hyou are broken by the seas in the depths of the waters;
ⁱYour merchandise and the entire company will fall in your midst.

³⁵^jAll the inhabitants of the isles will be astonished at you;
Their kings will be greatly afraid,
And their countenance will be troubled.

³⁶The merchants among the peoples ^kwill hiss at you;
^lYou will become a horror, and be no ^mmore forever.’ ” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28

Proclamation Against the King of Tyre

¹The word of the LORD came to me again, saying,

²“Son of man, say to the prince of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Because your heart is ^alifted¹ up,
And ^byou say, ‘I am a god,
I sit in the seat of gods,
^cIn the midst of the seas,’
^dYet you are a man, and not a god,
Though you set your heart as the heart of a god
³(Behold, ^eyou are wiser than Daniel!
There is no secret that can be hidden from you!
⁴With your wisdom and your understanding
You have gained ^friches for yourself,
And gathered gold and silver into your treasures;
^{5g}By your great wisdom in trade you have increased your riches,
And your heart is lifted up because of your riches),”

⁶“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:

“Because you have set your heart as the heart of a god, ⁷Behold, therefore, I will bring ^hstrangers against you,
ⁱThe most terrible of the nations;
And they shall draw their swords against the beauty of your wisdom,
And defile your splendor.
⁸They shall throw you down into the ^jPit,
And you shall die the death of the slain
In the midst of the seas.

⁹“Will you still ^ksay before him who slays you,
‘I am a god’?
But you shall be a man, and not a god,

In the hand of him who slays you.

¹⁰You shall die the death of ^lthe uncircumcised
By the hand of aliens;
For I have spoken,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

Lamentation for the King of Tyre

¹¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹²“Son of man, ^mtake up a lamentation for the king of Tyre, and say to him, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

ⁿ“You were the seal of perfection,
Full of wisdom and perfect in beauty.
¹³You were in ^oEden, the garden of God;
Every precious stone was your covering:
The sardius, topaz, and diamond,
Beryl, onyx, and jasper,
Sapphire, turquoise, and emerald with gold.
The workmanship of ^pyour timbrels and pipes
Was prepared for you on the day you were created.

¹⁴“You were the anointed ^qcherub who covers;
I established you;
You were on ^rthe holy mountain of God;
You walked back and forth in the midst of fiery stones.

¹⁵You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created,
Till ^siniquity was found in you.

¹⁶“By the abundance of your trading
You became filled with violence within,
And you sinned;
Therefore I cast you as a profane thing
Out of the mountain of God;
And I destroyed you, ^tO covering cherub,
From the midst of the fiery stones.

¹⁷“Your ^uheart was ²lifted up because of your beauty;
You corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor;

I cast you to the ground,
I laid you before kings,
That they might gaze at you.

¹⁸“You defiled your sanctuaries
By the multitude of your iniquities,
By the iniquity of your trading;
Therefore I brought fire from your midst;
It devoured you,
And I turned you to ashes upon the earth
In the sight of all who saw you.

¹⁹All who knew you among the peoples are astonished at you;
^vYou have become a horror,
And shall be no ^wmore forever.” ’ ”

Proclamation Against Sidon

²⁰Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²¹“Son of man, ^xset your face ^ytoward Sidon, and prophesy against her,

²²“and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

^z“Behold, I am against you, O Sidon;

I will be glorified in your midst;

And ^athey shall know that I am the LORD,

When I execute judgments in her and am ^bhallowed in her.

^{23c}For I will send pestilence upon her,

And blood in her streets;

The wounded shall be judged in her midst

By the sword against her on every side;

Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

²⁴“And there shall no longer be a pricking brier or ^da painful thorn for the house of Israel from among all who are around them, who ^edespise them. Then they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.”

Israel’s Future Blessing

²⁵“Thus says the Lord GOD: “When I have ^fgathered the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and am ^ghallowed in them in the sight of the Gentiles, then they will dwell in their own land which I gave to My servant Jacob.

²⁶“And they will ^hdwell ³safely there, ⁱbuild houses, and ^jplant vineyards; yes, they will dwell securely, when I execute judgments on all those around them who despise them. Then they shall know that I am the LORD their God.” ’ ’ ”

Ezekiel 29

Proclamation Against Egypt

¹In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, ^aset your face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and ^bagainst all Egypt.

³“Speak, and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

^c“Behold, I am against you,
O Pharaoh king of Egypt,
O great ^dmonster who lies in the midst of his rivers, ^eWho has said, ‘My ¹River is my own;
I have made it for myself.’
⁴But ^fI will put hooks in your jaws,
And cause the fish of your rivers to stick to your scales;
I will bring you up out of the midst of your rivers,
And all the fish in your rivers will stick to your scales.
⁵I will leave you in the wilderness,
You and all the fish of your rivers;
You shall fall on the ²open ^gfield;
^hYou shall not be picked up or ³gathered.
ⁱI have given you as food
To the beasts of the field
And to the birds of the heavens.

⁶“Then all the inhabitants of Egypt
Shall know that I am the LORD,
Because they have been a ^jstaff of reed to the house of Israel.
^{7k}When they took hold of you with the hand,
You broke and tore all their ⁴shoulders;
When they leaned on you,
You broke and made all their backs quiver.”

⁸‘Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “Surely I will bring ¹a sword upon you and cut off from you man and beast.

⁹“And the land of Egypt shall become ^mdesolate and waste; then they will know that I am the LORD, because he said, ‘The River is mine, and I have made it.’

¹⁰“Indeed, therefore, I am against you and against your rivers, ⁿand I will make the land of Egypt utterly waste and desolate, ^ofrom ⁵Migdol to Syene, as far as the border of Ethiopia.

^{11p}“Neither foot of man shall pass through it nor foot of beast pass through it, and it shall be uninhabited forty years.

^{12q}“I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate; and among the cities that are laid waste, her cities shall be desolate forty years; and I will ^rscatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the countries.”

¹³“Yet, thus says the Lord GOD: “At the ^send of forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they were scattered.

¹⁴“I will bring back the captives of Egypt and cause them to return to the land of Pathros, to the land of their origin, and there they shall be a ^tlowly kingdom.

¹⁵“It shall be the lowliest of kingdoms; it shall never again exalt itself above the nations, for I will diminish them so that they will not rule over the nations anymore.

¹⁶“No longer shall it be ^uthe confidence of the house of Israel, but will remind them of their iniquity when they turned to follow them. Then they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.” ’ ’ ”

Babylonia Will Plunder Egypt

¹⁷And it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹⁸“Son of man, ^vNebuchadnezzar king of Babylon caused his army to labor strenuously against Tyre; every head was made ^wbald, and every shoulder rubbed raw; yet neither he nor his army received wages from Tyre, for the labor which they expended on it.

¹⁹“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Surely I will give the land of Egypt to ^xNebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; he shall take away her wealth, carry off her spoil, and remove her pillage; and that will be the wages for his army.

²⁰‘I have given him the land of Egypt for his labor, because they ^yworked for Me,’ says the Lord GOD.

²¹‘In that day ^zI will cause the ⁶horn of the house of Israel to spring forth, and I will ^aopen your mouth to speak in their midst. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.’ ”

Ezekiel 30

Egypt and Her Allies Will Fall

¹The word of the LORD came to me again, saying,

²“Son of man, prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

^a“Wail, ‘Woe to the day!’

³For ^bthe day is near,

Even the day of the LORD is near;

It will be a day of clouds, the time of the Gentiles.

⁴The sword shall come upon Egypt,

And great anguish shall be in ¹Ethiopia,

When the slain fall in Egypt,

And they ^ctake away her wealth,

And ^dher foundations are broken down.

⁵“Ethiopia, ²Libya, ³Lydia, ^eall the mingled people, Chub, and the men of the lands who are allied, shall fall with them by the sword.”

⁶“Thus says the LORD:

“Those who uphold Egypt shall fall,

And the pride of her power shall come down.

^fFrom ⁴Migdol to Syene

Those within her shall fall by the sword,”

Says the Lord GOD.

⁷“They^g shall be desolate in the midst of the desolate countries,

And her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are laid waste.

⁸Then they will know that I am the LORD,

When I have set a fire in Egypt

And all her helpers are destroyed.

⁹On that day ^hmessengers shall go forth from Me in ships

To make the ⁵careless Ethiopians afraid,

And great anguish shall come upon them,

As on the day of Egypt;
For indeed it is coming!” Bible Times & Culture Notes: Ships

¹⁰‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

ⁱ“I will also make a multitude of Egypt to cease
By the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.
¹¹He and his people with him, ^jthe most terrible of the nations,
Shall be brought to destroy the land;
They shall draw their swords against Egypt,
And fill the land with the slain.
^{12k}I will make the rivers dry,
And ^lsell the land into the hand of the wicked;
I will make the land waste, and all that is in it,
By the hand of aliens.
I, the LORD, have spoken.”

¹³‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

“I will also ^mdestroy the idols,
And cause the images to cease from ⁶Noph;
ⁿThere shall no longer be princes from the land of Egypt;
^oI will put fear in the land of Egypt.
¹⁴I will make ^pPathros desolate,
Set fire to ^qZoan,
^rAnd execute judgments in ⁷No.
¹⁵I will pour My fury on ⁸Sin, the strength of Egypt;
^sI will cut off the multitude of ⁹No,
¹⁶And ^tset a fire in Egypt;
Sin shall have great pain,
No shall be split open,
And Noph shall be in distress daily.
¹⁷The young men of ¹⁰Aven and Pi Beseth shall fall by the sword,
And these cities shall go into captivity.
^{18u}At ¹¹Tehaphnehes the day shall also be ¹²darkened,
When I break the yokes of Egypt there.
And her arrogant strength shall cease in her;

As for her, a cloud shall cover her,
And her daughters shall go into captivity.
¹⁹Thus I will ^vexecute judgments on Egypt,
Then they shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ”

Proclamation Against Pharaoh

²⁰And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²¹“Son of man, I have ^wbroken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and see, ^xit has not been bandaged for healing, nor a ¹³splint put on to bind it, to make it strong enough to hold a sword.

²²“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Surely I am ^yagainst Pharaoh king of Egypt, and will ^zbreak his arms, both the strong one and the one that was broken; and I will make the sword fall out of his hand.

^{23a}I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them throughout the countries.

²⁴I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon and put My sword in his hand; but I will break Pharaoh’s arms, and he will groan before him with the groanings of a mortally wounded man.

²⁵Thus I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down; ^bthey shall know that I am the LORD, when I put My sword into the hand of the king of Babylon and he stretches it out against the land of Egypt.

^{26c}I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the countries. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.’ ”

Ezekiel 31

Egypt Cut Down Like a Great Tree

(cf. Ezek. 17:22–24)

¹Now it came to pass in the ^aeleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, say to Pharaoh king of Egypt and to his multitude:

^b“Whom are you like in your greatness?

^{3c}Indeed Assyria was a cedar in Lebanon,
With fine branches that shaded the forest,
And of high stature;
And its top was among the thick boughs.

^{4d}The waters made it grow;
Underground waters gave it height,
With their rivers running around the place where it was planted,
And sent out ¹rivulets to all the trees of the field.

⁵“Therefore ^eits height was exalted above all the trees of the field;
Its boughs were multiplied,
And its branches became long because of the abundance of water,
As it sent them out.

⁶All the ^fbirds of the heavens made their nests in its boughs;
Under its branches all the beasts of the field brought forth their young;
And in its shadow all great nations ²made their home.

⁷“Thus it was beautiful in greatness and in the length of its branches,
Because its roots reached to abundant waters.

⁸The cedars in the ^ggarden of God could not hide it;
The fir trees were not like its boughs,
And the ³chestnut trees were not like its branches;

No tree in the garden of God was like it in beauty.

⁹I made it beautiful with a multitude of branches,
So that all the trees of Eden envied it,
That were in the garden of God.'

¹⁰“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ‘Because you have increased in height, and it set its top among the thick boughs, and ^hits heart was ⁴lifted up in its height,

¹¹‘therefore I will deliver it into the hand of the ⁱmighty one of the nations, and he shall surely deal with it; I have driven it out for its wickedness.

¹²‘And aliens, ^jthe most terrible of the nations, have cut it down and left it; its branches have fallen ^kon the mountains and in all the valleys; its boughs lie ^lbroken by all the rivers of the land; and all the peoples of the earth have gone from under its shadow and left it.

¹³‘On ^mits ruin will remain all the birds of the heavens,
And all the beasts of the field will come to its branches—

¹⁴‘So that no trees by the waters may ever again exalt themselves for their height, nor set their tops among the thick boughs, that no tree which drinks water may ever be high enough to reach up to them.

‘For ⁿthey have all been delivered to death,
^oTo the depths of the earth,
Among the children of men who go down to the Pit.’

¹⁵“Thus says the Lord GOD: ‘In the day when it ^pwent down to ⁵hell, I caused mourning. I covered the deep because of it. I restrained its rivers, and the great waters were held back. I caused Lebanon to ⁶mourn for it, and all the trees of the field wilted because of it.

¹⁶‘I made the nations ^qshake at the sound of its fall, when I ^rcast it down to ⁷hell together with those who descend into the Pit; and ^sall the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, ^twere comforted in the depths of the earth.

¹⁷‘They also went down to hell with it, with those slain by the sword; and those who were its strong arm ^udwelt in its shadows among the nations.

^{18v}‘To which of the trees in Eden will you then be likened in glory and greatness? Yet you shall be brought down with the trees of Eden to the depths of the earth; ^wyou shall lie in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his multitude,' says the Lord GOD."

Ezekiel 32

Lamentation for Pharaoh and Egypt

¹And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the ^atwelfth month, on the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, ^btake up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say to him:

^c‘You are like a young lion among the nations,
And ^d*you are* like a monster in the seas,
^eBursting forth in your rivers,
Troubling the waters with your feet,
And ^ffouling their rivers.’

³“Thus says the Lord GOD:

‘I will therefore ^gspread My net over you with a company of many people,

And they will draw you up in My net.

⁴Then ^hI will leave you on the land;

I will cast you out on the open fields,

ⁱAnd cause to ¹settle on you all the birds of the heavens.

And with you I will fill the beasts of the whole earth.

⁵I will lay your flesh ^jon the mountains,

And fill the valleys with your carcass.

⁶I will also water the land with the flow of your blood,

Even to the mountains;

And the riverbeds will be full of you.

⁷When I put out your light,

^kI will cover the heavens, and make its stars dark;

I will cover the sun with a cloud,

And the moon shall not give her light.

⁸All the ²bright lights of the heavens I will make dark over
you,

And bring darkness upon your land,’

Says the Lord GOD.

⁹I will also trouble the hearts of many peoples, when I bring your destruction among the nations, into the countries which you have not known.

¹⁰‘Yes, I will make many peoples astonished at you, and their kings shall be horribly afraid of you when I brandish My sword before them; and ^lthey shall tremble every moment, every man for his own life, in the day of your fall.’

^{11m}“For thus says the Lord GOD: ‘The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon you.

¹²‘By the swords of the mighty warriors, all of them ⁿthe most terrible of the nations, I will cause your multitude to fall.

^o‘They shall plunder the pomp of Egypt,
And all its multitude shall be destroyed.

¹³Also I will destroy all its animals
From beside its great waters;

^pThe foot of man shall muddy them no more,
Nor shall the hooves of animals muddy them.

¹⁴Then I will make their waters ³clear,
And make their rivers run like oil,’
Says the Lord GOD.

¹⁵‘When I make the land of Egypt desolate,
And the country is destitute of all that once filled it,
When I strike all who dwell in it,
^qThen they shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁶‘This is the ^rlamentation
With which they shall lament her;
The daughters of the nations shall lament her;
They shall lament for her, for Egypt,
And for all her multitude,’
Says the Lord GOD.”

Egypt and Others Consigned to the Pit

¹⁷It came to pass also in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the month, ^s*that* the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

¹⁸“Son of man, wail over the multitude of Egypt,
And ^tcast them down to the depths of the earth,

Her and the daughters of the famous nations,
With those who go down to the Pit:
¹⁹‘Whom ^udo you surpass in beauty?
^vGo down, be placed with the uncircumcised.’

²⁰“They shall fall in the midst of those slain by the sword;
She is delivered to the sword,
^wDrawing her and all her multitudes.
²¹^xThe strong among the mighty
Shall speak to him out of the midst of hell
With those who help him:
‘They have ^ygone down,
They lie with the uncircumcised, slain by the sword.’

²²“Assyria^z is there, and all her company,
With their graves all around her,
All of them slain, fallen by the sword.
²³^aHer graves are set in the recesses of the Pit,
And her company is all around her grave,
All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
Who ^bcaused terror in the land of the living.

²⁴“There is ^cElam and all her multitude,
All around her grave,
All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
Who have ^dgone down uncircumcised to the lower parts of the earth,
^eWho caused their terror in the land of the living;
Now they bear their shame with those who go down to the Pit.

²⁵They have set her ^fbed in the midst of the slain,
With all her multitude,
With her graves all around it,
All of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword;

Though their terror was caused
In the land of the living,

Yet they bear their shame
With those who go down to the Pit;
It was put in the midst of the slain.

²⁶“There are ^gMeshech and Tubal and all their multitudes,
With all their graves around it,
All of them ^huncircumcised, slain by the sword,
Though they caused their terror in the land of the living.

²⁷ⁱThey do not lie with the mighty
Who are fallen of the uncircumcised,
Who have gone down to hell with their weapons of war;
They have laid their swords under their heads,
But their iniquities will be on their bones,
Because of the terror of the mighty in the land of the living.

²⁸Yes, you shall be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised,
And lie with those slain by the sword.

²⁹“There is ^jEdom,
Her kings and all her princes,

Who despite their might
Are laid beside those slain by the sword;
They shall lie with the uncircumcised,
And with those who go down to the Pit.

³⁰^kThere are the princes of the north,
All of them, and all the ^lSidonians,
Who have gone down with the slain
In shame at the terror which they caused by their might;
They lie uncircumcised with those slain by the sword,
And bear their shame with those who go down to the Pit.

³¹“Pharaoh will see them
And be ^mcomforted over all his multitude,
Pharaoh and all his army,
Slain by the sword,”
Says the Lord GOD.

³²“For I have caused My terror in the land of the living;
And he shall be placed in the midst of the uncircumcised
With those slain by the sword,
Pharaoh and all his multitude,”
Says the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel 33

The Watchman and His Message

¹Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, speak to ^athe children of your people, and say to them:
^b‘When I bring the sword upon a land, and the people of the land take a man from their territory and make him their ^cwatchman, Word Studies: watchman

³‘when he sees the sword coming upon the land, if he blows the trumpet and warns the people,

⁴‘then whoever hears the sound of the trumpet and does ^dnot take warning, if the sword comes and takes him away, ^ehis blood shall be on his own head.

⁵‘He heard the sound of the trumpet, but did not take warning; his blood shall be upon himself. But he who takes warning will ¹save his life.

⁶‘But if the watchman sees the sword coming and does not blow the trumpet, and the people are not warned, and the sword comes and takes any person from among them, ^fhe is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood I will require at the watchman’s hand.’

^{7g}“So you, son of man: I have made you a watchman for the house of Israel; therefore you shall hear a word from My mouth and warn them for Me.

⁹“Nevertheless if you warn the wicked to turn from his way, and he does not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but you have ²delivered your soul.

¹⁰“Therefore you, O son of man, say to the house of Israel: ‘Thus you say, “If our transgressions and our sins lie upon us, and we ^hpine³ away in them, ⁱhow can we then live?” ’

¹¹“Say to them: ‘As I live,’ says the Lord GOD, ^j‘I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked ^kturn from his way and live. Turn, turn from your evil ways! For ^lwhy should you die, O house of Israel?’

The Fairness of God’s Judgment

¹²“Therefore you, O son of man, say to the children of your people: ‘The ^mrighteousness of the righteous man shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression; as for the wickedness of the wicked, ⁿhe shall not fall because of it in the day that he turns from his wickedness; nor shall the righteous be able to live because of his righteousness in the day that he sins.'

¹³"When I say to the righteous that he shall surely live, ^obut he trusts in his own righteousness and commits iniquity, none of his righteous works shall be remembered; but because of the iniquity that he has committed, he shall die.

¹⁴"Again, ^pwhen I say to the wicked, 'You shall surely die,' if he turns from his sin and does ⁴what is lawful and ⁵right, ¹⁵"if the wicked ^qrestores the pledge, ^rgives back what he has stolen, and walks in ^sthe statutes of life without committing iniquity, he shall surely live; he shall not die.

¹⁶"None of his sins which he has committed shall be remembered against him; he has done what is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

¹⁷^u"Yet the children of your people say, 'The way of the LORD is not ⁶fair.' But it is their way which is not fair!

¹⁸^v"When the righteous turns from his righteousness and commits iniquity, he shall die because of it.

¹⁹"But when the wicked turns from his wickedness and does what is lawful and right, he shall live because of it.

²⁰"Yet you say, ^w"The way of the LORD is not ⁷fair.' O house of Israel, I will judge every one of you according to his own ways."

The Fall of Jerusalem

²¹And it came to pass in the twelfth year ^xof our captivity, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month, ^y*that* one who had escaped from Jerusalem came to me and said, ^z“The city has been ⁸captured!”

²²Now ^athe hand of the LORD had been upon me the evening before the man came who had escaped. And He had ^bopened my mouth; so when he came to me in the morning, my mouth was opened, and I was no longer mute.

The Cause of Judah’s Ruin

²³Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

²⁴“Son of man, ^cthey who inhabit those ^druins in the land of Israel are saying, ^e“Abraham was only one, and he inherited the land. ^fBut we are many; the land has been given to us as a ^gpossession.’

²⁵“Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: ^h“You eat meat with blood, you ⁱlift up your eyes toward your idols, and ^jshed blood. Should you then possess the ^kland?

²⁶“You rely on your sword, you commit abominations, and you ^ldefile one another’s wives. Should you then possess the land?” ’

²⁷“Say thus to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “As I live, surely ^mthose who are in the ruins shall fall by the sword, and the one who is in the open field ⁿI will give to the beasts to be devoured, and those who are in the strongholds and ^ocaves shall die of the pestilence.

^{28p}“For I will make the land most desolate, ⁹her ^qarrogant strength shall cease, and ^rthe mountains of Israel shall be so desolate that no one will pass through.

²⁹“Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have made the land most desolate because of all their abominations which they have committed.” ’

Hearing and Not Doing

³⁰“As for you, son of man, the children of your people are talking about you beside the walls and in the doors of the houses; and they ^sspeak to one another, everyone saying to his brother, ‘Please come and hear what the word is that comes from the LORD.’

³²“Indeed you are to them as a very lovely song of one who has a pleasant voice and can play well on an instrument; for they hear your words, but they do ^ynot do them.

^{33z}“And when this comes to pass—surely it will come—then ^athey will know that a prophet has been among them.”

Ezekiel 34

Irresponsible Shepherds

¹And the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD to the shepherds: ^a“Woe to the shepherds of Israel who feed themselves! Should not the shepherds feed the flocks?”

^{3b}“You eat the fat and clothe yourselves with the wool; you ^cslaughter the fatlings, but you do not feed the flock.

^{4d}“The weak you have not strengthened, nor have you healed those who were sick, nor bound up the broken, nor brought back what was driven away, nor ^esought what was lost; but with ^fforce and ¹cruelty you have ruled them.

^{5g}“So they were ^hscattered because there was no shepherd; ⁱand they became food for all the beasts of the field when they were scattered.

⁶“My sheep ^jwandered through all the mountains, and on every high hill; yes, My flock was scattered over the whole face of the earth, and no one was seeking or searching for them.”

⁷“Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD:

⁸“As I live,” says the Lord GOD, “surely because My flock became a prey, and My flock ^kbecame food for every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, nor did My shepherds search for My flock, ^lbut the shepherds fed themselves and did not feed My flock”—

⁹“therefore, O shepherds, hear the word of the LORD!

¹⁰“Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I am ^magainst the shepherds, and ⁿI will require My flock at their hand; I will cause them to cease feeding the sheep, and the shepherds shall ^ofeed themselves no more; for I will ^pdeliver My flock from their mouths, that they may no longer be food for them.”

God, the True Shepherd

¹¹“For thus says the Lord GOD: “Indeed I Myself will search for My sheep and seek them out. Article: Shepherds

¹²“As a ^qshepherd seeks out his flock on the day he is among his scattered sheep, so will I seek out My sheep and deliver them from all the places where they were scattered on ^ra cloudy and dark day.

¹³“And ^sI will bring them out from the peoples and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land; I will feed them on the mountains of Israel, ²in the valleys and in all the inhabited places of the country.

¹⁴“I will feed them in good pasture, and their fold shall be on the high mountains of Israel. ^uThere they shall lie down in a good fold and feed in rich pasture on the mountains of Israel.

¹⁵“I will feed My flock, and I will make them lie down,” says the Lord GOD.

^{16v}“I will seek what was lost and bring back what was driven away, bind up the broken and strengthen what was sick; but I will destroy ^wthe fat and the strong, and feed them ^xin judgment.”

¹⁷‘And as for you, O My flock, thus says the Lord GOD: ^y“Behold, I shall judge between sheep and sheep, between rams and goats.

¹⁸“Is it too little for you to have eaten up the good pasture, that you must tread down with your feet the ³residue of your pasture—and to have drunk of the clear waters, that you must foul the residue with your feet?

¹⁹“And as for My flock, they eat what you have trampled with your feet, and they drink what you have fouled with your feet.”

²⁰‘Therefore thus says the Lord GOD to them: ^z“Behold, I Myself will judge between the fat and the lean sheep.

²¹“Because you have pushed with side and shoulder, butted all the weak ones with your horns, and scattered them abroad, ²²“therefore I will save My flock, and they shall no longer be a prey; and I will judge between sheep and sheep.

²³“I will establish one ^ashepherd over them, and he shall feed them—^bMy servant David. He shall feed them and be their shepherd.

²⁴“And ^cI, the LORD, will be their God, and My servant David ^da prince among them; I, the LORD, have spoken.

^{25e}“I will make a covenant of peace with them, and ^fcause wild beasts to cease from the land; and they ^gwill dwell safely in the wilderness and sleep in the woods.

²⁶“I will make them and the places all around ^hMy hill ⁱa blessing; and I will ^jcause showers to come down in their season; there shall be ^kshowers of blessing.

²⁷“Then ^lthe trees of the field shall yield their fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase. They shall be safe in their land; and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have ^mbroken the bands of their yoke and delivered them from the hand of those who ⁿenslaved them.

²⁸“And they shall no longer be a prey for the nations, nor shall beasts of the land devour them; but ^othey shall dwell safely, and no one shall make them afraid.

²⁹“I will raise up for them a ^pgarden⁴ of renown, and they shall ^qno longer be consumed with hunger in the land, ^rnor bear the shame of the Gentiles anymore.

³⁰“Thus they shall know that ^sI, the LORD their God, am with them, and they, the house of Israel, are ^tMy people,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

³¹“You are My ^uflock, the flock of My pasture; you are men, and I am your God,” says the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel 35

Judgment on Mount Seir

¹Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

²“Son of man, set your face against ^aMount Seir and ^bprophesy against it,

³“and say to it, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, O Mount Seir, I am against you;

^cI will stretch out My hand against you,

And make you ¹most desolate;

⁴I shall lay your cities waste,

And you shall be desolate.

Then you shall know that I am the LORD.

^{5d}“Because you have had an ²ancient hatred, and have shed the blood of the children of Israel by the power of the sword at the time of their calamity, ^e*when* their iniquity came to an end, ⁶“therefore, as I live,” says the Lord GOD, “I will prepare you for ^fblood, and blood shall pursue you; ^gsince you have not hated ³blood, therefore blood shall pursue you.

⁷“Thus I will make Mount Seir ⁴most desolate, and cut off from it the ^hone who leaves and the one who returns.

⁸“And I will fill its mountains with the slain; on your hills and in your valleys and in all your ravines those who are slain by the sword shall fall.

⁹ⁱ“I will make you ⁵perpetually desolate, and your cities shall be uninhabited; ^jthen you shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁰“Because you have said, ‘These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will ^kpossess them,’ although ^lthe LORD was there, ¹¹“therefore, as I live,” says the Lord GOD, “I will do ^maccording to your anger and according to the envy which you showed in your hatred against them; and I will make Myself known among them when I judge you.

¹²ⁿ“Then you shall know that I am the LORD. I have ^oheard all your ^pblasphemies which you have spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying, ‘They are desolate; they are given to us to consume.’

¹³“Thus ^qwith your mouth you have ⁶boasted against Me and multiplied your ^rwords against Me; I have heard them.”

¹⁴“Thus says the Lord GOD: ^s“The whole earth will rejoice when I make you desolate.

¹⁵“As you rejoiced because the inheritance of the house of Israel was desolate, ^uso I will do to you; you shall be desolate, O Mount Seir, as well as all of Edom—all of it! Then they shall know that I am the LORD.” ’

Ezekiel 36

Blessing on Israel

¹“And you, son of man, prophesy to the ^amountains of Israel, and say, ‘O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD!’

²“Thus says the Lord GOD: “Because ^bthe enemy has said of you, ‘Aha! ^cThe ¹ancient heights ^dhave become our possession,’ ” ’

³“therefore prophesy, and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Because they made you desolate and swallowed you up on every side, so that you became the possession of the rest of the nations, ^eand you are taken up by the lips of ^ftalkers and slandered by the people”—

⁴“therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD! Thus says the Lord GOD to the mountains, the hills, the ²rivers, the valleys, the desolate wastes, and the cities that have been forsaken, which ^gbecame plunder and ^hmockery to the rest of the nations all around—

⁵“therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ⁱ“Surely I have spoken in My burning jealousy against the rest of the nations and against all Edom, ^jwho gave My land to themselves as a possession, with wholehearted joy and ³spiteful minds, in order to plunder its open country.” ’

⁶“Therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains, the hills, the rivers, and the valleys, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I have spoken in My jealousy and My fury, because you have ^kborne the shame of the nations.”

⁷“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “I have ^lraised My hand in an oath that surely the nations that are around you shall ^mbear their own shame.

⁸“But you, O mountains of Israel, you shall shoot forth your branches and yield your fruit to My people Israel, for they are about to come.

⁹“For indeed I am for you, and I will turn to you, and you shall be tilled and sown.

¹⁰“I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, all of it; and the cities shall be inhabited and ⁿthe ruins rebuilt.

¹¹^o“I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and ⁴bear young; I will make you inhabited as in former times, and do ^pbetter for you than at your beginnings. ^qThen you shall know that I am the LORD.

¹²“Yes, I will cause men to walk on you, My people Israel; ^rthey shall take possession of you, and you shall be their inheritance; no more shall you ^sbereave them of children.”

¹³“Thus says the Lord GOD: “Because they say to you, ^t“You devour men and bereave your nation of children,

¹⁴“therefore you shall devour men no more, nor bereave your nation anymore,” says the Lord GOD.

^{15u}“Nor will I let you hear the taunts of the nations anymore, nor bear the reproach of the peoples anymore, nor shall you cause your nation to stumble anymore,” says the Lord GOD.’ ”

The Renewal of Israel

¹⁶Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying:

¹⁷“Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, ^vthey defiled it by their own ways and deeds; to Me their way was like ^wthe uncleanness of a woman in her customary impurity.

¹⁸“Therefore I poured out My fury on them ^xfor the blood they had shed on the land, and for their idols with which they had defiled it.

¹⁹“So I ^yscattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed throughout the countries; I judged them ^zaccording to their ways and their deeds.

²⁰“When they came to the nations, wherever they went, they ^aprofaned My holy name—when they said of them, ‘These are the people of the LORD, and yet they have gone out of His land.’

²¹“But I had concern ^bfor My holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations wherever they went.

²²“Therefore say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “I do not do this for your sake, O house of Israel, ^cbut for My holy name’s sake, which you have profaned among the nations wherever you went.

²³“And I will sanctify My great name, which has been profaned among the nations, which you have profaned in their midst; and the nations shall know that I am the LORD,” says the Lord GOD, “when I am ^dhallowed in you before their eyes.

²⁴“For ^eI will take you from among the nations, gather you out of all countries, and bring you into your own land.

²⁵^f“Then I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you shall be clean; I will cleanse you ^gfrom all your filthiness and from all your idols.

²⁶“I will give you a ^hnew heart and put a new spirit within you; I will take the heart of stone out of your flesh and give you a heart of flesh.

²⁷“I will put My ⁱSpirit within you and cause you to walk in My statutes, and you will keep My judgments and do them.

²⁸^j“Then you shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; ^kyou shall be My people, and I will be your God.

²⁹“I will ^ldeliver you from all your uncleannesses. ^mI will call for the grain and multiply it, and ⁿbring no famine upon you.

³⁰^o“And I will multiply the fruit of your trees and the increase of your fields, so that you need never again bear the reproach of famine among the nations.

³¹“Then ^pyou will remember your evil ways and your deeds that were not good; and you ^qwill ⁵loathe yourselves in your own sight, for your iniquities and your abominations.

^{32r}“Not for your sake do I do this,” says the Lord GOD, “let it be known to you. Be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel!”

³³“Thus says the Lord GOD: “On the day that I cleanse you from all your iniquities, I will also enable you to dwell in the cities, ^sand the ruins shall be rebuilt.

³⁴“The desolate land shall be tilled instead of lying desolate in the sight of all who pass by.

³⁵“So they will say, ‘This land that was desolate has become like the garden of ^tEden; and the wasted, desolate, and ruined cities are now fortified and inhabited.’

³⁶“Then the nations which are left all around you shall know that I, the LORD, have rebuilt the ruined places and planted what was desolate. ^uI, the LORD, have spoken it, and I will do it.”

³⁷“Thus says the Lord GOD: ^v“I will also let the house of Israel inquire of Me to do this for them: I will ^wincrease their men like a flock.

³⁸“Like a ⁶flock offered as holy sacrifices, like the flock at Jerusalem on its ⁷feast days, so shall the ruined cities be filled with flocks of men. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ’ ”

Ezekiel 37

The Dry Bones Live

¹The ^ahand of the LORD came upon me and brought me out ^bin the Spirit of the LORD, and set me down in the midst of the valley; and it was full of bones. Charts and Diagrams: The Visions of Ezekiel

²Then He caused me to pass by them all around, and behold, there were very many in the open valley; and indeed they were very dry.

³And He said to me, “Son of man, can these bones live?” So I answered, “O Lord GOD, ^cYou know.”

⁴Again He said to me, “Prophecy to these bones, and say to them, ‘O dry bones, hear the word of the LORD!’

⁵‘Thus says the Lord GOD to these bones: “Surely I will ^dcause breath to enter into you, and you shall live.

⁶“I will put sinews on you and bring flesh upon you, cover you with skin and put breath in you; and you shall live. ^eThen you shall know that I am the LORD.” ’ ’ ”

⁷So I prophesied as I was commanded; and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and suddenly a rattling; and the bones came together, bone to bone.

⁸Indeed, as I looked, the sinews and the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them over; but there was no breath in them.

⁹Also He said to me, “Prophecy to the breath, prophecy, son of man, and say to the ¹breath, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: ^f“Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe on these slain, that they may live.” ’ ’ ”

¹⁰So I prophesied as He commanded me, ^gand ²breath came into them, and they lived, and stood upon their feet, an exceedingly great army.

¹¹Then He said to me, “Son of man, these bones are the ^hwhole house of Israel. They indeed say, ⁱ“Our bones are dry, our hope is lost, and we ourselves are cut off!’

¹²“Therefore prophecy and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, ^jO My people, I will open your graves and cause you to come up from your graves, and ^kbring you into the land of Israel.

¹³“Then you shall know that I am the LORD, when I have opened your graves, O My people, and brought you up from your graves.

¹⁴“I ^lwill put My Spirit in you, and you shall live, and I will place you in your own land. Then you shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken it and performed it,” says the LORD.’ ”

One Kingdom, One King

¹⁵Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

¹⁶“As for you, son of man, ^mtake a stick for yourself and write on it: ‘For Judah and for ⁿthe children of Israel, his companions.’ Then take another stick and write on it, ‘For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel, his companions.’

¹⁷“Then ^ojoin them one to another for yourself into one stick, and they will become one in your hand.

¹⁸“And when the children of your people speak to you, saying, ^p‘Will you not show us what you mean by these?’— ^{19q}“say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Surely I will take ^rthe stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel, his companions; and I will join them with it, with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they will be one in My hand.” ’

²⁰“And the sticks on which you write will be in your hand ^sbefore their eyes.

²¹“Then say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Surely ^tI will take the children of Israel from among the nations, wherever they have gone, and will gather them from every side and bring them into their own land;

²²“and ^uI will make them one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel; and ^vone king shall be king over them all; they shall no longer be two nations, nor shall they ever be divided into two kingdoms again.

^{23w}“They shall not defile themselves anymore with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions; but ^xI will deliver them from all their dwelling places in which they have sinned, and will cleanse them. Then they shall be My people, and I will be their God.

^{24y}“David My servant shall be king over them, and ^zthey shall all have one shepherd; ^athey shall also walk in My judgments and observe My statutes, and do them.

^{25b}“Then they shall dwell in the land that I have given to Jacob My servant, where your fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell there, they, their children, and their children’s children, ^cforever; and ^dMy servant David shall be their prince forever.

²⁶“Moreover I will ³make ^ea covenant of peace with them, and it shall be an everlasting covenant with them; I will establish them and ^fmultiply them, and I will set My ^gsanctuary in their midst forevermore.

^{27h}“My tabernacle also shall be with them; indeed I will be ⁱtheir God, and they shall be My people.

^{28j}“The nations also will know that I, the LORD, ^ksanctify Israel, when My sanctuary is in their midst forevermore.” ’ ’ ”

Ezekiel 38

Gog and Allies Attack Israel

¹Now the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

^{2a}“Son of man, ^bset your face against ^cGog, of the land of ^dMagog, ¹the prince of Rosh, ^eMeshech, and Tubal, and prophesy against him, Word Studies: Gog

³“and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I am against you, O Gog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal.

^{4f}“I will turn you around, put hooks into your jaws, and ^glead you out, with all your army, horses, and horsemen, ^hall splendidly clothed, a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords.

⁵“Persia, ²Ethiopia, and ³Libya are with them, all of them with shield and helmet;

⁶ⁱ“Gomer and all its troops; the house of ^jTogarmah from the far north and all its troops—many people are with you.

^{7k}“Prepare yourself and be ready, you and all your companies that are gathered about you; and be a guard for them.

^{8l}“After many days ^myou will be visited. In the latter years you will come into the land of those brought back from the sword ⁿ*and* gathered from many people on ^othe mountains of Israel, which had long been desolate; they were brought out of the nations, and now all of them ^p dwell safely.

⁹“You will ascend, coming ^qlike a storm, covering the ^rland like a cloud, you and all your troops and many peoples with you.”

¹⁰“Thus says the Lord GOD: “On that day it shall come to pass that thoughts will arise in your mind, and you will make an evil plan:

¹¹“You will say, ‘I will go up against a land of ^sunwalled villages; I will ^tgo to a peaceful people, ^uwho dwell ⁴safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates’—

¹²“to take plunder and to take booty, to stretch out your hand against the waste places that are again inhabited, ^vand against a people gathered from the nations, who have acquired livestock and goods, who dwell in the midst of the land.

^{13w}“Sheba, ^xDedan, the merchants ^yof Tarshish, and all ^ztheir young lions will say to you, ‘Have you come to take plunder? Have you gathered your army to take booty, to carry away silver and gold, to take away livestock and goods, to take great plunder?’ ” ’

¹⁴“Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say to Gog, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: ^a“On that day when My people Israel ^bdwell safely, will you not know it?

^{15c}“Then you will come from your place out of the far north, you and many peoples with you, all of them riding on horses, a great company and a mighty army.

¹⁶“You will come up against My people Israel like a cloud, to cover the land. It will be in the latter days that I will bring you against My land, so that the nations may ^dknow Me, when I am ^ehallowed in you, O Gog, before their eyes.”

¹⁷“Thus says the Lord GOD: “Are you he of whom I have spoken in former days by My servants the prophets of Israel, who prophesied for years in those days that I would bring you against them?

Judgment on Gog

¹⁸“And it will come to pass at the same time, when Gog comes against the land of Israel,” says the Lord GOD, “that My fury will show in My face.

¹⁹“For ^fin My jealousy ^gand in the fire of My wrath I have spoken: ^h“Surely in that day there shall be a great ⁵earthquake in the land of Israel,

²⁰“so that ⁱthe fish of the sea, the birds of the heavens, the beasts of the field, all creeping things that creep on the earth, and all men who are on the face of the earth shall shake at My presence. ^jThe mountains shall be thrown down, the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.’

²¹“I will ^kcall for ^la sword against Gog throughout all My mountains,” says the Lord GOD. ^m“Every man’s sword will be against his brother.

²²“And I will ⁿbring him to judgment with ^opestilence and bloodshed; ^pI will rain down on him, on his troops, and on the many peoples who are with him, flooding rain, ^qgreat hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

²³“Thus I will magnify Myself and ^rsanctify Myself, ^sand I will be known in the eyes of many nations. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.” ’

Ezekiel 39

Gog's Armies Destroyed

¹“And ^ayou, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I am against you, O Gog, ¹the prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal;

²“and I will ^bturn you around and lead you on, ^cbringing you up from the far north, and bring you against the mountains of Israel.

³“Then I will knock the bow out of your left hand, and cause the arrows to fall out of your right hand.

^{4d}“You shall ²fall upon the mountains of Israel, you and all your troops and the peoples who are with you; ^eI will give you to birds of prey of every sort and to the beasts of the field to be devoured.

⁵“You shall ³fall on ⁴the open field; for I have spoken,” says the Lord GOD.

^{6f}“And I will send fire on Magog and on those who live ⁵in security in ⁸the coastlands. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

^{7h}“So I will make My holy name known in the midst of My people Israel, and I will not let them ⁱprofane My holy name anymore. ^jThen the nations shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel.

^{8k}“Surely it is coming, and it shall be done,” says the Lord GOD. “This is the day ¹of which I have spoken.

⁹“Then those who dwell in the cities of Israel will go out and set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and bucklers, the bows and arrows, the ⁶javelins and spears; and they will make fires with them for seven years.

¹⁰“They will not take wood from the field nor cut down any from the forests, because they will make fires with the weapons; ^mand they will plunder those who plundered them, and pillage those who pillaged them,” says the Lord GOD.

The Burial of Gog

¹¹“It will come to pass in that day that I will give Gog a burial place there in Israel, the valley of those who pass by east of the sea; and it will obstruct travelers, because there they will bury Gog and all his multitude. Therefore they will call it the Valley of ⁷Hamon Gog.

¹²“For seven months the house of Israel will be burying them, ⁿin order to cleanse the land.

¹³“Indeed all the people of the land will be burying, and they will gain ^orenown for it on the day that ^pI am glorified,” says the Lord GOD.

¹⁴“They will set apart men regularly employed, with the help of ⁸a search party, to pass through the land and bury those bodies remaining on the ground, in order ^qto cleanse it. At the end of seven months they will make a search.

¹⁵“The search party will pass through the land; and when anyone sees a man’s bone, he shall ⁹set up a marker by it, till the buriers have buried it in the Valley of Hamon Gog.

¹⁶“The name of the city will also be ¹⁰Hamonah. Thus they shall ^rcleanse the land.” ’

A Triumphant Festival

¹⁷“And as for you, son of man, thus says the Lord GOD, ^s“Speak to every sort of bird and to every beast of the field:

^t“Assemble yourselves and come;
Gather together from all sides to My ^usacrificial meal
Which I am sacrificing for you,
A great sacrificial meal ^von the mountains of Israel,
That you may eat flesh and drink blood.

^{18w}You shall eat the flesh of the mighty,
Drink the blood of the princes of the earth,
Of rams and lambs,
Of goats and bulls,
All of them ^xfatlings of Bashan.

¹⁹You shall eat fat till you are full,
And drink blood till you are drunk,

At My sacrificial meal
Which I am sacrificing for you.
^{20y}You shall be filled at My table
With horses and riders,
^zWith mighty men
And with all the men of war,” says the Lord GOD.

Israel Restored to the Land

^{21a}“I will set My glory among the nations; all the nations shall see My judgment which I have executed, and ^bMy hand which I have laid on them.

^{22c}“So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day forward.

^{23d}“The Gentiles shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity; because they were unfaithful to Me, therefore ^eI hid My face from them. I ^fgave them into the hand of their enemies, and they all fell by the sword.

^{24g}“According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions I have dealt with them, and hidden My face from them.” ’

²⁵“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: ^h“Now I will bring back the captives of Jacob, and have mercy on the ⁱwhole house of Israel; and I will be jealous for My holy name—^{26j}“after they have borne their shame, and all their unfaithfulness in which they were unfaithful to Me, when they ^kdwelt safely in their own land and no one made them afraid.

^{27l}“When I have brought them back from the peoples and gathered them out of their enemies’ lands, and I ^mam hallowed in them in the sight of many nations, ²⁸ⁿ“then they shall know that I am the LORD their God, who sent them into captivity among the nations, but also brought them back to their land, and left none of them ¹¹captive any longer.

^{29o}“And I will not hide My face from them anymore; for I shall have ^ppoured out My Spirit on the house of Israel,’ says the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel 40

A New City, a New Temple

¹In the twenty-fifth year of our captivity, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after ^athe city was ¹captured, on the very same day ^bthe hand of the LORD was upon me; and He took me there.

^{2c}In the visions of God He took me into the land of Israel and ^dset me on a very high mountain; on it toward the south was something like the structure of a city.

³He took me there, and behold, there was a man whose appearance was ^elike the appearance of bronze. ^fHe had a line of flax ^gand a measuring rod in his hand, and he stood in the gateway.

⁴And the man said to me, ^h“Son of man, look with your eyes and hear with your ears, and ²fix your mind on everything I show you; for you were brought here so that I might show them to you. ⁱDeclare to the house of Israel everything you see.”

⁵Now there was ^ja wall all around the outside of the ³temple. In the man’s hand was a measuring rod six ⁴cubits long, each being a cubit and a handbreadth; and he measured the width of the wall structure, one rod; and the height, one rod.

The Eastern Gateway of the Temple

⁶Then he went to the gateway which faced ^keast; and he went up its stairs and measured the threshold of the gateway, which was one rod wide, and the other threshold was one rod wide. Charts and Diagrams: Ezekiel’s Temple

⁷Each gate chamber was one rod long and one rod wide; between the gate chambers was a space of five cubits; and the threshold of the gateway by the vestibule of the inside gate was one rod.

⁸He also measured the vestibule of the inside gate, one rod.

⁹Then he measured the vestibule of the gateway, eight cubits; and the gateposts, two cubits. The vestibule of the gate was on the inside.

¹⁰In the eastern gateway were three gate chambers on one side and three on the other; the three were all the same size; also the gateposts were of the same size on this side and that side.

¹¹He measured the width of the entrance to the gateway, ten cubits; and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits.

¹²*There was a* ⁵*space in front of the gate chambers, one cubit on this side and one cubit on that side; the gate chambers were six cubits on this side and six cubits on that side.*

¹³Then he measured the gateway from the roof of one gate chamber to the roof of the other; the width was twenty-five cubits, as door faces door.

¹⁴He measured the gateposts, sixty cubits high, and the court all around the gateway extended to the gatepost.

¹⁵*From* the front of the entrance gate to the front of the vestibule of the inner gate was fifty cubits.

¹⁶*There were* ^l*beveled window frames in the gate chambers and in their intervening archways on the inside of the gateway all around, and likewise in the vestibules. There were windows all around on the inside. And on each gatepost were* ^m*palm trees.*

The Outer Court

¹⁷Then he brought me into ⁿthe outer court; and there were ^ochambers and a pavement made all around the court; ^pthirty chambers faced the pavement.

¹⁸The pavement was by the side of the gateways, corresponding to the length of the gateways; this was the lower pavement.

¹⁹Then he measured the width from the front of the lower gateway to the front of the inner court exterior, one hundred cubits toward the east and the north.

The Northern Gateway

²⁰On the outer court was also a gateway facing north, and he measured its length and its width.

²¹Its gate chambers, three on this side and three on that side, its gateposts and its archways, had the same measurements as the first gate; its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits.

²²Its windows and those of its archways, and also its palm trees, had the same measurements as the gateway facing east; it was ascended by seven steps, and its archway was in front of it.

²³A gate of the inner court was opposite the northern gateway, just as the eastern gateway; and he measured from gateway to gateway, one hundred cubits.

The Southern Gateway

²⁴After that he brought me toward the south, and there a gateway was facing south; and he measured its gateposts and archways according to these same measurements.

²⁵*There were* windows in it and in its archways all around like those windows; its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits.

²⁶Seven steps led up to it, and its archway was in front of them; and it had palm trees on its gateposts, one on this side and one on that side.

²⁷*There was* also a gateway on the inner court, facing south; and he measured from gateway to gateway toward the south, one hundred cubits.

Gateways of the Inner Court

²⁸Then he brought me to the inner court through the southern gateway; he measured the southern gateway according to these same measurements.

²⁹Also its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways were according to these same measurements; there were windows in it and in its archways all around; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.

³⁰*There were* archways all around, ^qtwenty-five cubits long and five cubits wide.

³¹Its archways faced the outer court, palm trees were on its gateposts, and going up to it were eight steps.

³²And he brought me into the inner court facing east; he measured the gateway according to these same measurements.

³³Also its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways were according to these same measurements; and there were windows in it and in its archways all around; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.

³⁴Its archways faced the outer court, and palm trees were on its gateposts on this side and on that side; and going up to it were eight steps.

³⁵Then he brought me to the north gateway and measured it according to these same measurements—

³⁶also its gate chambers, its gateposts, and its archways. It had windows all around; its length was fifty cubits and its width twenty-five cubits.

³⁷Its gateposts faced the outer court, palm trees were on its gateposts on this side and on that side, and going up to it were eight steps.

Where Sacrifices Were Prepared

³⁸There was a chamber and its entrance by the gateposts of the gateway, where they ^rwashed the burnt offering.

³⁹In the vestibule of the gateway were two tables on this side and two tables on that side, on which to slay the burnt offering, ^sthe sin offering, and ^tthe trespass offering.

⁴⁰At the outer side of the vestibule, as one goes up to the entrance of the northern gateway, were two tables; and on the other side of the vestibule of the gateway were two tables.

⁴¹Four tables were on this side and four tables on that side, by the side of the gateway, eight tables on which they slaughtered the sacrifices.

⁴²There were also four tables of hewn stone for the burnt offering, one cubit and a half long, one cubit and a half wide, and one cubit high; on these they laid the instruments with which they slaughtered the burnt offering and the sacrifice.

⁴³Inside were hooks, a handbreadth wide, fastened all around; and the flesh of the sacrifices was on the tables.

Chambers for Singers and Priests

⁴⁴Outside the inner gate were the chambers for ^uthe singers in the inner court, one facing south at the side of the northern gateway, and the other facing north at the side of the southern gateway.

⁴⁵Then he said to me, “This chamber which faces south is for ^vthe priests who have charge of the temple.

⁴⁶“The chamber which faces north is for the priests ^wwho have charge of the altar; these are the sons of ^xZadok, from the sons of Levi, who come near the LORD to minister to Him.”

Dimensions of the Inner Court and Vestibule

(cf. ¹*Kin.* 7:14–22)

⁴⁷And he measured the court, one hundred cubits long and one hundred cubits wide, foursquare. The altar was in front of the temple.

⁴⁸Then he brought me to the ^yvestibule of the temple and measured the doorposts of the vestibule, five cubits on this side and five cubits on that side; and the width of the gateway was three cubits on this side and three cubits on that side.

⁴⁹^zThe length of the vestibule was twenty cubits, and the width eleven cubits; and by the steps which led up to it there were ^apillars by the doorposts, one on this side and another on that side.

Ezekiel 41

Dimensions of the Sanctuary

¹Then he ^abrought me into the ¹sanctuary and measured the doorposts, six cubits wide on one side and six cubits wide on the other side—the width of the tabernacle.

²The width of the entryway was ten cubits, and the side walls of the entrance were five cubits on this side and five cubits on the other side; and he measured its length, forty cubits, and its width, twenty cubits.

³Also he went inside and measured the doorposts, two cubits; and the entrance, six cubits high; and the width of the entrance, seven cubits.

^{4b}He measured the length, twenty cubits; and the width, twenty cubits, beyond the sanctuary; and he said to me, “This is the Most Holy Place.”

The Side Chambers on the Wall

⁵Next, he measured the wall of the ²temple, six cubits. The width of each side chamber all around the temple was four cubits on every side.

^{6c}The side chambers were in three stories, one above the other, thirty chambers in each story; they rested on ³ledges which were for the side chambers all around, that they might be supported, but ^dnot fastened to the wall of the temple.

⁷As one went up from story to story, the side chambers ^ebecame wider all around, because their supporting ledges in the wall of the temple ascended like steps; therefore the width of the structure increased as one went up from the lowest story to the highest by way of the middle one.

⁸I also saw an elevation all around the temple; it was the foundation of the side chambers, ^fa full rod, that is, six cubits high.

⁹The thickness of the outer wall of the side chambers was five cubits, and so also the remaining terrace by the place of the side chambers of the ⁴temple.

¹⁰And between it and the wall chambers was a width of twenty cubits all around the temple on every side.

¹¹The doors of the side chambers opened on the terrace, one door toward the north and another toward the south; and the width of the terrace was five cubits all around.

The Building at the Western End

¹²The building that faced the separating courtyard at its western end was seventy cubits wide; the wall of the building was five cubits thick all around, and its length ninety cubits.

Dimensions and Design of the Temple Area

¹³So he measured the temple, one ^ghundred cubits long; and the separating courtyard with the building and its walls was one hundred cubits long; Article: Measuring the Future

¹⁴also the width of the eastern face of the temple, including the separating courtyard, was one hundred cubits.

¹⁵He measured the length of the building behind it, facing the separating courtyard, with its ^hgalleries on the one side and on the other side, one hundred cubits, as well as the inner ⁵temple and the porches of the court,

¹⁶their doorposts and ⁱthe beveled window frames. And the galleries all around their three stories opposite the threshold were paneled with ^jwood from the ground to the windows—the windows were covered—

¹⁷from the space above the door, even to the inner ⁶room, as well as outside, and on every wall all around, inside and outside, by measure.

¹⁸And it was made ^kwith cherubim and ^lpalm trees, a palm tree between cherub and cherub. Each cherub had two faces, ^{19m}so that the face of a man was toward a palm tree on one side, and the face of a young lion toward a palm tree on the other side; thus it was made throughout the temple all around.

²⁰From the floor to the space above the door, and on the wall of the sanctuary, cherubim and palm trees were carved.

²¹The ⁿdoorposts of the temple were square, as was the front of the sanctuary; their appearance was similar.

^{22o}The altar was of wood, three cubits high, and its length two cubits. Its corners, its length, and its sides were of wood; and he said to me, “This is ^pthe table that is ^qbefore the LORD.”

^{23r}The temple and the sanctuary had two doors.

²⁴The doors had two ^spanels apiece, two folding panels: two panels for one door and two panels for the other door.

²⁵Cherubim and palm trees were carved on the doors of the temple just as they were carved on the walls. A wooden canopy was on the front of the vestibule outside.

²⁶There were ^tbeveled window frames and palm trees on one side and on the other, on the sides of the vestibule—also on the side chambers of the temple and on the canopies.

Ezekiel 42

The Chambers for the Priests

¹Then he ^abrought me out into the outer court, by the way toward the ^bnorth; and he brought me into ^cthe chamber which was opposite the separating courtyard, and which was opposite the building toward the north.

²Facing the length, which was one hundred cubits (the width was fifty cubits), was the north door.

³Opposite the inner court of twenty cubits, and opposite the ^dpavement of the outer court, was ^egallery against gallery in three stories.

⁴In front of the chambers, toward the inside, was a walk ten cubits wide, at a distance of one cubit; and their doors faced north.

⁵Now the upper chambers were shorter, because the galleries took away space from them more than from the lower and middle stories of the building.

⁶For they were in three stories and did not have pillars like the pillars of the courts; therefore the upper level was ¹shortened more than the lower and middle levels from the ground up.

⁷And a wall which was outside ran parallel to the chambers, at the front of the chambers, toward the outer court; its length was fifty cubits.

⁸The length of the chambers toward the outer court was fifty cubits, whereas that facing the temple was one ^fhundred cubits.

⁹At the lower chambers was the entrance on the east side, as one goes into them from the outer court.

¹⁰Also there were chambers in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, opposite the separating courtyard and opposite the building.

^{11g}There was a walk in front of them also, and their appearance was like the chambers which were toward the north; they were as long and as wide as the others, and all their exits and entrances were according to plan.

¹²And corresponding to the doors of the chambers that were facing south, as one enters them, there was a door in front of the walk, the way directly in front of the wall toward the east.

¹³Then he said to me, “The north chambers and the south chambers, which are opposite the separating courtyard, are the holy chambers where the priests who approach the LORD ^hshall eat the most holy offerings. There they shall lay the most holy offerings—ⁱthe grain offering, the sin offering, and the trespass offering—for the place is holy.

^{14j}“When the priests enter them, they shall not go out of the holy chamber into the outer court; but there they shall leave their garments in which they minister, for they are holy. They shall put on other garments; then they may approach that which is for the people.”

Outer Dimensions of the Temple

¹⁵Now when he had finished measuring the inner ²temple, he brought me out through the gateway that faces toward the ^keast, and measured it all around.

¹⁶He measured the east side with the ³measuring rod, five hundred rods by the measuring rod all around.

¹⁷He measured the north side, five hundred rods by the measuring rod all around.

¹⁸He measured the south side, five hundred rods by the measuring rod.

¹⁹He came around to the west side and measured five hundred rods by the measuring rod.

²⁰He measured it on the four sides; ^lit had a wall all around, ^mfive hundred cubits long and five hundred wide, to separate the holy areas from the ⁴common.

Ezekiel 43

The Temple, the LORD's Dwelling Place

¹Afterward he brought me to the gate, the gate ^athat faces toward the east.

^{2b}And behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east.
^cHis voice was like the sound of many waters; ^dand the earth shone with His glory. Word Studies: glory

³It was ^elike the appearance of the vision which I saw—like the vision which I saw when ¹I came ^fto destroy the city. The visions were like the vision which I saw ^gby the River Chebar; and I fell on my face.

^{4h}And the glory of the LORD came into the ²temple by way of the gate which faces toward the east.

⁵ⁱThe Spirit lifted me up and brought me into the inner court; and behold, ^jthe glory of the LORD filled the ³temple.

⁶Then I heard Him speaking to me from the temple, while ^ka man stood beside me.

⁷And He said to me, “Son of man, this is ^lthe place of My throne and ^mthe place of the soles of My feet, ⁿwhere I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel forever. ^oNo more shall the house of Israel defile My holy name, they nor their kings, by their ⁴harlotry or with ^pthe carcasses of their kings on their high places.

^{8q}“When they set their threshold by My threshold, and their doorpost by My doorpost, with a wall between them and Me, they defiled My holy name by the abominations which they committed; therefore I have consumed them in My anger.

⁹“Now let them put their harlotry and the carcasses of their kings far away from Me, and I will dwell in their midst forever.

¹⁰“Son of man, ^rdescribe the ⁵temple to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities; and let them measure the pattern.

¹¹“And if they are ashamed of all that they have done, make known to them the design of the ⁶temple and its arrangement, its exits and its entrances, its entire design and all its ^sordinances, all its forms and all its laws. Write it down in their sight, so that they may keep its whole design and all its ordinances, and ^tperform them.

¹²“This is the law of the ⁷temple: The whole area surrounding ^uthe mountaintop is most holy. Behold, this is the law of the temple.

Dimensions of the Altar

¹³“These are the measurements of the ^valtar in cubits ^w(the ⁸*cubit* is one cubit and a handbreadth): the base one cubit high and one cubit wide, with a rim all around its edge of one span. This is the height of the altar:

¹⁴“from the base on the ground to the lower ledge, two cubits; the width of the ledge, one cubit; from the smaller ledge to the larger ledge, four cubits; and the width of the ledge, one cubit.

¹⁵“The altar hearth is four cubits high, with four ^xhorns extending upward from the ⁹hearth.

¹⁶“The altar hearth is twelve cubits long, twelve wide, ^ysquare at its four corners;

¹⁷“the ledge, fourteen cubits long and fourteen wide on its four sides, with a rim of half a cubit around it; its base, one cubit all around; and ^zits steps face toward the east.”

Consecrating the Altar

¹⁸And He said to me, “Son of man, thus says the Lord GOD: ‘These are the ordinances for the altar on the day when it is made, for sacrificing ^aburnt offerings on it, and for ^bsprinkling blood on it.

¹⁹‘You shall give ^ca young bull for a sin offering to ^dthe priests, the Levites, who are of the seed of ^eZadok, who approach Me to minister to Me,’ says the Lord GOD.

²¹‘Then you shall also take the bull of the sin offering, and ^fburn it in the appointed place of the ¹⁰temple, ^goutside the sanctuary.

²²‘On the second day you shall offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they cleansed it with the bull.

²³‘When you have finished cleansing it, you shall offer a young bull without blemish, and a ram from the flock without blemish.

²⁴‘When you offer them before the LORD, ^hthe priests shall throw salt on them, and they will offer them up as a burnt offering to the LORD.

²⁵‘Every day for ⁱseven days you shall prepare a goat for a sin offering; they shall also prepare a young bull and a ram from the flock, both without blemish.

²⁶‘Seven days they shall make atonement for the altar and purify it, and so ¹¹consecrate ¹²*it*.

^{27j}‘When these days are over it shall be, on the eighth day and thereafter, that the priests shall offer your burnt offerings and your peace offerings on the altar; and I will ^kaccept you,’ says the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel 44

The East Gate and the Prince

¹Then He brought me back to the outer gate of the sanctuary ^awhich faces toward the east, but it was shut.

²And the LORD said to me, “This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter by it, ^bbecause the LORD God of Israel has entered by it; therefore it shall be shut.

³“As for the ^cprince, because he is the prince, he may sit in it to ^deat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by way of the vestibule of the gateway, and go out the same way.”

Those Admitted to the Temple

⁴Also He brought me by way of the north gate to the front of the ¹temple; so I looked, and ^ebehold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD; ^fand I fell on my face.

⁵And the LORD said to me, ^g“Son of man, ²mark well, see with your eyes and hear with your ears, all that I say to you concerning all the ^hordinances of the house of the LORD and all its laws. Mark well who may enter the house and all who go out from the sanctuary.

⁶“Now say to the ⁱrebellious, to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: “O house of Israel, ^jlet Us have no more of all your abominations.

^{7k}“When you brought in ^lforeigners, ^muncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in My sanctuary to defile it—My house—and when you offered ⁿMy food, ^othe fat and the blood, then they broke My covenant because of all your abominations.

⁸“And you have not ^pkept charge of My holy things, but you have set others to keep charge of My sanctuary for you.”

⁹“Thus says the Lord GOD: ^q“No foreigner, uncircumcised in heart or uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter My sanctuary, including any foreigner who is among the children of Israel.

Laws Governing Priests

¹⁰r“And the Levites who went far from Me, when Israel went astray, who strayed away from Me after their idols, they shall bear their iniquity.

¹¹“Yet they shall be ministers in My sanctuary, ^sas gatekeepers of the house and ministers of the house; ^tthey shall slay the burnt offering and the sacrifice for the people, and ^uthey shall stand before them to minister to them.

¹²“Because they ministered to them before their idols and ^vcaused³ the house of Israel to fall into iniquity, therefore I have ^wraised My hand in an oath against them,” says the Lord GOD, “that they shall bear their iniquity.

¹³x“And they shall not come near Me to minister to Me as priest, nor come near any of My holy things, nor into the Most Holy Place; but they shall ^ybear their shame and their abominations which they have committed.

¹⁴“Nevertheless I will make them ^zkeep charge of the temple, for all its work, and for all that has to be done in it.

¹⁵a“But the priests, the Levites, ^bthe sons of Zadok, who kept charge of My sanctuary ^cwhen the children of Israel went astray from Me, they shall come near Me to minister to Me; and they ^dshall stand before Me to offer to Me the ^efat and the blood,” says the Lord GOD.

¹⁶“They shall ^fenter My sanctuary, and they shall come near ^gMy table to minister to Me, and they shall keep My charge.

¹⁷“And it shall be, whenever they enter the gates of the inner court, that ^hthey shall put on linen garments; no wool shall come upon them while they minister within the gates of the inner court or within the house.

¹⁸i“They shall have linen turbans on their heads and linen trousers on their bodies; they shall not clothe themselves with anything that causes sweat.

¹⁹“When they go out to the outer court, to the outer court to the people, ^jthey shall take off their garments in which they have ministered, leave them in the holy chambers, and put on other garments; and in their holy garments they shall ^knot sanctify the people.

²⁰l“They shall neither shave their heads nor let their hair grow ^mlong, but they shall keep their hair well trimmed.

²¹n“No priest shall drink wine when he enters the inner court.

²²“They shall not take as wife a ^owidow or a divorced woman, but take virgins of the descendants of the house of Israel, or widows of priests.

²³“And ^pthey shall teach My people the difference between the holy and the unholy, and cause them to ^qdiscern between the unclean and the clean.

²⁴_r“In controversy they shall stand as judges, and judge it according to My judgments. They shall keep My laws and My statutes in all My appointed meetings, ^sand they shall hallow My Sabbaths.

²⁵“They shall not defile themselves by coming near a dead person. Only for father or mother, for son or daughter, for brother or unmarried sister may they defile themselves.

²⁶_t“After he is cleansed, they shall count seven days for him.

²⁷“And on the day that he goes to the sanctuary to minister in the sanctuary, ^uhe must offer his sin offering ^vin the inner court,” says the Lord GOD.

²⁸“It shall be, in regard to their inheritance, that I ^w*am* their inheritance. You shall give them no ^xpossession in Israel, for I am their possession.

²⁹_y“They shall eat the grain offering, the sin offering, and the trespass offering; ^zevery dedicated thing in Israel shall be theirs.

³⁰“The ^abest⁴ of all firstfruits of any kind, and every sacrifice of any kind from all your sacrifices, shall be the priest’s; also you ^bshall give to the priest the first of your ground meal, ^cto cause a blessing to rest on your house.

³¹“The priests shall not eat anything, bird or beast, that ^ddied naturally or was torn by wild beasts.

Ezekiel 45

The Holy District

¹“Moreover, when you ^adivide the land by lot into inheritance, you shall ^bset apart a district for the LORD, a holy section of the land; its length shall be twenty-five thousand cubits, and the width ten thousand. It shall be holy throughout its territory all around.

²“Of this there shall be a square plot for the sanctuary, ^cfive hundred by five hundred rods, with fifty cubits around it for an open space.

⁴“It shall be ^ea holy section of the land, belonging to the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who come near to minister to the LORD; it shall be a place for their houses and a holy place for the sanctuary.

^{5f}“An area twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide shall belong to the Levites, the ministers of the ¹temple; they shall have ^gtwenty² chambers as a possession.

Properties of the City and the Prince

^{6h}“You shall appoint as the property of the city an area five thousand cubits wide and twenty-five thousand long, adjacent to the district of the holy section; it shall belong to the whole house of Israel.

⁷ⁱ“The prince shall have a section on one side and the other of the holy district and the city’s property; and bordering on the holy district and the city’s property, extending westward on the west side and eastward on the east side, the length shall be side by side with one of the tribal portions, from the west border to the east border.

⁸“The land shall be his possession in Israel; and ^jMy princes shall no more oppress My people, but they shall give the rest of the land to the house of Israel, according to their tribes.”

Laws Governing the Prince

⁹“Thus says the Lord GOD: ^k“Enough, O princes of Israel! ^lRemove violence and plundering, execute justice and righteousness, and stop dispossessing My people,” says the Lord GOD.

¹⁰“You shall have ^mhonest scales, an honest ephah, and an honest bath.

¹¹“The ephah and the bath shall be of the same measure, so that the bath contains one-tenth of a homer, and the ephah one-tenth of a homer; their measure shall be according to the homer.

¹²“The ⁿshekel shall be twenty gerahs; twenty shekels, twenty-five shekels, and fifteen shekels shall be your mina.

¹³“This is the offering which you shall offer: you shall give one-sixth of an ephah from a homer of wheat, and one-sixth of an ephah from a homer of barley.

¹⁴“The ordinance concerning oil, the bath of oil, is one-tenth of a bath from a kor. A kor is a homer or ten baths, for ten baths are a homer.

¹⁵“And one lamb shall be given from a flock of two hundred, from the rich pastures of Israel. These shall be for grain offerings, burnt offerings, and peace offerings, ^oto make atonement for them,” says the Lord GOD.

¹⁶“All the people of the land shall give this offering for the prince in Israel.

¹⁷“Then it shall be the ^pprince’s part to give burnt offerings, grain offerings, and drink offerings, at the feasts, the New Moons, the Sabbaths, and at all the appointed seasons of the house of Israel. He shall prepare the sin offering, the grain offering, the burnt offering, and the peace offerings to make atonement for the house of Israel.”

Keeping the Feasts
(Ex. 12:1–20; Lev. 23:33–43)

¹⁸“Thus says the Lord GOD: “In the first month, on the first day of the month, you shall take a young bull without blemish and ^qcleanse the sanctuary.

¹⁹“The priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering and put it on the doorposts of the ³temple, on the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and on the gateposts of the gate of the inner court.

²⁰“And so you shall do on the seventh day of the month ^sfor everyone who has sinned unintentionally or in ignorance. Thus you shall make atonement for the temple.

²¹“In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, you shall observe the Passover, a feast of seven days; unleavened bread shall be eaten.

²²“And on that day the prince shall prepare for himself and for all the people of the land ^ua bull for a sin offering.

^{24x}“And he shall prepare a grain offering of one ephah for each bull and one ephah for each ram, together with a hin of oil for each ephah.

²⁵“In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, at the ^yfeast, he shall do likewise for seven days, according to the sin offering, the burnt offering, the grain offering, and the oil.”

Ezekiel 46

The Manner of Worship

¹“Thus says the Lord GOD: “The gateway of the inner court that faces toward the east shall be shut the six ^aworking days; but on the Sabbath it shall be opened, and on the day of the New Moon it shall be opened. Article: Holy Places, Holy People

^{2b}“The prince shall enter by way of the vestibule of the gateway from the outside, and stand by the gatepost. The priests shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings. He shall worship at the threshold of the gate. Then he shall go out, but the gate shall not be shut until evening.

³“Likewise the people of the land shall worship at the entrance to this gateway before the LORD on the Sabbaths and the New Moons.

⁴“The burnt offering that ^cthe prince offers to the LORD on the ^dSabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish; ^{5e}“and the grain offering shall be one ephah for a ram, and the grain offering for the lambs, ¹as much as he wants to give, as well as a hin of oil with every ephah.

⁶“On the day of the New Moon it shall be a young bull without blemish, six lambs, and a ram; they shall be without blemish.

⁷“He shall prepare a grain offering of an ephah for a bull, an ephah for a ram, ²as much as he wants to give for the lambs, and a hin of oil with every ephah.

^{8f}“When the prince enters, he shall go in by way of the vestibule of the gateway, and go out the same way.

¹⁰“The prince shall then be in their midst. When they go in, he shall go in; and when they go out, he shall go out.

¹¹“At the festivals and the appointed feast days ⁱthe grain offering shall be an ephah for a bull, an ephah for a ram, as much as he wants to give for the lambs, and a hin of oil with every ephah.

¹²“Now when the prince makes a voluntary burnt offering or voluntary peace offering to the LORD, the gate that faces toward the east ^jshall then be opened for him; and he shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings as he did on the Sabbath day. Then he shall go out, and after he goes out the gate shall be shut.

^{13k}“You shall daily make a burnt offering to the LORD of a lamb of the first year without blemish; you shall prepare it ³every morning.

¹⁴“And you shall prepare a grain offering with it every morning, a sixth of an ephah, and a third of a hin of oil to moisten the fine flour. This grain offering is a perpetual ordinance, to be made regularly to the LORD.

¹⁵“Thus they shall prepare the lamb, the grain offering, and the oil, as a ^lregular burnt offering every morning.”

The Prince and Inheritance Laws

¹⁶Thus says the Lord GOD: “If the prince gives a gift of some of his inheritance to any of his sons, it shall belong to his sons; it is their possession by inheritance.

¹⁷“But if he gives a gift of some of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall be his until ^mthe year of liberty, after which it shall return to the prince. But his inheritance shall belong to his sons; it shall become theirs.

¹⁸“Moreover ⁿthe prince shall not take any of the people’s inheritance by evicting them from their property; he shall provide an inheritance for his sons from his own property, so that none of My people may be scattered from his property.” ’ ”

How the Offerings Were Prepared

¹⁹Now he brought me through the entrance, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy ^ochambers of the priests which face toward the north; and there a place was situated at their extreme western end.

²⁰And he said to me, “This is the place where the priests shall ^pboil the trespass offering and the sin offering, and where they shall ^qbake the grain offering, so that they do not bring them out into the outer court ^rto sanctify the people.”

²¹Then he brought me out into the outer court and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and in fact, in every corner of the court there was another court.

²²In the four corners of the court were enclosed courts, forty cubits long and thirty wide; all four corners were the same size.

²³*There was* a row of building stones all around in them, all around the four of them; and ⁴cooking hearths were made under the rows of stones all around.

²⁴And he said to me, “These are the ⁵kitchens where the ministers of the ⁶temple shall ^sboil the sacrifices of the people.”

Ezekiel 47

The Healing Waters and Trees ¹*Then he brought me back to the door of the ¹temple; and there was ^awater, flowing from under the threshold of the temple toward the east, for the front of the temple faced east; the water was flowing from under the right side of the temple, south of the altar.*

²He brought me out by way of the north gate, and led me around on the outside to the outer gateway that faces ^beast; and there was water, running out on the right side.

³And when ^cthe man went out to the east with the line in his hand, he measured one thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters; the water came up to my ankles.

⁴Again he measured one thousand and brought me through the waters; the water came up to my knees. Again he measured one thousand and brought me through; the water came up to my waist.

⁵Again he measured one thousand, and it was a river that I could not cross; for the water was too deep, water in which one must swim, a river that could not be crossed.

⁶He said to me, “Son of man, have you seen this?” Then he brought me and returned me to the bank of the river.

⁷When I returned, there, along the bank of the river, were very many ^dtrees on one side and the other.

⁸Then he said to me: “This water flows toward the eastern region, goes down into the ²valley, and enters the sea. When it reaches the sea, its waters are healed. Bible Times & Culture Notes: The Dead Sea

⁹“And it shall be that every living thing that moves, wherever ³the rivers go, will live. There will be a very great multitude of fish, because these waters go there; for they will be healed, and everything will live wherever the river goes.

¹⁰“It shall be that fishermen will stand by it from En Gedi to En Eglaim; they will be places for spreading their nets. Their fish will be of the same kinds as the fish ^eof the Great Sea, exceedingly many.

¹¹“But its swamps and marshes will not be healed; they will be given over to salt.

^{12f}“Along the bank of the river, on this side and that, will grow all kinds of trees used for food; ^gtheir leaves will not wither, and their fruit will not fail. They will bear fruit every month, because their water flows from the sanctuary. Their fruit will be for food, and their leaves for ^hmedicine.”⁴ Borders of the Land (cf. Num. 34:1–12) ¹³Thus says the Lord GOD: “These are the ⁱborders by which you shall divide the land as an inheritance among the twelve tribes of Israel. ^jJoseph shall have two portions.

¹⁴“You shall inherit it equally with one another; for I ^kraised My hand in an oath to give it to your fathers, and this land shall ^lfall to you as your inheritance.

¹⁵“This shall be the border of the land on the north: from the Great Sea, by ^mthe road to Hethlon, as one goes to ⁿZedad, ^{16o}“Hamath, ^pBerothah, Sibram (which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath), to Hazar Hatticon (which is on the border of Hauran).

¹⁷“Thus the boundary shall be from the Sea to ^qHazar Enan, the border of Damascus; and as for the north, northward, it is the border of Hamath. This is the north side.

¹⁸“On the east side you shall mark out the border from between Hauran and Damascus, and between Gilead and the land of Israel, along the Jordan, and along the eastern side of the sea. This is the east side.

¹⁹“The south side, toward the ⁵South, shall be from Tamar to ^rthe waters of ⁶Meribah by Kadesh, along the brook to the Great Sea. This is the south side, toward the South.

²⁰“The west side shall be the Great Sea, from the southern boundary until one comes to a point opposite Hamath. This is the west side. In-Text Map: Boundaries of the Land in Ezekiel’s Vision

²¹“Thus you shall ^sdivide this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel.

²²“It shall be that you will divide it by ^tlot as an inheritance for yourselves, ^uand for the strangers who dwell among you and who bear children among you. ^vThey shall be to you as native-born among the children of Israel; they shall have an inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel.

²³“And it shall be that in whatever tribe the stranger dwells, there you shall give him his inheritance,” says the Lord GOD.

Ezekiel 48

Division of the Land ¹*“Now these are the names of the tribes: ^aFrom the northern border along the road to Hethlon at the entrance of Hamath, to Hazar Enan, the border of Damascus northward, in the direction of Hamath, there shall be one section for ^bDan from its east to its west side; ²“by the border of Dan, from the east side to the west, one section for ^cAsher; ³“by the border of Asher, from the east side to the west, one section for ^dNaphtali; ⁴“by the border of Naphtali, from the east side to the west, one section for ^eManasseh; ⁵“by the border of Manasseh, from the east side to the west, one section for ^fEphraim; ⁶“by the border of Ephraim, from the east side to the west, one section for ^gReuben; ⁷“by the border of Reuben, from the east side to the west, one section for ^hJudah; ⁸“by the border of Judah, from the east side to the west, shall be ⁱthe district which you shall set apart, twenty-five thousand cubits in width, and in length the same as one of the other portions, from the east side to the west, with the ^jsanctuary in the center.*

⁹*“The district that you shall set apart for the LORD shall be twenty-five thousand cubits in length and ten thousand in width.*

¹⁰*“To these—to the priests—the holy district shall belong: on the north twenty-five thousand cubits in length, on the west ten thousand in width, on the east ten thousand in width, and on the south twenty-five thousand in length. The sanctuary of the LORD shall be in the center.*

^{11k}“It shall be for the priests of the sons of Zadok, who are sanctified, who have kept My charge, who did not go astray when the children of Israel went astray, ^las the Levites went astray.

¹²*“And this district of land that is set apart shall be to them a thing most ^mholy by the border of the Levites.*

¹³*“Opposite the border of the priests, the ⁿLevites shall have an area twenty-five thousand cubits in length and ten thousand in width; its entire length shall be twenty-five thousand and its width ten thousand.*

^{14o}“And they shall not sell or exchange any of it; they may not alienate this best part of the land, for it is holy to the LORD.

^{15p}“The five thousand cubits in width that remain, along the edge of the twenty-five thousand, shall be ^qfor general use by the city, for dwellings and common-land; and the city shall be in the center.

¹⁶“These shall be its measurements: the north side four thousand five hundred cubits, the south side four thousand five hundred, the east side four thousand five hundred, and the west side four thousand five hundred.

¹⁷“The common-land of the city shall be: to the north two hundred and fifty cubits, to the south two hundred and fifty, to the east two hundred and fifty, and to the west two hundred and fifty.

¹⁸“The rest of the length, alongside the district of the holy section, shall be ten thousand cubits to the east and ten thousand to the west. It shall be adjacent to the district of the holy section, and its produce shall be food for the workers of the city.

¹⁹“The workers of the city, from all the tribes of Israel, shall cultivate it.

²¹“The rest shall belong to the prince, on one side and on the other of the holy district and of the city’s property, next to the twenty-five thousand cubits of the holy district as far as the eastern border, and westward next to the twenty-five thousand as far as the western border, adjacent to the tribal portions; it shall belong to the prince. It shall be the holy district, ^tand the sanctuary of the ¹temple shall be in the center.

²²“Moreover, apart from the possession of the Levites and the possession of the city which are in the midst of what belongs to the prince, the area between the border of Judah and the border of ^uBenjamin shall belong to the prince.

²³“As for the rest of the tribes, from the east side to the west, Benjamin shall have one section;

²⁴“by the border of Benjamin, from the east side to the west, ^vSimeon shall have one section;

²⁵“by the border of Simeon, from the east side to the west, ^wIssachar shall have one section;

²⁶“by the border of Issachar, from the east side to the west, ^xZebulun shall have one section;

²⁷“by the border of Zebulun, from the east side to the west, ^yGad shall have one section;

²⁸“by the border of Gad, on the south side, toward the ²South, the border shall be from Tamar to ^zthe waters of ³Meribah by Kadesh, along the brook to the ^aGreat Sea.

^{29b}“This is the land which you shall divide by lot as an inheritance among the tribes of Israel, and these are their portions,” says the Lord GOD.

The Gates of the City and Its Name ³⁰“These are the exits of the city. On the north side, measuring four thousand five hundred cubits ^{31c}“(the gates of the city shall be named after the tribes of Israel), the three gates northward: one gate for Reuben, one gate for Judah, and one gate for Levi; ³²“on the east side, four thousand five hundred cubits, three gates: one gate for Joseph, one gate for Benjamin, and one gate for Dan; ³³“on the south side, measuring four thousand five hundred cubits, three gates: one gate for Simeon, one gate for Issachar, and one gate for Zebulun; ³⁴“on the west side, four thousand five hundred cubits with their three gates: one gate for Gad, one gate for Asher, and one gate for Naphtali.

³⁵“All the way around shall be eighteen thousand cubits; ^dand the name of the city from that day shall be: ^eTHE⁴ LORD IS THERE.” Article: The Lord Is There—Forever!

Annotations for Ezekiel

- 1:1 Ezekiel was preparing to become a priest when the Babylonians attacked Judah in 597 B.C. and carried him and many others into captivity (2 Kin. 24:10–14). The thirtieth year most likely refers to Ezekiel's age. At that age, a man could become a priest (v. 3) and begin serving in the temple (Num. 4:1–3). In this case, it was the time when God called him to be a prophet. as I: Of all the writing prophets, Ezekiel alone refers to himself at first with a pronoun ("I"), not using his name until v. 3 (see Is. 1:1; Jer. 1:1; Hos. 1:1; Jon. 1:1; Zeph. 1:1). River Chebar: A branch of the Euphrates flowing southeast from Babylon. heavens were opened: As with all the true prophets of ancient Israel, the visitation of God was at His initiative, calling certain people to special responsibilities (see Jer. 1:1–9). visions of God: The word vision is derived from the common Hebrew verb meaning "to see," rather than from the specific verb used for prophetic vision as in Is. 1. The plural of this word also calls attention to Ezekiel's visions, which were unparalleled both in nature and quantity.
- 1:2 This was the fifth day of the fourth month (v. 1). Ezekiel's "thirtieth year" was 597 B.C., when King Jehoiachin was deported to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar (2 Kin. 24). The year 593 as the fifth year of . . . captivity is arrived at by using the Babylonian calendar, which begins in March.
- 1:3 Ezekiel uses the introductory phrase the word of the LORD came 50 times in this book. It always introduces a divine message and sometimes a new section. The name Ezekiel comes from the verb meaning "to seize," "to hold fast," coupled with the term meaning "God." Thus Ezekiel's name indicates that he was a man whom God had seized. See also 3:8 for another dimension of meaning in this name, "the one whom God has strengthened." the hand of the LORD was upon him: The divine origin of Ezekiel's message is emphasized in these first few verses.
- 1:4 whirlwind . . . great cloud . . . raging fire: Compare the descriptions of divine appearance in Ex. 19:16–20; Ps. 18:7–15; Mic. 1:2–4. See also v. 13 below. The term translated amber may also be understood as something like "glowing metal" (v. 27).
- 1:5 In ch. 10, these living creatures are related to the cherubim—celestial beings associated with God's holiness and glory and sometimes poetically with storm winds upon which God travels (see Ps. 18:10). There are two basic approaches to understanding the four living creatures: as a highly symbolic representation of deity, or as highly symbolic representations of angelic beings who serve in God's presence. Probably they are angels, since God Himself is not revealed until the end of the section (v. 26). These stunning angelic creatures are dazzling attendants to God's majesty.
- 1:6 four faces: This image may suggest complete awareness; nothing is "behind" or "beside" these creatures. See vv. 8, 10. four wings: Contrast the six wings of the seraphim in Is. 6:2; the wings are further described in vv. 9, 11.
- 1:7 legs . . . feet: The imagery portrays strength and beauty.
- 1:8 The "humanlike" representation includes hands and presumably arms.
- 1:9 did not turn: This seems to follow from the four faces (v. 6).
- 1:10 man . . . lion . . . ox . . . eagle: Composite fantastic figures in these classic combinations have been found in Mesopotamian and Egyptian iconography. The idealized strengths of each figure were thus presumed to reside in the living creature so described.
- 1:11 One pair of wings was stretched upwards, as if in reverence; the other pair was used to cover the body as if in submission. Compare the description of the seraphim in Is. 6:2.
- 1:13 fire . . . lightning: These phenomena regularly attend descriptions of the appearances of God to His people (see Ex. 19:16–20). See also v. 4.
- 1:16, 17 beryl: This may be chrysolite, a yellow or gold-colored stone. wheel in the middle of a wheel: The composite wheels were able to go in any direction without pivoting.
- 1:18 rims . . . full of eyes: The wheels had an exquisite beauty and an animate intelligence. awesome: The word means "compelling wonder."

- 1:19–21 The prophet stresses the association of the wheels with the living creatures, as well as the creatures’ ability to travel wherever they wished. The mysterious phrase the spirit . . . in the wheels emphasizes the significance of the wheels. It appears that the wheels represented the flexibility and mobility of the living creatures. This is a pictorial representation of God’s omnipresence.
- 1:22 firmament: The same word is used in Gen. 1:6. It means an “expanse” or “platform.” Compare also the “sea of glass, like crystal” of Rev. 4:6.
- 1:24 Almighty: This is the divine name Shaddai, most likely based on a word meaning “mountain,” to suggest God’s omnipotence and majesty (see 10:5).
- 1:25 This voice connects with the “man” of v. 26. In Gen. 1 the voice of God summons light from the darkness (Gen. 1:3). Here above the din of angels’ wings there is a voice. In John 1:1 is revealed the apostle’s term for the Savior: the Word.
- 1:26 While Isaiah describes the elevation of the Lord’s throne (see Is. 6:1), Ezekiel focuses on its beauty. sapphire: This is precious lapis lazuli, a deep blue stone with golden specks. The same stone appears in Rev. 21:19. The enthroned figure with the appearance of a man is the culmination of this vision.
- 1:27, 28 Fire like burning metal (amber, v. 4) and rainbow-like brightness surrounded the One on the throne (v. 26). the likeness of the glory of the LORD: Human likeness here may reflect the personal nature of God’s revelation of Himself. Further, it points forward to the plan of a more personal revelation of God coming as the Messiah (see John 1:1–18). The glory indicates the wonder, majesty, and worthiness of the living God. Amid the wheels, the creatures, the colors, and the dazzling light was a figure who appeared like a man (v. 26). Compare the vision of Daniel who saw One “like the Son of Man” (Dan. 7:13). I fell on my face: The prophet’s response was to fall down in worship and submission. All believers should recognize God’s great glory and fall down in humble submission before Him (Phil. 2:10, 11).
- 2:1 Son of man: Ezekiel uses this phrase more than 90 times to refer to himself. It emphasizes his humanity in his God-given role as a spokesman for God. The meaning of the phrase is “human one.” In the OT, only Dan. 7:13 and 8:17 also employ this phrase. In the NT, Son of Man is used frequently by Jesus for Himself. With this phrase Jesus was calling Himself “the Human One,” the long-awaited Messiah who came as God in the flesh (Luke 21:27; John 1:14; 2 John 7). Thus the expression Son of Man is not a contradiction of Jesus’ divinity, as is sometimes alleged. stand on your feet: Ezekiel had been bowing before the glorious One (1:28). Perhaps his initial thoughts were similar to those of Isaiah (Is. 6:5). The commandment to stand suggests that he had no reason to be afraid.

son of man

(Heb. ben 'adam) (2:1; 3:1; 17:2; 24:16) Strong's #1121; 120

The expression son of man is used nearly one hundred times as a title for Ezekiel (2:1). It serves both to emphasize the difference between God the Creator and His creatures, and to mark the prophet Ezekiel as a representative member of the human race. Ezekiel's life was a living parable or object lesson to the Hebrew captives in Babylon (compare 1:3; 3:4–7). In word and deed, Ezekiel was a “sign” to the house of Israel (12:6). Jesus adopted the title Son of Man because He too is a representative person—the “last Adam” who became a life-giving spirit (see Matt. 8:20; 1 Cor. 15:45). The title of Son of Man for Jesus also alludes to Daniel's vision of the heavenly being who is “like the Son of Man” (Dan. 7:13). Thus the title Son of Man for Jesus highlights the mystery of the Incarnation, the fact that Christ is both divine and human. As the God-man, Jesus became a glorious sign for all of sinful humanity (Luke 2:34).

2:2 the Spirit: This reference to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in God's prophet is of great importance. The visions and messages of Ezekiel were revelations from the living God.

2:3, 4 Ezekiel was called to speak God's message to the children of Israel. God describes them as a rebellious nation and more specifically impudent and stubborn—literally “stiff-of-face and hard-of-heart children” (see 3:7). The Hebrew term for rebellious indicates a breaking of the covenant relationship. Thus says the Lord GOD: God told Ezekiel to emphasize the divine origin of his messages by using these words. Like Moses (Ex. 3; 4), Ezekiel would speak in God's name only what God commanded him. The term Lord GOD combines a title indicating God's sovereignty (Adonai) and His personal name (Yahweh, conventionally translated with GOD or LORD in small capital letters).

2:5 If the rebellious people refused to listen to Ezekiel's message, Ezekiel would still prove himself a true prophet of God by continuing to proclaim God's messages (see also v. 7). Read 2 Kin. 21 for an example of the nature of the rebellion that had led to their captivity.

2:6 briers and thorns . . . scorpions: These images vividly portray the nature of the rebellious opponents of Ezekiel's warnings. God told Ezekiel not to allow fear to hinder his message, whether or not the message was wanted (v. 7).

2:8, 9 eat: In contrast to rebellious Israel, Ezekiel was to set an example by being receptive and listening to God's message. hand . . . scroll: Compare Jer. 1:9.

2:10 The unusual feature of writing on both sides of a scroll indicates the magnitude of the nation's transgressions and its need for lengthy lamentations (see Zech. 5:3; Rev. 5:1). Although Ezekiel would later bring words of comfort and consolation (see chs. 33–48), his first prophecies from God contained only sorrow and sadness.

3:1–3 eat: The symbolic act of eating the scroll demonstrated that Ezekiel internalized the message in preparation for speaking to the people.

3:5–7 Although no linguistic barrier existed between Ezekiel and the nation, Israel would pay less attention to the prophet than foreigners would. Israel's rejection of the prophet's message was the symptom of a prior and more fundamental revolt against God's rule (see 1 Sam. 8:7). All Israel was characterized as impudent—literally “hard-of-head”—and hard-hearted (see 2:4). Those who have had generous exposure to the truth and reject it can be harder than those who hear it for the first time.

3:8, 9 I have made your face strong: There may have been an intentional pun on Ezekiel's name, which means “strongly seized by God” (see 1:3) or “God strengthens.” Double meanings in biblical names are common (see Cain; Gen. 4:1). The prophet was adequately equipped by God for his calling.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Adamant Stone

Adamant is a hard stone of superior strength. The exact identity of this substance is unknown, but it is believed to be corundum, the hardest of all minerals next to the diamond. Pure corundum is colorless; it is the source of such gems as rubies and sapphires. Because of its hardness, the prophet Ezekiel used adamant stone as a symbol of the stubborn will of the rebellious Israelites. God strengthened the prophet, saying, “Like adamant stone, harder than flint, I have made your forehead; do not be afraid of them, nor be dismayed at their looks, though they are a rebellious house” (3:9). Other English translations render the Hebrew word for adamant as diamond or flint.

3:10, 11 A necessary prerequisite to God sending Ezekiel as His messenger was Ezekiel's reception of all God's words. God told Ezekiel that he was to make it clear that his message and authority came from the Lord, and that he must continue to speak regardless of his audience's responses and reactions.

3:12, 13 Blessed . . . from His place: This thunderous acclaim in praise of the living God came from His myriad of angelic armies (compare Is. 6:3). glory: The word suggests “weight” or “significance,” indicating the wonder, majesty, and worthiness of the living God.

3:14 Bitterness means “distress” and “anguish.” Ezekiel's human perspective caused him to focus on the distasteful calling of delivering a message no one would listen to. The prophet was angry—heat of my spirit—and appalled. But the hand of the LORD was present to help him deal with these feelings and then move him on to live and work among the captives (see v. 15).

3:15 The Israelites who had been exiled to Babylon lived in Tel Abib, meaning “hill of flood.” Seven days is the time normally taken for mourning the dead, as well as the time set aside for a priest's consecration (Gen. 50:10; Lev. 8:33). Ezekiel sat astonished with these captives for seven days as evidence that he had experienced a unique encounter with God (see Job 2:13). At the end of the seven days Ezekiel would be ordained for the priesthood and would be ready to proclaim mourning for Israel.

3:17 The watchman stood on the city wall guarding against any external or internal threat. He would sound an alarm upon sighting impending danger (see 2 Sam. 18:24). God made Ezekiel a spiritual watchman over His people.

3:18, 19 his blood: Doubtless, this severe warning given to Ezekiel was similar to that given to a military watchman in ancient times. If the watchman failed to give the alarm to the city in a time of peril, the blood of the city would be required of him. But if the watchman sounded the alarm and the city did not respond, the watchman could hardly be blamed. delivered your soul: As a faithful watchman, Ezekiel would not have placed his own life in jeopardy by failing in his critical duty. A watchman who was “asleep at the switch” would forfeit his life. The word soul often merely means “life” in Hebrew. See also v. 21.

3:20, 21 The stumbling block is interpreted by some as a death sentence. If the person continued repeatedly in sin, then death would result. The reference to “life” and “death” in this section is to physical, not eternal, realities. delivered your soul: See v. 19.

3:23 The word glory suggests “weight” or “significance.” The emphasis is on the central significance and awesome wonder of the living God.

3:24 Ezekiel wrote more of the indwelling of God’s Spirit than any of the prophets (see 2:2).

3:26 The phrase not be one to rebuke them qualified what was meant by Ezekiel’s being mute. The idea may be better stated as “not be a legal mediator.” During his “mute” period, Ezekiel would not be allowed to speak as a mediator on behalf of the people before God, their Judge.

3:27 He who hears, let him hear: Jesus used this warning often in His teaching (see Mark 4:23). The phrasing emphasizes individual responsibility and readiness to accept the divine message.

4:1 The clay tablet was unfired mud or clay soft enough to be inscribed with a stylus. The term translated portray means to scratch or mark on the tablet.

4:2 Lay siege: The city of Jerusalem would come under siege, meaning that the Babylonians would surround the city and cut off its outside supplies. The purpose was to starve the inhabitants into submission (see vv. 9–12, 16, 17). By his symbolic drawing, Ezekiel may have been commanded to do what other “prophets” of the nations might do. That is, the hired “prophets” of the pagan nations might use such a drawing as a device for invoking the gods to bring about the event graphically described. In Ezekiel’s case, the drawing showed the people the horrible truth of what God already had sovereignly ordained.

4:3 The iron plate or pan was a utensil that Ezekiel possessed as a priest; it was for baking grain for the cereal offerings (Lev. 2:5; 6:21; 7:9). Here its purpose was to represent a wall between Ezekiel and the city. The first three verses of the chapter dramatize to the house of Israel the inevitable and inescapable siege that would come against the holy city.

4:4–6 bear their iniquity: The prophet represented Israel—the northern kingdom—and Judah—the southern kingdom—and the length of time each was going to be punished for its sin. Since Ezekiel set the deportation of Jehoiachin (597 B.C.) as his chronological reference point (see 1:2), the most straightforward interpretation of vv. 4–8 pictures the punishment of exile and Gentile rule inflicted upon the Hebrew nation over a 430-year period as extending from 597 to approximately 167 B.C. This was the time Jewish rule returned to Judah, through the Maccabean revolt.

4:7 The arm . . . uncovered, used in connection with God’s command that Ezekiel set his face toward the siege (see 4:3), most likely refers to the siege as a set and certain event (see Is. 52:10, and the modern idiom of “rolling up one’s sleeves”). As horrible as it was, the siege ultimately showed God’s faithfulness to His covenant established in the days of Moses: that idolatry and disobedience would bring curses, which would include being conquered, captured, and removed from the land (Deut. 28:15–68).

4:8 Restrain you more literally reads “place ropes on you.” Ezekiel was bound while lying on either side for the entire 430 days; but the activities described in 4:9–17 show that his lying down and being tied up occurred only during parts of each day.

4:9–11 The recipe of six mixed grains for the bread indicates the limited and unusual food supply while in bondage in a foreign land. The small amounts of these grains vividly picture the short supply of food in a city under siege. Because a city under siege was cut off from outside supplies, the people had to ration their food and water. If it ran out, they would be forced to surrender. In Jerusalem, the people would be allowed daily only a half pound of bread (twenty shekels) and less than a quart of water (one-sixth of a hin).

4:12–15 The bread is called defiled (v. 13) in light of what is said in v. 12. In order to portray the fate of the unfaithful nation, God wanted Ezekiel to temporarily eat food made unclean by being cooked over a fire fueled by human waste (Deut. 23:12–14). God at first commanded Ezekiel to use human excrement because it would most accurately and forcefully symbolize the horror of the coming siege of the city. But cow dung, a common fuel then as now, was allowed as a substitute in light of Ezekiel's prayerful insistence and practical faithfulness to the ceremonial law (Deut. 12:15–19; 14:3–21).

4:16, 17 The terrible conditions of the siege of Jerusalem would fulfill Ezekiel's symbolic acts (vv. 9–12). Both water and bread would be rationed. Anxiety and dread (see 12:19) would be rampant. The Hebrew term for dread could also be rendered “horror” or “shuddering.” All this would occur because of Judah's iniquity. The people had broken their covenant with God, and He had no choice but to bring upon them the promised consequences of their disobedience (see Lev. 26:14–29; Deut. 28:47–53; 2 Kin. 25:1–3).

5:1 Shaving the head was an act showing shame or disgrace in Hebrew culture (see 7:18; 2 Sam. 10:4). It also represented a type of pagan mourning forbidden by the Law (see 27:31; Deut. 14:1; Is. 15:2; 22:12). Shaving the head was a mark of defilement, making a priest like Ezekiel ritually unclean, and so unable to perform his duties in the temple (Lev. 21:5). This message was telling the people that they were about to be humiliated and defiled.

5:2 Each citizen of Jerusalem would suffer one of the three fates depicted by each of the three mounds of the equally measured shorn hair: (1) Some would be burned along with the city or would die from plague, famine, or other siege conditions (5:12; 2 Kin. 25:9); (2) some would be murdered by the sword during the attack (5:12; 2 Kin. 25:18–21); and (3) some would be scattered in the wind—referring to the Exile (5:12; 2 Kin. 25:11–17, 21).

5:3, 4 a fire will go out: A remnant from the group sent into exile would be saved from death and merged into the foreign culture. Other exiles would be killed.

5:5–7 This is Jerusalem: The words were being said in anguish. The personal God of the Hebrews had given them the city as an inheritance. God loved it and established it as the center of the world, because His temple was there. Here, however, He describes the extent of its people's abominations. She has rebelled refers to the people of the favored city who had not only stubbornly refused to keep the Law, but whose sin was even worse than that of the nations around them—they had failed to follow even the moral laws that were common among the pagans.

5:8 therefore: Here is the solemn announcement of the sovereign Judge. I, even I, am against you: The solemn, emphatic pronoun is sad indeed.

5:9–17 The elements in God's judgment on the people for their sins can be enumerated in this way: (1) a judgment that will be worse in extent than ever before; (2) a terrible famine that will lead to cannibalism; (3) pestilence, meaning plagues and diseases associated with famine; (4) violent death by sword or wild beasts; and (5) the scattering and killing of a remnant. These punishments would come as the result of the people's idolatry—they had defiled God's temple with detestable things and abominations (v. 11), evidencing their complete disregard for the Law (see vv. 6, 7; see 11:18). The Ten Commandments prohibited idolatry (see Ex. 20:3). Further, these judgments would be accomplished: (1) without pity and with no hope of escape (v. 11), (2) with a full expenditure of God's wrath (v. 13), and (3) with the result of making God's people an object lesson of warning among the onlooking neighbor nations (v. 15). In His covenant with His people, God had promised to send these curses if the people chose to rebel against Him (Deut. 28:15–68).

6:2, 3 The mountains of Israel may signify the land in general (see 36:1–6); however, the hills could be especially condemned because in their wooded areas the people had built altars and shrines to Canaanite idols (v. 13). High places were originally elevated locations for the worship of the god Baal and other deities of the Canaanite pantheon. The term high place could be used of any location, whether hilltop or valley (see v. 6; Jer. 7:31) where Canaanite gods were worshiped (1 Kin. 11:4–10). The Israelites adopted the use of these and associated worship practices including sexual misconduct, sorcery, spiritism, snake worship, and child sacrifice. Before entering the Promised Land, the Hebrews had been commanded to abolish all the high places where idols were worshiped (Num. 33:52).

6:4–6 The phrases cast down your slain, lay the corpses, and scatter your bones refer to God's judgment. Dead people lying unburied and bones scattered around signify the ultimate defilement of the land. God would bring this upon them because they had defiled and desecrated themselves by worshiping in the pagan high places (see 2 Kin. 23:20; Ps. 53:5).

idols

(Heb. gillulim) (6:4; 20:16; 30:13; 2 Kin. 23:24) Strong's #1544

This Hebrew noun is related to a verb which means “to roll” (Gen. 29:3; Josh. 10:18). The word refers to “shapeless things” like stones or tree logs of which idols were made (6:9; 20:39; 22:3; 1 Kin. 21:26). The prophet Ezekiel uses this Hebrew term for idols nearly 40 times, always contemptuously, for these false gods had led Israel away from the true God (14:5). The word gillulim may be related to a similar Hebrew expression meaning “dung pellets.” Later Jewish commentators mocked the gillulim as the “dung idols,” idols as worthless as dung.

6:7 you shall know that I am the LORD: Ordinarily, one would come to know or to experience the reality of the living God through encounters with His mercy. But because of the evil path that the people of Judah had taken, they would experience His reality in a dreadful manner—through His judgment (Is. 28:21).

6:8–10 Not only would God prove His justice and faithfulness to His past promises and warnings about the consequences of idolatry (see 5:13), but He would leave a remnant of His people so they would remember the One true God among the nations. God had promised that, despite any future destruction of the nation that might occur because of sin, He would always preserve a portion from annihilation (see Deut. 28:61–64). The chief purpose of even calamitous punishment was the production of a repentant and spiritually restored remnant.

6:11 Alas: This word, also translated “Ah!” (21:15) and “Aha!” (25:3), is meant sarcastically. Either God was displaying His delight over the destruction of idolatrous places and practices (vv. 1–7, 13) or He was having Ezekiel enact the mocking role of a jealous neighbor nation, such as Ammon (25:1–7).

6:13 Then you shall know that I am the LORD: As in vv. 7, 10, the Lord states the purpose of the coming destruction of His city and many of its people. The use of God’s personal name further emphasizes the intent to bring His people back to a personal, intimate relationship with Himself.

7:2, 3 The three uses of the key word end stresses that the fulfillment of the prophecy was at hand. The phrase has come denotes certitude. The four corners of the land suggests that all the people of Judah would be affected, not just those in Jerusalem.

7:5–7 As in vv. 2, 3, key words in these verses include end (used two times), in parallel with doom. There now is an added stress on disaster (used two times); the coming disaster will be unlike any other (5:9). The word doom is a rare term and may be better explained as “mourning.”

7:9 Again at the end of this oracle (see vv. 4, 27), God states His purpose in disciplining Israel: to cultivate in His people a better understanding of Himself.

7:10–12 The flowering of the rod and pride indicates that the time to bring judgment was ripe. These words describe one whose time had come, a person marked by arrogance. In this case, it pictures the chosen instrument of God (Num. 17:5) with whom He would discipline Jerusalem and Judah—namely, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon and the characteristic representative of the arrogant and evil Babylonians (see v. 21). Rod of wickedness refers to a stick or club (see Ex. 4:20; Is. 10:5) used for punishing wickedness.

7:12, 13 Let not the buyer rejoice: The fact of coming judgment was so certain, and its effects would be so lasting and devastating, that transactions of buying and selling would be concluded improperly or not at all.

7:14, 15 No one goes to battle for Judah because the nation and land would be so devastated by death and diseases brought on by warfare and famine (5:8–17).

7:16–19 Those left alive would hide in the hills and be characterized by four things: (1) mourning—moaning like doves in shame, displaying their humiliation over sin by wearing sackcloth and shaving their heads (see Is. 15:2, 3); (2) weakness; (3) horror; and (4) disgust and disillusionment over wealth.

7:20–22 This section describes the judgment that would come on the people for taking the treasures of the temple to make pagan images. Beauty of his ornaments and My secret place both refer to Jerusalem and its temple. The people had sinned horribly when they crafted idols out of the temple treasures and then worshiped what their hands had made (Rom. 1:25).

7:23–27 The punishment will fit the crime—God promised to do to them according to . . . what they deserve. Because Judah had been so bloodthirsty, God would send the worst of the Gentiles to possess their houses, defile the temple, and bring violence to the land. This section predicts Nebuchadnezzar’s desecration of the Jerusalem temple in 586 B.C. As a last resort, peace at any price would be fervently sought from false prophets, priests, and politicians, but without success. The deadline for decisive action would have passed.

8:1 sixth year: This second exact date given in Ezekiel is 592 B.C., when Ezekiel was acting out the siege of Jerusalem (see 1:1; 4:1–8).

8:2 The first word translated fire may also be read in Hebrew as the word meaning “man.” In the second instance fire is the expected meaning. This description parallels 1:26, 27.

8:3, 4 The north gate of the inner court, called the “altar gate” in v. 5, was near the sacrificial altar (Lev. 1:11). There Ezekiel saw the image . . . which provokes to jealousy. All idolatry was forbidden, and any idol represented a violation of the loyalty that belonged to Israel’s God. the glory of the God of Israel: See 3:12.

8:5, 6 to make Me go: The people thought that just because the temple stood among them, whatever wrong they might do could not bring ultimate disaster. They thought the temple guaranteed their security. They did not realize that their evil had actually caused God to leave His temple, which would then no longer be their protection. See ch. 10.

8:7–9 A view through a hole in the temple wall, this next scene of the vision gives a glimpse of even worse idolatrous acts. The people’s abominations (vv. 6, 9, 10, 13, 15, 17) were not limited to a periphery. They extended deeply into the hierarchy of Israel’s religious leadership.

8:10 all around on the walls: In conformity with surrounding pagan nations (primarily Egypt), God’s people were worshiping images of clean and unclean creatures that represented various gods. Polytheistic idolatry was being practiced in Israel.

8:11 The seventy elders represented the nation’s leaders (Num. 11:16–25). The censer each man carried (a vessel for holding burning incense) and the burning incense would not necessarily be evil, but here they were being used to worship idols. Jaazaniah: Nothing more is known about this person.

8:12 The emphasis is on the elders’ pagan beliefs as well as their resultant secret behavior—in the dark. Ironically and inconsistently, they thought of God in limited, human terms, much as their neighbors viewed the gods of the nations. They thought He was not omniscient and omnipresent.

8:13, 14 Tammuz was a fertility god. The women were crying out to the idol because they had no children or because the crops were failing. In the sixth month, August-September, Tammuz was thought to “die” with the scorched land. Worshipers would wail over his death and cry for his resurgence.

- 8:15, 16 The location for the sun worship was in the inner court . . . between the porch and the altar. These 25 men must have been Levites if temple regulations were being followed; otherwise, the area was forbidden (see Num. 3:7, 8; 18:1–7; 2 Chr. 4:9; Joel 2:17). Whether priests or not, they were turned in the wrong direction—their backs were to God’s temple and they were worshipping the sun.
- 8:17, 18 trivial thing: There is similar wording in the Lord’s condemnation of Ahab (see 1 Kin. 16:31). put the branch to their nose: This action is not mentioned elsewhere. In the context it appears to be (1) a ritualistic gesture used in idol worship, or (2) an action indicative of the extensive violence which was occurring in Judah as a result of idolatry.
- 9:1 He is the God of Israel, who has been speaking since Ezekiel saw the glory of God (see 8:5). those who have charge over: This is the sense given to a Hebrew word that is frequently used of a vengeful visitation (Is. 10:3).
- 9:2 One man among them was probably one in addition to the six, making six men equipped as executioners and one representing the presence and purity of the holy God, who is worthy to mark out some for judgment and to omit others (see vv. 3–7; Ex. 12:1–13; Rom. 9:14–29; Rev. 7:3; 9:4). his battle-ax: Literally, “the implement of his shattering” (compare Jer. 51:20). The upper gate from which these seven came was equivalent to the north gate of the inner court (see 8:3; 2 Kin. 15:35). The bronze altar was the sacrificial altar.
- 9:3 It is not clear whether the term cherub here indicates (1) the cherubim on the ark of the covenant in the Most Holy Place or (2) the cherubim of the throne with wheels in 10:1–5, 18. Either way, this pictures the departure of God’s glory from the temple, then from Jerusalem, and then from Judah, as seen in chs. 9–11. The threshold refers to the entryway.
- 9:4 Mark translates the Hebrew name for the last letter of the Hebrew alphabet, which in Ezekiel’s time looked like an X. Those so marked are people who sigh and cry over the abominations of idolatry so far mentioned. Those who demonstrated a righteous attitude through true repentance and remorse were marked out from the hardened rebels. These would be the remnant (see v. 8), the ones who continued to follow God’s commands (see Rev. 7:2–4; 9:4; 14:1).
- 9:5, 6 Go after him: The universality of this judgment is shocking to us; but this is in line with divine judgments from the time of the Flood in Genesis to the final judgment described in Revelation.
- 9:6, 7 My sanctuary: The corrupt spiritual leaders had been practicing idolatry and immorality in the temple itself (8:3–16). Judgment would begin with them because they had led the nation astray (1 Pet. 4:17). Defile the temple: This means to carry out the execution and leave dead bodies in the temple environs (see Lev. 21:1; Num. 19:11).
- 9:8 The prophet was horrified by what he saw. The word Ah was sarcastic in 6:11; here it is a sincere gasp of pain (as in 11:13). The remnant, a group chosen and saved from destruction by a sovereign God, is a recurring theme in the Bible (see 2 Kin. 19:31; Ezra 9:8; Is. 1:9; 10:20–23; Amos 5:15; Rom. 9:27–29; 11:1–8).
- 9:9 Three reasons are given as to why the nation deserved this terrible outpouring of God’s wrath—serious and undeniable (1) iniquity, or guilt of sinful offenses (see 4:4–8); (2) bloodshed, or violence (see 8:17); and (3) perversity, or more precisely injustice. The people and especially rich rulers willfully chose to believe that God did not see or care what injustices went on.
- 9:11 I have done: The report of judgment was brought by one man (vv. 3, 4) appearing as a righteous accountant.
- 10:1 See ch. 1 for an understanding of the several terms in this verse. The cherubim here are the living creatures of 1:5.
- 10:2 Coals of fire (see 1:13) are sometimes related to a chastisement for cleansing (Is. 6) and at other times to judgment by fiery catastrophe (Gen. 19:24, Is. 6) and at other times to judgment by fiery catastrophe (25).
- 10:3–5 The cloud represented God’s glory (as in 1:4), which was seen moving from the inner court to the threshold of the temple. From there it filled the temple (house). glory: See 3:12, 23.

sound . . . Almighty: See 1:24.

10:6 when He commanded . . . he went in: These words display the man's unquestioning obedience to God (see v. 5; 1:24; 8:2–5).

10:7, 8 A particular cherub handed the coals to the man in linen (v. 2). Though not stated explicitly, it is implied that all the directives of v. 2 were now carried out. The coals were then scattered on Jerusalem.

10:9–17 Ezekiel describes the wheels (vv. 9–14) and then the cherubim (vv. 15–17). See ch. 1 for details in this vision. Only in v. 14 is something different from the description in ch. 1. Whereas one of the four faces in 1:10 is an ox, here it is a cherub. There are ancient sculptures with animal bodies and wings but human faces, sometimes called “cherubs.” The difference of the faces between 1:10 and 10:14 should not be called an error; it is possible that the images that Ezekiel saw were changing from time to time.

10:18, 19 God's glory continued moving gradually but progressively away from the temple (vv. 3, 4): from the entrance door of the temple to the wheeled cherubim throne, and then with the throne to the east gate of the temple.

10:20–22 The cherubim sometimes serve as guardians (see Gen. 3:24). They are associated with God's throne and presence (the mercy seat on the ark; Ex. 25:18–22; 1 Chr. 13:6). They are also associated with God's chariot-like throne (v. 1; 1:20–26; Ps. 18:10).

11:1, 2 Ezekiel saw twenty-five civic leaders at the temple. Princes of the people denotes public and political officials often serving in judicial, military, or royal posts (see 2 Sam. 8:15–18; 20:23–26). Jaazaniah: Son of Azzur, and not the same Jaazaniah as in 8:11 (son of Shaphan). These men had been giving wicked counsel, and even stooped so low as to devise iniquity against their own people. Because they were trying to combine Hebrew and heathen religions, these leaders had deceived themselves and their followers into thinking that they were speaking for the true God. On Pelatiah, meaning “The One Delivered by the Lord,” see v. 13.

11:3 The time is not near to build houses can be rephrased, “Is it not now time to build houses?” These officials were proclaiming that the inhabitants of Jerusalem were as secure behind the city's walls as meat was safe in its cooking pot (caldron). There was no impending doom, they said; therefore, new construction projects were encouraged.

11:4 prophesy . . . prophesy: The repetition is for emphasis, a literary technique common in Hebrew style. Son of man means “human one.” This phrase appears 90 times in Ezekiel and emphasizes Ezekiel's humanity in his role as a spokesman for God. In the OT the phrase is used also for Daniel (Dan. 8:17) and for the coming Messiah (Dan. 7:13). In the NT the phrase Son of Man is used frequently by Jesus for Himself (see 2:1).

11:6 slain: Jerusalem's official leaders had been accused of wicked activities and giving unrighteous advice (v. 2); here we discover that they had killed fellow countrymen.

11:7–11 The verdict of a death penalty is announced. Contrary to the leaders' false beliefs, the ones they killed were the godly people whose presence might have offered protection in the caldron—that is, Jerusalem. Those who had gained power by the sword, knowing the dread of such force, would experience defeat and death the same way. They would be dragged out of the city and slain by strangers, referring to the Babylonians.

11:13 Ezekiel's reaction showed that Pelatiah, one of the corrupt city leaders (v. 1), was struck dead by God as undeniable proof that the prophet's message would come true. Ezekiel himself was awestruck and asked if this meant that God would not after all preserve a remnant (see 9:8).

11:15 Ezekiel's brethren were those in exile with him. The people in Jerusalem (representative of Judah) regarded the exiles as sinners because they had been deported to Babylon.

11:16 God explained to Ezekiel that the Hebrews taken captive and spread among foreign lands were actually the remnant whom God was protecting. God himself would continue as their sanctuary—a word in Hebrew that literally means a “holy place” or a “set-apart place.”

11:17 I will give you the land: God promises that Israel will be restored to the Promised Land. This is in keeping with the unilateral and unconditional nature of the covenant made with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3; 15:13–21; Deut. 30:1–6), and renewed with David (2 Sam. 7:12–16) and Jeremiah (Jer. 31:31–34).

11:18–20 When the remnant returned to the land, they would abolish idolatry. At that time, God would establish a new covenant with them (Jer. 31:31–34). Then God would pour out His Spirit (see 36:26, 27; Joel 2:28, 29) so that His people would become united in purpose and empowered to maintain their righteousness—walk in My statutes. They would finally and truly become His people (see Ex. 6:6–8).

11:21 As with Pelatiah, God promised to continue judging idolaters whose affections were for detestable objects—that is, idols. Such recompense was fully deserved because ample warning had been given; the people were personally responsible for their choices. From His giving of the Law at Mt. Sinai, the Lord had continually expressed His abhorrence of idolatry (see Ex. 20:1–6). Praise and worship belonged only to the Lord—their Creator and Deliverer.

11:22, 23 God’s glory continued to move away from the city to the Mount of Olives—the mountain. See 10:3, 4, 18, 19. The Hebrew term for glory literally means “weight” or “significance” and refers to the wonder and majesty of the living God.

11:24, 25 the Spirit: Ezekiel’s visions are not merely dreams; they were inspired by God Himself and thus were prophetic. Chaldea: This is an alternate term for Babylon. So I spoke: Presumably the telling and retelling of Ezekiel’s visions (8:2–11:23) led to the more permanent record that makes up his book.

12:2 The exiled community among whom Ezekiel was ministering was described twice as a rebellious house. This is further defined by the phrases: eyes to see . . . and ears to hear (Is. 6:10). The Israelites’ hardness of heart was sustained for over a year (see 1:1, 2; 8:1). They would not listen to the prophet’s words or his dramatizations of coming judgment (chs. 4–6).

rebellious

(Heb. meriy) (2:5–8; 3:9; 12:2; Is. 30:9) Strong's #4805

This noun is derived from a verbal root that means “to resist authority” or “to be contentious” (Deut. 1:26; Jer. 4:17; Neh. 9:26). It depicts someone opposing an authority figure out of stubborn pride (Deut. 21:18) and commonly describes disobedience (1 Kin. 13:21). Ezekiel identified Israel as a “rebellious house” a dozen times, meaning they were willfully disobedient, refusing to listen to the word of God (2:5–8). Ezekiel was addressing an audience chafing under God’s authority (3:9). Samuel equated this kind of rebellion with witchcraft (1 Sam. 15:23).

Go to the List of Word Studies

12:3–7 Ezekiel’s next visual demonstration warned the captives already in Babylon that they should not expect a quick return to Jerusalem. a sign: The term here does not mean a miracle but a visible symbol (see v. 11; 24:24, 27). I did as I was commanded: In contrast to the inattention and disobedience of the people, God’s prophet Ezekiel was always obedient to Him (see chs. 2–5).

12:9, 10 Ezekiel’s audience was composed of people who had already experienced exile; but the people were so rebellious and so resistant to the message they continued disdainfully to ask the prophet, What are you doing? The prince in Jerusalem was Zedekiah (vv. 12–14), the ruler of Judah (2 Kin. 24:17–20). burden: The message a prophet proclaimed is often called a burden (see Is. 13:1; 15:1).

12:11–14 Speaking in 592 B.C., Ezekiel predicted the deportation of Jerusalem’s population to Babylon six years later, and prophesied exactly what would happen to their leader Zedekiah. The king would attempt to escape by night, secretly and in disguise (cover his face); but he would be caught and blinded by the Babylonians, then carried off to Babylon where he would die (see 2 Kin. 25:1–7; Jer. 52:1–11). Ezekiel was a sign to his audience already in exile as he symbolically and verbally foretold the fate of the Jews still living in Jerusalem. The land of the Chaldeans is Babylonia.

12:15, 16 The LORD translates God’s personal name. It appears in this prophecy to indicate God’s special relationship to the Israelites. Ezekiel instructed the exiles that their difficult situation did have a purpose. God would use it to demonstrate that He was a personal, caring Lord. Its aim was corrective and instructive: Then they shall know. Furthermore the Exile would be a testimony or sign to the Gentiles. The defeat of God’s people would not indicate the Lord’s lack of strength, but the serious consequences of sin against Him. Through the difficult experience, His people would learn that their God was both holy and loving. Sin offended Him, but He still would reach out to restore the sinner.

12:18, 19 To the people of the land (that is, his fellow exiles), Ezekiel was to demonstrate and declare God’s warning about the devastating conditions that would befall the people in Judah and Jerusalem.

12:20 For the fulfillment of the prophecy that Jerusalem and Judah would be laid waste, see 2 Kin. 25:8–21; Jer. 39:8–10; 44:1–6; 52:1–30; Lam. 1:3, 4.

- 12:22 The proverb or popular saying among the exiles indicates how hardened they were to Ezekiel's prophecies. The days are prolonged, and every vision fails: Although already captive, the people were cynical and apathetic, mistakenly thinking that a delay in judgment meant no judgment, at least in their lifetime (vv. 25, 27, 28; see 2 Pet. 3:3, 4).
- 12:23–25 The days are at hand, and the fulfillment of every vision: An antithetical proverb would replace the old one (v. 22), and false prophets opposing Ezekiel would cease to speak. in your days: The exiles would live to see the judgment on Jerusalem fulfilled.
- 12:26–28 The people still thought that judgment would be delayed; Ezekiel was told to assure them a second time that the judgment would not be postponed any more.
- 13:1–23 In this passage, Ezekiel prophesies judgment against false prophets, both male (vv. 1–16) and female (vv. 17–23). In each case he first vividly characterizes their sin (vv. 1–7, 17–19) and then gives God's verdict of condemnation (vv. 8–16, 20–23).
- 13:2–4 The false prophets were foolish and like foxes in the deserts. The word translated deserts conveys the idea of open, desolate places. In the immediate context (v. 5), the foxes are pictured roaming amid the rubble of ruined city walls. The prophets were fools because they confused their own thoughts with God's. They were like foxes among the ruins because they scavenged for themselves while causing, ignoring, and profiting from the human wreckage surrounding them. They were racketeers instead of reformers.
- 13:5 The day of the LORD refers to times when God triumphs (see 7:19; 30:3). The phrase is particularly used by the prophets to describe those periods in which God is unusually active in the affairs of His people, either for deliverance or for judgment (see Joel 2:1; Zeph. 1:7). In that day, God will actively bring about His purposes for the world: He will rescue the righteous and judge evildoers.
- 13:6, 7 The false prophets, such as Balaam, practiced divination (see Josh. 13:22). This was the pagan art of finding "divine" guidance through such means as astrology, reading sheep livers and other animal organs, and consulting spiritists or witches to communicate with the dead (see 1 Sam. 28:3–19). By prefacing their predictions with the LORD says, these false prophets were deceitfully claiming that God had spoken to them when in fact He had not. God's prophets never sought visions through the methods of divination (see Deut. 18:10; Mic. 3:6), instead they received their visions and prophecies through the Spirit of the Lord.
- 13:8 The divine judgment on all false prophecy and knowledge is given in this verse; it is nonsense. The Hebrew word for nonsense is translated "in vain" in Ex. 20:7.
- 13:9 Because these false prophets had prophesied messages that contradicted God's truth (v. 10), they were condemned. The Lord would separate them from God's people, from membership in the nation of Israel, and from life in the land. enter into the land: The false prophets would not participate in the future restoration of the people to the Promised Land.
- 13:10–16 These prophets would experience God's wrath—just as the walls of Jerusalem which were being constructed at that time would be destroyed. Jerusalem would be conquered and captured for the sins of its inhabitants. The preaching of a false peace had prompted people to build for a "certain" future; but only the opposite was certain. The false prophets had deceived the people with false hopes of comfort and prosperity (v. 10). Their deception placed them not only at odds with God's truth, but also with God Himself. Their destruction was certain.
- 13:17–19 the daughters: The Hebrew women who were false prophetesses were confusing their own ideas with God's and casting magic death spells through sorcery or witchcraft (Lev. 19:26). The charms and veils were elements used in occult rituals in the ancient Middle East.
- 13:20–23 These prophetesses were sowing discouragement and doubt among those not involved in demonic divination and were offering encouragement to those already initiated: the righteous . . . the wicked. They would be stopped through the same judgment that was to come on the rest of the false prophets.
- 14:1–3 God revealed to Ezekiel that this group of the elders of Israel consisted of double-minded men (see 1 Kin. 18:21; Matt. 6:24; James 1:5–8). Outwardly, they came to seek a word from God through His true prophet Ezekiel, but in their hearts they harbored loyalties to other gods. let Myself be inquired: God knows all hearts and minds (Ps. 139:1–6), and He asks Ezekiel a rhetorical question about whether He ought to give revelatory guidance to such religious hypocrites (see vv. 4, 5).

14:4 answer . . . according to the multitude of his idols: God responded to these hypocrites by allowing them to experience the practical consequences of disbelief and disobedience. Their idolatry consisted not only of the theological error of worshiping other gods, but also the immorality that was a natural result of a heart turned away from the living God. Evil is never caused by God (see Ps. 5:4), but He permits the suffering it brings to the world (see Job 1; Rom. 6:23). This process punishes the unrepentant, encourages sinners to repent (see v. 5), and purifies the righteous (see James 1:2–4).

Idolatry of the Heart

Perhaps you tend to think of an idol as a figure made from wood or stone to which primitive people pray and offer sacrifices. But the Lord defined what an idol is when he told Ezekiel that it is something that a person puts before himself in a way that causes him to stumble into iniquity (14:4). Idols are not just the carved objects that sit in pagan temples; they are the godless cravings and commitments that rule in our hearts.

The people of Ezekiel's day set up these "idols of the heart," even as they continued to practice their religious rituals. Having committed themselves to ungodly purposes, they came to the prophets expecting to find out what the Lord had to say. God promised to confound these hypocrites by telling them whatever they wanted to hear. Ultimately their idols would fail and judgment would come (14:4, 5).

This is a sobering condemnation. Apparently it is possible to commit ourselves to things that are utterly opposed to God, and then expect God to bless us in our pursuit of those things! The worst thing that could happen would be for Him to bless us, for then we would be ensnared by our own worthless gods rather than liberated to find genuine goodness in the living God.

repent

(Heb. shub) (14:6; 18:30; Gen. 8:3; Ps. 85:4) Strong's #7725

The Hebrew word translated repent means “to turn back” or “turn around.” The word refers to a reversal or a change of direction, as when the word is used of the receding floodwaters (Gen. 8:3). The prophets commonly used this word to call the Israelites to a radical, conscious rejection of their past sin. A psalmist used the word to describe God’s restoration of a believer (see Ps. 85:4). When used as a theological term, repentance implies not only sorrow but a complete turnaround: to change one’s mind about sin, receive God’s provision of salvation, and return wholeheartedly to Him.

- 14:7 Idolatry was condemned whether practiced by an Israelite (one of God’s chosen people) or by strangers (Gentiles) spending time in Israel. Anyone from any culture who had come into contact with specific revelation about the Hebrew God was held responsible for his or her response to the truth.
- 14:8 The unrepentant idolater would be separated not only from God but also from God’s people (13:9). This experience would be a strong visual warning—sign—and an international example—proverb—of God’s absolute honoring of His promise to punish disobedience with cursing (Lev. 20:1–7).
- 14:9–11 The relationship between God’s sovereignty and human responsibility is implicit in these verses. God allows false preaching for His own inscrutable purposes, but the preacher is held accountable for the content of the message. These were Israelite false prophets who deliberately ignored the truth and mixed it with falsehood. Their punishment would be the same as the one who inquired (the elders; see vv. 1–3). But they would also have the same redemptive plan (see v. 5).
- 14:12–20 Jerusalem’s “persistent unfaithfulness” was so offensive to God that the presence of spiritual giants could not stay judgment by famine, wild beasts, military invasion (sword), or disease (pestilence). Noah, Daniel, and Job: Compare Jer. 15:1, where the names Moses and Samuel are invoked in a similar manner to these names. In this list, Daniel seems out of place among the other two men of faith, Noah and Job. Daniel was a younger contemporary of Ezekiel in Babylon (see Dan. 1), whose greatest exploits were likely still to come. The Hebrew spelling of the name in Ezekiel is Dan-El, rather than Daniel, raising the question whether a different person is meant than the biblical Daniel. There are some stories preserved about an ancient hero named Dan-El, but he was a worshiper of Baal, and would not have had the righteousness Ezekiel speaks of.
- 14:21 These judgments, though stated hypothetically so far, would actually come on Jerusalem (see Lev. 26:22–26).
- 14:22, 23 A remnant would be brought out from Jerusalem. When the exiles observe their ways and their doings—that is, their wicked actions, they will be reminded of God’s justice and grace. This is a remarkable use of the term remnant. Ordinarily the term is used of the righteous. Here it is used as a sample of the wicked people, whose deeds justified the actions of God in sovereign judgment: I have done nothing without cause.

- 15:1–5 The wood of the vine is depicted as useless. Unlike an olive tree, whose wood is also useful, the vine has only one use, to bear grapes. The regular use of vine imagery in the Bible (see Ps. 80:8–19; Is. 5:1–7; John 15) demonstrates the importance of grapevine cultivation in Israel.
- 15:6–8 In this instance the vine is symbolic of the Israelites still in Jerusalem (see Ps. 80:8–19; Is. 5:1–7). God had designed the people of Israel for a particular purpose, to bring glory to His name by living faithfully to His covenant and by bringing the nations to the knowledge of the Lord. Instead, Israel had become like the pagan nations around them. Israel had persisted in unfaithfulness and had failed to trust in God’s power. Jerusalem, and by implication the entire nation, had not faced exile before but now would be disciplined with another fire. This refers to additional destruction and deportation to be brought by Nebuchadnezzar, whose armies burned Jerusalem in 586 B.C. (see 7:23–27). The Judeans had already endured two deportations to Babylon, in 605 and 597 B.C.
- 16:2 to know her abominations: What follows is an animated development of the dreary story, designed to teach errant Jerusalem the real nature of her character in the eyes of God. The word abominations describes that which makes one physically ill.
- 16:3 your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite: These shocking words refer to the cultural and moral origins of Jerusalem. Ancient Canaan was inhabited by Semitic and non-Semitic peoples. The Amorites and Hittites are associated in Scripture with the southern hill country, where Jerusalem is (Num. 13:29). The point is that non-Israelites founded this city. Jebusites controlled it when the Israelites entered the land under Joshua (Josh. 15:8, 63). Israel did not fully control the city until David conquered it (2 Sam. 5:6, 7).
- 16:4, 5 God reminds Jerusalem that He had rescued them from being like an abandoned newborn child, unwashed, unsanitary (not rubbed with salt), and exposed to the elements to die. God alone had given her glory.
- 16:6 In contrast to Israel’s apathetic disdain—which led to disobedience including idolatry (see Judg. 1, 2)—God had wanted Israel to live, having purposed and planned to impart His life and glory to them.
- 16:7–9 breasts were formed: The city is compared to a young woman, mature and lovely. Yet the city was naked and bare until God covered it with a relationship of covenantal love. This began when David moved the ark of the covenant there and God established the covenant with David (2 Sam. 6:1–7:17; see Ps. 132). Jerusalem became God’s dwelling place (2 Sam. 7:12–17; 1 Kin. 5; 6).
- 16:10–14 The adornments listed here are gifts from a groom to his bride. Figuratively they express the beauty and bounty God gave to Jerusalem under Solomon. badger skin: The exact meaning of this Hebrew term is unknown, but it refers to a kind of fine leather. One suggestion is “dolphin skin.” The idea is that God clothed Jerusalem in the finest materials available. During the reigns of David and Solomon, Jerusalem achieved significant status as the capital of a nation rich in wisdom and wealth (1 Kin. 10:23). But this was only because God bestowed it. perfect: This does not mean perfect in a moral sense, but complete, finished.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Silk

Ezekiel 16:10, 13 describes silk as a fabric of great value. The Hebrew words for this cloth were sheshî and meshî. Some scholars think the term found in Prov. 31:22 (sheshî) actually refers to fine linen. We do not know if the Egyptians used silk, but the Chinese and other Asiatics used it in OT times. Silk certainly reached the Bible lands after the conquest of Alexander the Great (ca. 325 B.C.). But it may have come to Palestine earlier, since Solomon traded with surrounding countries that might have produced this fabric.

The fineness and vivid color of fabrics increased their value, so silk held an important position in the ancient world. The luxury lovers of NT “Babylon” treasured silk (Rev. 18:12). As late as A.D. 275, unmixed silk goods were sold for their weight in gold.

16:15 trusted in your own beauty: These words indict God’s people for forgetting that their fame and fortune were God’s gifts and not their own doing (v. 14). They relied on themselves and their gifts instead of on God. They came to believe that their material health and wealth as a nation absolutely demonstrated God’s approval of their spiritual life, even though they were becoming spiritually corrupt. played the harlot: This phrase refers to spiritual prostitution—idolatry, trusting in false gods. The metaphor works in a powerful way, however, because the worship of these gods often involved literal sexual misconduct (v. 16; Hos. 4:11–19) and other immoral acts (vv. 20–22).

16:16–21 These verses list the particular acts of idolatry engaged in by the spiritually unfaithful in Jerusalem and Judah. Mesopotamian and Canaanite pagan rituals are featured. The people’s unfaithfulness to God consisted of: (1) building altars to idols and decorating the high places with their garments (1 Kin. 11:7, 8); (2) fashioning male images (phallic or sexually perverse statues) from gold and silver that God had provided; (3) giving what belonged to the true God to these false gods; and (4) practicing human sacrifice to appease these gods (2 Kin. 16:1–4).

16:22 The Israelites did not remember how much God had done for them since rescuing them from a dirty, destitute, and dying condition (vv. 1–14).

16:26 Egypt is called a fleshly neighbor because that nation wanted alliances with Israel, who committed harlotry by eventually reciprocating (1 Kin. 10:28; 2 Kin. 17:4; 18:21; Hos. 7:11).

16:27–29 Jerusalem’s kings had sought political alliances with Assyria (2 Kin. 15:17–20) and Babylon (2 Kin. 20:12–19) instead of relying on their God for security. Probably a part of the treaty-making ceremonies was to worship the other nation’s gods. For Israel to do this would be a violation of the First Commandment. In fact, King Ahaz dared to replace the bronze altar of the temple at Jerusalem with a copy of an Assyrian altar (2 Kin. 16:5–18). In this way, foreign alliances led the Israelites away from God. The Lord judged the city for this: He allowed Sennacherib to give some of Jerusalem’s lands to the Philistines (see also 2 Chr. 21:16, 17).

16:31–34 Jerusalem was denounced as being less like a prostitute and more like an adulterous wife. She was deemed worse than the typical prostitute because instead of receiving payment for services rendered, she sought out strangers (foreign nations) and hired them for the privilege.

16:36 Jerusalem was filthy spiritually because the city had soiled itself by worshiping foreign idols and practicing infanticide (vv. 20, 21; Deut. 12:29–32).

16:37–43 As a result of its sin (compared to harlotry, vv. 25–30), Jerusalem would be punished. God would use her foreign lovers to expose Jerusalem’s hypocrisy and bring international shame (uncover your nakedness). According to the Law, adultery was punishable by death (Lev. 20:10). The people deserved death because they had committed spiritual adultery and had murdered their own children through child sacrifice. The city would be looted and burned, and its people slain. The tangible material riches gained as a result of God’s favor (v. 8) would be lost. All this would culminate in the Babylonian invasion of 586 B.C. led by Nebuchadnezzar. During the ensuing captivity, Israel would abandon idolatry and polytheism, as Ezekiel predicted. God’s anger over the people’s sin would be satisfied. My jealousy: God’s covenantal love and loyalty to His people would continue even though they had been unfaithful and forgetful of God’s grace in their lives.

16:44–47 This allegory describes Jerusalem as the sister of two cities—Samaria and Sodom. All three were presented as the characteristic offspring of the religiously and morally corrupt cultures in Canaan (v. 3). Thus the proverb Like mother, like daughter applied to Jerusalem. The condemnation of the mother—that is, the Hittites—and the sisters—Samaria and Sodom—for loathing husband and children is difficult to explain. It probably refers to idolatry—God being the hated husband (see Hos. 2:16)—and infanticide. Sodom no longer existed at this time—its evil had been so great that God had wiped the city off the face of the earth (Gen. 19:24, 25). Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom, had already faced destruction and exile (2 Kin. 17:5, 6). Jerusalem, the very city of God, had become “more corrupt” than even Sodom and Samaria. Clearly this passage emphasizes the people’s great sinfulness and the certainty of their punishment. sister of your sisters: This is a superlative statement like “King of kings” meaning “the greatest king.” Thus with this phrase, Jerusalem is described as the “sister” most conformed to Canaanite corruption.

16:48–52 Ezekiel names the sins for which the cities of Sodom and Samaria were renowned. Jerusalem was pronounced even more guilty—the other evil cities did not commit half of Jerusalem’s sins. Spiritual, moral, and social sins are all listed. Jerusalem justified the other cities because when they compared themselves to Jerusalem, they were more righteous than her.

16:53–59 As Jerusalem had arrogantly poked fun at Sodom, so Jerusalem would be despised by Syria and Philistia. Although restoration was promised, the people still had to pay for their sins by living in exile. This punishment was consistent with God’s past and persistent promises to repay disobedience with specific curses (see 4:16, 17; 5:8–17). Syria is translated Edom in some translations because this alternative exists in the Syriac version and in many Hebrew manuscripts. Historically Syria (or more literally the ancient nation of Aram) no longer existed. Therefore that nation could not ridicule the exiles in Ezekiel’s day. The people had despised the oath by breaking the covenant that God had made with Moses; thus they would receive the punishments for disobedience that were written in that covenant (see Ex. 24; Lev. 26; Deut. 28; 29). Blessings or curses were dependent on Israel’s obedience or disobedience.

16:60–63 Nevertheless: Despite Jerusalem’s disobedience to the Mosaic covenant and the resulting punishment (v. 59), the covenant with Abraham—My covenant—would still be honored: I will remember. Fulfillment of the covenant with Abraham did not depend on the people’s faithfulness; God had made the promise and He would keep it (see Gen. 15; 17:7, 8; Lev. 26:40–45; Ps. 145:13; Phil. 1:6). The everlasting covenant had been made with Abraham before the Hebrew nation even existed. This covenant would be remembered and reestablished with the exiled Judeans. At that time, God's people would be ashamed by the contrast between their faithlessness and God's faithfulness and the fact that they were being exalted over those who were less sinful—Sodom and Samaria. The people of these other sinful nations would also inherit land, but only by God's grace, because no such covenant was made with them. Further, God would provide atonement through the New Covenant (Jer. 31:31–40), which pointed ultimately to the Cross of Christ.

17:2 The Hebrew words translated riddle and parable can both be used to refer to allegory. The parable primarily refers to a comparison between two things. A riddle was sometimes used as political contests of mental competition between kings, in which the loser would submit to the winner and be killed. Some take the following riddle as a contest posed by God to Zedekiah, Judah's king.

17:3–10 This allegory is focused around a main point and is followed by an explanation to guide the reader (vv. 11–21). In light of vv. 11–21, the great eagle is the king of Babylon (v. 12); Lebanon symbolizes Canaan, of which Jerusalem (v. 12) is the major city; the highest branch is the king of Jerusalem and Judah (v. 12); the topmost young twig refers to the nobility of Judah (v. 12); the land of trade is Babylon (v. 12); the seed is a member of the royal family (v. 13); the fertile field is the land where this royal offspring would rule (vv. 13, 14); the other great eagle is the king of Egypt (v. 15); and the vine is the remnant and ruler left in Judah. This remnant failed to prosper because they made a treaty with the Egyptian pharaoh. As a result, even the remnant was slain and scattered by Babylon's army (vv. 15–21).

17:11–21 Since Ezekiel had preached earlier about Jerusalem's past abominations (ch. 16), the people were likely charging God with unfairness in punishing the present population. Ezekiel points out that present and past sins make God's actions just and fair. In this section, the LORD explains His grounds for using Babylon to judge Judah. The prophecy predicts that (1) Nebuchadnezzar will capture Jehoiachin and the princes of Jerusalem and take them to Babylon (v. 12); (2) Zedekiah, Jehoiachin's uncle, will be made ruler of the Judean remnant as a result of a political alliance with Nebuchadnezzar, but this will stifle growth (vv. 13, 14); (3) Zedekiah will rebel against Babylon and God by making a treaty with Egypt (588 B.C.) leading to his unexpected defeat and death (vv. 15, 16; Is. 30:1–5); and (4) Zedekiah will not be protected by Egypt but will be punished through Babylon according to the stipulations of the Mosaic covenant: death, destruction, and dispersion (vv. 17–21; 12:13, 14). The historical background of this story is found in 2 Kin. 24; 2 Chr. 36; and Jer. 37; 52.

17:22 I will take: The Hebrew is emphatic: "I Myself will take" In contrast to human kings, God declared that He personally would pick out, plant, and make prominent a tender one—that is, a twig or a sprig. Cedar branches are symbolic of rulers on the Davidic throne (see 17:3, 4, 12, 13), and elsewhere of a line of David's descendants prophesied to produce the Messiah (see 2 Sam. 7:16; Is. 11:1–5; Jer. 22:24–30; 23:1–6; Zech. 6:9–13; Matt. 1:1–17). If not directly messianic in intention, vv. 22–24 at least have strong messianic implications. Thus, with reference to His humanity, we discover a new title for the Savior Jesus. He is the Tender One.

17:23, 24 What was accomplished in the restoration under Zerubbabel was a fulfillment of this promise. But as is often the case in biblical prophecy, the greater fulfillment is still to come in the reign of the Savior King. The establishment of the cedar twig, the Messiah, over Israel will make the nation a fruitful and majestic cedar where diverse people will live in unity and harmony. all the trees of the field: All nations will realize that the LORD is their sovereign God and that He has accomplished what He said He would do.

18:2, 3 The Hebrew word (see Eccl. 10:10) rendered set on edge is literally "made dull" but can refer to a sour sensation. The main idea of the proverb is clear: children are affected by their parents' behavioral choices just as eating sour grapes produces a bitter taste. However, the people were interpreting and applying this proverb incorrectly; therefore, God said they should not use it any longer.

Accountability

Sometimes warnings get twisted into excuses. The people of Ezekiel's day, suffering from the consequences of a history of rebellion against God, found it easier to blame their ancestors for sin than to take responsibility for their own offenses. We can understand their predicament. Their immediate circumstances held little hope. News had reached Babylon of the fall and destruction of Jerusalem. Plans to return to the Promised Land would be marred by descriptions of devastation. The wreckage of God's judgment seemed too great to be restored. It was easier to sink into pessimism. The bitter proverb about sour grapes and teeth set on edge (18:2) became a slogan of resentment for the people. Instead of examining their own behavior before God, they excused their sin by blaming their parents.

The law of cause and effect may be obvious, but the exact connections sometimes elude us. Sin always has consequences. The second commandment (Ex. 20:4–6; Deut. 5:8–10) points out that the sin of idolatry (a sin from which flow many others) causes effects that can last generations. But Ezekiel had to remind the people that experiencing hardship as a consequence of the sins of ancestors was not the same as judgment for one's own sins. Suffering caused by another's sins does not excuse willfully sinful behavior.

God made it clear to the Israelites and also to us: We may suffer for someone else's misdeeds, but we will be judged for our own. "I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways" (18:30). What should be our response? "Repent, and turn from all your transgressions" (18:30). This will lead to "a new heart and a new spirit" (18:31). Perhaps the clearest evidence of our fallen human nature can be heard in our quickness to blame others when we ought to examine ourselves and remember that we are accountable to God. His message to us is persistent: "Therefore turn and live!" (18:32).

18:4 The exiles' problematic doctrines and attitudes became evident from God's corrective teaching. Apparently the exiles were filled with despair and had a fatalistic approach to such truisms as the proverb quoted in v. 2 (as also in 16:44) and to related Scriptures (see Ex. 20:5; 34:6, 7; Deut. 5:9). Their false belief was that they were being punished for the sins of previous generations. Their sin was that of becoming insensitive and irresponsible, since they thought judgment would come regardless of what they might do. God's reply reminded them that it had always been otherwise: only the individual person who sins will die. In this verse, the physical, earthly consequences of sinful behavior are being addressed (see 3:16–21; 33:12–20; Deut. 30:15–20).

18:5–9 A righteous man—a father or the first generation—is lawful. He does what is morally right according to the Law of Moses. He does not participate in the following sins: (1) idolatrous ceremonial meals, (2) sexual misconduct, (3) mistreatment of the poor, (4) theft, or (5) usury, charging interest on debts owed by fellow Hebrews (Deut. 23:20). His reward is life (Ex. 20; Lev. 18:1–5; Deut. 5; 11). during her impurity: In ancient Israel, intimacy during the woman's menstrual period was prohibited. The OT does not explain the reason for this, but it may be tied to the special role of blood for the atoning of sin (Lev. 15:19–33). The principal point in this passage is that the person was observing the standards laid down by the Law.

18:10–13 The unrighteous son of the righteous man of vv. 5–9 (the second generation) breaks and rejects the laws and ethics that defined his father's lifestyle. His punishment is death (vv. 13, 18; see Rom. 6:23) and his blood shall be upon him. Clearly the point of this passage is personal responsibility for sin.

18:14–17 The grandson of the righteous man of vv. 5–9 (third generation) purposely chooses to live by God's laws, imitating his righteous grandfather and not his sinful father. The grandson, like the grandfather, shall surely live as a result of his own righteousness; but the father dies due to his own disobedience and depravity (see vv. 9, 13, 18).

18:19–32 In this passage, Ezekiel further clarifies his teaching on individual responsibility for sin by answering certain questions that reflect what his audience might be thinking in response to his previous message. God's response to their questions through Ezekiel is in part also composed of questions. Live and die refer to physical death and not eternal death, since this passage relates to the standards and stipulations of the Mosaic covenant (16:6; see also Lev. 18:5; Deut. 30:15–20; 2 Pet. 3:9). turn . . . and live: Everyone is judged equitably and individually. God never enjoys condemning a person, but is just and righteous in dispensing His judgments.

19:1 The princes were Judah's kings. Ezekiel likely turned his attention to these kings because he had just spoken (in ch. 18) of the relationship between fathers (leaders) and children (followers), and of the sins committed in Judah by powerful people.

lamentation

(Heb. qiy nah) (19:1, 14; 2 Sam. 1:17; Jer. 9:10) Strong's #7015

This noun refers to a type of poetic song with a distinctive meter, a dirge which was sung to express grief over someone's death. It is derived from a Hebrew verb that means "to sing a song of lament" (2 Sam. 1:17). Such songs would be sung during funeral rites. The prophets' use of the word was intended to suggest the coming death of Israel and other nations because of the inescapable condemnation they had incurred for their sin (Amos 5:1).

Go to the List of Word Studies

19:2–10 Most likely the lioness and the vine in your bloodline (v. 10) both represented the nation of Israel since each was a “mother” of kings—the cubs and the branches. The vine and lion images are common symbols for Hebrew royalty and nationality (see 15:1–6; 17:1–10; Gen. 49:9; Num. 23:24; Ps. 80:8–16; Is. 5:1–7; Mic. 5:8). The first cub brought . . . with chains to the land of Egypt was Jehoahaz, who was captured and imprisoned by Pharaoh Necho in 609 B.C. (2 Kin. 23:31–34; 2 Chr. 36:1–4). The second cub that was trapped in their pit was the destructive Jehoiachin, who gave out false hopes of revival and was taken captive by the king of Babylon (Nebuchadnezzar) in 597 B.C. (2 Kin. 25:27–30; 2 Chr. 36:9, 10).

19:10–14 These verses mention the fruitful monarchical period of the past, but the focus was on the present distress and promised judgment. At this time, Judah had already experienced two invasions by Babylon, called the east wind (see 15:1–8; 19:5–9). Ezekiel and the other exiles were presently living in that desert land. Neither the current king Zedekiah (the rod of her branches) nor any other leaders were fit to rule. Judah's rulers were responsible for the nation's horrible condition (see Jer. 22:10–13). The immediate source of rebellion and the cause of imminent judgment was Zedekiah, who would be deported when Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 B.C. (2 Kin. 24; 25). wilderness . . . dry and thirsty land: To anyone who loved the covenantal promises focused on God's worship in Jerusalem, any alternative to Jerusalem was akin to living in the desert.

20:1 The chronological note suggests a date of July–August 591 B.C. and the start of a new section and series of messages (see 8:1, which was 11 months earlier). The political context of this prophecy was Zedekiah's foolish and sinful alignment with Egypt against Babylon in hopes of deliverance from Nebuchadnezzar's attacks. The social context was that of exiled elders coming to Ezekiel to obtain a divine explanation of current events. They wanted to know if Egypt would save Judah from the Babylonians.

20:2–4 God explains to Ezekiel that the elders of Israel (v. 1) had forfeited any right to inquire of Him due to the abominations of their fathers. All people are responsible for their own sins, and this does not mean that these Hebrews were paying for sins their ancestors had committed. Instead, the present generation of Hebrews in exile had clearly shown their failure to learn practical lessons from history, and thus had condemned themselves to repeat many mistakes. These leaders came to God with questions, but the questions were foolish and demonstrated the people's sinfulness. They showed that they were oblivious to the inconsistencies between what they were asking, their past practices, and God's revealed promises and principles. In this chapter God gives a remedial review of their past.

20:5 I chose Israel: Here is the only use of this elective verb in Ezekiel. It signifies Israel's sovereign selection for God's eternal and temporal purposes. raised My hand: This image refers to the unconditional vows made by God to Abraham and later renewed with the nation He formed in Egypt from Abraham's descendants (v. 9). That God "raised His hand" reveals His determination to maintain His covenant promise.

20:7 abominations: Elsewhere in Ezekiel this term is translated "detestable things." See vv. 8, 30; 11:18.

abomination

(Heb. shiqquts) (20:7, 30; Dan. 12:11; Hos. 9:10) Strong's #8251

The Hebrew noun translated abomination is from the verb meaning “to detest” (compare Lev. 7:21; 11:11). Typically it refers to ceremonially unclean foods and animals (8:10; Lev. 11:23; Is. 66:17). But it may also describe the detestable practices associated with pagan idol worship, including child sacrifice and ritual prostitution (1 Kin. 11:5–7; 2 Kin. 23:13; Jer. 7:30; 13:27). Hosea rightly observed that those who love abominations become like the unclean practices they love (Hos. 9:10). But the Lord had called the Israelites to a different and higher purpose: they were to remain pure and holy because their God was holy (Lev. 11:45).

- 20:8 the idols of Egypt . . . in the midst of the land of Egypt: Here God spoke of something not explained in the Book of Exodus; that is, the Israelites had engaged in the idolatry of the Egyptians during their sojourn there. Thus, though not mentioned elsewhere, there was the threat of divine retribution against the people before the time of the Exodus (which is mentioned in v. 10).
- 20:9 acted for My name's sake: God vindicated His grace, power, and trustworthiness before the Egyptians by fulfilling His promises to defeat Egypt and deliver even His disobedient people (His people who were supposed to worship God). On God acting for the sake of His name and honor, see also Is. 48:9–11 (compare 2 Tim. 2:13).
- 20:10, 11 Following their exodus from slavery in Egypt, God began to sanctify the Israelites by revealing to them a code of Law and entering a covenant relationship with them on a Creator-creature basis. if a man does, he shall live: This does not teach that eternal salvation can be earned by good works, but that the quality of the believer's physical and spiritual life on earth are related to his or her obedience to the living God. God's statutes and judgments were given to His people as a means of maintaining their walk with the living God, not as the basis for establishing their salvation.
- 20:12 My Sabbaths: This is an important verse (emphasized again in v. 20) for understanding the Sabbath (see Ex. 20:8–11; Deut. 5:12–15). Sabbath means “rest.” That is, the Sabbath was a day to cease all ordinary work or labor, as clearly emphasized in Ex. 20:8–11; Deut. 5:12–15. This verse explains the purpose of the Sabbath; it was to serve as a sign or a potent symbol of God's covenantal relationship with His people Israel.
- 20:20 hallow: This word means “to treat as holy,” “to observe as distinct,” and “to consecrate.” God commands that His Sabbaths be continually maintained by His people as sacred—distinct and separate from all ordinary days.
- 20:27 During the conquest and settlement of Canaan (the period described in Joshua and Judges), Israel inherited the Promised Land. Yet again God's people were obstinate and guilty of blasphemous disloyalty because they served false gods (Num. 15:30, 31).
- 20:28, 29 high hills . . . thick trees: These phrases refer to the locations of altars in Canaan for idol worship. Many of the exiles had visited such places in the past, and many in Judah were still doing - so. high place: The name Bamah is a transliteration of the Hebrew word for high place (see 16:15–34).

- 20:30 defiling . . . committing: These participles stressed the continual, ongoing nature of Israel’s disobedient disloyalty.
- 20:32 like the Gentiles: Chosen to be a nation separate from sin and secular ways—a special instrument to reveal God’s glory—Israel’s consistent tendency was to identify with the neighboring, ungodly nations and to take on their idolatry (see Ex. 19:5, 6; Deut. 17:14; 26:16–19; 31:21; 1 Sam. 8:5; Ps. 135:4).
- 20:33–36 The judgment of captivity in Babylon had begun in the deportations of 605 and 597 B.C. and would be continued with Jerusalem’s fall in 586 B.C. However, God also promised to restore Judah and to judge her enemies with fury (see Deut. 4:34). This refers to the Persian conquest of Babylon in 539 B.C. and to the three returns of the Jews to their land and the rebuilding of their homeland (538—c. 330 B.C.; see the books of Ezra and Nehemiah). Yet Israel would again be taken captive and made to wander throughout the nations: wilderness of the peoples. This section refers to the time of Roman domination, which began with Pompey taking Jerusalem in 63 B.C.
- mighty hand . . . outstretched arm: The language repeats the phrasings used in the Exodus from Egypt (see Ex. 7:5; 15:6). I will bring you out: Leaving Babylon would be a second Exodus, celebrated prophetically by Isaiah as well (see Is. 40:1).
- 20:37, 38 pass under the rod: This is the way a shepherd counts and controls his sheep (see Lev. 27:32; Jer. 33:13). A rod sometimes speaks of discipline (Ps. 89:32), but here it is parallel to the idea of bring you into the bond of the covenant. God’s lordship of His people for personal, purposeful relationship is in view. This future bonding with God will be a time when Israel is cleansed of spiritual idolaters (see v. 39; 16:15–34). At that time, the people will finally know that God is the LORD (see 16:63; 36:25–38; Jer. 31:31–34; Dan. 12:10).
- 20:39 The command Go, serve every one of you his idols is an ironic command; the rest of the verse indicates that God was giving the stubborn people over to what they had decided. God grants each one a destiny consistent with his or her decisions. Then God looks to an unspecified future time when Israel will glorify His name, meaning “His reputation” among the nations (vv. 40–44).
- 20:40–44 The future repentant, renewed, and regathered Israel will be characterized by: (1) a return to the land of Israel and an acceptable, sacrificial system of worship (see chs. 40–48); (2) a revived, personal knowledge of its sovereign and faithful Lord; (3) a renunciation of former sins; and (4) a recognition that God’s grace governs the nation’s history of sin and salvation. My holy mountain: Reference is made to the glorious central location for worship in Israel—Mt. Zion in Jerusalem (Ps. 2:6; 78:68; Is. 35:10; 60:14).
- 20:46, 47 The forest land, the South refers to the land of Judah—the southern kingdom—which had more trees than now. from the south to the north: This figure of speech expresses totality, meaning “everywhere.”
- 21:3–5 both righteous and wicked: This pairing shows that God was going to allow the dreadful temporal consequences of sin to affect everyone in the land, both faithful and unfaithful.
- 21:6 breaking heart: The phrase translates words that literally mean “breaking loins,” suggesting great emotional upheaval.
- 21:7 when they say: This means “when they ask” (see 12:9).
- 21:9–11 The Babylonian army led by Nebuchadnezzar—the sword—is pictured as ready and moving swiftly. While vv. 9–17 are written as Hebrew poetry, the lines actually meant to be sung may have been limited to these in vv. 9–11. My son: In this context, the words refer to Judah (see “My people” in v. 12). If the people reacted with mirth, it would show that they mistakenly believed that such judgment would never come on God’s people and must therefore be meant for an enemy nation.
- 21:12 Cry and wail . . . strike your thigh: Ezekiel was told to add verbal groans and a physical gesture to his musical message. In that culture, these actions displayed great grief and sorrow (Jer.

31:19).

21:13 Israel failed a test. The sword would strike God's people, specifically the nation's rulers (the meaning of the word scepter). These words drew upon the messianic implications of Gen. 49:9, 10 and the promises of the Davidic covenant in 2 Sam. 7. The Jews had misinterpreted these promises to mean that their nation would never fall. Because of their sin, however, the Davidic line of kings would be interrupted. False messianic hopes related to Judah were corrected when Jerusalem was overthrown in 586 B.C. by Nebuchadnezzar (see vv. 25–27).

21:14–17 Ezekiel was commanded to clap (see 6:11). The order the third time let the sword do double damage was a numeric device (see Prov. 6:16) used here to emphasize the extent and effectiveness of the sword's (or Babylon's) employment against Judah. I also will beat My fists pictures God clapping along with Ezekiel. God would applaud the fact that even evil events can be made to serve His purposes and plans (see Jer. 27:5).

21:19, 20 Ezekiel was instructed to draw a map to depict the path of the coming conquerors. The king of Babylon is Nebuchadnezzar; the same land is Babylon. Make a sign: Ezekiel was to place a signpost at a fork in the road leading to the capital cities of Ammon—Rabbah—and Judah—Jerusalem.

21:21 Three ancient pagan arts for seeking divine guidance would be used by Nebuchadnezzar to determine which city to attack. shakes the arrows: This was a method of casting lots using arrows inscribed with names. They were shaken about in the quiver and then dropped to the ground like throwing dice. consults the images: This refers to the teraphim or household idols (see Gen. 31:19; Judg. 18:14; 1 Sam. 19:13; Hos. 3:4). looks at the liver: Sheep livers from sacrificed animals were studied. The shades and shapes of various sections of the organ were the basis for a positive or negative prediction.

21:22 That Nebuchadnezzar's answer coincided with God's promises and predictions for Jerusalem did not mean that his divination was acceptable. It merely demonstrated that God is sovereign while individuals remain responsible for all choices, good or bad (Gen. 45:4–8; 50:20; Job 2:10; Dan. 2:20–23; 4:34–37; Rom. 8:28).

21:23, 24 The Judeans in their pride and false sense of security in the treaties (sworn oaths) would conclude that the king received a false divination (see vv. 21, 22; 2 Kin. 24:20). However, the verdict had been pronounced: Jerusalem would be taken. Nebuchadnezzar would be God's instrument to punish the people's rebellion (see 7:3, 4).

21:25 The prince of Israel Zedekiah would come to its end by being captured in 586 B.C. (see 7:27; 12:9, 10, 11–14).

21:26, 27 The turban (see Ex. 28:4, 37–39) and the crown stand for the priesthood and the kingship. Both would be removed from Judah. overthrown: This word means “wrecked” or “ruined” and is used three times consecutively in the Hebrew text to underscore the comprehensive and intensive nature of the destruction. The priestly and kingly offices would not return until the coming of Him whose right it is—the Messiah (see Gen. 49:10; Heb. 5-7).

21:28 Ammon was east of Judah between the Jabbok to the north and the Arnon to the south. While Jehoiakim was king (608–598 B.C.; 2 Kin. 24:2), the Ammonites joined other nations east of the Jordan in raiding Judean territory, in return for protection from Nebuchadnezzar. Later, during the reign of Zedekiah (c. 593 B.C.), Ammon, Moab, Edom, and others conspired against Babylon, but with false hopes of help from Egypt (Jer. 27:3–11). their reproach: This was the Ammonites' ridicule of Judah and delight over the destruction of Jerusalem, especially the temple (see 25:3, 6; 36:15; Obad. 10–14; Zeph. 2:8). The sword bringing judgment was either Nebuchadnezzar's army (see vv. 9, 10, 19, 20; 25:4) or the Ammonites who had been led to believe they would be involved in Judah's defeat (see v. 29).

21:29 Ezekiel pronounced that Ammonite prophecies of victory and security from a fate similar to Judah's were false visions. The slain Judeans would be joined by Ammonite corpses.

21:30 I will judge you: This is God's prediction for Ammon and the Ammonites. How it would be done is the subject of vv. 31, 32.

21:31, 32 The brutal men are defined as “the men of the East” in 25:4. The fall of Jerusalem meant only that Judah would be judged first. Some Judeans took refuge in Ammon (see Jer. 41:1–3). God remembered Ammon’s animosity and foretold its future as a place that shall not be remembered. The events of Jer. 41 led to a Babylonian expedition against Ammon in which the capital city Rabbah was sacked and many inhabitants deported (see 25:1–7). Ammon was later invaded by Arabs and its autonomy ceased. Eventually it was absorbed into the Persian Empire.

22:1–5 These verses focus on the sins of Jerusalem, principally bloodshed (social sin) as a result of idolatry (spiritual sin). A problem in the vertical relationship with God inevitably leads to some degree of injustice and injury in horizontal, human affairs. You have caused your days to draw near: The city was ripe for judgment. When such hypocrisy is exposed and punishment is executed before the world, God’s people become lasting objects of ridicule.

22:6–12 Jerusalem’s princes had shed the blood of innocent people (see 7:27; 11:1; 12:10; 19:1; 21:13; see also 2 Kin. 21:16; 23:36, 37; 24:1–4, 18, 19). These evil leaders had been: (1) taking advantage of parents and the weak (see Ex. 20:12; 22:21–24; 23:9; Lev. 19:3; Deut. 24:17); (2) rejecting God and His covenant, leading to ungodliness and inhumanity (see Ex. 20:8); (3) murdering the innocent by slandering them (see Lev. 19:16); (4) preferring idolatrous religion and its immoral rituals (see 22:1–5; Deut. 12:1, 2; 16:21, 22); (5) engaging in sexual immorality with neighbors, family, and relatives (see Lev. 18:6–23; 20:10–21); and (6) loving money and using it to get ahead of fellow citizens (see 18:5–9; Ex. 23:8; Deut. 23:19, 20; 24:6, 10–12; Matt. 6:24; 1 Tim. 6:5–10).

22:13–16 God reveals His planned actions against Jerusalem and Judah. The expression beat My fists (see 21:14–17) shows great anger. Defile yourself refers to the desecration and destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians (2 Kin. 24:13; 25:9, 13–21).

22:17–22 These verses are primarily about God’s chastisement of His sinful people through the burning of Jerusalem by the Babylonians (2 Kin. 25:9). Yet the verses also point to the fiery ordeals and trials that force all of us into a more perfect relationship with our Lord (see v. 22; Ps. 66:10; Jer. 9:7; Dan. 11:35; 12:10; Zech. 13:9; Mal. 3:1–3; James 1:2–4).

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Iron

This mineral is actually a metal obtained from certain rocks or ores. Iron occurs in a great variety of minerals. Much of the color of other minerals is due to the presence of iron, which has a steel-gray color with a metallic luster.

When the Philistines learned the secret of smelting iron (about 1200 B.C.), iron became widely used throughout the ancient world. Iron had definitely been in use during the Israelite conquest of the land of Canaan (Josh. 6:24; Judg. 1:19; 4:3). The Philistines became skilled ironsmiths, eventually controlling most of Canaan and later conquering Israel, prohibiting their use of iron (1 Sam. 13:19, 22). After the Israelites’ victory over the Philistines, iron became widespread in Palestine (Ezek. 22:18, 20; 27:12).

Iron ore was plentiful in Palestine, Syria, Cyprus, and Asia Minor. Iron gradually replaced copper and bronze for farming implements, weapons, armor, and tools.

22:24 This verse echoes the promises of Deut. 28:12, 24, where the abundance or absence of rain in the land is associated with obedience or disobedience to the Law.

22:26 The priests were not examples of separation from worldly ways (see Ex. 19:6; Lev. 11:44; 22:32). Some at least were motivated by monetary gain (see Mic. 3:11).

22:28 plastered them: This probably refers to the prophets themselves. untempered mortar: The Hebrew word means “mud-plaster” or “whitewash.” These prophets were involved in “whitewashing” the sins of the nation’s leaders (see Matt. 23:27; Luke 11:39). If the proper antecedent for them is “princes” (v. 27), then the priests were also guilty of approving murder. divining: The false prophets used sheep livers in the hope of finding the will of the gods (see 13:7; 21:21).

22:29 As go the leaders so go the followers (see 12:18, 19). The people of the land were average citizens or commoners.

22:30 sought for: God could not find a spiritual leader to guide the people in godliness. Why not Ezekiel? (See 3:17–21; 33:1–6.) A qualified leader is useless if people refuse to be led.

23:2 The one mother of the two daughters was the Hebrew nation—Israel. The two daughters are the northern kingdom—Israel, or Samaria—and the southern kingdom—Judah. Though they did not split apart until after the death of Solomon, the allegory speaks from that later time and perspective as it presents a pictorial review of Israel’s past.

23:3 It was during the formative years of the Hebrew nation in Egypt (its youth) that the Israelites began practicing political and spiritual prostitution by conforming themselves to the ways of the world, worshipping idols, and trusting in an earthly instead of heavenly power (see 16:26; 20:7, 8).

23:4 In Hebrew, the names Oholah, meaning “Her Own Tabernacle,” and Oholibah, meaning “My Tabernacle Is in Her,” seem to refer to God’s sanctuaries in each land or, in a distinct usage, to the tent shrines for Canaanite idols as opposed to God’s true temple (see 2 Sam. 6:17). Samaria is the elder (literally the “greater”) because she first made political and idolatrous alliances with foreign nations and was the first to be punished by foreign captivity. They were Mine: The Lord identified both cities as a part of His chosen nation. sons and daughters: This phrase refers to the growth of the nation of Israel. They would become a powerful nation, but with pagan allies and a proliferation of idolaters.

23:5 played the harlot: This word may be used for any immoral sexual acts. Here it refers to the nation placing its faith in and seeking strength and security from alliances with political powers instead of God (2 Kin. 15:17–20; 17:1–4; Hos. 12:1, 2).

23:9, 10 Ezekiel reminds his audience of how God already had judged Samaria through Assyrian conquest and captivity in 722 B.C. (2 Kin. 17:5–41). Uncovered her nakedness means to be stripped bare and so put to great shame. Became a byword means people began using the name “Samaria” as a synonym for “immoral nation.”

- 23:14 Judah increased her harlotry by engaging in political and spiritual intercourse with first the Assyrians (vv. 12, 13; see 2 Kin. 16:7–9) and then the Chaldeans (a regional term used for the entire Babylonian Empire; see vv. 15, 17, 23). The last two lines tell how Judean envoys to Babylon became enamored of Babylonian rulers and their power through pictures (see Jer. 22:14) on their palace and temple walls. Vermilion is a red color.
- 23:17, 18 alienated herself: This is an allusion to Judah's turning in disappointment and disgust from relying on Babylon to relying on Egypt (see 2 Kin. 23:28–24:1). God's alienation from Jerusalem is an allusion to the city's coming defeat by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C.
- 23:20 Judah renewed its alliance with Egypt (Jer. 37:5–7) which is strikingly symbolized in this verse as a lustful, illicit lover (see v. 3; 16:26).
- 23:22–27 God's verdict was that He would judge Jerusalem through Babylon, formerly an ally but now an enemy. Pekod, Shoa, Koa, . . . the Assyrians with them: These were tribal vassals of Babylon that would join the assault on Judah. A buckler was a large rectangular shield. Removing the nose and ears was an ancient punishment for adultery.
- 23:28–31 This “lover” was one whom the Judeans came to hate as an enemy. God explains that He would use the Babylonians as an instrument of His wrath: (1) to expose the extreme unfaithfulness of Judah and (2) to punish Judah for its idolatry that had resulted from forbidden political alliances (see Ex. 20:1–6; 34:10–17; Deut. 18:9–14). The sister is Samaria (see vv. 4, 33) with whom Jerusalem would share a similar destiny of destruction—her cup.
- 23:32–34 The cup is often symbolic of God's judgment (see Ps. 75:7, 8; Jer. 25:15–29; Matt. 20:22; Rev. 14:10). break its shards: The phrase vividly portrays how completely Judah would drink the cup of wrath, breaking what was already broken. Tear at your own breasts pictures the resultant agony and anguish.
- 23:35 This verse summarizes why God was going to punish Jerusalem with such vengeance: you have forgotten Me. The people had intentionally ignored God, pictured by the parallel phrase cast Me behind your back.
- 23:37–39 adultery . . . defiled . . . slain: These themes have been developed previously (see v. 8; 16:20, 21; Ex. 20:3–13, 22–26; 22:20; Lev. 18:21; 19:30; 20:1–5; Deut. 4:15–40).
- 23:42 Sabeans: This Hebrew word may also be read as “drunkards.” The nomadic peoples east and south of Israel were considered uncivilized and repugnant by the Hebrews.
- 23:45 Alarming, those God would use to judge Samaria and Jerusalem (Assyria and Babylon respectively) are here called righteous. Obviously this does not describe their standing before God or their way of life. Instead, it underlines their role as instruments of God's just judgment (see vv. 46, 47; Deut. 22:13–30).
- 24:1, 2 This is the fourth chronological reference given by Ezekiel (see 1:2, 3; 8:1; 20:1). The date is January 588 B.C., the very day that Nebuchadnezzar—king of Babylon—began his attack on Jerusalem (see 2 Kin. 25:1–3; Jer. 39:1, 2; 52:1–6). Ezekiel was commanded to write down the name of the day. This would be a bitter reminder of God's trustworthiness to do what He promised through the prophets. Nebuchadnezzar's siege was God's judgment on Jerusalem.
- 24:3–5 The subject of this parable is explained in v. 2. The audience was again the rebellious house (see 2:3–8; 3:5–7; 11:3–12; 12:2, 22–28). Flock was symbolic of God's chosen people (see ch. 34). Bones were sometimes used as a fuel for fire.
- 24:6 Bloody city explains why Jerusalem—the pot—must experience the heat of God's wrath (see v. 9; 22:2–12) through the Babylonian siege that had now begun. The remainder of this verse announces the verdict: exile. Bring it out piece by piece refers to individual inhabitants, the “choice cuts” of meat in vv. 4, 5. no lot has fallen: God does not play favorites; His judgment would fall equally on all inhabitants of the city, for they all had sinned.
- 24:7, 8 These verses elaborate on the city's sin of bloodshed (see also v. 6). The people failed to deal with the sin, so God declares that it would remain exposed to His judgment (see Gen. 4:10; Lev. 17:13; Is. 26:21).

24:13, 14 have cleansed you, and you were not cleansed: This probably refers to the deportations of 605 and 597 B.C., whose cleansing effects were incomplete.

Unforgettable Sermons

God asked the prophet Ezekiel to perform some strange object lessons in order to get the attention of the Israelite exiles. The following chart shows the meanings of these unusual “sermon illustrations.”

Passage: 4:1–3

Ezekiel’s Activity: Writing on a clay tablet

Explanation: Ezekiel used a clay tablet to sketch out or build a model depicting how Babylon would lay siege to Jerusalem.

Passage: 4:4–8

Ezekiel’s Activity: Lying on his side

Explanation: Ezekiel lay on his side to demonstrate that the length of Babylon’s siege would correspond to the number of years Israel had sinned against their God.

Passage: 4:9–17

Ezekiel’s Activity: Baking bread over dung

Explanation: Ezekiel baked his bread with a fire fueled by dung, which was offensive to the Jews. Ezekiel was illustrating that their impending captivity would force them to eat polluted food that would mirror the filthiness of their sin.

Passage: 5:1–4

Ezekiel’s Activity: Shaving his head

Explanation: Ezekiel shaved his head as a sign of mourning. The burning of a third of his hair symbolized the fires that would destroy Jerusalem; the chopped hair stood for the people who would die by the sword; and the hair scattered in the wind represented those Jews who would be taken away into captivity.

Passage: 12:1–16

Ezekiel’s Activity: Packing his bags

Explanation: Ezekiel pantomimed leaving Jerusalem to prepare the watching crowds for the coming exile of the citizens of Jerusalem.

Passage: 12:17–28

Ezekiel’s Activity: Quivering

Explanation: Trembling and shuddering while he ate, Ezekiel acted out the awful fear the Jews would face when their enemies swept through the land.

Passage: 20:45–49

Ezekiel’s Activity: Facing south and preaching to the forest

Explanation: Ezekiel preached toward the south in order to show that God would send judgment on Judah, the southern kingdom.

Passage: 21:1–32

Ezekiel's Activity: Preaching about a sword while sighing

Explanation: Facing Jerusalem, Ezekiel used, instead of fire, the picture of a sword to prophesy destruction. His deep sighs were intended to demonstrate the heavy hearts the people would have.

Passage: 24:15–27

Ezekiel's Activity: Refusing to mourn for his wife

Explanation: God took Ezekiel's wife as a sign of the overwhelming sadness the nation would feel when Jerusalem and the temple were destroyed.

Passage: 37:15–28

Ezekiel's Activity: Holding two sticks together

Explanation: Ezekiel pictured the restoration of Israel by writing on one stick the name of Judah and on the other the name of Joseph, and then holding them together.

Go to the List of Charts and Diagrams

24:16, 17 the desire of your eyes: This refers to Ezekiel's wife (see vv. 18, 21, 25). one stroke: This phrase is used elsewhere of a plague reflecting God's wrath (see Ex. 9:14; Num. 14:37; 16:46). you shall neither mourn nor weep: The picture of Ezekiel's wife dying and Ezekiel not being allowed to grieve illustrated God's pain over the death of His wife—Jerusalem—and His inability to mourn because the nation deserved the punishment. Ezekiel was called by God to “be a sign to the exiles” by demonstrating what they should do (see vv. 21–23) in response to the “death” (destruction) of their desire and delight—their nation and its capital city. A long period of mourning was the normal, ritual response to the death of a loved one in the ancient Middle East (see 1 Sam. 4:12; 2 Sam. 1:12, 17; 3:31, 35; 15:30; 19:4; Is. 58:5; Jer. 16:7; Mic. 1:8, 10). The expression of those in mourning was not to bind the turban, but to remove it and replace it with dust. cover your lips: This alluded to the practice of covering the lower half of the face with a veil. The bread of sorrow was food given to a mourner after fasting.

24:18 did as I was commanded: Ezekiel had been given a revelatory command that was extremely hard for him personally. He faithfully communicated it to the people. His absolute obedience to the harshest of God's commands contrasted with the disobedience of his fellow countrymen.

24:19 tell us: When obedience to God demanded unusual actions, the people's curiosity about the reasons for such behavior was aroused, creating an opportunity for verbal witness about God's revelation (see 12:9; 21:7 for the two previous times of similar response).

24:21 the delight of your soul: The meaning “affection” is likely intended here. The entire phrase means something like the “object of your affections.” The Judeans had the wrong kind of pride about the temple. Instead of the temple being a place of worship and house of God—My sanctuary—the Judeans took pride in the building as a sign of their importance. Therefore, God was going to profane it by allowing the Babylonians to capture the city and destroy the temple (see v. 25; 2 Chr. 36:15–21; Lam. 1:10, 11). With no city or temple to boast about, the humbled Israelites could boast only in God's mercy.

24:22–24 The Judeans should or would respond to the death of the nation as Ezekiel had been told to respond to the death of his wife (vv. 15–18); they would not mourn their loss. The consistent purpose of divine discipline is seen again: you shall know that I am the Lord GOD (see 6:8–10; 12:15, 16). The trials would prompt the Israelites to depend on the Lord and know that He is holy.

- sign: See 12:3–7; 24:16, 17. When Jerusalem fell, God would prove Himself as trustworthy and righteous, and Ezekiel as His true prophet (see v. 27).
- 24:25–27 When the one who escapes on the day Jerusalem falls (586 B.C.) arrives to give Ezekiel the news (perhaps about three months later), Ezekiel would be relieved of his inability to speak anything except judgment, and would be allowed to preach hope (see vv. 1, 2, 24; 3:25–27; 33:21–39:29; 2 Kin. 25:8, 9).
- 25:2 On Ammonites, see 21:20, 28. Ammon corresponds roughly to the present-day country of Jordan with its capital Amman.
- 25:3 For further background on the Ammonites and Ammon, see 6:11; 21:15; 26:2; 36:2; Neh. 4:7–9; Ps. 35:19–21; Jer. 49:1–6; Amos 1:13–15; Zeph. 2:8–11.
- 25:4, 5 Men of the East is another title for the Babylonians (see 21:31). Ancient historical records mention Ammon’s subjugation by Nebuchadnezzar five years after the fall of Jerusalem. Arab invaders came to dominate the territory, and Persian control began about 530 B.C.
- 25:6, 7 The Ammonites rejoiced at the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple; therefore, they would also be punished. The Ammonites were eventually to perish as a people.
- 25:8 Moab was south of Ammon, east of the Dead Sea and between the Arnon and Zered rivers. The Moabites descended from the incestuous relationship between Lot and his first daughter (Gen. 19:30–38). Seir (Edom) is mentioned because it was guilty of accusing Israel of being like all the nations (see 35:15; 36:5; Gen. 32:3; 36:8, 9). This accusation reflects Moab and Edom’s malicious misinterpretation of Judah’s misfortune as a proof that God was powerless (see Gen. 12:1–3; Ex. 19:5, 6; Num. 22:12; Deut. 7:6–8; Jer. 48:27; Zeph. 2:8, 9).
- 25:9 the territory: This expression, literally meaning “shoulder” or “side,” describes the northwest corner of Moab, the area most difficult to conquer due to its topography (a mountain plateau high above the Jordan valley). Apparently the attack would culminate in the ruin of Moab’s glory, its frontier cities.
- 25:12 Edom was located south of Moab, from the Zered River south to the Gulf of Aqaba. The Edomites descended from Esau. On this vengeance of Edom see 35:10; 36:1–7 (compare Gen. 36:6, 7; Ps. 137:7; Lam. 4:21, 22; Amos 1:11, 12). The transgressions most characteristic of Edom were its perpetual animosity and repeated, vindictive acts of violence against Israel. The Hebrew words rendered greatly offended (“be guilty”) may indicate continuous or repeated rather than intensive behavior.
- 25:13 The precise locations of Teman and Dedan are not known, but they probably are mentioned to convey the idea of Edom from one end to the other (see Joel 3:19).
- 25:14 Since Edom had taken their revenge on the Judeans and showed them hostility when they needed help, God would show Edom His vengeance.
- 25:15 The Philistines were in southwest Palestine along the Mediterranean coast. They had a long history (the old hatred) of constant competition for control of Judah (see Judg. 13–16; 1 Sam. 4; 13; 31; 2 Sam. 5:17–21). The Hebrew root meaning “to take revenge” is found three times in this verse, indicating the great vengeance of which Philistia was guilty.
- 25:16 Cherethites: This term (probably meaning “Cretans”) was used here as a substitute term for some or all of the Philistines, who migrated from Caphtor (understood to be Crete). Their more remote ancestors were Aegeans. See 1 Sam. 30:14; 2 Sam. 8:18; 15:18; Jer. 47:4; Amos 9:7; Zeph. 2:5.

Nations and Cities Under Judgment in Ezekiel

26:1 The date places the prophetic pronouncements against Tyre, the Tyrian monarch, and Sidon somewhere in March or April of 587–586 B.C. (the eleventh year). This was at or just after the fall of Jerusalem (see v. 2).

26:2 Tyre, in competition with Sidon (see 1 Kin. 16:31; Is. 23:2, 12), was a major seaport and leading city in Phoenicia (present-day Lebanon). has said: The past tense could refer to an event that had not yet taken place, using a Hebrew idiom which describes a future event as so certain that it can be expressed as having already been accomplished (see Is. 9:6, 7; 52:13-53:12). I shall be filled was evidence of Tyre's greed and materialism, desiring any wealth of Jerusalem that could be found in its ruins after the Babylonian conquest.

26:3 The armies (many nations; see vv. 4, 7–14) that would attack Tyre are appropriately compared to waves of the sea, because the city of Tyre was an island fortress.

26:7–14 The fulfillment of this prophecy of Tyre's fate began with the long siege of the city by the Babylonian army under Nebuchadnezzar (c. 580–570 B.C.). Nebuchadnezzar ruled the Neo-Babylonian (Chaldean) Empire from 605–562 B.C. The second phase came with the Persian conquest in about 525 B.C., followed by the final and famous siege of 332 B.C. by the Greeks under Alexander, which completed the predictions of this passage (especially vv. 5, 14; see 47:10). Note the switch from he to they (v. 12; see v. 4) as well as the use of the pronoun "I" by God, which explains His sovereign control over all the nations (see 28:7; 29:8). Alexander literally fulfilled the words break down your walls (see v. 5) when his army built a causeway half a mile long between the shore and the city on its island. He tore down defensive walls to build the causeway.

26:16 The princes of the sea (see 27:35) were the rulers of various settlements in Phoenicia that were connected with Tyre. They would surrender and submit to Babylonian rule when they saw what happened to Tyre: be astonished at you. They would mourn in song (see vv. 17, 18) after they took off their robes and embroidered garments (see Jon. 3:6).

26:19 The deep is the same Hebrew word as in Gen. 1:2. Imagery of the chaotic waters of creation picture the coming catastrophe.

26:20 The Pit is probably a synonym for hell (see Is. 14:15; 38:18). never be inhabited: Ancient Tyre would cease to exist.

27:3 perfect: The proud citizens of Tyre saw themselves as the finest example of a merchant “ship” in the ancient world.

27:5 Senir is an Amorite term used for Mt. Hermon or another peak in its range. Fir is rendered elsewhere “pine,” “cypress,” or “juniper.”

27:6 Bashan (see 39:18) was the broad and fertile plateau east of the Sea of Galilee and the upper Jordan.

27:7 Elishah has coasts and is associated here with Egypt; therefore it may be Italy or Sicily.

27:8 Sidon was a Phoenician seaport about 30 miles north of Tyre. The two cities were rivals, but Tyre tended to dominate Sidon (see 28:21, 22; Gen. 10:15, 19; Judg. 18:28; Is. 23:2; Matt. 11:21, 22). Like Tyre, the city of Arvad was on an island off the coast of Phoenicia. It was Phoenicia’s northernmost town (see 28:11; Gen. 10:18; 1 Chr. 1:16).

27:9 Gebal was another successful Phoenician port, between Sidon and Arvad (see Josh. 13:5; 1 Kin. 5:18). It was called Byblos by the Greeks and Romans, and Gubla by the Assyrians and Babylonians.

27:10, 11 Lydia and Libya are literally Lud and Put, usually understood to be in western Asia Minor (Lud) and Africa (Put).

27:12 Tarshish was possibly in Spain.

Tin

A soft, bluish-white metal smelted from cassiterite, its principal ore. Tin was used chiefly as an alloy with copper to produce bronze, a much harder material than either copper or tin. The Hebrew word for tin means “a substitute or alloy.”

Phoenicia supplied the ancient Mediterranean world with tin obtained from Spain, its chief colony. Some scholars believe the Phoenicians sailed the Atlantic to Cornwall, England, the principal supplier of tin. Tyre received tin from Tarshish (Ezek. 27:12). Some think Persia and Armenia exported tin also.

Tin was among the spoils the Israelites took from the Midianites (Num. 31:22). The prophet Ezekiel pictured Jerusalem as being smelted as tin cast in a furnace (Ezek. 22:18–20).

27:13 Javan is Greece (see Gen. 10:4). Tubal and Meshech are thought to have been in eastern Asia Minor (modern Turkey).

27:14 On the house of Togarmah, see Gen. 10:3. This phrase may refer to the people of Armenia in eastern Asia Minor (see 38:6).

27:15 Dedan may perhaps be understood as “Redan” (Rhodes), because the written forms of the Hebrew letters for d and r are easily confused. Rhodes was a major trading center in the southern Aegean Sea.

27:16 The Hebrew term for emeralds may also be translated “turquoise.”

27:17 Minnith was in Ammon (see 21:28) and presumably was famous for its fine wheat. Millet translates a Hebrew word that apparently stands for some type of food, but exactly what kind is not known today. Balm was an aromatic resin or other gummy substance that may have had medicinal value (see Jer. 8:22).

27:18 Damascus was and is the capital of Syria (v. 16). Helbon is north of Damascus, a region still recognized for its wine production. The phrase rendered white wool is understood by some to mean “wool from Zachar,” a place possibly associated with modern Sachra, also north of Damascus, where goat and sheep are common.

27:19 Dan seems out of place in this context, so some transliterate the Hebrew as Wedan. Others argue that the name Dan is another title for Greece. Cassia (see Ex. 30:24; Ps. 45:8; Song 4:14) was either a type of cinnamon tree or a plant from which perfume and incense were made. Cane refers to an oil-producing reed found in swamps.

27:21 Kedar was a nomadic tribe in Arabia.

27:22 Sheba and Raamah were located near Arabia (see Gen. 10:6, 7).

27:23 Ancient Haran was a merchant city along the important Euphrates trade route (see Gen. 11:27–32), in what is now eastern Turkey. Canneh (see Is. 10:9), Eden, and Chilmad were probably in Mesopotamia, most likely south of Haran (see 2 Kin. 19:12). The verse seems concerned with cities, so Assyria is better translated “Asshur,” a city south of Nineveh; but the term could stand for the citizens of Assyria. On Sheba, see v. 22.

27:26 The east wind was often powerful and potentially destructive (see Gen. 41:6; Job 27:21; Ps. 48:7; Is. 27:8). Thus it symbolizes the destruction the Babylonian army would bring on Tyre. In 26:7, Babylon would come from the “north.” This was the direction from which the army would invade Phoenicia.

27:28 The common-land was the pastureland controlled by a city.

27:32–36 The final verses of the chapter present a remorseful and revengeful lament to be chanted, perhaps over and over, by Tyre’s trade partners. Tyre’s nearest neighbors (see 26:16–18) would be greatly troubled by Tyre’s defeat, but soon they would turn against Tyre themselves in the vain hope of escaping a similar fate at the hands of the Babylonians.

28:3 you are wiser than Daniel: The Hebrew name Daniel is spelled here the same way as in 14:14: Dan-El. It might refer to a different person otherwise unknown in Israel’s ancient history.

- 28:7 The strangers are the Babylonians (see 7:17–19; 23:23; 30:11; 31:12; 32:12).
- 28:8 The phrase midst of the seas parallels the word Pit and reinforces its meaning, for it too signifies the place and fact of death.
- 28:10 the death of the uncircumcised: This term denotes a disgraceful death (see 31:18; 32:19).
- 28:12 Seal of perfection is more literally “the one sealing a plan” (the same Hebrew word for “plan” or “pattern” appears once more at 43:10). In effect, the king affixed the official seal of his signet ring to the plans that made Tyre one of the leading centers of commerce in that day. wisdom . . . beauty: These descriptions mark out the king of Tyre as an exceptional ruler, displaying the ideals of kingship in the ancient Middle East.
- 28:13 in Eden, the garden of God: This is possibly an exaggerated comparison: this king invaded a place like Eden in its beauty. created: The Hebrew verb for created is the same as the one used in Gen. 1:1. Just as in Genesis, the word emphasizes God’s active work in history. It was God’s sovereign plan and purpose to allow this man to become king.
- 28:14 The holy mountain of God could be “the holy mountain of gods.” According to Canaanite beliefs, the “seat of the gods” was in the “mountains,” or the “mountains of the north” (see Ps. 48:2). The focus here seems to be on the king of Tyre’s attempt to enter into the council of the gods. So instead of the verse referring to the king’s presence in Jerusalem, it could refer more logically to a Phoenician ritual, the celebration of their patron god Melqart’s fiery resurrection. This king wanted to imitate Melqart.
- 28:15 The term perfect does not mean sinless, but complete or flawless. The king of Tyre had been in complete control and was unchallenged until he was filled with prideful iniquity.
- 28:16–19 The king’s pride led to materialism, violence, and sinfulness in business and religion. abundance of your trading: The expression is most easily and appropriately applied to the human king who was the driving force behind the development of Tyre’s commercial empire. The true God—the pronoun I—dethroned the king, derailed his unholy ambitions, and destroyed the source of his pride in order to make his example a deterrent to others. The king’s commercial empire collapsed and his machinations to resemble a god were crushed in the sight of local rulers who would gaze in astonishment.
- 28:20–23 Sidon was Tyre’s sister city, but its lesser importance may explain the brevity of treatment here (see 27:8). As commercial “sisters,” the cities had similar characters and concerns, so they shared similar crimes. The LORD displayed justice through deserved judgment so the people would recognize that He is the true and righteous God.
- 28:24 God would free Israel. The brier and thorn refer to the nations around Israel who had been enemies and evil influences. When the judgments were executed fully, these nations would no longer be able to harass and oppress Israel.
- 28:25, 26 God promised that Israel will someday be gathered from its dispersion among the nations to return and dwell in their own land, the land that God had given to Jacob (the land of Canaan; 11:17; 20:41, 42; ch. 33–39; see Gen. 12:7; 26:3; 28:10–13; 35:12; Jer. 30:10). The end of the foreign nations’ ability to attack Israel will lead to a time of peace, prosperity, and protection.
- 29:1 tenth year . . . tenth month: This is December 588 or January 587 B.C. This introduction of another date by Ezekiel (his sixth) is a chronological break, but not a thematic break, with 26:1–28:26 (see 1:2; 8:1; 20:1; 24:1; 26:1).
- 29:2 The Pharaoh was Hophra (c. 589–570 B.C.; see Jer. 44:30). The prophecy against him was also a prophecy against all Egypt (see 30:22; 32:2), like the previous prophecy against Tyre and its king (see 28:1–19). The context suggests that literal, human kings were meant in chs. 28; 29.
- 29:3 O great monster: The Pharaoh is pictured here as a crocodile. My River refers to the Nile. Pharaoh’s arrogant pride is described by his words about the Nile River, I have made it for myself (compare with the words of the king of Tyre, 28:2). In the Egyptian religion the crocodile god Sebek was a protector (see 32:2).
- 29:4, 5 Whereas v. 3 explains why Pharaoh would be punished, these verses explain how the punishment would be accomplished. The imagery pictures a crocodile being caught, carried out of the water onto land, and left as carrion. The fish represent the Egyptians, who would be judged along with Pharaoh (v. 2). Pharaoh's destiny to be food may have been an intentional insult to the rulers famous for their burials and pyramids.

29:6, 7 God's purpose for judging Egypt was to encourage the nations and individuals to come to know Him (see 6:14; 7:27; 12:20; 14:11; 22:16; 23:49; 25:7, 11, 17; 28:24). Staff of reed refers to the people of Egypt. This alludes to Egypt's weakness as an ally and the worthlessness of that country's protection (see Is. 36:6). Israel was foolish to rely on Egypt for protection. They should have turned to God for their security and strength.

29:8 sword: Here is another reference to the Babylonian army under Nebuchadnezzar, the predicted human instrument of God's coming wrath (see 21:1–7, 9–11, 19, 20; 26:7–14).

29:9 The nation was indicted as a result of what he—that is, Pharaoh—boasted. Often national monuments were inscribed in ancient times with the exaggerated and arrogant boasts of kings.

29:10 Migdol to Syene refers to places most likely near the northern and southern boundaries of ancient Egypt, indicating the totality of the land (see Judg. 20:1). The desolation would extend to the land south of Egypt—ancient Nubia which is modern Sudan.

29:11 The Egyptians would experience a scattering to other lands for forty years (see 4:4–8). A Babylonian chronicle suggests that Egypt was conquered around 568 B.C. Forty years after this date, the Persians instituted a policy of resettlement for many of the peoples who had been dispersed by Babylon.

29:14, 15 The land of Pathros is southern Egypt. This kingdom would thereafter be lowly and the lowliest, never again to dominate other nations.

29:17 came to pass: Ezekiel received this oracle from God (vv. 17–21) and apparently the following message also (30:1–19) in March-April 571 B.C., the latest date in the book (see v. 1).

29:18 labor strenuously: This recalls the difficult siege of Tyre. Heads were made bald and shoulders rubbed raw in the protracted siege, which took 13 or more years. yet neither: The fact was that neither Nebuchadnezzar nor his army received much of a reward for their efforts.

29:19, 20 God affirms that He is sovereign over the coming fall of Egypt to Babylon to make up for the wages they had not received from their conquest of Tyre. God specifically named Nebuchadnezzar as his instrument (see Jer. 43:8–13). The Babylonian chronicles imply that Babylon invaded Egypt in approximately 568 B.C.

29:21 In that day: This refers to the day when Egypt would fall to Babylon, and a prophecy about the Messiah should not be read into this text. Cause the horn . . . of Israel to spring forth means that the nation would renew its strength. Renewal and encouragement would come to God's people in exile when they heard about Egypt's downfall orchestrated by the hand of God, who is holy and sovereign. I will open your mouth was God's promise to restore Ezekiel's speech (see 33:22) and therefore to magnify Himself and His ways: know that I am the LORD.

30:3 The phrase the day of the LORD here refers to the period of divine wrath on the nation of Egypt. This term suggests God's personal involvement in His judgmental work. In this context (see vv. 4–19) God would use Babylon under Nebuchadnezzar to punish Egypt and her allies (see Gen. 12:3; Jer. 25; 46). the time of the Gentiles: That is, the time of God's wrath on the nations.

30:5 Ethiopia is the Hebrew Cush, and refers to the area south of Egypt toward modern Ethiopia, see 29:10. Libya and Lydia were in Africa and Asia Minor; see 27:10. Mingled people may be read as "all of Arabia." Chub is an obscure term that was understood as the "Libyans" by the Septuagint translators of the Hebrew OT. The allied lands were lands to the south, east, and west of Egypt that would also fall to the Babylonian army.

30:6 Migdol to Syene means the whole land of Egypt, see 29:10.

30:8 Fire is often symbolic of judgment (see 20:47; Is. 4:4).

30:9 This day of Egypt—the day that Egypt and her allies would be conquered—was part of a larger period of God's judgment on the nations outside Israel by means of Babylon; in fact, Ezekiel describes the Babylonians as messengers sent from God Himself. No one could prevent the coming day of judgment, for the Almighty had ordained it: for indeed it is coming.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

Ships

Merchant ships varied in size. The smaller coastal traders were from 50–60 feet long and 15–20 feet wide. The larger ones that sailed the open water were frequently well over 100 feet long and up to 50 feet wide. These ships were usually made of fir, pine, or cedar boards over a hardwood frame.

Cargo ships usually had little space for passengers. Occasionally they would carry voyagers on the open deck or in the hold with the cargo (Jon. 1:5). Merchant vessels were large enough to carry considerable cargo and sturdy enough to survive the open sea. The judgment on Tyre recorded in Ezek. 27 reflects the wealth that trade provided.

The fishing vessels used on the Sea of Galilee in Jesus' time were large enough to accommodate all the disciples (Matt. 8:23–27), but small enough to be in danger of sinking under the weight of a large catch of fish (Luke 5:7).

Merchant ship mosaics are part of the Square of the Corporations at Ostia Antica, first to third centuries A.D.

30:10–12 These verses add extra details to the more general predictions about Egypt’s doom in the preceding verses (vv. 3–9). Most terrible of the nations was applied to the Babylonians because their cruelty was legendary (see 2 Kin. 25:7; 2 Chr. 33:11; 36:17; Jer. 39:4–10).

30:13–19 In this fourth and final message, emphasis seems to be placed on the fall of major cities. Noph was ancient Memphis, a significant city in Egypt. It was capital of the Old Kingdom in the third century B.C. On Pathros, see 29:14, 15. Zoan, the classical Tanis, was a city in the northeastern delta. No was ancient Thebes, the capital of Upper or southern Egypt. Thebes was destroyed by the Assyrians in 661 B.C. Sin was ancient Pelusium, a fortress town on the northeastern border where the ruling Egyptian dynasty of Ezekiel’s day had a residence: the strength of Egypt. Aven (or Heliopolis, “the City of the Sun”) was ancient On, a center for worship of the sun-god Re. Aven was north of Memphis at the southern tip of the delta. Pi Beseth, or Bubastis in Greek form, was once the capital of Lower Egypt (the northern or Nile Delta area). Tehaphnehes was also a fortress town on the northeastern border, the place where the Babylonian army would enter Egypt to bring this dark day. A cloud would arise from burning the city, and its vassal villages—her daughters—would be attacked and set ablaze also.

30:20 first month: March–April 587 B.C. (see 29:1, 18–20). Ezekiel returns to a chronological sequence for the prophecies.

30:21 I have broken the arm of Pharaoh: The prophecy refers to Pharaoh Hophra’s unsuccessful attempt to relieve the siege of Jerusalem just a few months earlier (see 29:2, 6, 7). God used Nebuchadnezzar to defeat the Egyptian army. A muscular arm, as a symbol of the king’s (and thus the army’s) strength, often appeared in Egyptian art and architecture. Even Hophra took the title “He Who Is Strong-Armed.” That God had broken Pharaoh’s arm symbolized his complete defeat.

30:22–26 I will scatter: These verses predict the continued weakness of Hophra against Nebuchadnezzar and the coming catastrophe for all Egypt when its cities would be defeated and the people deported (beginning c. 568 B.C.).

31:1 third month: May–June, 587 B.C. See 1:2; 8:1; 20:1; 24:1, 2; 26:1; 29:1, 17; 30:20.

31:3 Egypt was compared to Assyria in greatness and presumably in its great pride over its achievements. Ezekiel uses another allegory (see 15:1–8; 17:1–10): Assyria as a cedar in Lebanon. This image pictures the nations as trees in a forest in Lebanon (a country prized for its cedar trees; see vv. 15–18; 1 Kin. 5:7–10; 7:2, 3; Ps. 29:5). Assyria at one time was the highest tree, but it had been cut down. Its capital city Nineveh fell in 612 B.C., signaling the end of Assyrian domination and the beginning of neo-Babylonian control of the ancient Middle East.

31:4 The waters were the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. These mighty rivers brought agricultural fertility and fostered the development of great cities along trade routes (see vv. 8, 9, 15–18; Gen. 2:10–14).

31:5–9 The unparalleled greatness of Assyria is portrayed with vivid poetic images. There is both comparison and contrast with Egypt. Before turning to the mostly narrative explanation in vv. 10–18, the prophet indicates that although Egypt was great, it was not the greatest nation. If Assyria had fallen to Babylon, no hope would remain for Egypt (see 31:18).

31:10–14 Because Assyria gloated over her greatness, God sentenced this cruel nation to harsh treatment and subjection under Babylon, the mighty one of the nations. I will deliver: The past tense, “I delivered,” would be more accurate for this context. The meaning is that Babylon, the terrible nation, had cut Assyria down. The picturesque conclusion to this second message of ch. 31 indicates that all the other nations (birds, beasts, and trees) that observed Assyria’s ruin would share its destiny of death, depths, and the Pit, and would never attain its heights of power.

31:15–17 Hell renders the Hebrew word sometimes transliterated as Sheol, which often merely speaks of the grave or death (see Gen. 37:35; Ps. 6:5; Jon. 2:2). God had dried up or devastated Assyria, and all the nations were caused to mourn for it and shake because of its death and burial, as it was cast into hell, the Pit, and the depths of the earth. Those nations, the trees of Eden, who were guilty of a similar, sinful pride in their achievements would receive the same punishment.

31:18 If Assyria, the greatest nation, had fallen to the Babylonians, surely a nation less great would also fall. This pointed to Egypt—Pharaoh and all his multitude (see vv. 2, 3, 5–9).

32:1 twelfth month: February–March 585 B.C. (see 31:1), after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. (see 2 Kin. 25:8), but about 20 years before the Babylonian invasion of Egypt (see 29:19, 20). However, the record of the fall of Jerusalem is given in 33:21. This section (32:1–33:20) is placed before 33:21, although it reports events that follow the fall of Jerusalem. Ezekiel’s arrangement is thematic. He can first record his lament, and then explain the events that inspired it. Even though the Egyptians arrogantly thought that they, unlike Judah, would not fall to Babylon’s forces, they would eventually experience the same fate as the citizens of Jerusalem.

32:2 The words lion and monster depict Egypt as proud and powerful.

32:3–8 These poetic lines picture Egypt and its ruler, Hophra, as a crocodile who is going to experience the judgment ordained by God. Egypt will be caught, killed, and consigned to darkness—a recognizable element of the day of the Lord (see 30:1–5; Amos 5:18–20; Acts 2:20).

32:11–15 This section interrupts the flow of vv. 3–10. The king of Babylon was Nebuchadnezzar. the most terrible of the nations: That is, the Neo-Babylonian Empire (see 30:10–12). rivers run like oil: This phrase, not used elsewhere, pictures the time following massive killing when the Nile and its tributaries would experience a “deadly” calm. The waters will be clear because there will be no human or animal life.

32:16 Such a scene of judgment will produce mourning and great grief; but God is to be seen as just and doing what was necessary to stop the people’s arrogance. The daughters of the nations: These were among the “many peoples” in vv. 9, 10 who shall lament and be astonished over Egypt’s destruction.

32:17 This is 15 days later than v. 1, still in 585 B.C.

32:18–21 Depths of the earth, the Pit, and hell refer to the grave or death, not the place of eternal punishment for God’s enemies.

32:22 Assyria was the master of the ancient Middle Eastern world until the rise of the neo-Babylonians around 612 B.C., early in Jeremiah’s career and about 20 years before Ezekiel’s first vision.

32:24 Elam was east and southeast of Assyria, in what is now Iran. The people of Elam were descended from one of the sons of Shem (Gen. 10:22; 1 Chr. 1:17).

32:26 Meshech and Tubal: These peoples were located in ancient Anatolia or Asia Minor, present-day Turkey. These names are mentioned as sons of Japheth (Gen. 10:2; 1 Chr. 1:5).

32:28 Ezekiel switches suddenly to the second person singular—you—as a wake-up call or reminder to Pharaoh, the representative of Egypt. Yes is an emphatic use of the conjunction otherwise translated as “and.”

32:30 The princes of the north are lands north of Israel such as Tyre and Sidon in Phoenicia. The Sidonians were from Sidon, a seaport on the coast about 30 miles north of Tyre (see 27:8).

32:31, 32 Pharaoh: Now the message (vv. 17–32) comes full circle. The point is that Egypt and Pharaoh will die like the other nations at the hand of the living God, who judges every nation with justice.

33:2 The children of your people refers to fellow Israelites in exile with Ezekiel, now including the people of Judah deported to Babylon after Nebuchadnezzar's third invasion.

watchman

(Heb. tsaphah) (3:17; 33:2; 1 Sam. 14:16; Hos. 9:8) Strong's #6822

This noun is derived from the verb meaning “to watch in anticipation.” This verb is used to describe the actions of individuals waiting in ambush as they watch for their prey (Ps. 37:32). Watchman was an official military position. They were stationed on the towers of a city and were responsible for spotting approaching armies and sounding the alarm to warn the city (1 Sam. 14:16). The imagery behind the watchman is much like that of the shepherd, though watchman as a symbolic title was limited to the office of a prophet (Hos. 9:8). A watchman's failure was punishable by death. In the case of Ezekiel, punishment would come directly from God if he failed to report to the people the messages God gave him (33:8).

Go to the List of Word Studies

33:7–9 Ezekiel's duty as a watchman is defined. Compare also the responsibility of the elders of the church in the NT to “watch” (see Acts 20:31; Heb. 13:17; 1 Pet. 5:1–4).

33:10 pine away: This phrase means to rot, waste, or dwindle.

33:12–20 In punishing Israel God was being faithful to the covenant stipulations. This covenant had been approved by the Israelites. They had agreed to its commands and accepted the consequences of breaking them, corporately and individually (see 5:8–17; 12:15, 16; 16:60, 61; 18:19–32; 20:5; Ex. 19:1–9; Deut. 27). God presents His rationale in these verses for deciding who would be rewarded with life and who would suffer death: He would save those who repent and turn to Him, but would condemn those who trust in themselves and do evil. After presenting His rationale, God declares that His judgment is just and fair—certainly more just than the practices of the Israelites.

33:21–48:35 The final, large collection of messages in Ezekiel communicates comfort and consolation to the exiles in Babylon following the shock of the destruction of Jerusalem.

33:21, 22 In January 585 B.C., Ezekiel received the news that Jerusalem had been taken. The city had been under siege by Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians for two and a half years (2 Kin. 25:1–10). These two verses introduce six oracles (33:23–39:29). Ezekiel received a message from the LORD and reported it to the exiles in Babylon.

33:23 Ezekiel's introductory formula—identical or similar to this verse—marks the beginning of the messages received from the LORD in this section of the book (33:21–39:29).

33:24 they who inhabit those ruins: This refers to the people who had remained in Jerusalem. They thought they were the remnant—the faithful ones. But they experienced the final siege of the city by King Nebuchadnezzar, for reasons God will give in the following verses.

33:25, 26 Ezekiel confronted his people with specific examples of their past and present refusal to obey God's revealed will for their lives (see 18:6, 10; 22:11; Ex. 20:4, 5, 13, 14; Lev. 7:26, 27; 17:10–14; 19:26; Deut. 12:16, 23). Was it not then reasonable that God would punish the present generation by removing them from the land, at least temporarily? The writer of Hebrews, after using the example of Israel's failure to enter the land (ch. 3), admonished the church in a similar way (see Heb. 4:1).

33:30–33 This section contrasts the actions and attitudes of the exiles with the life of God’s prophet Ezekiel. The exiles had claimed to go to the prophet to receive God’s revelation, but their behavior was inconsistent with their stated beliefs. Their true desire was for entertainment, not for divine enlightenment. If the fall of Jerusalem failed to awaken them spiritually, nothing would. Yet it certainly would open their eyes to the divine truth of Ezekiel’s preaching. In these verses then, God also comforted and consoled Ezekiel. The musical terms may relate to the lyrical nature, and Ezekiel’s singing or chanting, of some of these oracles (see 19:1; 21:9–12).

33:31 hear . . . do not do: See James 1:21–25 for another condemnation of those who hear God’s word but do not put it into practice.

34:1–6 The shepherds of Israel is a metaphor for Israel’s political rulers, but it could include spiritual leaders also (even kings were supposed to be spiritual examples). The shepherds were accused of forsaking the key feature of godly leadership: selfless, sacrificial service (see Is. 52:13–53:12; Matt. 23:11; Mark 10:45; Luke 22:24–30; Acts 20:17–38; Rom. 12:1–5; Phil. 2:1–11; 1 Tim. 3:1–7; 1 Pet. 2:18–25; 5:1–4). The results of self-serving leadership for Israel are seen in vv. 5, 6. there was no shepherd: This means that having leaders who seek to be served, rather than to serve, is tantamount to having no leader at all; therefore, the people of Israel were like sheep without a shepherd (Matt. 9:36). They were aimless—wandered—and easily attacked—became food. Scattered alluded to Israel’s deportations and dispersion among the nations.

34:7–10 did not feed My flock: The crimes of Israel’s leaders come under review before their punishment is pronounced.

34:11–16 Compare the Lord’s persistent shepherding and guiding of His people with the faithlessness of Israel’s leaders in v. 6 (see also vv. 25–31; Jer. 23:1–6; John 10:1–30). See also Ps. 23, where similar ideas pertain to God’s shepherding of the individual rather than corporate Israel. The cloudy and dark day was the day Jerusalem fell (see 30:1–5; Zeph. 1:15). It may also speak of the future day of deliverance when God will seek out His sheep (see 36:16–36). Israel, though guilty and misguided, would eventually be rescued by the divine Good Shepherd and restored to the Promised Land (see chs. 33–39).

Shepherds

Throughout the Bible, the image of the shepherd is very important. From David, the shepherd boy who became the first king of Israel, to Jesus Christ, who said of Himself, “I am the good shepherd” (John 10:11), the shepherd represents one who loves and cares for his flock just as a leader or ruler cares for those under his charge.

Some characteristics of a good shepherd include feeding the flock, tending the weak and sick, searching for the lost, guiding with love, gathering and protecting the sheep, and giving one’s best to them. On the other hand, a bad shepherd is more concerned about feeding himself, worrying about his own health, guiding with a heavy hand, abandoning or scattering his flock, and keeping the best for himself.

It is easy to see in these comparisons why the Scriptures often exhort leaders to be shepherds to their people. A good leader is concerned that the people’s physical needs are being met and that care is provided for the sick and injured. A true leader looks for those who have fallen away. He leads like a shepherd by providing direction and correction, not with a fist but with a loving hand. A good leader protects those under his care and does not leave them to the wolves—to those who lead them astray. And finally, a good leader gives of himself to those under his charge. He cares about them and their well-being. Because Jesus called Himself the Good Shepherd, it is clear that He is the One about whom Ezekiel prophesied. He is the One who searches after His followers (34:11), saves them (34:12), guides them (34:13), and supplies their needs (34:14; see John 10). Jesus' self-sacrificing life provides the perfect blueprint for making a good shepherd and leader.

A good shepherd goes out of her way to search and find the weak and sick.

34:17–19 The rams and goats were the leaders of Israel who had failed to lead properly. They had used their positions of power to their own advantage and to the disadvantage of the people.

34:23, 24 The change from the pronoun I to he in this verse indicates that God would continue operating as the Chief Shepherd through this chosen future ruler from the Davidic line. He is the Messiah—God's only Son and His servant.

34:25–31 The exiles were encouraged through this promise of a covenant of peace (see 37:26–28; 38:11–13; 39:25–29; Is. 54:10), characterized by these promises: (1) security from foreign aggressor nations, the wild beasts; (2) showers of blessing, meaning productivity and prosperity; and (3) the certainty that the LORD is Israel's God and desires reunion with His people and a lasting relationship built on a new covenant (Jer. 31:31–34; Heb. 8:6).

35:2 Mount Seir is Edom (see v. 15; 25:8; Gen. 36:30; 2 Chr. 20:10).

35:3, 4 God reveals the nature and the purpose of His judgment on Edom (Seir, see v. 2). These verses are poetry and perhaps were used as a song.

35:5 at the time of their calamity: This refers to how Edom took advantage of the people of Judah during and after the Babylonian invasion (see Obad. 11–14).

35:6–9 Having stated why Edom deserved judgment, Ezekiel explained how the nation would be punished. The punishment would include widespread death and unrelieved destruction (see Is. 34:6–8; 63:1–6; Jer. 49:7–13; Obad. 18).

35:10 A second reason for God's revenge on Edom is given, in addition to that in v. 5—Edom expected to take over Judah and Israel after their destruction by the Babylonians. These two nations refers to Israel and Judah (see 37:15–28).

36:1–7 The land of Israel itself was addressed—the mountains—because the nations desired to own it and, in seeking possession, destroyed it physically and defamed it verbally. Israel was termed the ancient heights because of the hill country central to its geography. God is glorified and the exiles comforted by the following: (1) exposing the crimes of the enemies of His nation; (2) exonerating His land from false charges (see vv. 13–15); and (3) executing judgment and justice against the foreign nations. Edom: This nation was singled out because of its long history of animosity toward Israel (see 35:5). The rest of the nations were the others who in some way had mistreated Israel and thus received a sentence of judgment (see chs. 25–32).

36:8 they are about to come: This was spoken to the land, picturing it as eagerly awaiting the quick return of its rightful and most respectful owners. The first return from exile would come under the Persian king Cyrus, about 50 years later (538 B.C.).

36:10 This restoration would involve all the house of Israel.

36:12 My people Israel: Despite all their sinfulness, which the book has taken enormous pains to detail and describe, the nation was still referred to as the people of God. They would finally and forever take possession of their land, symbolized by the mountains and the central hills of Palestine, which are personified as you in this verse.

36:15 The mountains addressed as you would no longer cause the nation to stumble, for God would make the nation secure from foreign armies. God Himself would reestablish the nation and place His prince on its throne (see 34:24).

36:17 like the uncleanness of a woman: The uncleanness of the blood of menstruation (not the woman herself) was compared to the past behavior of Israel in Canaan (see 18:6; 22:10; Lev. 12:2–5; 15:19–30).

36:18 Israel had defiled God's territorial gift in two main ways: (1) The nation had shed innocent people's blood. (2) The nation had worshiped idols by mixing the true worship of the Lord God with involvement in the idolatrous and immoral practices of pagan religions.

36:19 God judged them according to their ways. Israel had been hypocritical and unholy; they had not separated themselves or made themselves distinct from the pagan world around them (see v. 18). God had given His people the Promised Land as a place where they could show the world the difference it makes to follow the true God (see Deut. 7:1–11). They failed to follow God, so He forced them out of the land. Through either their obedience or their disobedience, God would demonstrate to the watching world His personality, power, and plans.

36:20, 21 The most tragic outcome of Israel's sin (see vv. 18, 19) was that the nation profaned God's holy name. Defeat and dispersion, especially in the ancient world, were negative reflections on the character (or the name, see 20:9) of a nation's god. God's reputation as wholly set apart from other so-called gods in power and purpose was compromised by Israel's refusal to trust in His ways, whether in their own land or in exile. To rescue His holy reputation and His rebellious people, God remained faithful to His promises in the Mosaic covenant.

36:22–24 The preview of the return to the land in the Mosaic covenant is related to the promise of perpetual—but not necessarily uninterrupted—possession of the land of Canaan in the Abrahamic covenant (Gen. 12:1–3; 13:14–18; 15:12–21; Hos. 3:4).

36:25 Sprinkle clean water on you symbolizes cleansing from sin (see v. 17; 11:18; 37:23; Jer. 33:8). This is God's forgiveness based on a blood atonement (see Ex. 12:22; Lev. 14:4–7, 51; Num. 19:14–22; Ps. 51:7; Zech. 13:1; 1 Cor. 6:11; Heb. 10:22).

36:26, 27 The ritual of purification from sin would be empty and meaningless apart from true repentance and the regenerating and empowering work of the Holy Spirit on the inner spirit of individuals. God would not only restore the people physically to the land, but would restore them spiritually, by giving them a new heart and new spirit to help them follow Him and do His will. (See 11:19–20; 18:31; 37:14; 39:29; Jer. 31:31–34; Joel 2:28, 29; Acts 2:17, 18; Rom. 7:7–8:11; 2 Cor. 3:3–18; Heb. 8:6–10:39.)

36:28–30 you shall be My people: See vv. 1–15; 34:29. The purpose of the Mosaic covenant would finally be realized (see Deut. 26:16–19; 29:13; 30:8). The Israelites would become a people dedicated to God's ways.

36:31, 32 These verses restate the reasons for the planned restoration and renewal of God's people. The restoration from the Exile would recover God's glorious reputation among the nations and erase the guilt of the Israelite's sin. This is all a product of God's favor on the Israelites—even though they had done nothing to merit such mercy.

36:35 The garden of Eden is mentioned here to suggest beauty, fertility, and productivity so great that people would be reminded of the "garden eastward in Eden" (Gen. 2:8; contrast 28:13).

36:38 Like a flock . . . flocks of men: Animals offered for sacrifice had to be free from any observable impurity or disfigurement. The returned people of God will be living sacrifices (Rom. 12:1, 2), pure and unblemished. I am the LORD: This is the constant refrain of Ezekiel; God would make Himself known as the one true God in both His judgment and His restoration of His people.

37:1, 2 The wording recalls the past visionary experiences of Ezekiel (see 1:1, 3; 2:2; 3:12, 14; 8:1, 3, 7) although the word vision is not employed in these verses. bones: Not only do the bones speak of death, indeed of many deaths, but for bones to be left in the open was an indignity and indecency according to Jewish custom. To leave bodies unburied until the bones were exposed was unthinkable.

The Visions of Ezekiel

Vision: God

Reference: 1:1–28

Significance: Ezekiel is called, commissioned, and empowered with an overwhelming vision of divine glory.

Vision: Abominations in the temple

Reference: 8:1–18

Significance: Ezekiel is transported to Jerusalem where he sees pagan idols in the temple and Israelites worshipping these false gods. God reveals His anger to Ezekiel over such sinful behavior.

Vision: People slain in Jerusalem

Reference: 9:1–11

Significance: Ezekiel witnesses a violent vision in which Israelites of all ages are judged and killed because of their rebelliousness and idolatry.

Vision: The temple and the cherubim

Reference: 10:1–22

Significance: Ezekiel watches God's glory and the mysterious cherubim depart from the temple because of the sinfulness of the people.

Vision: 25 wicked rulers

Reference: 11:1–12

Significance: Ezekiel is transported to the East Gate where he sees 25 Israelite leaders plotting evil. He condemns them for their evil ways.

Vision: Valley of the dry bones

Reference: 37:1–14

Significance: Ezekiel is transported to a valley where he sees dry, bleached bones come together, recover flesh, and come to life. This vision depicts God’s power and promise to restore and revive a dead people.

Vision: The temple

Reference: 40:1—43:10

Significance: Ezekiel sees a detailed vision of a new temple and the return of the Lord. This vision encourages the Israelites that God will return to bless His people.

37:3 You know: The prophet placed his faith completely in the living God. Ordinarily, one would say “no” to the question God posed. But Ezekiel did not limit God; he knew the Almighty could make bones live.

37:4 Prophecy to these bones: Ezekiel’s prophecies had often been directed to people as deaf as these old, dry bones.

37:5 The word translated breath is translated in other places as wind or Spirit. The breath sent by God into the lifeless bodies symbolizes the Holy Spirit (see v. 14), who brings renewal, regeneration, and rebirth (see vv. 6, 9; John 3:5–8; 6:44; 7:37–39; 16:5–15; Rom. 8:9–11).

37:6 you shall live: This passage is not about resurrection from physical death, but rebirth from spiritual death brought about by divine power. Psalm 87 is another text in the Hebrew Scriptures that speaks of spiritual rebirth. The point of Jesus’ words to Nicodemus in John 3:1–16 was that he should have known and understood the concept of a second birth.

37:7, 8 The dramatic noise and then coming together of the bones with new flesh must have been chilling and thrilling to the prophet. This was a prophetic portrayal of the rebirth of Israel (see Rom. 9–11).

37:9 The Hebrew word translated breath is the same as the one translated winds. It can also be translated spirit.

37:10 an exceedingly great army: The dead bones in the valley (vv. 1, 2) must have looked like the aftermath of a horrible military defeat in which there were no survivors even to bury the dead. But now the army stood upon their feet.

37:11–14 The bones symbolize the whole house of Israel. This identification picks up on imagery already used: (1) those identified as dry or spiritually dead (see vv. 2–5); (2) those identified as despondent and dejected, with no apparent hope of being “resurrected” as the people of the living God; and (3) those described as disassembled and dispersed before being rejoined and rebuilt (see vv. 6–10). The major thrust of this passage is the coming spiritual rebirth of God’s chosen people through the agency of His Spirit (see vv. 15–28; 36:22–32). The spiritual rebirth would miraculously revive and restore human beings to what God had intended them to be in the beginning. The same body-breath sequence occurs in the creation of Adam (see Gen. 2:7).

37:16 a stick: This is Ezekiel’s final symbolic drama employing an object (see 4:1, 3, 9; 5:1).

37:22 mountains of Israel: This phrase represents the Promised Land (see 36:1–7, 12). The one king refers to the future ruler, the promised Messiah, also called Shepherd, Servant, and Prince (see vv. 24, 25; 7:27; 34:11–31; John 10).

37:23 The Hebrew word translated dwelling places is backsliding in other ancient manuscripts. In Hebrew, the two words differ in the placement of one letter.

37:24, 25 The title David My servant refers to the Messiah and King who would come from David's line to save Israel (v. 22; see 2 Sam. 7:8–16).

37:26–28 The Lord had made an everlasting covenant with Abraham, the nation of Israel, and David (see 16:60, 61; see Gen. 9:16; 17:7; Num. 25:12, 13; 2 Sam. 7:13, 16; 23:5; Jer. 32:40). My sanctuary in their midst: The sanctuary or holy place of the living God is His dwelling place among His people (see Zeph. 3:15–18). My tabernacle: This term meaning “dwelling place” is a synonym for sanctuary. Both can be used of God's dwelling in the midst of His people in the wilderness. Here they point to the future dwelling of the living God in the midst of His people forevermore. We may also compare the use Paul makes of these verses in 2 Cor. 6:16.

38:2 Son of man is a title for Ezekiel emphasizing his humanity, even though his message was from God. The term Gog appears in only one other place in the OT (1 Chr. 5:4), but not in reference to the same person (compare Rev. 20:8). The term could be a name or a title. Magog (or the “land of Gog”; see Gen. 10:2; 1 Chr. 1:5) is usually understood to be an area near the Black Sea or the Caspian Sea. In Gen. 10:2, Magog is one of the sons of Japheth, whose descendants occupied lands from Spain to Asia Minor, the islands of the Mediterranean to southern Russia. Some connect Magog with the Scythians. Rosh: There have been some expositors in recent years who have argued that the word Rosh means “Russia.” However, this is highly unlikely, for usually the Hebrew word means “head” or “chief.” The phrase could be read “the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal.” Concerning Meshech and Tubal we also have no knowledge. Geographically, these last two are thought to be near Magog. All that is known is that Gog, from Magog, was the leader over two or three regions or countries located near the Caspian or Black seas.

Gog

(Heb. gog) (38:2; 39:1) Strong's #1463

Ezekiel prophesied God's judgment against "Gog, of the land of Magog" (38:2). The land of Magog is named with Meshech and Tubal, regions near Asia Minor (38:2; Gen. 10:2). But more than as a specific person and territory, Ezekiel uses Gog and Magog as a metaphor for vast armies invading Israel from the north in the end times (38:8). They oppose God and seek to destroy His people Israel, but God promises to deliver them (38:14–23). In the Book of Revelation, Gog and Magog become symbolic names for evil nations deceived by Satan and opposed to God and the kingdom of Christ (Rev. 20:8).

Go to the List of Word Studies

38:4 God is sovereign over the invasion (see vv. 14–17). hooks into your jaws: Here Gog is portrayed as a huge animal, perhaps a crocodile, that will be controlled by hooks. horses, and horsemen: When the biblical prophets speak of battles in the distant future, they use descriptions of weaponry and tactics known to them (see "sword" in v. 8; "bow arrows" in 39:3).

38:5, 6 Nations will ally with Gog from all directions: from the east—Persia; south—Ethiopia; west—Libya; and north—Gomer. The people of Gomer were the Cimmerians, a people from what is now southern Russia. Togarmah was near the Black Sea (see Gen. 10:3; 1 Chr. 1:6).

38:8 dwell safely: This phrase (see vv. 11, 14) indicates that the Israel of this passage is secure; the nation is not safe from attack, but it is safe from defeat. The time of the invasion is suggested by two temporal phrases—After many days . . . In the latter years—and the overall context. The second phrase appears only here in the OT. The first phrase usually denotes an indefinite time period, sometimes extending into the distant future or the end times (see Dan. 8:26). See also v. 16, where "the latter days" is used, a phrase that frequently points to messianic times or to the times when Israel is regathered. From Ezekiel's viewpoint, he was predicting a time in the very distant future—the end times. Unless the passage refers to spiritual warfare, the invasion of Israel and the subsequent time of confident and carefree peace are still future events.

38:10–13 Gog's evil plan will be to attack an unsuspecting, unprepared, and peaceful people in unwalled villages. I will go up demonstrates that Gog will decide to attack Israel even though God foresees, predicts, and controls Gog's evil actions. On Sheba, Dedan . . . Tarshish, see 25:13; 27:12, 15, 22. Young lions represent their rulers; however, a few ancient versions translate the Hebrew as "villages."

38:14–17 On far north, see v. 2. riding on horses: In early biblical history, horses were not ridden in battle, but were used to pull chariots (v. 4). may know Me, when I am hallowed in you, O Gog: These words show that God is determined to bring glory to His name in this unusual battle and even in this evil person. The question are you he suggests that previous prophets had foretold Gog's invasion. The prophecies in mind could be general references to a time when enemies of God and His people would be defeated (see v. 21; Deut. 30:7; Is. 26:20, 21; Jer. 30:18–24; Hag. 2:20–23; Zech. 14:12–15).

38:18–23 These verses speak of God defending His nation against Gog and his army with supernatural and earthshaking methods. Unusually strong language concerning the wrath of God is found in these verses. The piling up of intense phrases indicates more than an “ordinary” future battle. fire . . . brimstone: A rare phrase, reserved only for the greatest catastrophes (see Gen. 19:24 when a similar phrase is used for the destruction of Sodom). This judgment would rival the magnitude of the judgment Sodom experienced. Then they shall know: This terrible battle will reveal God’s might to the entire world and His concern for His people (see 39:6).

39:3 I will knock . . . out: This pictures God fighting for His people (see 38:21).

39:4, 5 mountains . . . open field: The rout will be total; there will be no place for the enemies of God to flee for safety.

39:6 Fire from the Lord often refers to lightning bolts (see 1 Kin. 18:38). they shall know: There is a significant emphasis in chs. 38; 39 on God’s purpose in demonstrating the central truth that He is the LORD (see vv. 13, 21, 22, 28; 38:16, 23). God’s battle with Gog will demonstrate His sovereignty and majesty in His universe.

39:8 Surely it is coming . . . This is the day: The language throughout this section seems unusually grave, and the outcome is announced with unusual solemnity and certainty.

39:9, 10 The seven years could be, but does not have to be, equated with the “seven months” of vv. 12, 14. If symbolic, the number would suggest the completeness and finality of the war.

39:11 That day is the time after Gog’s defeat. Burial will be necessary for reasons of sanitation as well as consecration (see Lev. 5:2, 3; 21:1; Num. 6:6). East of the sea is unclear, but because the valley will obstruct travelers, a likely candidate is the area of southern Galilee that leads toward the Dead Sea (called the Valley of Jezreel in Josh. 17:16).

39:12 cleanse the land: The Law of Moses prescribed the sacrifice of a heifer to cleanse the land if a murdered person was found in a region (see Deut. 21:1–9).

39:13 gain renown: This verse implies that the burial of Gog would become a memorial day to glorify God. Consider the parallel in 1 Cor. 15:24–28, which speaks of the inauguration of the new heavens and the new earth after all of Christ’s enemies are defeated.

39:14–16 A complete purification is emphasized (see Lev. 11:45). Hamonah means “Horde,” indicating a multitude of corpses.

39:17–20 A poem or song is addressed to the scavenging birds and beasts who come to the multitude of dead bodies (vv. 14–16). Whether figurative or not, the passage powerfully pictures God’s sovereign control over the complete conquest of Israel’s future and most ferocious enemies (see Rev. 19:11–21). The meal would be a divinely prepared sacrifice served at God’s table—the land or mountains of Israel. The main course would be the mighty rulers of the earth. The fatlings of Bashan portray the might of these men. The herds of Bashan—rams and lambs, . . . goats and bulls—were the strongest and most important animals of ancient Israel, fed in the rich pasturelands east of Galilee.

39:21, 22 My glory among the nations: The universal knowledge of the living God of Israel will be based finally on the outcome of the battle described in chs. 38; 39. Ezekiel followed the great theme of biblical theology begun in Gen. 12:3 that the ultimate purpose of God in His choice of Abraham and Sarah was to make His blessings known to all the families of the earth. God will demonstrate His glory both among the nations and among His chosen people Israel.

39:25 The Hebrew term rendered captives (see Jer. 30:3) can also mean “fortunes” (see Deut. 30:3).

40:1 This date is about 573 B.C., 12 years since the six messages of hope delivered the year following the fall of Jerusalem (33:21–39:29) and 25 years after the deportation of Jehoiachin (see 1:2; 33:21, 22; chs. 33–39).

40:2 Ezekiel was taken in a vision to a very high mountain from which he could see a city to the south. The sight seems somewhat vague, something like the structure of a city. Since the temple is there (v. 5), Jerusalem is suggested; but neither the mountain nor the city is named. Such a high mountain north of Jerusalem does not correlate with the geography of Israel, then or now. Mount Hermon, north of Galilee, is possible if the boundaries of the land are understood as extending that far.

40:3–5 The special circumstances of these final visions are noteworthy. Ezekiel saw a messenger with a bronze appearance (see 1:27, 28) who was equipped with tools for measuring. Ezekiel was commissioned to minister the complete revelation to the house of Israel. A cubit was about 18 inches, or the distance from fingertips to elbow. A handbreadth, the width of the hand across the widest part, was approximately three inches. Both a long cubit (a cubit of around 21 inches) and a short cubit (the standard 18 inches) existed. Based on these measurements, the measuring rod was six long cubits in length, about 126 inches or 10.5 feet, the height and width of the wall around the temple.

40:6–16 The thresholds of the eastern gate measure 10.5 feet wide; each gate-chamber or guard room is 10.5 by 10.5 feet, separated by a space 8.75 feet wide. The stairs apparently lead up to the outer threshold, and the rooms (three on each side) line a walkway to the inner threshold leading to a vestibule (or porch) that is 14 feet wide. The gateposts are 3.5 feet square; and the distance across the gateway of the outer threshold is 17.5 feet. The distance from the beginning of the gate through the outer threshold is 22.75 feet: 10.5 feet of this being the threshold. A space in front of each guardroom is 1.75 feet wide (21 inches or one long cubit). The overall dimensions of the east gate, and of the two identical north and south gates, are 43.75 by 87.5 feet. The gateposts are 105 feet high. These gates have some similarity to those excavated in Israel from the time of Solomon.

Ezekiel's Temple

Ezekiel uses a long or “royal” cubit, about 21 inches or 53 centimeters (“cubit and a handbreadth,” Ezek. 40:5) as opposed to the standard Hebrew cubit of about 18 inches or 46 centimeters.

Scripture describes a floor plan but provides few height dimensions. This artwork shows an upward projection of the temple over the floor plan. This temple existed only in a vision of Ezekiel (Ezek. 40:2) and was never actually built as were the temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel, and Herod, but some premillennial interpreters believe that it will be built in the future.

40:17–19 The lower pavement is equal in length to the gateway: 87.5 feet; and the distance between the outer gateway and the corresponding inner gateway (across the pavement) is 175 feet. chambers: Rooms, probably for storage or priests' quarters, line the inside of the northern, southern, and eastern walls.

40:28–37 The archways are 43.75 feet long by 8.75 feet wide (see vv. 8, 9, 14; apparently the porches of the gate systems in the inner court have different dimensions, although these gates are said to be like the others). Also in contrast to the outer gates, these have their porches (vestibules) on the outward side (entrance), where seven steps go up (see vv. 22, 26).

40:38–43 Ezekiel observes a room near the entrance of the northern gate of the inner court where animals are slaughtered and washed for sacrificial offerings. These sacrifices point to the ultimate sacrifice: the sacrifice of God's only Son on the Cross once for all. Christ's sacrifice of His own life paid for our sins and provides salvation to all those who believe on Him (see Heb. 7:20–28; 9:23–28).

40:44–46 On the inner side (facing the inner court) of the northern and southern inner gateways are rooms for priests whose principal work is singing (see 1 Chr. 16:4–6; 2 Chr. 29:25–30). Those housed at the northern gate serve at the sacrificial altar. These sons of Zadok would be the only Levites permitted to serve God directly (see 44:15–31). The priests of the southern (inner) gate minister in the temple.

40:47–49 The inner courtyard is 175 feet square. On altar and temple see chs. 41–43. The width of the entrance—vestibule—to the temple sanctuary can be determined: 20 cubits (35 feet) with a three-cubit (5.25 feet) extension of the five-cubit (8.75 feet) doorposts on each side, leaving an entrance with a width of 14 cubits (24.5 feet).

41:1–4 The outer area, the holy place (see Ex. 26:33) and the inner area, the Most Holy Place (see 1 Kin. 6:16–20) of the temple itself are described. Overall, the outer room is 70 feet long by 35 feet wide and has an entrance 17.5 feet wide. The inner sanctuary is 35 feet square with an entrance 10.5 feet wide. Doorposts for the outer room are 10.5 feet square and for the inner sanctuary 3.5 feet square. Walls on each side of each entrance protrude from the side walls 8.75 and 12.25 feet. The height of the entrance to the inner room is 10.5 feet.

41:5–11 Next the dimensions are given for the wall surrounding the temple. Its width is 10.5 feet. Running along the inside of the western, northern, and southern walls (but not attached) are three levels of ten rooms (90 total; perhaps these are storerooms), each 7 feet square with an outer wall 8.75 feet thick. They sit on a foundation 10.5 feet high. A space of 35 feet is apparently between these rooms and the priests' chambers north and south of the temple (see 42:1–14). A terrace that is 8.75 feet wide is on all three sides.

41:12 Behind the temple, between its western end and the western wall of the outer court is a building 122.5 feet wide and 157.5 feet long with walls 8.75 feet thick. Its purpose is not given.

41:13–26 Like the temple, the western building is 175 feet in total length (its inside length plus the width of the walls on each side plus 8.75 multiplied by 2; see v. 12). The full width of the eastern side of the temple proper is the same, as is that of the inner courtyard and the courtyard separating the temple and the western building. Various decorations are described in vv. 16–20. Some likely have symbolic meanings (see 28:13, 14 regarding cherubs), but no explanations are given here. A wooden altar (v. 22), the only piece of furniture mentioned in this passage, is 5.25 feet high and 2 feet square (see the dimensions of the stone tables of 40:42 and the altar of sacrifice in 43:13–17). The purpose and position of this altar is not known; but it is called the table that is before the LORD, to which some compare the altar of incense in the tabernacle (see Ex. 37:25–28).

Measuring the Future

Ezekiel could be called one of the most visionary prophets. God showed him spiritual insights that still stir the imagination 25 centuries later. Like other prophets, Ezekiel's ministry among his people had two distinct phases: condemnation and consolation.

The first 32 chapters of Ezekiel catalog the sure and future judgment of God on His own people and seven other nations. Incredibly, although Jerusalem had been defeated and many of her people had been deported, the exiles clung to the vain hope that God would never let His city and temple be destroyed. They missed the point that God's ultimate commitment was to people—not places or buildings. In order to purify and preserve the people, God allowed the devastation of the Promised Land and the temple itself. Yet God also held responsible those nations that used their temporary domination of Israel as an opportunity to mock the living God. Ezekiel's early messages focused on the coming of God's judgment and the urgent need for repentance.

The last part of Ezekiel represents a sudden change of tone. With the fall of Jerusalem, God's terrible judgment had finally come. The weary and disillusioned exiles had lost all hope. But God filled Ezekiel with a new message. Although all immediate evidence pointed to hopelessness and despair, God invited His people to return to Him and to place their confidence in Him. Whatever their temporary setbacks and suffering, God was still in control. His purposes would win out, and His plans were specific. In fact, His plans were so definite they could be measured. Ezekiel received a vision of the dimensions of a new temple (recorded in 40:1—48:35) to demonstrate that fact.

Many efforts have been made to understand the details of Ezekiel's vision in such a way that the prophecy might be described as fulfilled. However, attempts to do this have failed. Those who eventually returned from exile did not use Ezekiel's plans to rebuild Jerusalem. It is also difficult to interpret this prophecy as a symbolic description of the church in our age. The most confident statement we can make about the vision and its accompanying instructions is that it is a prophecy yet to be fulfilled. At the same time, we can apply these chapters to the present as examples of God's planning, precision, and sovereignty. He maintains control of the events of history. When events seem chaotic, God reminds us to rest in His ability to bring order. Ezekiel's vision of a new temple when the temple in Jerusalem had just been destroyed reassured the exiles: God would create beauty out of ashes. The people in Ezekiel's day needed that vision of hope, and we still need it today.

42:1–14 To the north and south of the courtyard separating the temple and the western building (see 41:12–14) is a building for the priests 175 feet long and 87.5 feet wide, with three stories (see vv. 5, 6) and a door along the length facing the outer courtyard. The entrance has a walk 17.5 by 1.75 feet. Mainly the northern building is described, but apparently the southern building is the same or very similar. Parallel to the eastern wall (the width) and its door is a wall 87.5 feet long (vv. 7–9). These are places for certain priests (see “sons of Zadok” in 40:46) to eat and change clothes, indicating that the rooms also provide storage facilities for the holy food offerings and priestly garments.

42:15–20 measured it all around: Ezekiel was taken through the eastern gates outside the entire temple and courtyard structure and shown the size of the land area prescribed for the temple complex. Whether rods in v. 16 is correct or whether “cubits” is meant is debated by many scholars. Five-hundred rods square is 5,250 feet per side, nearly a mile, which to some seems too large. The cubit is the most frequent measure used to this point, but the rod has been introduced as the standard for measuring the temple (in 40:5 the rod is equated with six cubits). It makes sense that the larger unit should be employed for the greatest dimensions. The large bordering area around the temple complex might be there in order to set it apart and to stress the temple's holiness (43:12).

43:2 came from . . . the east: In 11:23, God's glory had left the temple and gone east over the Mount of Olives as His presence left the city. Here His presence is pictured as returning to the city from the east. See 1:24; 10:4 (compare Rev. 1:15; 14:2; 19:6; 21:11, 23).

Word Studies

glory

(Heb. kabod) (43:2; Ex. 24:16; 1 Kin. 8:11) Strong's #3519

This word is derived from a Hebrew verb which is used to describe the weight or worthiness of something. It can refer to something negative: For example, in reference to Sodom, it depicts the severe degree of sin that had reached the point of making that city worthy of complete destruction (Gen. 18:20). But usually the word is used to depict greatness and splendor (Gen. 31:1). The noun form is translated honor in some instances (1 Kin. 3:13). God's glory is described in the OT as taking the form of a cloud (Ex. 24:15–18) and filling the temple (1 Kin. 8:11). The appropriate response to God's glory is to reverence Him by bowing before Him, as Ezekiel did (3:23; 43:3).

Go to the List of Word Studies

43:3 I came is “He came” in a few Hebrew manuscripts, referring to God’s judgment on Jerusalem.

43:7 This temple is God’s residence from which He will rule and reign over the children of Israel forever (see 37:26–28). The second half of this verse appears to predict an absolute end of the idolatrous and immoral practices of the house of Israel, which had taken place around the temple (see 2 Kin. 23:1–20). their harlotry: This is either an allusion to their spiritual adultery in general or, more specifically and literally, to their participation in the religious prostitution of Baal worship (see 16:15). carcasses: This is taken by some as a metaphor (“lifeless idols,” see Lev. 26:30) because of the context, but it could refer to memorial graves of kings buried near the temple mount (see 2 Kin. 23:30), perhaps near the royal houses just outside the southern wall (see v. 8; 1 Kin. 7:1–12). high places: This phrase came to refer to any place of idolatrous worship, whether on a hilltop or not.

43:10–12 God explains to Ezekiel the purpose of revealing the detailed description of the future temple (see 8, 9; 42:15–20; Lev. 20:7; Ps. 11:4; Is. 6:3).

43:13–17 The cubit described here is the long cubit—a cubit and a handbreadth, or 21 inches. The altar has a base 1.75 feet (21 inches) wide and high. A rim around the edge of the base is one span, or about 9 inches, wide. On top of the base is a lower section 3.5 feet high, having a 1.75-foot ledge. The distance between the smaller and larger ledges is 7 feet. The altar hearth, the top section of the altar where the sacrifice is offered, is 7 feet high. The four horns are on top of the corners (see 1 Kin. 1:50, 51). Overall the hearth is 21 feet square. Apparently the middle section is 24.5 feet square with a rim about 10.5 inches wide; and the lower section extends 3.5 feet beyond the middle one, 28 feet square (see vv. 14, 16, 17 where—assuming the symmetry of the altar—the middle section extends two cubits beyond the top). The height of the altar is therefore about 11 cubits or 19.25 feet. Assuming an 18 cubit square (see hearth and middle section in vv. 16–17) and one-cubit-high base, the foundation is 31.5 feet square. Steps, previously forbidden for an altar (Ex. 20:26), are necessary for this altar because of the great size of the structure. The huge altar is positioned in the center of the inner court in front of the temple entrance.

43:18, 19 These ordinances relate to the cleansing and consecration of the altar. See Ex. 29:36–37; Lev. 8:14–17 regarding the tabernacle altar and 2 Chr. 7:9 for the temple altar.

43:20–23 Atonement and sin offering suggest purification and cleansing from sin. Because of the sinlessness—without blemish—of the sacrifice, the people for whom the sacrifice is made are declared acceptable before God (v. 27; Ex. 29:14, 16, 36, 37; Lev. 3; 4:12, 21; 5:9; 8:14–17; Heb. 13:10–13).

44:1–3 The outer gate of the sanctuary is the eastern gate of the outer court (see 40:6–16; 43:1) which must remain shut. The eastern gate known today as the “Golden Gate” dates from several centuries after Christ. It is walled shut today in accordance with an Islamic tradition. the prince: The identity of this prince is unknown. The Hebrew term does not always mean a king or a member of royalty (see Gen. 23:6). It is not the Messiah, since 45:22 indicates that this leader must make a sin offering for himself. He may be one of the Zadokite priests (see vv. 15, 16).

44:4–9 Ezekiel experiences another awe-inspiring vision of God’s glory leading him to bow in worship (see 1:28–2:1). God demands that His renewed people follow His regulations exactly. He emphasizes the necessity of holiness and righteousness, especially in light of Israel’s past abominations related to rules regulating who was to enter the temple sanctuary. Specifically, they had allowed foreigners without evidence of faithfulness to God to serve in the sanctuary (see Josh. 9:23–27; Ezra 8:20): these people were uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh. This was in disobedience to God’s commands (see Ex. 19:8; Lev. 26:41; Num. 3:10; Deut. 10:16; 30:6; Neh. 13:8; Jer. 4:4; 9:25), but was in conformity with the practices of foreign pagan religions, which God’s people had been forbidden to imitate (see Ex. 34:12; Deut. 18:9; compare Rom. 12:1, 2).

44:10 See Lev. 21; 22 for a description of the duties of the Levites. Unfortunately, during the history of Israel, Levites had not obeyed the commands Moses had given them and had even encouraged idolatry (compare ch. 8; 14:1–11; Deut. 33:8–11; Judg. 17–19).

44:11–14 God explains to Ezekiel why the Levites would be limited to certain types of temple ministry. The Levites (with the exception of the sons of Zadok, see v. 15) could not be priests but could be ministers (servants or attendants). They could not serve in the inner court or temple, where the holy things are located; but they could oversee the general operation of the temple complex.

44:15, 16 The Levites, the sons of Zadok were descendants of the priest Zadok in the Levitical line who remained faithful when others did not (see 1 Sam. 2:27–36; 2 Sam. 8:17; 15:24–29; 1 Kin. 2:26–35; 1 Chr. 6:7, 8, 50–53). While salvation is never earned (Rom. 3; 4; Gal. 2; 3; Eph. 2:8; Rom. 3; 4; Gal. 2; 3; 9), God does reward faithfulness and righteousness. Here He rewarded His faithful priests and Levites with the opportunity to minister before Him. Responsibility and recognition have to be deserved, but never demanded (see 1 Sam. 26:23; Matt. 5:12; 25:21–23; Rev. 2:10). Again there is an emphasis on holiness and righteousness. The Zadokites were honored for their special obedience. The table is not identified, but could be similar to the wooden altar of 41:22.

44:17–19 These verses speak of holiness as linen garments (see 42:14; Ex. 28:42; 29:37; 30:29; Lev. 6:11, 27; 16:4; 21:10; Hag. 2:12). Common things were to be kept distinct from what was consecrated.

44:20–22 These verses speak of holiness in conduct. These regulations continued practices already prescribed in the Law of Moses (Lev. 10:6, 9; 21:1–6, 7, 10, 14). Their aim was to help the priests avoid conformity to the immoral and idolatrous religious rituals and conduct among the pagan nations. The priests, then and in the future, have the responsibility of modeling and maintaining the highest standards of morality, self-control, self-denial, discipline, and obedience to God’s will. In Israelite culture, shaving the head indicated mourning (see 7:16–19), and growing long hair could mean the taking of a special vow (sometimes connected with complete or controlled abstinence from wine; see Num. 6:3, 4). The point is the priests’ clear separation from the rest of society.

44:23, 24 they shall teach My people: The priests were to demonstrate verbally and visually before the people how to distinguish between what is godly and ungodly. They also served as judges in disputes and debates (see 22:26; Lev. 10:10, 11; 11:47; Deut. 17:9; 19:7; 21:5; 33:10).

44:25–27 This section deals with holiness regarding death among the people (Lev. 21:1–3; Num. 19:11–19; Hag. 2:13). Contact with a dead body was forbidden; however, a partial exception was made for immediate family members. The act still defiled the person, causing ceremonial uncleanness for a certain time. God’s concern over purity in practice and procedures is seen in that the priest was to submit to a cleansing ritual and then personally present a sin offering. He was to publicly declare and deal with his own uncleanness, although what he had done was not forbidden. The circumstances that allowed touching a dead body did not overturn its consequences according to the Law. God was preserving the sanctity of His temple and statutes.

44:28–31 These verses explain holiness in the priests’ provisions (see Lev. 17:5; 22:8; Num. 18:10–13, 20, 23, 24; Deut. 10:9; 14:21; Mal. 3:8–12). I am their possession: God was to be the priests’ possession in all respects; they were not to inherit land or cities. The dedicated thing (see Lev. 27:21, 28; Num. 18:14; Judg. 11:29–40) was something wholly and irrevocably devoted to God as a sacrificial gift. The giver would be blessed in giving (see also Acts 20:35). God’s laws are governed by His love and goodness, and they are given as guides to holy and healthy living (see John 10:10). God is truthful and trustworthy; His codes of conduct are blessings, not burdens (see Matt. 11:28–30). They can be followed with confidence because of His revealed character, even though all the specific reasons for His rules are not spelled out.

45:1–5 A distinct—set apart, holy—section was to be allocated for God. This area would be divided into two equal sections. One would be the portion for the Zadokites—priests, the ministers of the sanctuary. In the center of this part of the holy district is the holy square-mile environs for the temple—the sanctuary, the Most Holy Place. The other half of the holy district would be the portion given to the Levites. All this is holy; God owns it. The twenty chambers is read “towns to live in” in the Septuagint.

45:6 The city is not named, but Jerusalem is most likely. Its allotted property is 25,000 by 5,000 cubits. This area is located adjacent to and south of (according to 48:18) the Zadokite district—the holy section. See 48:15–19, 30–35.

45:7, 8 The identity of the prince is unknown (see 44:3). But his allotted area is on both sides (east and west) of the holy district. He will own this land bordering a tribal territory to the north and south, where the west and east border suggest respectively the Mediterranean Sea and the Dead Sea or Jordan River. The prince and God’s princes of messianic period—in contrast to previous leaders of Israel (see 11:1–13; 14:1–11, 20–22; 34:1–10)—will not be greedy for riches and real estate but will give the land that remains to the people (see 48:1–29; contrast the descriptions of the evil behavior of the rulers of Israel in 1 Sam. 8:10–18; 1 Kin. 20; 21; Is. 3:13–23; Mic. 3:1–4; 7:3; Zeph. 3:3).

45:10, 11 The merchants were exhorted to use accurate measures of the ephah (estimated to be around a bushel) and the bath (from six to nine gallons), both defined as one-tenth of a homer (five to ten bushels or 60 to 90 gallons). Merchants must not cheat anymore when weighing produce (see Lev. 19:35, 36; Amos 8:5; Mic. 6:10–12). God called for an end to dishonesty and deceit; a time is coming when all such scheming will end (vv. 16, 17; see 37:15–28).

45:12 Ezekiel also demanded fair weights. The shekel weighed about 11.5 grams or four-tenths of an ounce. In Babylon, 24 gerahs made one shekel while Ezekiel sets the standard at 20; but 60 shekels made one mina, which conforms to the standard prescribed in this verse. In Ezekiel’s system this mina is thought to weigh about 1.5 pounds.

45:13–17 These verses describe an offering to be given to the prince (v. 7) who, unlike previous rulers, will be just and truthful (see v. 8). The prince, in turn, will make offerings to God in order to make atonement for the house of Israel (v. 17), symbolizing cleansing from sin (see 40:38–43). Instructions regarding the temple sacrifices can be found in Ex. 25:2–7; 30:13–15; 35:4–29; 36:2–7; Lev. 1:4; 9:7; 10:17. The Law of Moses also included extended instructions on feasts (see Lev. 23:1–44; Num. 28; 29).

45:18–20 This is an annual day of purifying the temple sanctuary. In the light of Jesus’ death on the cross, the actions of the prince symbolize and emphasize that God has made atonement for all through the sacrifice of the Messiah (see vv. 15–17; 18–22). The forgiveness of individual sins is illustrated through daily sin offerings (vv. 23–25). The pronoun you in you shall take and you shall do is singular, while the pronoun in you shall make atonement is plural. The prince represents the people in these actions of worship (see Lev. 16:15–17, 33, 34; 22:19–21; 2 Chr. 7:1–7; 29:20–24.) The way the day is specified suggests an act to be performed annually.

45:21–25 In this passage the feasts of Passover and Tabernacles are observed (see Ex. 12:1–14; Lev. 23:5–8, 33–43; Num. 28:16–25; 29:12–38). The dates are in relation to the Levitical calendar, the Jewish religious year. The procedures as well are very similar to those of the Mosaic system. These feasts commemorate God’s faithfulness to His promises.

46:1–8 The prince shall enter: What the rituals signified under the Law was fulfilled by the Messiah. At the time of this prince, certain promises were being fulfilled and the covenants consummated in the messianic age (see 40:6–16, 28–37; 43:18–27; 44:1, 2; Ex. 20:8–11). hin: This was a liquid measure about one-sixth of a bath, approximately one gallon (see 4:11; Ex. 30:24; Lev. 19:36).

Holy Places, Holy People

For many people, the word holy brings to mind special places such as cathedrals and temples. It would be easy to limit our concept of holiness to such concrete examples, especially when we see so many such cases in the Old Testament. Certain monuments, the tabernacle, the temple, and even certain mountains, along with some of the leaders, the priests, and the prophets were designated as “holy,” consecrated, or set apart to the Lord.

This pattern was continued in Ezekiel’s vision of the new temple, access to which was to be highly restricted (44:1–19). Likewise, a certain “holy district” was to be established in the restored land (45:1–5).

So holiness was attached to certain places, but we shouldn’t forget that the call to holy living is not confined to one place or another. All of life is to be holy, no matter where one is. Ezekiel pinpoints some very practical and even mundane dimensions of holiness:

- Stop the use of violence and oppression (45:9).
- Cease the pattern of evicting people (45:9).
- Restore honest dealing in business, using standards of value that have integrity and can be trusted (45:10–12).
- Donate a percentage of each business transaction to God, whether one is a prince or one of the common people (45:13–17).
- Mark all of life with monthly festivals and celebrations that include everyone (45:18–25).
- Restore the six-day work week, and protect the Sabbath rest, with the prince providing substantially for this observance (46:1–15).
- Follow careful guidelines in the matter of inheritances and boundaries, maintaining fair treatment of aliens and strangers (46:16–18; 47:13–23).
- Provide an area for the common people, for homes and common space (48:15–20).
- Name each of the commercial centers—the exits or gates of the city—after a portion of the citizenry (tribes) (48:30–35).
- Name the city itself “THE LORD IS THERE,” reflecting a very inclusive view of holiness:

everything that goes on there pertains to the Lord (48:35).

All of life is to be holy. One might be more reverent in certain settings and on certain occasions, but one is made neither more nor less holy by entering or exiting a particular place. Christ has already invited us into the most holy place there is, so that we will live as His holy people in everything we do (Heb. 9:11–15; 10:19–25).

46:9 the people of the land: This phrase describes the citizens of the Promised Land during this messianic period (see v. 3; 12:18, 19; 22:29; 39:13; 45:16, 22). The prescribed protocol was probably to ensure an orderly procession and service. Such regulations would be needed on the special feast days due to the participation of large numbers of people.

46:12 The preparation and presentation of this offering is the one exception to 44:1–3 (see vv. 1, 2). The voluntary or freewill offering was given beyond what was required (see Lev. 22:17–30).

46:13 shall daily make: This is a change from the provisions in the Law (see Num. 28:3–8; 2 Kin. 16:15).

46:14 perpetual ordinance: This is a change from the provisions in the Law (see Num. 28:5). God’s people cannot be reminded too often of God’s provisions for them; nor can they thank Him too much or too frequently.

46:16–18 The language of this passage speaks clearly and concretely about descendants, servants, and property, so a spiritual or allegorical meaning for this passage is difficult to defend (see 44:3). Likewise, the prince has sons and servants, so he cannot be the Messiah. Inheritance laws and family claims related to property continue as an important feature of life in Israel (see Lev. 25:8–15, 23–34; 27:24; Num. 27:1–11; 33:54; 34:18; Josh. 14:21; Mic. 2:1, Josh. 14:21; 2). Again, the prince’s character is described in sharp contrast to many of Israel’s previous leaders (34:1–10).

46:19, 20 The setting is one of the two buildings for the priests on the western end of the temple complex (see 42:1–14). The place is something like a kitchen.

46:21–24 The setting switches to the outer court (see 40:17–19), where each of the four corners has an enclosed kitchen court. These kitchens are distinguished from those for the priests (see vv. 19, 20); these belong to the Levites: ministers of the temple, see 44:11–14.

47:1 He is the “man” of v. 3 (see 40:3; 46:19).

47:3–5 One thousand cubits is approximately 1,750 feet (see 40:3–5). Four times the man uses the measuring line to mark off this distance across the stream, which progressively gets deeper from ankle depth, to knees, to waist, and finally too deep and wide to cross except by swimming. The water flows eastward from the south side of the temple.

47:7–12 The water becomes a river of healing and the source of abundant life for everything and everyone (see Gen. 2:8–10; Zech. 14:8; John 4:13, 14; 10:10; Rev. 22:1, 2). It continues flowing southeast: through the dry, rocky region between Jerusalem and the Dead Sea—that is, the Arabah or eastern region—and south along the Jordan valley and the Jordan Rift, as far as to the Dead Sea. When it reaches the sea (the Dead Sea), the salty sea becomes fresh and able to sustain life so that fishermen can fish there: its waters are healed. This is an amazing picture—the Dead Sea is the saltiest body of water (approximately 25 percent saline content) and is presently unable to support life. It is also the lowest point on earth, with its surface 1,300 feet below sea level and the water itself 1,300 feet deep. The living water that God will provide has immeasurable power to renew, restore, and resurrect life. This sea which is dead will teem with life all along its shores—from En Gedi to En Eglaim. Great volumes and variety of vegetation, everlasting and perpetually productive, will result from this river which flows from the sanctuary (see v. 1). See John 7:37–39 for Jesus’ use of the image of living waters for the life that He gives to those who believe in Him.

Bible Times & Culture Notes

The Dead Sea

The lowest body of water in the world is the Dead Sea. Fifty miles in length, it does not measure more than 11 miles at the widest. The water surface of the Dead Sea is about thirteen hundred feet below sea level. Its depth has been estimated at another thirteen hundred feet. Because the sea has no outlet and evaporation is high, the concentration of minerals is as much as 30 percent. The water abounds with salt, bromide, magnesium chloride, potassium chloride, and sulfur.

The Dead Sea region is aptly named. Even fish struggle against being carried into the sea, for its high mineral content brings immediate death. The prophet Ezekiel envisioned the restoration of the Dead Sea valley. In his vision, water poured forth from the temple altar and flowed into the Kidron through the Judean wilderness to the Dead Sea (47:8–12). Revelation 22:1–5 tells of a strikingly similar vision.

47:13 The priestly tribe of Levi had already received a special area (see 45:1–8; 48:8–14). The tribe of Joseph was divided into two tribes to replace Levi and thus maintain twelve tribes.

47:14 Equality of inheritance is stressed. raised My hand in an oath: This phrase recalls 20:5; 36:28 (see Gen. 12:7; 15:7, 18–21; 17:8). The unilateral and unconditional nature of the Abrahamic covenant is suggested; this inheritance is a free gift of God’s grace which God’s people did and could do nothing to deserve.

47:15–17 The northern boundary of the land extends from the Mediterranean Sea—the Great Sea—to a border north of Damascus. The other place names are not certainly known. Damascus is the capital of Aram (modern Syria). Hamath is thought to have been north of Damascus, about half the distance to Carchemish. Zedad: This is believed to have been east of Hamath and Hazar Enan (the eastern point of this border). Hauran appears to be an Israelite region east of the Jordan River and north of Gilead.

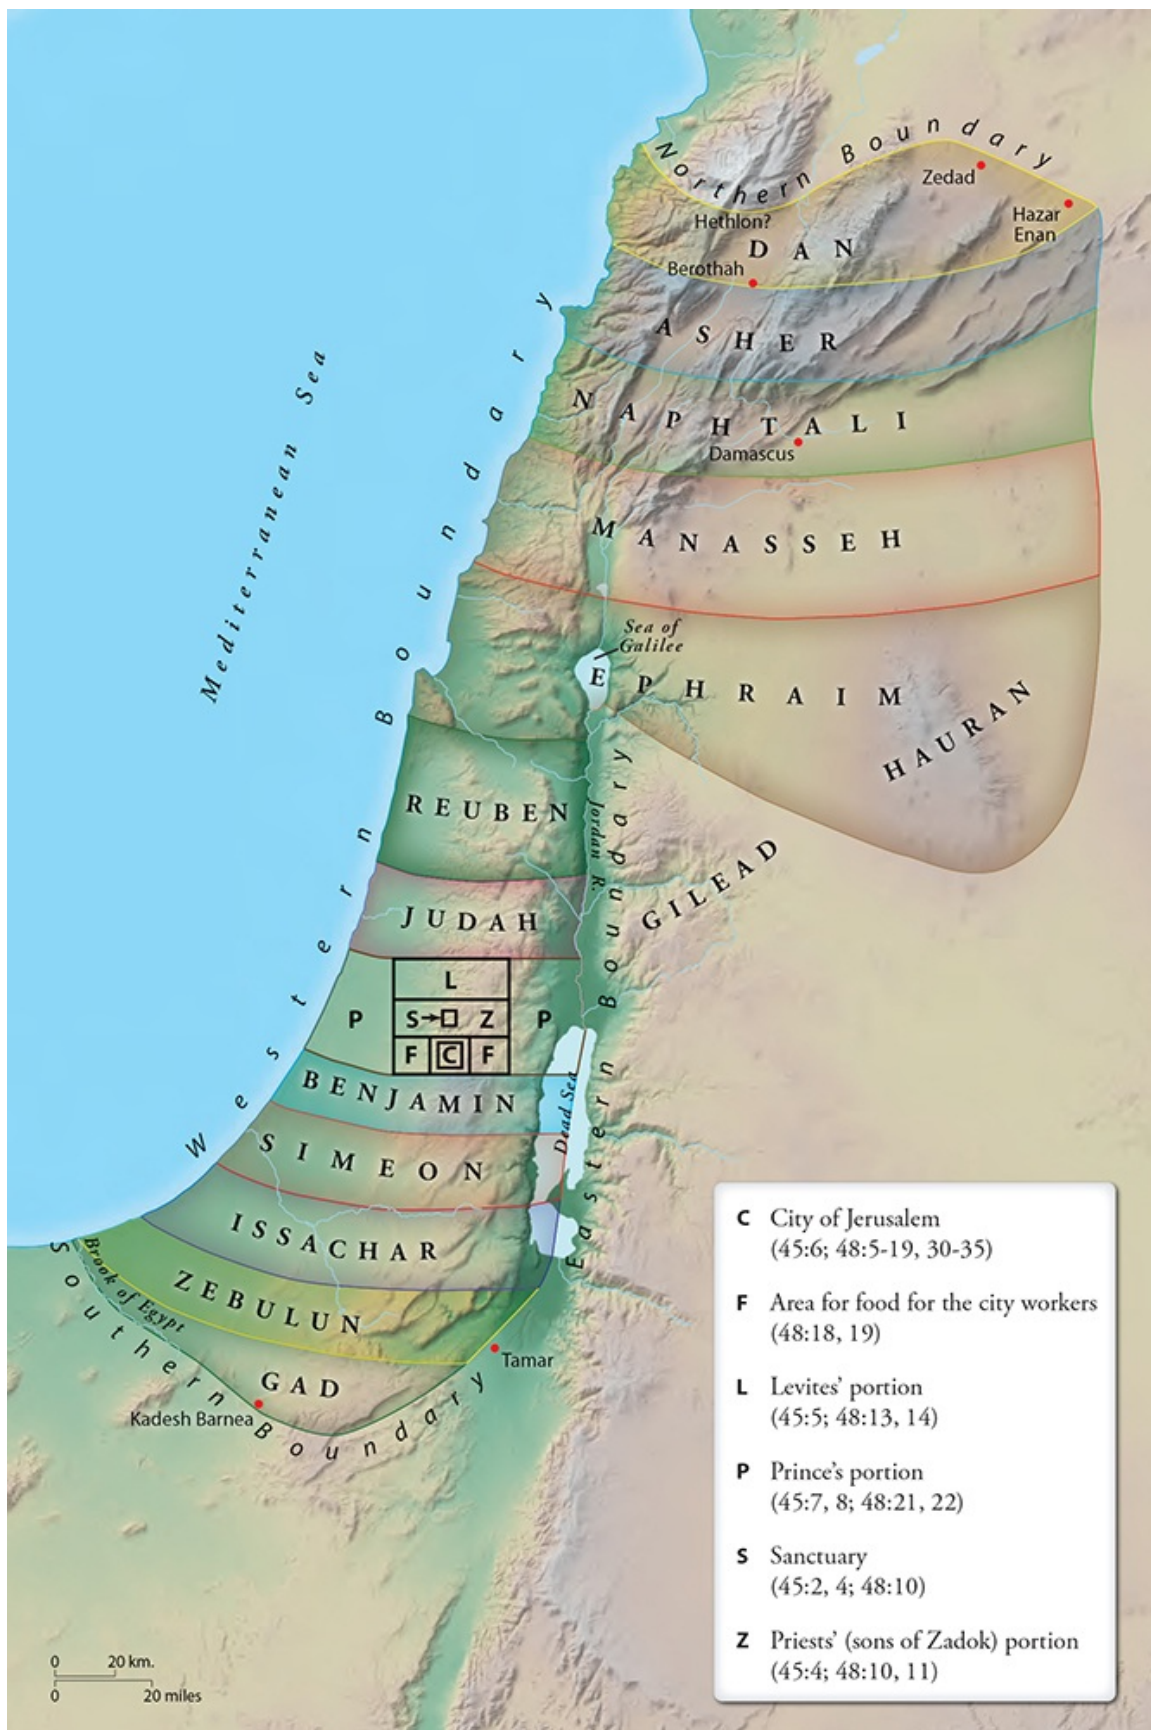

47:18 The eastern border runs from the Damascus region southwest through Hauran to and along the Jordan River (see Num. 34:10–12). eastern . . . sea: The Dead Sea.

47:19 The southern border goes from the eastern side of the Dead Sea to Tamar (a town to the southwest) to the waters of Meribah by Kadesh (Num. 20:13, 24; 27:14) along the brook (of Egypt; the Wadi el-Arish) and on to the Mediterranean Sea (see Num. 34:3–5; 1 Kin. 8:65). This line runs from the Dead Sea southwest across the Negev to the Brook of Egypt, a river bed in west Sinai.

47:20 The western border runs along the coastline of the Great Sea (the Mediterranean Sea) north to a point directly west of Hamath (see Num. 34:6; Rev. 21:1).

Boundaries of the Land in Ezekiel's Vision

- 47:21–23 The treatment of strangers or aliens in the land is considered. Non-Israelites who married and settled within the Jewish communities were to be accepted as native Israelites, qualified to share in the territorial inheritance of whatever tribe they joined (see Lev. 19:34; Is. 56:1–8).
- 48:1–7 From the northern district south to the priestly portions, the tribes in order are Dan, Asher, Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben, and Judah. Each district is bordered north and south by another tribe. The east-west borders for each are the same as in 47:18, 20. The tribes resulting from the offspring of Jacob and his wives' servants are given lands farthest from the most holy areas (see 45:1–8), while the descendants of Jacob's wives occupy a central position (see Gen. 35:23–26). The tribe of Judah is most favored, for it produced the Davidic and messianic line (see 37:18–28; Gen. 49:8–10; Is. 11). Historically, the tribe of Dan had occupied the northern limits of the land (see Judg. 20:1). Its idolatry was well known—Jeroboam had placed a golden calf there (2 Kin. 10:29).
- 48:15 The district has the city in its center surrounded by housing, farming, and grazing lands for general use.
- 48:21, 22 shall belong to the prince: See 45:7, 8. The tribal territories of Judah and Benjamin are immediately north and south of the holy district (see vv. 1–7, 20). Benjamin like Judah is favored (see Gen. 35:24).
- 48:23–29 Continuing southward in order are the tribal allotments for Benjamin, Simeon, Issachar, Zebulun, and Gad. Gad is the southern border of the land.
- 48:31 The gates are named after the original twelve tribes (see Rev. 21:12, 13). The gate for Joseph represents the two tribes of Manasseh and Ephraim (v. 32; 47:13). The northern gates are Reuben (the firstborn), Judah (the tribe of the messianic line), and Levi (the priestly tribe)—all descendants of Jacob and Leah (Gen. 35:23).
- 48:32 On the eastern side the gates represent Joseph, Benjamin, and Dan. While the first two were children of Jacob and Rachel, the third was the child of Jacob and Rachel's servant Bilhah (Gen. 35:24, 25).
- 48:33 South of the city, the three other offspring of Jacob and Leah have gates named for them: Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun (Gen. 35:23).
- 48:34 The three western gates are named after Gad and Asher—the sons of Jacob and Leah's maidservant Zilpah—and Naphtali—a son of Jacob and Bilhah (see Gen. 35:25, 26).
- 48:35 The designated name for this city from that day is THE LORD IS THERE (see Is. 60:14; 62:2–4, 12; Jer. 3:17; 33:15, 16). This return of the Lord and the regathering of His people is predicted by Ezekiel in 11:17; 20:33–44; 37:15–28; 39:21–29. The Lord was forced to depart from the city and the temple because of the wickedness of the Israelites (8:6; 10:18). But here, Ezekiel foresees the return of God in all His glory to His people, His temple, and His land.

The Lord Is There—Forever!

Scripture gives us only the barest glimpses of what heaven will be like, but one feature that we know for sure is that God will be there, and we will never be separated from Him again. With this bright vision of eternity, Ezekiel's book of prophecy draws to a close (48:30–35).

Just as the apostle John saw the New Jerusalem descending from heaven (Rev. 21), so Ezekiel envisioned the day when the city of God would finally be made perfect and complete in every way. Both prophets saw twelve gates facing the four corners of the earth (Ezek. 48:31–34; Rev. 21:12, 13), an indication of accessibility for everyone. Inscribed with the names of the twelve tribes of Israel, the gates suggest inclusion, restoration, and fulfillment of all that God has promised His covenant people. In John's vision, this image is strengthened by the fact that these gates never shut (Rev. 21:25).

The name of this ideal city is "THE LORD IS THERE" (Ezek. 48:35). This is a fitting climax, not only to the Book of Ezekiel, but to John's Revelation and to the Bible itself. It shows that a reversal will occur during the course of history. Whereas Ezekiel had seen the Lord withdrawing from His temple because of the people's wickedness (Ezek. 10:18), John saw Him return to a new temple to live among His people forever. Likewise, whereas fellowship with God was cut off through the sin in Eden (Gen. 3:22–24), it is made permanent in the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:3).

This is a strong hope we can look forward to with great anticipation. Right now, we may sometimes feel distant from God, perhaps alone and confused and wondering whether He even knows who we are. The assurance of Scripture is that someday we will no longer wonder where God is; we will be with Him—forever!

Introduction

In 626 B.C., Nabopolassar became king of Babylon and altered the course of ancient history. He quickly overthrew the domination of long-standing rival Assyria, and by the time of his death in 605 B.C. he had eliminated the Assyrian Empire and swallowed it into what became known as the Neo-Babylonian or Chaldean Empire. This course of events had significant implications for Judah, the surviving remnant of the nation of Israel. Judah had been largely under Assyrian domination from about 670 B.C., but now found itself serving a new master. In the same year as Nabopolassar's death, King Jehoiakim of Judah became a vassal of Nebuchadnezzar, the son of Nabopolassar (see 2 Kin. 24:1). Nebuchadnezzar brought his father's empire to even greater heights, eventually deporting many Jews to Babylon.

Daniel lived in the midst of all these momentous events. What direct impact he had on the community of exiles cannot be known, but he was a force for good as far as the Babylonians were concerned. Daniel was a close confidant of Nebuchadnezzar throughout the Babylonian king's reign (605–562 B.C.). Later Daniel served with equal distinction Cyrus, the enlightened Persian ruler who conquered Babylon. One of the first policies Cyrus implemented after subduing Babylon was to allow the Jews to return to their homeland and rebuild their way of life. It is more than likely that Daniel had some influence on Cyrus's decision. The Book of Daniel is a testimony to how God works out His purposes through His servants even in the courts of pagan rulers (see 2:21; 4:18).

Daniel is thrown into the lions' den

Author Daniel claims to have written the book that bears his name (12:4) and uses the first person singular from 7:2 to the end of the book. The Jewish Talmud agrees with Daniel's testimony. Christ Himself mentions Daniel by name in His predictions concerning the last days (see Matt. 24:15). There is no reason to doubt either that Daniel was a historical person or that he wrote the book that bears his name. A well-educated Jew, chosen for special training in the palace in Babylon, Daniel possessed all the linguistic skills and the historical and cultural knowledge needed to write a book of this depth and complexity.

Date Since Daniel refers to the reign of Cyrus (6:28), a date of 530 B.C. or so is reasonable for the book's composition. Critical scholars, however, deny that this is possible mainly because the book appears to predict events that did not come to pass until the third and second centuries B.C. These predictions are so precise and detailed that some believe them not to have been prophecy at all but a record of the events after they transpired. Thus according to some, Daniel must date from the second century in order to account for at least those passages that predict later times.

If one concedes the possibility that Daniel was inspired to write prophetically of events two or three hundred years in the future, there is no reason to deny Daniel's authorship of the book in the sixth century. The accuracy of its historical information, the form and style of its Hebrew and Aramaic passages, and the unanimous testimony of ancient tradition all confirm the witness of the book itself concerning its authorship and date.

Purpose Daniel wrote his book with two purposes in mind. First, he wanted to assert that the God of Israel was sovereign, even over the powerful nations that surrounded His people. God's chosen nation had been conquered and dispersed by a mighty empire that did not acknowledge God. What would happen now? Would Babylon's yoke remain forever on Israel's shoulders?

Would God's people never see their homeland again? Had God forgotten His promises? Daniel's answer was that Babylon would fall to another empire, which in turn would fall to yet another great kingdom. History would continue in this pattern until God judged all Gentile nations and established His everlasting rule. Daniel's message was obviously meant to uplift and encourage the weary hearts of the exiled Jews.

Yet Daniel also looked forward to the day when God would restore and reward Israel. Israel was suffering punishment for its disobedience; but when would the punishment end? Daniel's message was both discouraging and encouraging. He predicted trouble ahead; Israel would suffer under Gentile powers for many years. But the encouraging news was that the time of trials would also pass away. The time was coming when God would gather His children to Him again. He would establish His messianic kingdom which would last forever. The God who directs the forces of history has not deserted His people. They must continue to trust Him. His promises of preservation and ultimate restoration are sure.

Christ in the Scriptures

Daniel pictures Jesus as the great Stone who will crush the kingdoms of this world (2:34, 35, 44). With his love of imagery, the prophet also describes the Messiah as the Son of Man who is given dominion by the Ancient of Days (7:13, 14). Jesus is also portrayed as Israel's Deliverer who will be cut off (9:25, 26).

Daniel's dreams and visions fill his book. It is quite likely that his vision in 10:5–9 is an appearance of Christ Himself (similar to what the apostle John describes in Revelation 1:12–16). Daniel's precise prediction is unlike any other biblical writer's. He pinpoints the birth of Jesus five hundred years beforehand. Based on what Nehemiah tells us (Neh. 2:1–8), the decree about which Daniel writes in 9:25 took place on March 4, 444 B.C.

Daniel 1

Daniel and His Friends Obey God

(cf. 2 Kin. 24:10–17)

¹In the third year of the reign of ^aJehoiakim king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and besieged it.

²And the Lord gave Jehoiakim king of Judah into his hand, with ^bsome of the articles of ¹the house of God, which he carried ^cinto the land of Shinar to the house of his god; ^dand he brought the articles into the treasure house of his god. In-Text Map: The Neo-Babylonian Empire 626–539 B.C.

³Then the king instructed Ashpenaz, the master of his eunuchs, to bring ^esome of the children of Israel and some of the king's descendants and some of the nobles,

⁴young men ^fin whom there was no blemish, but good-looking, gifted in all wisdom, possessing knowledge and quick to understand, who had ability to serve in the king's palace, and ^gwhom they might teach the language and ²literature of the Chaldeans.

⁵And the king appointed for them a daily provision of the king's delicacies and of the wine which he drank, and three years of training for them, so that at the end of that time they might ^hserve before the king.

⁶Now from among those of the sons of Judah were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah.

⁷ⁱTo them the chief of the eunuchs gave names: ^jhe gave Daniel the name Belteshazzar; to Hananiah, Shadrach; to Mishael, Meshach; and to Azariah, Abed-Nego.

⁸But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself ^kwith the portion of the king's delicacies, nor with the wine which he drank; therefore he requested of the chief of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

⁹Now ¹God had brought Daniel into the favor and ³goodwill of the chief of the eunuchs.

¹⁰And the chief of the eunuchs said to Daniel, "I fear my lord the king, who has appointed your food and drink. For why should he see your faces looking worse than the young men who are your age? Then you would endanger my head before the king."

¹¹So Daniel said to ⁴the steward whom the chief of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,

¹²“Please test your servants for ten days, and let them give us vegetables to eat and water to drink.

¹³“Then let our appearance be examined before you, and the appearance of the young men who eat the portion of the king’s delicacies; and as you see fit, so deal with your servants.”

¹⁴So he consented with them in this matter, and tested them ten days.

¹⁵And at the end of ten days their features appeared better and fatter in flesh than all the young men who ate the portion of the king’s delicacies.

¹⁶Thus ⁵the steward took away their portion of delicacies and the wine that they were to drink, and gave them vegetables.

¹⁷As for these four young men, ^mGod gave them ⁿknowledge and skill in all literature and wisdom; and Daniel had ^ounderstanding in all visions and dreams.

¹⁸Now at the end of the days, when the king had said that they should be brought in, the chief of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar.

¹⁹Then the king ⁶interviewed them, and among them all none was found like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; therefore ^pthey served before the king.

^{20q}And in all matters of wisdom and understanding about which the king examined them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers who were in all his realm.

^{21r}Thus Daniel continued until the first year of King Cyrus.

Daniel 2

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

¹Now in the second year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, Nebuchadnezzar had dreams; ^aand his spirit was so troubled that ^bhis sleep left him.

^{2c}Then the king gave the command to call the magicians, the astrologers, the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans to tell the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king.

³And the king said to them, "I have had a dream, and my spirit is anxious to ¹know the dream."

⁴Then the Chaldeans spoke to the king in Aramaic, ^d"O² king, live forever! Tell your servants the dream, and we will give the interpretation."

⁵The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, "My ³decision is firm: if you do not make known the dream to me, and its interpretation, you shall be ^ecut in pieces, and your houses shall be made an ash heap.

^{6f}"However, if you tell the dream and its interpretation, you shall receive from me gifts, rewards, and great honor. Therefore tell me the dream and its interpretation."

⁷They answered again and said, "Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will give its interpretation."

⁸The king answered and said, "I know for certain that you would gain time, because you see that my decision is firm:

⁹"if you do not make known the dream to me, there is only one decree for you! For you have agreed to speak lying and corrupt words before me till the ⁴time has changed. Therefore tell me the dream, and I shall know that you can ⁵give me its interpretation."

¹⁰The Chaldeans answered the king, and said, "There is not a man on earth who can tell the king's matter; therefore no king, lord, or ruler has ever asked such things of any magician, astrologer, or Chaldean.

¹¹"It is a ⁶difficult thing that the king requests, and there is no other who can tell it to the king ^gexcept the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh."

¹²For this reason the king was angry and very furious, and gave the command to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

¹³So the decree went out, and they began killing the wise men; and they sought ^hDaniel and his companions, to kill them.

God Reveals Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

¹⁴Then with counsel and wisdom Daniel answered Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, who had gone out to kill the wise men of Babylon;

¹⁵he answered and said to Arioch the king's captain, "Why is the decree from the king so ⁷urgent?" Then Arioch made the decision known to Daniel.

¹⁶So Daniel went in and asked the king to give him time, that he might tell the king the interpretation.

¹⁷Then Daniel went to his house, and made the decision known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions, ¹⁸ⁱthat they might seek mercies from the God of heaven concerning this secret, so that Daniel and his companions might not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

¹⁹Then the secret was revealed to Daniel ^jin a night vision. So Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

²⁰Daniel answered and said:

^k"Blessed be the name of God forever and ever,

^lFor wisdom and might are His.

²¹And He changes ^mthe times and the seasons;

ⁿHe removes kings and raises up kings;

^oHe gives wisdom to the wise

And knowledge to those who have understanding.

²²^pHe reveals deep and secret things;

^qHe knows what is in the darkness,

And ^rlight dwells with Him.

²³"I thank You and praise You,

O God of my fathers;

You have given me wisdom and might,

And have now made known to me what we ^sasked of You,

For You have made known to us the king's ⁸demand."

Daniel Explains the Dream

²⁴Therefore Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon. He went and said thus to him: “Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon; take me before the king, and I will tell the king the interpretation.”

²⁵Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel before the king, and said thus to him, “I have found a man of the ⁹captives of Judah, who will make known to the king the interpretation.”

²⁶The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, “Are you able to make known to me the dream which I have seen, and its interpretation?”

²⁷Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, “The secret which the king has demanded, the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, and the soothsayers cannot declare to the king.

²⁸“But there is a God in heaven who reveals secrets, and He has made known to King Nebuchadnezzar ^uwhat will be in the latter days. Your dream, and the visions of your head upon your bed, were these:

²⁹“As for you, O king, thoughts came to your mind while on your bed, about what would come to pass after this; ^vand He who reveals secrets has made known to you what will be.

³⁰^w“But as for me, this secret has not been revealed to me because I have more wisdom than anyone living, but for our sakes who make known the interpretation to the king, ^xand that you may ¹⁰know the thoughts of your heart.

³¹“You, O king, were watching; and behold, a great image! This great image, whose splendor was excellent, stood before you; and its form was awesome.

³²^y“This image’s head was of fine gold, its chest and arms of silver, its belly and ¹¹thighs of bronze, Charts and Diagrams: Dreams and Visions in Daniel ³³“its legs of iron, its feet partly of iron and partly of ¹²clay.

³⁴“You watched while a stone was cut out ^zwithout hands, which struck the image on its feet of iron and clay, and broke them in pieces.

³⁵^a“Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold were crushed together, and became ^blike chaff from the summer threshing floors; the wind carried them away so that ^cno trace of them was found. And the stone that struck the image ^dbecame a great mountain ^eand filled the whole earth.

³⁶“This is the dream. Now we will tell the interpretation of it before the king.

^{37f}“You, O king, are a king of kings. ⁸For the God of heaven has given you a kingdom, power, strength, and glory;

^{38h}“and wherever the children of men dwell, or the beasts of the field and the birds of the heaven, He has given them into your hand, and has made you ruler over them all—ⁱyou are this head of gold.

³⁹“But after you shall arise ^janother kingdom ^kinferior to yours; then another, a third kingdom of bronze, which shall rule over all the earth.

⁴⁰“And ^lthe fourth kingdom shall be as strong as iron, inasmuch as iron breaks in pieces and shatters everything; and like iron that crushes, that kingdom will break in pieces and crush all the others.

⁴¹“Whereas you saw the feet and toes, partly of potter’s clay and partly of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; yet the strength of the iron shall be in it, just as you saw the iron mixed with ceramic clay.

⁴²“And as the toes of the feet were partly of iron and partly of clay, ^mso the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly ¹³fragile.

⁴³“As you saw iron mixed with ceramic clay, they will mingle with the seed of men; but they will not adhere to one another, just as iron does not mix with clay.

⁴⁴“And in the days of these kings ⁿthe God of heaven will set up a kingdom ^owhich shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people; ^pit shall ¹⁴break in pieces and ¹⁵consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.

^{45q}“Inasmuch as you saw that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it broke in pieces the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver, and the gold—the great God has made known to the king what will come to pass after this. The dream is certain, and its interpretation is sure.”

Daniel and His Friends Promoted

⁴⁶^rThen King Nebuchadnezzar fell on his face, prostrate before Daniel, and commanded that they should present an offering ^sand incense to him.

⁴⁷The king answered Daniel, and said, “Truly ^tyour God is the God of ^ugods, the Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, since you could reveal this secret.”

⁴⁸^vThen the king promoted Daniel ^wand gave him many great gifts; and he made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and ^xchief administrator over all the wise men of Babylon.

⁴⁹Also Daniel petitioned the king, ^yand he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego over the affairs of the province of Babylon; but Daniel ^z*sat* in ¹⁶the gate of the king.

Daniel 3

The Image of Gold

¹Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold, whose height was ¹sixty cubits and its width six cubits. He set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon.

²And King Nebuchadnezzar sent word to gather together the satraps, the administrators, the governors, the counselors, the treasurers, the judges, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

³So the satraps, the administrators, the governors, the counselors, the treasurers, the judges, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces gathered together for the dedication of the image that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up; and they stood before the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

⁴Then a herald cried ²aloud: “To you it is commanded, ^aO peoples, nations, and languages,

⁵“that at the time you hear the sound of the horn, flute, harp, lyre, and psaltery, in symphony with all kinds of music, you shall fall down and worship the gold image that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up;

⁶“and whoever does not fall down and worship shall ^bbe cast immediately into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.”

⁷So at that time, when all the people heard the sound of the horn, flute, harp, and lyre, in symphony with all kinds of music, all the people, nations, and languages fell down and worshiped the gold image which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

Daniel’s Friends Disobey the King

⁸Therefore at that time certain Chaldeans ^ccame forward and accused the Jews.

⁹They spoke and said to King Nebuchadnezzar, ^d“O king, live forever!

¹⁰“You, O king, have made a decree that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, flute, harp, lyre, and psaltery, in symphony with all kinds of music, shall fall down and worship the gold image;

¹¹“and whoever does not fall down and worship shall be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

^{12e}“There are certain Jews whom you have set over the affairs of the province of Babylon: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego; these men, O king, have ^fnot paid due regard to you. They do not serve your gods or worship the gold image which you have set up.”

¹³Then Nebuchadnezzar, in ^grage and fury, gave the command to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego. So they brought these men before the king.

¹⁴Nebuchadnezzar spoke, saying to them, “Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego, that you do not serve my gods or worship the gold image which I have set up?
